8 For Those About To Rock... We Salute WSOU

After 15 years of programming the hardest rock on northern New Jersey's FM dial, WSOU has been ordered to change its format. Seton Hall University's top brass wants to shelve the station's heavy metal programming, against the wishes of student managers and the current listening audience. We celebrate the history and evolution of Loud Rock at WSOU, and took time to chat with alumni who've moved into power positions in the industry, along with the views of current staff, industry associates, and grateful artists that the station has helped to break.

TIMBALAND AND MAGOO Indecent Proposal (Blackground)

If indeed Indecent Proposal is Timbaland's final album (he's said he wants to spend more time developing other artists), it's one hell of a swan song - no matter how much back-pedaling he does (he's apparently not pleased with the end result). The über-producer has upped the ante once again by pushing himself to find new sounds, new beats and fresh rhythms; the Far East-tinged "All Y'All" boasts a thundering bass line that's immediately recognizable when booming out of a set of speakers from 15 blocks away, while "People Like Myself" gets its inspiration from Native American rhythms. Guest MCs, many of whom often outshine Magoo, include Jay-Z, Petey Pablo, Ludacris, Sin (who sounds eerily like Biggie on "It's Your Night") and Mad Skillz. There's something for everyone on this album, from club joints ("Drop"), smoked-out, mellow grooves ("All Y'All"), more thoughtful tracks ("Indian Carpet") and darker, DMX-like anthems ("Serious," "Roll Out"). Each track is infused with that little extra something that makes Timbaland's work sound all the more innovative and multi-dimensional — "Love Me," for instance, would be just another sex jam if it wasn't fuzzed-out halfway through, and check out the sick wah-wah on "Baby Bubby" shines. Tim, don't leave us now! — Lisa Hageman

SLOAN Pretty Together (Murderecords)

You've gotta admire Sloan's dedication to its vision. The Halifax-bred, Torontoresiding quartet has stuck to its original plan, unusual as it is, to allow each member to contribute songs. The result thus far? Five albums that've mixed giddy power-pop, spaced-out faux-metal epics and punchy arena rock, with only occasional nods to stylistic cohesiveness (such as 1997's handclap-ridden batch of singalongs known as One Chord To Another). Album number six, Pretty Together, splays out wider despite increased collaboration among the songwriters. The range runs from propulsive rave-ups like "If It Feels Good Do It" and "Never Seeing The Ground For The Sky" to a ballad, "The Life Of A Working Girl," with its artfully finger-picked guitar. For every swaggering rocker, there's a subdued and thoughtful counterstroke; "In the Movies" rides a wave of Angus Young-like riffs and blunt rhythmic punctuations, followed by "The Other Man," a melodic pop tune with a racy storyline about adultery. "Pick It Up And Dial It" sounds like a vintage Kiss romp, and leads into a mid-tempo, sophisticated pop song aglow in harmonies, "The Great Wall." As disparate as these sounds are, Pretty Together starts to make sense after a listen or two, adding intriguing narrative themes and broader stylistic touches to the band's already diverse arsenal. — Richard A. #### DAVID DONDERO Shooting At The Sun With A Water Gun... (Future Farmer)

An itinerant singer-songwriter whose claim to obscurity was playing in a band called Sunbrain in the early 1990s, David Dondero should make quite a splash with this, his most high-profile release. Shooting At The Sun With A Water Gun... is an eloquent, endearing and memorable record. A fuzz guitar riff, shadowed with acoustic picking, sets the mood. Then Dondero jumps in, singing as if he's just encountered the deepest anguish: "If you break my heart, you pay for it/ If you break my heart, you bought it" (from "If You Break My Heart"). That's not even as personal as he gets. On "Analysis of a 1970's Divorce," he plucks the low strings of his acoustic guitar while describing the dissolution of his parents' marriage. Other tracks cast an eye on the weirdo characters he's encountered; "The Real Tina Turner," strummed out at breakneck speed, recounts overheard conversations in a bar, while the jazzy diversion "Pied Piper Of The Flying Rats" zooms in on an eccentric San Francisco homeless man. Dondero adds a traditional ("This World Is Not My Home") and a song of his own ("The Lonesomeness That Kills") that illuminate the theme of going through life alone. With the release of Shooting At The Sun, he won't be lonesome much longer. — Tony Labriola

ROBBIE FULKS 13 Hillbilly Giants (Bloodshot) Couples In Trouble (Boondoggle)

Equal parts self-deprecating standup comedian and wise-ass country charmer, Robbie Fulks has built a thrilling discography out of sniping at Nashville with the precision of a 12-year-old hurtling a baseball bat at a mailbox. A lanky performer with a friendly honky-tonk drawl that often veers into a shredding punk sneer, Fulks seems to have reached a midlife crossroads on his two new releases. When digested in one sitting, 13 Hillbilly Giants, a cover of seminal country tunes with a family twist, and the self-released Couples In Trouble, a concept album about relationships and obsession, seem almost inseparable despite their disparate styles. Fulks is his usual giddy-up-and-go self on Hillbilly, a successful collection of oldies that, despite an occasionally goofy reading, dwells on dark themes: "Cocktails" is narrated by a boozehound who lost his family to the bottle, while "Family Man" and "Act Like A Married Man" peruse the possibilities of an altruistic life. But while Couples In Trouble - Fulks' first effort for his own Boondoggle label — is a starkly beautiful departure, his melancholic pieces ("Anything For Love," "My Tormentor") still hone in on dreams of a life more ordinary. By dropping his comic armor, Fulks has taken a bold and rewarding step that unveils the true depth of his character. - Kristy Martin

SLOAN SNEAKS OVER BORDER

Edited by Richard A. Martin • rmartin@cmj.com

Canadian power-pop mainstay Sloan released its sixth studio album in October, though few in the U.S. were aware of it. The new set, Pretty Together, is already a hit north of the border, but it's getting a limited release in the states. The bandowned label, Murderecords, has arranged for a run of about 10,000 copies for distribution around the U.S. (via Proper Distribution). After that run sells out, the record will be out of print in the U.S.

Sloan has a long history of trouble getting its music heard outside of Canada. The quartet's first three discs were released on DGC. Citing a lack of promotion from the grungemad DGC, Sloan then signed to an upstart American label, the Enclave, that folded after releasing the acclaimed 1998 album One Chord To Another. Between The Bridges, released a year later, also received limited exposure in the U.S., though the band did tour in support of it. The release of Pretty Together coincides with a three-date tour of the U.S., which wound down with a Nov. 19 show at Bowery Ballroom in New York City and a Nov. 20 show at the Middle East in Boston. The album takes its name from an offhand Sterling Morrison comment -"It's pretty together" — heard in the Velvet Underground's shagadelic "Temptation Inside Your Heart."

LOS ANGELES: SUD-DENLY COOL AGAIN

It appears that the oft-maligned city of Los Angeles is cool again, based on the scheduling of several key music events. The presentation of the Shortlist Concert and Award Ceremony took place Nov. 19 at the Knitting Factory in L.A. Five of the 10 finalists slated to perform: Bilal, Nikka Costa, the Dandy Warhols, Talib Kweli and Sigur Rós. Other nominees included Air, Jay Dee, PJ Harvey, Gorillaz and Ryan Adams. The list, a sort of American variation on the Mercury Prize, is designed to call attention to an album based on artistic merit rather than commercial success, and was chosen by a group of 15 artists and industry representatives, including Beck, Macy Gray, Dave Grohl, Mos Def, Trent Reznor and Lucinda Williams. The judges then convene for dinner - mmmm, dinner and emerge with their choice before the show. The award, officially dubbed the Virgin Megastore Shortlist Prize For Artistic Achievement In Music, will earn the winner (not yet announced at press time) $10,000 in cash. And what better place to spend that cash than L.A.? We love it!

Another big show to hit the City of Angels will be the rescheduled All Tomorrow's Parties festival, which spans the weekend of March 15-17, 2002 on the campus of UCLA. The lineup features an impressive array of indie-rock stars (Stephen Malkmus, Cat Power, Sleater-Kinney, Wilco, Califone), noise-rock pioneers (Tom Verlaine, The Boredoms, Sonic Youth, Dead C, Unwound), freaky envelopepushers (Aphex Twin, Mad Lib, Peaches) and, um, Eddie Vedder. Sonic Youth curated the event, which was originally scheduled for October 2001. For tickets and a full schedule of artists, check out www.waya-head.com/atp.

INDIE WONDER TWIN POWERS, ACTIVATE

Kill Rock Stars has announced that beginning Jan. 1, 2002, it will be distributed through Touch And Go. The Olympia, Washington label's records were distributed through Mordam for the past eight years. A press release suggests that the parting was amicable. "They have been wonderful to work with and they are wonderful people to hang out with," KRS publicist Maggie Vail said of Mordam. The Touch And Go arrangement extends to KRS affiliate 5 Rue Christine, which will kickstart the deal with the February release of Xiu Xiu's Knife Play. KRS albums from Comet Gain and Ouix*o*tic will follow. Best known as the boundary-busting Chicago label that's home to Quasi, Blonde Redhead and the Dirty Three, Touch And Go also distributes Merge, Thrill Jockey and Drag City.

CRUISIN' FOR A CAMERON

Director Cameron Crowe will follow his autobiographical, award-grabbing rock flick Almost Famous with Vanilla Sky, which stars Tom Cruise, Penelope Cruz and Cameron Diaz, and is due to hit theaters in December. As usual, the former rock critic has packed the soundtrack with big-name talent. Set for a Dec. 11 release on Reprise, the disc will feature new and recycled tracks from R.E.M., Radiohead, Paul McCartney, Josh Rouse, Sigur Rós, the Chemical Brothers, Bob Dylan, Looper, Leftfield and Crowe's wife, Nancy Wilson. The Red House Painters' "Have You Forgotten" is also on the track list; RHP frontman Mark Kozelek, who appeared as the bassist for the fictional band Sweetwater in Almost Famous, also has a role in Vanilla Sky.

Three bands. One last chance.

AND YOU WILL KNOW US BY HE TRAIL OF DEAD

Relative Ways/ Homage (EP) (Interscope)

By now, two albums into its reckless run of a career, Austin's Trail Of Dead is probably just as notorious for its instrumentabusing live show as it is the fiery

post-punk squall of its recordings. It's a blessing for the band (and its new label home, Interscope), then, that the quartet's new studio outings manage to uphold the promise of that incendiary live energy. Released as a prelude to the Dead's full-length early-2002 label debut, the four-song Relative Ways wraps up the band's varying personalities in a succinct package: the opening title track bolts an emo heartsong to thundering trapwork and ringing guitar grooves; "Homage," aside from its nicely ethereal breaks, goes balls-out destructo garage wail, while "Blood Rites" one-ups its predecessor with a hailstorm of roiling snares, fat-bottomed metal pounding and kamikaze screaming. Just so no one mistakes the band as pure sonic nihilists, closer "The Blade Runner" blends strings, alien tone samples and wind chimes into a gurgling bit of ambient horror. Be very afraid. - Colin Helms

ANTIPOP CONSORTIUM

The Ends Against The Middle (EP) (Warp)

When mainstream pop icons (Britney, 'N Sync) can cuddle up to the artiest, critically acclaimed beat progressivists (Neptunes, BT), it begs the question: is being "anti-pop" even necessary? Antipop Consortium thinks so, as evident on The Ends Against The Middle, a detour deeper into the unapproachable Xenakis-meets-Tron avant-rap of the group's 2000 debut, Tragic Epilogue. MCs Beans, Priest and Savvid are still deeply entrenched in a hyper-intellectual rap-as-concept-map ethos, but their production has grown increasingly IDM-influenced, making A.C. a perfect fit in its new home on Warp Records. "39303" starts as brain-twisting hip-hiccup-hop that — after a swift kick to the hard-drive ---- transforms into a free-flowing rhyme spree and concludes atop a sparking pile of broken machinery in a sputtering, minimalist squall. Opener "Tuff Gong" is two-part suite of cosmic slop, split evenly between foghorn funk and delinquent electro-googles. The Ends is dedicated to controlled chaos and the

second wave of the lounge revivalism is upon us, and leading the pack is Nottingham, England's Simon Mills and Nail Tolliday. The pair's debut, Programmed To Love, has caused quite a stir on the other side of the pond, and is bound to do the same here. On "Cylons In Love," Bent tempers Air-y vocoder intonations with weeping piano straight out of Moby's "Porcelain" and tops it all off with a Latin-flavored acoustic guitar. For "I Love My Man," the pair handily borrows from the Avalanches' bag of tricks by looping a torch-singer vocal into its programming. On "Welly Top Mary," the album's lone nadir, the duo takes a turn into a Deep Forest of new age. Sure it's highly derivative, but Bent manages to mix its analogs into an entirely delectable stew.

