Intro

Game Plan: Breaking The Beehive

n some ways it's another one of those offbeat success stories. The difference is, this one hasn't actually happened yet. The story so far: Two sisters from Encino (the daughters of one of the Four Preps—howzat for a wrinkle?) move to London, where they put together a band with three male Englishmen. The quintet, Voice of the Beehive, wins a following for its live shows and puts out a momentum-building indie single. Several English companies court the band, with London Records winning out. London releases three successful singles, then comes with the Beehive's debut album, Let It Ree

The plot thickens as London Records in the U.S. likes what it hears in the grooves of Let It Bee. The American label's marketing and promotion staffs feel they can launch Voice of the Beehive via college radio and progressive AOR in '88, then cross the band to CHR after the new year. In October, London/PolyGram releases the album in the U.S., focusing initially on the rocker "I Say Nothing." The gambit works, as CMJ and Gavin excitedly talk up the cut, the LP, the band. Once the Beehive is widely perceived as a rock group, PolyGram will come with the classic pop record "Don't Call Me Baby," the album's ace in the hole. At the same time—January or February—they'll bring the band over for a club tour, spreading the progressive/alternative base.

PolyGram product manager John Mazzacco and national progressive promotion manager Tim Hyde are charged with the primary responsibility of carrying out the Beehive master plan. They seem to genuinely like the record, which makes it that much easier to work—and that much more exciting when (make that if) it happens.

"Right now," Hyde explains, "John and I are working on developing an image and establishing a retail base. At the same time, we're trying to convince Top 40 that the band is for real, that it's not just ear candy."

Says Mazzacco: "What seems to happens with this band is that at first glance it appears that they're B-52-ish or Bangle-ish. But really, what we've got here is a band that can perform, their songs are accessible, they're right on the money pop-wise... The more people hear it, the more they love it. At the same time, we're trying to get the idea across that this isn't a fabricated band; they can do kickass shows as well. The direction we're taking right now is just full charge at college and alternative, and hopefully, we're gonna cross over naturally."

But why put the album out in October, when the competition (which includes a somewhat comparable Bangles album) is so fierce? Why not simply wait until January, when the smoke has cleared? "We had a great response in England for the band," says Mazzacco, "and we wanted to capitalize on the buzz over there. Pardon the pun."

Best-case scenario for Voice of the Beehive? That's easy: a hip cachet paired with an out-of-the-box hit single. Didn't the Police, the Pretenders and the Cars start out this way?

MCA Records Firings, Reorganization

LOS ANGELES-MCA Record company, under the leadership of recently appointed president Al Teller, has embarked on a series of firings apparently designed to cut Eners and centralize the companies marketing and A&R thrusts. The company's New York-based Uni label staff has been let go, with the exception of headman David Simone. *Aiso fired was the entire MCA jazz staff, reportedly 88 persons, with the  ception of L.A. head Ricky Schultz. Undisclosed numbers of New York and L.A. A&R and marketing middle and upper management staffers. The L.A.-based Unicity Music Publishing has been dismantled, with its writers apparently going to MCA publish-Estimates of total dismissals in these areas have ranged from 40-100+ persons. Exact breakdowns were not available at press. Among the prominent personnel released were Unicity publishing founder Kathleen Carey, and Uni Records' Kaiser.

Uni apparently will relocate to Los Angeles after January, with an A&R intensive staff including Simone and London-based Mark Dean, who signed Soft Sell and Wham! No acts on the label have been dropped.

Additionally, MCA's marketing departments will be consolidated on the west coast. Richard Palmese, MCA executive v.p. marketing and promotion, announced the appointment of Geoff Bywater and Jeffrey Jones as VP's of marketing for their west and east coast offices respectively. Bywater had served as VP of A&R at EMI. Jones is 12 year CBS veteran, most recently serving as director of product marketing. According to MCA sources, the men will "develop and implement marketing plans for all MCA releases including Jazz, Classical, and Uni Records." More appointments are soon to be announced.

Al Teller, MCA Records president, said that "(the new) structure will foster more effective working relationships between the A&R centers of MCA Records and the company's marketing and promotion team. It will result in stronger, more creative artist development strategies and marketing campaigns."

U.S., Soviet Songwriters Speak Same Language

By Karen Woods

NEW YORK—Twenty-five American musicians recently returned from a two-week trip to the Soviet Union for a first-ever songwriters summit called Music Speaks Louder Than Words.

The program, sponsored by BMI, the American Field Service, the National Academy of Songwriters and the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, was the brainchild songwriter/producer Alan Roy Scott, with help from Finnish concert promotor Antero Paivailainen and Los Angeles events coordinator Robyn Whitney. The list of participating songwriters and musicians is a prestigious one, including Gregory bott, Michael Bolton, Desmond Child, Emmanuel, Albert Hammond, Holly Knight, Cyndi Lauper, Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller, Barry Mann, Franke Previte, Brenda Russell, Wendy Waldman and Dianne War-

The end result of the conference will be a compilation album, due out on Epic this summer. It will be coproduced by Epic senior vice president Don Grierson, who also went along on the trip. The royalties from the record will be awarded to both American and Soviet writers, and a portion of the proceeds will be donated to AFS, to sponsor an exchange program between American and Russian students. According to Rick Sanjek, BMI assistant vice president for writer-publisher relations, there is a strong possibility that the record will be released in both English and Russian, and a concert tour is in the works as well. Melodia, the Soviet state record company, will be handling the record on the Moscow side of the project.

Gregory Abbott, one of the musicians who participated in the summit, said the trip was the sort of thing that happens only once in a lifetime. "I got involved initially because it sounded like a good cause," he explained. 'The cause being one, to open up the world music scene to the Soviet writers who up until a couple years ago were not able to publicly play rock and roll or whatever style of music they did, and secondly to further another good cause, the exchange program between American and Soviet students." He said he didn't expect the experience to have the kind of impact it had, however. 'Barry Mann called me the other day, and he said it was like being in Vietnam, like being in the war together. The way soldiers came back from Vietnam, and there is this bond they share, this unique ex-

The summit itself was held in the Rossiya Hotel in Moscow, a hotel so large that Abbott said "by the time you walked from your room to the dining room you were hungry." Participants had keyboards, pianos and other instruments at their disposal, and most had had a chance to hear the work of their Russian counterparts before they went over by exchanging tapes. "I selected a writer I really wanted to work with, a guy named Sergei Manoukian," Abbott said. "He was sort of a cross between Ray Charles, Joe Cocker and Jose Feliciano, a real soulful man."

The songwriters had a chance to work with a number of people, via a lottery system, and Abbott said they discovered that the barriers they expected to encounter dissolved quite quickly. "None of us spoke Russian, and they didn't speak any English, so we got into alternative forms of communication, like body language. It's amazing how easily you can communicate with someone through body language. But musically, we understood each other perfectly. We did have interpreters, but they weren't really needed. We needed them more after we finished writing. How do we get to the elevator, stuff like that.

"But the actual writing experience brought home to all of us just how powerful music is in terms of breaking down language barriers, geographical barriers, political barriers, ethnic barriers—music shoots straight to the heart, and we came a way with a lot of friendships among the Russian writers that will continue long after this project is completed."

On a more personal level, Abbott said it brought back to all of the songwriters involved the original reason they are all doing this in the first place. "None of us got involved in this for economic reasons. But it's strange, after you've achieved a certain amount of success, your life becomes different, and you can lose track of that original spark, the motivation that got you into it in the first place. The initial motivation for me is that this is what I have to do, I have to make music. And that's the way the Russians are. That's what they gave back to us.

"I had absolutely no idea what I would come away with. My ideas of the Soviet Union all came from James Bond movies, or Moscow on the Hudson. I had no clear idea of who and what the Russian people were. What I found is that Russians or Americans or anyone who can hear can recognize a pretty sound, no matter what language its in. You may not be able to understand the lyrics but you can feel it. On the most basic, uncomplicated level, this is where you can see that there is nothing that separates us except lack of knowledge."

COAST TO COAST

WANT TO BE A PART OF IT—Since I spent the last week in New York City (on vacation, not business), I found it difficult to come up with a West Coast column for this week. Instead, I've opted for a West Coast perspective on the East Coast, from someone who's just taken his first trip to the Big Apple. (Yes, it was my first trip).

I was certain that I would wind up in Pittsburgh if I took the subway to my Brooklyn destination, so when I arrived at John F. Kennedy Airport after a grueling red-eye flight from L.A.X. I opted to take a cab. But instead of a cabbie, I stumbled upon an old guy from New Orleans who offered to drive me into town in his Ford Fairmont for a mere $20. I accepted.

On the drive to the home of my host, Spin senior editor (and Cash Box alumnus) Joe Levy, I found myself engulfed in the most massive attack of culture shock I had ever encountered: this city alive, even at 6 a.m.

Jet-lag notwithstanding, I immediately headed from Brooklyn to Manhattan to see what this place was all about. The subway system was by no means the beast I expected: it was relatively clean and resembled a Disneyland ride (which satisfied any homesick yearnings I may have been feeling).

On November 16, I was wandering down 42nd Street in Times Square when my attention was quickly drawn to a high school marching band playing the strains of "It's A Small World" in front of the Marriot Marquis. I pushed my way to the front of the crowd to get a better view of what was going on when all of the sudden mass cheers and screams were directed to a darkened figure emerging from a limousine. The guest of honor had emerged, and it was none other than Mickey Mouse, who was celebrating his 60th birthday in the city that premiered his film debut "Steamboat Willie" in 1928. Manhattan borough president David N. Dinkins addressed the crowd and officially proclaimed November 16 "Mickey Mouse Day" in New York City. (A high point was when former Mouseketeers' Bobby and Sherry, from the original Mickey Mouse Club, led the crowd in singing "Happy Birthday" to M. Mouse.) Later in the event, I learned the true meaning of a "Bronx Cheer" when a letter was read from "President-elect" George Bush congratulating the geriatric mouse. The crowd quickly dis-

Wandering in the midst of hectic Times Square, I felt not unlike Mary Tyler Moore standing on a street corner and tossing her hat in the air. (But since I wasn't wearing a lid—and this wasn't Minneapolis—that feeling quickly laded). This definitely was not L.A.

For the most part my sightseeing consisted of trips to the tops of the Empire State Building and the Twin Towers. I spent the majority of my free time sitting in Union Square, feeding the squirrels and marveling in the fact that seasons actually change in other parts of the world.

