TOOLS FOR

MEDIA SELECTION

Service-Ads Provide You With The Meaty Data That Add Up To Reasons Why-To-Buy For Every Medium On Your Schedule

Market information, circulation breakdowns, analysis of editorial policy and content, advertising revenue comparisons, success stories . . . these and many other types of complete, USEFUL information go into Service-Ads in SRDS. These types of data are included because you, the people who "have a say" in media-selection decisions, have asked for them.

SRDS Service-Ads give you the qualitative information about media that amplifies and rounds out the quantitative material found in SRDS listings. Use this information—information that is provided by media managers for your use in your job of media comparison and selection.

Help yourself to this information . . . it will help you!

Analysis of Editorial in Spot Radio Rates and Data

SRDS policy requires that all information supplied by the station be clarified and organized in accordance with these numbered title segments. Where the numbered title segment is omitted from the listing, it is to be assumed the station has failed to provide the necessary information in accordance with SRDS prescribed criteria and practice.

Basic editorial service is provided to media who meet SRDS' minimal criteria, free of charge.

Numbered titles for various subjects found within Spot Radio Rates and Data listings have been devised in order that this important data can be located easier. These titles, as listed below, form the basis of the uniform listing format.

1. PERSONNEL
2. REPRESENTATIVES
3. FACILITIES
4. AGENCY COMMISSION
5. GENERAL ADVERTISING TIME RATES
6. SPOT ANNOUNCEMENTS
7. PACKAGE PLANS
8. PROGRAM TIME RATES
9. PARTICIPATING PROGRAMS
10. SPECIAL FEATURES

The uniform listing format is as follows:

INTRODUCTORY MATERIAL
- —call letters
- —established date
- —media identification code
- —licensee
- —address of station
- —telephone number
- —TWX number
- —other offices and/or studios
- —station's programming description

1. PERSONNEL
- —names and titles of those executives (limit of three) who have responsibility and authority relative to national advertising accounts.

2. REPRESENTATIVES
- —national representatives (name only)
- —regional representatives (name only)
- —national sales offices of group ownership (name only)

3. FACILITIES
- —AM Facilities
- —power, frequency
- —operating schedule
- —FM Facilities
- —power, frequency
- —operating schedule
- —antenna height above average terrain
- —operational status

4. AGENCY COMMISSION
- —statement of agency commission, discount policy and billing arrangements.

5. GENERAL ADVERTISING See coded regulations
- —coded regulations
- —national network affiliation
- —regional and/or state network affiliation
- —specialized regulation
  multiple product announcements
- —combination rates, rate opportunities, reflecting combination rate statements for two or more stations, provided a discount is shown.

TIME RATES
- —status of rates (NATIONAL AND LOCAL RATES SAME)
- —card number
- —effective date of rates
- —received date

6. SPOT ANNOUNCEMENTS
- —basic rate structure for 1-minute, 30-seconds, 20-seconds and 10-second spots

7. PACKAGE PLANS
- —package rates and plans for 1-minute, 30-second, 20-second and 10-second spots. (Description terminology such as "SATURATION PACKAGE," "WEEKLY PACKAGE PLAN," etc. has been retained to insure continuity in actual usage particularly in cases where the name of a specific plan is referred to in existing contracts).
- —for package plans identified with news rates, weather rates, or other specialized programming see 10. SPECIAL FEATURES.

8. PROGRAM TIME RATES
- —basic program rate structure

9. PARTICIPATING PROGRAMS
- —listing of qualified participating programs by name or title, day (s), time and premium rates

10. SPECIAL FEATURES
- —only special features (news, weather, sports, farm, traffic, etc.) subject to special rates or special charges are identified.

EXPLANATION OF SRDS RADIO MARKET ESTIMATOR

Radio Market Estimators appear in the top 150 radio markets and are positioned at the beginning of the listings for the individual markets.

With the permission of the Katz Radio organization, SRDS has applied their formula to create these radio market estimators.

SRDS has extended the Katz procedures one logical step, in that the RADIO MARKET ESTIMATORS will be published every month, and updated to reflect the latest rate changes as they are reported in each issue.

SRDS RADIO MARKET ESTIMATORS appear directly below the city of license for the major city designation heading for each of the top 150 Radio Markets (based on FCC NATIONAL SPOT VOLUME Rankings).

CITY — MONTH, YEAR
RADIO MARKET ESTIMATOR

Table reports one-minute rates (based on 12 per week for 13 weeks) for the four highest-cost stations (and the average thereof) in each daypart.

Station	Morning Traffic (6-10 am)	Daytime (10 am-3 pm)	Afternoon Traffic (3-7 pm)	Evening (7 pm-midnight)
A	180	100	180	115
B	175	93	135	110
C	165	75	125	58
D	150	70	110	45
AVERAGE	162	85	138	82

RATES
- —All costs shown are based on rate cards published in the current issue of SRDS SPOT RADIO RATES and DATA.
- —Costs were selected separately for each daypart, based on schedules of 12 one-minute announcements per week for 13 weeks, and reported for the four highest cost stations in each market. In addition, the average cost by each daypart was computed and reported at the bottom of each estimator table.
- —In determination of the four highest cost stations by daypart in each market, all costs were calculated to the nearest cent. The final figures used for reporting in the estimator tables were rounded to the nearest dollar.
- —In all cases, the lowest costs which appropriately qualified by the established criterion of a 13 week 12 one-minute announcements per week, were used. This included the use of all "special" or "pre-emptible" plans and discounts, but only when clearly applicable to the daypart involved.
- —In most instances, total audience and weekend plans were not used. ROS plans were considered applicable to the least expensive of the major dayparts included in the ROS definition.
- —In cases of AM-FM combinations, AM-only rates were used when available. Otherwise AM-FM combination rates were used.

DAYPARTS
- —The four dayparts used in the RADIO MARKET ESTIMATORS are defined as: Morning Traffic (6-10 am); Daytime (10 am-3 pm); Afternoon Traffic (3-7 pm); and Evening (7 pm-Midnight).
- —In those circumstances where more than one rate level was available for a given daypart, the rate applicable to the most time within the dayparts (as defined above) were used.

STATION ASSIGNMENT TO MARKET
- —AM and FM radio stations were considered as part of a given market in exact accordance with SRDS SPOT RADIO RATES and DATA listings. Thus, stations listed in SPOT RADIO in more than one market, were used in preparation of the radio market estimator once, in the market designated as their primary market.

NEWS OF THE FIELD

Beginning Oct. 13, a series of regional radio conferences will take place in six U. S. cities, covering government relations, sales, general management, engineering, legal, the FCC and other subjects of interest to broadcasters. The conferences will be jointly sponsored by the National Association of Broadcasters and the Radio Advertising Bureau.

Between 1,500 and 2,000 broadcasters are expected to attend the 1975 National Radio Broadcasters Conference & Exposition, Sept. 17 to 20 in Atlanta, sponsored by the National Association of FM Broadcasters. The principal luncheon speakers will be Richard E. Wiley, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and Julian Bond, the political and civil rights leader who is a senator in the Georgia state senate.

The foreign correspondent, American version, is a vanishing species, says the Overseas Press Club. A recent survey shows that full-time correspondents for American media in foreign countries number 676 this year, down 28% from six years ago, and continuing a steady downward trend. The study appears in the Overseas Press Club's 1975 Directory, just published.

American Airlines has compiled a list of radio stations which can generally be monitored (by the flight crew) at jet altitudes. Most of the stations on the list radiate 50,000 watts or more. Included are: KFI, KGBS, KMPC, KNX and KPOL in Los Angeles, WGBS and WINZ in Miami, WCKY and WLW in Cincinnati. WBBM, WGN, WJJD, WLS and WMAQ in Chicago, and WABC, WCBS, WHN, WINS, WNBC, WNEW, WOR and WQXR in New York City. For the other 125 U. S. and 31 Canadian stations, contact American Airlines. (It was in their Flight Deck publication.)

