GM JOEL OXLEY EXPLAINS THE BUDGETARY PROCESS

BY TONY SANDERS PHOTOGRAPHS BY CJ WACHARAMAI / RETNA LTD.

Every year around this time, PDs, GMs and general station managers alike face their budgets and see fewer line items that can be changed. That is not terrible, if the revenue looks like it is going to increase. A growing radio economy can help ease the pressure on cost containment, and it allows budget makers to include one of the most important variables in their line items: marketing money.

Joel Oxley is VP/GM of Bonneville's Washington, D.C., cluster of four terrestrial radio stations and one profitable Internet station. Oxley oversees all-news WTOP, government talk WFED, adult top 40 simulcast WWVZ/WWZZ and classical WGMS.

The Internet station is a musical offshoot of WGMS, the opera/choral channel Viva la Voce.

"A battle for all GMs is trying to figure out how much marketing [money] to put in and, if you can, you try to have those variable expenses in there in case you have a tough year," Oxley tells Billboard Radio Monitor.

The typical move in a difficult year, he says, is to reduce the marketing budget. The problem with that strategy is if that marketing money is not reinstated in a later year, it is harder to find another variable in the budget that can be used to cushion a station or cluster through a hard year. "There are not many variable expenses out there you can go after if you have trouble on the revenue side," he says.

At some point, Oxley says, cost cutting can affect the ability to generate revenue, either by overworking too few sales managers or by not having a real promotion budget available.

The delicate balance GMs need to achieve is keeping costs in line without putting too much pressure on the programming department, he says. Programmers say it is harder to get people to remember to write down a station in an Arbitron diary if they are not reminded of the call letters and brand identity through off-air promotions and marketing. That is even more important if a station is under direct format competition or facing attack by a multiformat competitor (such as a Jack station), they say.

Oxley says most of his stations have seen revenue gains. And for WTOP, he says, that means his marketing budget can remain in the "low single digits" as a percentage of revenue.

BUDGET BEATER IDEA: MARKETING ON THE CHEAP

STRAPPED FOR MARKETING DOLLARS? Partner with a daily commuter newspaper and provide editorial copy in exchange for station logo and call letter exposure. If the paper is not willing to talk trade, convince one of your own advertisers to be part of the relationship and create a regular "advertorial" column.

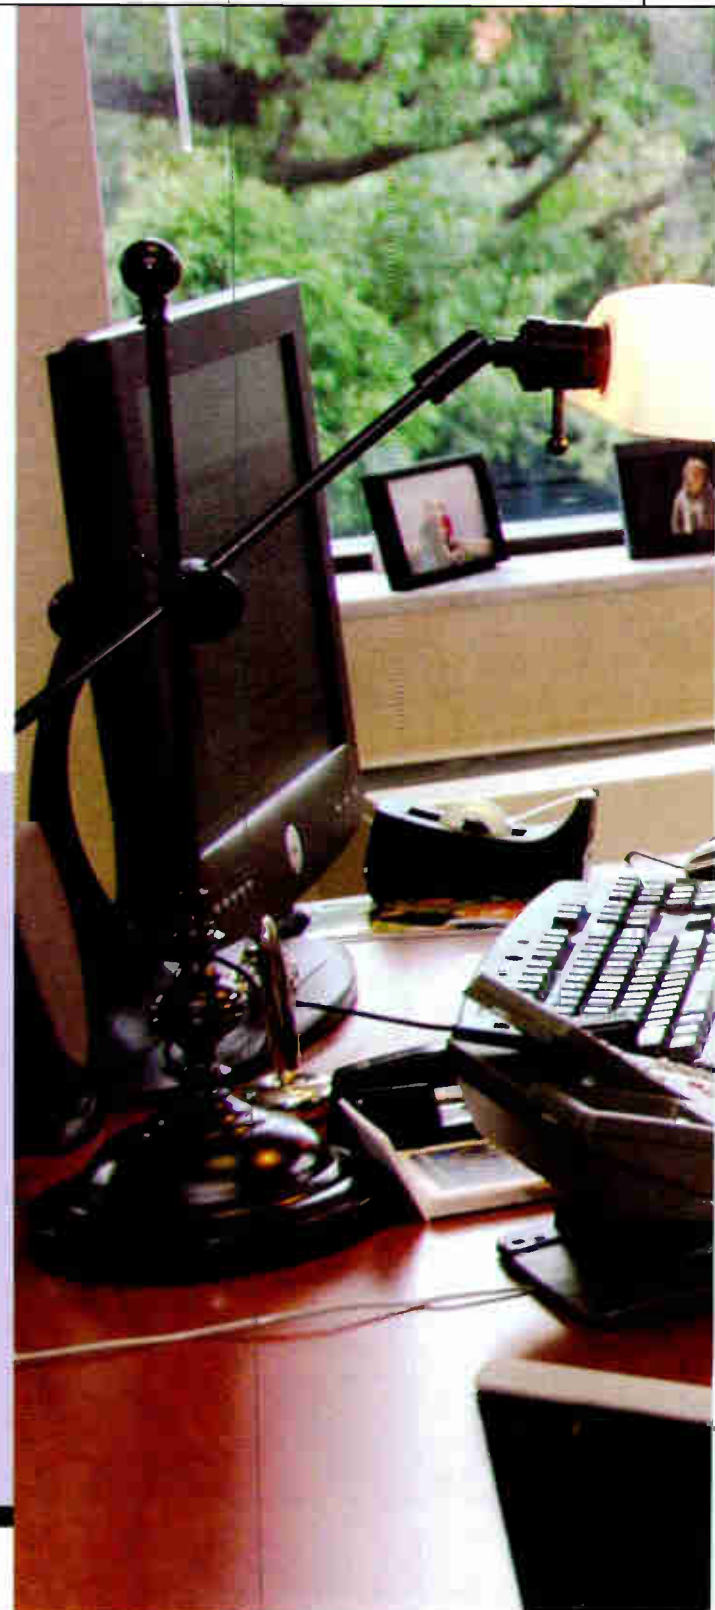

Two separate radio groups are doing something along those lines right now in Washington, D.C., with local tabloid The Examiner. It is not clear exactly what financial arrangements have been made by either the stations or the newspaper, because e-mail requests for that information were not returned by either the stations or The Examiner.

IDT Corp. news/talk WMET has regular page 2 exposure under a column authored by one of its own hosts, Steve Eldridge, who writes about traffic under the "Sprawl and Crawl" brand name and whose reports air three times daily on the AM station.

