As More PDs Mull Call-Out, Some Tips On Its Correct Use

by Phyllis Stark

At the recent Country Radio Seminar in Nashville, Larry Rosin of Edison Media Research suggested that a lack of call-out research in country radio was a principal factor in the format's recent audience erosion. While it is hard to gauge exactly what percentage of country stations conduct local callout, country consultants contacted for this story say that anywhere from 10% to one-third of their clients do it. But many others, including all the stations consulted by Rusty Walker, have access to some kind of national call-out. Whatever the figure, it's still widely thought to be minuscule in comparison with the percentage of stations that do call-out in other formats, particularly top 40 (see editorial, page 6).

So why doesn't country do more call-out? And what would the format sound like if it did?

Cost is the most commonly cited reason why so few stations do call-out, although some, like consultant Joel Raab, also say that "because country is more of a consensus format than pop formats, stations don't feel the same need to test music on a weekly or biweekly basis."

But many programmers now agree with Rosin that not doing country callout may be a mistake.

"Larry Rosin's amazement at how few country stations do call-out research matches ours," says consultant Pam Shane of Shane Media Services. "In multiple-station markets, call-out is a requirement for the station that wants to win. In a tight, competitive situation where each station has clearly defined differences that attract their listeners, call-out can reveal songs that can be used as tactical weapons to bond with the target audience."

KSON San Diego OM John Dimick also advocates the use of call-out. "It gives us the ability to take the temperature of the local market," he says. "Not everything that works in the rest of the country works here in San Diego, so it provides us with additional information and a competitive advantage."

Adds consultant Mike O'Malley, "Those stations that do their own callout get a better feel not only for the songs that are and are not working, but also for how long it takes for a song to break through, as well as how long it remains viable as a current."

EXPECT A SLOWER CHART

If more country stations were doing call-out, nearly everyone agrees that the end result would be a significantly slower format.

"If more stations were doing callout," O'Malley says, "we'd see fewer 'No. I to off' moves, resulting in more stations getting their money's worth out of the hits we have. Too often, stations pay the price of familiarizing a song only to drop it from the current rotation just as it's reaching the point where it will start to pay dividends in terms of familiarity and passion. Charts would likely be slower, with the true hits holding down top spots [longer]."

Says Shane, "If country did call-out universally, the industry would see how dramatically different public reaction is to songs when compared with trade charts." For example, she says, "it takes longer for the public to learn the average new record than radio allows. The big hits remain favorable in the public's mind much longer than they appear in hot rotation. The lesser hits are much less significant in the public's mind. They are truly disposable." And "so-called star power cannot drive a poor song, and a great song can be a hit regardless of the singer."

A call-out proponent, WXTU Philadelphia PD Ken Johnson, says, "The first thing you find [in doing it] is that listeners don't consume music as quickly as the charts would indicate. When you start looking at call-out, you find out it takes a long time [for them] to get familiar with a song, and once they develop a passion for it, their desire to hear it lasts longer" than the song's Continued on page 6 please remember me

Three New Faces Artists Post Gains

Of the 10 artists who performed at the March | 13 New Faces Show at the Country Radio Seminar in Nashville, three post airplay gains. (The remainder either decrease in spins or don't have a current single on our Country Airplay chart.)

Warner Bros.' Chad Brock, who performed his song "Ordinary Life," rises 8-6, up 182 plays, while MCG/Curb artist Trini Triggs' "Horse To Mexico" gains 38 plays to move 60-55. Jon Ran-dall performed his Asylum single, "Cold Coffee Morning," which gains nine plays and re-enters the chart at No. 74.

Brock's single is airing on 160 stations, down two from last week. Triggs' song survives despite a loss of four stations. Meanwhile, Randall's single gains nine stations.

The New Faces Show was hosted by Warner Bros.-signed comedian Bill Engvall, who opened the show with a new video for his "Hollywood Indian Guides" single, which finishes the week with airplay at 15 stations.

AT THE TOP: Kenny Chesney's "How Forever Feels" (BNA) stays at the top of our Country Airplay list despite a decrease of three plays. However, those three plays didn't subtract enough audience impressions for Chesney's song to get bumped from the top of our country audience tally (see At a Glance, page 13). The song gains approximately 14,000 audience impressions to bullet at No. 1 on that chart.

AFTERSHOCKS: Although the Wilkinsons' "Fly (The Angel Song)" (Giant) peaked at No. 15 on our Country Airplay chart in the Feb. 12 issue, the retail single bumps Chesney's "How Forever Feels" from No. 1 on the Top Country Singles Sales chart this week. The Canadian family trio's second single outscans Chesney's song by less than 1,000 units and is the group's first No. 1 on the sales list. "26 Cents," the lead single from the Wilkinsons' "Nothing But Love" album, rose to No. 2 on Top Country Singles Sales five weeks after the song peaked at No. 3 on our airplay chart in the Sept. 11, 1998, issue.

Meanwhile, with an increase of more than 2,000 scans, Lila McCann's "With You" (Asylum) takes the biggest gain on Top Country Singles Sales to rise 9-4 on that list.

On Billboard's Top Country Albums chart, Jo Dee Messina's "I'm Alright" (Curb) increases more than 1,000 units to re-enter the top 10. Greatest Gainer honors go to "Touched By An Angel: The Album," which gains more than 7.000 units and moves 9-5.

MORE JONES DATA: One factoid regarding airplay for George Jones titles that was un-available at press time last issue shows that overall airplay for all Jones titles detected in the seven-day period prior to his March 6 auto accident more than doubled during the week following the crash. Jones titles accounted for 219 plays at our 162 monitored stations the week before the incident, and 495 plays were logged the following week.

Meanwhile, Jones' most recent best-of package, "16 Biggest Hits" (Epic), increases more than 1,000 units to rise 69-50 on the Top Country Albums chart, while cumulative sales for Iones' older album titles exceed 6,000 units.

WHOK Boycotts Arista Over WCOL Promotion PROGRAMMING: WHSL THIS

WHOK Columbus, Ohio, pulled four Arista tracks off the air and is refusing to play any new records from that label after competitor WCOL was given a promotion from Diamond Rio's management company in which it was able to put two listeners onstage March 20 at a Diamond Rio/Martina McBride concert. WHOK PD Don Cristi turned down another promotional package that included tour jackets, a limo, and backstage passes for the show, because he says he wanted parity with WCOL. On pulling the records, Cristi admits, "It's very sad it came to that." He says the boycott will last until he sees how his station is treated at the next Arista show in Columbus. WCOL, meanwhile, moved Arista artist Alan Jackson into heavy rotation.

Programmers who have been playing the unreleased Deryl Dodd track "Sun-down" recently received a letter asking them to stop from Sony Music Nashville senior VP of country promotion Jack Lameier and Columbia

VP of national country promotion Ted Wagner. "Asking [you] to stop playing a song that you got into your hands through our fault is, to say the least, embarrassing. However, that is what we have to do," says the letter, dated March 19. "We could issue cease-and-desist orders, but all that does is create ill will. We are asking you to help Deryl's career by taking this unlicensed recording off your air. Your passion for his music is understandable, but your timing is not. With no other product available for sale, the only one being rewarded is the songwriter. No other cuts from the current project can be released until this song goes away." Despite claims made in a Los Angeles Times story last week, FCC officials say there is no current investigation of promotional deals cut between any radio group and record label. On March 17, the Times quoted unnamed sources that said the FCC was looking into deals involv-ing Chancellor Media and Emmis Broadcasting, but FCC spokeswoman Rosemary Kimball says, "There is nothing going on here.

Cumulus Media, whose exclusivity deal with independent promoter Jeff McClusky figured into the Times story, emphasizes that while the FCC has, after changes, signed off on the deal, there was never "an investigation" into the pact.

FCC Enforcement Division Chief Charles Kelley says his office hasn't moved beyond its tangential review conducted in January, adding, "Things have not changed much." Executives with the groups cited in the story say their companies have not been contacted by the FCC.

Among the deals that were purportedly under review was a marketing pitch made to labels by Emmis' modern rock WKQX (Q101) Chicago. The $3,500 deal gave a label 10-second liners adjacent to a spin, as well as a place in Q101 displays at Tower Records and Musicland. "It was not a paid spin. It was the same spin that any new record would get. It had nothing to do with guaranteed spins," says Emmis senior VP of programming Rick Cummings.

Emmis says five packages were sold between July and January. The program ended in Jan-uary after details surfaced in the press. "Perception equals reality, which is unfortunate, because it worked great for the labels," says Q101 GM Chuck Hillier.

Cummings says he would welcome an FCC review. "We can't wait for it, so we can lay it out for them.

A deal between Chancellor and A&M Records' Bryan Adams had also caught the FCC's attention, but no investigation has commenced, contrary to what the Times story suggested.

The FCC signed off on the exclusivity deal between Cumulus and McClusky after Cumulus attorneys voluntarily presented it to the FCC for review. Wording was changed in one paragraph, but the operation remains the same, giving McClusky access to Cumulus playlists and programmers.

The FCC is not now and never has conducted an investigation into the agreement between Cumulus Broadcasting Inc. and Jeff McClusky & Associates Inc.," says Richard Weening, executive chairman of Cumulus Media Inc

TAUZIN ATTACKS FCC

FCC Chair Bill Kennard traveled to Capitol Hill last week, promising to fix what ails Congress

During a hearing, ostensibly to discuss the agency budget, House telecommunications subcommittee chair Billy Tauzin, R-La., told Kennard he is working on a comprehensive FCC reform bill that he plans to introduce late this summer. "We want to fundamentally restructure the agency. And, second, we want to redefine the FCC's mission," said Tauzin.

But Rep. Ed Markey, D-Mass., said a radical restructuring could be counterproductive.

The agency is working on its own restructuring plan, to be released later this year. "While we need change, we do not need chaos," said Kennard, who vows to keep tight control over the radio spectrum. Kennard will likely propose merging a number of the FCC's agencies

'Phantom Menace,' Baseball Swing Into Spring

The unparalleled hype for "The Phantom Menace" continues to reign atop the Topical Barometer, while baseball's spring training made its first big hit, barely beating year 2000 events for second place.

Taking a swing at baseball's return is top 40 WSTR (Star 94) Atlanta. PD Dan Bowen sent listeners to Disney's Wide World of Sports complex in Orlando, Fla., to see the Braves via the Star 94 Fanjet.

Besides its fascination with San Diego Padre hopeful Garth Brooks, country KNIX Phoenix hosted a DARE Day for more than 3,000 kids in the drug-prevention program. Elsewhere, country WBEE Rochester, N.Y., hosted a Pillsbury Bake-off at the Strong Museum for kids. Contestants, ages 9-13, took part in cookie decorating, PB&J creations, and breakfast fun-food sampling, then received an easy-baking cookbook and museum tours with WBEE's mascot. Remotes are an important staple in most radio promotion schedules. Forty percent of Promogandists book them as often as possible; stations that target 18-24 often do more than one a day. Twenty percent stage three to four remotes a week, while 40% (mostly adult target demo stations) only do weekends, at most.

says Star 94's Dan Bowen. "Make sure they're prepared for the reality. Although they want immediate response [and sometimes that happens], they're really buying longer-term visibility and will see results over an extended period of time vs. just the three-hour appearance."

Then there's this surprise: "When you work with a national client, the local store may not know [about] the remote, [then] when you pull up with a station vehicle, the manager's surprised!" says country KEEY Minneapolis' Di-ana Buckmann. "The client could also be unhappy if very few listeners attend. The best way to combat this is to work with the client to create excitement at the location. Set up a special sale or free giveaway to entice listeners to spend time in the store and not just visit the air talent or receive a freebie from the station. A station vehicle, music, and free stuff is not always enough."

Having enough good prizes can be a prob-lem, too. "If you do 12-15 remotes a week, you can run out of quality prizes fast," top 40 WPXY Rochester, N.Y.'s Tristano Korlou says. "The question is, 'Does the money to buy prizes come out of the promotions inventory or sales?"

Other tips to ensure a good remote: "Plan a remote when listeners are available to attend," KEEY's Buckmann says. "Lunch hours and weekends are best. Drive times are tough because people need to get to work or get home.'

"Have a very aggressive street team standing on the street corner waving banners," says rhythmic top 40 XHTZ (Z90) San Diego's T.J. "Bring a station vehicle, banners, balloons, music, free stickers, etc. The more colorful and exciting you look, [the more] people passing the location will stop and ask questions." "Car remotes [of which we do plenty] can get rather monotonous, so we entice listeners with free BBQ, a live band, and giveaways," says KYGO's Garret Doll. Top 40 WKRQ Cincinnati's Scott Colebrook says that Q102, like several other stations, offers a spinning "wheel of prizes, or a super slot machine to award prizes.'

On-air, WJTT's Collins suggests that "short, substantive breaks hit harder than lengthy descriptions. Also, the breaks should sound fun, like there's a party going on."

chart life. If more country stations did call-out, "it would force the labels to slow down the release schedules and realize they could live off fewer hits."

"Call-out is essential in country and any format," says WCTO Allentown, Pa., PD Chuck Geiger. "The problem with using call-out in country is, the acceptance of the music is in the respondents' hands and not the music community. Call-out-based country stations will play songs longer and in higher rotations. Songs with high acceptance will stay on the playlist way past the [labels'] usual 'song in, song out' mentality. We will start seeing songs like 'It's Your Song' and 'I Wanna Feel That Way Again' being powers. Marginal releases from the power artists might not test well enough to appease Music Row. The line between the labels and PDs will have to change."

USE THE FORCE, LUKE

Nearly everyone who has ever seen call-out research cautions that it must be used wisely. And nearly everybody mentions that call-out is not intended to test brand-new songs or to decide what to add but should only be used for songs that have gotten a significant amount of exposure. Otherwise, "there tends to be overreaction to early negatives on songs that haven't been played enough to merit credible scores," says Raab.

WXTU's Johnson says, "The first thing you have to keep in mind is you are dealing with an adult audience, and you have to [allow] enough time for some familiarity." On the other end of a song's life, Johnson says, programmers have to develop a "sixth sense" about just how long to stay with a song to avoid burning it to the point where "it isn't a useful recurrent or oldie for you."

Consultant Keith Hill cautions that for stations getting ready to try call-out, "it is important to screen the sample effectively, then the hooks must evoke in the listeners' minds the entire song. This is stimulus-to-response research. Hooks do work, just as a bite of cake will be enough so you can tell me if you like it or not. [But] songs sometimes are not like cake, especially story songs that really don't have a hook. Diamond Rio's 'Mama Don't Forget To Pray For Me' was difficult to test. 'Don't Take The Girl' by Tim McGraw was initially difficult to test. Now that folks are familiar with the song, the hook evokes the response nearly as effectively as playing the entire song.

"Call-out doesn't tell you what to play," adds Hill. "It tells you what not to play— songs with burn, songs with negatives. Burn isn't significant in our format; negatives are. Few songs test well, [so] we would end up playing fewer songs more."

Shane says, "The key to call-out or any other research is to find the proper respondents and to ask questions that give answers you can take action on. Using call-out is more than playing the top songs and dumping their poor testers. We examine the detailed results on each song to see how a given title can help a station against a competitor or with a specific audience segment."

Raab notes, "Songs often test better in weekly call-out than in follow-up auditorium tests, because people listening to hooks over the phone in weekly call-out don't take it quite as seriously. They're not being paid and could be watching TV while listening to the hooks."

O'Malley notes a potential call-out hazard: "A downside of call-out, besides the expense, is fluctuating results. A song that looked good last week looks off this week. You've got to trend the results to avoid knee-jerking. If you delegate the hooktape construction, make sure you review it before it's used. A poor choice for a hook, hooks that are too long or too short, and, to a lesser degree, the placement of hooks on a tape can bias the scores."

THE LABELS SAY

Labels agree that call-out must be used properly and with caution in order to be an effective tool. Arista Nashville VP of promotion Bobby Kraig confesses that when he worked in radio and did call-out years ago, "we did it wrong for a long time. Our database was contest winners and overly active people that skewed our research."