Arbitron Radio Increases Number of Ethnic Reports

In a move designed to bring more information to radio users about the listening habits of the Spanish and the Black population, Arbitron Radio will produce Spanish reports for the first time in Los Angeles and New York, and will increase the number of Black Reports from 10 (in 1974) to 15. Delivery of the reports is planned for this month.

Nine of the 15 Black reports are new in 1975. These include the markets of Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas-Ft. Worth, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Louisville and St. Louis. Black reports will also be repeated for Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, and Washington, D. C.

This year's reports will feature a new format designed to make buying and selling radio easier. There will be a one-page showing listening estimates for each sex-age group (e.g., 18-24, 25-34, 35-49, 50-64) based on the Total Week.

The remainder of the report is organized by Target Audiences for Men, Women and Adults (e.g., 18+, 18-34, 25-49, 25-64 and 35-64). A separate section showing Teen listening also will be included.

Listening estimates for Average Ratings, Average Persons, and Cume Persons will be shown for the four major Monday-Friday time periods, plus separate estimates for the same time periods for Saturday and for Sunday.

A complete list of the reports, the survey periods which will be combined to produce Spanish and Black listening estimates, and the ethnic penetration in each market is available from Arbitron, 1350 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y. 10019.

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this report is to explore how the American consumer has reacted to recent disruptions in the U. S. and world events, and how this reaction is affecting sales and buying habits in a wide variety of product categories.

Over the past few years, Americans who comprise the mass of the consumer market (18-50 years of age) have been confronted with an unprecedented combination of economic and political events that have seriously shaken their perceptions of, expectations for, attitudes towards and methods of dealing with the world as they know it.

Consumers responses to these events can be generally classified in two ways — emotional or attitudinal responses and behavioral responses.

Behavioral responses are the immediate cause for most of the changes in sales trends and buying habits that can be observed over many product categories. Behavioral responses cannot be fully understood, however, without understanding the emotional responses that underlie them.

This report will summarize these traumatic events, explain consumers emotional and behavioral responses to these events, and specifically illustrate how the responses are translated into changing behavior in the supermarket, appliance store, car showroom, or any other place where goods and services are offered at a price to the public.

THE EVENTS

Six major economic and political occurrences have coalesced into a bewildering new framework of experience for the American consumer:

—Inflation has increased visibly and rapidly;
—Unemployment has increased dramatically and unexpectedly;
—Disposable income has decreased sizeably for the first time since 1949;
—Shortages of commodities have developed for the first time within memory in a peace-time economy;
—Domestic political upheaval has resulted in the resignation of a President and Vice-President;
—Foreign policy setbacks have seriously challenged America's position and credibility as a world leader.

Increasing the impact of these six events is the rapidity with which they all occurred, even to the point where Rapidity of Events becomes an event in itself.

EMOTIONAL RESPONSE TO THE EVENTS

There have been four significant emotional responses to the events described above:

—Tempered Expectations
—Ego Threat
—Anxiety
—Volatility In Public Opinion

1. Tempered Expectations — Consumers expectations of their future economic and material growth have been tempered or lowered by these six events but principally by inflation, the resulting drop in disposable income, and commodity shortages. The twin pincers of inflation and increased taxes have caused an unprecedented drop in disposable income in 1974 of 2.6% after adjustments for price increases are made.

The reality of the erosion in consumer spending power and the enormous increase in gross income required just to stand in place is revealed by a comparison of the relative gross income needed to yield the same disposable income (in constant 1949 dollars):

DISPOSABLE INCOME (In 1949 Dollars):	GROSS INCOME REQUIRED 1949	1970	1975
$ 4,656	$ 5,000	$ 8,728	$ 12,064
8,888	10,000	17,049	23,640
12,095	15,000	25,385	35,450
20,590	25,000	45,720	61,380
36,924	50,000	96,839	125,250

In other words, $61M in gross income provides the same purchasing power today as $46M did five years ago and as $25M did in 1949.

The commodity shortages of recent years — beef, sugar, gasoline — have also helped to temper expectations. For the first time, Americans were forced to realize that abundance was not boundless. The talk of gas rationing raised the spectre that sometime in the future there even might be a limit on the amount of goods or services that money could buy.

2. Ego Threat — Tempered expectations lead directly to a threat to the ego of the American consumer.

Americans tend to be naive about the economics of daily living. If they are making more money now than they did several years ago, they see their absolute income increase as largely unrelated to inflation. When surveyed, most consumers believe income increases are due to "their own efforts, to increased experience and ability and to progress in their own careers, rather than to inflation or to activities of government and trade unions."

This naivete grows from a feeling that an indication of one's psychological worth is reflected at least partially by one's economic worth. Consumers need to believe that if they make more money, it is because they "earned" more and deserve it. Money is more than compensation; it is recognition.

A drop in disposable income, resulting in the erosion of purchasing power, or the possibility of unemployment, therefore produces an enormous threat to the ego or sense of self-worth and identity of people.

Similarly, the realization that foreign policy setbacks have enabled foreign countries to affect our own well-being rather directly, such as the OPEC control of oil prices and supply, poses the same sort of threat to the ego of a nation, and to the people who make up that nation.

3. Anxiety — Anxiety is disequilibrium, the disruption of many things which people have taken for granted, uncertainty about the future.

Shortages of commodities which have always been readily available cause anxiety. So does rapid growth in unemployment, all the more unexpected because the beginnings of the recession that caused the unemployment were hidden by inflated profits and increased buying by industry as a hedge against inflation.

So do political upheavals and foreign policy setbacks. The Yankelovich Monitor Survey of public attitudes and social values for 1975 reveals evidence of two ominous new trends—a growing hostility toward, and suspicion about, business and government, and a deep and generalized pessimism about the future.

4. VOLATILITY IN PUBLIC OPINION — The rapidity of all these events has especially contributed to the volatility of public opinion. Measures of consumer confidence taken by the Conference Board show roller-coaster like swings.

INDEX OF CONSUMER CONFIDENCE (1969-70 = 100)

Sept.-Oct. 1973	Nov.-Dec. 1973	Jan.-Feb. 1974	Mar.-Apr. 1974	July-Aug. 1974	Nov.-Dec. 1974	Mar.-Apr. 1975
85	61	58	86	69	39	63

The "index of consumer sentiment" of the University of Michigan Survey Center also reveals similar swings in public feelings. Were an individual to suddenly evidence such wide swings from optimism to pessimism and back again after a period of rather stable attitudes, psychotherapists would consider him in a highly unstable condition — perhaps manic-depressive. In such a state small events could trigger off reactions far beyond what one might expect from the event itself.

In such an environment, it is hazardous to attempt to predict what people are going to think, feel, or do in the near term future based on what they are thinking, feeling, or doing in the present, or what they thought, felt, or did in the recent past.

BEHAVIORAL RESPONSE TO THE EVENTS

The emotional responses described above underlie a wide variety of specific behavioral responses exhibited by consumers. These behavioral responses, or adaptive patterns, are diverse and sometimes seemingly contradictory. In any given marketing situation, several adaptive patterns are simultaneously at work. In order to understand the trend of or within any given market, the component adaptive patterns must be identified.

Behavioral responses can generally be classified in two groups:

Risk Reduction — Those adaptive patterns designed to reduce the vulnerability of the consumer to current or future economic problems. They include:

- Major Economies
- Painless Economies
- Avoidance of Temptation
- Avoidance of Product Risk
- Avoidance of Waste
- Increasing Interest in Consumerism

Reward Seeking — Those adaptive patterns that compensate for and ease the blow of the sacrifices made in Risk Reduction adaptive patterns, and which reflect the consumers unwillingness to abandon completely and unselectively former lifestyles. They include:

- Receptivity to Luxury Products
- Modifications of the "Good Life"
- Continued Commitment to Convenience
- Do-It-Yourself Economies

A complete discussion of these adaptive patterns follows.