Aside from the WMET logo, and one for its news affiliation with Fox News Radio, insurance firm Geico also has a logo positioned underneath the editorial copy.

Further inside The Examiner, Bonneville all-news WTOP and government-talk WFED each have their own space to provide editorial copy and brand exposure. WTOP produces a "Commuter Alert" box, complete with station logo, that describes ongoing road construction projects around the metro.

WFED's Mike Causey has a half-page editorial column to discuss federal government employee issues. WMET's Federal News Radio logo has a prominent position on the page, too.

Without revealing his own marketing budget for his music stations, Oxley says a “good percentage” figure for a marketing budget might be around 10% of revenue.

Oxley says that WTOP and WFED have been “fast growing” in revenue, “so we were able to buck the trend there.”

WFED does not show in the Arbitron surveys, but the niche format tailored to the largest employer in the area is easy to understand as a magnet for advertisers trying to reach the federal government’s employees and decision-makers.

“We’ve done more revenue than we thought we would, so that’s a real positive,” he says. That means it is time to expand staffing on the programming side.

Another line item Oxley is considering for WFED is an upgrade of the technical plant. It is a Class D AM (1050 on the dial) with one kilowatt during the day and 44 watts at night. “There hasn’t been a lot done to the facility in a number of years. We might have a little bit of capital expense there to try to make some improvements,” he says. The balance here is to justify improving the signal quality to make the content sound better for more people—and advertisers.

On the topic of signal quality, most of Oxley’s investment in high-definition radio took place last year. That means those expenses have now moved from capital expense to depreciable asset. Oxley says he has upgraded the signals for WTOP-AM (1500), WTOP-FM (107.7), WWZZ (104.1) and WGMS (103.5). That leaves WFED and WWVZ (103.9), the simulcast sister to WWZZ, but he says, “We don’t have something on the board for any of the sticks for next year.”

The average cost to convert a station to HD is “a little north of $100,000 per stick to do it, $120,000 somewhere in that range.” Justifying the expense is fairly easy, Oxley says, particularly since it is a depreciable investment.

When looked at that way, if that $120,000 investment can be written off over 10 years, then station operators are buying a second station for about $12,000 per year. Oxley says: “If you can get a side channel up that makes you more than $12,000 per year, you’ve got yourself something that’s returning a pretty good buck.”

FACING THE MUSIC

Streaming costs, especially for his music-intensive stations, have become a “pretty significant” part of Oxley’s budget. Those costs are based on a per-listener/per-minute basis. “Of course, there are some good and bad things about that,” he says. “It’s costing us more money, but on the flip side we’re obviously getting a lot more people listening.”

Oxley does not think of the costs on a per-listener basis or even as a monthly expense. “I think about what it’s going to cost me per year,” he says. “It can go north of $50,000 pretty quickly.”

Also, the way he evaluates listenership is on monthly cume rather than how many people are listening simultaneously.

And this is where the news/talk format pays off: “I know that with WTOP we’re at a little bit of an advantage because we don’t have to have as good of an [Internet] signal in a way. You can have signals that sound better with music and one that is better for the spoken word. You don’t have to use as robust an Internet signal with the spoken word.”

VIVA LA PROFIT

One musical genre that demands the utmost in signal quality is classical. Bonneville recently debuted its opera/choral channel, Viva la Voce, as an Internet-only station.

Oxley describes the launch as a success, but says to maintain that requires investment and commitment. "That's another cost that's hitting us on WGMS. Viva la Voce has been much, much more successful than we would have thought, in terms of listenership, so that is also costing us some money."

Fortunately, the Internet station is also generating advertising revenue. "We're going to be in the black on that this year. We're going to make a couple of bucks on that this year, in year one, so we're very happy with that."

Running an Internet station with the musical requirements of a classical station comes with costs that are much higher than those for a top 40 outlet, Oxley says. "One of the things that cost us quite a bit of money this year, and that will go down over time, is we had to edit and feed all of the operas into the computer. Because this is a computerized radio station, you have to take the operas off of the CD, and it's much more difficult than most music because someone has to actually sit there and edit out all the silences between acts. It's just a lot of work, but we've put a ton into the system and we're pretty far ahead on that now."

Other expenses Oxley points to are talent costs and drawing "a little bit from a lot of people around the station." He says the startup costs are much lower to create a professional-grade Internet station than a traditional terrestrial station.

Though he did not provide numbers, Oxley says the annual cost to maintain Viva la Voce is "probably 5%" of the revenue of WGMS. "If you do it right, you're going to have some allocations from your programming folks. You've certainly got sales commissions. We've done a little bit of marketing, to get the word out in the opera world. And then you've got some technical costs, although reasonably minor."

Although WTOP and WWVZ/WWZZ have been leaders in podcasting so far, Oxley says that is not a significant factor, either in expenses or revenue potential. "That's not significant yet. We haven't had to worry about that too much. But, as it gains popularity it will be a concern, sure." ■■■

BUDGET BEATER IDEA: NEWS ON MUSIC RADIO

JOEL OXLEY IS VP/GM OF BONNEVILLE'S Washington, D.C., cluster of four stations. Billboard Radio Monitor asked him for cost-effective ways to add news to a music-intensive radio station.

"I think you've got to search out the different options. If you want something more local, I think Metro Traffic can do a decent job for you in a lot of markets." For national and international news, Oxley points to the major news networks as strong providers. The overall cost, Oxley says, is less than a staff position: "That's the beauty of it. It's trade. You're doing it for 10s. AP trades for 10s. All of them trade for 10s. You're not going to have to pay for any of it. Most of them won't even take cash. They want the inventory so they can build up a network and sell it in bulk."

PROGRAMMED FOR PROFIT: A PD'S BUDGET PROCESS

KENNY KING IS THE OM FOR ABC RADIO'S adult top 40 WRQX and smooth jazz WJZW Washington, D.C., and to hear him tell it, blending the art of programming with the science of budgets is not easy. "It's funny—you've got to be a programming guy with the music, you've got to be a marketing guy with your strategic planning, and you've got to be a psychologist to deal with every person that you end up managing."

Talent costs are "a big chunk" of King's budget, he says, especially because he works in a top 10 market. But the good side of talent fees is that "those are pretty fixed costs, once you have contracts signed." The only variable that might boost that line item is a talent bonus.