Even with the right database, Kraig says, results must be viewed with caution. "A lot of times a record will slow down in call-out and give you a bit of a false reading, and sometimes stations will overreact and won't give a record a chance to come home." A recent example was Diamond Rio's "You're Gone," which stalled in the research at one point, was saved by the efforts of Kraig's promotion team, and went on to become a hit. Adds Kraig, "I think it's perfectly normal for records to have a point where they level off a little bit. It's unrealistic to expect records to show [growth] every week. People need to have patience."

RCA Label Group senior VP/GM Butch Waugh admits that the idea of a bunch of country PDs stumbling into call-out for the first time and possibly doing it wrong is "a huge concern. Callout is a powerful tool, but it's the person using the call-out that makes it powerful," he says. "If [the programmer] uses it only for negative reasons, that's not what it's designed to do. It was designed to let you know when a song had been burned in your marketplace, [when] you have gotten all you can out of a song." It is not, Waugh emphasizes, designed to test new songs.

When he worked on the pop side, he says, good programmers didn't put records into call-out until they had gotten at least 125 spins on their stations. In a less active format like country, he says, the figure should probably be closer to 150. "You've got to wait until the song is very familiar; you can't use [lack of] familiarity as a negative," says Waugh.

The difficulty of promoting a record in a callout world, he says, is that "after about three callouts, if your record wasn't performing, you were really fighting to keep that record alive." At RCA in New York, he experienced that problem with the Dave Matthews Band, which, Waugh says, "was selling out three nights at Madison Square Garden but wasn't getting [good] call-out" scores.

"You've got to know how to use the tool, and you've still got to rely on your instincts and what you're doing as a PD," says Waugh. "Believe in the call-out, but believe in yourself more."

Editorial What Cal

What Call-Out Will And Won't Do For You

So you're just back from the Country Radio Seminar, and you're wondering if you need call-out research. You certainly heard enough plugs for it at CRS: Without call-out, the researchers and consultants told you, country PDs will keep adding too many songs and dropping them too soon, just as soon as they obligingly run them to No. 1 to keep the labels happy. Without call-out, there'll be no way to tell what the real hits are, leaving PDs to rely too heavily on artist image, you've been told.

Call-out research has played a prominent role at top 40 radio during that format's recent resurgence. In my joint capacity as editor of Top 40 Airplay Monitor, I've witnessed both its positive and negative effects on the format. I'm a strong believer in having as many research tools as possible, including call-out. I also hope that if country PDs embrace call-out, they'll avoid some of the mistakes that are being made elsewhere. Here are some observations.

1. Your own call-out is better than virtual callout. Even though a relatively small number of country stations do their own call-out research, call-out still has a greater presence in the format than those numbers would suggest. Country is a heavily consultant-driven format: Chances are that the call-out done by your consultant's other clients (or by other stations in your group) is casting its shadow far beyond that individual station. Certainly, enough stations did call-out to spread a negative buzz on "Blue" by LeAnn Rimes, which was, by many other indicators, a much-needed hit. And the format's current emphasis on ballads and midtempo music suggests that somebody is either relying on call-out or trying to replicate it by playing the sort of songs that have traditionally tested well.

That being the case, having stations do their own call-out could only be an improvement. Better to have some firm proof that the hits are not the same in every market. Better, also, to find out whether it's really just ballads and the least offensive uptempo records that really test. Since the mid-'90s, top 40 PDs have been surprised to find out that both modern rock crossovers and even hip-hop crossovers test well beyond their expectations. If there's really a demand for "more outlaws" in country music that goes further than a handful of focusgroup respondents, call-out will be the way you find out.

2. If you're planning to do call-out, you'll have to spin your new records more. Even in top 40, where PDs spin new songs 22 times a week, it's generally believed that songs are going into call-out before the audience has a fair chance of becoming familiar with them. By industry consensus, more than a few top 40 hits were missed last year because people panicked during the first bad week of call-out and yanked them off the air. This is generally believed to be the biggest mistake top 40 PDs make, but if it's common in a format that pounds new records, it's going to be harder to avoid in a format in which new titles often begin life with five to 12 spins a week. To that

3. If you misuse call-out, it will not make your station safer or more familiar. In fact, it could end up doing the opposite. The top 40 PDs who often drop a record after a week or two of bad call-out don't usually replace those songs with proven hits or tighten their lists. They replace those songs with more new titles, since top 40 PDs are being pounded with just as many new label priorities as country PDs. I've seen major-market stations for which the net result of call-out has been to make them too aggressive on music. And, by the way, these are stations programmed by some pretty smart PDs.

4. If country radio is indeed too narrow, callout will exacerbate that problem. It was Edison Media researcher Larry Rosin's contention at CRS that country's decision to super-serve 25-44 females is hastening the exodus by all other demos, including younger listeners, who are the future of the format. Given the expense involved in doing call-out, it's likely that PDs will concentrate on 25-44 females to the even-further exclusion of everybody else. Remember that during its bleakest days in the early '90s, top 40 radio was still immaculately researched. Its P1 listeners were telling researchers to play more rap and hip-hop-and getting it. It was the P2s and P3s, who weren't being asked, who didn't like the results and voted with their feet.

5. Call-out's greatest contribution would be to help country PDs sort through the format's current preponderance of passive records to figure out which ones are hits. It shouldn't be used to force the records that generate sales and requests to defend their lives, especially since country PDs have, by necessity, become better at identifying those records than their counterparts in other formats. In other words, it shouldn't be used as an excuse to drop "Blue." Rather, PDs should accept going in that there is room on their stations for three to five records every week that may not test but are hits by other indices. If that scares you, remember that without call-out, there are probably twice as many records that wouldn't test well on your station right now. 6. Don't shell out for call-out if you're not interested in hearing the results. PDs already know, by and large, that hit records are being dropped too quickly. Call-out will confirm that. but it won't change the fact that eight other records are waiting for any one slot. (That's still the case in top 40, despite the reliance on callout.) If chart priorities are going to continue to take precedence over the listeners' needs, then you may as well save your money. Eventually, call-out could help the whole industry gain a sense of when records really kick in and help labels further adjust their release schedules to reflect reality. That's assuming that PDs allow songs to stay around until they do kick in, rather than panicking and dropping them too early.

It's a widely repeated truism that call-out is meant to be just a tool, not the Bible. It's just a hard piece of advice to follow yourself when you're staring at the results. Country PDs should avail themselves of as many tools as possible. They should also determine going into the process to be smart about any tool's limitations. SEAN ROSS

CRS 30: Studies Say More Variety, Call-Out Key To Format Recovery

by Sean Ross and Phyllis Stark

While country listeners are indeed less happy with recent product, the format's real issue may be how PDs use that music and research it—or fail to. That was the upshot of two well-received research projects unveiled at the 30th Country Radio Seminar, held March 10-13 in Nashville.

At a session titled "Don't Go To Strangers," researchers Roger Wimmer and Matt Hudson recounted two Kansas City focus groups of listeners who said they were using country radio less. Listeners cited an abundance of generic music and a lack of "outlaws" for their declining interest. "I couldn't tell Bryan White from Wade Hayes if they walked through that door," said one male respondent.

Female respondents cited a lack of tempo and an overabundance of lyrical downers. One woman, whose comments became a running joke throughout the remainder of the panel, and at the CRS itself, asked for more "jumpy-jumpy music."

While respondents said they were using other formats for relief from the sameness of today's country, Wimmer said that he still found enough passion for the format that those listeners "are not going to disappear." He also found that respondents had tended to scatter to various formats, or tapes, rather than any one format, despite the fact that Kansas City has a successful top 40 that seems to have benefited at country's expense. And he also found that there was, thus far, low interest in Internet radio among country fans.

Edison Media Research's Larry Rosin, unveiling his perceptual study of country listeners, also cited lower Continued on page 5

ACM NOMINATIONS

Female Vocalist, Entertainer of the Year and Single of the Year - "You're Still The One"

#1 selling country album 71 weeks after release - Come On Over

by Phyllis Stark While it sometimes seems like nearly every programmer is taking his or her playlist cues from the national charts, there are program-Carpente tional charts, there are programmers, even some notoriously conservative ones, who say they still try to find their own hits. These programmers may play records that aren't being worked by labels, play album cuts, add records before their label-dictated impact dates, or otherwise actively seek out records to play that aren't singles or label priorities.

Texas-based consultant Steve Warren and his client KKBQ (93Q) Houston VP of programming Dene Hallam are notorious for doing this, and KPLX (the Wolf) Dallas has gotten some attention lately for doing the same thing. But they are not the only ones.

WCTQ Sarasota, Fla., PD Rob Carpenter says, "We are always looking for music that will score points with the listeners, both inside the Nashville singles box and outside."

Carpenter has been playing Wynonna's "Testify To Love" from Sony's "Touched By An Angel" soundtrack and calls it "maybe our strongest song the last couple of months." He's also played Charlie Robison's "Barlight" (Lucky Dog); brother Bruce Robison's "Desperately" and "Angry All The Time" (Lucky Dog); Columbia artist Deryl Continued on page 5

Chancellor Nixes Sale, Restructures At Top

After two months of review and discussions with potential suitors, Chancellor Media execs say restructuring the company will be better for investors than selling the group outright. Chancellor CEO Tom Hicks said that while Chancellor CEO Tom Hicks said that while a future sale cannot be ruled out, for now "the process has been completed." Hicks says several potential buyers emerged, although no offer was ever placed on the table.

Top management has also been reshuffled. President/CEO Jeffrey Marcus steps down from running the company on a day-to-day basis. Chancellor Radio Group president Jimmy de Castro becomes president/CEO of the new Chancellor Radio and Outdoor Group. Capstar CEO Steve Hicks becomes president/CEO of Chancellor Media Services Group, a new division that will focus primarly on the Internet.

Chancellor is also scrapping plans to buy the Lin Television Group. An additional $15 million in overhead cost-cutting is planned, including the sale of Chancellor's corporate jet and the closing of its mergers and acquisitions unit. The FCC signed off on the Chancellor/Capstar Broadcasting merger last week, and the deal is expected to close by July.

PUR DOWN AGAIN

Recent Arbitron figures show that PUR (persons using radio) continues to decline, although the pace of that loss has slowed since the onset of consolidation. In the latest Arbitron analysis, the average percentage of 12-plus people listening to radio in the continuous-measurement markets fell to 16.2%, down from 16.9% in spring 1996. That drop amounts to a 3% loss, compared with a 4% decline in the years leading up to consolidation. The total 12-plus cume has remained steady, moving from 96.2% in fall 1993 to 95.3% in 1998, meaning roughly the same number of people are using radio but are listening for shorter periods of time.

MORE VOICETRACKING ON THE WAY

Capstar's new Star System president, Jason Kane, says Capstar is exploring new ways to use the Star System, including sales and data transfer applications. "We all have to start looking at how we produce the product and ... at producing the product in a different way," he says.

But it is Kane's plans for maximizing air talent that has some air-talent worried. He believes an additional 200 dayparts could be voiced at the two Star Centers in Austin, Texas, and Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Right now, the 10 Texas studios produce voice-tracking for 149 dayparts, with 50 more dayparts possible. The Florida facility could grow from 77 to 200 shifts.

Back at Kane's old company, chairman Larry Campbell exits the Research Group.

FCC FLAGS A'FLYING

The FCC is busy flagging deals for additional review. Earning extra scrutiny is James Ingstad Broadcasting's $24 million buy of Varistar's Fargo, N.D., outlets album rock KFGX, country KVOX-FM and KFGO-FM, oldies KPHT, N/T KFGO, and sports KVOX. Ingstad already owns album KQWB-FM, classic rock KPFX, and standards KQWB in the market and must spin off two stations to meet the FCC's ownership cap.

The FCC will take a closer look at Marathon Media's proposed purchase of country WYTE Wausau, Wis. Marathon owns no other stations in Wausau, but owns stations in nearby markets.

Where's 'He Stopped Loving Her Today' Every Day?

With country legend George Jones still in critical condition at press time following his March 6 car crash, many stations have begun airing Jones' 1980 classic "He Stopped Loving Her Today," many for the first time in years.

We examined spins detected for "He Stopped Loving Her Today" during the sevenday period prior to and including the mishap and the total plays the week after. This study, coupled with comments from one major-market programmer who admittedly had a rude awakening about why Jones' music is missing from country's airwaves, shows that many in the industry continue to offer little more than lip service to a song that is widely considered to be the genre's most important ever.

Jones' song aired a total of 61 times on 40 of our 162 monitored stations between Feb. 27 and March 6, and most of those stations spun the song only once. Of those 40 stations, WOGK Gainesville, Fla., was the airplay leader with four plays during the period.

From March 7-13, the song picked up airplay at 69 stations (up 29), finishing with 136 spins, including seven plays at KILT Houston, six spins at WSOC Charlotte, N.C., and five each at WDAF Kansas City and KPLX Dallas.

During the recent Country Radio Seminar in Nashville, hundreds of attendees signed several giant birthday cards for the ailing superstar, and KKBQ (93Q) Houston morning hosts Johnjay, Bobo, and Mary Charese delivered a giant card signed by their listeners to Jones' wife and manager, Nancy Jones, in the hospital. Jones' forthcoming Asylum Records album, which wasn't finished at the time of the accident, has been delayed.

Meanwhile, the following letter from Dave Louis, MD at WKKX (Kix 106.5) St. Louis, reveals an enlightened conscience regarding older core country artists on the radio today. (The substance of Louis' comments were seconded by CD Radio's Steve Warren, who bemoaned the fact that many PDs couldn't even find a Jones song to play after his accident.)

"Did it scare you?" Louis writes.

"My cell phone rang last night, and I heard my Asylum regional, Kim Leslie, say something has happened to George. I swallowed a lump. Later, CNN, the AP, and others were painting a pretty bleak picture of the accident. Apparently, when George Jones' car hit the bridge, someone was watching over him.

"And now he sleeps in his hospital room in Nashville. And I can't seem to sleep at all. At 6:30 this morning here at my computer, I won-

ON THE ROW Byrd, Harling To Exit MCA Artist Roster

An MCA Nashville spokesperson says the label is in the process of terminating the deals of both Tracy Byrd and, as first reported here last week, Keith Harling. The label has released six Byrd albums since 1992, including his current greatesthits collection, "Keepers," which peaked at No. 5 on the Top Country Albums chart last week. Three other Byrd albums have gone top 10 on that chart. Byrd has landed 19 records on the singles chart, including the No. 1 hit "Holdin' Heaven" in 1993 and nine other top 10 hits.

Pat Higdon has been appointed senior VP/GM of Universal's Nashville music-publishing operations, which include the newly combined MCA Music Publishing and PolyGram Music Publishing. Higdon previously was head of Patrick der why. Is it guilt? Shame? Maybe. I do know suddenly I am struck by all this, and by the attitude of radio professionals regarding Mr. Jones and others like him. I am struck by my own attitude. Why should it take an event like George Jones momentarily staring death in the face to make me feel this way? I frighten myself with my own shallow thinking.

"Having said that, I'm not sure what to do about it. For starters, I believe I will rethink my attitude toward the format. Consider this: Other formats never shy away from classic acts who propelled their music to popularity. For instance, alternative stations still seem to have a place for 'Tainted Love' by Soft Cell, AC plays the hell out of James Taylor and Carole King. Hot AC plays Hall & Oates, but we can't seem to play 'He Stopped Loving Her Today.' We were thrilled to play George's duet with Patty Loveless, but many of us wouldn't even mention his presence when introducing the song on the air.

"Still, when asking country listeners (P1s, I might add) what the greatest country song of all time is, nine out of 10 will say 'He Stopped Loving Her Today.' Could it be I just said the key word? Country? I was dismayed to hear Faith Hill's 'Let Me Let Go' remixed for pop. I was in a restaurant at the time and was barely able to finish my meal. Did the song need remixing? Did it need to have Vince Gill removed? Has Faith forgotten the words to her own song 'Take Me As I Am?'

"While I'm at it, God forbid Shania Twain's pop version of 'From This Moment On' would include Bryan White. Is even Bryan too country-sounding these days? Doesn't Shania remember the words to her song 'Dance With The One That Brought You'?

"I program the music for a new country station, but I don't have all the answers. In fact, mostly I just have questions. I do believe we think ourselves into a corner sometimes. I'll bet George Jones agrees.

"I have one more theory. I think the Lord was calling George home [that] Saturday. I just think George decided, in true Jones fashion, not to show up. We all should be so brave."