The only show I managed to sneak off to was The Dream Syndicate's stand at the Bottom Line. I attended, along with my companion Karen Woods (the latest scribe to join the Cash Box family), as the guest of Enigma's Tom Cording and Pam Newman, who were also on the East Coast on business (I think it took Cording a while to forgive me for missing the previous evening's Al Stewart concert—although I tried to explain that it was nothing personal, it's just that the song "Year of The Cat" gives me a rash). Anyway, The Dream Syndicate's show was pretty damn impressive, and very well received from the intimate NYC crowd. The opening act, former Television-er Richard Lloyd, received a great crowd response for his powerful

My trek back to Southern Cal was not a pleasant one. After arriving at the airport over two hours before my departure time (because I had overestimated the length of my subway ride), it was announced that my flight would be delayed because of the sudden rainstorm. Once we finally boarded the plane, the captain informed us that we would not be able to take off for a while due to the hairy weather conditions. We were not allowed to leave the plane at any time, so I found myself reading every magazine available: learning everything from Oprah Winfrey's diet secrets to "the mysteries of mystical

A full four hours later we took off. The ride home was quite gruesome, especially since the in-flight movie was Crocodile Dundee II (which, fortunately, I slept through). After arriving back home, a friend and I made a quick detour to Gorky's Cafe for an after-midnight loxand-onion omelette, making me realize that it wasn't so bad to be home.

Unfortunately, upon returning to the office I found a press release was taped to my wall waiting for me—it listed the dates for upcoming honorees by the Hollywood Walk of Fame, including Barbara Eden, Tony Danza, Tim Conway and Stephanie Powers (Mr. Jimmy Stewart has yet to be honored). God, I love New York.

HE YEAR OF THE CAT is not the only song Al Stewart ever did, but it was, as he says, the one that almost made him a pop star. Stewart has a new record out on Enigma, called The End of the Century, and played New York's Bottom Line last week in support of it. It was a good show: he played "that song," of course, along with the slightly eeric "Time Passages" and a lot of material off the new record. He's put together a rather good band, including Peter White, who "writes the music," on various instruments: guitar, piano, accordian. Highlight of the show was White going bananas on the piano, and sax player Dave Camp doing the wandering minstrel thing, serenading audience members here and there. Funny thing—every one I've talked to since has bad memories associated with 'Year of the Cat." Mine has to do with learning to drive, and my mother sitting in the passenger seat. With her hands over her eyes.

NIGHTMARES—This was Enigma week at The Bottom Line, I guess, because Stewart's labelmates
The Dream Syndicate took the stage the following night. I didn't miss a beat of the entire set, but I'll let my LA doppelganger tell all about this show. He took notes; I was too busy absorbing the razoredged guitars, bitter bass lines and Steve Wynn's angst-choked vocals.
At one point, Wynn told the audience "happy songs are the ones where you don't die, at the end," and that about sums it up. After losing Green on Red and The Long Ryders, it's comforting to see one of the first-wave LA bands is still kick-

"A' FOR EFFORT—New York University's Music Business and Technology Program has released its first MBT Records album, called Square One. MBT Records is a student-run operation, from start to finish; the album was recorded and mixed at NYU's 16-track studio, and the four bands on the compilation—The New York Indigos, The Wilmingtons, The Connotations and Satire—are all affiliated with the university. Great idea, great experience, great program. Unfortunately, the record is not great. It's not even good, mostly because a plethora of the sins of a sloppy band can be hidden by a good engineer, or solved by a good producer. These four bands had neither, and the recording itself needs work. It sounds like the bottom fell out. Of the four, The Indigos are the only band I would go see after listening to Square One. I feel like a schmuck trashing a student project, but business and technology aren't the only aspects of the music industry. The third element is aesthetics.

PICKS AND PANS—The award for the stoopidest concept album of the year has to go to Laibach, for Let it Be. Three guesses what the concept is, and the first two don't count. This is exactly what I needed to hear first thing in the morning: militaristic chant-covers of Beatles tunes by guys in SS uniforms. I didn't appréciate Laibach's dubious charms last year; I still don't ... On the plus side: Another Camper Van Beethoven side project has come out on Rough Trade. First it was the Monks of Doom, and now violinistguitarist Jonathan Segal's solo record. A double, yet. I was sceptical; this seems more like ego than necessity, n'est-ce pas? Not so-this is good stuff. Kinda Camperish, kinda folky, even kinda new age-y in places. This really is what I needed to hear first thing in the morning. Various Camper members make appearances on this record, called Storytelling, as does an Ophelia, a couple members of the Invertebrate Combat Orchestra and a Wrestling Worm. If you're unfamiliar with the Bay Area music scene, these are bands, not strange insects. I also like the closing sleeve comment: "I love long life better than figs, not because I wanted to, just because I had to." Hmmm ... Most-overplayed record this week, also on Rough Trade via 4AD: The Wolfgang Press, Bird Wood Cage. Best tracks: "King of Soul," and "Kansas." Disappointment of the week: the Scrooged soundtrack. The only really good cut on this one is the AI Green-Annie Lennox duet (and the single, thankfully), "Put A Little Love In Your Heart."

There's NO place like Manhattan in the Fall.

The Buzz From The Beehive

By Lisa Johnson and Bud Scoppa

oice of the Beehive is not another one of those London-based fashion acts that causes a stir for three weeks and then disappears. Purveying a sound that's hip but thoroughly engaging, the group is not only extremely tuneful but uncommonly intelligent. L.A.-bred sisters Tracey and Melissa (last name unstressed), who lead the five-piece band, write smart, catchy pop songs that open to reveal unexpected emotional depth. And they sing their songs with heart, brains and genetic harmonies. Not only does the album dramatically manifest all these strengths, the band is devastating on stage. The two frontwomen also give good interview, as you'll see in the following Q&A, which took place over muchas margaritas in a Mexican restaurant a stone's throw from PolyGram's West Coast offices in Burbank.

Trust us this one time: Voice of the Beehive is a band to watch closely in the coming months. From where we sit, the Beehive has BIG IN THE STATES written all over it. We'll Enter Tracey and Melissa Beehive. Understatement is not in their vocabulary. They settle into the booth, crinoline petticoats taking up most of the room, as Tracey removes her rhinestone tiara and relays some of their adventures.

Tracey: We went to Gelson's today and got all the stuff that we can't get back home.

Melissa: I have a suitcase of food to bring home. Tracey: We got low-cal ranch dressing, sloppy joe mix, Duncan Hines cake mix, guacamole dip, stuff like that. CB: Then it's no coincidence your first single, "Just a City," was released on Food Ltd., a British indie label.

Melissa: Yeah. And it fits in perfect with the Beehive, 'cause we love to eat.

Tracey: It's ironic too. I wrote "Just a City" when I came back to America about how I wanted to be in London but 'cause I didn't have the money, I never saw myself doing it. So that's why it's ironic the first single in London was on Food. Now the guy who released it on the Food label is our manager [Andy Ross].

I remember, Andy heard the demo, and called me three times a day. He would not get off my back. And finally, I thought, This guy! Who is he? And I felt so much pressure from him, well, we better get working. We already had the drive, but he really kicked us in, it's like, come on. And he was especially fond of "Just A City."

Melissa: Andy and David Balfe, the founders of the Food record label and our managers now, did have faith, and they were consistent in their belief in the band. They'd help us out, take us out for meals and things. It was literally, "Tracey's looking a bit pale..."

Tracey: Not a fancy meal. Like a coffee shop, when I said "I don't have any money."

Melissa: That was a big help. I mean, they didn't have to feed us, but they did.

CB: How did you get the legendary Hugh Jones to produce your first single?

*Tracey: He's a friend of our manager, David Balfe. He does what he wants, and not what's commercial. He had engineered Adam & the Ants, and produced Echo & the Bunnymen, Siouxie & the Banchees, and That Petrol Emotion's first record Manic Pop Thrill-all the "pop music" that I really liked. And he liked us.

Melissa: It was weird, because the same night Hugh came to see us, the guys from Madness came to see us. And these are three of my idols sitting there. It was absolutely terrifying. And again, it just happened to us. He liked it and said "can I do it?" It was like an honor.

CB: What was your motivation for going to England? Tracey: I'd wanted to live somewhere different for a while, so I went to Europe. And I ended up liking London the best. And the first year or two, even though I was working in a pub, I was fascinated by the city, I still am.

Melissa: She was there with her boyfriend Brad [Nack], who wrote "I Walk The Earth." I came about six months after Tracey had been there, just to visit her, and we made this demo tape we'd been taking about doing. We shopped it around, and I came home. And then the demo started to get interest, and she called me and said, "People are calling me and asking for this band." Well, Tracey: I just kept going, "Well the band is going to play in about a month..." We don't have a band, oh well...

Melissa: This is the little spark that we have been waiting for. So I moved over. When I got there the trash really freaked me out. Not having a Gelson's...

CB: Before you signed with London, who else was interested in signing you?

Tracey: We got to meet [I.R.S. Records chairman] Miles Copeland; he took us out to lunch.

Melissa: Several times.

Tracey: Heavy name-dropping here. Miles took us to a really good Italian restaurant. Not really good...It looked a lot like this. Just a nice Italian meal. And Richard Branson [who owns Virgin Records] took us out for din-

Melissa: An incredible Japanese meal.

Tracey: Very over the top, very expensive. The funny thing about this was we barely had money to take the bus to the restaurant. And we barely had money to get home. And here we are spending 30 pounds on a meal. I just felt like going, Forget the shrimp. Give me a fiver so I can pay my rent this week, and we'll talk business. But that's where, to me, things were getting out of perspective. Anyway, Richard Branson admitted he didn't know anything about the music side of Virgin, and he didn't know anything about our music. But I appreciated that he didn't lie. Feally nice man, very down to earth. I thought he was brilliant.

Melissa Even more honest than him was Miles Copeland. Love him or hate him, he sat down and said.

"Before we order, let's start. I'm here to make money off you, and this is how I think we can do it." And it was truth. I respected that. He was not going to fuck around So often you go to talk business and it will take two hours and ten drinks before you ever talk about anything that you came to talk about. I appreciated that he didn't faff.

Tracey: You know what faffing is? It comes from the studio where you say, "Let's just try this." And before you know, you're hooking up all kinds of equipment and you've gotten completely out of perspective what you were gonna try. And that's faffing. They have a fakill meter at our studio that goes ding ding. You set it yourself depending on how tired you are and how much you're wasting time.

CB: How did you eventually come to sign with London Records?

Tracey: We went for one night with them. One dinner They were saying, "come on girls, we really want you to sign." And they took us out and got us smashed on sake Melissa:—and plum wine and whisky and champagne-

Tracey: That we ended up singing a cappella in the bar to the A&R man who's going, "Sing 'Man in the Moon," sing 'Man in the Moon'." We were so shit-faced! "All right, let's sing it. We really think this will be great..."