Other key parts of a PD's budget—items that can be set at various levels—are "outside services, whether you do perceptual projects or music testing, or you have a couple of different voice guys, or you want to do some jingles. It all adds up, so there are lots of lines in a budget, and you've got to watch every one of them to the tee."

Budgeting may not come easy to programmers, because, as King puts it, "you have to be your own expert, but it's like anything. The more you play a sport, the more you get out there and play, the better you get at doing it. And certainly a budget is just like that."

Of course, budgets are not a once-a-year process, especially given the corporate requirements of a company as big as ABC Radio. For King and the rest of the Disney budgeteers, the process goes through a series of monthly updates and "re-forecasts." On top of these revisions, King says, there are five-year plans and the annual fiscal budget. Disney's fiscal year begins Oct. 1, so annual budgets based on a calendar year must be reconciled with the fiscal year.

"So, there is quite a bit of planning that goes into that budget," King says. "Think about it: You're the guy that's programming the radio station, and whether you like it or not, you have to be somewhat of an expert in everything. That's a hard task. It really is."

'If you can get a side channel up that makes you more than $12,000 per year, you've got yourself something that's returning a pretty good buck.' —JOEL OXLEY

BEATING THE BANK WITH PRIORITY SPENDING

BY CHUCK TAYLOR

Advice to radio station marketing and promotion directors: Take that vacation to the mountains or the beach now, because by the end of August (if not already), most of you are going to be busy looking ahead, if not actually planning, for next year.

It is hard to believe that before the mercury cools that the industry should be thinking about station visibility and listener intrigue when the thermometer freezes. But our panel of well-traveled promotion honchos recommends that stations start mapping out 2006 calendars right about now.

Meticulous planning is the major component in making sure budgets match with client alliances on the national and local levels. Big-ticket items, annual themed events and community service-focused promotions all require equal forethought: Just ask your GM or group VP.

But you already knew that. Our mission is to spread those dollars across great-guns efforts as well as simpler, but still attention-grabbing initiatives. After all, those who enjoy filet mignon and pheasant still need to even out the ledger once in a while with meatloaf and macaroni.

"In order to allocate dollars wisely, a radio station needs to be putting its strategic plan and overall marketing objectives for 2006 in place now," says Linda Healey, marketing director of Clear Channel AC WALK Long Island, N.Y. "For us, driving TSL primarily through office listening, but also taking advantage of captive Long Islanders in their cars, is always the primary focus, with a secondary goal being to drive additional cume."

In any case, she says, "now is the time to be thinking about how best to meet those goals with the dollars allocated and additional creative, out-of-the-box thinking for 2006."

Clear Channel country WPOC Baltimore promotions director Annie Sandor adds, "You need to be looking ahead a minimum of six to 12 months. I just completed my 2006 budget last week. We already have budgets in place for next year, so we had to figure marketing and promotions—at least big-picture—at that time as well."

At Beasley rhythmic top 40 WRDW (Wired 96.5) and country WXTU Philadelphia, "we work at least one to two quarters ahead," marketing and promotions director Mark Vizza says. "We have quarterly meetings to determine sales and programming promotions, but by this point in the year, we've already had meetings to determine our fourth-quarter 2005 and first-quarter 2006 budget."

LOCAL, NATIONAL AFFILIATE

For Vizza's stations, priorities include cross-promotions at the local level with TV and print. Also, "the [County Music Assn. Awards] are coming to New York this November, and WXTU will be doing a lot with our local CBS affiliate: live shots and interviews with country artists using our air personality as their reporter," he says.

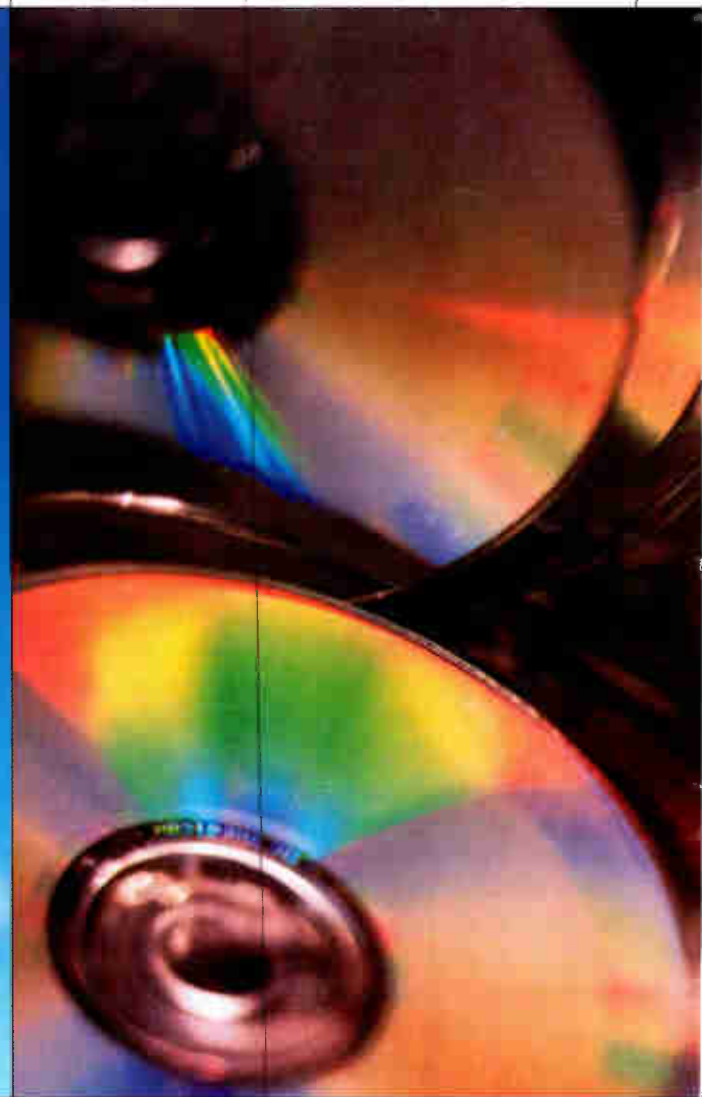

Meanwhile, WRDW will cross-promote with a local magazine showcasing a big yearly event in late September: "Being involved with such a trend-setting promotion is exactly what we look at with Wired," he says.

THRIFTY MIX

While all executives say that budgets have remained relatively robust for their efforts, they note that money must always be spent wisely.

"We are holding steady at WPOC," Sandor says, "but our most important tool remains our brain. You can make something out of nothing. That's often the challenge of our job."