Promos Look Ahead To 'Phantom,' 2000, And Taxes

The Oscars will be given out March 21, but it was "The Phantom Menace" premiere in May, the millennium festivities, and April 15's income-tax deadline that finished atop the Topical Barometer this week.

Country KYGO Denver promo Jedi Garret Doll notes that there is a huge Star Wars Celebration April 30-May 2 in Denver. Fans from all over the country will be heading at warp speed to the Mile High City to interact with characters, designers, and actors

Top 40 WKSE Buffalo, N.Y., p.m. driver Donny Walker does a "Star Wars" trivia contest called the Millennium Minute. "When 'Phantom Menace' comes around, it will be the Millennium Falcon Minute," Stephanie Ringer says, the Force being with her. Tristano Korlou of top 40 WPXY Rochester, N.Y., and Pepsi will give away thousands of dol-lars' worth of "Phantom Menace" merchandise to promote the movie. "We'll tie in with amusement parks to do laser-tag contests to win movie-premiere passes," among other events, says Korlou from the Dark Side.

For the other millennium, adult top 40 KFMB-FM San Diego is expecting a lot with its Y2K Baby contest. "We're putting 50 couples, including a member of our morning show and his wife, in a hotel for a night, and [then we'll see] who gets pregnant," Kim Leeds interjects. "Once we have some pregnant couples, it'll be a race to see who delivers the first 2000 baby. That couple will win a minivan.'

Top 40 WNKS (Kiss 95.1) Charlotte, N.C., is planning on a rather colorful Midnight 5K Run on New Year's Eve. "It [will] be a costume run, and champagne [will] be served afterward," says starter Diana Ades.

On a more taxing issue, country KEEY (K102) Minneapolis will team up with Subway for the ol' April 15 favorite—the dunk tank, with an intern dressed as an IRS agent. "During lunch, listeners can drop off their taxes at a nearby post office, pick up a sub, and vent their deducts Diana Buckmann. anger,' KYGO believes that it "audit" do more by offering to help listeners fill out their taxes. "With the help of the IRS-VITA [the Internal Revenue Service-Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program] and a local post office, we invite lastminute procrastinators to come down and get their taxes done for free," Garret "H.N.R." Doll says. "We'll do just the 1040A, 1040EZ, extension forms, and the minimal E-files. We even provide stamps for mailing.

One topic not ranking high on the Topical Barometer but still generating consistent interest each week is museums/cultural events. At triple-A KKZN (the Zone) Dallas, "We're still getting big listener response for Dallas Arboretum's Dallas Blooms event and the Matisse and Picasso exhibits at the Kimbell Museum in Fort Worth, Texas," poses Barbara Luchsinger.

We just presented the Alexander Calder show and, earlier this year, the Keith Haring show," says Jude Heller of triple-A KFOG San Francisco. "Last night, we presented the Exploratorium's [a local interactive science museum] opening of an exhibit called 'Frogs' that had over 18 different species with 75 different types of frogs.

Yet these cultural attractions aren't only for adults-only radio stations. "We deal with all the museums and family-oriented events, such as the George Eastman House, home of Kodak Film movies," WPXY's Korlou says. "People have to understand that top 40 isn't intended for the teens but for the mothers with kids in their cars.'

Here's a late Oscar promo (which also works for the NCAA basketball tourney): Rhythmic top 40 KLUC Las Vegas' Morning Zoo has an Academy Awards Office Pool. "Listeners get a faxed form to predict winners in six different categories and a tie-breaker question," handicapper Vanessa Thill explains. "They fax their answers back. The winner, chosen from those who had the most correct answers, wins an office party for 30 at a local restaurant with the Zoo.

QUICK HITS

In what could become a TV game-show pilot called "Blame That Tune," modern AC WALC (Alice@100.5) Charleston, S.C. is staging Alice's Kamikaze Karaoke. "People sign up to sing, but they don't pick their song," Mariana Franco-Robertson croons. "We call the contestant up onstage and display a board with three song titles on it. The audience picks the song [by voice vote], and the contestant puts on the best show he or she can. We highly encourage booing, and the club DJ will modulate the cordless mike, so the contestant will go from sounding like Minnie Mouse to Barry White within two lines of the song."

R&B WJTT Chattanooga, Tenn., will do a remote with a mattress supplier called Go to Bed With the Chattanooga Morning Show. The hosts will broadcast live from a king-sized bed and invite listeners to sit in with them and enjoy free doughnuts. The station will even take a picture of listeners bedding with the morning show, says Wayne Collins.

Top 40 KKRZ (2100) Portland, Ore., is competing in the Race for the Cure, a walk/run for a breast cancer foundation. "Z100 air personality Stacey Lynn puts together a team of 100 listeners to walk/run with her in the race," relays Wendi Foster.

CRS 30: Studies Say Variety, Call-Out Key To Format Recovery

passion scores for hits from 1994 and after, as well as lower scores for recent material from many core artists, including Garth Brooks, Reba McEntire, and Randy Travis. Rosin's study also showed that roughly half of country listeners believed that country radio sticks with established artists, even if their songs aren't any good.

But Rosin also cited relatively consistent overall country sales to suggest that the problem wasn't just the music. Citing the continued high turnover on the reported-airplay charts of other trade publications, Rosin suggested that a lack of call-out research within country radio; rapid turnover on songs, especially compared with other formats; and being song- rather than artist-driven were also behind country's decline. In one eyebrow-raising statistic, Rosin noted that Faith Hill's "This Kiss" had gotten more airplay at top 40 and AC radio than at country because of those formats' higher spin counts.

Rosin also cited the tendency to super-serve females 25-44, suggesting that country might be overly niched. While those cells have seen relatively little attrition, other demos have fallen sharply, hastening the format's overall decline. "You reap what you sow," said Rosin. "As country radio has changed its targeting, nationally we're [seeing the impact]."

Among Rosin's other finds: Men were, by a 10% margin, more likely than women to have complaints about the quality of the music, and while most country listeners were aware that artists like Shania Twain are now having hits at top 40, very few cited this fact as having reduced their country listening.

Rosin's study drew high marks from attendees. Whether PDs accept it as a call to action is another matter. Few PDs said they would increase weekly spins of their records when asked for a show of hands, although several did allow that they might play songs longer.

As for the call-out issue,

Rosin was only one of several voices at CRS urging country radio to use more research. WXTU Philadelphia PD Ken Johnson said the difference between having call-out on his current job and not having had it at WYRK Buffalo, N.Y., was "night and day" and cited Garth Brooks' "It's Your Song," which most PDs pounded heavily, then dropped quickly, as a song that had proved to be a true hit through call-out. At the programming rap room, Clear Channel Tallahassee, Fla., PD Denny Alexander said he'd take call-out over TV ads if forced to choose.

Would call-out further slow the music at a format that's increasingly conservative? One early pioneer of call-out, Westwood One's Ed Salamon, said research had the opposite effect on WHN New York in the late '70s. Knowing that he'd be able to identify his mistakes quickly, Salamon said, let him take more chances.

WELCOME TO LATER

The annual group heads panel focused on the looming threat of microradio and consolidation in the radio industry. Cox's Dick Ferguson issued a call for action over the FCC's plans for low-power microradio stations and their potential for signal interference. Ferguson urged broadcasters to "go see your congressman right now and write letters to the FCC" stressing interference issues, which he says the commission is more apt to consider than economic issues.

CBS' Bill Figenshu, who has been with several different companies in the past few years and describes himself as "the consolidation poster child," compared that trend to "the great Oklahoma land rush." In the beginning, he says, "we were all running around buying stations and worrying about what to do with them later. Well, welcome to later."

Asked about country programming trends, Citadel's Larry Wilson said, "What we're doing in country radio with new artists is looking for a Hula-Hoop or Pet Rock. If it doesn't fly up the charts in four weeks, it's over. What other business introduces their product and spends a lot of money and after four weeks says, 'Ah, the hell with it'? We're betting our future on that approach." Instead, Wilson suggested "finding an artist we can all agree on" to support.

Figenshu said having more country stations in the same chain was likely to increase programming creativity, rather than stifle it. "That huge investment in country allows us to try something new," he said. "Innovation comes from having a lot of stations, not from one guy flying around the country with 'the clock.'"

A MIDDLE MAN?

At the panel titled "Pay For Play '99," Stratford Research's Bob Raleigh explained the eyebrow-raising deal his parent company, Cumulus Broadcasting, recently made with independent promoter Jeff McClusky & Associates. RCA Label Group chairman Joe Galante responded, "I have a real problem putting a middleman between our artists and radio. They have a real special relationship." But while all the record people on the panel said that they wouldn't support indie exclusivity deals, Raleigh responded, "If you guys aren't using indies, somebody is, because the [McClusky] folks who visit me on Monday morning have a lot of projects."

Asked about the promotional partnerships with radio groups that have replaced the pure pay-forplay concept, Galante suggested a willingness to explore them. But if those marketing deals don't move units, he said, "don't come knocking on the door asking again." Later, however, Mercury sales/ marketing/promotion senior VP John Grady said that expecting to "get that money back next week" was a "very short-term agenda."

Elsewhere on that panel, Reprise senior VP/GM Bill

Mayne noted a few differences in the way labels are operating now. "We used to work the chart and hope a byproduct of that would be airplay," he said. Now, "instead of going after chart [positions,] we're going after airplay and hoping a byproduct of that will be a chart that reflects that airplay." Mayne also said his company is "in the process of making some radical changes in the amount of money we spend setting up artists."

CONVENTION CAPSULES

• A panel on the ethics of promotional partnerships between labels and radio cited excesses on both sides. WOW Omaha, Neb., MD Tom Scott said an independent promoter once offered to split the commission he'd get if Scott added a record. Capitol Nashville promotion VP Terry Stevens said a programmer once told him he'd put a Garth Brooks song in heavy rotation if Capitol would buy him a car. Consultant Keith Hill said, "It's not a wishy-washy issue. You know if it's right or wrong, and a lot of wrong stuff is going on." At the "Town Meeting" session later, BNA Southwest regional promotion manager Christian Svendsen cautioned programmers that "the worst prostitution you can do to the music is to accept a promotion for a song you don't believe in.

• At a technology panel, Capstar's Don Cristi compared his company's Star System wide area network to a drive-through fast-food joint. "You pull up to the window, place your order, and we try to fill it," he said.

• At the same panel, XM Satellite Radio's Lee Abrams called FM radio "kind of tired and cliché-ridden" and said that at his forthcoming digital audio service, "we don't want listeners, we want fans. We're going to be national and proud of it and give listeners the impression we get records first. When there is a new release, we're going to celebrate it, not just play it." Abrams estimated that XM will have four or five country channels.

Dodd's cover of Gordon Lightfoot's "Sundown," which was available only on a special retail sampler; and the Emmylou Harris/Linda Ronstadt/Dolly Parton song "High Sierra," off Asylum's "Trio II" album. At press time, Carpenter was considering playing Mindy McCready's cover of Ronstadt's "Long Long Time" from BNA's "Girls' Night Out" album. ("Barlight" and "Sundown" have already received considerable play at KPLX.)

Consultant Bill Hennes reports that several of his client stations are playing "After The Gold Rush" from the "Trio II" project and are "getting great phones and audience reaction."

KNIX Phoenix VP/general program manager Larry Daniels found Montgomery Gentry's "Hillbilly Shoes" (Columbia) on a sampler and began playing it early. And while Daniels says "that's an exception to the rule," he adds that "the fact is when we hear something that we feel stands out, has uniqueness, and is something we feel our audience deserves to hear now, we do it."

WWWW (W4) Detroit PD Tim Roberts says, "I've always been a believer in playing strong product before it's officially a single, as you'll note W4 playing Shania Twain's 'Man! I Feel Like A Woman!' and George Strait's 'Write This Down.' Good music is good for my station and the format. The record company's singles-release agenda is not always the correct sequence or even the correct selection."

WINE INTO WATER

Both WBCT/WCUZ Grand Rapids, Mich., OM Doug Montgomery and consultant Bob Moody of McVay Media cite T. Graham Brown's "Wine Into Water" (Platinum Nashville) as an example of a record many programmers found, despite its not being on a major label.

Although there was "no regional hyping me," Montgomery says, "we played it, listeners responded," and both requests and sales ensued. Moody says he called the label and asked for a copy of "Wine Into Water," which hadn't been serviced to him, "and eventually, after talking with a lot of PDs I work with, [I] made it an optional add and, eventually, a heavy current, based on the buzz."

Montgomery says being part of a big radio chain sometimes helps him find his own hits. "One of the benefits of having a large group owner is that we can get the confidential real deal on how records are happening elsewhere," he says. "If a rep calls and says so and so is getting big phones at WTQR [Greensboro, N.C.], maybe I'll remember it, maybe not. But if [PD] Big Paul Franklin mentions on the Clear Channel conference call that T. Graham's on fire at WTQR, that counts a lot more, because that's news from the trenches, not from a person paid to hype records."

NO 'ADD DATES' TO LISTENERS

WUSY (US101) Chattanooga, Tenn., PD Chris Huff and his mentor, consultant Les Acree, say they have always sought out their own hits. At their previous station, WIVK-FM Knoxville, Tenn., Huff says, "we had two album cuts that wound up testing heavy and subsequently as power gold. Kenny Chesney's 'Back Where I Come From' and George Strait's 'The Nerve' were never released as singles. [But] to our listeners, there are no 'singles,' no 'add dates,' just songs they like and want to hear more of. It's something one must be very careful in doing, but finding the right album cuts can really enhance a station. At US101, we're playing a couple of cuts from the new [Chesney] CD. He's so big in this market, we can get away with it. It comes down to knowing your market, knowing your audience, and finding the right songs to further endear them to your station." Adds Acree, "I've never had a problem play-

Adds Acree, "I've never had a problem playing album cuts by superstars, providing they were the right ones. Who cares where it comes from? The listener doesn't care at all."

"I've been a proponent of CD [album] tracks for many years and still believe in them," says KLUR Wichita Falls, Texas, PD Jay Phillips, who currently endorses the Aaron Tippin album cut "You're The Only Reason For Me." Adds Phillips, "Listeners really care about one thing: how good the music is."

TOO MUCH COMPETITION

But many programmers say they have neither the time nor the inclination to look for their own hits outside the box. "Why look for new music elsewhere?" asks WXTU Philadelphia PD Ken Johnson. "There's still way too many singles for the playlist slots available."

"I try to stick to releases from the record companies," says WYRK Buffalo, N.Y., PD Justin Case. However, he adds, "we listen to all the product and will jump on something that we believe will benefit the radio station, even if it's a local band."

WPOC Baltimore PD Scott Lindy says, "We search out a few unknowns and listen to whole albums as much as possible but haven't heard any songs that really strike us as songs we have to play. Admittedly, we don't do this as much as possible because of time constraints. When I'm wondering what to do with that 16th hour of the workday, I'll sometimes grab a few CDs for the ride home, provided I don't fall asleep behind the wheel. Those songs are out there, and it's great to find them. Personally, I stumble upon them, as opposed to searching them out."

Consultant Lee Randall recommends caution to programmers trying to find their own hits. "There can't be a standard rule about this," he says. "From time to time, it might be There can't be a standard rule about positive to sample an album, as most did [recently] with the new George Strait album. It is wise for a station to sample some cuts off albums by artists from their area, such as KYKX Longview, Texas, is doing with Neal McCoy. A problem with going early on a cut is that it complicates what you do when the song later comes out as a single. We want to play it during its time in the national top 10 but may have already played it a lot. So, programming cuts early can increase enthusiasm for the music but has to be used in small doses and always with a big front-sell by the jocks.

"If there could be a rule on the subject," adds Randall. "It might be, 'Use this device very sparingly.' But when you do, make a big deal about it to maximize the impact [of the fact] that your station has the hot new music, with a sparse number of plays."

PDs Bullish On First-Quarter Music, But Not Enough To Loosen Playlists

Welcome To Country Radio Seminar

CRS30

by Phyllis Stark

In what may be the first sign of relief for the format's continuing doldrums, many country programmers say the quality of product they have received in the first quarter, from both new and established artists, is much better than what's been available in recent years. Thus far, however, having strong product doesn't seem to have motivated anyone to open up more playlist slots for current music.