A. RISK REDUCTION ADAPTIVE PATTERNS — By and large, these adaptive patterns are variations on traditional cutbacks that consumers are expected to make during hard times. They are also the most relevant adaptive patterns for the product categories in which consumer product companies operate.

1. MAJOR ECONOMIES — The first risk reduction adaptive pattern is the cutting back on the purchase of major, high ticket items. Major economies are probably the most obvious response consumers make in periods of economic uncertainty. High cost item purchases are deferred to conserve current capital and/or to minimize future indebtedness, thus reducing the risk of a personal financial crisis.

Over 80% of consumers report they are postponing new car purchases. Over half report they are buying less new clothes. Over one third report they are postponing major appliance purchases. As might be expected, new car sales are off about 25% through mid-May. Television set sales are off 30%. (See Appendix for further details.)

2. PAINLESS ECONOMIES — The second risk reduction pattern is small, seemingly insignificant cutbacks on purchases. Painless economies represent cutbacks that produce little psychic sacrifice. They were one of consumers initial efforts at economy measures when inflationary pressures began to get out of hand.

The supermarket was the first as well as the principal arena in which the consumer sought to exercise painless economies in the fight against rapidly rising prices. The supermarket was a convenient battleground. It provided the consumer with frequent opportunities to economize. Equally important, the U.S. never developed into a cuisine country with a strong emotional investment in food. Additionally, cutbacks in food could easily be rationalized on grounds of better health. And because of the attitudinal set of the consumer when shopping in the supermarket, many non-food products also sold in the supermarket became a target for economy measures.

During the first quarter of 1975, seasonally adjusted grocery store dollar volume actually declined for the first time in many years, even though retail food prices continued to rise. Nearly 70% of consumers report they are economizing on food purchases. Painless economies in the supermarket can generally be subdivided into four types:

a. Redeeming more coupons — One midwestern chain has seen coupon redemptions increase about 15% in first quarter, 1975. Additionally, several chains are now offering across-the-board added value for manufacturers' coupons. For example, one chain offered a 50% bonus — e.g., 15c off for a 10c coupon — for 15 products that were running coupon advertisements in that day's paper.

b. Switching to private label brands — Switching is tempered by the desire to avoid the risk of product dissatisfaction. None-the-less, private label share of market has increased less than 5% vs. year ago in the dry grocery category, but has increased almost 10% in frozen and refrigerated foods and health and beauty aids.

c. Substituting lower priced for higher priced items — For example, comparing case sales in the first quarter of 1974 with case sales in the first quarter of 1975:

Soft Drinks — Soft drink mixes, less expensive than bottled soft drinks, have increased about 35%, while bottled soft drinks are off 5%. Within the bottled soft drink categories, however, sugar-free soft drinks have attained an all-time high in market share, aided by their lower shelf price vs. regular bottled soft drinks.

Sweeteners — Granulated sugar is off 30%. Diet sweeteners are up almost 50%, and honey is up almost 20%.

Meat Substitutes—Dried beans are up 10%, pork and beans are up almost 15%, Italian food sauce and pasta are up about 10%, canned luncheon meat is up 10%.

Pet Food — Even the family pet is affected. Dry dog food is up 15%. Wet dog food is off 5%.

d. Reducing consumption: Discretionary products, such as paper towels, are experiencing sharp sales losses vs. year ago levels. Household supplies in general, which include many discretionary items, are off 7% in first quarter 1975. Even categories that would seem relatively invulnerable to changes in demand are experiencing sales losses or lack of growth. Detergent case sales ran 4% off year ago levels in first quarter 1975. Bar soap case sales have been running 3-6% off year ago levels in recent Nielsen bimonthly periods. In 1974, toothpaste per capita ounce sales failed to continue the strong growth trend of recent years, although sampling by new brands may have also affected this trend.

3. AVOIDANCE OF TEMPTATION — The consumer is aware, if only subliminally, that the simple fact of being in a store increases his chances of making an impulse or other purchase that is considered only marginally necessary. This concern is less relevant to the consumer with more traditional values, who has always tended to subscribe to the "buy what you need, need what you buy" philosophy.

Consumers who feel that their resistance to temptation is low, however, indicate they are making an effort to spend less time in stores and to shop less frequently. This would be consistent with the lower traffic levels reported by many retailers.

Putting temptation out of sight is, in effect, a "cold turkey" approach to reducing expenditures, but one which may gain more momentum — particularly among consumers who are hard pressed financially.

4. Avoidance of Product Risk — The fourth risk reduction pattern is the tendency to purchase well-known brands from established marketers, even if it means sacrificing marginal price advantages. A corollary of this pattern is that low price alone is not sufficient to insure product acceptance.

This pattern appears to be most characteristic of higher ticket items where there is less willingness to risk dissatisfaction. Essentially, people are taking the "Penny wise, pound foolish" philosophy to heart. In effect, it is a form of economy measure that seeks to avoid future loss through spending a little more as a means of insuring against this possibility. Accordingly, consumer willingness to "take a chance" on less well-established brands, where higher ticket items are concerned, would appear to be a pattern that is more closely associated with periods of economic optimism.

This tendency to avoid product risk is also evident in packaged goods where advertised brands battle private label brands. There are strong indications that the low pricing of private labels is not sufficient to cause a great deal of switching. Despite the severe economic downturn, private label brands have scored only moderate gains (see Painless Economies). The perceived benefits that result from advertising apparently create a barrier which most consumers are reluctant to cross.

This unwillingness to switch to private label brands was recently demonstrated in the dishwashing liquid category, where about half the category sales are accounted for by private labels. As a by-product of a study to determine the most effective method of displaying unit price information, it was discovered that unit pricing caused users of private label brands to tend to switch to the lowest priced private label, but did not cause advertised brand users to switch to the much lower cost private label brands. Many consumers are apparently suspicious of any positioning that does not include specific benefit statements in addition to low price. They are in effect turned off by a "bare bones" price story.

When switching to private label brands does occur, there are sometimes factors that help explain the switch. For example in the multi-vitamin category, upscale, better educated consumers show the greatest tendency to switch from advertised to private label brands. Although they have more money than their lower income counterparts, they presumably have more knowledge about the parity of the products as well.

5. Avoidance of Waste — The fifth risk reduction pattern is cutting back on waste.

One reason for this trend is that consumer concern over guilt and waste has increased due to two factors: the awareness of present shortages in many areas, and the growing realization that long-term future shortages are not as remote a possibility as they were once thought to be.

A second reason is the economic incentive. Waste is costly.

A third reason is that high consumption levels are now less meaningful as a sign of affluence. Accordingly, the decline of the social incentive also contributes to the consumers inclination to use less.

About 50% of consumers report they are:

- taking greater care with clothes, or repairing them rather than discarding them;
- saving empty jars and containers they used to throw away;
- repairing rather than replacing broken furniture;
- using paper towels and tissues more sparingly;
- re-using kitchen wraps (e.g., aluminum foil, plastic wrap)

6. Increasing Interest in Consumerism — The sixth and last Risk Reduction Pattern is a ever increasing interest in consumerism. Although the consumerism movement preceded the present economic downturn, there is evidence that the current state of the economy may provide this movement with additional support and momentum. The "need to know" has, of course, taken on new meaning in the face of rising prices and the fear of buying "wrong".

In short, there is evidence that the consumer who otherwise might never have been overly concerned about consumerism issues, is now more sensitive to these issues as the result of economic pressures. In essence, buying more wisely is also seen as a means of buying more economically, and this adaptive pattern is also likely to gain more adherents in the future.

B. Reward Seeking Adaptive Patterns — Reward seeking patterns are more complex than Risk Reduction Patterns. Sometimes they appear paradoxical, counter to the trends that one would expect to see in a declining economy.