Her station's upcoming promotions include trip, car and cash giveaways, which Sandor says succeed because of a focus on "local, local, local. There are always hometown businesses that are looking for some love on-air and can provide one-of-a-kind prizing.”

WALK is dealing with a sprawling suburban market on Long Island, with nearly 300 towns, villages and hamlets across an island 120 miles long.

“That compels us to do more with less,” Healey says. “By necessity, WALK’s street presence is as strong as a typical top 40 station. We go where the ducks fly. We hit all the major street fairs and festivals during the spring, summer and fall months. We’re at the major shopping malls on Long Island year-round. We’re doing van hits at the beaches in summer and at office complexes in winter.”

The Beasley Philly sisters, which also maintain comfortable corporate cash flow to keep the stations front of mind, depend on low-cost promotions to work just as effectively as big-ticket items.

Vizza says, “Beasley feels that promotions and marketing budgets are needed to bring the stations to their next level,” and there are certainly high-caliber marketing events on the roster. WXTU will host its annual Red, White and Blue BBQ with Alan Jackson in September with some 30,000 people, while Wired will offer a gaming competition on the USS New Jersey battleship in November for an audience of 5,000.

But there are also numerous lower-cost third-party tie-ins with retailers locked in place at least once per quarter.

One recent high-impact promotion that both stations hosted exchange for packaging that includes on-air, Web and other elements. Our spring 2005 promotion, Live Free, paid a lucky Long Islander’s mortgage for the rest of 2005. A local Long Island bank sponsored the promotion, driving NTR revenue for the station, and Home Depot provided gift cards as the qualifying prize for the monthlong contest in exchange for the promotional elements,” she explains.

ALL YEAR LONG

As with most stations, Vizza says that there is no longer a heightened season for promotions: “Our fall and winter promotions are extremely important, as are the spring and summer. WXTU and WRDW put the same emphasis on all books marketing- and promotions-wise.”

Sandor agrees: “The fall book is very important, and the station should be using every resource available. It is now absolutely a priority.”

WALK works to own the year-end holidays on Long Island, with such low-cost promotions as sponsored, on-air Christmas music from Thanksgiving through Christmas.

“That’s the major marketing and promotion focus for November and December, and once again, we look to station clients for opportunities to drive revenue and to secure a grand prize,” Healey says.

“We invite listeners to become active participants in the selec-people who participate in these events.”

A relevant instance of taking the pulse of the community was through a hurricane seminar that WALK sponsored, including a free “Hurricane Survival Guide.”

“This was a great example of a topical, low-cost event offset by sponsor revenue, targeted to the concerns of the listener,” Healey says. “We’ve been bombarded with reports that this will be a particularly challenging year for tropical storms and hurricanes, and we knew the time was right to get this timely information into the hands of our listeners.”

TECHNOLOGY ONBOARD

Technology is also proving to be a buzzword for station promotions, as group owners ramp up their efforts for high-definition radio.

“WXTU is already broadcasting in HD radio, and we’re working on our HD2 channel as well,” Vizza notes. “The second band on HD radio should be ready for launch in August. We are going to call it ‘HD2 Next Generation.’” Wired should be broadcasting in HD by 2006.

WPOC is also airing in HD, “so we’re way ahead of the curve,” Sandor adds. “We already have some plans in place to launch digital programming promotionally.”

Greater Media/Detroit marketing manager Heidi Raphael is also holding the reins of the technology bandwagon.

‘YOU NEED TO BE LOOKING AHEAD A MINIMUM OF SIX TO 12 MONTHS.’ —ANNIE SANDOR

was Sticker Stops, where listeners drove to an announced destination, had a station bumper sticker slapped onto their vehicles and received a prize slip. Winning contributions ranged from DVD players, Xbox games, Blockbuster game rentals and a car TV/DVD player to tires, DVDs, CDs, cell-phone accessories, concert tickets and clothing. The cost of this visibility is cheap, and its value is priceless.

Likewise, WALK stretches its budget via partnerships with local and national clients. Healey says, “For the past several years, our big summer promotion has been to give away a new car parked on a new paving-stone driveway—both prizes provided by station clients in exchange for promo mentions, Web elements, direct mail, etc.

“Our ‘vacation station’ marketing position is reinforced in much the same way, securing trips to exotic destinations in tion of WALK’s holiday music by logging onto our Web site and telling us their three favorite holiday hits. Everyone who enters has a shot at that grand prize,” which has included trips, holiday shopping sprees and jewelry.

FOR THE CAUSE

Charity also plays a significant role in stations’ promotional calling in their locales.

“We take our commitment to the Island and the communities we serve very seriously and make it a priority to become involved with and attend every major walk, run and fund-raising event taking place on Long Island,” Healey says. “This is a win-win for everyone—we’re bringing media attention to important causes while meshing ourselves in the fabric of Long Island life—and we’re getting the call letters in front of thousands of

“It involves exploiting new technologies to connect with listeners in new ways, like digital music stores, podcasts, HD radio and text messaging,” she says. “It’s about making radio fun. Passion is the key. Listeners will notice the difference.”

The marketing execs point out that no matter how much they may have to spend—or save—on behalf of station marketing and promotion, nothing beats creative strategy.

“It’s all about maximizing our opportunities,” Sandor says. “We need to be very smart with how we spend our money, because we have one shot at the target. It’s important that all gears are firing, and in the right direction.”

Healey adds, “Creative thinking. That’s how we do more for less—knowing what rocks the P1 listener’s world, partnering with station clients—to present the biggest and best promotion for the least amount of dollars.”

DOWNLOADS NEW CDs 'PROTECT' CONSUMERS FROM HEARING MUSIC

It finally happened. The recording industry has struck on exactly the bargain it wants to have with consumers. It works something like this: A consumer buys a CD from the local Best Buy, Wal-Mart or mom-and-pop record store. Who knows, maybe at the same store the consumer purchases an iPod, since there are now 12 million of them in circulation.

Anyway, the consumer gets home with her legitimately purchased CD, pops it into her computer to transfer the music to her iPod and finds out the rules on the shiny little discs she has been buying for years have changed dramatically.

Now, instead of performing the perfectly legal task of ripping her CD into MP3s or Apple Computer's proprietary compression technology, she is presented with an unrippable CD that contains exportable, digital-rights-management-wrapped Windows Media Audio files. How convenient. Unless of course you are one of the aforementioned 12 million consumers who purchased an iPod: You, my friend, are out of luck.