BLACK LIPSTICK

The Four Kingdoms Of... (EP) (Peek-A-Boo)

Black Lipstick, an Austin-based bi-gender quartet composed of ex-Kiss Offs members Travis Higdon and Philip Niemeyer, sounds like that magic New York moment when wry lyrics and dirty guitar united in

Warholian unison more than 30 years ago. While it is a definite understatement for anyone to point out the obvious Velvet Underground influence on The Four Kingdoms Of ..., this collection of five songs nevertheless cleanly combines melodic guitar, groovy bass lines, kinky keys and Jonathan Richman-style vocals into a thick, rich makeup of post-post-art-wave. Lyrical references to VU aside ("I'll be your mirror... part 2" is slyly intoned on "W.W.D.Y.D."), Black Lipstick enters into that mid- to late-'70s mid-tempo range of musical improv where bands such as the Velvets and the Talking Heads experimented and flourished. The EP aptly ends with "Our Gilded Thrones," an especially charming retro-pop number where better-than-thou vocals croon "This shit is cool" over free-range, psych-tinged riffs. - Solvej Schou

ROCK 'N' ROLL AIN'T NOISE POLLUTION

WSOU CELEBRATES (AND SAYS GOODBYE TO) 15 YEARS OF NEW JERSEY'S HARDEST ROCK

Story by Amy Sciarretto

SOU, the student-run, faculty-advised radio station at Seton Hall University in South Orange, New Jersey, began broadcasting way back in 1948. For the majority of its existence, it was just a typical college radio station. But it wasn't until a crop of students did some market research, discovered a niche audience, and decided to use the signal to blast the New York metropolitan-area airwaves with the hardest rock found on the FM dial that WSOU became the source for Loud Rock.

Most college stations offer their listeners an alternative to mainstream bought-and-sold rock, but have sparse audiences compared to their bigger, corporate-owned siblings. WSOU is the exception to that rule, spinning extreme and underground music while effectively competing with modern rock stations in the country's No. 1 market.

WSOU became the New York City area's best source for up-andcoming, as well as previously established, Loud Rock bands. Many an industry insider has uttered the phrase, "You heard Korn and System Of A Down and Metallica in constant rotation on WSOU before WXRK (a.k.a. "K-Rock") even thought of spinning them."

What an enviable position to be in. At times, college programmers across the country have expressed concern, wondering why so much hoopla surrounds 89.5 FM. It's simple: the reverence surrounding WSOU endures because the station acts and runs like a commercial station, giving its managers and its staff a quantifiable learning experience while simultaneously affecting the musical climate. While many college radio stations enjoy a free-form approach and don't aspire to run like the commercial stations, by preferring to be the anti-commercial radio station, WSOU is respected because it never sells out despite being extremely successful. It's still a college radio station. But it's a station with a mission.

Missi Callazzo, owner of Megaforce Records and original host of the long-running "Monday Night Mayhem" black and death metal show, looks back fondly on 'Sou's tender beginnings. "It was a regular college alternative station. We played a lot of nothing," she recalls. "We had a little bit of this, a little bit of that and no one really listened to it. Until Dan Blackman, Phil Hardy, and Dan — I can't remember his last name — submitted a programming proposal to the school. Once the university saw what they were doing and that kids were getting a better education, they were supportive."

One might be wondering how a bunch of students could persuade Seton Hall's powers that be to turn the station to a metal format, a form of music that sounds nefarious and is often associated, however foolishly, with the devil. "On one level, metal has a relationship with Satan when people have no understanding of the music," Callazzo notes. "When you are between the ages of 14 and 20, you're aggressive, full of anxiety. What is a more healthy way to relieve anxiety? Fortunately, Seton Hall has been a progressive Catholic university by being open to the music regardless of whether or not the Pope likes it. The students are happy and making an impact and getting the most out of their educations." For all of 15 years, Seton Hall University was indeed a progressive institution by allowing Loud Rock to be WSOU's signature format.

WSOU Music Director Kal Elsebai

Anyone who visits the studio's hallowed halls will see that the walls are lined with gold and platinum plaques, ranging from Megadeth to Linkin Park to Type O Negative to Disturbed to Kid Rock.

In the early-'90s, the suicide of a local New Jersey teenager who was a heavy metal fan caused the community to put the blame on music. WSOU came under fire, and its programming was looked at under a microscope. The image-conscious school pulled some of the metal in favor of another form of hard rock, with more of a grunge and alternative sound surfacing during the day, and the more extreme stuff reserved for the late and overnight hours.

For many years, the station's programming and rotation were built upon a simple yet brilliant color-coded system which allowed DJs to mix new music with the classics and avoid repeats throughout the day. The stations innovative specialty shows include "New Industrial Revolution," a listen to metal offshoot genres like techno and goth; "Hardcore Reality," which blends new- and old-school hardcore; "Vintage '80s," which hearkens back to the glory days of (continued on p. 10)

WSOU Staff Speaks

A lot of attention is paid to the alumni of WSOU: while several ex-staffers moved on to radio promotions gigs in the industry, many have gone on to work at major commercial radio stations. We'd like to turn the spotlight over to the current crop of DJs and managers, who are the legacy of the station and the ones who are fighting the good fight to keep WSOU metal. Their responses were truly inspiring.

Jen Rajzer WSOU

WSOU Business Manager, Program Director, 1998-99 If you were to ask K-Rock if they thought we competed with them, they would say we're not in competition. But in reality, we're a thorn in their side, but I don't think they would admit it. They have approached us on a few occasions to present shows together, and they even wanted us to come in and produce a metal show on K-Rock. But we thought it wasn't in the best interest of the reputation of 'SOU, so it's a weird relationship. Their DJs used to say stuff about us on the radio from time to time, mostly negative but once or twice it was positive. Their street teamers would say bad stuff about us, too. They don't do it anymore, because I was told they were forbidden to. But all this sounds like we are a thorn in their side. All we do is play good music and present cool shows.

It's amazing how different people can unite under one cause.

II Roczan Host, "Sleep

I grew up listening to WSOU. While other kids were grooving to the New Kids On The Block, I was listening to Metallica and Guns N' Roses. WSOU is the only reason I applied to Seton Hall in the first place. The best thing to happen to me at WSOU (aside from the buttload of free concerts) has got to be the people I've had the chance to work with and get to know. It's like Cheers up there.

Jenn Rívera

DJ, Newscaster, Engineer What's the best lesson you've learned while working at WSOU?

I've learned that you should always stand up for what you believe in and that your friends are always there fighting with you. Music is more than just noise; music brings people together.

Bristin Malaney WSOU DJ

What is the best thing that happened to you while working at WSOU? Just being able to be heard on the radio and to say that I am a part of the one station that has dramatically helped the heavy metal scene. And of course meeting so many amazing bands like Slayer, Shadows Fall, The Deftones, Nothingface and Megadeth.

That respecting opinions is important. Even though certain kinds of music aren't appealing to me doesn't mean they don't have depth to another person.

Alison Maynard DJ

What's the best lesson you've learned at WSOU?

Besides meeting the other people who work at 'SOU, it was the first time in a long time that I was somewhere and I felt that I belonged; we are really like a big, dysfunctional family at 'SOU. Music unites people... most of us at the station are united by the music we listen to. And even though we may disagree on some things (like what is better: hardcore or industrial), we all love the music. I have met great people and none of us fit the horrible stereotype of metalheads that the university has imposed upon us.

Christina Jordan

WSOU Promotions Director/ On-air DJ ("Zelda") What the best lesson you've learned at WSOU?

Two lessons: a) That if you work hard enough and if you are dedicated enough, you can get anything you want. b) That the Catholic religion is ridiculous and that Seton Hall University only cares about image and our basketball team. Grrrrr.

Peter Leyharris

What brought you to WSOU? The music that most stations (and campuses, for that matter) shy away from. I wanted to be a part of a musical conglomerate that arouses my enthusiasm and determination for the industry.

a.k.a. Raging Steve, Vintage '80s Host, DJ, Newscaster What brought you to WSOU? The insane opportunity to spin awesome music in the nation's biggest market!

Daomí Zaíc

Engineeer, Newscaster What's the best thing that happened to you at WSOU? The best thing that has happened to me hasn't been meeting any particular band (although everyone I meet is amazing) — it's been meeting the people at WSOU. Everyone there is who I hung out with in high school: the outcasts, the geeks, the metalheads, the stoners. I found a group of people that belongs together, people who don't judge people by what they look like, and who take a job which doesn't pay anything more serious than their paying jobs. They have taught me that there is shit more important than money, more important than my pathetic little life - we make up a station that so many people rely on for entertainment, music that describes our lives that it's made me realize that I am just a little piece in everything, but an essential one. All the thoughts that I don't mean anything to anyone were blown away; not to sound sappy as hell but everyone is needed somewhere, and even if I need "a smile as my disguise" I know its worth the pain of being there, and worth the effort of caring.

WSOU, when glam metal reigned supreme; "Street Patrol," a forum for local and unsigned hard rock acts; and "Under The Stars," a program that spotlights marginal metal like emo and screamo and gives it a chance to be heard on WSOU's airwaves. Obviously, the station's musical choices span the entire spectrum of Loud Rock.

By January 1, 2002, this will all be a memory. Seton Hall's leaders now feel that heavy metal is inconsistent with the values of a faithbased learning institution, and the students are being forced to reformat the station. According to Professor Peter Reader, the chairman of Seton Hall's Department Of Communications, the administration has been uncomfortable with WSOU's metal format for the past 15 years and has simply tolerated it. The school's top brass no longer want to be "the savior of the heavy metal format," according to Reader, who acts as a liaison between the station and the university board.

"If we were a commercial station losing money, no one would question [the format change]," says Reader. "But we're providing a public service to a niche audience. We're sure there's [another] audience out there in this market of 100,000 people that is waiting for their music to be heard."

Heavy metal is not pleasant on several levels, according to SHU administration officials. "A large segment of the population cannot listen to that format for more than 10 seconds without turning it off. It's abrasive," Reader claims. "Take that abrasion on top of the questionable, ethical value of the music. People can't live with it."

The students are now being asked to choose a new format that represents the whole university and its mission statement. A survey is being circulated university-wide, and the results will assist in the selection and implementation of the new format. Despite the fact that reformatting the station is not the students' choice, Reader sounds confident that the station will be successful in launching a new format. "If we are a successful radio station," he says, "Then we should program a new format and be just as successful. If a new format is not successful, it's the format that was successful and not the station itself." Ultimately, Seton Hall wants WSOU to be perceived as a station, then a format, not the other way around.

Seton Hall assistant professor Michael Collazo (no relation to former music director Missi) has held the position of faculty advisor and general manager for 16 years. He's been with WSOU as long as it's been a metal station and has mixed feelings about the format change.

Members of WSOU's current staff

"The students have done so much with the station and made into a real competitor in the New York market, and everyone knows bands they've broken that have become mainstream," offers Collazo. "The station has had a nationwide impact. So from that standpoint, it's hard to see a lot of that work go down the drain. However, the owners of the station want to have a better image. They are disturbed by some of the mail and the images that the groups WSOU plays have on the websites. [There is a] litany of items they've been disturbed about and want to go in a different direction."