1. Receptivity to Luxury Products — The first reward seeking pattern is the relative strength demonstrated by high end merchandise in certain categories. Probably this trend reflects several influences on the consumer:

- A search for true long-term value, especially in categories where the price differential between top and mid-line products has been decreasing. This may also reflect an expansion of consumers perception of what a reasonable price is in an inflationary economy.
- A counteraction to the need to economize — i.e., an indulgence in products that help to thin out the cloud of pessimism that has enveloped the consumer. Such products might be likened to the "shot-in-the-arm" phenomenon. Or, as one consumer put it, "I don't want to live my life like a corpse".
- A movement away from egalitarianism; in other words, the idea that it is more rewarding to practice "conspicuous consumption" when those lower down on the economic scale are less able to, thereby accentuating status differences that during periods of affluence are less noticeable.
- A get-it-while-you-can attitude, a fear that one might never again have the opportunity to indulge in such extravagances.

This trend is not evident in all categories, and is usually not strong enough to counterbalance overall declines.

Car sales are off 25% and, as might be expected, there is a trend to trade down to high mileage, low sticker price cars, especially imports. Luxury cars, however, are also increasing market share in the declining market. Cars that combine luxury equipment with economy features take advantage of both trends. The Ford Granada, positioned exactly in that manner, was the automotive success story of the year. The new, small Cadillac Seville sold out its first production run almost immediately.

A similar trend is evident in the liquor market. High end brands and low priced brands are expanding their market shares at the expense of middle of the road brands in a declining market.

Part Two of Change in the Market Place will appear in the Oct. 1 issue of Spot Radio

Radio Stations Regularly Scheduling Farm Programs

Methods and Sources:

Employing a rotation system SRDS station questionnaires are being mailed with greater frequency to insure data reported is current and accurate.

Stations with Farm Directors who are members of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters are identified by the letters NAFB.

Definition as to what constitutes Farm Programming is left to the discretion of the stations.

Each station is advised that failure to return a completed form will mean deletion of the station from this tabulation as information from previous reports is not carried forward.

Methods and Sources:

Employing a rotation system SRDS station questionnaires are being mailed with greater frequency to insure data reported is current and accurate.

A station whose entire schedule is devoted to Negro/black Programming is identified by the word, All, under hours per week.

Definition as to what constitutes Negro/black Programming is left to the discretion of the stations.

Each station is advised that failure to return a completed form will mean deletion of the station from this tabulation as information is not carried forward.

State, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's), county and city estimates are developed exclusively by Market Data division of SRDS.

Negro Population Data

January 1, 1975

METHODS AND SOURCES:

Each year SRDS Consumer Market Data Division develops a special population projection of the Negro population for all the metro areas, and county data for several southern states. This tabulation was developed from material in the Official 1970 Census of Population.

Radio Stations Regularly Scheduling Foreign Language Programs

Methods and Sources:

Employing a rotation system SRDS station questionnaires are being mailed with greater frequency to insure data reported is current and accurate.

A station whose entire schedule is devoted to a Foreign Language is identified by the word, All, under hours per week.

Definition as to what constitutes Foreign Language Programming is left to the discretion of the stations.

Each station is advised that failure to return a completed form will mean deletion of the station from this tabulation as information from previous reports is not carried forward.

EXPLANATION OF SRDS SPANISH POPULATION DATA

The Spanish Population data presented below, are sourced to the April 1, 1970 Census of Population. The Bureau of the Census identified those of Spanish Heritage in different ways, dependent upon geographic location:

1. In 45 states and the District of Columbia, population is identified as "Persons of Spanish language." This includes all persons who claimed Spanish as their mother tongue and all other persons in families in which the head or wife reported Spanish as his or her mother tongue.
2. In the five Southwestern States, as "Persons of Spanish language or Spanish surname." This adds to those of Spanish language, all persons identified by means of a list of over 8,000 Spanish surnames originally compiled by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (and updated by the Bureau of the Census).

SRDS has employed, after careful review of the data available, the following criteria in reporting population of Spanish Heritage for areas of significant concentration:

1. For all official SMSA's, SRDS Additional Metros, and counties reported by the Bureau of the Census for the five Southwestern States.
2. For the remaining states, all metro areas of 10,000 or more Spanish population.

NOTE: Table 130 of Census reports, General Social and Economic Characteristics, employed minimum for reporting county Spanish language or surname population at 400 or more persons. Population counts below this level are available on Table 119 of same reports.

EXPLANATION OF RADIO STATION PROGRAMMING STATEMENT PROGRAM

CRITERIA GOVERNING ACCEPTANCE

The Station Programming statement must reflect current activity and may be detailed and/or specific, as desired.

Stations are requested to use the standard description terms developed for the Programming Description to assure communication between station and buyer of spot time. See accompanying music glossary and analysis of program classifications.

Limit 100 words, excluding percentage. Percentages are not counted in total word count. Standard abbreviations are permitted. Check word count values on back of questionnaire.

Promotional language is prohibited. Program titles and talent identifications are regarded as promotion. Samples of typical promotional language phrasing listed on back of questionnaire.

Descriptions may discuss programming for typical week, day, week parts and/or day parts.

All percentages reported for target audience, program classifications and/or sub-categories should be against a base of time on the air per typical broadcast week.

Programming description may not contain references to coverage, audience, ratings, power, transmitting equipment, costs, etc.—in fact, any statement which does not actually describe that which is placed on the air for broadcast purposes.

Each primary program classification may be listed, detailed and described as to content. Please do not overlap program description between categories.

For example, music and talk description as subcategories for Air Personalities should not appear again under the primary classification of Music or Talk. Each primary program classification is expected to report a self-contained description.

GENERAL PROCEDURES

1. Submission of Programming Description by stations is voluntary.
2. SRDS will reserve the right to refuse to print any Programming Description which, in its opinion, does not meet the above criteria.
3. A permanent ADVISORY COMMITTEE, comprised of persons knowledgeable within the broadcast industry, will arbitrate differences between SRDS and stations, when such issues arise. Its primary functions are to make judgments on acceptability of entire Programming Descriptions and/or definitions for new terms and phrases submitted by stations.
4. Stations accept the responsibility for revision of their statements as changes occur, to assure they are accurate and current at all times.
5. A Programming statement which no longer reflects accurate description of current station programming will be deleted if not revised by the station. Summary action by SRDS will be taken only if compelled by station's failure to cooperate in the ensuing inquiry. Stations may submit a new statement at any time thereafter.

Program Classification Overlap

If a program contains two or more distinct, identifiable program classifications, identify that program classification which the station desires to emphasize and identify others as subordinate sub-categories. Do not include the sub-category analysis in the program classification of similar identity. For example, music and entertainment used as part of the air personalities classification should be reported under Air Personality and not repeated or duplicated under Music or Entertainment.

OUTLINE AND GUIDE FOR DEVELOPING PROGRAMMING STATEMENTS

NOTE: It is anticipated each station will appropriate as much detail as is necessary to permit adequate and proper description of the station's programming emphasis and uniqueness within the 100 word limitation.

Target Audience

The target audience is that primary audience to whom the broadcaster directs his programming and hopes to attract as listeners. This audience may be general in nature or specific in terms of special demographic and/or ethnic groups. For example, statements might read:

A. General—programmed for general interest; or mass appeal

B. Demographic—programmed for young, married women; or teens; or adults

C. Ethnic—programmed for Negroes; or foreign populations; or Spanish speaking individuals

D. Subject interest—programmed for farmers

If there are target audiences (2 or more), station is requested to identify each and to report, in percentages, the amount of broadcast time per typical week devoted to each: Possible example:

A. Negro, 40%; teens, 40%; general interest, 20%

Primary Program Classifications

In its simplest form, primary programming classifications may be identified, first, by generic name and accompanied by a percentage based on the total number of hours per broadcast week. Possible example:

A. News, 20%; Air Personalities, 40%; Talk, 40%

B. Music, 50%; Sports, 40%; News, 10%

Sub-categories

Stations may qualify their primary program classification employing sub-categories to distinguish between various forms of broadcast and to demonstrate programming emphasis — percentage for sub-categories should total to primary percentage total and is also based on total number of hours broadcast for typical broadcast week. Possible examples:

A. News, 20% — local and regional, 10%; national and international, 10%

B. Music, 50% — serious, 15%, rhythm and blues, 15%; religious, 20%

Primary program classifications have been identified. Note: If the music glossary fails to provide for a new category of music broadcasting which the stations may wish to report, the station is requested to submit a definition for the term so that it may be evaluated by the Advisory Committee for acceptability.