These WMA files only work on MP3 players that support WMA, just like the ones that only work with Napster files—the kind of players that if you ask the average person on the street to identify them by brand, the response is a blank stare. So, faced with another dramatic downturn in CD sales, the industry has responded by making the endangered core product less usable, less attractive and, ultimately, less valuable.

But they have succeeded in forging a relationship with their customers that is essentially based on fear and intimidation to drive them to buy CDs that can no longer be used with their iPods—which are all of a sudden out of favor again with the music business.

Remember the salad days of the music industry's romance with Apple CEO Steve Jobs and the iTunes Music Store, when he was its savior for creating a download store that people actually used and that actually worked? Seems so long ago...

Now the labels are grouching among themselves that Jobs has too much power and controls too much of the market. They also claim it is Jobs who stands in the way of format compatibility, because he refuses to freely share his proprietary DRM technology with anybody who fires up a Web site that sells music licensed from the majors.

But wait... format incompatibility was actually created by the music industry. And the proof is that all MP3 players play the consumer standard format, MP3. It's so simple it seems like a trick. But it's not.

If the major labels would allow Jobs—or for that matter, any of the dwarves of the digital music world, like Napster or Rhapsody—to sell MP3s, there would never be any compatibility issues. But that would be giving consumers what they want. Or at the very least, swimming with the established flow of the market. The major labels refuse to do this, period.

Of course, the majors would never have chosen MP3s as the consumer standard format to ultimately replace the CD, because just like CDs in their heyday, MP3s don't have locks. But if we as an industry wanted to dictate the next digital consumer standard, then we shouldn't have sat out the digital revolution until it was far too late.

Blaming Jobs isn't getting the music industry anywhere, so now it has decided to use the sued, abused and pissed-off consumer as the lever to get a unified DRM standard. That way, consumers who don't want DRM to begin with can suffer as unwilling participants in a struggle between two business sectors. Sounds like more great things to come for music fans. And people wonder why file-sharing rates keep going up.

You see, many of the new CDs from Sony BMG and EMI are "protected": These CDs "protect" the consumer from enjoying the music in the manner they have come to expect, and they protect the labels from catching a momentary glimpse of reality. Amazon.com is full of consumer reviews of these discs, bands' message boards are overflowing with feedback from their fans—and it's all bad and all hate, all the time.

In the course of my job, I inserted a copy-protected disc into my Sony laptop, and not only was I unable to extract any files, the CD wouldn't play. To add to my enjoyment, the CD wouldn't eject without an application of force and then rendered my CD-RW drive unrecognizable to my operating system. But since I did actually have to hear the music to do my job, I decided to download it. Using BitTorrent, I pulled down the entire album in less than 15 minutes, encoded in MP3 for use on my iPod.

Guess that DRM isn't stopping anybody from making their own MP3s. In fact, Sony will e-mail you a "work around," or "hack," for the copy protection at your request; it involves burning a disc from the provided DRM-protected WMA files and then ripping this CD copy into MP3s. So, the strategy is to annoy the paying customer but add a couple of tiny steps (known as speed bumps) to the process of the hardened pirate. Genius. Still, the experience left me wondering how many times a consumer will endure the same experience and want to continue the behavior of buying music. Reports are coming in that disgruntled customers are unable to return copy-protected discs to the store where they were purchased because of a policy against accepting returns on opened goods. If we as an industry are going to try to turn around another down sales year and get the consumer back to the party, it's time to stop soiling the punch bowl.

COUNTRY

CHART COMMENTARY BY JOE FLEISCHER

WEEK ENDING JULY 31, 2005

IF YOU'VE BEEN FOLLOWING THE BIGCHAMPAGNE CHARTS in Billboard Radio Monitor the last couple of weeks, you've seen the enormous size and power of the R&B/hip-hop format—with its chart-topping downloads reaching the multimillions—while the modern rock format boasts a much smaller share of the download audience. If you recall from last week, chart-topper Weezer weighed in with a still-massive 2 million-plus downloads, which represented less than half the audience of the mighty Mariah Carey on the R&B/hip-hop chart. This week, we take a peek at the top of the country chart. Though the

No. 1 song, Keith Urban's "Making Memories of Us," still boasts more than 1 million downloads, no other song in the top 10 exceeds 800,000—not even Faith Hill's smash "Mississippi Girl" or the most-spun single, Toby Keith's "As Good As I Once Was." If the chart included recurrences, they would comprise nine of the top 10, and five of those songs would top the 1 million mark. Compare that with R&B/hip-hop, where recurrences would take only three spots in the top 10. Different formats, different consumer behavior. It's a great reminder that listeners aren't formats—just music fans.

LOW PAY, BAD HOURS, NO JOB SECURITY, ...WHO WOULDN'T WANT A JOB IN RADIO!

LOOKING FOR WAYS TO SWEETEN THE POT BY KEN TUCKER

There is a lot to take into account when thinking about talent budgets for 2006. Is live and local the best option? If so, where will stations find the talent? What about voice-tracking? Should someone in your cluster voice-track overnights? What about someone outside the cluster, but within the company? How about covering the daypart with syndication?

All of these options come with different costs and, perhaps, different results.

Air talent costs as a percentage of a station's overall budget can vary greatly, according to programmers contacted by Billboard Radio Monitor. Never mind that some programmers have marketing and promotions as a line item while others do not. If you have a locally hosted news, talk and sports station like Infinity WCCO Minneapolis, for example, your costs will likely be higher than if you syndicate the bulk of your day. But if you syndicate, you will have fewer local advertising slots to sell.

There is a lot to consider.

LIVE AND LOCAL

The major issue with live and local talent, most experts agree, is that after years of consolidation, voice-tracking and syndicated overnight and weekend shows, the talent pool is drained.

The second issue is compensation. Radio pay being what it is, many stations are competing with restaurants and other local businesses for talent. While that is not a completely new issue, there are those who feel radio has lost the sex appeal that used to make up for lower wages.

Both those challenges were discussed during more than one panel at the recent Conclave Learning Conference. "The business is not [perceived as being] sexy anymore," NextMedia VP of programming Steve Davis said in one session. "We do a lousy job at PR, telling the public about radio. We've got to find some way to make it sexy again."

Davis also said that radio has fallen down when it comes to grooming new stars. "Radio is in the best shape it ever has been financially, but we're not developing new talent," he said.

New Northwest Broadcasting/Billings, Mont., OM Tom Oakes agreed, saying that while stations are spending money on facilities, "we also need to invest in the human plant that helps the business grow."