Melissa: It was great, twice. The third time they escorted us out of the bar.

Tracey: One thing that impressed us about London is that they brought down the entire company, which is about 25 of the nucleus of the company.

Melissa: This was for lunch.

Tracey: And you got to see the press guy, the TV guy, the radio guy. Any questions, you ask them directly.

Melissa: So the elbow knew what the shoulder was doing, the shoulder knew what the head was do Everybody was there at the same time. But anybody car tell you anything they want to at lunch. How do you know if someone's lying? How do you judge? Richard Branson had the best pasta, therefore we sign with him?

Tracey: They will look right at you and lie.

Melissa: But London were young people who were eccentially hungry, and involved in the undergrouses scene to some extent. They were not 45-year-old A&F men smoking fat cigars. Also, since they have a band like Bananarama, they've covered the sexy corset side of the industry. We reckoned they wouldn't want to change us as much as other labels.

Tracey: When we sat down with them the first thing we said was, "If you want us in miniskirts, corsets and fishnets, forget it. We're just not that way. We go for the awkward sexuality, the awkward look-

Melissa: The bag lady look.

Tracey: "—If you're looking for blatant big-boob 'get-your-tits-out' kind of thing, this is the wrong band. We're not going to sing fuckmefuckme songs. If you want sexy, it's in the confidence. So if you want to mold somebody into sexy little girls, there's no way.

Melissa: I think sexuality is healthy, appealing and normal. But it's the Sam Fox Syndrome that is so cheap, And just so common.

CB:Why go all the way to London? Why didn't to start a band in L.A.?

Melissa: I think if we had done it here we would have been aware of the stiff competition and the unrealistic possibility of making it in a band. When we moved to London it was like we didn't know any better. I had moved, and I was not going to spend six months muck-

Tracey: Also, in London there are so many bands, it was thriving and we thought, Well, this looks good. There seemed to be interest in the indie music scene, so why not? Also, London kinda chose us in that we made that tape and it got interest so we didn't really have to hit the CB: So you never actually peddled your wares before staking that first demo?

Melissa: No, oh no. Our first gig got reviewed [in the NME] and it was my first time on stage—ever. And there were A&R people there. How they found out, I don't know.

CB: What did you do to attract attention to yoursel-·ves?

Tracey: We would get all dressed up for interviews. Melissa: There's a funny story. Our first A&R meeting. Tracey had a friend who worked in a copying shop. One day he got a printing job from a guy at 1.R.S Records. It said, "I'm looking for a pop-oriented band with girls.'

Tracey: He just happened to read what he was copying and called us up and said, "You got that demo?" So we called the guy and said, "Well, our friend was Xeroxyour memo, and would you mind talking to us?' So we went down.

We were so naive at that point. He said bring photos, so we took some in a photo booth. And we brought our guitar to play him the songs. Somebody walks into an A&R meeting with a guitar, "Hey, I'd like to play you a few songs..." Don't call us, we'll call you.

Melissa: We just didn't know any better. I kept waiting for him to play the tape and he didn't. And I thought, Ohmygod, he already hates us...and these photos are crap...

Tracey: And we brought a can of beer for him thinking, he can have the beer, relax and listen to us sing, you

Melissa: We just didn't know any better. And I was utterly panicked when we went in there. How are we gonna sing? We'd practiced and practiced...

Tracey: ... so much to do this live vocal performance. Melissa: And the decision to get to what to wear down fere! We were literally in tears panicking about it.

Tracey: We didn't have the money for killer things. Tracey: Before we went out we would ask Brad, "What do you think of this?" And we can't move our necks and our hair is just right, "What do you think? Is it alright?" And he's shaking his head. "You are never going to do Ti.

Melissa: Finally, Brad said, "What did you have on sterday? Wear it. It's normal. Just wear it."

That was too much. The guy from I.R.S. never did pick up on the interest, but he was the first person we got to Tracey: He called and said, "I really like the demo, but to be frankly brutal, you need a band." But he said the "đemo was fine.

CB: Did any songs from this first demo wind up on ur Let It Bee album?

Tracey: "Just a City" and an old verion of "The Beat of Melissa: It didn't have half the verses or the rap.

Tracey: Mike [Jones], our guitar player, made it on a porta-studio. But there were two songs on our tape that were written about seven years ago with the intention of being for our band. There were clothes that we bought even years ago that were in the video.

Melissa: Literally. I would say, 'Mom, lend me ten bucks, I gotta buy this dress for the video." The concept is that old. We knew what we wanted.

Tracey: We got sidetracked by having to have a real job.

"Train for your future."

Melissa: The problem was, we were spending all our time preparing for if the band didn't work, spending no effort on the band to make it happen and be real. I was gonna be a psychocologist. Wait, plan B is taking all my time, what about plan A? I can't stand all-talk-no-action people. So when this interest started, the time came that we had to do it.

CB: What do you think inspired you to start a band in the first place?

Melissa: I think our father had a lot to do with it, although we weren't aware of it at the time. We were always around music. He would help her so much with writing and me so much with singing. I think it really helped us. We never had any formal training, but you ask where did it come from. Our father, being sisters, and the concept from an early age. I don't know what made us want to do it, it was just kind of there.

Tracey: I used to write poetry, and get followed home from the bus stop with kids making fun of me: "Are you going home to write poetry?" When my parents were getting a divorce, all I had was writing. In school, we always got hassled because we weren't cool enough, and we didn't have exactly right shoes and the right car. And being rejected for those kinds of things makes you a little more driven, wanting to rebel and say, Well, screw this! Where kids that fit in and were the most popular kids in class might not have the motivation to want to speak out for themselves.

CB: Did you overtly rebel? Melissa: I did, in a big way.

Tracey: We both did. We were awful kids. We crashed cars, we drank...

Melissa: I used to dye my hair every wicked color in the rainbow. I almost got thrown out of boarding school

CB: Eventually you managed to turn poetry and your rebellious nature into a career in pop music.

Tracey: We just happen to write commercial songs. We're not trying to appeal to the radio market, it just comes out naturally.

Melissa: People find that confusing. I kept hearing, "The image is so frivilous and wacky." And then, "The lyrics are so touching and meaningful. You have to go one way or the other. You can't do both." I don't see why in the world you can't do both. The record company [London] said, "The record sounds like a patchwork quilt. The songs are so different and so diverse." But wait-that's the whole point. That's exactly what we wanted. "You can't put 'Oh Love' next to 'There's A Barbarian In the Back of My Car'—they're too different." Well that's the beauty of it! They think they're insulting you, but they're flattering you.

Tracey: Bit of a communication problem there.

Melissa: They had trouble digesting it because they said it wasn't coherent and consistent, which I think is the strength of it.

Tracey: The Beehive is incoherent, that's part of the thing. Inconsistent, I mean.

Melissa: Incoherent at times.

Another margarita and white russian, please...

Melissa: Fate had so much to do with this band. Weird coincidences, being in the right place at the right time. Somebody happens to be having a drink next to you, you ask them for a fag, mention something and they say, "I play guitar." Like the Madness connnection with Woody and Bedders [who played bass in the early months]. Friends of friends brought them in.

CB: Who is in the Beehive line-up now?

Melissa: Woody, the drummer [from Madness], Martin Brett on bass

Tracey: And Mike, who made the demo for us. Everybody said "I can't believe this is a demo, it sounds really good for a four-track." That was another thing in our favor.

Melissa: There were a lot of drummer and bass changes, but Mike was a founding member of the Beehive. Although he said, "I will not stay with you...I'm helping you out temporarily...don't count on me...l'm not committing. I won't play live." But then this interest started to happen. And lo and behold...

Tracey: So then he'd go, "Maybe I'll stick around for the record deal."

Melissa: When we first met Mike he'd literally been locked in his house for years, white, thin, hovering over his equipment. And these two American girls walk in-Tracey: Going, "Ohmigod, we really need to make this demo!' He's like, "Where did these people come from?"

Melissa: And Tracey says, "I'll never work with him again. He never says anything!" But obviously it worked out. We probably stunned him a bit.

Tracey: He didn't say much, but he listened. I said, "I want this song to be, like, cloudy and floaty." Right, cloudy and floaty, great. He didn't say anything. The next thing I know, he's got this sound on the keyboard that's exactly what I meant. It went from my brain to his fingers. He's really good at interpreting what I'm trying to say.

Now, Mike and I work a lot on the music, and I write most of the lyrics. Melissa writes her harmonies. I usually take the song to the band and then everybody puts in CB: And who usually sings the leads?

Melissa: It's what feels comfortable at the time. We trade lead vocals. Being sisters, we seem to obviously go in one direction. Whether it's her lead at one point or me. It's not a struggle at all. It comes very easily. People used to call us the Everly Sisters when we first started gigging in London..

I think it happened fast because we just pushed. In the music industry, the British concept of working hard is my concept of lying around the pool. And they just weren't used to pushing. And it probably put a lot of people off on the way, but the people that appreciated it got sussed and into it relatively quickly.

Tracey: I don't want it to seem like we haven't paid our dues. Because we paid out dues between the demo getting interest and the first gig. That was quite a stretch. We literally had no money. And we were living in really awful, awful houses.

Melissa: It's legal to inhabit abandoned property in London. It's squatting.

Tracey: Well, in all honesty, Grove Green wasn't a squat. It was worse than a squat.

Melissa: Well it didn't have any windows and it didn't have a back door. Also, there were like five heavy biker guys and they were really dirty, and I was the only girl in the house...

Tracey: We had to work in pubs and spend all our money on practice. We had to go through the frustration of having people in the band who weren't serious about it, and weren't working for it. We didn't even have any equipment. But you just do it. I think it comes from the American drive. We're going, No problem.

Melissa: Let's do it, let's do it now! Where people are going, "We'll meet you next week and maybe then...

Tracey: Next week?! How about yesterday.

Melissa: It was so frustrating. In London, people were so lackadaisical, and it took so much time. We were getting so pissed off.

Tracey: Also, being from America, having a car, having a Gelson's, and all of the sudden being dropped in the middle of this.

CB: You went from affluence to poverty.

Tracey: Definitely. But that was important, because that fueled us as well.

CB: Ever think, "This is stupid, this isn't my life"? Melissa: No.

Tracey: We didn't have time to cause things were moving forward. But it took a long time before we got money in our hands so we could live a reasonable life. Toward the end, things were getting a bit dodgy, and we were both going, If we don't make some money soon then we might as well go home. But we hung in there. We weren't even considering leaving.

CB: If you're sister, why the different last names?