Description of Type and Kind with Primary Classification and Sub-categories

Stations may further delineate as to type and kind to distinguish further their unique and different programming emphasis. Possible example:

A. News, 20% — community news, 3%; area news, 4%; local weather time, 2%; school, 1%; analysis of national news, 8%; international headlines, 2%

B. Music, 50% — modern chamber ensemble concerto, 15%; rhythm-blues vocals and instrument ensemble, 15%; religious spirituals, 8%; religious gospel chorus, 12%

Breakdown for Day and Day Parts Instead of Broadcast Week

Description may refer to typical day and day parts rather than broadcast week.

By Day or Day Part

A. Farm 5-6 AM & 12-1 PM
B. Local Area news, daily, 5-min. on half hour
C. Women's show 11-12 Noon
D. Open line phone conversation 7-9 PM
E. Air Personalities 6-10 AM
F. School news 6-6:30 PM
G. Music—rhythm & blues 1-4 PM

By Week

A. Farm 12 hours weekly—1-3 PM
B. Local area news, 28 hours weekly
C. Women's show—6 hours weekly—2-3 PM
D. Serious Music—14 hours weekly—8-10 PM
E. Air Personalities—20 hours weekly—6-10 AM
F. School News—2½ hours weekly—6-6:30 PM
G. Music — rhythm & blues — 18 hours weekly 1-4 PM

Do you really expect him to stop and fill out a diary right now?

And if not now, when?

Would you attach a diary to your dashboard? Tie it to a transistor? And if so, which one? If you didn't faithfully record your behavior on the spot, what point in the day, or week, would you reconstruct it?

On the last day, as many people do? Or even on the first day, as a Pulse experiment once revealed? These are questions that needn't trouble Pulse respondents or subscribers.

Listening takes place this afternoon. Pulse interviewing takes place tomorrow.

No earlier. No later.

This is an important piece of certainty. If you know how much time elapsed between listening and reporting (as in Pulse) you know something.

If you don't know the time lapse (as in ARB) then what do you really know about anything? Worth some exploring, before you invest thousands in research, and hundreds of thousands more in the buy!

AS OF JANUARY 1975 — SUBJECT TO CHANGE

Explanation of SRDS Consumer Market Data

SRDS Consumer Market Data reflect the socio-economic status for all states, metropolitan areas, counties, and cities of at least 20,000 inhabitants. Population and households are estimated as of January 1, 1975. Consumer Spendable Income and Retail Sales, in total and by store types, are for the year ending December 31, 1974. Farm population data are as of January 1, 1975 and Gross Farm Income estimates are for the calendar year 1974.

Market data may be reproduced without charge or written permission, but must carry the customary credit line: "Source: SRDS Consumer Market Data, January 1, 1975."

DEFINITIONS, ESTIMATING PROCEDURES AND SOURCES

Population

All population estimates are as of January 1, 1975 and include all population (civilian, institutional, and military) in the United States. This is the definition used in the 1970 Census of Population. Population figures are shown in thousands, with one decimal. In other words, where SRDS population estimate is 60.1, the figure is actually 60,100.

The sources of data used to prepare the SRDS population estimates include the 1970 Census of Population.

Households

The SRDS definition of a household is identical with that used by the Bureau of the Census; namely, that a household is synonymous with an occupied dwelling unit. It consists of one or a number of persons living together under the same roof.

The January 1, 1975 household estimates were obtained using procedures similar to the population procedures keyed to the official 1970 government housing reports. Population data were also a basic part of the estimating procedures. These figures are expressed in thousands with two decimals. Where the household estimate is 10.33, for example, the figure is actually 10,330.

Consumer Spendable Income

The total or aggregate Consumer Spendable Income for each region, state, metropolitan statistical area, county, and city is similar to the Department of Commerce term "disposable personal income," which is income remaining to persons after deduction of personal tax and non-tax payments to the federal and state governments. (For the complete and very detailed statement regarding this definition, see the Statistical Supplement, Survey of Current Business.)

Each major component of state income was separately estimated and added to obtain projections of total income. Wages and salaries, for example, were estimated by using rates of change in "covered' wages as indicators. The other components were estimated using similar procedures.

The sources of data used to prepare the SRDS Consumer Spendable Income estimates include the 1970 Census of Population.

Consumer Spendable Income Per Household

This is an arithmetic average obtained by dividing Consumer Spendable Income in the specified unit by the number of Households.

Family Income Distribution

The Family Income Distribution series is an expression of the distribution of families by percentages within each of five income classes. Each family's income is defined as the combined Consumer Spendable Income of all members of the family.

A family is defined as a group whose members are related by blood, marriage, or adoption, residing in the same household. Consequently, a household may contain one or more families.

Statistics of Family Income Distribution from the 1970 Census of Population were used as the base for these estimates. Adjustments for conceptual differences were made with information provided by the Department of Commerce and with tax payment statistics. Updating was accomplished in much the same manner as the updating of our Consumer Spendable Income.

NOTE: The income class intervals for 1973 shown in this issue are 3000 to 4999, 5000 to 7999, 8000 to 9999, 10000 to 14999 and 15000 and over. The sum of the five income classes subtracted from 100% will give the 0 to 2999 class interval.

Retail Sales

SRDS' definition of the term "retail sales" is the same as that used by the U. S. Department of Commerce. It represents all sales and receipts of all retail establishments. Retail establishments are primarily engaged in selling merchandise for personal, household, or farm consumption. Sales include total receipts from customers after deductions or refunds or allowances for merchandise returned by the customer.

The Department of Commerce monthly estimates of total retail sales, individual state sales-tax data, bank debits, and population; and the 1967 Census of Retail Trade served as the basic data for computing the retail sales estimates.

Many states now report sales-tax data. Much care is exercised in using these taxes because of differences and changes in rates, variety of types of store and merchandise items taxed, and the difference between states in providing data at county and place levels. Monthly and quarterly sales-tax data are used as indices of change. Twelve-month totals are computed and the ratio of each total to the previous year's total is used as the basis for updating the figures. In other states, bank debits and other data are used as the indices of change.

A dagger (†) placed after a county name signifies that the county contains a military installation. Data referring to total retail sales and sales by store type in these areas do not include sales made by commissaries, exchanges and eating places operated for military personnel by the U. S. Department of Defense. (SOURCE: 1967 Census of Business-Retail Trade.)

Retail Sales Per Household

This is a derived figure; Total Retail Sales were divided by the estimated households for the specified unit. It should be noted that a relatively high level of retail sales per household does not necessarily imply high consumption per household. If the city, metro area and/or county attracts trade from a wide area, the retail sales per household would be relatively high due to shopping habits of people living outside the city, metro area and/or county.

Store Types

The sales of seven major store types are reported for all regions, states, counties, cities, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas, and Additional Metropolitan Areas as designated by SRDS. It is important to note that both SRDS and the Bureau of the Census report sales by store type, not by commodity type. For example, foodstore sales consist of all sales made in food stores. They include food sales and also the sales of non-food items. Other stores may sell food items, too, but these sales are reported in their store type — General Merchandise, Drug, etc. SRDS provides estimates for all places for the following store types:

Food Stores: This group includes those retail establishments which are primarily engaged in selling food for home preparation and consumption.

Drug Stores: These stores are classified on the basis of their usual trade designation rather than the merchandise lines carried.

General Merchandise Stores: This group includes department stores, variety stores, and general stores.

Apparel Stores: Included in this group are stores primarily engaged in selling clothing, shoes, hats, underwear, and related articles for personal wear and adornment.