"We need to teach people," Oakes continued. "We can't just throw them on the air and expect them to succeed."

Meanwhile, Hubbard Radio president Ginny Morris was applauded during a session when she told attendees that the company's adult top 40 KSTP Minneapolis has replaced its voice-tracked overnight show with live talent.

When it comes to hiring and recruiting talent, Davis said broadcasters need to think outside of the box. "If you're creative and smart, there is always a way," he said. Among his suggestions: If you cannot pay what a talent is asking, particularly in smaller markets, offer incentives like housing and fuel by utilizing trade agreements with advertisers.

A few weeks after the Conclave, Davis says, "If I am a small-market manager and want to entice someone to join my station or keep a valuable employee, I will find a way."

Davis suggests asking a current or potential employee the question, "Aside from salary, what else would make this position attractive to you?"

"Let the talent express what they would like," Davis explains. "It may be more 'doable' and cost less than you think."

"In the past, there were a number of things that I have seen utilized, including car leases for morning talent, appliances as a bonus, carpet for a family room, etc.," Davis says, noting that it really depends on what the company philosophy is.

There are other options for the clever programmer. Consultant Keith Hill says that when he worked with Opus Broadcasting country KLAA (LA 103.5) Alexandria, La., he had to find a morning-show sidekick who would work for $12,000 per year.

After a brainstorming session with the station's PD, the Redneck Woman contest (named for country singer Gretchen Wilson's breakthrough hit) was born. After narrowing the field through a variety of "redneck" contests including wrestling and a bathing-suit competition, the finalists underwent on-air auditions. Listeners voted for their favorites via the station's Web site.

The winner, a 40-year-old divorced mother of two, became a "great addition to the morning team," according to Hill. Meanwhile, the $12,000 prize supplemented what the woman earned at her other job.

Oakes has kicked off a similar contest to find a morning co-host for country KGHL (the Wolf) Billings. The winner of that contest, called the Wolf Prentice, will earn $24,000 per year.

The concept can also work in talk formats and even help sell advertising. Citadel sports talk WGFY (104.5 the Zone) Nashville recently held a contest to find a weekend host. The station's sales department sold a package to Budweiser and then tied in with various local clubs, where weekly qualifying events took place.

Dubbed the Bud Zone, the contest was perfect for sports fans who wanted to "get on the air to prove what they've got," OM Dave Kelly says. The winner, picked after weeks of on-air auditions, got to host a weekend show for six months.

While the purpose of the contest was to improve the station's cume, the winner, Kelly says, might be considered if a full-time gig becomes available.

These are just a few examples. A number of stations have tried the "win your way onto our air staff" approach.

Also in the creative thinking department, Asterisk Communications country WTRS (Thunder Country 102.3/104.9) Ocala, Fla., was able to hire country artist and local boy Chad Brock for its morning show earlier this year (Billboard Radio Monitor, July 1) by targeting new, nontraditional advertisers to underwrite his salary.

Two local businesses signed on for six-month deals, and, at press time, the station expected to sell similar packages for another six months as well. While the deals did not include any endorsements by Brock, PD Shane Finch says they did contain a spot schedule and "creatively spiced" liner mentions during the show.

VOICE-TRACKING: GOOD OR BAD?

Voice-tracking has been widely assailed as one of the reasons it is tough to find and develop talent. But after years of tweaking, it can actually be a plus for stations that have the opportunity and means to use it properly.

Forget the PD who uses it occasionally or regularly to cover all or some of his midday shift. Or another scenario, where a daypart like overnights is voice-tracked by a member of the station's production staff or maybe by another jock in the cluster. In both cases, the financial costs are important but less impactful.

Having someone voice-track nights, middays or even afternoons from outside your market is a viable option for a number of stations. While still one of the less expensive alternatives, voice-tracking moves a station even farther away from being live and local, which is something to be considered.

A number of programmers contacted by Billboard Radio Monitor say that while out-of-market voice-tracking may have begun as a way to save money, for the most part, it is now used to import better talent.

More than one programmer said that if they were given a lump sum of money by their company—say, $40,000—and were told they could use it however they needed to, they might not bring a live jock to a voice-tracked daypart. Instead, they might use it to upgrade another position or simply spread the money among the other talent.

Still, for a station whose company offers voice-tracking as an option, for anywhere between $5,000 and $10,000 per year, it can utilize a talent pool that might be deeper than what is available locally—and for less money.

COST OF DOING BUSINESS

Doing a syndication deal with one of the big networks is a lot like buying a new car: What you end up paying may not be what the next station pays. The deals will probably be similar, but not the same, depending on the market and your station and spot rate.

On the surface, syndication can be attractive because it does not generally include a salary or cash payout, but it does take valuable spots away from station inventory. That is significant, because in an era when broadcasters are looking for ways to reduce the size of their stopsets—such as Clear Channel's Less Is More initiative—finding a place for a syndicator's spot needs can be difficult.

The cost to syndicate one or more dayparts can vary greatly, depending upon who you want to carry and the terms of the deal. It depends on the ratings and advertising rates you bring to the table and whether the syndicator will do a straight barter for spots or wants cash as well.

A barter deal, which is the form most deals take, may include only spots carried just during the syndicated daypart or additional spots throughout the day.

A show like Premiere Radio Networks' "After Midnight With Blair Garner," an all-night country show, is available as a barter deal. Because of local rates, the amount of money actually paid for the show depends on the station.

One medium-market station says carrying "After Midnight" costs the station more than $250,000 in inventory.

While some things are negotiable, like whether all spots have to be run within the daypart, the number of spots is generally not up for discussion. The reason? The syndicator's sales staff is selling frequency and penetration to national advertisers who want to know who they are reaching.

While most deals are barter-based, some of the bigger shows like Premiere's "Rush Limbaugh Show" and "John Boy & Billy's Big Show" require a cash licensing fee in addition to inventory. The fee alone can run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In the end, the question that stations have to ask is whether that same money, spent locally, will deliver the same results. ●●●

PAYOLA RULING FORCES RADIO TO RE-EXAMINE

BUDGET BEATER
SPECIAL ISSUE

BY BRAM TEITELMAN

STEPHEN CHERNIN
/ GETTY IMAGES

IT MIGHT BE AN OVERSTATEMENT to say the $10 million settlement between Sony BMG and New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer has caused shock waves to reverberate throughout the industry, but the settlement certainly has made radio and record labels re-examine how they do business.