Some say they're continuing to be cautious, because, as KJJY Des Moines, Iowa, PD Beverlee Brannigan puts it, PDs have "learned from [our] mistakes of a few years ago." Still, the fact that so many programmers are once again excited about the music, some for the first time in quite a while, is noteworthy in itself.

Among the acts most frequently mentioned by programmers are newcomers Montgomery Gentry, Shane Minor, SHeDAISY, Brad Paisley, Andy Griggs, and Chad Brock. They also cite new or upcoming projects by George Strait, Alan Jackson, Joe Diffie, and Paul Brandt.

"I'm probably more optimistic about the current state of product than I itor marks the 30th anniversary of CRS with a look back at programming trends from 1970 to today, as reflected by Billboard and Air-have been in a couple of years," says WUSY Chattanooga, Tenn., PD Chris Huff. "I'm not in any rush to fatten my playlist, but ... I'm very optimistic and am very hopeful that in looking back, we'll find 1998 as the low-water mark in this current cycle."

"The music has been stronger over the past few months than [in] most of '98," says WESC-AM-FM Greenville, S.C., OM Ron Brooks. "Does that mean I'm adding slots to play more currents? No. It means there are good currents to play in the slots I normally have available. It means I don't have to beef up gold rotations or consider inferior current songs to fill each hour."

ferior current songs to fill each hour." Brannigan says it "looks like some established artists have done their homework and come back with some killer cuts. And there are finally some new acts I'm actually excited about. First-quarter music so far [is] very strong. But frankly, there are still some acts that have been signed that are as bland and faceless as ever. I'm keeping my ears open to my audience to hear if they're getting excited about the new acts before I think about adding more current slots."

prominent radio and record-company personnel were doing (and what they looked like) while the first CRS was being held in 1970 and what the industry was like then.

In the Monitor Profile (page 6), Sony Music's Jack Lameier shares some anecdotes about his nearly 37 years in the format.

We also have our annual Broadcast Data Systems-compiled list of country radio's 50 most-played recurrents and 300 most-played gold titles (see page 15), always a popular programming tool.

FCC Halts EEO Reviews For Now

The FCC has announced it will turn a blind eye to minority-recruitment problems, at least for now. Although the FCC is proposing new EEO rules, until those regulations are on the books it will throw out any such complaints it receives.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson's Rainbow-PUSH Coalition has made regular use of the process, frequently filing complaints against stations whose licenses were up for renewal. The move was announced in a decision granting license renewals to seven Jacor stations in San Diego, which was protested by Jackson's group. More than a dozen such complaints are outstanding.

The process of adopting new EEO rules continues to move forward. Last week, comments on the FCC's proposal were filed by such diverse groups as the National Organization for Women and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists. The final comment period closes March 31, after which the FCC will craft its plan. The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for D.C. ruled last April that the old regulations were unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, the Jacor/Clear Channel merger is giving the FCC a chance to take a closer look at Clear Channel's pickup of five Syracuse, N.Y., stations in a swap with Cox. A review is being conducted to see if Clear Channel would control too much of the market with its acquisition of country WBBS and its four sisters. BIA says 40% of local ad dollars are being spent at the five stations.

CAPSTAR-TRIATHLON DEAL OK'D

The Justice Department has reached a deal with Capstar to allow the company to go forward with its purchase of Triathlon Broadcasting, but it has to sell five Wichita, Kan., sta-tions—oldies KEYN, jazz KWSJ, N/T KNSS, N/T KFH, and sports KQAM-to Connoisseur Communications in order to meet ownership limits. Capstar will get to keep country KZSN and AC KRBB to go with its current Wichita lineup of top 40 KKRD and album KRZZ.

USA FILES AN IPO

The Dallas-based USA Radio Network is the latest radio company filing an IPO. By selling 100,000 shares, it will raise up to $1 million in a limited offering open to Texas residents only.

Journal Communications' board of directors names radio division president Carl Gardner a corporate VP.

Purchase Broadcasting and Essembee Inc. are joining their coastal Florida and Alabama stations into one company. Gulf Coast Broadcasting will be made up of AC WCSN Pensaco-la, Fla.; country WPGG Evergreen, Ala.; and several AMs.

Contrary to an item in last week's column,

Mike MacDonald's new duties as OM of Cumu-lus' Toledo, Ohio, cluster will not include country outlets WTOD/WKKO. Also, country WJOD Dubuque, Iowa, and oldies sister WDBQ flip frequencies and bring their call letters with them.

WIOD stays country, and the staff remains intact.

host Bryan Thomas adds OM duties.

Torcasso To Head The Research Group morning man at WFYR (Fire 97) Peoria, Ill.

Rick Torcasso is named president of the Research Group. He previously was VP of programming for CBS Radio. A former Research Group executive confirms that Jacor-owned Critical Mass Media stepped in and saved the company from bankruptcy last December. Also, as first tipped here Feb. 5, former Research Group senior VP/director of special services Jason Kane is named president of Capstar Broadcasting's Austin, Texas-based Star System division.

PROGRAMMING: CUT TO CHASE

WXCT (Tiger Country) Baton Rouge, La., OM Randy Chase exits to join Epic Records as West Coast regional. He replaces Mike Brady, who needs a new opportunity in either records or radio and can be reached at 559-298-6499. Chase previously worked on the record side at

MCG/Curb. He oversaw programming for classic rock WDGL and R&B oldies WTGE. Replacing him as OM of the trio is Ted Kelly, from the programming post at sister stations country KCIL Houma, La., and AC WHMD Hammond, La. Kelly will also do afternoons at WXCT, replacing Devan Adams, who moves to mornings. Adams replaces former morning team Big D. and Bubba, who move to rival WYNK for mornings after sitting out a 90day non-compete.

KYXY and KPLN San Diego OM Rich Hawkins is named VP of programming, Western region, at Capstar Broadcasting. WTXT Tuscaloosa, Ala., PD Lance Houston exits to assume the newly created position of regional MD for Capstar's Southern Star, based in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he will program music for a variety of formats. In addition to his PD duties at WTXT, Houston was MD at sister top 40 WZBQ and rocker WRTR. He will continue to host his 7-midnight shift at WTXT via the Star System.

Vic Ward (aka Bud Ford) joins WPZM Huntsville, Ala., as PD, replacing Tim Mercer. Ward, who will do an undetermined air shift, had been PD/morning man at AC WMXF Asheville, N.C. WPZM MD Tex Carter is upped to APD. Market veteran Bob Grayson is named PD/

Would Vince, Tim, Reba Be Dropped Today?

Radio and labels seem to share a curious notion these days that artists are damaged goods if they don't break through with their first or second single. If the industry had maintained that attitude in the past, however, many of today's core artists, and numerous significant artists throughout the format's history, would have disappeared without a trace.

RCA issued more than 30 Waylon Jennings singles over a nine-year period before scoring a No. 1 song. Three years and eight singles went by before Vince Gill saw the top five on the chart. After four failed singles, Tim McGraw's first album fell into such obscurity that most people thought "Not A Moment Too Soon" was his debut project. And even if you don't count his independent-label debut six years earlier, Randy Travis began his Warner Bros. chart run with a No. 67 hit, "On The Other Hand," which became a No. 1 hit only after he broke through with "1982."

And consider the early career of Reba McEntire. After being signed to Mercury in 1975, McEntire had three charted titles that yielded little attention. Finally, in 1978, executives teamed her with labelmate Jacky Ward, who had recently scored top 10 hits with remakes of the R&B hits "Fools Fall In Love" and "A Lover's Question." The McEntire/Ward pairing went top 20, but several subsequent singles floundered.

In 1980, five years after her signing, McEn-tire finally scored a top 10 entry with "You Lift Me Up To Heaven." Her hits were sporadic, but she gained enough momentum in the ensuing two years to reach No. 1 with "Can't Even Get The Blues" in early 1983, eight years after she was first signed CMT will again sponsor Vince Gill's national concert tour, as it did last year. This year's tour vis-its more than 70 cities from March through December. Opening acts, to alternate during the tour, include Sherrie Austin, Deana Carter, and Jo Dee Messina. From May 17 to June 16, CMT viewers will be able to enter Vince Gill's Red, White, and Blue Backstage Barbeque Sweepstakes online at CMT's World Wide Web site, country.com. The grand-prize winner gets a trip for two to see Gill perform in Lake Tahoe, Nev., Independence Day weekend and attend a preshow backstage barbeque, hosted by Gill. The winner also receives a Pro Craft boat filled with CMT merchandise.

Fifties country artist and Western actor Eddie Dean died March 4 in West Lake Village, Calif., of emphysema. He was 91. Dean was perhaps best-Although times have changed, the need for true artist development hasn't, and there are plenty of current examples to cite. Although Three Chords And The Truth," Sara Evans first album, was critically acclaimed, no major radio hit emerged. Today, the tables have turned, as Evans' "No Place That Far" recently peaked at the top of our airplay chart, and her album is in top 10 territory. Martina McBride shares a similar story, as do Patty Loveless, Pam Tillis (promoted as both a pop and country act on another label before her Arista success), Steve Wariner, Kenny Chesney, Kathy Mattea, Lorrie Morgan, and others.

It's encouraging that some artists are gaining ground by making impressions based on longevity and not necessarily chart position. For example, Deryl Dodd's "A Bitter End" recently peaked in the 20s on the chart but took 23 weeks to do so, in the process making it one of the most-talked-about singles that wasn't a major hit so far this year. Columbia was able to sustain Dodd's airplay over time, which made serious audience impressions, particularly in several key markets including Dallas, Houston, and Nashville, where programmers made early commitments to the song.

Today, it's not uncommon for an artist to be dropped from a label roster after one or two disappointing outings. So how does the format develop core artists in this climate of two strikes and you're out?

Perhaps the industry has set the standard for quick hits a bit too high. The long-term hazard for the format is a sore lack of core artists who have potential to remain at the level McEntire, Gill, and others have maintained.

known for writing the song "Hillbilly Heaven," which became a hit for the late Tex Ritter. Dean was a founder of the Academy of Country Music and a member of the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Singer Ricky Lynn Gregg begins hosting a new, one-hour weekly radio show March 29, syndicated by Nashville-based White Horse Enterprises. "Ricky Lynn Gregg's Rockin' Country Hour" will feature guest artists, news, interviews, and music. It is expected to debut with about 25 affiliates, including WTCR Huntington, W.Va.; KMCO McAlester, Okla.; WDBL Springfield, Tenn.; and KITX Hugo, Okla., and is available on a market-exclusive, barter basis.

MJI Broadcasting will present the Garth Brooks special "Back Stage & Behind The Scenes" April 9-10. MJI's director of country programming, Maurice Miner, traveled with Brooks to Belfast, Northern Ireland, last year and collected interviews with Brooks, his band and crew, and his touring partner, Trisha Yearwood, which will be featured in the special. It is available on a market-exclusive basis.

R&B WJTT Chattanooga, Tenn., is giving away the Ultimate Ticket, a veritable "season pass" to all Power 94 events and concerts for the entire year. Wayne Collins lined up Pepsi as a sponsor for the golden ducat.

Even in an era of multimillion-dollar lotteries, it's amazing how much heat you can still generate with station T-shirts. Country KEEY (K102) Minneapolis created a commemorative 15th-birthday T-shirt and debuted it at the Minnesota State Fair. Diana Buckmann sold 'em out immediately. Top 40 WNKS (Kiss 95.1) Charlotte, N.C., is getting all hopped up about its imminent Bar Crawl in the Uptown area. Listeners can crawl to five bars on the street for the same price, notes designated driver Diana Ades.

Modern rock KXTE (Extreme Radio) Las Vegas went into overdrive for a promotion based on a local concert by the band Fuel. Giving new meaning to the term "massive exposure" is R&B KPWR (Power 106) Los Angeles' billboard campaign that touts morning host Big Boy. MANAGEMENT: THE LEFT BANK ORGANIZATION agrees. "There is a lot of great music out right now, [but] we're not expanding our playlist," he says. "It is always better when a lot of great songs fight it out for limited space instead of a lot of OK songs fighting it out for slots. Listeners can only handle so much new music at one time. To all of a sudden force a lot of new stuff down their throats will only send them to other stations that are playing the music they know."

IT'S ABOUT TIME

Many PDs say it's about time the music started getting better. "I am very much encouraged," says WBCT/WCUZ Grand Rapids, Mich., OM Doug Montgomery. "It couldn't have gotten any worse than the crap we were sent last year, although in defense of Nashville there were some records that radio [in its] nervousness missed. Consultant Bill Hennes once said to me, 'People don't go to the theaters to see old movies.' I think that's mostly true. Even our older demos want new music. We're just controlling the influx of new artists better than we did in '92-'95. We have to."

WMTZ Johnstown, Pa., PD Brian Cleary predicts, "We'll see a few more acts break through this year than the last two years if this high-quality product continues." But, Cleary continues, "I will not be adding any additional slots to accommodate the new talent. They are going to have to earn those positions and earn them in a climate where the familiar artist gets first crack. In the past, if a new act and an established act had a song going for an add, if the songs were equal in quality, I would lean to the new act and give them the break. This year, in those instances, I will go to the familiar act."

DISSENTERS IN THE RANKS

There are, of course, some dissenters in the programming ranks who believe the music has not improved this year.

"Nashville still doesn't get it," says WXTU Philadelphia PD Ken Johnson. "Even worse, many labels say they do, then keep releasing the same dreck. No wonder listeners keep indicating increased interest in hearing oldies on country stations. The new stuff just doesn't measure up."

"I'm disappointed, overall, with [the] first quarter, especially the established stars that we need to play," says WYRK Buffalo, N.Y., PD Justin Case. "We had many big stars who tested poorly this winter. On the bright side, I've heard some advance music that's exciting. Summer should be good."

WPOC Baltimore PD Scott Lindy cautions that "the new crop is good; it's not great. Opening up more slots on the playlist can put you at a serious disadvantage should the crop of new singles and artists weaken any time soon. I like the problem I have now: trying to find room for all of the good songs. When I start to see that there are more good records that my audience knows and wants to hear, I'll expand our list. Until then, I know every add will be a good one. Nashville has been working very hard to make this happen for country radio, so now I will take the most advantage of it and add hit records."

Consultants Are Cautiously Optimistic

PDs are going into this year's Country Radio Seminar largely optimistic about the quality of music that has been available to them so far this year (see story, page 1). But what about their consultants, the programmers often blamed for radio's recent conservatism?

For the most part, they agree that the music is better, although they urge programmers to remain conservative, and most caution against opening up any playlist slots to accommodate all the good new music available.

"I really like some of the new music I've heard so far this year," says McVay Media's Bob Moody. "I don't know anyone who has expanded their playlist yet, but the music that does get played is the cream of a good crop."

"I am a bit more excited about some of the new first-quarter artists than ones from the last six months or so," says Hill/Acree Consulting's Les Acree. "I don't think this will increase playlist size, however. We should simply have better new stuff from which to choose instead of just settling on so-so stuff." Joel Raab of Joel Raab Associates says, "The

Joel Raab of Joel Raab Associates says, "The resurgence of the country format is going to come from artists who have yet to reach the top 10. The 'class of '89,' while still important, will not bring us back. Personally, I am excited about some of the new artists who have a fresh sound. As for opening new slots, I'm not recommending that. I'm just happy we have some new music to better fill the slots we already have."

But there are some consultants who've been very vocal about the need for country radio to become more aggressive musically. While not o outright endorsing adding playlist slots, consultant Lee Randall says, "If we're all trying to is maximize P1 audience—those who love our music most—can we really do that best by minimizing fresh, exciting new music? Don't go nuts with new music but understand that a hot is new song with a big jock front-announce can add enthusiasm to the format." Bill Hennes of Bill Hennes & Associates has always urged clients to have what he calls "a good crop of new music" on their playlists. He says, "After all, if you aren't playing the new, then there will be no future hits. But lately, the music has been great. The tempo, variety of styles, presentation, and voices are outstanding. Lots of variety from both the 'old' and the 'new' artists."

Acree's partner, Keith Hill, is not as enthusiastic, saying, "The established artists have given us average product," with the stated exception of Alan Jackson. As for opening playlist slots, Hill says, "I'm not that excited vet."