Tracey: This is the story. We are Tracey and Melissa Belland. I'm Tracey Bryn Belland, she's Melissa Brooke Belland. She goes by Melissa Brooke, I go by Tracey Bryn. You know what Belland is in England? The head of a dick. You know, the bell, it's shaped like a bell? It's the end of something. Bell-end.

Melissa: Although most British boys aren't circum-

Tracey: So now we changed our name to Tracey and Melissa Foreskin, and everybody's happy.

This Blonde Bombshell Is No Pop Tart

By Karen Woods

ne of Wendy James' most treasured possessions is a piece of paper.

"There was an article in the New York Times about blondes in the music industry," says the vocalist for Transvision Vamp. "It said once every decade a true blonde arrives. For the '70s it was Debbie Harry, and for the '80s it's Wendy James. I've got it cut out. It's one of those high points." It was a particualr high point because the musical heroine of this British blonde is Debbie Harry. "I just couldn't get over it, as a young teenager, seeing this absolute movie star goddess fronting a rock & roll pop band. It was the perfect combination. For me she was like Madonna is to the current crop of youngsters—inspiration."

If comparisons have to be made, this one is as solid as any. There is a definite Blondie influence in both Transvision Vamp's music and in James' herself. She's blonde, she pouts, she exploits her sexuality before anyone else can even think of doing it for her. But after spending an hour or so with Transvision's vamp, one realizes that the image created by the voice on the record and the face in the pictures has dissolved. Utterly. The woman behind the mask is blunt, bright, and completely aware of what she is doing. It's refreshing. James is very canny about her image and about the fact that fans and critics alike are going to focus on it. "That's fine," she says. "That's natural for a band. All I can say is that people are going to remain fans because the music is fresh, not because I have blonde hair.

The title of Transvision Vamp's debut Uni/MCA release is Pop Art; the term in this case is meant to be taken in the Andy Warhol sense, sort of a backhanded tribute to the culture that spawned it. "I wouldn't call us a particularly pop band in the Stock, Aitken and Waterman sense," she says. "We have pop songs, but then so did the Sex Pistols; so did the Rolling Stones. And the Clash: 'Should I Stay Or Should I Go' is a classic pop song." In James' definition, Transvision Pop makes pop music for non-pop people—which is a little clearer after you've listened to the record eight or nine times. The album consists of three-minute songs with huge hooks, but they are not boy-meets-girl, whenever-you-need-me-I'll-be-there-even-though-you-broke-my-heart-in-52-pieces things. Instead we have the drop-the-bomb sensibility of "Revolution Baby," the nihilistic "Sex Kick" and the sly social commentary of "Trash City." Pop Art is what the Go-Gos could have been.

James says there is a trick to writing good pop songs. "You have to write a resolution," she says, "a catchy hook. And then you have a boundary to work in, because all the classic pop songs are two to three minutes long, from Buddy Holly on. I know a lot of musicians who will spend months working on songs, nitpicking over every chord, and that way you lose all the spontaniety—or you just get sick of the song."

Transvision Vamp began with James and guitarist Nick Christian Sayer. James was taking college drama courses at the time. "When I was in college I wasn't the sort of person who wanted to be in a rock & roll band. No one I knew was into that. Nick was the first person who asked me. I was studying drama because I was going to be onstage anyway, and I thought I'd keep my options open." She gives a small laugh. "As a matter of fact, I did my first round of auditions for a degree course, and one morning I got a call back, but I didn't so. That was when I decided I was going to stick with this."

If James was more of a reflective sort, she'd probably have seen this all coming years ago. "I used to go to gigs and watch bands and think, 'Someday I'm going to be on that stage.' And funnily enough, at one of the gigs where I saw the Clash, I thought that—and now we just played there on our last tour." She grins. "It was really weird. I had seen so many bands there during my teenage years, and then five years later I was standing on the very same stage, and the audience was there to see me, to see us. Weird."

James and Sayer worked together for about two years before meeting bassist Dave Parsons, keyboardist Tex Axile and drummer Pol Burton With the band complete, Transvision Vamp set out looking for a record deal. "That was the only goal in the beginning," James says, "to get a deal, to make a record, and to have enough money to buy equipment; because we really had nothing. I knew that once we had a deal, everything would be alright, but I never really looked beyond that." The band was picked up by MCA, recorded the album-and had their A&R man fired out from under them. "That was actually good," James says, grinning. "When the new regime came in, they had fresh checkbooks, which was fortuitous for us, because we had just run out of money and time. We had mixed the record too fast and the soon, and we just couldn't hear anymore. Our ears were shot. Then we listened to it again, and it had no top end. We just couldn't hear well enough to do it right. So with the new checkbooks we were able to do it again." She grins. "Thank god."

In England, three singles from Pop Art have appeared on the charts: a cover of Holly Vincent "Tell That Girl To Shut Up" (the first U.S. single), "I Want Your Love" (a top 5 commercial hit) and "Revolution Baby." Plans are being made for a U.S. tour at the beginning of the year.

Transvision Vamp and James in particular whether they like the term or not, have become pop stars in their native England, and now they are setting out to conquer this side of the pond. We come full circle to the Blondie thing: James says when the band tours the U.S., there is one place where they absolutely have to play. "It has to be C.B.G.Bs," she says, "even if it's an after-show gig, because I want my name to go down in history as having played there." She contemplates this, watching smoke curl up from a partially stubbed-out cigarette, looks up and smiles. "Maybe Debbie Harry will come see us play."

roducer. There is hardly a more ambiguous title in the music business. A producer can be an engineer, an arranger, a musician, a master-mixer, a trend-setter, a mentor, an A&R man, a politician, a friend; he might even be a frustrated artist creating his own aural vision through someone else. David Kershenbaum has his own definition:

"As a producer, you're only as good as the artist you're working with,"says Kershenbaum. "The main thing is to throw your ego away, be a sponge, an open receptacle. Take it when you get it; love it when you find it."

It is with this artist-oriented philosophy that David Kershenbaum has become the preeminent producer of "thinking" folk and/or rock performers. His latest and most stunning achievement is the 6 million-selling Tracy Chapman, a moving and "simply produced" record, highlighting Chapman's achingly scripted songs and houching delivery on vocal and guitar.

Visiting Kershenbaum in his state-of-the-art Hollywood studio Powertrax, you begin to realize that the simplicity of his records is only in the resulting effect. He has just installed a prototype Martin-Sound Computer, a digital moving-fader mixing system. Coupling his 32-track Mitsubishi recorder with a custom built 56-input API board, and one-of-a-kind Massenburg studio monitors, Powertrax is indeed impressive. This is the room where, under previous ownership, Crosby, Stills & Nash recorded their first album. It's the ombination of old acoustical values and new technology that has put Kershenbaum ahead of wife game.

Kershenbaum's career spans three decades; he has recorded such giants as Joan Baez, Cat Stevens, and Richie Havens. A longtime relationship with Joe Jackson has resulted in Kershenbaum producing five albums with him, including the big hit LP Night and Day. Add to this rich experience a couple of stints as an A&R man, including half a dozen years as VP of A&R at A&M, and you see the picture—a producer who is highly attuned to the soul of the artist.

When you ask the soft-spoken and modest Kershenbaum about his successes, he gives most of the credit to his artists' ability to communicate. In -a sense, he has made A&R integral to his production process.

'I pick artists who know what they are to begin with, and I help them put it together, rather than create everything. When I've tried that, the productions have lacked truth."

Kershenbaum listens for the elusive element of emotion."I can hear tapes and demos, and I spot it. Almost 99% of the time you can tell from the

Among Kershenbaum's current discoveries are Show of Hands (he produced their first album for I.R.S.) and upcoming LP's by Peter Himmelman, the Burns Sisters and the Pilgrims. He also recently completed Folksongs for a Nuclear Village by Shadowfax. Kershenbaum produces these artists with the same technique he has used for many years: first the vocal and guitars, or the essence of an artist, then the overdubs.

"It's a concept I came into when I made records with Cat Stevens and Joan Baez," explains Kershenbaum. "When I heard them play acoustic, which they always wrote on, they would sound one way, but then I'd get in the studio and hire a band, it would sound good, but different. How do you preserve what you fell in love with? I decided to build completely around the guitar and vocal."

For Tracy Chapman, Kershenbaum recorded the original tracks as a three piece—Tracy with bass and drums-adding sweeteners later.

"The whole idea is to hear, to have it in your face, communicating. If there's any reason it's proving to be successful, it's that people are really starved for that closeness to that artist, because it had gotten very cold and separate again. This is the kind of music that allows that to happen."

Over the years, Kershenbaum has maintained the same production philosophy.

"I went back and listened to the CD of Joan Baez's Diamonds And Rust. The styles change, which causes you to treat things differently. But my approach on vocals and emotion for that album, and the overall effect, are the same I'd use today.

Finding it increasingly difficult to move from one studio to the next and achieve the consistency of sound that his artists require, Kershenbaum established his own studio Powertrax in Hollywood.

"Music and sound have always been of equal importance to me," says Kershenbaum. "I've never been the kind that's happy going from studio to studio. The monitoring makes you do things in a certain way. If you work in your own studio every day you know it. You're not a dB off.'

Kershenbaum sees no incongruity in the fact that he is using digital recording with acoustic ar-

"A lot of people felt digital was cold, but I felt it was the edge I needed. With Tracy Chapman, one of the reasons she is so clear, the reason an a cappella track works is that the sound is perfect. No noise. The only advantage to tape is the compression effect you get. We cut on tape and transferred directly onto digital."

"They don't build rooms like this anymore," says Kershenbaum. "Everything from Crosby, Stills & Nash's first album, to Fleetwood Mac, Loggins and Messina—the list goes on forever. I figured if you could take a great monitoring system, an API board and digital, put it together with a great acoustic atmosphere, you'd have something unique. It's like an old customized car, rebuilt."

Using the Martin-Sound computer, Kershenbaum will literally be able to mix as he goes along, relieving a lot of the pressure at the final mix. Even with Chapman, for example, he still ended up using 30 tracks for various effects and sweetners.

Adds Kershenbaum: "With vocals I sometimes like to composite several takes. [In this process, the performer does several passes at the full song without stopping, allowing the mixer to pick and choose the best parts of each take.] With digital it's all first generation quality, with absolutely no 'punch' noise [the slight pop created when recording into a preexisting sound on tape].'

Always aware of the human factor, Kershenbaum understands the nature of the recording process will often reveal the direction he should take aesthetically. "Performances are funny things," he says. "Sometimes you have to go past them to know you've got the best take."

Methodical in his work, Kershenbaum always has a plan before working on any album.