Seton Hall doesn't want the station to go free-form; in fact, they advocate a steady, dominant format — as long as it's not heavy metal. While WSOU filled the metal niche, it's going to have to find another genre of music to represent, which might be difficult. "If this was the middle of Kansas, [it would be] no problem because there are so many formats," says Collazo. "In New York, you've got 80 stations pumping in: oldies, jazz, news."

The legendary Tom Rock and Elsebai

Some speculate that the university is looking to get positive publicity in light of some campus controversies that have occurred in the past few years. In 2000, one of the freshman dorms fell victim to suspected arson. Three students perished in the blaze. Shortly after that tragic event, a young student was murdered by her boyfriend. It was revealed that she had actually begged a Seton Hall security guard for help prior to her death; the only assistance offered was a suggestion that she call the cops.

Nevertheless, controversy or not, it all boils down to the fact that WSOU had a strong, influential run for the past 15 years. Whether or not the next 15 are as successful in another format remains to be seen. One thing is for certain: there are many metal fans who will hate to see it go. NMR

MSOU Alumni

When I originally started polling former WSOU staff members who've gone on to careers in the music business, I asked them all sorts of questions, such as the more general "What was your best memory of working at WSOU or with WSOU after you left?" and "What advice do you have for college radio programming staffs?" Little did I know that inquiring "How has WSOU endured programming heavy metal at a Catholic university for 15 years?" and "How has WSOU endured in the No.1 market in the country?" would be extremely timely the very next week, as Seton Hall Administration abruptly announced its decision to pull the station's metal format. Here's a sampling of what former 'SOU staff had to say at the time. – Amy S.

Sirius Satellite Radio, former WSOU DJ, Technical Operations Manager, Asst. The music industry is full of schmoozing and ass-kissing, but if you want to be a great DJ, you have to check that at the door and be an average person again. You have to get stars in your eyes when you meet Slayer, and you have to get excited when you hear a great song ... you have to remember how you were when you were a listener. WSOU has always given metalheads deep album cuts, not just commercial singles, and the listeners appreciate it. They can get pure metal like no other station gives them when they tune to WSOU. Also, WSOU has always been an "underground" type of thing, and hey, metalheads are all about rebellion!

WSOU continues to be a strong radio station because it's an outlet for some of the best music out there (old and new). Whereas stations like K-Rock play some of the same bands as WSOU, they only grab them once they generate a huge buzz. And if it wasn't for 'SOU, most of the "metal" bands out there today might (continued on p. 14)

So if you are into hard rock and metal, you might get a taste of it from the commercial stations, but WSOU feeds you a 24/7 feast of it.

Anthony Delía National

National Manager Of College And Metal Promotion,

Atlantic Records, former WSOU Music Director Advice for college-radio programmers: FORMAT YOUR STATION, to some extent at least. Block programming does not lend itself to listenership, especially in cases where the blocks rotate and are inconsistent. Formatting can be as simple as all [whatever genre] from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, as intense as 24-7. Take initiative and work to format your station to some extent so that you can build listenership, work with your school's communication department heads so that you can install a format that will live on beyond your time at the school. By no means am I saying eliminate specialty programming; there is a time and place for that. Your support for these artists can go a lot further than a chart position if the station has listeners. Team with local retail stores, get them to post your playlist and hours of broadcast, and publicize the station at local shows and all over campus. Don't be afraid to play artists that have some commercial success — these are the artists that help the station to sound familiar to the people you are trying to keep listening in order to turn them onto the new bands you are championing. Focus some attention on singles or limited suggested tracks on a record so that the songs become familiar with your audience. Take advantage of what labels are offering you when it comes to swag, run promotions that put giveaways to good use. Interact with your listeners, encourage them to call, encourage them to support the bands you're supporting, to come to the shows. Don't be basic, create an image for your station, an image that doesn't alienate people but makes them feel like they are part of something, because they are.

Hike Delippa Alternative Promotion, Elektra Records, former WSOU Music Director

The format has endured because there is an audience for it. To be honest, if there was a time when I thought it was in trouble, it was when I was there (1991-95). To me, this was really a bad time for metal, sort of the time between "old skool" like Overkill, and "new skool" like Korn, etc. But we bridged the gap by playing grunge and some heavier alternative stuff and made it through. Like any format it suffers growing pains: do you grow old with your listeners or appeal to the young kids? Do the kids who want to hear God Forbid also want to hear Testament and vice versa? WSOU does a good job of balancing it. The reason why WSOU has remained so strong is because it is run like a serious business. Unlike other college stations, they care about their listeners, are actively involved in the community and take their power seriously, so in return, they are respected by their listeners and the industry.

Ted Dougherty

Alternative Promotion, Columbia Records Former WSOU DJ

I got the feeling that the university wanted to keep their distance from the station. But on the flip side, they knew how influential we were so we gave back to the community by giving them all of Sunday for community programming. WSOU also runs those positive messages now, too. Fortunately, WSOU is in a prime location — they are only a short distance to NYC. And to answer your question, "why has the metal format at WSOU endured," well, have you seen the people in New Jersey? They live on metal.

was in high school and became an avid listener immediately. I chose SHU over Rutgers and Marist (where I was supposed to play football) because of WSOU. From 1988 on, at least 80 percent of the staff at any given time would vehemently object to any other format other than metal. We were all practicing Catholics, had the appropriate G.P.A., were paying our tuition as well as putting WSOU and SHU on the map to a shitload of new people every day. I learned that you never ever have to sell out if you're prepared to back up your beliefs with hard work. The "metal" format would do well in any heavily populated area because it's a niche format that has youthful, diehard rabid fans who are guaranteed to spend a little money. WSOU in particular has thrived because the station personnel changes slowly every year and that keeps it fresh without ever having that "cleaning house" feeling. There always seems to be a great crop of kids from New York/New Jersey who know the musical currents on a local and national level.

Mountain Region Promotions, All Formats, TVT Records Former WSOU Promotions Director

When [TVT artist] Sevendust was breaking, it was fun to switch sides: fun, exciting and I knew that it was going to work for them and it was a good gauge to see how we could build up a fan base in a marketplace. The spins that you get at WSOU are so directly related to sales that it makes it exciting, because you deal with a listenership of real fans that buy music. I remember bringing the guys to the station [after they had] just been signed, and I knew they would be taken care of and we would get a lot of work done because of the loyalty. You always have allegiance if you come from WSOU. It's like your fraternity, even after you leave. If this band was gonna work, I would know from WSOU's reaction. It's important to get your artists up there; if it's gonna sell, you'll know from them. It's nice to give back, and a great feeling to bring these bands in when there's a freshman and this is their fave band and you can hook them up. I knew that the band would be well taken care of and we had a lot of fun.

)))ayne (Dighini JCOR Entertainment WSOU Music Director 1993-94)

It is amazing to think that every hard rock band that has succeeded in this country was getting played at WSOU prior to having any commercial success. The station continues to set the trend in the format. I really believe 'SOU has survived because there is truly no competition. Also, WSOU can afford to take chances because it is a non-commercial station. A station concerned about ratings points and setting advertising rates could not play the records 'SOU plays or try to introduce new music the way they do. Hard-rock music has been around for decades and will be around forever. As long as kids in the NY area are listening to metal, they will be the leaders.

BEN MARKESE The Syndicate

The first time I ever actually listened to WSOU, I was cruising in my '88 Olds near South Orange [New Jersey] on the tail end of a nonstop, 14-hour trip from Joliet, Illinois to Jersey City. I was moving to the East Coast and was flipping around on the FM dial, desperate for some rock. Eventually, I found something loud and kept it there, and sure enough, it was WSOU. Every morning I wake up to WSOU, first in the bathroom, and then on the commute.

JOSH GRABELLE Trustkill Records

As an avid listener of the station, it comes as a shock to hear that WSOU is changing formats. What really sucks is that Trustkill is based out of New Jersey so the station has really helped our bands. Plus, we listen while we work. I remember the first time I heard WSOU: I was driving home from a show and it was late at night, probably 1995 or something. I was flipping stations and all of a sudden I heard Ignite on the radio — I almost flipped out. Being one of my all-time favorite hardcore bands, I was so psyched to be able to hear stuff like that on the radio. To this day, there is not another scene in the country with a station as good as WSOU.

BOB McLYNN The Step Kings

WSOU gave us our start and foundation. We had just put out the Seven Easy Steps EP in the summer of '97 and were about to go on our first tour with SOD and Vision of Disorder. I didn't know Ien Kaizer at the time, but I barged into her office one day and told her I was a good friend of a friend of hers and that she needed to play our disc. She was real cool and told me that if she liked it they would give it some spins. Two weeks later, "Vibe" was jamming over the airwaves. The next year, we recorded the imfamous version of "Feliz Navidad" with Ill Nino, exclusively for 'SOU, and it's still a holiday favorite on the station. It's going to be sad to see such a ground-breaking station change. I can't say how much it's meant to our career and countless other bands.

ALAN ROBERT Among Thieves/ Life Of Agony

WSOU helped make Life of Agony as strong as it was in the Tri-State area when we were coming up. They were spinning us before anyone, and supported us throughout our 10year run. They still play the band! They gave the entire local scene the platform it needed to thrive over the years. When I got my Among Thieves project off the ground, they embraced the band with open arms. WSOU rules. 'Nuff said!

Most Precious Blood/ Indecision

I used to stay up real late every Sunday night listening to Hardcore Reality. Indecision was a brand-new band. We'd sit around listening every week hoping they'd play us. Our friends were in bands that got invited up for interviews and we'd all listen, hoping they'd mention our name on the air. Eventually Hardcore Reality did play us. We were so excited. We all watched mainstream music come to WSOU. In 2001, heavy music has exploded in a big way. WSOU is crucial to the underground, independent heavy-music scene. Some say, you don't know what you've got until it's gone, but I think we know WSOU is important and its helped us all out, whether it was by supporting our bands or keeping us informed. We don't need to lose WSOU to know that we've got something special.

MIKE GITTER

Roadrunner Records

WSOU is responsible not only for being a great radio station in the New York/New Jersey area, but for really fostering an entire musical community. When I say community, I don't mean a handful of great bands _ though thanks to WSOU's influence, bands ranging from God Forbid, Ill Nino and 40 Below Summer got the shot to get out of their garages and basements _ but a complete community of clubs, retailers and record labels, and most importantly, fans who have gotten their fill of the rock and gone on to influence the state of the Rock Nation. Let's face it, without 'SOU and like-minded stations, would it have been as easy for the likes of Incubus or Mudvayne? I highly doubt it. Take away WSOU and the foundation starts to erode. We all lose.

SMITTY

Artemis Records

I've built a career on the music that I loved most, and could only find on WSOU. In that time, bands that I have worked — Incubus, Korn, Rage Against The Machine and Kittie among them — got their start at WSOU. In fact, we never would have known which bands to push without them! (What would the world be without a band like Pearl Jam?!) The loss of such a unique station (hidden under the guise of "for the diversity and values of the university") is nothing but a prejudiced political move against hard rock for reasons truly known only to the hierarchy of Seton Hall. It's a successful college-radio station that goes so far as to influence commercial radio and MTV in the biggest market in America, and its loss is nothing short of disastrous. The joy that comes with turning people on to new music would ever have happened without WSOU, and that is the real sin here.

While I grew up in the central Midwest constantly searching for new bands and new metal (not NU-metal) from other traders, many of these tapes I was trading for or with had interviews included with underground artists from a certain station called WSOU. Metallica. Overkill. Armored Saint. Anthrax. Metal Church. Nuclear Assault. These bands that I loved were getting played on the radio? I couldn't think of such a thing; hell, I was lucky enough to get Priest, Ozzy, Mötley and the Scorpions on the radio where I grew up. I started doing college metal radio, and eventually got to where I am right now and have had the pleasure of dealing with WSOU directly for a few years now. Not only can I not thank them enough for giving our artists the support and airplay that is above and beyond the norm and for setting great examples, but I have to first thank them for giving metal fans and artists so much in the last 15 years. There will never be another like it, plain and simple. WSOU R.I.P.