Hill says, "I'm not that excited yet." Ken Moultrie of BP Consulting Group agrees with Hill. "Is the music better? No, I don't think so," he says. "While the buzz word is Nashville seems to be 'cutting back' on the number of new releases and new artists, it appears to me that the labels are back to the mind-set of the late '80s, throwing a ton of new artists at radio to see what sticks. Personally, I think that is fine. Hopefully, in the quantity we will find some quality. It only hurts our format when programmers feel pressured to play the majority of product that comes across their desk, instead of giving a smaller number of songs and artists time to develop." PHYLLIS STARK

MONITOR PROFILE Sony Nashville's Promo Vet Lameier Holds Court At 'Jack's Place'

When the first Country Radio Seminar was taking place in 1970, Jack Lameier was already eight years into his extraordinary career with Sony Music, then known as CBS Records. When he started with CBS at the age of 19, his job included selling cactus needles, used to play 78 rpm records on jukeboxes, because, he says, "the steel ones tore up the records." He recalls that the needles came in packs of 30 and included an emery board for filing them down when they got dull.

Now Sony's senior VP of country promotion, Lameier oversees the promotion efforts of four labels: Columbia, Epic, Monument, and Lucky Dog. And while he is no longer carrying his records around in coolers in the summer so they wouldn't warp before he could get them to the station, Lameier says that his job is still the same—"getting radio to listen to our music. That has always been the toughest part."

Of course, a lot has changed in Lameier's nearly 37 years in the business. He says the "radio business has gotten a lot more corporate. It's very hard to say anything derogatory about making money, but that's what radio's into now. In years past, a lot of folks in radio were into making stars and being stars. Now it's about making money."

Sony Music Nashville

'I think country's still got class'

On the promotion side, Lameier says, "basically now you're dealing not only with the stations but with consultants and various and sundry personages [who] have control of the music. And unless they hear your music, how are they going to know if it's any good? That's what all the setup is about. That's what the showcases were about. Get them turned on to it, and you've got a shot."

But despite all the changes, Lameier says that there are a few things, besides the nature of the job, that have remained constant. "This is going to sound funny coming from me, the old goat, but I think the camaraderie of the country community has stayed together a lot better than any other genre, and I'm quite proud of that," he says. "I think country's still got class."

That said, another constant in Lameier's career is that radio programmers sometimes display very poor manners. "The rudeness of some stations in dealing with artists has always just amazed me," he says. "I've had acts out, and they get ignored. I've had acts sit in lobbies for an hour waiting for somebody to get done talking on the phone, bragging to the other promotion people that they have not only my act but me sitting in the lobby, and you can hear them. You have to put up with that stuff." Lameier says the most amazing thing about that experience was that "I didn't smack the guy."

In his early days with the company, Lameier drove the CBS van and sold records out of it "like it was a bread truck. But what I noticed was that whenever I went past a stick out in a cornfield and I pulled in, in those days it was very much block-formatted, but what they were looking for more than anything was the country stuff that I had. That's how I got into country promotion."

In 1978, he moved to California to become West Coast regional country marketing manager, a job that "started out to be 80% sales and 20% promotion and ended up about 90/10 the other way." He noticed that rival regional Carson Schreiber, now with Lyric Street Records, was getting more records played than he was. When pressed, Schreiber admitted that he called the stations weekly. Lameier says he thought, "That'll work," and he began doing the same.

Lameier describes his recently created job at Sony as being about getting "as much airplay nationally at any given time as humanly possible. That is done by education, motivation, great product, and the best-equipped staffs out there." While he oversees promotion teams at Epic, Columbia, and Monument, Lameier says, "These labels are autonomous. I stay the hell out of it. If they have questions, they come to me. I do have a severe eye on the money. I've always done that, but... the personalities of the labels are [determined] by the people who run them and the people who work at them. If everything is the same, why have different labels?"

Lameier goes out of his way to be a mentor to his staff, particularly interns, many of whom are now part of the promotion staffs of various Sony labels. But he's not always had bosses who were so supportive. He recalls in his early days in promotion telling his then boss Joe Casey that he "was going to deliver X number of adds in a given week, and I only came up with half of them. I learned the meaning of terror. Joe had a way of getting your attention."

Beyond his skills as a record promoter, Lameier is perhaps best-known as the proprietor of "Jack's Place," a weekly Monday-night party in his office open to anyone in the industry, including the staffs of competing labels. The parties began because "the pressure in the old days in the 'war room,' as we used to call it, as the charts were coming in, was just so intense it was nuts. And if you took it home with you, it wasn't a happy situation. So we started having a beer before we went home. Now, you never know who's going to be here on Monday night" when the neon signs that read "Jack's Place" and "where the hits happen" are turned on. The syndicated radio show "Nashville Nights" recently broadcast live from "Jack's Place," and TNN taped it for a TV segment.

Lameier says the best moment of his career happened about three years ago. "I kept getting a rumor off the street that I was getting blown out, and it really bugged me, because I always figured I was going to retire from here," he says. So I storm up the hall and talk to [Sony Nashville president] Allen [Butler], and say, 'What's going on?' [He said,] 'Nothing, nothing, I assure you.' The next week, my wife, who volunteers as a [baby] cuddler in the nursery at Vanderbilt University Hospital, told me that a letter had come that she was [selected as] cuddler of the year," and there would be a formal party to mark the honor. Lameier says, "I got out my tux and a limo came, and when we walked in it was a surprise 34th-anniversary party for me. It just blew me away. As a testimony to me and the way I'm looked at in this company, [while] other people would get a set of golf clubs, they gave me a full-sized refrigerator to keep the beer in" at "Jack's Place."

Lameier has no intention of retiring any time soon. "The quality of songs, musicianship, and attitude in country is really one of the main things that keeps me turned on, and I still feel as I come into work every day that I'm a very lucky man. I get to do what I love," he says. "I can't carry a tune [as you know] if you've ever heard me sing backup, which I do when I get inebriated. I can't play an instrument. I've been trying to write a hit for years. I can't do that. But by God, I can get records played, and that keeps me close to the music and the artists."

'Country Too Pop, Playlists Too Tight': Surprise, It's CRS 1970 (And '75, '80 . . .)

by Phyllis Stark

The topics that take center stage each year at the Country Radio Seminar have always been as accurate a barometer of the state of the format as the Billboard and Country Airplay Monitor charts. On the occasion of CRS' 30th anniversary, combining the two not only makes for an interesting trip down memory lane but also proves the old adage that the more things change, the more they stay the same. Here, we take a look back at programming trends and the state of the format over the past 30 years through a combination of historical CRS coverage and chart analysis.

1970-75: MODERNIZATION

The trend toward a more modern sound and the subsequent crossover of country artists to pop were among the hot topics at the very first CRS, then known as the Country Music Radio Seminar. KSON San Diego's Dan McKinnon warned that if country music continued its modern trend, it could lose its identity. He said it wasn't "necessary for country music to identify with youth, because youth really is not experienced enough to identify with country." McKinnon also said the artists of 1970 "make more money and sell more records in a broader market," but he insisted they should not forget the music that brought them initial recognition.

Bob McAbory of CFGM Toronto warned that country stations were becoming "too top 40-oriented with time and temperature and a general [Bill] Drake format."

Also discussed at CRS in 1970 were the lyric content of songs and whether they should be considered offensive. Examples of "offensive" songs cited were "Harper Valley P.T.A." and "Son Of Hickory Holler's Tramp."

The relationship between country programmers and jukebox operators was also a topic of considerable discussion during the first CRS.

A total of 201 country artists charted in 1970, including 30 newcomers. There were 427 records that charted that year, 94 of which went top 10.

Records spent an average of 9.4 weeks on the chart in 1970. Those that reached the top 10 stayed around an average of 15 weeks. Those peaking in the top 20 averaged 14 weeks. Those in the 1-30 range lasted 13 weeks, and those in the 1-40 range had an average chart life of 12.4 weeks.

Of the 50 titles on Billboard's year-end tally of the top hits, 18% were on RCA, making that label tops for the year. Also represented on that year's label list are some that haven't been heard on Music

Row in many years, including MGM, Dot, Kapp, Smash, Sun, and Wayside.

Just five years later, the number of charting artists had increased to 243—55 of them newcomers. There was a total of 511 charted records, 118 of which went top 10. Records averaged 10.4 weeks on the chart in 1975, one week longer than they had in 1970. Those that reached the top 10 stayed around an average of 13.6 weeks. Those peaking in the top 20 averaged 14.3 weeks. Those in the top 30 lasted 13.8 weeks, and those in the top 40 had an average chart life of 13.4 weeks.

Capitol cornered the yearend list with 20% of the chart's 50 titles. The year-end label listing also included entries from now-defunct imprints ABC, Melodyland, United Artists, Barnaby, GRC, Playboy, and Country, Soul & Blues.

1980: THE BIG BOOM Thanks to the "Urban Cowboy" craze, 1980 was the format's peak year chartwise for everything, including number of artists charted (319), number of new artists charted (a whopping 74), and total number of records charted (595). This is partly due to the fact that a lot of independent labels came out of the woodwork that year to capitalize on the format's newfound popularity. (The indies IBC and Orlando were represented on the year-end chart.) Of the year's 595 charted titles, 116 went top 10.

To cram that many records in, the chart had to be fast. Records spent an average of 8.7 weeks on the chart in 1980, the smallest average to date. Those that went top 10 stayed around an average of 14.9 weeks. Those peaking in the top 20 averaged 14.1 weeks. Those in the top 30 lasted 13.5 weeks, and those in the top 40 had a chart life of 12.8 weeks.

The 50-position year-end chart was again dominated by RCA. That label garnered 22% of the charting titles.

In his keynote address at CRS that year, ABC Radio news commentator Paul Harvey called much of that era's country music "downright porno." Harvey decried what he saw as a tendency to "spike your music with smut. Don't let this showcase for country sunshine become a Hustler magazine of the air," he said.

Harvey also warned that Nashville could "overdose on your own excesses. You know the potential for payola, piracy, and hankypanky in your profession, and you know the potential for air pollution."

In addition, Harvey slammed the "Hollywood hacks and TV dandies who end up with pap" when they get through changing Johnny Cash and Charley Pride to fit their version of country music.

Among the topics discussed during other CRS sessions were that country labels were forced to bolster the failing pop operations of their parent corporations, the impact of Hollywood's sudden interest in country radio, and that, as Billboard wrote in its coverage, "in these tight-roster times, radio must help in breaking new acts."

The New Faces show was described by Billboard as displaying "a heavy emphasis on pop and a modicum of what used to be called traditional country." But, Billboard reported, "the biggest reactions came to country-oriented material with the crowd tending to sit on its hands during the pop and crossover tunes."

CRS that year attracted 389 people, then a recordsetting attendance. Highlights included a screening of the film "Coal Miner's Daughter" and a President Jimmy Carter impersonator. Then WDGY-AM Minneapolis PD Dan Halyburton, now GM of KPLX (the Wolf) Dallas, hosted a panel called "How Will You Program In The '80s?" CRS also included a session titled "How To Talk To Arbitron."

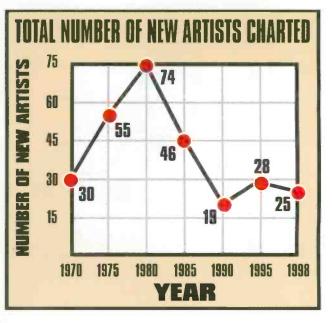

1985: SLUMP NO. 1 The consumer press was trumpeting country's "slump"

as CRS rolled around in 1985. On the positive side, Billboard wrote that the "Urban Cowboy" craze had left a lasting positive impact, because it "gave country radio the one thing it had been striving for for over two decades: equality with advertisers. No longer will Madison Avenue buy around you when you're the No. 2 station in town and the buy is three deep. No more do you have to explain that your audience buys more than beer and pickup trucks."

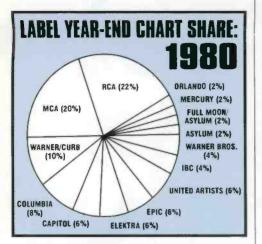

It was a period of time when then Country Radio Broadcasters executive director Frank Mull said the format was bouncing back from "the point where we were playing vanilla with a bullet" and was encouraged by the direction country radio was Continued on next page taking in embracing such artists as Ricky Skaggs, Carl Jackson, Keith Whitley, and George Strait. Programming pioneer Gordon McClendon gave the keynote. The seminar attracted about 800 attendees.

Things settled back down on the chart in 1985, when a total of 404 records, 212 artists, and 46 new artists charted. Of those 404 records, 126 went top 10, the most top 10 records of any of the years surveyed.

Records spent an average of 12.9 weeks on the chart in 1985. Those that went top 10 stayed around an average of 20.9 weeks. Those peaking in the top 20 averaged 20.2 weeks. Those in the top 30 lasted 19.9 weeks, and those in the top 40 had an average chart life of 19 weeks. RCA continued to dominate the year-end chart, claiming 26% of the 50 titles

1990: FRAGMENTATION

Fragmentation of the country format, while not prevalent, had progressed enough to become one of the bigger issues at 1990's CRS, both for mainstream PDs wondering how much of the country gold franchise was worth having and for those worried about younger demos being shut out of country radio as a result. Satellite Music Network VP of programming Robert Hall predicted that "we're about to witness history in the fragmentation of country radio," something that has not materialized to any great extent.

Publicist Evelyn Shriver, now president of Asylum Records, encouraged country stations to make a serious run at younger demographics-a strategy that many country outlets had discussed but few had acted on at that point for fear of chasing away the older demographic. "Your older core audience is going to die; that's just the reality of life," said Shriver.

Consultant Jay Albright said, "Either play the new acts or grow old with your audience and open the door for those who will."

Proving that not much has changed in nine years, a story in Billboard that ran the week before CRS quoted then Arista Nashville national director of promotion Allen Butler, now president of Sony Music Nashville, lamenting how tight playlists were, something Butler said was approaching the crisis stage. Programmers start feeling this crunch of product out there, and they're crying," he says. "We're crying because great records are not getting any airplay, and the radio stations are crying because they don't have any room to get them on."

At CRS, keynote speaker Charlie Daniels told attendees he was "starting to see some things creeping into country that crept into AOR." Recent converts to country "stayed for the long list," he said. "People don't want to hear the same songs over and over again."

Elsewhere at the convention, panelists dismissed the much-heralded impact of country video outlets in breaking new music

Billboard had just unveiled its Broadcast Data Systems monitoring technology a few weeks prior to CRS in 1990, and it was up to monitoring 79 stations in 57 markets by the time the March convention rolled around.

On the charts, the format had its lowest number of charting titles to date in 1990, with just 252. Of those, an astonishing 100 went top 10, nearly two-fifths of the total. Only 128 artists were represented on the chart that year, including just 19 newcomers. While there would be slightly fewer artists represented in the overall total in 1995, the number of new artists hit its low point in 1990.

Records spent an average of 15.6 weeks on the chart in 1990, the longest average to date. Those that reached the top 10 stayed around an average of 22.8 weeks. Those peaking in the top 20 averaged 22.6 weeks. Those in the 1-30 range lasted 21.5 weeks, and those in the top 40 had an average chart life of 20.8 weeks.

Once again, RCA ruled the year-end chart, which was now 75 rather than 50 positions. The label's year-end chart share in 1990 was 26%, just as it had been in 1985.

1995: STATION RIVALRIES

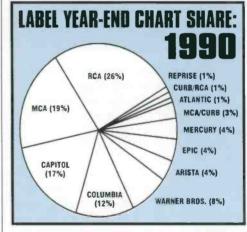

One of the format's hottest issues at 1995's CRS was that of competing stations doing battle with each other over concert presents and other perks. The 2,120 people who attended CRS in 1995 heard veteran manager Ken Kragen warn warring broadcasters, "We have to wake up and see what's happening in country music right now, or we're going to cook the goose that laid the golden egg." Kragen encouraged PDs to "compete cleanly and fairly and decently."

Kragen also worried that the country music industry was "built around servicing the young, the new, the hot Today you're just as good as your current song.'

Mercury Records president Luke Lewis questioned the validity of call-out research and asked why labels have to "torture" unique-sounding artists like the Mavericks, the Tractors, and David Ball up the charts. "Does it take you guys that long to figure out what a hit record is?" he asked programmers.