"First we sit down and decide the direction of the record. Ultimately every album will be listened to as a piece, a full work. What songs should follow which? What are the keys, the rhythm? I then think about the layers; what overdubs will I need, which musicians will I use. The equipment itself is important, do we use acoustic guitars, do we use keyboards, which drums do we use, which samples? We do basic tracks, sometimes we'd do the vocals live with tracks which effects the set-up. It's all mapped out. Very rarely does anybody try to wing-it, with the technology involved. A studio ideally should be the place you capture moments, performances, not struggle over procedures. You have to know what you're doing. If you do that, you can make a record in four-to-six weeks.

The most challenging record for Kershenbaum to produce was Joe Jackson's direct-to-2-track Big World. He had three days to perform and mix. He found himself developing new techniques on the spot, despite months of preparation. He gives a lot of credit, as usual, to Joe Jackson.

"Joe is extremely talented; he can do it all himself. We've have had a fascinating relationship, partly because I signed him. I was more than his producer, I was his A&R guy. He'll get a straight answer anytime. And we're friends.

Rounding out Kershenbaum's Powertrax Entertainment concerns are film and publishing divisions. He is currently acting as a music supervisor for Patrick Swayze's Next of Kin. Through film music, he is able to immediately utilize the talents of his staff writers. Also, Kershenbaum will be doing a lot of songwriting himself for various projects. After all, he was once a jingle writer. And does David Kershenbaum have any notion to be

"I've elected not to be an artist, for a lot of very intelligent reasons," laughs Kershenbaum. "Luckily my ears have got better than my playing!'

Despite being on the forefront of creative "new waves," Kershenbaum also has a healthy respect for the record companies. He tries to make the A&R man a genuine partner in the production

"I definitely want the input of the A&R guy. There's a new breed—more knowledgeable, more supportive. You don't ever want to operate in a vacuum, because if you don't involve the record company, when you deliver it, it might not be the kind of record they're looking for.

"With a record company, at least you have someone on your team who's got an outside point of view, with a sense of relativity. If you've been going 80 miles per hour, they'll tell you. It may have felt like 50, but you were going 80."

Asked to define commercial music, Kershenbaum pauses.

"My definition of commerciality has changed. Joe Jackson's 'Is She Going Out With Him' is far from being an obvious hit. 'Steppin' Out' was not a hit, structurally. 'Fast Car,' God, nobody would have bet on that! They all had something, some element people could relate to. My theory is you have to find that bit of realism that reaches out to people."

AC/DC and Cinderella

BROTHER BEYOND

SMASH PALACE—The Smash Hits Awards are always a true monitor of British taste. This year, 5,000 under-16s gathered at the Albert Hall to see the event staged. Bros made a clean sweep of the board. They won Best Group, Best Album, Best Video, Best Single and Matt Goss won Most Fanciable Male. Best Newcomer went to Yazz, whose single "The Only Way Is Up" dominated the British charts this summer to become the biggest-selling single this year. Her current single, "Stand Up for Your Love Rights," follows in a similar heavy dance vein.

Yazz is a singer, not a songwriter. And while she can not be lumped in with the breed of British female intelligentsia who claim slightly overinsistently that Joni Mitchell is not their role model, Yazz is far from being a bimbo. Yes, she does have peroxide hair, but it looks slightly sleeker because she is half Jamaican. She is a good looking tomboy who does not dress to flaunt her assets, sticking to funky little denim numbers with the odd tu-tu. Her voice, though, is outstanding. And her marketing campaign is being directed by husband and manager Jaz Summers, half of the duo responsible for the management of Wham!. Together, they can often be found whiling away the midnight hours in any macrobiotic nightspot.

Yazz admits: "It is sometimes difficult having a husband who is also your manager. We tried to keep it quiet at first, then we decided it was better to come clean."

Yazz, a former model, also like to keep quiet about her past career keep quiet about her past career.

"I only did modelling to pay for a bit of equipment. I never tried to be a big model. For girls like me who look really individual and who are strong-featured, it is really hard to be successful in that business. I hardly worked in England because I looked too different."

Yazz went on to be a stylist for George Michael, where she met the aforementioned Mr. Summers. At the time she had no particular singing ambitions. "When I was a child, I wanted to be a lollipop lady"— a senior citizen in a white coat who helps schoolchildren across the road.

At the same awards, Smash Hits managed to upset Rick Astley by awarding him Worst Dressed Pop Star, while Worst Haircut went to Glenn Medeiros, who also picked up the coveted Worst Single Award for "Nothin's Gonna Change My Love For You."

Best New Pop Group went to Brother Beyond, a collection of four pretty poplets who have actually been around for years writing danceable pop tunes with a passable passion. They've been slightly revamped and given the Midas touch of Stock, Aitken and Waterman, and finally they have had a couple of hits under their belts, including the current "He Ain't No Competition."

BUSTER—On the subject of awards, ASCAP voted Phil Collins Songwriter of the Year. At the ASCAP dinner, Collins responded, modestly: "You wouldn't be giving me this award if you knew what I had been writing recently." In a recent interview, he also told Cash Box, "I'm not suffering the emotional pain that is a stimulus to all my best songs. I don't want to become an actor instead of a songwriter, I'd like to do both for as long as I can."

After the success of Buster, the acting roles have been pouring in. "But some of them have been rather strange," he says. "I was offered the role of the Phantom in a remake of Phantom of the Opera. All I had to do in the script was make noises like errrrrgh. I was insulted that somebody, somewhere sat down and thought, 'Phil Collins will be perfect for that role.'

"I fully intend to set aside a long period of time to get back into the studio. But at the moment the songs just aren't happening. I don't really think of myself as a songwriter. When I split up with my first wife and I didn't have the words to tell her I wanted her back, I made her a tape of other peoples' songs. I intended to tug her heart strings. It didn't work, so I though I'd better write my own."

Other ASCAP award winners included Mick Hucknall, Simon Clymie, Genesis, U2, Billy Ocean and Besty Cook and Linda Thompson (who also vere Country Songwriters of the Year).

The Forum, Inglewood—AC/DC may be many things, but they're never disappointing. They consistently pack arenas. They've released 12 albums since their 1974 inception, all either gold or platinum sellerseven poorer efforts like 1986's Who Made Who went gold. They're not a "singles" band, yet name an AC/DC tune, and your average rock fan can sing it for you. Advertise an AC/DC concert, and the venue is packedeven if they played the town only five months earlier—as was the case with the awesome Aussies recent Forum show.

The fathers of headbanging were in L.A. in June supporting their Blow Up Your Video album, and swung through town again for virtually the same show. But, much like Dead Heads, AC/DC fans can't get enough. And rightfully so. Led by the commanding vocals of Brian Johnson and the pulsing, tight rhythm section of bassist Cliff Williams and drummer Simon Wright, AC/DC is a band that delivers-song after song, concert after concert. They're as reliable as an old shoe (and they probably smell twice as bad-Ed.). But that predictability never leads to boredom, thanks to their sheer power, volume and the timeless quality of their tunes. The antics of schoolboy-ish guitar hero Angus Young provide the perfect foil to Johnson's no-nonsense approach, though at this gig, Johnson was far more cheerful and warm than he has been at past shows.

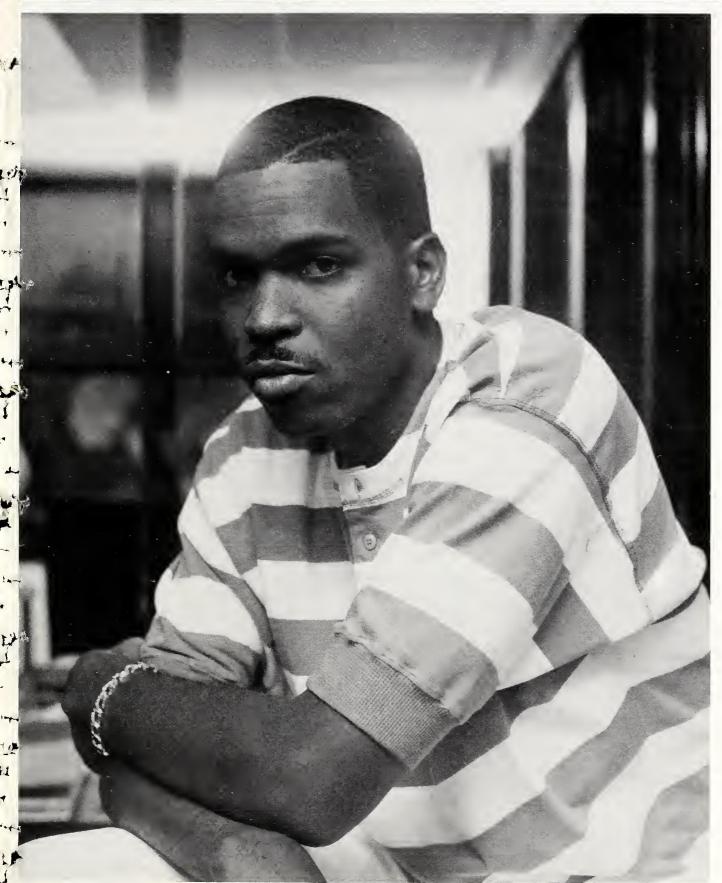

They opened with "Heatseeker," off their most recent vinyl, then dove into older classics like "Shoot To Thrill," "Dirty Deeds (Done Dirt Cheap), "Back In Black" and "Jailbreak," where Young does a striptease that rivals the best that Chippendale's has to offer. Though amusing, this may be the only part of an AC/DC show that's become tedious—he's done the same act forever, and the striptease version of "Jailbreak" lasts easily for 15 minutes, "Whole Lotta Rosie," a head-banging gem covered by Guns N' Roses, was a highlight, as was "T.N.T.," a fist-inthe-air anthemic riff rocker. This is a band that knows how to write a song with a hook and chorus, and while they may not be in the limelight like a Bon Jovi or Guns N' Roses, AC/Dex is conistently the best value for an entertainment dollar (or $17.50).

Openers Cinderella proved they're headed for a long career in the rock biz. Though at times their stage moves were simply too well-rehearsed, the strong presence are vocal delivery of Tom Keifer and the band's usually memorable blues-influenced songs make up for any peformance cliches or lack of musical inventiveness.