I feel that any college station that plays real metal and non-mainstream music is providing a great service to their listeners. Let's face it, the only way for many kids to get to hear good metal is from their local college station. WSOU has been providing this great service for 15 years and people in the NYC/Jersey area have come to depend on this station alone for hearing new, non-commercial metal. WSOU goes above and beyond the call of duty as they sponsor many metal shows and events in their area. This is a big loss to the metal-radio world, but there are many other capable college stations in the area that will have to carry on in WSOU tradition of playing uncompromising metal. WSOU, thanks for all the support with our artists and we wish you the best of luck. You will be greatly missed.

The theory of the ripple effect poses that even the smallest action, even dropping a pebble into a body of water, can become the catalyst for something great, such as an earthquake. WSOU is, has and unfortunately no longer can be that pebble that caused the earthquake. For 15 years the station has upheld the strongest of standards in bringing new, exciting hard rock and metal to the New York City metropolitan area. Its influence is felt far and wide with its intense listenership and devoted fanbase. WSOU has become the icon of hard music over the past 15 years. It's the integrity that makes them what they are and what metal in the Tri-State area has become: a cultural melting pot of majorand independent-label recording artists making their statement and 'SOU spreading that message to the masses. I have many memories and great interviews. The best was having scrambled eggs and Jack-and-Cokes with former MD Narration in 1990. I have spent time living in Asbury Park, where I first heard WSOU, and can't say enough about the choice of music played; I rarely listened to anything else. Please don't take away one of the few true freedoms we have left: a free press, whether it be TV or radio, must stand strong and express itself in an honest form. Now, being in the industry and involved with radio myself, I can see just how special WSOU has been. The countless numbers of people nationwide who listen to WSOU online, or tune in while in the area, have found this station to be a salvation in a world of overly commercialized trendy music. It fills me with deep sadness that this may soon all be gone, and WSOU's distinctiveness could disappear with a new format. #### Concrete Marketing

After being immersed in the New York metal and hardcore livemusic scene for over a year, I have seen the influence that WSOU makes in bringing in an audience. Without the awareness the station brings to loud-rock fans, we can expect the underground to suffer. WSOU has been one of the best forums I have seen that brings the newest up-and-coming bands to such a large audience and that keeps people up to date on music. I am sad to see this happen; I feel that this is huge loss for underground music.

ROB TRAYNOR

Dust To Dust

WSOU just another victim of biz as usual. Doesn't this world suck? Seems as though they leave the power to those who just don't get it. Sorry to see you go.

JEN MEOLA Roadrunner Records

As the national director of hardrock promotion at Roadrunner, I have been a strong supporter of WSOU for the past six years now and have many fond Roadrunner/WSOU memories. We are a team! WSOU has had a direct impact on the music industry and will not be forgotten. Being the No. 1 college-metal radio station WSOU was always ready to take a chance on our new Roadrunner artists and take them to the next level. Some Roadrunner bands that WSOU helped go gold were Type O Negative, Coal Chamber, Fear Factory and our first artist to ever go platinum, Slipknot. WSOU was one of the first stations to do a live interview with those masked men from Iowa. I brought Sean The Clown and Joey to the WSOU studios for their interview with Tom Rock. They wore their masks the entire time even though no one could see them over the airwaves. Afterwards, we drove to the WSOU Ozz-B-Que. On the way there people were freaking out as we drove by with Slipknot scaring them with their masks. The people on the New Jersey Turnpike didn't know what hit them.

KEITH JENKINS Elektra

For 15 years, WSOU has been educating the masses on great music. I want to thank you for playing only the best metal and hardcore (that made my parents cringe). You have always remained true to your fans. On behalf of Elektra, I would like to extend a big metal fist for all the support that you have given our bands and our label over the years. Keep on rockin'!

FRED NAVARETTE

Concrete Marketing

WSOU represents all that is good about diversity and individuality in music and culture. It was a staple in mine, and many young kids growing up in New Jersey's lives. It gave disenfranchised youth a medium where you could hear about music, lifestyles and people just like you.

TYSON HALLER

Virgin Records

WSOU has truly been a station that exists "for the music." They have developed a history of supporting metal music in a region where no other outlet exists. In doing that the station has created a market for that music. They sell records, and when it comes down to it, that is what matters for everybody.

RICH, DANNY, KYLE AND RICH McGathy

WSOU is pure metal madness! It has affected us all in ways we will not soon forget. Here's how the station has affected the freaks here at McGathy Edge over the years: if it wasn't for 'SOU, I wouldn't have gotten laid back in high school. When I think of WSOU, I think of pirates and pirates are mean ... and mean = Metal with an 'm'! Bring it on, baby! It's all about 'SOU's hardcore reality 'cause they bring it from the streets, yo. WSOU has been the No. 1 college-metal station in the country since the late '80s. The station has contributed in breaking such acts as System Of A Down and Slipknot, and bringing many more to the forefront like Candiria, God Forbid, Thursday, Shadows Fall, 40 Below Summer, Arson, Darkest Hour and so many more. Oh yeah, the Waterboy's momma wanted to add "WSOU is the Devil!"

ERIC COLE

Concrete Marketing

WSOU breaks bands. Labels from the majors to the indies often build promo campaigns around WSOU. One example of WSOU's power is E-Town Concrete, a local band that got tons of play on WSOU and as a result has sold about 15,000 records in the New York/New Jersey area, with 4,000 of that out of one store in Jersey alone! Now they are doing national tours and are being courted by labels big and small. I am hoping that a solution can found to keep WSOU as is; it is a resource to the underground music community as well as to NY and NJ.

COREY LOWERY

Stereomud

Jen Kajzer is one of my best friends, and she and WSOU have stayed with me for a long time, with Stuck Mojo and LOA. If there is a religion that breaks WSOU down, then there is no God. Rock 'n' roll is a rebellious art and it is true and sincere in the format as it is. This religious bullshit is bullshit. We're not bad people. We're true people.

AND YOU WILL KNOW US BY HE TRAIL OF DEAD

Relative Ways/ Homage (EP) (Interscope)

By now, two albums into its reckless run of a career, Austin's Trail Of Dead is probably just as notorious for its instrumentabusing live show as it is the fiery

post-punk squall of its recordings. It's a blessing for the band (and its new label home, Interscope), then, that the quartet's new studio outings manage to uphold the promise of that incendiary live energy. Released as a prelude to the Dead's full-length early-2002 label debut, the four-song Relative Ways wraps up the band's varying personalities in a succinct package: the opening title track bolts an emo heartsong to thundering trapwork and ringing guitar grooves; "Homage," aside from its nicely ethereal breaks, goes balls-out destructo garage wail, while "Blood Rites" one-ups its predecessor with a hailstorm of roiling snares, fat-bottomed metal pounding and kamikaze screaming. Just so no one mistakes the band as pure sonic nihilists, closer "The Blade Runner" blends strings, alien tone samples and wind chimes into a gurgling bit of ambient horror. Be very afraid. - Colin Helms

ANTIPOP CONSORTIUM

The Ends Against The Middle (EP) (Warp)

When mainstream pop icons (Britney, 'N Sync) can cuddle up to the artiest, critically acclaimed beat progressivists (Neptunes, BT), it begs the question: is being "anti-pop" even necessary? Antipop Consortium thinks so, as evident on The Ends Against The Middle, a detour deeper into the unapproachable Xenakis-meets-Tron avant-rap of the group's 2000 debut, Tragic Epilogue. MCs Beans, Priest and Savvid are still deeply entrenched in a hyper-intellectual rap-as-concept-map ethos, but their production has grown increasingly IDM-influenced, making A.C. a perfect fit in its new home on Warp Records. "39303" starts as brain-twisting hip-hiccup-hop that — after a swift kick to the hard-drive ---- transforms into a free-flowing rhyme spree and concludes atop a sparking pile of broken machinery in a sputtering, minimalist squall. Opener "Tuff Gong" is two-part suite of cosmic slop, split evenly between foghorn funk and delinquent electro-googles. The Ends is dedicated to controlled chaos and the art of noise - making these rappers probably less concerned about aligning with Cage than aligning with John Cage. - Christopher R. Weingarten

second wave of the lounge revivalism is upon us, and leading the pack is Nottingham, England's Simon Mills and Nail Tolliday. The pair's debut, Programmed To Love, has caused quite a stir on the other side of the pond, and is bound to do the same here. On "Cylons In Love," Bent tempers Air-y vocoder intonations with weeping piano straight out of Moby's "Porcelain" and tops it all off with a Latin-flavored acoustic guitar. For "I Love My Man," the pair handily borrows from the Avalanches' bag of tricks by looping a torch-singer vocal into its programming. On "Welly Top Mary," the album's lone nadir, the duo takes a turn into a Deep Forest of new age. Sure it's highly derivative, but Bent manages to mix its analogs into an entirely delectable stew.

BLACK LIPSTICK

The Four Kingdoms Of... (EP) (Peek-A-Boo)

Black Lipstick, an Austin-based bi-gender quartet composed of ex-Kiss Offs members Travis Higdon and Philip Niemeyer, sounds like that magic New York moment when wry lyrics and dirty guitar united in

Warholian unison more than 30 years ago. While it is a definite understatement for anyone to point out the obvious Velvet Underground influence on The Four Kingdoms Of ..., this collection of five songs nevertheless cleanly combines melodic guitar, groovy bass lines, kinky keys and Jonathan Richman-style vocals into a thick, rich makeup of post-post-art-wave. Lyrical references to VU aside ("I'll be your mirror... part 2" is slyly intoned on "W.W.D.Y.D."), Black Lipstick enters into that mid- to late-'70s mid-tempo range of musical improv where bands such as the Velvets and the Talking Heads experimented and flourished. The EP aptly ends with "Our Gilded Thrones," an especially

CAMPBELL BROTHERS Sacred Steel On Tour!

Gospel and blues have gotten a jolt in recent years thanks to Rush, New York's Campbell Brothers. These evangelists of "sacred steel," a soulful, often ecstatic blend of gospel and slide-guitar blues, have been taking their sound outside of the church for the last few years, dazzling non-believers and hordes of jam-band devotees around the country. The Campbells' true gift is their ability to ignite both contemporary songs and traditional church songs with an intangible power. Guest vocalist Denise Brown helps take soul nugget "Put A Little Love In Your Heart" to a higher level, as Katie Jackson leads the charge on "Didn't It Rain." While so much of contemporary spiritual music (of any faith) is often watered-down for the mass market, the Campbell Brothers' music is never sugar-coated. Their passion comes through full-force in the fiery solos of Chuck (pedal steel) and Darrick (lap steel), who both rank alongside any blues or rock masters. Powerful stuff, indeed. — Steve Ciabattoni

MATT CHEPLIC

Don't Let Me Lose My Mind (Bodyguard)

Although he's much too softhearted and lyrically straightforward to come off as a true Elvis Costello protégé, Hoboken, New Jersey singer/songwriter Matt Cheplic is clearly enamored with the bespectacled one's clean, tuneful "Everyday I Write The Book"-styled breeziness. Augmented by light electric strumming, horns, accordion and restrained percussion, Cheplic's debut hitches his earnest, arching baritone to compact, occasionally gooey sweet-pop arrangements. He's a terminal romantic, so his wide-eyed balladry often overplays its quaintness, but it also enhances Cheplic's strengths: earnestness and passion, two qualities that, when combined on tracks like "Weird Flower" and "Magic Flowers," move beyond their initial cuteness to find real heartfelt sentiment. And like the early stance of his forefather Costello, Cheplic seems content with playing the awkward geek, hopelessly out of tune with modern pop trends, but all the more compelling for it. — Sean Lavedar

EAGLE-EYE CHERRY

Present/ Future (MCA) On record, Eagle-Eye Cherry has little in common with his famous father, trumpeter Don, or his famous sister Neneh. But in spirit, he does share their hunger to mix it up, to not stay in one place, and to find his own sound. Present/Future follows the multi-platinum Desireless with more of a radio-ready rock aesthetic, evident in songs like hit-in-waiting "Feels So Right." The sonic polish isn't necessarily a bad move, but sometimes the format is a bit generic for someone with as much skill and personality as Cherry. Still, there are bright spots to be found as Eagle-Eye makes sure there's substance and heart at work in each track. On "Long Way Around," Neneh joins in for a buoyant tune which holds a soulful, folky jangle reminiscent of Prince's more acoustic-based work. Stripped-down tunes like "Promises Made" go straight to the heart à la Ben Harper, and Carlos Santana's appearance amid the cool grooves of "Wishing It Was" reminds us just why millions desired the sound of Desireless.