As they had for several years running, CRS panelists lamented what Columbia Records director of national promotion Bob Mitchell called "CHR-type mentalities drifting in" to the country music community.

One of the more amusing moments of 1995's CRS demonstrated that it was not just stations, but labels, that were feeling the heat of competition. MCA hired a marching band, costumed in full band regalia and carrying MCA banners, to meet the boat RCA had chartered to take CRS attendees to the opening reception. MCA VP of national promotion Scott Borchetta later brought the band into the cocktail party, which was supposed to have been a nonpartisan event, resulting in Borchetta being kicked off a panel he was scheduled to appear on later in the convention.

In 1995, 278 country records charted, including 108 top 10s. A total of 123 artists were represented on the chart, the lowest number to date, and 28 newcomers managed to chart.

Records spent an average of 14 weeks on the chart in 1995. Those that reached the top 10 stayed around an average of 20.1 weeks. Those peaking in the top 20 averaged 19.8 weeks. Those in the top 30 lasted 19.5 weeks, and those in the top 40 had an average chart life of 20.9 weeks. Epic was tops in the year-end chart, claiming 14% of the 75 positions.

1998: PAY-FOR-PLAY

Last year's CRS, attended by 2,350 people, was dominated by talk of pay-for-play, which came up at nearly every session, and by discussion of the merits of "virtual radio" automation. Record company executives like RCA Label Group chairman Joe Galante expressed alarm at the growing practice of above-board, legal pay-for-play, noting that labels "aren't sitting on a bag of money." MCA Nashville VP of promotion David Haley called pay-for-play "a very dangerous situation.

Virtual radio was both defended and criticized at CRS. Citadel chairman/CEO Larry Wilson, who has since gone on to use shared talent in some of his markets, said, "We're in big danger of forgetting about reaching out and touching people and being a big local presence ... I hope people wake up and do radio the old-fashioned way." On the flip side, former KQFC Boise, Idaho, PD Paul Wilson said, "I don't think you're better off live and local unless you have great talent.'

On the charts, last year brought a total of 261 records, 133 artists, and 25 newcomers. Only 75 records managed to hit the top 10, the smallest number to date.

Records spent an average of 14.3 weeks on the chart in 1998. Those that reached the top 10 stayed around an average of 23.1 weeks. Those peaking in the top 20 averaged 22.4 weeks. Those in the top 30 lasted 22 weeks, and those in the top 40 had an average chart life of 21.3 weeks.

Mercury topped the year-end chart with 13% of the 75 slots, followed very closely by MCA Nashville with 12.5%.

Prominent Players Look Back 30 Years, Describe Radio Memories Of 1970

by Phyllis Stark

With Country Radio Seminar celebrating its 30th anniversary this year, we took a lighthearted look back at what some of today's prominent players in the radio and record businesses were doing when the first CRS was being held in 1970. Some were already working in the industry and have colorful stories about what it was like back then

Most were too young to have industry jobs yet but still have vivid memories of music and radio in those days. Many had a family connection to the radio industry and followed in the footsteps of their fathers. Several had a direct connection to Armed Forces Radio. And a few cite watching "Hee Haw," for better or worse, as their first exposure to country music.

So what were you doing in 1970?

BOB MOODY, VP/COUNTRY, MCVAY MEDIA

"I was finishing my senior year in high school in Pine Bluff, Ark., where I was also MD/afternoon drive jock at KOTN, '1490 in the Land of Cotton,' " says Moody. "The station was owned by the legendary broadcaster Buddy Deane, and the time slot I was in had been filled a few years earlier by Buzz Bennett. Steve Warren of Warren Media was the PD who hired me. It was an exciting time to be in radio because of the variety and diversity of music on AM. It wouldn't have been unusual to play the Beatles, Four Tops, Bob Dylan, and Dean Martin in the same hour.

sleeping on the floor in the station lobby during curfews [in 1968] as we covered riots that followed the assassination of Martin Luther King. There was a bond of brotherhoodadmittedly, there weren't a lot of sisters in those days-among the jocks at every station in that small town. We would meet at a coffee shop after our shows and talk about radio for hours. It was more than just a job. We thought we were doing something important.

MARK ERICSON, PD, WOKQ DOVER, N.H.

"I was growing up outside of Boston listening to some legendary jocks on WRKO and WMEX," says Ericson. "I had a small radio station set up in my bedroom, and while my mother was remodeling her kitchen, I convinced her to have the carpenters set me up with a small Formica-type countertop complete with a turntable cut-out and gooseneck microphone stand. As I recall, it was quite probably the most hideous shade of orange that I've ever come across."

VICKI FIORELLI, PROMOTION DIRECTOR, KESZ/KNIX PHOENIX

Fiorelli was 3 years old and recalls that "my grandfather visited our house often and would always watch 'Hee Haw.' I couldn't stand it. Who knew that 22 years later 1 would be working for Buck Owens?"

BUZZ JACKSON, PD, WROO JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

Jackson was 21/2 and describes himself as probably drooling a lot, not much hair, and spending the majority of my day sleeping. Not much difference in 1999, except that the sleeping is done in meetings."

JAYE ALBRIGHT, PRESIDENT/ COUNTRY, MCVAY MEDIA

"I was just getting out of the U.S. Air Force, after having been on the Armed Forces Radio Thailand network for two years," says Albright. "I had gotten drafted after I left Kent State University and had worked in radio through my college years, so I took an Air Force 'bypass test' and showed 'em that I could do radio, and they would not have to train me." She recalls the commercial radio business in 1970 as "very mom and pop. Even the biggest operators were small, by today's terms. It made it very family-oriented. However, it also made it quite unbusinesslike. When I was at WNOB Cleveland, everyone on the staff knew you had to go right to the bank on payday, because otherwise your check might bounce."

TERRY STEVENS, VP OF NATIONAL PROMOTION, CAPITOL RECORDS

"I was in the U.S. Army learning skills that would later prove to be invaluable," says Stevens. "I was able to shoot straight and developed an ability to watch my back at all times."

LINDA O'BRIAN, APD/MD. KSCS DALLAS

O'BRIAN

O'Brian says, "My parents gave me a light green plastic transistor radio for my birthday. I used to love to listen to KENR Houston, and I remember they used to play Charlie Walker's 'Pick Me Up On Your Way Down.' Every time I heard that song, I would drag my sister to the living room, kick back the rug, and make her dance with me. Of course, I dreamed of looking just like Lynn Anderson when

I grew up. Needless to say, that wasn't possible, considering my DNA makeup.³

RICK TORCASSO, VP OF PROGRAMMING, CBS

"I was doing all nights at KMAK Fresno, Calif. My first radio job," says Torcasso. "You had to say 'KMAK music of America' [and] time and temp between every record. I thought that was stupid. I was very young and insecure. Today I'm old and insecure. At least I'm driving a Mercedes instead of a Vega.'

BILL HENNES, CONSULTANT

Hennes was PD at WNHC, the No. 1 top 40 station in New Haven, Conn. He recalls the business being about 'sex, drugs, and rock-'n'roll. Some things never change."

DENNY ALEXANDER, DIRECTOR OF PROGRAMMING, CLEAR CHANNEL TALLAHASSEE

"I had a nine-transistor radio and could get Chicago and Detroit, and I can still hear back-sells in my head and how cool and tightly the jocks did the live spots," says Alexander. "Because I was the only person in our group that played sports, I was asked to be the sports reporter for our school radio show on the two AMs in town

"My mother was the secretary for the church we attended, and when the pastor upgraded his dictating equipment, he gave her a tape machine. It used magnetic discs. I would play records and talk over the intro just like the big guys, or so I thought. As I got more inventive, I would take the output of the record player and hook it up to my walkie-talkie and play tunes for the rabbits in the woods behind the house. Then I found I could wire a microphone into the place on the tonearm where it meets the cartridge of the family stereo and play my guitar and sing through the stereo."

JEFF ALLEN, PD, WKKX ST. LOUIS

Allen was in second grade and "trying to figure out why my mom always dressed me funny and gave me a really bad haircut. Programming radio meant trying to tune in the right station without breaking [the radio]. My fondest memory was listening to Harry Carey and Jack Buck doing Cardinals playby-play."

TOM BALDRICA, VP OF NATIONAL PROMOTION, BNA RECORDS

Baldrica was 7 years old and says, "I was just learning how to turn the radio on and change the station. Business consisted of when I could get my next ice cream cone or candy bar. Guess that hasn't changed much in 30 years!"

BEVERLEE BRANNIGAN, PD, KJJY DES MOINES, IOWA

Brannigan was a seventh grader in Topsfield, Mass., who "listened to the radio all the time. Of course the radio station of choice for a young girl was [top 40] WRKO Boston. I'd hurry home for the 'Big 68's Million Dollar Weekend' with J.J. Jeffrey. How ironic; he hired me 10 years later at WOKQ Portsmouth, N.H."

RON BROOKS, OM, WESC-AM-FM GREENVILLE, S.C.

Brooks, not yet a teenager in 1970, says, "At that age, I thought there was a little record player in the dashboard radio and was amazed that it didn't skip when we went over a bump."

TONY THOMAS, MD/P.M. DRIVER, KMPS SEATTLE

Thomas was a fourth grader in San Francisco, "training for radio by making sure to get 'Tony talks too much in class' written on my report cards. My connection to the country industry was watching the first year of 'Hee Haw' and being a fan of [earlier] smashes like 'A Boy Named Sue' and 'Galveston'-not thinking of those songs as 'country,' just knowing I loved hearing them on 'the Big 610,' KFRC. To the 10-year-old me, the music business seemed too cool for words. A few years later, the almost-40-year-old me still thinks the same thing."

BRUCE CLARK, CLARK PUBLISHING CO.

"I was working at WKDA Nashville doing noon-4 p.m. at that legendary top 40," says Clark. "I was also working for Pete Drake at the old Stop Records and going out on the road each weekend with his show." In those days, he says, "you didn't need appointments to see anybody. Almost every day I would spend on Music Row, going from one office to another, and everyone was eager to play you the stuff they had recorded the night before. Everyone at RCA was always ready to sit and talk. When my dad was losing his hearing, Chet [Atkins] was nice enough to let him come to a session-Chet had always been a favorite of my dad-and see how it was all done. Yes, it was about making money, but there was not as much big business about it. None of us made the kind of money that people make today. The music scene in Nashville was more like a family then, a close-knit family."

JOHNBOY CRENSHAW, MD, WCOL COLUMBUS, OHIO

Crenshaw says he was "worrying about kindergarten, seeing as I was 4. I could sing along to Roger Miller's 'King Of The Road' really well." As for the radio business, he says it was, quite literally, "out of my reach."

RICK EVERETT, PD, WCTK PROVIDENCE, R.I.

Everett, age 16, had just gotten his driver's license and was working part-time at a bowling alley while attending high school. "Since I was a new driver, I was finding the radio stations in my area that I liked and getting them set on the car radio buttons," he says. "I would love it when a jock wouldn't talk over the intro of a song. It gave me the chance to do the talk-up from behind the wheel of the car. It was my way to practice being a DJ. This led to me getting my first radio job one year later. A local station was doing a remote, and I stopped by. I didn't know it at the time, but the jock doing the remote was the PD. After meeting him that night, I found a way to visit the station while he was on the air. Having a cup of coffee for the PD would almost always ensure that I Continued on page 14 got into the studio. I [got] some work doing promotions, and one year later, I was offered the overnight job for $4 per hour."

TOM FRIDLEY, PD, WCOL COLUMBUS

Fridley was "standing in front of the mirror pretending my bottle was a microphone, working on my enunciation of 'ma-ma' and 'da-da.'" His first introduction to the industry was "The Glen Campbell Show," which his parents watched every Saturday.

JACK PURCELL, VP OF PROMOTION, REPRISE RECORDS

"I was playing on my toy drum that I got for Christmas," says Purcell. "I built my first drum set out of empty Folger's coffee cans and popsicle sticks. I watched 'Hee Haw' and 'The Lawrence Welk Show' weekly."

BOB GLASCO, RUSTY WALKER CONSULTING

Glasco recalls "working for Storz Broadcasting, doing all-nights at [top 40] WHB-AM Kansas City as Bob Bradley—a name given to me by then PD Johnny Dolan. I had only been in the business about a year and a half at that time. The business has certainly changed since those days. Probably the biggest thing is the number of stations now owned by one company and the positive impact digital has had on the production of the product."

LON HARRIS, PD, KRRV ALEXANDRIA, LA.

"My father was doing afternoons on Armed Forces Radio in Honolulu," says Harris. "I was listening to 'Johnny Cash At San Quentin' and 'Green River.' I also had this killer paper route selling The Honolulu Star Bulletin on ships in Pearl Harbor. I made two cents a paper that I didn't have to waste on 45s 'cause pops could get me whatever I wanted.

"The business was the same then as it is today. You go into it wanting to change the world and affect people's otherwise mundane lives. You come out of it a cynical, angry pervert with nothing to show for 25 years of crummy wages and no pension. I would, however, like to point out that radio was not the homogenized, pasteurized crap it is today, because you had 6,000 programmers that tried every day to beat the hell out of the other 5,999. They tried to out-contest, outmusic, and out-fun the other guy. Auditorium testing was sock hops. Requests were from 2% of the listeners, and radio considered it research. Today, you pay a company to call out to 2% of the audience, and that's research. The 2% that call in are active morons.'

EDDIE HATFIELD, MD, KJJY DES MOINES

Hatfield was "4 years old, living in Albuquerque, N.M., but my connection to radio had already begun. My sister won an 'American Top 40 Countdown' record from our local station. I took it from her and literally wore the record out. I listened to it so much that I started to mouth the words while Casey Kasem was talking, then lift the needle and skip the songs."

KEITH HILL, CONSULTANT

"I was 8 years old and listened to a small General Electric portable radio that my parents bought me," says Hill. "I was listening to WSUX Seaford, Del., where I would work at the age of 13, just five years later; WSEA Georgetown, Del., where I would also work; WCAO and WCBM Baltimore; and WFIL Philadelphia. All of these stations were top 40. I had not yet been even exposed to country music. I just loved listening to the radio. I played the contests and won a scrub record from WSUX. I [had] answered the question, 'Who was the first president to broadcast on radio?' The answer of Warren G. Harding won me a 45 rpm record of a stiff on Atco Records by Delaney & Bonnie. When I went to pick up the prize, I looked through the window and was mesmerized."

Hill recalls that in 1970 "there were fewer radio stations. so the personalities were a big deal, not just 'jocks.' I don't think liner cards were yet to come onto the scene, and research had yet to have the effect of stripping 'negatives' off of the radio. The key thing about 1970 radio was it was fun. Radio stations used to be the hub of an entire community. Now the number of stations that have those size audiences and [that kind of] impact can be counted on your fingers."

ROBYNN JAYMES, PD, WJLM/WYYD ROANOKE, VA.

Jaymes was 8 and says, "I was supposed to be home before the street lights came on and in bed before 8 p.m.—not that different from my routine today. According to my father, he had a CB radio that I was already talking on. Guess I was destined. Hammer down, good buddy."

BOB RICHARDS, PD, WFMS INDIANAPOLIS

"I was in first grade at Immaculate Heart of Mary grade school in Indianapolis and learning about radio from my father," who was on the air in Germany just after World War II while in the service, says Richards. "He shared quite a few stories about the stunts and shows they put together. I think I'm still using some of his bits from the '40s today. Most of my direct experience with radio and records was calling stations and requesting songs. The response I usually got from the jock was, 'I can't promise, but I'll try my best.' Some things never change."

KEN JOHNSON, PD, WXTU PHILADELPHIA

Johnson was 14 years old and says, "Then, as now, country music had my full attention. I spent as much time as I could listening to country WWOL Buffalo, N.Y., to hear all the latest country hits. Little did I know then that five years later I would work there, hosting the all-night show, and 11 years later I would become PD.

"In addition to attending junior high school, [I had an] afternoon paper route [that] was providing money to stock my growing country record collection. A visit to the local department store was mandatory every Thursday afternoon, when the new records were unpacked. What fun to find a new Johnny Cash, Merle Haggard, Buck Owens, or Lynn Anderson album on the shelf (for only $3.57). Even better, they would occasionally stock some country 45s that would immediately get snapped up for 77 cents. Finding country music records in Lockport, N.Y., was a bit of a challenge.