Home Furnishing Stores: This is comparable to the "furniture, furnishing and appliance group" classification of the Census and includes stores selling goods used for furnishing the home.

Automotive Stores: Store types covered are motor vehicle dealers, tire, battery and accessory dealers, motorcycle dealers, aircraft dealers (for private use only), boat dealers, passenger automobile trailer dealers, and related automobile product dealers.

Service Stations: Establishments primarily selling gasoline and other automotive petroleum products.

The sum of the sales of the seven major store groups will not add to the total retail sales for any particular area, because other store classifications are not shown.

Passenger Cars

Passenger Car data were collected from the various State Departments of Motor Vehicles. The reports specify passenger car registrations as of a specific date. All passenger car estimates are as of January 1, 1975. The majority of states reported County breakdowns. However, where only total State data were available, the county figures were pro-rated with statistical formulae.

An additional source was the U. S. Department of Transportation 1973 Bureau of Public Roads estimates.

Farm Data

The Newspaper, Spot Radio and Spot Television editions provide county, state, regional and U. S. estimates of Farm Population (January 1, 1974) and Gross Farm Income for 1973. SRDS Consumer Magazine and Farm Publication Rates and Data and Spot Radio Rates and Data carry additional farm market data—Farm Population, Farm Households, Gross Farm Income, Gross Income per Farm, Farm Livestock Income, Farm Poultry Income, Farm Crops Income, Total Farms, Farm Income by Select Commodity Groups, Total Commercial Farms Producing Sales over $2,500 (1969), Land Crop Harvested (1969), Total Farm Tractors (1969).

These data are the latest available from the Department of Agriculture. Farm mergers, consolidations and changes in ownership make it impractical to up-date the figures on a yearly basis. These data therefore are included in SRDS tabulations as a matter of convenience or reference for buyers of media. More detailed data are available from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Farm Population: Estimates are as of January 1, 1975 and include all persons residing on farms.

The 1-1-75 farm population data has the 1970 Census of Population as its base of projection. In both the 1960 and 1970 Censuses, the farm population consists of persons living in rural territory on places of 10 or more acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $50 or more or on places of less than 10 acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $250 or more.

Gross Farm Income: This includes all cash receipts from farm marketings, income in kind (value of items grown and consumed on the farm) and government payments. Expenses and taxes have not been deducted from the gross figures.

MARKET AREAS INCLUDED

Cities

All places reported (cities, villages, boroughs) are estimated as of January 1, 1975. Cities which cross county lines are listed in the county that has the larger share of the city's population, and other counties where population is substantial.

Cities which are shown as multiple or combined city markets are listed with the first city in the combination. When these cities are in more than one county the combination is listed in each of the applicable counties.

Counties

Included are all of the 3,081 counties, parishes, and/or their equivalents (independent cities, Census Divisions) as reported by the 1970 Census.

In order that users may compile state summaries by adding all counties within the state, data for independent cities (those which are not included in any county) have been added to their adjoining counties. Baltimore and St. Louis are independent cities and their data are added to their respective counties. The state of Virginia has 38 cities in this category.

Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas

SRDS reports all Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas as determined by the Office of Management and Budget. SRDS Consumer Market staff has also designated Additional Metropolitan Areas based upon "Metropolitan in Character" criteria.

Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas are listed in the State-County-City section. Each follows the corporate city data.

The definitions and titles of standard metropolitan statistical areas are established by the Office of Management and Budget with the advice of the Federal Committee on Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas. This Committee is composed of representatives of the major statistical agencies of the Federal Government.

CRITERIA FOLLOWED IN ESTABLISHING STANDARD METROPOLITAN STATISTICAL AREAS

(Revised November 4, 1971)

A standard metropolitan statistical area always includes a city (cities) of specified population which constitutes the central city and the county (counties) in which it is located. A standard metropolitan statistical area also includes contiguous counties when the economic and social relationships between the central and contiguous counties meet specified criteria of metropolitan character and integration. A standard metropolitan statistical area may cross State lines. In New England, standard metropolitan statistical areas are composed of cities and towns instead of counties.

Basic Criteria

1. Each standard metropolitan statistical area must include at least:

(a) One city with 50,000 or more inhabitants, or

(b) A city having a population of at least 25,000 which, with the addition of the population of contiguous places, incorporated or unincorporated, which have a population density of at least 1,000 persons per square mile, and which together constitute for general economic and social purposes, a single community with a combined population of at least 50,000, provided that the county or counties in which the city and contiguous places are located has a total population of at least 75,000.

2. A contiguous county will be included in a standard metropolitan statistical area if

(a) At least 75% of the resident labor force in the county is in the nonagricultural labor force, and

(b) At least 30% of the employed workers living in the county work in the central county or counties of the area.

3. A contiguous county which does not meet the requirements of Criterion 2 will be included in a standard metropolitan statistical area if at least 75% of the resident labor force is in the nonagricultural labor force and it meets two of the following additional criteria of metropolitan character and one of the following criteria of integration.

(a) Criteria of metropolitan character.

(1) At least 25% of the population is urban.

(2) The county had an increase of at least 15% in total population during the period covered by the two most recent Censuses of Population.

(3) The county has a population density of at least 50 persons per square mile.

(b) Criteria of integration

(1) At least 15% of the employed workers living in the county work in the central county or counties of the area, or

(2) The number of people working in the county who live in the central county or counties of the area is equal at least to 15% of the employed workers living in the county, or

(3) The sum of the number of workers commuting to and from the central county or counties is equal to 20% of the employed workers living in the county.

NOTE: The following presents in abbreviated form the remaining qualifying criteria. To obtain the fully outlined criteria, contact: Office of Statistical Policy, Office of Management and Budget, Executive Office Building, Washington, D. C. 20503.

Area Titles

The title of an SMSA always includes the state or states included in the area, the name of the largest city, and may include additional cities, so that there may be up to three city names in a title.

The addition of a city or cities depends on minimum and relative population sizes to the central city or cities.

Special Provisions: New England

In New England, the city and town are administratively more important than the county, and data are compiled locally for such minor civil divisions. Here, towns and cities are the units used in defining standard metropolitan statistical areas. In New England, because smaller units are used, and more restricted areas result, a population density criterion of at least 100 persons per square mile is used as the measure of metropolitan character.

Qualifying Cities in Adjacent Counties

If two or more adjacent counties each have a city qualifying under Criteria 1 (a) or 1 (b) and the cities are within 20 miles of each other (city limits to city limits), they will be included in the same area unless there is definite evidence that the two cities are not economically and socially integrated.

If two or more adjacent counties each have a city qualifying under Criterion 1 (a) or 1 (b) and the cities are more than 20 miles from each other (city limits to city limits), they will not be included in the same area unless there is definite evidence that the two cities are economically and socially integrated.

New England Metros: Official and Whole County

In the regular ranking tables, the New England Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas are ranked on town and not county definitions. However, since users have indicated a preference for New England Metropolitan Areas built along county lines, these data are shown following the official township Metro Area ranking. The New England Metropolitan Areas are reported in the state sections, both on the official Office of Management and Budget definition and on the county concept.

Much of the logic for the SRDS whole county metropolitan area designations can be sourced to the U. S. Department of Commerce which annually publishes County Business Patterns. Included therein are Metropolitan State Economic Areas (MSEA's), which are the government's defined whole county equivalents of New England SMSA's.

SRDS Additional Metropolitan Areas

Because of the rigid structure of the government's requirements for SMSA designation, many markets, which are, in fact, "Metropolitan in Character" do not qualify under the government's criteria. There are many factors other than central city population size (the main Government requirement) which reflect the urbanization of a market:

1. Total Retail Sales of the central city
2. Total Retail Sales of the home county
3. Degree of economic integration between central city and home county — the "drawing power" of a central city on the remaining portion of the county expressed in percentage of the county's Total Retail Sales which the central city captures.

Therefore, SRDS designates "Additional Metros" which, in our opinion, are "Metropolitan in Character." Primarily, these are markets which possess social and economic attributes representative of attractive marketing centers.