DARYLL-ANN Happy Traum

(Excelsior Recordings) Dutch pop group Daryll-Ann could be considered one of music's best-kept secrets — a point of pride for many indie souls — but one has to wonder just how radio can live with itself for not yet embracing the group's infectious single "Surely Justice." "It's super Tuesday on a Friday night," affable singer Jelle Paulusma announces before espousing the wonders of running from the law and launching into a chorus so hopelessly catchy that trying to delete it from memory is about as easy as whistling with a mouthful of Saltines. Happiness oozes from Daryll-Ann's cloth of twangy pop, sweeping listeners into a giddy haze with the buoyant "All By Myself" (no, not the Eric Carmen hit), handclap-heavy "The Miracle Legion," and Neil Young-styled musings of "Riverside." Co-lead singers Jelle and his twin bro Coen escort the buzzing guitars of Anne Soldaat into plenty of stormy rawk fronts as well; the fitful Dino Jr. riffs of "When You Cry" are a treat for those who crave the quirky mix of J. Mascis's noisy squalls and off-kilter poetics. C'mon, get Happy. - Kristy Martin

FRAMES

For The Birds (Overcoat) The career trajectory of Ireland's the Frames has taken its share of twists. From age 13, main Frame Glen Hansard busked on the streets of Dublin. In 1991, he brought some attention his way by starring in The Commitments. His band secured a deal with Island soon after, but was dropped shortly after releasing its debut, Another Love Song. Several years later, Hansard and the Frames are still crafting atmospheric folk-edged pop — and with For The Birds, things seem to be on the upswing again. Already certified gold back home, Birds showcases the band's steady knack for crafting downtrodden lullabies that pitch and swirl in all the right places, recalling both classic treasures like Nick Drake and current indie favorites Low. The Frames use empty space artfully, building up a somber tension in the sparse piano plinks of "In The Deep Shade," and gorgeous, My Bloody Valentine-ish layers are heaped on "Santa Maria." Birds is the sound of years of trial and error culminating in the Frames' most masterful work to date.

PAPA M

Whatever, Mortal (Drag City) For a man who once swore that singing on a record would require "a few self-confidence classes," Papa M's Whatever, Mortal marks a veritable matriculation into Esteem U. On his new long-player, the Slint/Royal Trux/Tortoise/ Stereolab alumnus David Pajo

(a.k.a. Papa M) continues on the battered troubadour journey that he started with this year's Papa M Sings EP. Though Whatever, Mortal sports an acoustic-folk sound similar to the one we heard on 1999's Live From a Shark Cage, Pajo's songs are becoming more focused and, as a result, far more accessible. The gently brooding, finger-picked "Over Jordan" and "Roses in the Snow," for example, bear resemblance to the work of Will Oldham (who, along with Tara Jane O'Neil and Slint drummer Britt Walford, lends his talent to the record). Though Pajo is known for stylistic dabbling, Whatever, Mortal does not feel like just another tangent. But if playing the singer/songwriter is just a phase for Pajo, it's an accomplished one.

NITIN SAWHNEY Prophesy (V2)

Nitin Sawhney's music is the blueprint of a truly multi-cultural society. It ping-pongs from one genre to the next with such ease that you hardly notice when it undulates between totally opposite poles (for instance, from twitchy drum 'n' bass to decidedly untwitchy Indian classical music). Sawhney manages to take world-music influences that might typically alienate casual listeners and infuses them with sounds that appeal to the Top-40 listener: opener "Sunset" mixes flamenco guitar with R&B beats and vocals that would be right at home on MTV, while tracks like "Acquired" mix string sections and Indian chants with smooth electric piano and a dubby trip-hop vibe that hearkens to artists like Massive Attack and the Sneaker Pimps. The album is punctuated by spoken-word-over-beats interludes (featuring everyone from a Chicago cab driver to Nelson Mandela) that manage to never overstay their welcome. Those predisposed against socalled "world music" might be surprised when they find themselves tapping along to Sawhney's seductive beats. — Ian Sims

SEVENDUST

Animosity (TVT) "Will they or won't they?" was the big question preceding Sevendust's third album, Animosity. Everyone wanted to know if the Atlanta five-piece would make its commercially friendly rock even friendlier, perhaps by aping the likes of Creed and Fuel and ultimately sharing those bands' multi-million-sized audiences, as opposed to retaining its fusion of hard-rock riffs and soulful vocals. On Animosity, the answer is a resounding "won't they." Here Sevendust proves the navsayers wrong; the group's Southernfried rock maintains its integral hard 'n' heavy pace, thanks to the chunky dual-guitar attack of Clint Lowery and John Connolly. Lajon Witherspoon's deeply emotional vocals have a distinctly gospel flavor and an ability to make you believe he means every word he sings from the bottom of his heart. The right amount of mainstream glint topcoats catchy rockers like "T.O.A.B.," "Praise," "Redefine" and "Dead Set." Even though you should expect a million sold (and served) with Animosity, Sevendust's latest will easily remain in the good graces of even the most skeptical of metalheads. — Amy Sciarretto

SLEEPYTIME GORILLA MUSEUM

Grand Opening And Closing (Seeland–Chaosphy) While Sleepytime Gorilla Museum may pad its liner notes with Dadaist imagery — and an annotated lyric sheet referencing novelist William T. Vollman, phrenology and poet Dylan

Thomas — the group's music is truly cubist; ideas of melody and rhythm are randomly dissected, then painstakingly pieced back together. Rising from the ashes of Bay area absurdists Idiot Flesh, Sleepytime Gorilla Museum rewrites the ill-metered cut 'n' paste aesthetic of Mr. Bungle with the warped melodicism of the Residents and loose avant-punk grind of bands like Ruins. All the trappings of respectable Zappa-philes are present (errant vocal interjections pan across speakers, guitars belabor arrhythmic dissonance, violins gleefully skronk away) but the members of STG thankfully remember that the important half of "art-rock" is the "rock" part.

And rock they do — armed with trashcan percussion, creepy lullabies, a plethora of homemade noisemakers and the most asymmetrical metal mindfucks this side of Tool. — Christopher R. Weingarten

JIMI TENOR

Utopian Dream (Sähko Recordings) At this point, you either already know what to expect from Finnish composer Jimi Tenor or you've stopped caring. Utopian

Dream, the sixth album by the techno-age stepchild of Barry White and Björk, again slips through the interplanetary spaceways between Philly and Berlin, avant-garde and cabaret, visionary approach and kitschy send-up, without once revealing the size or shape of the deck he's playing with. Tenor's cuisinart-like take on the golden era of big musical productions (radical jazz compositions, baroque L.A. studio masterpieces, quiet-storm R&B meltdowns) has become a statement in itself, and the results of his sample-free deconstruction of pop history are as wonderfully retro-futuristic as any you're likely to currently find. Plus, he's a poster child for pan-global romanticism with a heart of darkness. Thus, you get sweet and sour dollops of plastic soul free-think that are Dream's axis — Joe Jackson-style lounge jazz, various bass throbs, gospel-ish brass lines, heavenly string charts, minimalist Chicago/Detroit components, indigenous freakouts — without being bogged down by moodiness or meaning. — Piotr Orlov

LOUD ROCK

LIVE NOTES

.O.D. recently returned to NYC with Blindside (straight from Sweden) and Fenix TX in tow. Blindside (remember A Thought Crushed My Mind?) was godlike - no pun intended — Swedish post-hardcore. Kudos to P.O.D. for bringing out a band like that, following in the tradition of the Deftones, who are known to bring out baby bands. As for P.O.D., the reggae-rock was on point. But I had trouble concentrating because P.O.D.'s frontman, the ever-gracious Sonny Sandoval, is probably the hottest piece of ass in rock. The new songs, like "Set It Off," "Boom," "Youth Of The Nation" and "Satellite" crushed live. During the pre-show meet 'n' greet with Atlantic's Anthony Delia and Gary Gorman, Sandoval, guitarist Marcos and drummer Wuv were mingling. Sandoval remembered meeting Ciancio and me two years ago after a Mercury Lounge gig. • The highlight of the Pledge Of Allegiance tour stop on Halloween in East Rutherford, New Jersey? During Slipknot's set, drummer Joey Jordison got all Tommy Lee on us as his drum kit levitated and hung upside down while he played. Oh yeah, and one of the American Head

Charge dudes performed buck nekkid and was subsequently arrested. I don't know if that was a trick or a treat. • New End Original recently graced New York's Bowery Ballroom with Burning Airlines.

American Head Charge

Ex-Far frontman Jonah Matranga was in full rock mode during the show, knuckling down on his poor guitar. While NEO is more on the indie-emo tip, I haven't seen him rock like that since the sorely (did you hear me, I said SORELY) missed Far.

Afterward, Jonah's lo-fi acoustic one-man vehicle, Onelinedrawing, played CBGB Gallery. At the request of Reverend Dave Ciancio, he played Far's "Punchdrunk," a personal favorite that I haven't seen performed since the mid- to late-'90s. It was breathtaking and a blessing to hear that song, which is normally fired-up, toneddown and muted, but still able to move mountains. • For most of 2000 and 2001, the untouchable Nothingface has been a road dog, touring as though it were going out of style. The band's been resting and writing since August, but it made a special appearance at the Birch Hill on a blustery Saturday evening in November, showing absolutely no signs of road rust. You're not a super-fan, and don't like Violence too much? Then you're a crack addict with no taste in music, and I am betting my salary that you have never seen this band live — otherwise you would've joined the Nothingface fiend club by now. This band's live set is sheer power that will rip your head from your body and use it as a kickball. They played an untitled new song in between "Sleeper" and "Grinning," and I am still trying to recover after it blasted me through a wall.

MY DYING BRIDE

The Dreadful Hours (Peaceville) Lest we forget, My Dying Bride's Meisterwerk I came out a relatively short time ago; it landed at radio at the end of April 2001, during the coming of spring — quite an inappropriate time for MDB's music. The group's plodding-through-peanutbutter doom metal is best suited for the chill of December and the coming of a long, cold winter. The Dreadful Hours is the sound-track for those nights when the wind whips the panes, candles are lighting the room, and snow is falling on bare branches while you read the collected works of Edgar Allan Poe. In essence, The Dreadful Hours is a serious, rural answer to the urban black humor of Type O Negative. Length and scope are the hallmarks of My Dying Bride's sound; The Dreadful Hours contains songs that often feel like they last for hours. Bring your attention for eight opuses of eerie, haunting beauty, namely the title cut, "The Raven And The Rose" and "Le Figlie Della Tempesta."