"Late Saturday afternoon was spent in front of the TV watching 'The Porter Wagoner Show' and 'The Bill Anderson Show' from Nashville. Country music on TV was a real treat in. No TNN or CMT yet. I loved to see the stars and hear them play 'live.' Things seemed so much simpler then. No videos to do our thinking for us, and the music was great. Real country by Johnny, Merle, Buck, and Faron played next to country/pop hits from Glen Campbell, Ray Price, Eddy Arnold, and Sonny James. It was a wonderful time to be 14 years old and listen to country music. Best of all, those songs still sound great today."

BOBBY KRAIG, VP OF PROMOTION, ARISTA RECORDS

"I was just getting out of the hospital after a six-month stay and was very busy trying to figure out the easiest way to skate through high school," says Kraig. "After asking the evening talent at WDGY Minneapolis to [address] my high school speech class, I developed a friendship with him, and he taught me about the radio industry. I decided it would be an easy way to make a buck. Wrong! But while it wasn't easy, it turned out to be a lot of fun. I had no idea what the record industry was about. Still trying to figure that out."

ROBIN RHODES, NATIONAL MARKETING DIRECTOR, ABC RADIO NETWORKS' AMERICAN COUNTRY COUNTDOWN AND AMERICA'S MUSICMAKERS

Rhodes, age 7, was "looking for the little tiny bands and their little tiny instruments inside my mom's big stereo. My mom would listen to the Stones and the Beatles on the radio in Los Angeles, and I was convinced those people were inside. My dad was a truck driver and loved country music, and my mom has always been pretty hip, so music was a big part of my life growing up. I guess getting involved in radio just came naturally."

RHODES

SCOTT LINDY, PD, WPOC BALTIMORE

"I was breaking my dad's Beach Boys albums on the back patio with a rock," says Lindy. "I was 3 years old, and I already knew that recorded music could bring me some kind of excitement. The record industry was more in tune with breakable product back then. Ever try to break a CD with a rock? It just ain't happening."

WES MCSHAY, PD, KHKI DES MOINES

"I was a boy, in a world of hot pants, free sex, and burn the bra," says McShay. "I didn't fully understand what it was all about, but I knew I wanted to be a part of it, and as soon as I physically could. The fact that I had four older sisters in the middle of all this made things even more eye-opening. My connection to music was a daily part of my life. From listening to KJRB Spokane, Wash., every day, to burning out my sisters' Creedence Clearwater Revival albums, to taking guitar lessons and envisioning myself in any number of rock bands, music couldn't have been more important. Radio was always on."

BARBARA SILBER, DIRECTOR OF AFFILIATE RELATIONS, MEDIAAMERICA/JONES RADIO NETWORKS

Curl WORK

Silber was a freshman at Brooklyn College in New York, "majoring in English and minoring in TV and radio. I was hoping to have a career in either music or broadcasting, working behind the scenes, but I had no idea where those hopes would actually lead me," she says. "I always had an incredible passion for music and used to treat myself to a copy of Billboard or Variety every month or so. I thought [they were] the neatest magazines, because I got to read inside info on celebrities and learned such industry words as 'boffo' and 'confab' and 'No. 1 with a bullet.' "

JOHN Q. MORRIS, PD, WGRL INDIANAPOLIS

Morris recalls that "the Partridge Family hadn't gone on their first radio tour or even held a showcase yet, so I was stuck listening to my sister's Beatles albums."

KEN MOULTRIE, BP CONSULTING GROUP

Moultrie was 7 and living in Portland, Ore., and recalls that "everywhere I went I carried a little transistor radio tuned to the 'hot' stations KISN and KGW, critiquing them, I think."

LARRY PAREIGIS, VP OF PROMO-TION, MONUMENT RECORDS

Pareigis, age 4, was "toddling around and playing with 'Man From U.N.C.L.E.' figures, well on my journey to the pop-culture savant I am. I was aware of records and radios as objects but was drawn to shiny, bright TVs at the time." As for the music business, Pareigis says, "it was big and incomprehensible, but you're asking someone who was scared by Elizabeth Montgomery wiggling her nose at the beginning of 'Bewitched.' Hey, I was 4!"

JAY PHILLIPS, PD, KLUR WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS

Phillips was working in McComb, Miss., just about to head to New Orleans for a fiveyear stint at WWL. He says the business was "a whole lot less complicated. No one ever dreamed there would be no ownership restrictions. Seven AMs and seven FMs was the limit for a long time, and only a few companies were at the limit. In a small market, we had 'cue burn' problems, and we ran far too many commercials. At Christmas time, we 'interrupted our commercials' to play a song. Country PDs Relying More Heavily On Early '90s Than A Year Ago, Study Shows

ΓΛΛΛΛ

Broadcast Data Systems

Airplay Recognition Services

Country radio programmers have been vocal, and unapologetic, about their overall conservatism toward new music during the past few years. Now, a study of the most-played gold titles for the period of Feb. 14-20 shows that although the format continues to rely heavily on recent gold, it tends to favor proven hit material from the first half of the decade even more strongly than it did one year ago.

For example, more than half of the 300 gold titles we examined peaked between the fertile "Class of '89" and the ensuing early-'90s boom period, which most agree began to wane by the beginning of 1994. The second major era represented is '95-'97, which provides more than 120 titles on our gold list.

The gold list is seasoned with 15 titles that peaked between '79 and '88, the oldest of which is the Charlie Daniels Band's "The Devil Went Down To Georgia." That track was re-serviced to radio in late '98 to commemorate its 20th anniversary

Ranked at Nos. 25 and 112, respectively, Randy Travis' "Forever And Ever, Amen" and the Nitty Gritty

COUNTRY AIRPLAY MONITOR MARCH 12, 1999

Sold (The Grundy Country Auction Incident)/John Michael Montgomery

Dirt Band's "Fishin' In The Dark" retain their most-favored status among titles that peaked prior to '89. In fact, that particular era doesn't show up again on the list until George Strait's 1984 hit "You Look So Good In Love" appears at No. 191. With four entries, Strait leads the number of titles from the '79-'88 era, and Alabama finishes with three.

Meanwhile, an examination of the 50 most-played recurrents from the same week reveals exactly the same tempo breakdown as the '98 list. Midtempo material is, once again, the preferred fare, with 21 titles; uptempo songs account for 15 entries; and ballads round out the list with 14 songs.

One note: Martina McBride's 1997 song "Valentine" (with Jim Brickman) appears at No. 127 on the gold list. Since the one-week period we used here included Valentine's Day airplay, the original airplay total landed McBride's song in the top five for the holiday week. Her total was adjusted using an average spin count taken from the first three weeks in January.

those times, they were far less complicated than they are now. We didn't make a lot of money, but things were certainly less expensive. When I moved to New Orleans, I had a fantastic apartment for $200-something a month."

(Ed Note: For anyone too young to remember vinyl, Phillips defines "cue burn": "When you cued up a record on the turntable, you would turn the table back and forth to set the needle just at the point the song would start when you hit the start button. Doing this 'cue burned' the record. It added a static sound to the beginning of the record. Because we were at the low end of the food chain ... management wouldn't pay for the expense of keeping the turntables well maintained or buy new needles, which would have helped.")

JOEL RAAB, CONSULTANT

Raab was in seventh grade and says, "WABC [New York] was the only station that mattered, and I-like every kid on Long Island who was interested in radiowanted to grow up to be Dan Ingram. Country music played on WIRZ in New Jersey and WTHE Long Island, where I eventually began my radio career. I listened to neither until 'The Johnny Cash Show' came on TV, and I got hooked. As a teen radio listener and record consumer, I thought Gary Puckett & the Union Gap were pretty cool. Hey, their first hit was a country song-'Woman, Woman,' written by Jim Glaser of Tompall & the Glaser Brothers. Little did I know what lay in store!"

TIM ROBERTS, PD, WWWW DETROIT

"I was an 8-year-old living in the Detroit area, listening to [top 40 powerhouse] CKLW on a red transistor Sinclair radio that my dad won from a gas-station company," recalls Roberts. "Tom Shannon, Ted 'Teddy Bear' Richards, Byron McGregor, and the rest of the gang had a big influence on me. We had arguments over which top 40 station was cooler, WKNR [Keener 13] or the Big 8 CKLW."

Brad Paisley, and if this fine debut is any indication of what's to come, he could be one of THIS YEAR'S BREAKTHROUGH ACTS. The song - co-written by Paisley - is a solid effort. It treads a previously explored path with a fresh perspective and great hook. This is a promising debut that should perk up programmers' ears."

Exclusive Preview: Internet Country Survey Says Listeners Unsatisfied

by Phyllis Stark

A recent Internet study by programming veteran Bruce Clark says country listeners are generally unsatisfied with current music but even more unsatisfied with country radio. The study also draws the surprising conclusion that top 40 has replaced oldies as country fans' second-choice format.

Clark's World Wide Web site, CountryRadio.Net, recently conducted a national research study of 1,996 country music listeners, ages 18-54, and their attitudes about the format. Clark, the former OM of WXBM Pensacola, Fla., will unveil the survey during the upcoming Country Radio Seminar in Nashville but gave Country Airplay Monitor an exclusive preview.

Respondents had bought, listened to, or watched country music during the previous week. All the participants listed country as their No. 1 choice of music but not necessarily their only choice. Clark says respondents were qualified "to ensure that the sample base was not tainted by professional survey takers or by people who do not fit the stated profile for the project."

Among the findings:

• Only 45.7% of respondents indicated that country radio has gotten better over the last year, compared with 53% who said the music has gotten better. "As we become more about big business and less about the music and the fans, we see that the listeners and fans can sense this," says Clark. "Country fans are country fans for several reasons, and the shift away from the closeness of country radio and country artists is starting to show [Not] every artist, DJ, or radio station is falling prey to this; however, a good many are, and we can see the results in both sales and ratings."

• Top 40 was the panels' secondchoice format, followed by oldies. Clark says top 40 "has gotten away from a 'too hip for the room' attitude Continued on page 6

by Sean Ross

It's no secret that many of the new listeners who swelled country radio's ranks in the early '90s were former top 40 listeners. It's also commonly held that the resurgence of top 40 has had a lot to do with country's declining young-end numbers.

But it's still a little surprising when veteran PD Bruce Clark cites top 40 as the format with which country shares the most audience (see story, above), if only because so many PDs now regard the young-end audience as gone, rather than shared with anybody. Ten years ago, country PDs often saw oldies stations as their chief rivals, especially in the late '80s, when many markets were getting their firstever oldies FM. By the mid-'90s, most markets had their own ferocious country battles, and PDs had stopped looking elsewhere for competition. So who's the country PD's competition now? An analysis of the fall books for the top 20 markets shows that, in any market with two country stations, it's still overwhelmingly the crosstown country station. In markets with a single country outlet, oldies and AC outlets are more likely to be a country station's primary sharer. But top 40 is hardly off the radar screen. In a relatively even country battle, a

In a relatively even country battle, a country station's sharing with its competitor is likely to be around 40% of its cume, about twice the sharing that country does with any other format. In Dallas, country leader KSCS shares 38% of its cume with format rival KPLX and 27% with crosstown KYNG. It shares 20% of its cume with top 40 KHKS, 18% with heritage AC KVIL, and 17% with oldies KLUV.

Similarly, in Detroit, WYCD shares 40% of its audience with rival WWWW (W4). That station shares 35% of its cume with WYCD. W4's Continued on page 6 it's about time

Special Issue To Mark CRS' 30th

The Country Radio Seminar means seminars, showcases, and, as always, a jam-packed special issue of Country Airplay Monitor

Next week, Country Airplay Monitor marks the 30th anniversary of CRS with a look back at programming trends over the past 30 years, as reflected by Billboard and Airplay Monitor's country charts. We'll look at the stats for the total number of artists (and new artists) charted, how long records stayed on the chart, and chart share by label, among others. These are stats that show where country music has been and help explain where the format is going.

We'll also take a lighthearted look back at what some of today's prominent radio and record company personnel were doing while the first CRS was being held in 1969 and what the industry was like. Don't miss McVay Media consultant Bob Moody's prom picture.

In the Monitor Profile, Sony Music's Jack Lameier spins a colorful narrative about his nearly 37 years in the format. And we'll also have our annual Broadcast Data Systems-compiled list of country radio's 100 most-played recurrents and 300 most-played gold titles.

Look for this special issue in your mailbox next week or at CRS in Nashville.

Arbitron Reissues Miami Book Arbitron is reissuing the Miami book after determining listening for jazz WLVE Miami was incorrectly attributed to simulcast partner WWLV West Palm Beach, Fla. As a result, WLVE climbed 3.4-3.7, moving it out of a tie for No. 8 with WHYI to No. 7 12-plus. Arbitron says estimates for other stations were not affected by the error.

MICRORADIO DEBATE CONTINUES The specter of microradio continues to antagonize existing broadcasters, including small-market owners. "This commitment to low power carries the power to destroy the ability to serve our communities," writes Diana Coon, GM of top 40 WYHT Mansfield, Ohio, in a letter to the FCC. Coon says that as a woman who has fought her way into management, she is insulted by its proposal for bringing more women and minorities into broadcasting.

Six From Strait Go Straight To The Chart

CHART ACTION: It happens every time George Strait releases a project and radio plays nearly everything from it for a few weeks. True to form, Strait's "Always Never The Same" set (MCA) yields six album tracks on our Country Airplay list, including "Write This Down," the week's top debut at No. 57. The Strait album, along with new sets by Kenny Chesney and Sawyer Brown, hit retail March 2.

Meanwhile, Chesney's "How Forever Feels" (BNA) takes the biggest increase on our Country Airplay chart, with an increase of 710 spins, and is one of the most active titles on Billboard's Top Country Singles Sales chart, where it jumps 3-2. Up more than 500 units, "How Forever Feels" has sold 11,000 singles, threatening Mark Chesnutt's chances for a ninth week at No. 1. Chesnutt's "I Don't Want To Miss A Thing" finishes the week with 12,000 sold.

Just a few days after winning two Grammy Awards for best country album and best country performance by a duo or group, Dixie Chicks score their third No. 1 single with "You Were Mine" (Monument), which notches its second week at No. 1 on the audience chart.

ALTHOUGH COUNTRY MUSIC'S regional roots are truly the support of its family tree, our current national radio format often leaves little opportunity for hits to break re-gionally. Our technology-based charts provide a means by which measurable regional- or local-market support for certain releases can emerge. But can promotion teams effectively build a national story based on concentrated regional or local market play?

If they can't, it's not for lack of viable candidates. Lucky Dog artist Charlie Robison's "Barlight" has spent nine weeks on the chart, driven primarily by spins at KPLX (the Wolf) Dallas, which has played it more than 300 times to date. Robison's song accumulated sporadic but significant play elsewhere. WXBQ Johnson City, Tenn., has played the track more than 100 times; sister WQBE Charleston, W.Va., played "Barlight" about 60 times.

PEOPLE: WILLIAMS JOINS KPLX

Radio veteran Paul Williams joins KPLX (the Wolf) Dallas as promotion director after a six-year stint at Universal Studios Florida.

KNIX Phoenix evening jock Scott Fisher is named production director. Programmer Larry Daniels needs T&Rs for a new night host.

KTTS-FM Springfield, Mo., morning man Mike Edwards exits for oldies rival KOSP. Going to mornings is PD Don Paul, who had been doing half of the midday shift, and Curly Clark, who rejoins KTTS after a hiatus from radio. Terri Ross, who had been doing 10 a.m.-noon on KTTS-AM and noon-2 p.m. on the FM, is now doing mid-tablish a story at KPLX in recent months, played at least once on 25 of our 162 monitored stations. To date, more than 6 million estimated audience impressions have been tallied for the song, which peaked at No. 60 two weeks ago. Although the chart benchmark alone may seem unimpressive, the number of overall audience impressions is noteworthy. Last issue, zydeco artist Wayne Toups' "Free Me" (BTM) garnered 70 spins with airplay from WKJN Baton Rouge, La., and KMDL and KXKC Lafayette, La. Although few might expect airplay on such a single outside the bay-ou region, the audience figures are still considerable. With 168 plays to date, "Free Me" notches a half million audience impressions, impressive figures since Toups' airplay was based on album play with no promotional single. This week, "Free Me" slips from No. 67-70.