To qualify for SRDS "Additional Metro" status, one of the following three criteria must be met:

1. The central city must have 45,000 or more inhabitants,

or

2. The central city, with a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants must have at least 50% of its home county's Total Retail Sales volume, with either:

(a) A central city TRS of $135 million or more.

or

(b) A home county TRS of $185 million or more,

or

3. The central city, with a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants must have a minimum of $145 million TRS, irrespective of its ratio to the county TRS.

The actual volume of Total Retail Sales and the degree of central city/home county integration expressed as a percentage, is a "'moving requirement." Utilization of the effective wage and salaries, U. S. Retail Sales Growth, and benchmark figures representative of smaller-sized but official SMSA's may necessitate appropriate revision from year to year.

NOTE: Pending the complete release of the 1972 Census of Retail Trade, it has been deemed appropriate to place a one year moratorium on the designation of any new SRDS "Additional Metro Areas." Therefore, cities which have initially fulfilled the above criteria this year will not be assigned "Additional Metro" status.

Ranking Tables

Both Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas and Additional Metropolitan Areas are integrated in the ranking tables and state tables.

The ranking tables enable buyers to measure, compare and/or combine the marketing data of Metropolitan Areas.

To show the relationship of each of these areas, ranking tables have been provided on the following:

1. Population
2. Households
3. Consumer Spendable Income
4. Consumer Spendable Income per Household
5. Total Retail Sales
6. Retail Sales per Household
7. Food Store Sales
8. Drug Store Sales
9. General Merchandise Store Sales
10. Apparel Store Sales
11. Home Furnishing Store Sales
12. Automotive Store Sales
13. Service Station Sales
14. Number of Passenger Cars

Territories

Estimates for population, households, retail sales (including the seven major store types) and passenger cars were supplied by the Economic Development Administration, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

STATE MEDIA MAPS

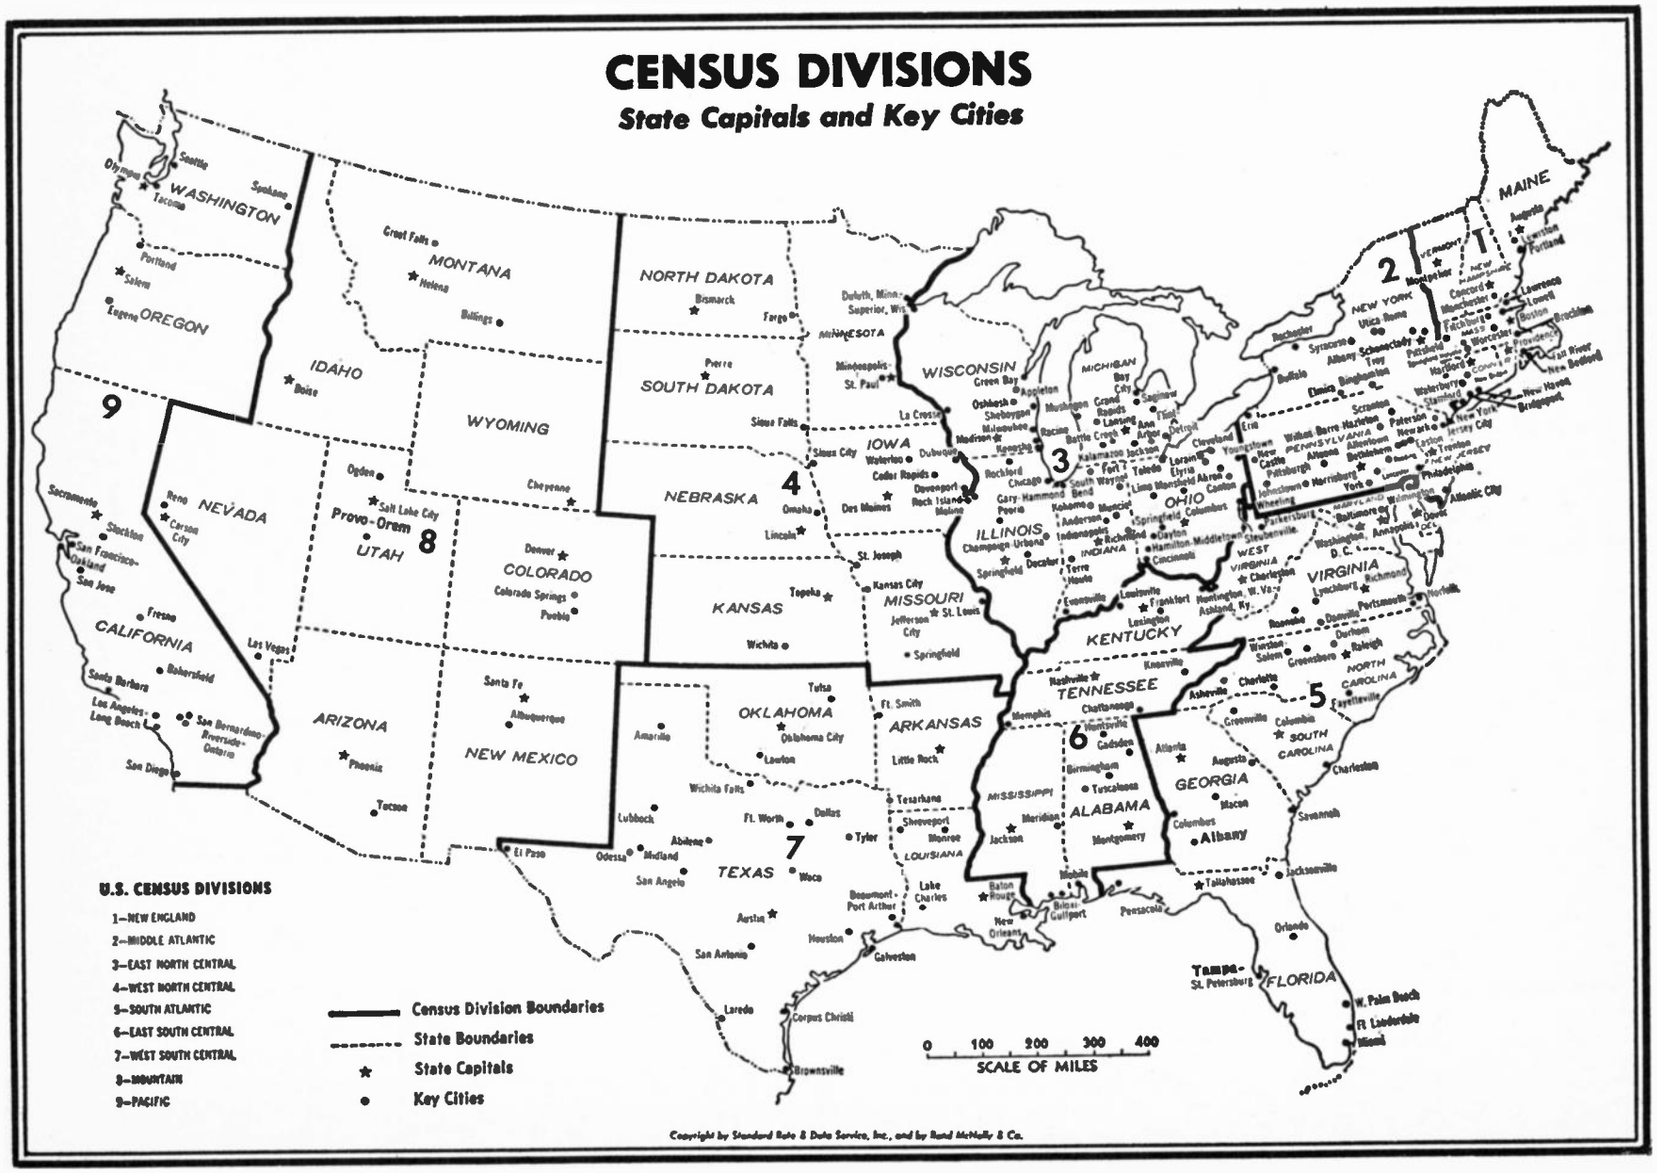
At the beginning of each state section, a state media map shows state, county, and metro area boundaries and daily media cities. The cities have symbols indicating their SRDS population estimates as well as indications for daily newspaper, operating commercial radio station and/or TV station. Media symbols are kept current on either the map or in a special listing with the appropriate state tables. If space is available, the listing will be adjacent to the map, otherwise it will follow the Consumer Market data.