With the three other major-label groups in Spitzer's sights, and the Federal Communications Commission paying close attention, radio executives are taking a closer look at anything involving labels as they prepare to tackle 2006 budgets.

"We're still coming to terms," says one programmer, who, like most people Billboard Radio Monitor contacted about this topic, preferred not to be named. "I think we're going to figure it out come September when we start working on next year's budget. We did the budget last year before all of this came down, and now we're just trying to get through the year as best we can. A lot of things will be affected."

"From day one, my PDs and MDs have known about the rules of the road," one GM says. "Also, they were required to sign a company statement about . . . payola, and they knew the ramifications for violating [it]. No personal gain in any way in exchange for airplay. Period."

There are some gray areas in the wake of Spitzer's probe. Radio stations have long relied on labels for promotional support, be it CDs to give away on the air or trips for contest winners. And while money exchanging hands for airplay is illegal, independent promoters have acted as middlemen for years. Some radio groups phased out indie promoters several years ago when they came under scrutiny, but other groups and independent stations still use them.

"We did work with an independent promoter for many years and had a great relationship with their office," the same GM says. "I feel very strongly that this issue is a pretty simple one and relates back to what most business practices are: full communication, clear expectations and 'do the right thing.'"

Another PD still uses an independent but is looking at any potential legal issues. "We made sure it's as clean as it could possibly be," he says. "If you think about it in the pure sense of the word, indies are illegal. Record companies are paying some guy to get you to add a record . . . They're paying for information about your playlist so they can call record companies and be knowledgeable. It's a gray area, but it has always been gray." The PD adds that station lawyers have determined the PD's practices with the indie promoter are legal.

At least one programmer welcomes Spitzer's involvement. He says he had already changed how things were done at his station before the attorney general began his investigation. "We're all publicly held companies, and certainly, even before all the scrutiny got to where it is today, I think the line had been blurred between what's ethical and what's not ethical," he says. "We passed way over that line, and now it's snapping us back into the reality of doing business properly."

Many say they have nothing to fear from an investigation. "I read the story in amusement," says Michael Picozzi, OM/PD at Marlin Broadcasting active rock WCCC Hartford, Conn., one of the few programmers to speak on the record. "We're clean and always have been. Nobody offers me anything—not that I would take it if they did. Being independent, we run it differently here. I don't ask for a lot, and I don't give a lot. When a trip's offered for listeners, we'll consider it. Everything is for listeners. We don't go anywhere; we don't do anything. If I can get a trip for listeners, and there's not too much attached to it, then we would like to do it. But we like to arrange our own things and not tie people in."

Picozzi is not the only one doing promotions independent of label involvement. "I can't remember the last time I took anything like a flyaway trip," Clear Channel active rock KBPI Denver PD Willie B. says. "We've never been a big 'flyaway trip from a record company' kind of station."

"We'll find money to do trips and such on our own," the anonymous GM echoes. "And for the idiots that took free laptops to add music, I'm glad they get to keep them, and they'll now have plenty of time to work on their résumés on them."

Some stations have avoided label involvement with their budgets and events. "When I go in to do budgets at my station, the question I ask the most is, 'What f'n' budget?'" Willie B. says. "The only budget I have comes from the NTR events that I create and put toward my bottom line. And they're usually events that don't involve labels. Whether it's golf tournaments or car shows or poker runs, labels usually aren't involved. I don't do anything with the labels anymore other than play their stupid songs."

The GM says the payola probe has not hurt his organization from a financial perspective, either. "We never counted on the money in the first place," he says. "I know my guys would never take personal gain from an add and would only add music that they knew could help the radio station be a better-sounding entity. Adding a crappy song to get a free laptop or something akin [to that] is long-term radio suicide and embarrassing to our industry."

Another programmer says that while flying PDs to concerts or showcases has been a common label practice, he has not accepted a trip from a label "in a few years, nor would I," because of the current climate. "I don't know how different that is from accepting a laptop computer from a label," he says. "Until somebody can define it, I'm not going to go near anything like that. If a flyway is for a listener, as long as there's full disclosure, I think that's still legal. Maybe I'll be proven wrong. The rules are changing on a daily basis. We've only heard from the Sony investigation, and we've got three more to hear about. Whatever I say today might be obsolete in two weeks. At this point, I haven't been told we can't do promotions for bands that we're supporting and do flyaways, but it may come to the point where we can't accept concert tickets to go see a band in our own town."

Caution is key going forward. "Everything that we do now—whether it's CDs or tickets to a show we're giving away—everything has to be signed off on, duly noted, logged and everything," Willie B. says. "It has been that way for a couple of months. Everyone knew this was coming down, so we've been covering our butts."

"Just look at the letters we're having to sign now just to get a box of CDs to give away," says one programmer who wishes to remain anonymous. "I think some record companies are going to require that these are for on-air giveaways only. We won't be able to give them away on-site as promotions. The rules are going to change. We've always used a lot of these CDs to give away at promotions, and now we might not be able to do that."

One anonymous top-40 programmer thinks the Spitzer settlement is a nonstory. "I hate giving the guy press," he says. "This gives him credibility. I don't think we should be paying attention to him. He's picking headline-grabbing cases in an effort to get attention. He's trying to look like he has cleaned up big companies supposedly doing things they shouldn't. This is a man running for office." ■■■

THIS WEEK IN DATA. For complete charts, there's always more at www.BillboardRadioMonitor.com

LEGEND TO CHARTS

Charts are ranked by detections, except for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country charts which are based on audience impressions, interpreted by cross-referencing exact dates of airplay with Arbitron's listener data.

● Songs showing an increase in detections

Audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country rose the previous week, regardless of chart movement. A song will also receive a bullet if its percentage rise in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) does not exceed the percentage of monitored stations (downline for the format). Exempting the Country chart, a song that has been on the chart for more than 20 weeks will generally not receive a bullet, even if it registers an increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country). Country titles which decline in audience but increase in detections will also receive a bullet if the total audience erosion for the week does not exceed 7%.

AUDIENCE TOTALS are calculated as shown, or part, using station Arbitron Inc. copy rightsed Persons 12+ audience estimates, under license.

AIRPOWER: awarded to songs appearing in the top 10 on both the Airplay and Audience charts for the first time with increases in both detections and audience. Airpower awards do not appear on the Latin and Christian gospel charts.

GREATEST GAINER: awarded to the song with the largest increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country).

MOST AIRPLAY ADDS: awarded to the song registering its first detection on the most stations for the first time this week.