NAGLFAR

Ex Inferis (Century Media) What in the hell, you might ask, is a Naglfar? Well, fair metalhead, Naglfar is a five-headed Swedish fusion band. No, I do not mean that the band is jazz; Naglfar is a crew of fusionists of black- and death-metal sonic atrocities that rival the Autobahn's pace. Ex Inferis is a mini album, but it still feels like a metal "sinphony" that will effectively tide drooling fans over 'till next year's full-length hits. The melodies of Ex Inferis makes it a direct descendant of At The Gates, but for the most part, Naglfar concentrates on Dimmu Borgir-happy black metal that runs at hypersonic speeds, fast and proficient enough to give the axeman a raging case of carpal tunnel syndrome. Minimal use of keyboards, black metal shrieks and covers of Massacre's "When Autumn Storms Come" and "The Brimstone Gate" will make you pump that fist, throw those horns and sacrifice those virgins on a stone-cold altar.

BIONIC JIVE

Armageddon Through Your Speaker (Interscope)

Bionic Jive's Armageddon Through Your Speaker is more rhythmic rap than it is metal — you might even find yourself asking how this album made it into the pages of the Loud Rock column. It's being worked to the metal reporting panel, and there's always room for smart 'n' sassy pop culture at the Heavy Metal Inn. Bionic Jive doesn't talk turkey; rather, the guys namecheck Charles Manson and quote The

Exorcist in their lyrics. The riffs are pugnacious, while the vocal tag team of Ako Mack and Emerg McVay really set it off. Several moments on Armageddon Through Your Speaker could serve as bumpers or carts for any metalloid with an eclectic show that plays varying degrees of Loud Rock. Get yer freak on with the bootylicious "I Shot Lucifer," "Hands To The Roof," "Shut 'Em Down" and "Rock On."

R.I.Y.L.: Limp Bizkit, Twiztid, Crazy Town Contact: Lenny Lasalandra; Brent Reineke Phone: 800.992.6553 Email: lenny.lasalandra@umusic.com; brent.reineke@umusic.com Release Date: Oct. 15; at radio

HOMO IRATUS

Human Consumes Human (Crash) If Oscar The Grouch and Big Bird were in cahoots and decided to boot Cookie Monster from the safe confines of Sesame Street, the Cook would easily find a new home as frontman for Greece's Homo Iratus. Now, that's no disrespect to Mitch, Homo Iratus's brass-lunged frontman — he's got a spine-tingling growl — but it's not uncommon for a death metal singer to sound like Cookie Monster after numerous hits off a crack pipe. Human Consumes Human is pulverizing death metal with a thrash edge, sure to pound your skull into a fine dust with its relentless riffing, battering beats and, of course, those vicious vocals. Human Consumes Human is a primal record with songs that blast out as though they were shot from cannons; be sure check out the percussion on "Sonus In Terrorem," which hearkens back to the early days of Roadrunner, when the darkest of death metal reigned supreme. Don't sleep on "Slavery/Freedom" and "Tomahawk Cruise Messiah."

R.I.Y.L.: Napalm Death, Carcass, Six Feet Under's Warpath Contact: Bullpen Phone: 617.767.8800 Email: promo@bullpenpromotions.com Release Date: Oct. 16; at radio

GARGANTUA SOUL

Impact (Squishy Lemon) Drive through any tollbooth along the Mid-Atlantic and you wouldn't be hard-pressed to find a Gargantua Soul sticker sniped on the toll collection bin. G-Soul has been a fixture on the Connecticut hardcore scene for eons (and the band is friends with New England hardcore kingpin Jamey Hatebreed, who lent his bark to a track on last year's The First, The Last, The Tribe) but Impact isn't a straightforward hardcore or metal record. Rather, it's melodic funkadilly rock with strong, quality songwriting as its backbone — the band placed fourth in the John Lennon Songwriting Contest. "Calling My America," "Far Away" and "Deep Cover" are testaments to G-Soul's skill. Frontman Kris Keyes is a visual spectacle, so be sure and get your ass to a GS gig near you.

he Beatnuts have been dropped by Loud after seven years. According to label reps, the split was amicable. Loud, whose current focus appears to be on its hard rock acts, plans to release Best Of Beatnuts in February 2002. The Beatnuts' latest, Take It Or Squeeze It, was released back in March. • D&D Records recently signed a distribution deal with Sony's RED. The first project under the D&D-RED deal will be QNC's (Q-ball and Curt Cazal) single "Gotta Give." A compilation tentatively titled The D&D Project 2002 will feature MCs Guru, Sadat-X, Ruck, Big Daddy Kane et al, with production by DJ Premier, Easy Mo Bee, Da Beatminerz, Alchemist, and Cazal, among others, and is scheduled for release sometime next year. • Big Daddy Kane just signed with Landspeed. His as-yet untitled LP will be released in spring 2002 and will feature production by DJ Premier and Pete Rock, with executive producer credits going to Alchemist. • Master P has renamed No Limit Records to New No Limit Records (whoa! Big difference. Suge won't be able to find him now!). The rapper's own Gameface will be the first record released under the label's new moniker and is set to drop Dec. 18. • Rawkus is reportedly looking for new distribution, as Priority will be shutting down that side of its business. Def Jam is just one of many options the label is considering. A final decision is expected sometime in December. • Gorillaz are reportedly getting ready to record a soundtrack for a movie they (the cartoon characters, not Damon Albarn, Dan Nakamura and Del) will star in. • Cypress Hill will release its first studio outing for Columbia on Dec. 4. The 14-track Stoned Raiders is the group's since 2000's Skull & Bones and features guest appearances by the likes of Kurupt, MC Ren and King Tee, Kokane and the inseparable Redman and Method Man, with the latter appearing as payback for Cypress Hill's contribution to the How High soundtrack and cameo in the film. • Afroman kicked off a short promotional tour on Nov. 27 in Cleveland. His stint will wind up Dec. 30 in Washington, D.C. •

PHOENIX ORION AND TEAM ELOHEEM

Secret Wars (Atomcandy) Inspired by sci-fi, anime and a none-too-bright vision of the future, Phoenix Orion and Team Eloheem's Secret Wars takes listeners on a post-apocalyptic journey where "2001 [is the] beginning of the ending." That's just one of many lyrical references to beginnings and endings on this CD, while musically, it's a mixture of everything: cartoonish blips and bleeps over electronic beats, a hint of dancehall reggae rhythms and lyrical delivery (throwing "heads high, kill dem wit it now" into "Universal Lingo"), sound effects and dialogue. A cerebral, conceptual album, Secret Wars requires a good listen by those ready to embark on the innovative journey Phoenix and co. have mapped out. With talk of cyborgs, it's difficult to take this album too seriously (unless you're a sci-fi fanatic), yet with the deliberateness and darkness of its theme, it's difficult not to. A fresh, inventive contrast to the superficial braggadocio heard in so much of today's hip-hop.

Column by Piotr Orlov • porlov@cmj.com

The fourth proper full-length by the Chemical Brothers is entitled Come With Us, and will be out on Jan. 29, with programmers receiving it a couple of weeks earlier. It's the usual menu of trancedelic house specialties, rocked-up minimalist dishes, prominent guest desserts (vocals by Beth Orton and Richard Ashcroft), and the four-star classic acid-techno vibe that has become the signature of Tom and Ed Chemical's career. A live tour is in the works for spring 2002. • Anyone interested in programming hot, organic funk grooves into their mix is directed to check out The Funky 16 Corners compilation on Stones Throw. Compiled with loving aplomb by label principle and crate historian Egon, it unearths 19 forgotten late-'60s/early-'70s gems by regional funkateers left out of the history books (which it helps rewrite via exceptional album notes). It's a reissue classic not to be slept on. •

RINÔÇÉRÔSE In Rock (EP) (V2)

The opening salvo in Rinôçérôse's 2002 campaign to conquer America with house beats and FM riffs, In Rock carries three songs and two tons of attitude from the French collective that doesn't quite understand why no one wants to dance to laser-guided guitars anymore. After hearing the a-side, "Le Rock Summer," some will definitely reconsider. Built out of block-rocking, six-string breaks that smash speakers from atop a Brass Construction loop, this exquisitely titled assault is hard rock and disco made whole for six glorious minutes — and guaranteed to soundtrack an ad before the end of next year. "Professeur Suicide," also from the upcoming Music Kills Me LP, is more standard jazzy funk fare. But the exclusive live take of "Bloodsport" goes back to the primal source, full of charging guitar lines simultaneously bullying and rocking the dance floor as though the Stooges practiced house or Daft Punk wasn't scared off by its own turbulence.

VARIOUS ARTISTS

Transitions (Ism Records)

Ism Records is a Brooklyn-based modern beats enterprise started by producers Swingsett and J. Warrin with no regard for genre pigeonholes — primarily because the mix of sounds that swirls in its grooves isn't easily classifiable. But the smorgasbord of soft-core techno and house, ambient dub, downtempo jazz loops and two-step breaks featured on Transitions, a 12-song comp that outlines Ism's mission, is far from experimental. These warm tracks — by the label principles, dub-man Twilight Circus, Naked Music contributor Mindflight and others — carry a sound as familiar as your parents' voices, re-shaped for up-to-date application. In Duke Ellington's words, "beyond category."

Ñ ALTERNATIVE

umbo, which had to cancel its CMJ Music Marathon appearance last month due to promoter mixups, finally had its New York City debut at a Sauza Tequila-sponsored event on Nov. 5 at S.O.B.'s. Ripping through melodic power-pop with up to three guitars that switched between gliding solos and crunchy metallic riffs, the Monterrey, Mexico quintet held up to the stature of its name. After tickling the keys à la Manzarek on "Tequila," then leading into "Monotransitor" (from Jumbo's debut album, Restaurant), Eddy Gonzalez climbed from behind his moog and vintage keyboards, grabbed the mic from singer Clemente Castillo and began wailing "Podemos Volar" ("We Can Fly"). He then threw himself into the small crowd gathered and was summarily elevated over their heads. Two Englishlanguage songs off the new album D.D. Y Ponle Play and the band's newest hit "Rockstar" drew in the non-Spanish speakers. With a slowgrinding, grungy cover of "Lo Dudo" ("I Doubt It") by Mexico's Prince of love ballads, José José, the group closed the performance with a nod to its roots. Before releasing its first full-length in 1999, Jumbo was already known by Mexican rock fans for appearing an all-star tribute to the Mexican balladeer on 1998's Un Tributo.

MORE TRIBUTES

Speaking of tributes, three albums scheduled for release in the next few months pay homage to the roots of the Latin–alternative genre. Mexican mega-label Fonovisa, which for years has tried to figure out how to tap into the Latin rock market, may have finally found a way with a tribute album to norteño supergroup Los Tigres De Norte. Though it's scheduled for release early next year, Fonovisa has already posted Maldita Vecindad's single "El Circo" at www.fonovisa.com. El Mas Grande Homenaje A Los Tigres Del Norte includes covers by Cafe Tacuba, Molotov, El Gran Silencio, Julieta Venegas, Ely Guerra, Fidel, Los Lobos, Botellita De Jerez, El Haragan, Titan and Pesdevet. With Los Tigres collaborating on most of the tracks, El Mas Grande Homenaje is already gearing up to be one of the best releases of 2002 — and could help expose Latin rock to the regional Mexican music market, which accounts for 52 percent of all music sales in the U.S., according to the RIAA.

SKAPULARIO

Paranoico (RadicalSonica–DLN) Emerging during the Latin ska boom of the early '90s, Skapulario has become synonymous with Puerto Rican ska. Its first two albums, Vida En Espiral ("Spiral Life") and a 1998 selftitled record, produced hits that made the group a dance-floor staple on the island. Still building from a ska foundation, the quartet tickles the funny bone with cheeky lyrics about falling for loose women, but also about looking over your shoulder during weary political times. Paranoico ("Paranoid") updates the genre with washes of electronic color and pop production; here, the group is in sync with much of the circus-like antics of Argentina's ska scene ("No," "Es Un Misterio"), occasionally throwing stylistic curve balls that recall the likes of Chicago's Blue Meanies ("Aqui Estoy"). And while Skapulario thrives on fun-filled aerobic jams that celebrate the playboy ("Solo Pan Pan"), the group harnesses the fast-paced two-beats for political rants aimed at U.S. military presence in Vieques. On "Es Un Misterio" ("It's A Mystery"), the band points the finger at conniving politicians on both sides of the Caribbean Sea, while on the reggae-inflected rap track "De Bien En Peor" ("From Bad To Worse"), it shakes a fist at the United States' foreign policy.