The Philly boys delivered an impressive, yet not awe-inspiring, 10 song set. The slow, intoxicating rhythm of tunes like "Nobody's Fool" and "Night Songs" work well for the quartet, while more classic midtempo numbers like the singalong. "Gypsy Road," and "In From the Outside" are also easy winners for Cinderella. Surprisingly, their gentle ballad "You Don't Know Whare You've Got 'Tillt's Gone," with Keifer on piano, was a crowd favorite, while on the other hand, the requisite drum 🛶 solo went nowhere. Overall, Cinderella is a band who may never become megastars, but judging from this show at least, they're a band when has a long career and plenty o' hits to

SHORT TRIP TO SUCCESS

By Bob Long

he stories are few and far between about artists who reach the top in a short period of time, but Luther Campbell (aka Luke Skyywalker) is one of those rare individuals who have skyrocketed to national success in just a couple of years. In a recent interview the young rap impressario from Miami spoke with pride about his achievements and the people who have helped him along the way. "We take it one day at a time and try to accomplish as much as possible," he says. "Generally, we pack two to three days of work into one. The 20-plus people who work with me understand the family concept; therefore we have a unit willing to give 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year, to acheiving our objectives."

Skyywalker is not surprised at the success of rap music in the marketplace today. He acknow-ledges that radio airplay has been limited, but he recognizes that the kids will still seek this music out in their favorite record store. The positive side of minimal airplay is that it helps to keep the underground network alive and selling records. When you tell young people they can't have something, their curiosity is heightened; therefore the need, want and desire grow accordingly, which results in huge record sales for rap music.

Skyywalker also notes that there are some very successful stations around the country who are in tune with their communities, with the sounds of the streets, and these stations have the courage (and business smarts) to play and break the songs that the community enjoys, instead of listening to the hype or the telephone calls on the request lines. WEDR in Miami will always be a #1 station because they play the music that reflects their community of listeners.

"Certainly, if I had all the stations in the country playing my records I would sell more records," admits Skyywalker. "However, I don't have the overhead of most major labels, therefore I don't have to push as hard for airplay. Again, I would love to have every station playing my product, but that is not and never will be the case, so I must continue to use the underground street network to generate the bulk of my record sales. I sell fewer records; but when you break it down to dollars and cents, my profit margin is probably equal to, if not greater than, some of the larger companies, on an individual project."

Skyywalker indicated that "you could put a rap album together from start to finish for about $10,000. But the majors are not venturing into rap music because of lower production cost; they are into rap music because it 'sells.' If they [the majors] had a choice, they wouldn't touch rap music, because they don't know how to market and promote it properly. In many cases, the companies have relied on the rap artists to teach their people how to promote the product. Many executives have gotten lost in their ivory towers and have no knowledge of the street scene."

When asked about selling his company (considering that the majority of indies are copied, bought, stolen or destroyed), Skyywalker is emphatic. "No, I would not sell. But as a businessman, I will and have listened to various offers and evaluated them accordingly. There are many deals, but I will not sell my company." He believes rap music is here to stay, because of the diversification. "You don't hear the sameness of sound in rap music as you hear in contemporary music. The desire to be different and adventurous, and the influx of young creative forces will make rap music a fresh and viable entity for many years to come. Rap music has a close kinship to the music of yesteryear because of the funk and the desire to remain creatively different."

Skyywalker Records has grown by leaps and bounds in short order. It recently acquired a recording studio, had a song featured in the movie Nightmare On Elm Street and is currently working on a special music and video project with Arnold Schwartzenegger for his upcoming movie.

Luke Skyywalker, a young man of vision and determination, has proved to have the Midas touch for rap music. With hitmakers like M.C. Shy D and Two Live Crew in his stable, and a growing roster that includes such promising new acts as Anquette, his fortunes seem assured for many years to come.

ALBUM RELEASES

OUT OF THE BOX

THE GO-BETWEENS 16 Lovers Lane - Capitol (C1-91230) Producer: Mark Wallis

The major label debut of this veteran Australian band is one of the finest albums of the year. Their sound is an instantly likable combination of acoustic troubadour and jangly new-wave elements, with just a dash of classicism. Dylan is a big influence here, in the folky sheen, in the themes of rootlessness and the sense of love as a haven from the world. The engaging single is "Was There Anything 1 Could Do," although we're partial to "Love Goes On."

TIFFANY

Hold an Old Friend's Hand - MCA (6267) - Producer: G. Tobin

Granted that she's shamelessly manipulated and nothing she does is completely of her own making, this album nonetheless represents a substantial step forward in Tiffany's artistic development. There are no covers here of '60s standards, just solid mid-tempo love songs, done in a clean style that highlights her maturing voice (one which is both immaculately controlled and slightly roughened up since her phenomenal debut)

FEATURE PICKS

CHAKA KHAN - CK - Warner Bros. (25707-1) - Producer: Russ Titleman

Her big voice and the participation of Prince, Miles Davis ("Sticky Wicked"), Bobby McFerrin, and Stevie Wonder ("Signed, Sealed, Delivered") helps elevate the project above the so-so material

FRANK ZAPPA – Broadway The Hard Way – Barking Pumpkin (D1-74218) - Producer: Frank Zappa

Zappa attacks both the right ("Jesus Thinks You're A Jerk," a dig at Tammy Bakker) and the left ("Rhymin' Man," a dig at Jesse Jackson) on this typically smart-aleck effort. As usual his music sounds great, but the ideas are as stoopid as the people that he scorns.

YAZZ – Wanted – Elektra (9 60842-1) – Various producers

A smash in England with her percolating single "The Only Way Is Up," this techno songstress now turns her attention to America. This dance material is nothing new, but her voice is of jazz/legitimate quality and should sell big.

MARK ALMOND – The Stars We Are – Capitol (C 91042) – Producers: M. Almond, A. Hogan, B. McGee

The former singer of Soft Cell may disappoint old fans with his relative lack of synthesizers and dance beats, but this mature, tuneful, cinematic album is simply great, characterized by horns, strings and a movie-soundtrack grandeur.

PINK FLOYD - Delicate Sound of Thunder - Columbia (PC2 44484) - Producer: David Gilmour

A sort of greatest hits album, recorded live on their recent U.S. tour, it includes "Money," "Another Brick in the Wall" and more. This double album is on its way to the Russian space station as we speak.

FLEETWOOD MAC -- Greatest Hits - Warner Bros. (9 25801-1) - Producers: Greg Ladanyi, Fleetwood Mac

A greatest hits album from a band that has had more than its share. Includes two new songs.

KING TEE - Act a Fool - Capitol (C1-90544) - Producer: DJ Pooh

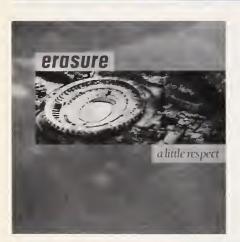

More evidence that the burgeoning L.A. rap scene is challenging New York's, King Tee offers us some medium-tempo rhymes about girls, music and street life, much of it good-natured without being soft. A solid effort.

THE TOLL - The Price of Progression - Geffen (GHS 24201) - Producers: Steve Thompson, Michael Barbiero

A muscular, politically committed hard-rock band from Ohio, the Toll forgot to bring their hook sense into the studio.

SINGLE RELEASES

ERASURE

A Little Respect (3:33) - Sire (7-27738) - Sonet Pub. PRS adm. Emile Music/ASCAP - Clarke-Bell - Producer: S. Hague

A terrific follow-up to the smash "Chains of Love." This is a band that knows how to write hit songs, with dynamics and understated, yet engaging appeal. Here producer Stephen Hague guides a complex mix with success, bringing out the hooky elements to good effect. Should slice through on CHR radio and impact other charts.

ROD STEWART

My Heart Can't Tell You Know (5:12)
Warner Bros. (7-27729-A) - Rare Blue
Music, Inc./ASCAP Little Shop Of Mc.
gan Songs/BMI - S. Climie-D. Morgan Producer: R. Stewart-A. Taylor-B. Edwards

This is an appealing mid-tempo tune, written by Simon Climie (who sounds a little like Rod) of Climie-Fisher. From Rod's Warner Bros. album Out of Order. Stewart delivers a strong performance as a singer, but the real star is the producing team of Stewart, Andy Taylor and Bernard Edwards who show a lot of finesse in balancing the emotion of the tune with a nice arrangement. Should run hard on CHR

FEATURE PICKS

LUTHER VANDROSS – She Won't Talk To Me (4:12) – Epic (34-08513) – SBK April Music Inc.-Uncle Ronnie's Music Co. Inc./ASCAP SBK Blackwood Music Inc.-Huemar Music Inc./BMI – L. Vandross – Producer: L. Vandross-M. Miller

A bouncing, good feeling tune delivered with touches of falsetto by the legendary Vandross. Custom tucked for an across the board hit.

BOBBY BROWN - Roni (4:30) - MCA (MCA-53463) - Kear Music-Hip Trip Music/BMI - Producer: LA. & Babyface

Fine vocal stacks and rich production value make this another winner for Bobby. Watch for rise on Urban.

ART GARFUNKEL - When A Man Loves A Woman (4:29) - Columbia (38-08511) - Pronto Music-Quinvey Music Co Inc./BMI - C. Lewis-A. Wright - Producer: G. Emerick-A. Garfunkel

A gentle rendition of this classic plays well under Garfunkel silky intonations.

HUNTERS & COLLECTORS – Back On The Breadline (4:01) – I.R.S. (S45-17726) – Coman Frailty Pty. Ltd. adm. I.R.S. Music Inc/BMI – M. Seymour-Hunters & Collectors - Producer: G. Edward

Rock and roll at its best, with a message. This is gutsy stuff and should fly well on AOR and alternative outlets.

SLICK RICK – Teenage Love (4:30) – Def Jam (38-08105) – Def American Songs. Inc./BMI – R. Walters-H. Shocklee – Producer: H. Shocklee-E. Sadler-R. Walters Well intentioned rap goes nowhere, lacking punch to really deliver message.

STARSHIP – Wild Again (4:09) – Elektra (7-69349) – The Walt Disney Music Conpany-Wonderland Music Co. Inc.-John Bettis Music adm. by Warner-Tamerlane Pub/ASCAP/BMI – I. Bettis-M. Clark – Producer: P. Galdston-Starship

Pub/ASCAP/BMI – J. Bettis-M. Clark – Producer: P. Galdston-Starship
Exquisitely scripted tune serves as a fine take-off for Starship. From the Cocktail soundtrack.

FISHBONE – Freddie's Dead (3:53) – Columbia (38-08500) – Warner-Tamerlane Pub. Corp/BMI – C. Mayfield – Producer: D. Kahne

Fishbone tackles Curtis Mayfield classic with buzzing guitars and tough vocals. Should fly well across the board.

ELVIS IN REVIEW

Yes, Elvis is alive...or at least he was for two special hours at the Tennessee Performing Arts Center on November 15 for the Nashville premier of "Elvis: A Musical Celebration". The tribute to the King of Rock of Roll made its debut in Music City before a few hundred local fans, reviewers and curiosity seekers.