As country struggles to redefine itself on the cusp of the new millennium, perhaps the industry will identify a trend toward a more organic type of initial airplay growth again based on regional airplay. In order for the regional airplay dynamic to become more pronounced, however, it would require a combination of more regionally focused attention from labels and, for programmers, a much sharper ear for local market tastes than is now the norm.

History tells us that many artists gained initial popularity in specific regions, particularly before the boom period country experienced during the first half of the decade. While regional breakouts have ebbed and flowed over the years, there's a current slant to the general concept. The Robison story exemplifies that potential from the bottom up, but it is possible for it to work in reverse. For example, Asylum's new "Trio II" project by Emmylou Harris, Linda Ronstadt, and Dolly Parton, which has scanned more than 50,000 units in just more than two weeks with virtually no radio airplay, provides an interesting opportunity for local PDs to capitalize on recognized artists who already have a sales story, while selecting something appropriate for their audience from the project without a nar-rowly defined "single" agenda from the label.

properties, including a five-year agreement that changes the name of Nashville's Starwood Amphitheater to the First American Music Center. The partnership also includes sponsorship of the First American Broadway Series at the Tennessee Performing Arts Center (TPAC) in Nashville, a Broadway touring company series that began in 1982 and is co-owned by TPAC and SFX's PACE Theatrical Group, and stage sponsorship at Nashville River Stages, an annual three-day music festival produced by SFX's PACE Concerts.

Gabriel Briggs joins Nashville-based music publishing company Cal IV Entertainment as director of creative services. Briggs previously was professional manager at David 'N Will Music. KTWB Sioux Falls, S.D., overnighter Brandon Fox moves to nights, replacing Kidd Callahan, now at classic rock sister KRRO.

PROMOGAN AN OVERVIEW OF RADIO PROMOTIONS • BY JEFF SILBERMAN 323-525-2303 · jsilberman@airplaymonitor.com

'Star Wars' And Stars Dominate Promo Sky

Show biz continues to sizzle in radio promotion, as the next "Star Wars" movie and the Oscars replace the Grammys atop the Topical Barometer chart. The May opening of "Episode One: The Phantom Menace" has already reached critical mass. The trick for promo directors is to make it work best for their respective stations. Expect some coming attractions in the near future.

Meanwhile, like NyQuil to a nagging cold, "winter fever" trips continue to relieve coldweather stations such as top 40 WPXY Rochester, N.Y. It is giving away a weeklong vacation to Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla., including hotel, passes to all Disney resorts, and boarding passes on the Disney Cruise lines. Listeners qualify by winning the "A Bug's Life" home video from Disney before it hits the stores, notes an animated Tristano Korlou.

One topic bubbling under the chart: Art museums and cultural events are attracting a clientfriendly demo. "Keeping our listeners in touch with what's going on culturally in Philadelphia is very important," says modern rock WPLY (Y100) Philadelphia's Kelly Gross. "We keep up to speed on everything from concerts to exhibitions." At the more traditional end, pro wrestling is of high interest to listeners of country WYNY (Y107) New York and WPOC Baltimore, among others.

tional revenue (NTR) these days. A little less than half of the respondents say they're one of several players at the station who oversee the creation of NTR events; the remainder have assumed primary responsibility for that department, to the point where it is as important as anything else they're doing promotionally.

"Sales has no time to concentrate on NTR sources," says WYNY's Jason Steinberg. "To succeed, this must start with a benefit to the station and also have a positive angle for clients. Building a promotion from scratch isn't necessary. Promotions should plug clients into already-existing features of the station." Here are some NTR winners that could pass for regular promotions if you didn't scrutinize the signage too closely

• Special events. Country WBEE Rochester,

N.Y., threw its debut Kids Fest at the tail end of the winter break. More than 4,000 kids took in the 25 vendors, crime dog McGruff, a marine HUM-V and full-sized fire truck, child-ID photo kits, live entertainment, karaoke sing-alongs, safety demonstrations, Internet safety sponsors, a petting zoo, supermarket snack centers, environmentally safe products, and more. It's anything but child's play to Stephanie Hogerman. Triple-A KFOG San Francisco is renting out Paramount's Great America for its Spring Wingding, a "private party" for 15,000 listeners before the park opens to the public. Jude Heller has enlisted major sponsor involvement from 40 participating clients.

More's the merrier at top 40 WKSE Buffalo, N.Y., as Stephanie Ringer gets the station in-volved with events such as Buffalo's Best Red Sauce contest, pet fair, Italian Festival, and Soc-cer Shootout. "We have a sales person to specifically sell and coordinate each event," she says.

Bridal shows are usually a sure thing for stations with a female target demo. "We do one once a year," says WPXY's Korlou. "It's a huge success, especially in the first quarter of the year, when things are slower than normal." • World Wide Web sites. Web site banners and such have primarily been treated as a valueadded stroke for clients. At R&B KPWR Los Angeles, "the Power 106 Web site is an excellent resource for promotions that I would not approve for on-air," states Dianna Obermeyer. "It is also used as a revenue source and a vehicle to increase promotional value on a buy.

That could soon change, as a well-maintained site has the potential to take on a revenue life of its own. "We hired an interactive manager and devote quite a bit of resources to Q101.com," says modern rock WKQX (Q101) Chicago's Keith Sgariglia. "We're relaunching it in two months, and we already have many advertisers who are devoting money specifically to the site. We'll also have a Q101 shop that consistently sells new merchandise.

• Direct mail/publications. At triple-A KKZN (the Zone) Dallas, "our in-house department develops four-color magazines with themed content," notes Barbara Luchsinger. "Our next venture is the Zone Purple Pages, a piece structured for a long shelf life with venue maps; the jocks' top restaurant picks; athletic trail maps for blading, biking, and walking; con-cert schedules; a list of great Web sites; etc. Sales gets page sponsors, who work with theme restaurants, skate rental shops, bars, movie groups, and so on.3

• Discount "membership" cards. A natural client tie-in can be used in several ways, including rhythmic top 40 KLUC Las Vegas' Gotcha Card. "If our station talents catch listeners listening to KLUC in the mall, their car, etc., we give them a Gotcha Card for a free item from a record store, restaurant, etc., plus a free CD," notes Vanessa Thill.

• Music events/products. These are the most obvious tie-ins, including station concerts at a variety of locales, exotic and otherwise, and CDs of artist in-studio performances or local band compilations.

... a lot of the urban influence has gone away, and we are back to songs talking about real life. I don't think we have seen a shift from oldies but rather a new round of defectors from [country], this time a little younger and looking for perhaps a little more tempo."

Only 31% of the respondents could name all of the air personalities of their favorite country station, and 16% couldn't name any of the personalities from their favorite country station.

• Most respondents (62%) said they wanted more information about the artists, and the same percentage wanted more back-announcing.

• As for the age-old battle of classic vs. new country, Clark says, there's an 80% demand for more "older music" on the radio, but that means library tracks from today's hitmakers, not veteran acts.

other big sharers are adult top 40 WKQI (22%), AC WNIC (22%), and oldies WOMC (22%).

When there's not another country station, the top sharer is usually AC or oldies. AC stations are the biggest sharers for WWXY (Y107) New York (30% with WLTW); KZLA Los Angeles (17% with KYSR, as well as classic rock KCBS and oldies KRTH); WUSN Chicago (19% with ACs WTMX and WNND, as well as oldies WJMK); KSON San Diego (22% with soft AC KYXY); and WMJC Long Island, N.Y. (22% with AC WALK).

Oldies stations are the biggest sharers for WXTU Philadelphia (22% with WOGL, as well as N/T KYW); WMZQ Washington, D.C. (24% with WBIG); WKIS Miami (21% with WMXJ); and WPOC Baltimore (21% with WQSR). Besides WXTU, KYCY San Francisco and WKLB Boston do their greatest amount of sharing with the news/talk powerhouses in their markets.

There are only two top 20 markets where the top 40 station is country's top sharer. One is Atlanta, where WSTR shares 35% of WKHX's cume, the only case where a country rival was not the top sharer. The other was Minneapolis, where KDWB shares 30% of KEEY's audience.

Usually, we found that a top 40 station was more

• CMT was the No. 1 choice in music video channels, followed by VH1. Clark says, "This could be fueled by the fact that VH1 has featured several country artists over the past 12 months."

· More than 80% of respondents had bought country albums in the last 30 days, and 83% planned to buy music in the next 30 days. More than 43% had bought country albums over the Internet, and an additional 22% were open to it.

The complete survey will have full age-cell breakouts, as well as verbatim comments about country radio and music. A radio-only version, focusing on country radio and music perceptions, will be distributed by DreamWorks Records. A second version, geared toward record labels and artist managers, contains additional research on buying decisions, artist Web sites, and concerts. It will be available directly from Clark at CRS.

likely to share somewhere between 15% and 22% of a country FM's audience. The stations that shared the most of their audience with top 40 tended to be the "young country" FMs in their markets. WRBQ Tampa, Fla., shared 23% of its audience with top 40 WFLZ, while rival WQYK shared only 14% of its cume with WFLZ. Likewise, in Dallas, KYNG's 37% sharing with KHKS is much higher than KPLX's 22%.

One reason for this is that the younger-leaning country station is naturally more likely to share with top 40, especially in the case of a WRBQ, which switched to country from top 40. Another is that these days, the young country station is likely to be the No. 2 country station in the format. And No. 2 stations in any format tend to share much more of their cume with other stations than the format leader.

We also found that sharing with top 40 was sometimes a little higher when the top 40 in the market had a stronger modern AC flavor, such as WSTR. Similarly programmed KBKS (Kiss 106) Seattle shares 27% of country KYCW's audience. But that wasn't always the rule, as evidenced by the heavy country-sharing with rhythmic-leaning KHKS. And even R&B-leaning KUBE Seattle cumes 15% of country KMPS' audience.

Letter: KZLA Defines Its Position

To the editor:

Thanks for the article about the new direction of suburban [KIKF-FM] in Orange County, Calif. (Country Airplay Monitor, Feb. 26). I have great respect for Craig Powers and think he's doing many of the right things to put KIK back on the map. Trying to compete head to head with a giant is never a very bright move. Instead of fighting a losing battle for the core country audience, Craig is wisely going after one end of the country spectrum. He's super-serving it and hoping to expand that end of the spectrum beyond its current limits.

However, I'd like to correct a couple of misimpressions that your article left regarding KZLA. First, KIK is not really on the same playing field with KZLA. Their signal only reaches about a quarter of our audience. As you pointed out, they didn't even make it into the most recent Arbitron book. Even in areas of Orange County where their signal does reach, Arbitron says we beat them by a nearly 3-to-1 ratio.

[And] anyone who thinks KZLA has "a passive format [that] almost sounds like a soft AC presentation" has not listened to KZLA for about six months. If we're going to make comparisons to AC, I'd call our presentation somewhere between mainstream and hot AC. That shift is largely responsible for our 20% cume growth since last summer.

KZLA is proud to once again be the highestcuming country station on the planet. We're excited about where our cume might go with the help of our recent marketing campaign. Bill Fink, PD

Monitor Profile Jo Dee Messina Is Glad She Stuck Around To Let 'Em Know 'I'm Alright'

Jo Dee Messina is the kind of woman who can crack herself up. "How's the weather up there in New York?" she asks.

'Cold and gray," is the response.

"It's like that here, too," she says from her home in Nashville, "cold and gray," followed by a peal of laughter. "Naw, not really. I'm just trying to make you feel better."

It's a typical moment in conversation with the spirited singer/songwriter, who's anywhere but in a deep freeze these days. With the success of her current Curb album, "I'm Alright," Messina has become the first female solo artist to score three consecutive multipleweek No. 1's from one album since Billboard's country album chart debuted in 1964.

It's a triumph for the Holliston, Mass., native, who has seen her share of industry heartache, starting with a label deal that went sour when management shifted, followed by being signed to Curb but seeing her finances dry up between hits and watching as trusted industry friends deserted her amid her struggle.

She then spent more than a year of cautious deliberation to find the right songs for her follow-up-which has now taken Messina to new heights and made her one of the few artist success stories of the past several years.

The majority of the songs on "I'm Alright" are about personal strength and survival, which is perhaps what has made Messina such a convincing presence. For instance, the album's "No Time For Tears," which she cowrote, characterizes a time after a painful breakup when she said she'd rather have never had the relationship than deal with the constant hurt she felt afterward

"One of my closest friends said this was really affecting who I was, that I wasn't smiling anymore. For me, that's like breathing. I realized that I had so much to look forward to. I was making the 'I'm Alright' album and planning a tour. I didn't have time to be dragged down like that. So I live 'em, buddy.'

Even for those songs she doesn't write, Messina says, "I have to be able to relate to what I sing and know what the song is saying. As a singer, you're painting a picture, and you can't sing it if you don't know what it looks or feels like. That's what I try to do when picking songs.

Robynn Jaymes, PD of country WYYD/ WILM Roanoke, Va., says, "It seems like every record we get from her is stronger and stronger. When you think she can't get any better, she comes out with something [supe rior]. Our female listeners just love her because she's singing about things that people can relate to. When she performs, she looks like she's singing something she believes in."

It doesn't hurt that Messina has some friends in high places. She met Tim McGraw early on in her career, before either was established. The two were introduced by producer Byron Gallimore and became instant friends.

Both were signed to deals, but Messina's initial recording deal was derailed during a management shift at her label. After Mc-Graw's career broke with "Indian Outlaw," he invited her to an industry function at Fan Fair, which was also attended by Curb A&R executive Phil Gernhard.

"I was scared to death, and when I feel that way, I can make some really bad jokes," Messina says. "I said to him, 'I was thinking y'all needed a redhead on your label.' " At that point, another Nashville producer came up and said he'd just played her demo and loved it.

The next week, Gernhard asked for a copy of her tape, and a week later, "he called and asked if I'd like to do some work," Messina says. Then came her 1996 self-titled album, which generated two hits, "Heads Carolina, Tails California" and "You're Not In Kansas Anymore," as well as a Country Music Assn. Horizon Award nomination.

But subsequent singles fizzled, and bookings diminished. Messina's finances ran into trouble, pushing her to the brink of bankruptcy. She lost her tour bus and had to put her house and car on the market. Then, she says, a longtime band member told her the ship was sinking and he was moving on.

It was devastating," she says. "I grew up in a small town where everyone was honest and loyal. I knew my neighbors would step in front of a car for me, and now I know that it's not like that everywhere. It was a very hard lesson.

Thankfully, Curb stood by Messina, and with the release of "I'm Alright"—co-pro-duced, like her first album, by Gallimore and McGraw-radio reacted. "I have a great team around me now," she says. "Radio and the fans have been wonderful, and I treasure the folks at my label. I'm also very fortunate to have the production team that I have. The sounds of their records really are fresh. I have to give them a lot of credit."

'She's a great person and has worked so hard to get to this point. I'm so happy for her," says WKLB Boston APD/MD Ginny Rogers, who has known Messina since she first began performing at local clubs and bars in Boston in the mid-'80s. "I remember when she gave me a tape with 'Heads Carolina, Tails California,' and I called her and said, 'That's a No. 1 song' and that she was going to make it. She was almost crying on the phone.

Looks like Messina has sealed her fate on that home front. On Feb. 19, she was nominated for six Boston Music Awards, a distinction traditionally earned by rock artists. She was nominated for act of the year, album, outstanding female vocalist, single ("Bye Bye"), video ("I'm Alright"), and outstanding country act. "I had to check my messages twice because I didn't believe it," Messina says.

Meanwhile, the tenacious artist still has some pretty defined goals for the future, too. "I still haven't met Bonnie Raitt. I haven't performed with an orchestra yet. I haven't written an entire album. I haven't had Shania Twain cut one of my songs. There are a lot of things I still want to do," she says.

In the meantime, she'll hit the road for several months, starting March 18, as part of the George Strait Country Music Festival ("He is the epitome of country music," she says). Altogether, she's planning 50 dates this year. She'll also appear on "CBS This Morning" April 28.

"Every day is a reward. It's all about getting out and meeting as many fans as I can and giving a little bit back to the people who've put me where I'm at," she says. "I'm very grateful for it all CHUCK TAYLOR, BILLBOARD