SPIRIT NATION

Winter Moons (Karuna) Call it the new wave of Native Americana. Spirit Nation's sophomore album, the follow-up to the group's 1998 debut not only calls upon the flute and the pow-wow drums to speak its mind, but also the synthesizer, drum machine and guitar, conjuring a sound that more closely resembles Dead Can Dance than R. Carlos Nakai. New vocalist Tamara Podemski mostly sings in her Ojibway tongue, but there's also English and Hebrew, creating a vocal mélange that becomes intriguing, especially on "All My Relations," which could almost be a Cocteau Twins track. The sampled Gregorian chants on "We Are Still Here" take the record into Enigma territory, but overall the native voice remains strong and proud — a sign that Native American fusion can take on a New Age flavor without diluting its edge.

he sixth annual Kora Awards, which celebrate music across Africa, were held Nov. 3 in Sun City, South Africa. The local adaptation of hip-hop, known as kwaito, proved to be the big winner, with locals Bongo Maffin taking the Best African Group Award. Another kwaito artist, singer Brenda Fassie, won the Judges' Special Award, and veteran Miriam Makeba walked off with Best Arrangement for "Pata Pata." Algeria's Sawt El Atlas got the Best Video Award, and gospel/soul singer BeBe Winans was voted Best Artist Of The African American Diaspora. The Most Promising African Female Artist trophy went to Mali's Rokia Traoré. Winans, who sang "Africa Unite," was among the performers, along with Bongo Maffin and Shaggy, while high-profile attendees included Nelson Mandela. Winans will be playing another gig in South Africa, the Durban Jazz Festival, which has now been scheduled for Dec. 14-15, after initially being cancelled in the wake on the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Other artists set to perform include Carl Thomas and Ernie Smith. The festival is back on the BET network, which plans to air a one-hour show covering the event.

The Koras weren't the only recent awards celebration: Native American music held its NAMMU Awards on Oct. 20. Robert Mirabal was Artist Of The Year, R. Carlos Nakai took Flutist Of The Year in addition to a Lifetime Achievement Award, and also nabbed Group/Duo Of The Year with his Quartet. Lakota Thunder was honored with Best Historical Recording for Veterans Songs, and New Orleans' own Neville Brothers were voted Living Legends.

JANE SIBERRY

City (Sheeba)

This odds-and-sods album confirms Jane Siberry as an true artist of stature and courage, one who always colors well outside the lines. From the icily atmospheric "She's Like The Swallow" (which originally appeared on Hector Zazou's Songs From The Cold Seas) to a collaboration with Klezmatic Frank London to kiddie tune "All The Pretty Little Ponies," recorded for Barney's Great Adventure, Siberry sparkles. Most stunning is a version of "My Mother Is Not The White Dove," with its eclectic mix of instruments complementing the airy vocals; it doesn't so much push at musical boundaries as soar over them. And if you really need proof that Siberry's a world-music performer, just listen to "Spade and Sparrow," recorded with Japan's Takafumi Sotoma. This is a City that shimmers with promise.

FLASHBACK MILES DAVIS

The Complete In A Silent Way Sessions (Legacy)

In A Silent Way is known as the album that documented Miles Davis' transition from his acoustic modal jazz to the mighty electric fusion of Bitches Brew. This three-CD box meticulously details that transition, not only with music, but also with a 96page book of liner notes. The 17 tracks include eight unreleased outtakes, tracks from albums of outtakes, a few songs from Filles de Kilimanjaro and original cuts from In A Silent Way.

Davis The Dark Prince sounds as beautiful and mysterious as ever, but change is in the air. The sound moves from the early track's acoustic piano of Chick Corea to a multiple-keyboard approach with Herbie Hancock, Joseph Zawinul and Corea on electric keyboards and organ. The rhythms then become more vamp-oriented, and electric guitarist John McLaughlin makes a telling early appearance before returning for BB. The production methodology changed, too: whereas early tracks are basically whole takes, the later stuff is cut and pasted together by producer Teo Macero.

Even with the larger group, Davis's music remains skeletal and beautiful. As opposed to the roiling boil of Bitches Brew, In A Silent Way, like its namesake, truly was a quiet revolution.

FRED ANDERSON On The Run (Delmark)

Fred Anderson has been a local legend in Chicago for years. He's been a mentor for different players on the scene since AACM was founded in the '60s, but his full-time gig as bar owner has kept him from logging in miles on the road as a musician. By the 1990s, the saxophonist's fame had spread beyond the Windy City due to a regular succession of releases on different labels, most notably a duo album on Thrill Jockey earlier this year. This time, out the saxophonist leads longtime drummer Hamid Drake and bassist Tatsu Aoki through a burnin' set of improvisation live at the Velvet Lounge, a small but comfortable jazz joint Anderson opened some years back. True to form, the fiery tenorman blows long and hard, working through gnarled leads with ease. Drake and Aoki provide a muscular platform for Anderson to launch from — though both also serve up some fine solos of their own.

NOMMONSEMBLE

Life Cycle (AUM Fidelity)

Whit Dickey is a propulsive drummer who fueled David S. Ware's quartet in the early '90s, and has since released two albums of his own as a leader. Nommonsemble is a new Dickey thing that features musical kin Matthew Shipp (piano), Mat Maneri (violin) and Rob Brown (saxophone). Dickey plays with his usual awk-wardly thunderous flair as the other three dance around the beats, pushing and pulling melodies and harmonies out of one another. The crew positively jumps on upbeat numbers like "War," where Shipp hammers his keys and Brown blows. When the trio brings it down, Maneri adds an eerie elegance to numbers like "Wonder."

ROBERT WALTER

There Goes The Neighborhood (Premonition)

Keyboardist Robert Walter was one of the founders of the (nowdefunct) seminal Greyboy Allstars, and, more recently, the leader of Robert Walter's 20th Congress. While the Congress is still in session, this is a studio date with such veteran hired guns as guitarist Phil Upchurch and bassist Chuck Rainey doing loose takes on some Walter originals (some of which were co-written with group members), as well as a few well-chosen covers. Oddly enough for a studio date, saxophonist Red Holloway seems lost in the mix; nonetheless, Walter fans should be quite pleased with the overall results.

COPE WITH IT

ow, so here we are folks... the debut of CMJ Retail. It has taken many months of work, interspersed with a few life-altering events, and wham-bamthank-you-mam, 23 year-old CMJ has entered a new realm of the music business — music retail. CMJ Retail will represent the sales activity of a select group of about 200 reporters that we consider the "flashpoint accounts" in their respective markets. This reporting panel, which will contribute to our soon-to-be-launched Top 100 Sales chart, is comprised of single independent stores, small and medium-sized chains, and chain stores located close to college campuses. With this issue we launch our Top 20 chart based on sales information from One Stops, as well as a Major Chain chart that breaks out the Top 10 debuts and Top 10 upward movers at the big chains.

Our intent is to make CMJ Retail the first place the music business goes each week to find out what artists are breaking and why. We will show retail trends based on real information supplied by our network of reporters. The information from our reporting panel is critical to our end goals; to reflect sales trends and the buzz on the street, which ultimately can help retail and labels make betterinformed decisions with respect to buying, marketing and advertising budgets. We also have a section called "Speak Out" in which a retailer or label rep can speak his or her mind, be it via one sentence or a full paragraph. This week we devote the space to the U2/Best Buy controversy, which has caused considerable stir amongst our reporters. Get involved in this publication and use this space! We want to put the emphasis back on those accounts that actually work to break artists, but don't necessarily reap the rewards afterward. To our friends and supporters at music retail and the industry, we thank you for your help in this new endeavor.

Music is one of the most powerful things on earth. We can all listen to the same song and it can immediately transport us all to different places in time and space. With all the things happening these days I would like to suggest one song to listen to in order to help put some perspective on the times: Brian Wilson's "Love And Mercy." Peace — Mark Cope

SPEAK OUT

On the U2/Best Buy issue, we decided not to get in the way and let our reporters speak their peace (or riot) unedited and without censor.

John Timmons, Owner, Ear X Tacy

I was supposed to go get a flu shot 10 days ago. I put it off. I now have the flu. Could be worse... Could be anthrax I suppose. I slept for almost the entire last 24 hours, thanks to narcotics (Nyquil). Talk about some strange, drug induced nightmares! I had a nasty dream, get this: Best (?) Buy, Clear Channel, VH1, Interscope Records, and U2 all plotted to eliminate any competition on the upcoming U2 DVD and VHS release... making it available ONLY at Best Buy!!! I dreamt up all sorts of ways to fight back against this evil empire; I dreamt I withheld my weekly sales figures from certain terrorist factions! Egad!

Michael Kurtz, President, The Music Monitor Network

What I am hearing from record stores is that everyone is stunned that U2 would sell out and let themselves be used by big corporations. What in the hell happened to them? By limiting access to this DVD to one of the biggest corporations in the country they've simply turned their backs on their fans and the music stores that loved them! It's so weird and so unlike U2. It's sad.

Jeff Davidson, Purchasing Manager, HMV U.S. Corporate

The latest venture by MVD/ Interscope is just a continuation of distribution being afraid to raise its voice against label heads who are afraid to raise there voice against artists and their management. For U2's management to so blatantly tip the scales towards one retailer shows a lack of respect to all of the retailers who helped to put U2 on the continued on page 48

map. I question how much thought went into this decision and to how it will deter retailers from promoting this title and future U2 releases.

Rand Foster, Owner, Fingerprints and President of LINCS Coalition

That Interscope, U2, and the other companies involved in this promotion think that any retailer is going to let something like this slip by quietly, is indicative of how out of touch they are. A promotion of this nature serves only to redirect independent retail customers to a "most favored" retailer, it has little (positive) impact on overall sales, its biggest impact is on non-participating retailers and their relationships with the participating companies.

John Artale, Director Of Purchasing, NRM

UMVD has made a decision that one retailer is the retailer of choice. We will watch SoundScan and reformulate our orders as things develop.

Alayna Hill-Alderman, Owner, Record Archive

After much debate we have decided to completely ban reporting our weekly sales numbers on our chart. With recent events pointing to a sellout by one of our all time fav bands getting in bed with a major chain who partnered with a major media conglomerate who owns a trade industry rag we just don't feel it appropriate to share anymore. Understand? Shit, we don't either — the message is we will do whatever necessary to protect our business. [Ed. note ----Record Archive is still reporting to CMJ Retail]

Terry Currier, Owner, Music Millennium

I feel like a whore. I've been fucked by the band that I have loved for the past 21 years. I thought I would at least feel some pleasure, but I don't! Oh,

Terry Currier

Wait, I'm not a whore, I've been raped by the band that released an album called Boy in 1980 that I personally played over and over in my store, turning customers into fans of this unknown but incredible band from Ireland. The same band that played to less than 300 people at a club in my town. I used to feel inside that I played some small part in helping this band make it. I've been raped by a band that I felt not only made great music but lived by great principles. October and War followed and the excitement and pleasure of listening to their music and turning on music fans to their music mounted. Now, I don't feel so good about my love for their music. Now, I wonder if I had been deceived. Maybe it was my fault for putting too much belief in this band. Or maybe fame and fortune changed them. Maybe the band has become too big and decisionmaking given up to their manager. Or perhaps, (and I hope I never find this to be true) they succumbed to the evil powers of money? I don't think I can listen to their music today to find the answer. I need to hear it from the band: "Bono, what's the deal? I didn't do anything wrong. I was at your side when vou needed me most. I was there when no one else cared in helping to make believers in your music. I was there when you made it and I stayed with you all these many years. I thought I might have gotten a better 21st anniversary present than this for the long relationship we've had." Now I'm going though all the emotions of a relationship that just ended-tears, anger and remorse. Maybe we will talk again down the road, but it can never be the same.

before determining if there will be any change in how we promote their developing artists in future. We certainly will not promote any U2 product. It seems each new day now brings another move by a label or distributor to sell in advance of, or around independent music retail. I expect such moves to accelerate with the launch of online subscription services, which will practically require the lure of early availability and exclusive content to acquire sufficient customers to be profitable. In a rush to generate publicity and short term revenue, all these efforts, from Bowie's early release to digital download, to TV pre-street date offers, buy it from VH1 for early access, and exclusives for one physical retailer, have one thing in common. They ignore the needs of the most important link in the chain - the music consumer.