Three actors portrayed different periods of Elvis' life – from his humble beginnings during the Depression to his spectacular Vegas days in the mid-70s. On stage were two movie screens which showcased ackground visual images detailing the period being highlighted. Performers were occasionally "sandwiched" between the two screens, making it difficult at times to focus on any given image.

Terry Mike Jeffrey portrayed the purgeoning Elvis at Sun Records in Memphis. His rendition of "Heartbreak Hotel", the song which first spurred Elvis into national prominence, was marred by a faulty microphone. But the crowd did not waver and in the end, Jeffrey's agile dancing, if not his sheer perseverance, won the audience over.

By far the best actor to portray Elvis was Johnny Seaton, who took the crowd by storm with his performances, especially those depicting the "Ed Sullivan Show" days. During this segment giant-sized puppets depicting an American family were shown watching the tube while Elvis grinds and sings his way into their hearts.

Act Two finds Elvis struggling to be happy in the 60s. Several sequences showing his movie career, which spawned such hits as "Jailhouse Rock" and "Blue Hawaii", were quite innovative. However, Elvis' music did not evolve with the times and he finds himself out of step with the escalating changes of the period. Here, a dissapointed Elvis returns to Graceland and the turbulent times begin.

Eight years pass and a matured Elvis (played by Julian Whitaker) emerges to take Las Vegas by storm. The company (which has 20 members) accurately portrays the glitzy stage presence and the audience plays along as we hear "My Way" and "Suspicious Minds".

In the end, of course, Elvis succumbs to drugs and his death is mourned worldwide. Actual footage of the funeral and succeeding vigil at the King's gravesite is intermingled with a re-cap of the songs that sent the man to his musical throne.

Perhaps the most thrilling aspect of the show was that all the music was performed live and performed well. The show was a treat for devoted fans as well as those perhaps too young to remember the Elvis phenomenon when it occurred. In truth, it was a production meant to celebrate Elvis and what he meant to the musical scene which he inspired. In that light, it was definitely a successful venture.

The Burch Sisters performed the National Anthem during the nationally televised Georgia Tech/North Carolina State football game. The trio has kept up a non-stop pace since their first hit single, "Everytime You Go Outside, I Hope It Rains". During their most recent trip to Nashville, they taped Hee Haw; performed their current single, "What Do Lonely People Do," on Nashville Now; posed for a two-day photo session for their debut album; entertained interviews from national and international journalists and syndicated radio programs, as well as being invited to participate in McGhan Radio's "Live From Nashville" broadcast. Cindy, Charlene and Cathy Burch were caught giving the Georgia Tech Yellowjacket mascot a congratulatory kiss after the home team won the game. Photo: Beth Gwinn

GARY MORRIS – Every Christmas – Warner Bros. (1-25760) - Producers: G. Morris-D.O. Chase, Jr.

Morris takes a traditional approach to his collection of Christmas favorites on this holiday LP release for Warner Bros. His operatic tenor, excercised to its full potential relishes in new arrangements that are most pleasing to the ear. Noted time-loved favorites include "Silver Bells", "O Holy Night", "We Three Kings" and "Christmas Time", (his single release for the season). Most innovative and majestic interpretation is found on "I Wonder As I Wander".

ANNE MURRAY - Anne Murray Christmas - Capitol (C1-90886) Producers: A. Murray-S. Sexton-L.T. Rambeau

If you'd like a variety of Christmas tunes performed with authentic cultural flavor, Anne Murray's compilation of seasonal tunes just might fit the bill. Her rendition of "Christmas In Killarney" boast the lilting dialect of the lrish, while "No Room At The Inn" and "Sweet Little Jesus Boy" have a soulful Southern gospel flavor. There are also the traditional classics such as "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "White Christmas" performed with Murray's oh-so-smooth

SAWYER BROWN It Wasn't His Child (3:35) Capitol/Curb (B-44282) Acuff-Rose/BMI ° S. Ewing Producer: R. Chancey

Simple guitar instrumentation backs Mark Miller's tender vocals which tell a tale of how Joseph must have felt regarding the birth of Jesus. Written by MCA artist Skip Ewing, it takes a realistic look at what must have been an awkward situation at times. However, Joseph raised Him with the same values of love and honor as if the child been his own, while knowing that this boy was differnt in some special way. This song should be a welcome addition every holiday to country

INDIE SPOTLIGHT

LEE SMITH - A Letter To Mama (3:14) - Airborne (ABS-10014) -Flaps Up/BMI - L. Smith -Producer: A. Burger

Lee Smith's poignant letter to his deceased mother should become a nationally recognized Christmas tribute, much as "Dear Mr. Jesus" was last year. It is not written in prose, but in common words meant to touch the soul. Thanks you Lee, for reminding us of how important our parents are, especially during the holidays when family is an integral part of celebrating the birth of Christ. After playing this we guarantee, there won't be a dry eye in your listening audience.

GARY MORRIS - Every Christmas (2:46) - Warner Bros. (7-27706-A) - Gary Morris/ASCAP - D.O. Chase, Jr.-M. Stone - Producers: G. Morris-D.O. Chase, Jr.

A remembrance of the pleasures the holiday season often brings is the focus of this Yuletide release by Morris. Reminding us that in this season of gift giving and receiving, love is the truest present that can be bestowed on one another, Morris delivers the message with a winsome melody as well.

THE A-STRINGS (with KATHY MATTEA) – The Christmas Song (3:34) – Warner Bros. (7-27789) – Edwin H. Morris/ASCAP – R. Wells-M. Torme – Producer: K.

A classic first made famous by Mel Torme, Mattea brings warmth and a woman's intuition to this release with her bell-like vocals. A moving string interlude richly completes the product's sound.

RANDY TRAVIS - An Old Time Christmas (3:13) - Warner Bros. (7-27707) - SBK Blackwood/BMI - S. Harris - Producer: K. Lehning

Travis describes the traditional Christmas family scene complete with frolicking children, snoozing Gramps and scintillating aromas from the kitchen wafting through the house.

REBA McENTIRE - I'll Be Home For Christmas (3:14) - MCA (S45-17725) - Gannon and Kent/ASCAP - K. Gannon-W. Kent-B. Ram - Producers: J. Bowen-R. Mc-Entire

Reba sticks to her country guns, giving this seasonal standard a shot of down-home cheer. Reba has truly come home for Christmas!

BERT STRATTON - Tiny Christmas Heart (3:23) - Gallery II (G-008) -Lovey/BMI - Kerner-Winters - Producers: J. Gale-J. Pierce

A small child's sacrifice at Christmas helps to cheer a her father's heart like the Christ child's gift of promised peace on earth.

STEVE DOUGLAS – Tyke (The Christmas Elf) (2:02) – Texas Opry (T-588) - Tyke/BMI - S. Bryson - Producer: S. Douglas

This children's release relates the story of a small elf whose love enables Santa's reindeer to fly. Sparkling bell sounds help put listeners in the seasonable mood.

SID PROSEN - If I Were Really Santa Claus (2:55) - Big (666) Hometown/ASCAP - S. Prosen - Producer: S. Prosen

Sid imagines the joy of being Santa Claus on this traditional country disc for Big Records. Fiddle and steel back a song loaded with good cheer for the holidays.

PROGRAMMERS' PICK

OAK RIDGE BOYS-Bridges And Walls-MCA (53460)

The Oak Ridge Boys' rich four-part harmonies led programmers to heavily favor the group's success on the charts. Debuting at #64 (bullet), the winsome quartet shows no signs of disappointing them. Stations backing the Oaks include: WRIX, KROW, WJBS, WSDS, KINO, WSKX and WGCM.

DARK HORSE CONSENSUS

CHARLEY HAGER-Men With Broken Hearts-Killer (K-114)

The Dark Horse Consensus this week was Charley Hager. His release, a recitation of a Hank Williams song, evidently struck a harmonic chord among our radio panel. Stations backing Hager include: KJUN, WQST, KCMJ, KZZY, WELE, WVAR and KITO.

Actor David Keith (left) and Entertainment Artists Inc. President Dan Wojcik share a laugh and a sandwich at a backstage gathering following a recent Hank Williams Jr. concert. Keith is currently garnering rave reviews for his portrayal of Elvis Presley in the film Heartbreak Hotel.

Buck Owens (right) presents Bill Ivey, director of the Country Music Foundation, with his master set of taped recordings of the legendary country artist's March, 1966 concert at Carnegie Hall. Country Music Foundation Records will release the material on Buck Owens: Live at Carnegie Hall, a 21-song set. Photo:Tim Campbell.

Old Friends Meet Again!...When Glen Campbell (right) appeared as guest host on Nashville Now, he was surprised to see Jim Pierce (left) backstage. Pierce, now a Nashville producer and session musician, played keyboards behind Campbell on many occasions in the past. From the smiles, it looks like the meeting brought back a sot of good memories.

NASHVILLE NOTE-ABLES

Billy Deaton...Celebrating 30 Years In Business!

The Nashville Association of Talent Directors named Billy Deaton as the recepient of their 1988 Man of the Year Award earlier this month. This is the second consecutive year the honor has been bestowed on Billy. Perhaps the inscription on the award plaque sums up Billy Deaton's career far better than my humble efforts could.

"This year, Billy Deaton celebrates his 30th year in booking country music stars. He credits his good attitude towards life to his good friends such as Faron Young; Charlie Walker; Charley Pride; Jack D. Johnson; his ex-wife, Barbara, and his son, David. He is grateful to the above people. They are the ones who give him the will to go on.

"Through the years, his mind has touched many people and, still today, he does not think of himself as anyone special. He thinks of himself as a man that the Lord has watched over and blessed..."

The inscription continues...and so does Billy Deaton! It all began for Billy, in 1957 when he quit his job at KMAC Radio in San Antonio, Texas. Since that time, Billy has probably handled more talent than any one person in country music today. He credits Charlie Walker with giving him the encouragement and knowledge to start a career in the talent booking business.

I think it important to the scope of Billy's career to list his personal friends in this business, both present and past, in addition to those already mentioned: Jim Reeves, Willie Nelson, Kitty Wells, Johnny and Bobby Wright, Del Reeves, Jimmy C. Newman, Billy Walker, Tommy Cash, Jimmy Dickens, David Houston, Kathy Raye, Hank Snow, Roger Miller, Ray Price, Buck Owens, Waylon Jennings, George Jones, Jerry Lee Lewis, Tammy Wynette, Mel Tillis, Tom T. Hall, Loretta Lynn, Merle Haggard...and the list goes on and on. In fact, I know that I have named only a few. To those not mentioned, there just wasn't room. Make no mistake, however, each and every associate of Billy Deaton's holds an honored place in his heart!