These maps have been made especially for the SRDS books and are copyrighted by Standard Rate & Data Service, Inc., and Rand McNally & Co. Written permission to reproduce any of the maps must be secured from SRDS.

All maps have been updated to reflect the latest information available on media locations, metro area identifications, and city population sizes.

U. S. MAPS

A map showing U. S. Census Regions, States, and Key Cities is provided at the beginning of the U. S. Summary section.



State, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's), county and city estimates are developed exclusively by Market Data division of SRDS.

Explanation of SRDS Consumer Market Farm Data

Farm Population

All estimates of farm population are as of January 1, 1975 and include all persons residing on farms. The sources of data used to prepare SRDS farm population estimates include basic reports prepared by the Bureau of the Census and the Department of Agriculture.

The basic definition of farm population, as reported in the 1970 Census of Population, remains the same as the 1960 Census definition. That is, the farm population consists of persons living on places of 10 or more acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $50 or more in the preceding calendar year or on places of less than 10 acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $250 or more in the preceding year.

Farm Households

The SRDS definition is identical to that used by the Bureau of the Census, namely, that a household is synonymous with an occupied dwelling unit. It consists of one or a number of persons living together under the same roof.

The January 1, 1975 farm household estimates were obtained by using Census "bench marks" and allowing for growth as reflected by a variety of government reports.

Total Farms

The definition of total farms is the same as shown in both the 1969 Census of Agriculture and the 1970 Census of Population: namely, places in rural territory which have 10 or more acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $50 or more in 1969 or on places of less than 10 acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $250 or more in 1969.

For more details concerning this definition, see "General Social and Economic Characteristics," PC(1)-C series, prepared by the Department of Census.

Farm Income

Gross Farm Income (1974) includes cash receipts from farm marketings, income in kind (value of items grown and consumed on the farm) and government payments. No expenses or taxes are deducted from the figure. Gross Income per Farm is the arithmetic mean obtained by dividing the Gross Farm Income (1974) by the Number of Farms (1974).

State, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's), county and city estimates are developed exclusively by Market Data division of SRDS.

The limited amount of farm data presented in this publication is intended as basic reference material only.—Data in greater detail are readily available from the 1969 Census of Agriculture.

(More recent tabulations are not available on a state and county level.)

Mergers, changes in ownership, and other factors make it impractical to attempt an updating process for these data series.

Farm Data Summaries

Total U. S., the Geographic Divisions and All States are summarized for easy reference. A U. S. Farm Map shows the number of leading farm counties by state for farm population and gross farm income.

Farm Data Ranking Tables For 400 Leading Counties

The leading farm counties of the U. S. are ranked for each of the following series:
Farm Population—SRDS January 1, 1975 Estimates
Number of Farms (1969)—Census of Agriculture
Gross Farm Income—SRDS Full year 1974 Estimates

State, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's), county and city estimates are developed exclusively by Market Data division of SRDS.

U. S. TOTAL NUMBER OF FARMS, 1969—2,730,250

Six Secrets of Radio Programming Revealed.

1.

How to find out what the 99%, who don't take time to write, are thinking.

Listeners don't usually write in to say why they switch stations, or what they like or dislike about certain air personalities.

Arbitron's Radio Program Preference Poll gets you meaningful opinions about programming, and does so faster and at far less cost than conventional market research firms because Arbitron already knows who your listeners are.

You know they're gone; wouldn't you like to know where?

The Arbitron Radio Program Evaluator is a programmer's dream. It gives you the opportunity to track station loyalty and dial switching.

It not only tells you who your audience turned to when they tuned you out, but who they were listening to before they tuned you in.

3.

What the kids do when the news comes on.

Newscaster Analysis is a valuable service for stations programming anything but all news, and especially important for those that carry the news at times other than on the hour and half-hour.

For example, what do the kids do when the news comes on? To enable you to study the effect of news broadcasts on reported audience estimates, we will provide average and cume listening estimates for a period of time before, during, and after your news.

Sharing an audience is like sharing your bank account; wouldn't you like to know who you're sharing it with?

Arbitron Radioscope tells you which other stations you are sharing your audience with during an average week. This includes not only your two or three format competitors, but all the others that are battling you for the listener's attention.

Arbitron Radioscope lists the call letters of the other stations your audience listens to during an average week by demographic groups. There are no audience data involved.

What it's like on the other side of the fence?

Arbitron Radio Reports from Other Markets (including Radio Market Reports and Radio Demographic Buyers) are regularly available to Arbitron clients, to provide an overview of listening patterns in markets other than your own.

These reports enable you to determine the effectiveness of program formats elsewhere, and to discover the difference in listening habits across markets. They're also a key aid in evaluating station properties.

If an ordering client isn't listed in the Other Market reports the price is $5.50 per report. Please refer to the Arbitron radio market schedule for a list of the markets and survey periods covered.

Unique signal areas surveyed by computer.

Arbitron Customized Computer Radio Reports meet the needs of broadcasters with unique signal coverage, including those whose signals extend beyond market definitions and those with limited signals which may not cover the entire Metro Area. These special computer-generated reports allow you to demonstrate audience effectiveness in those areas that your station actually serves.

These are only a few of the special ways Arbitron can help solve your programming and sales problems. Whenever an important decision calls for more information, get in touch with an Arbitron representative.

Regional Radio Networks and Groups

For information on national networks see Network Rates and Data; for state networks refer to state sections.

METHODS AND SOURCES:
Network and/or groups with facilities located in more than one state and sold at rates less than the total of individual station rates, are listed alphabetically by title. For rates and details on national networks, see "Network Rates and Data." For rates and details on state networks, see listings at the beginning of each state section. All state and regional networks are listed in an alphabetical list on the Regional and State Networks and Groups Index page. See contents page for location.

Maricopa County—Map Location F-4

See SRDS consumer market map and data at beginning of the State.

Stations contiguous to the major city are consolidated under the major city heading. This is not to imply that all of the stations provide equal coverage of the entire area or cities involved. It is part of the time buying function to determine extent of individual station coverage, audience delivered, etc. within the area.

Stations contiguous to the major city are consolidated under the major city heading. This is not to imply that all of the stations provide equal coverage of the entire area or cities involved. It is part of the time buying function to determine extent of individual station coverage, audience delivered, etc. within the area.

THEY CALLED YOU WHAT!

A funny thing happened on the way to the top! We were never taken too seriously when there were FOUR so-called "Beautiful Music" stations in the Sacramento area. Since August 1st, 1972 there's been THREE format changes and now KEWT is the ONLY 24-hour "Beautiful Music" station in the market.

You can't imagine what they call us now! Everything but what we are — "a blend of current and popular standards utilizing full orchestral forms."

If you've ever had someone try to do a number on you — look at our numbers. Beautiful — just beautiful!

Call us anything — BUT call us!!

For details write or call John McRae — KEWT — P. O. Box 6347, Sacramento, CA 95860.

Stations located within the combined city area are consolidated under multiple city headings. This is not to imply that all of the stations provide equal coverage of the entire area or cities involved. It is part of the time buying function to determine extent of individual station coverage, audience delivered, etc. within the area.

Stations located within the combined city area are consolidated under multiple city headings. This is not to imply that all of the stations provide equal coverage of the entire area or cities involved. It is part of the time buying function to determine extent of individual station coverage, audience delivered, etc. within the area.