"Bono, what's the deal? I didn't do anything wrong. I was at your side when you needed me most."

Carl Singermaster, Owner, Manifest Discs

As for Manifest we aren't going to stock the U2 DVD and VHS. And we are purging our inventory of all titles on Best Buy's Redline label. Best Buy crossed a line they never should have crossed if they also want to be in the content production business. We are awaiting more information from Interscope Consumers respond to simplicity, not hurdles to access. When they get excited about music they expect to get it from their preferred music retailer in their preferred format. If, instead, they are forced to behave six different ways to get six different performances the natural response is to raise their middle finger and elect to take all they can get for free, the rest be damned.

Controversy Erupts Over U2/Interscope/Best Buy Deal

major bunker-buster was dropped on the music retail community last week when it was disclosed that an exclusive deal had been cut between Best Buy, Clear Channel, VH1, DirecTV, Interscope Records and U2 for the band's upcoming live two-disc DVD titled Elevation 2001: U2 Live From Boston (DVD $32.98 list price; VHS $19.98 list price). The DVD will be broadcast on VH1 as a world premiere on Nov. 23 at 9 p.m. ET, followed by repeat performances that weekend. According to the band's official website, the U2 premiere will also be available via a non-exclusive radio simulcast available to any station wishing to air the special program. During the month of December the concert will also be aired a number of times on DirecTV.

U2: Business smarts or blatant sell-outs?

Inside sources say the deal was proposed directly to U2 and its management by the consortium of entertainment marketing partners mentioned above (sans Interscope). When the deal was first proposed it was under the condition that Best Buy would have a total exclusive for the life of the DVD. Once Interscope was brought into the picture, both label and management raised concerns as to how other retailers would respond. These concerns led to the decision to allow Best Buy an exclusive two-week window that would start on Nov. 20, with the rest of the music retail community allowed to sell the title starting on Dec. 4. The idea was to leave in place the full amount of marketing funds so that all music retailers could benefit during the holiday selling season. Best Buy, VH1, DirecTV, and Clear Channel have committed to spending big bucks (the number of $10 million is being thrown around) to promote the DVD.

U2 was unavailable for comment, but Mike Linton, Senior VP of Strategic Marketing for Best Buy stated, "Best Buy has been doing these kinds of events all along. Last year we sponsored the Sting concert in Central Park and during the summer we had a 'Back To School' event with Moby. We will be doing a special 'N Sync 'Bobble Head' promotion for the new 'N Sync album, with $1 million of the money raised going to charity. We want to connect our brand with entertainment. Best Buy is the market leader in DVD sales and we look at the U2 promotion as event marketing. We are creating alliances with many different entertainment companies in order to put on an event like this that has meaning for our customers."

Here is a portion of the Best Buy press release that was issued on Nov. 5: "As part of Best Buy's dedication to bring music fans the best in entertainment, the company has aligned with U2 for special promotions this holiday season. Beginning Tuesday, Nov. 20, shoppers will be able to purchase U2's DVD, Elevation 2001: U2 Live From Boston, exclusively at Best Buy for the first two weeks of its release. Best Buy will also offer the re-issue of U2's Best Of 1980-1990 limited edition two-CD set, which includes the B-sides. Thanksgiving weekend, shoppers can add to their U2 collection when Best Buy offers an exclusive U2 CD sampler free to the first 500 customers at stores nationwide on Nov. 24. The sampler includes 'Beautiful Day,' 'Gone,' and 'I Will Follow,' previously unreleased live tracks from the DVD."

One source also stated that the intentions behind this promotion were to "blow up" a new configuration in DVD and that the bulk of the promotion would be impacting in December. The music retailer would be benefiting from all this exposure and that would outweigh the window of exclusivity given to Best Buy.

The response from retailers has been swift. Tower Records reportedly cancelled its order for the DVD and VHS, as did the Virgin MegaStores. Glen Ward, President/CEO of the Virgin Entertainment Group states, "This is a very serious issue that is irresponsible on the part of all parties involved. It is a restriction on the marketplace and an unfair practice. We have invested many dollars and support in promoting new artists and catalog and find this action to be shortsighted by the principles involved. Virgin MegaStores will not be stocking the new U2 DVD or VHS title. We have also reviewed all other U2 product and we will not be featuring those titles in our stores."

"This is a very serious issue that is irresponsible on the part of all parties involved. It is a restriction on the marketplace and an unfair practice." – Glen Ward, Virgin Megastores

Other accounts like Wherehouse have cut back their orders to the bare minimum. As Don Van Cleeve, President of CIMS (The Coalition Of Independent Music Stores) observed, "U2 fans are one of the most street sensitive fans out there. If this band has a new release, their fans want it the first week it's out." We at CMJ felt that we should give retail a forum to speak its own mind about these events. Their comments start in the "Speak Out" section on page 46 and continue on the following page. — Mark Cope

UNDER THE RADAR Column by Gerry Hart • ghart@cmj.com

AFI The Art Of Drowning (Nitro 15835) Distributor: Caroline

A year ago, AFI's star was noticeably on the rise. The hardcore punk foursome had been touring almost without interruption since it first emerged from the Bay Area scene in the mid '90s, and as result, it's 1999 Nitro Records release, Black Sails In The Sunset, had finally hit a respectable 40,000 in indie-distributed sales. But no one could have predicted the year that Black Sails' follow-up, The Art of Drowning, would bring.

Released in September 2000 to barely-contained fan excitement, Drowning debuted at No. 9 on Billboard's Heatseekers chart and snuck into the bottom of the Billboard 200, but just as quickly slipped back into the pool and off the major industry radars. Fortunately, Nitro's been doing all the right things since. After an initially limited booking on the Warped Tour 2000 (a few Midwest dates), tour founder Kevin Lyman bumped up the band to the main stage for the remainder of that year's leg and then crowned the band headliners for the 2001 run. Since then Nitro has watched The Art of Drowning's sales spike sixty percent (and counting). In addition, sales of Black Sails have doubled, and AFI's much sought-after All Hallows EP has sold 50,000 copies to date. Nearly every one of the band shows is a soldout, merch-peddlers dream.

And the story doesn't end here. After a year of banging on commercial radio's great Wittenberg doors, and with only a few low-spin add-takers in the first couple months (Live105, KXRK, KWOD, WOXY, 91X, and more recently Phoenix's KEDJ), Nitro's Sean Ziebarth pulled off the grand indie coup of the year when he dragged KROQ's

Lisa Worden (MD) and Gene Sandbloom (APD) to AFI's sellout L.A. performance on Oct. 4. The two were so impressed that KROQ added Drowning single "The Days Of Phoenix" a week later and christened it with a first week, 17-spins radio rebirth. Nationwide re-adds and more first-time adds are likely to follow in the coming months.

Now with every national retail program Nitro can get their hands on ready to go at such heavyweights as Tower, LNCS, Best Buy, Transworld, and Wherehouse, this record — which even before KROQ's conversion had sold nearly 80,000 copies (and shipped 50,000 more) — is ready to explode.

On Jan. 22 Nitro will release its third label compilation, Punkzilla, which will include enhanced video content for "The Days Of Phoenix," available for the first time to fans at $4.98 list. A DVD collection of AFI live shows, videos, interviews, and in-studio outtakes of their upcoming 2002 release will be available this summer. Stay tuned. The Art of Drowning may be a year old, but it and AFI's future are just getting started.

DITV was founded in 1972 by owner/president Steve Hyland, and now includes four Minneapolis suburban locations in Wayzata, Crystal, Maple Grove and Golden Valley (DITV's flagship). The atmosphere is similar to record stores of the '70s, and employees strive for the best in customer service without the typical indie store attitude. The V.I.P. club — 20,000 members strong - offers discounts and membersonly quarterly sales. DITV also carries related apparel and merchandise, as well as lava lamps, import posters, candles, toys, local consignments, independents, imports, special orders, and Minnesota's largest selection of Dead merchandise. Past in-stores include Mötley Crüe, Dio, Staind, Limp Bizkit, Pantera, Deftones, Sevendust and Korn. They also offer several marketing opportunities for labels, including programs with direct mail, listening stations, local press, cable television, and radio stations.

NEWS AND UPDATES

DEATH OF A FAN October 15 of this year was a regular day for most people, but a chapter in the music Book of Life ended. John Candus, a life long music fanatic, died at Dallas's Baylor Hospital of cancer. His story is not about sickness but about a life of music. A former retailer, John previously spent many years at Disc Records, a Dallas/Ft Worth chain. He started as a clerk and worked his way up the ladder, topping out as the head of operations. In a business filled with accountants, lawyers, bloodsuckers (this category may take care of the first two), musician wannabes and celebrity sponges, he stood alone. For decades he has been there at the beginning of many careers. At 48 he was long past the target demographic.

John was an individual; he hadn't cut his hair or beard in 25 years and he never took a drug in his life. Though his tastes were wide, the focus for his musical adoration was on four guys from Rockford, Illinois: Cheap Trick. He answered the call, "Hello there ladies and gentlemen, are you ready to rock?!" After years of following the music, and the band, John became known among the rest of the crew as an almost fifth-Beatle to Cheap Trick. Whether riding on the U.S. tour bus, taking photographs of the band's life onstage and off, or flying out with them for a Japanese tour, John was a welcomed part of their entourage for many years.

But John wasn't in it to hang with stars; these guys were his friends. From the height of Cheap Trick's arena-popularity to their less-than-sold-out shows of recent years, John's passion for the band never wavered, never moved with the ebb and flow of their popularity. Five years ago the band convinced John to handle their merchandising, and the band never left him. Rick Nielson, Bun E. Carlos, and Tom Petersson, along with Rick's son Daxx, were at his funeral for his final goodbye. Rick Nielson asked the throng of friends and family who gathered for "A moment of silence for the passing of our friend," adding, "A big part of Cheap Trick's music died with John."

Many people collect the music of bands only to waver later, but few bands have fans that span their career, and fewer still collect a fan and friend like John Candus. John was a life long family man and is survived by his wife of 27 years, Mindy, and his 16 year-old daughter Jennifer. Jennifer and Mindy were both veterans of many Cheap Trick tour dates themselves — truly a family affair. R.I.P.: John an all access pass is waiting for you.

— Curtis Hawkins

VALLEY MEDIA: BEDTIME STORIES

Let's just say that if you were reading Valley's Book of Life, you'd be somewhere between Chapter 6 and Chapter 14 right now. Stay tuned, we'll have more to say shortly.

MICHAEL JACKSON: LIKE A VIRGIN?

Add to Virgin Megastores' growing list of never-done-aninstore-until-now alumni's Mr. Michael Jackson, who descended onto NYC's Time Square store on Nov. 7 (Virgin hosted Madonna's first ever, and Moby's rare two and a half hour Q&A appearance at Virgin last year). A success? In the words of Virgin CEO, Glen Ward, "It was just one of those things. The arrangement for the event was hasty, so it had spontaneity, plus Michael handled the whole event with grace, patience, and humor." The crowd, who slept overnight, and wrapped several city blocks to catch a glimpse, seemed, well, invigorated-NYC was ready for this kind of distraction.