TIES: A song with a gain in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) over the previous week is placed first if tied with a song with a decline over the same period. When tied songs are each gaining detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) of each losing detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country), the song being played on more stations is placed first.

RECURRENT RULE:

Songs below the top 20 (top 15 for Adult Top 40, AC, Modern AC, Adult R&B, Heritage, M&D, Dance, Christian and Gospel) become ineligible and are removed from the chart after 20 weeks. Outstanding country titles move to recurrent after 20 weeks if they rank below No. 15 in either audience or detections.

● Nielsen BDS certification for airplay of 100,000 detections on all monitored stations, including satellite and national networks, across the U.S. and Canada. Numerical following symbol indicates multi-platinum level of 100,000 detections.

Indicates the format Nielsen BDS certifies in research data provided by Protonquest.

Playlists are listed in order of TBA weekly count, beginning with the highest counting station. Counts are updated twice yearly following the release of the spring and fall Arbitron surveys.

A+ AIRPLAY ADDS: denotes songs with 4 or more detections at stations for the first time this week.

IMPACT! Songs at Airpower level and those with a gain in detections or with a percentage loss in detections equal to or better than the monitored downline in the format.

★ INITIAL IMPACT: indicates a song's first appearance on the Impact page.

THE SPIN

ADAMS 'BLESSED' WITH A GOSPEL NO. 1

Gospel artist Yolanda Adams demonstrates that a marathon can be every bit as effective as a sprint when it comes to No. 1 singles as "Be Blessed" (Atlantic) steps 2-1 on the Gospel chart. With 2.9 million audience impressions during the tracking week, Adams' single marks the longest trek to the summit in the chart's short history. Now in its 20th chart week, "Blessed" is only three weeks younger than the chart itself, which launched in March.

Adams is also represented on the Adult R&B chart with "Someone Watching Over You," which climbs 29-24.

April 1999. The band's two most familiar songs, "December" and "Shine," pre-date the chart's formation in March 1996.

On the Adult Contemporary chart, Rob Thomas takes over the No. 1 spot from Michael Bublé with "Lonely No More" (Atlantic). This marks the first time since Bryan Adams' "Have You Ever Really Loved a Woman" replaced Elton John's "Believe" in 1995 that there have been back-to-back No. 1s by male artists on the chart.

WONDER DOESN'T CEASE; BENÉT AND BOW WOW MAKE STRONG BOUNCES

Stevie Wonder bolts into the top 10 (13-10) at Adult R&B with "From the Bottom of My Heart" (UMRG). The track is Wonder's second top 10 this year, following the No. 3 peak of "So What the Fuss." Prior to 2005, Wonder's only appearance in this portion of the list was his 1995 No. 1 smash "For Your Love."

Elsewhere at Adult R&B, Eric Benét's "I Wanna Be Loved" rises 16 places to No. 20. It is the largest jump into the top 10 on the chart since Anita Baker's "You're My Everything" leaped 25-9 in July 2004.

Also making a significant jump not seen since that same month is Bow Wow's "Like You" (SUM), which soars 22-9 on R&B/Hip-Hop. The last leap that large was Terror Squad's "Lean Back," which moved up 13 places to No. 10.

With his "Let Me Hold You" (SUM) standing tall at No. 1 on the R&B/Hip-Hop, Rhythmic Top 40 and Rap charts, Bow Wow's "Like You" sports Greatest Gainer status for the third consecutive week at Rap. Including his five-week run as the top gainer with "I Hold You," Bow Wow has now held that honor for eight consecutive weeks. Only 50 Cent, with 20, has been Greatest Gainer for more weeks in a row on the Rap list.

Nickelback And Seether Snapshot

Nickelback's "Photograph" (Roadrunner/IDJMG) debuts at No. 17 at Heritage Rock and at No. 31 at Active Rock grabbing Greatest Gainer and Most Airplay Adds honors in the process. The track also claims the Most Airplay Adds trophy at Modern Rock.

Seether's "Remedy" (Wind-up) returns to the No. 1 spot at Active Rock following a three-week reign for Foo Fighters' "Best of You" (RMG). "Remedy," in its third week atop the chart, is the first song to return to the pole position since Papa Roach's "Getting Away With Murder" did so in the Oct. 15, 2004, issue.

Wilson Pours It On

Gretchen Wilson's new anthem of reckless partying, "All Jacked Up" (Epic), surges 21-15 on the Country chart in its second week, making her only the second female in the 15-year Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems era to crack that part of the chart in less than three weeks. Shania Twain has previously done so twice. She reached No. 15 in two weeks with "Love Gets Me Every Time" (1997) and "I'm Gonna Getcha Good!" (2002).

A little farther down the chart, Rascal Flatts' "Skin (Sarabeth)" (Lyric Street) re-enters at No. 42 after spending 20 weeks on the chart based on unsolicited album play earlier this year. The track became the highest-charted album cut in the Nielsen BDS era when it peaked at No. 37 in the April 22 issue, but was topped by George Strait's "Texas" (MCA Nashville), which peaked at No. 35 two weeks ago.

ANOTHER 'GOOD' START FOR CROW

Sheryl Crow returns to the Adult Top 40 chart at No. 30 with "Good Is Good" (Interscope) and scores Most Airplay Adds and Greatest Gainer honors. The track is Crow's 16th appearance at the format, which extends her lead as the artist with the most charted singles to date.

Farther up the chart Collective Soul earn its first top 10 as "Better Day" (EL) jumps 12-9. The group's previous peak was with "Run" in Songs are blind tested online by PromoSquad using multiple listens and a nationwide sample of carefully profiled music consumers. Songs are rated on a 1-5 scale; final results are based on weighted positives. Songs with a score of 65 or more are judged to have Hit Potential, although that benchmark number can fluctuate per format based on the strength of available music. For a complete and updated list of current songs with Hit Potential, commentary, polls and more, please visit www.hitpredictor.com. © 2005. charts, springs "I'm Sprung" on two formats this week: rhythmic top 40 and R&B/hip-hop.

Also at R&B/hip-hop are two more new faces. Trina adds "Don't Trip" to the chart, and Sharissa scores with "In Love With a Thug." The two songs earn nearly identical scores of 65.6 and 65.4, respectively.

On the adult contemporary chart, Australian pop songstress Delta Goodrem earns a spot with "Lost Without You." The artist is yet another HitPredictor first timer. Goodrem is a big star in her homeland, and now with "Lost Without You" she looks ready to storm the U.S. charts.