If space permitted, we could tell legendary stories about Billy Deaton booking country entertainment for Presidents and honky tonks, alike. The man, himself, is legendary. Should you ever get the chance to visit his office, you will have to find a small place to sit amoung the hundreds of award plaques and pictures of Billy with celebrities from the worlds of country music, movies, politics, sports, etc...

I am very proud to know and work with Billy Deaton. He has arranged interviews with the superstars for me. He keeps me posted on important news and facts. But, more importantly, he has become my friend. Billy has an office in the same building with Cash Box's Nashville office, and I can tell you this without hesitation....he is there to offer a pleasant, smiling "Good morning"...and an equally satisfying "Have a good evening"...every day! Too, his staff is equally diligent and dedicated.

To end this tribute, let me relate a quote from Billy Deaton: "My aim in life is to help people. I want to open a door for someone trying to get in. I'm a very proud person...my standards are high."

Billy Deaton, I know I speak for your countless other friends when I say "Thanks for the love, the understanding, the dedication and hard work...all of which have contributed to the success of so many". In other words, "Thanks for a job well done for 30 years!"

THE QUACKERS - The Quackers Christmas Special - Step One (SOR-0041) - Producers: R. Ball-D. Hall

Ray Emmett as "The Duck" and Mark Mosley, Diane Ball and Roger Ball as "The Ducketts" conspire to bring children a delightful collection of Christmas tunes and tales for the holiday season. Included with the LP are a lyric sheet, for easy, sing-along enjoyment, and a coloring poster. Among the favorites are "Ducky Christmas", "Deck The Halls", "Twas The Night Before Christmas" and "All I Want For Christmas (Is A Pair Of Skates)". Delivered with a bit of humor and a lot of fun, this is the record every child will be looking for under the tree this Christmas.

RAPPIN' WITH THE WRITERS:

JOHN WESLEY RYLES:

Once in a great while an excellent songwriter/artist comes along. To have outstanding talents in both areas is rare, indeed. John Wesley Ryles is such a man. The Bastrop, Louisiana native came to Nashville in 1965 and is probably more quickly recognized as a Warner Bros. recording artist. However, he has been concentrating more on his songwriting career during the past four or five years.

When he arrived in Music City, he went to work for Moss Rose Music. "That's where I got my first taste of songwriting. I spent a lot of time with the staff writers and I learned a lot form them. But, I got a chance to record as an artist, and I left the writing to the other guys for a while.

"Now that I'm back to writing steadily, I can see where country music has turned around so many times in the past few years. But, 'traditional' country is the heart and soul of our business. I feel like the artist who are selling platinum and gold are proving that. I tend to write in a traditional fashion because it is my first love. I grew up with it. George Jones and Ray Price have been my first influences."

John Wesley Ryles has just signed an exclusive writer's contract with Bull's Creek Music, one of the fastest growing publishing firms in Nashville. He has his own outlook on the writer's market in Nashville.

"The market, right now, is more open than ever. The producers and artists are less interested in the 'inhouse' song and more open to the quality...no matter who wrote it or published it.

"Once you get that first major artist cut, they seem to come easier. However, getting from the album cut to the single is the big step." Well, John has made some big steps in receiving cuts from such artists as Steve Wariner, Conway Twitty, Billy Joe Royal, Barbara Mandrell, John Anderson, T.G. Sheppard, Ed Bruce, Don McLean and more.

ON JAZZ

A HARP BEAT AWAY—GRP has signed harpist Deborah Henson-Conant (center); her first album is due in January. Doing the deal here with Deborah are her manager Susan Marcus and GRP co-president Larry Rosen.

JAZZ LIT, ONE—Along with the great glut of pre-holiday reissues (more on those next week), there is the usual shower of pre-holiday jazz books. Here is a look (part one of two) at some of them:

The big daddy is the long-promised The New Grove Dictionary of Jazz, a hefty (two volumes, with 1,400 pages and 4,500 entries) and expensive ($295) set that attempts to slo for jazz what Grove—in the voluminous Grove Dictionary of Music—did for classical music: be a comprehensive, one-stop source of everything you need to know about the art form.

I must say, right at the start, that I had personal problems with the Grove people, having done 10 jazz bios for their earlier Grove Dictionary of American Music and being somewhat unsatisfied with the work conditions. I asked them not to reuse my bios for the jazz set, but they refused; revising them, over my byline, somewhat horrendously. My Pepper Adams bio ends with the ignorant line: "Adams used stylistic devices more often associated with black players; these included adventurous harmonies, a gruff tone, and a large sound." And my Leon Thomas entry states, "...he changed his forename from Leon to Leone in 1976." (He did???) So while I know it looks like I have some ax to grind, I do have a bone or two to pick with the set. First the praise: the books are impressively comprehensive. played "stump the books" and, for the most part, the books won. Also, Leonard Feather's various Encyclopedias of Jazz have numerous er-rors in birthdates, which jazz historian Phil Schaap detailed in a WKCR program guide a couple of years ago. The Groves, for the most part, get the dates right. And, in addition to musicians, the books also have entries for record labels, jazz festivals, jazz terms (riff, fake book, comp, chops, etc.), important critics, and long, specific essays on a variety of subjects (such as blues, bebop, singing, and an amazing 70page section on worldwide nightclubs and other jazz venues). The editors (Barry Kernfeld is the editor) had the good sense to incorporate some of John Chilton's fine Who's Who in Jazz and to hire a number of reliable jazz writers (like Dan Morgenstern, Bill Milkowski, Howard Mandel, Brian Priestley, Chilton, Ed Berger on Benny Carter, Gunther Schuller on Ornette Coleman, Duke Ellington and others, Ran Blake on Thelonious Monk and Paul Bley). These are writers with track records; jazz fans will know their points of view at the outset.

Where the books make me nervous is in the large volume of entries written, presumably, by academics and other people unknown to me and (one guesses) most other jazz Who are these people? Why should we trust their opinions and sources? When Leonard Feather said something, we knew who he was, where he was coming from critically. When Barrry Kernfeld, or one of the other university contributors, says something, can we trust it? Remember, this is going to remain a much-looked-at source. The answer is, I don't know. Browsing through the books, a number of entries have made me cringe with their inaccuracies and occasional blowhard opinions. Other complaints—the bibliography and selected recordings lists following each entry are (not surprisingly) very spotty and unreliable (the many English writers, for example, concentrate on English sources; stuff like that) and the books should include a good, general jazz book bibliography, a section on important jazz compositions, things like that. At an outrageous cost of $150 per book, Grove should be near-perfect. It's far from perfect. And, of course, those prices make it generally unattainable by all but the most diehard jazz fans. Too bad-Feather hasn't updated his books in over a decade, and a comprehensive, reliable jazz encyclopedia is something the music has been hungering for.
With its flaws, however (and 1,

With its flaws, however (and I, admittedly, haven't read all 4,500 essays), this is without question the most comprehensive jazz encylopedia ever published, and will probably remain so for years to

But for a mere $24.95, Prentice-Hall has just published an excellent, up-to-date volume called Jazz: The Essential Companion, written by Ian Carr, Digby Fairweather and Brian Priestley, three well-known English writers who are also musicians—three guys whose opinions (and there are strong opinions expressed here) are reliable, and who, like Feather before them, sent questionaires to musicians for information. There are a full 1,600 entries (including some that don't appear anywhere in Grove) stuffed into this readable, dependable, and affordable volume—a penny-and-a-half per entry, as opposed to Grove's six-and-a-half-cents.

HRISTMAS HIP-HOP The elves at Profile Records have a holiday treat for us, Christmas Rap. The first single from the holiday hip-hop album is "Christmas in Hollis," by those yuletide b-boys, Run-D.M.C. In this tune. Santa loses his wallet in Queens, but all's well that ends well. The b-side is "Let the Jingle Bells Rock," by Sweet Tee.

SHARE THE SPIRIT - Shown above are Run-D.M.C. with some white youths they have adopted for the holidays. Their new single, "Christmas in Hollis, is available on red vinyl.

CD SCORECARD—Our favorite CD acquisition this week is The Go Go Posse on I Hear Ya Records. It's probably an invaluable introduction to go-go music, the Washingtonbased off-shoot of hip-hop that employs live musicians rather than deejays; but like we said last week, we don't have a CD player so we can't really say for sure. The disk features D.C. Scorpio, Rare Essence, Little Benny & The Masters and E.U. (the posse responsible for "Da Butt," the first certifiable go go hit.) ... And here's a CD called Lovin' '50s on the JCl label. It's part of JCl's successful "Baby Boomer" compilation series, much of which is now available on CD. Usually this sort of thing is cringe material, with chintzy covers and moldy top-40 fodder; but this particular compilation is better than average, featuring the Platters "Only You," "True Love Ways" by Buddy Holly, and "All I Have to Do Is Dream" by the Everly Brothers. All 12 songs are taken from original master recordings. Also in the series are such distinguished titles as Electric Seventies, Soul Sixties, Rockin' Fifties, etc. You get the gist. We're especially partial to the '70s collections, which include such gems as "Go All The Way" by the Raspberries, "Hold Your Head Up" by Argent and "All the Young Dudes" by Mott the Hoople. Yeah!

PURE POP FOR NOW PEOPLE Yours truly spent one of those birthdays that ends in a zero at Madame Wong's in Los Angeles, an unlikely place to see a great outof-town band like The Walkabouts. The 'Bouts are this generation's answer to Peter Paul & Mary, a folk band that combines sweet male/female vocalizing with a blistering rock dynamic. This was their first extensive trip out of Seattle, in advance of their new album. Their debut album, See Beautiful Rattlesnake Gardens, confirmed our opinion that Washington has quietly become the hippest state in the union and that Popllama is the most lovable record label in the land. (Also coming soon from Popllama are new releases from the Posies - called a cross between the Hollies and Billy Bragg - and Portland's Dharma Bums, whose existential new platter was co-produced by Scott McCaughey of the Young Fresh Fellows. JONATHAN RICHMAN

HEY LITTLE INNOCENT -Our recent trip to Columbia, Mo., was a qualified success. On Nov. 17 we saw Ben Vaughn give a rousing performance at the Blue Note, one of Middle America's premier showcases. The next night our own little combo, which shall remain nameless, opened a show for Jonathan Richman, who is well known for his charitable attitude toward other musicians. There was a genuine love vibration in the air, or at least there was until Jonathan dismissed the aformentioned opening band as "art shit." He then proceeded to "entertain" the crowd with solo renditions of such faux-naive classics as "Hey Little Insect," "Pretty Little Chewing Gum Wrapper," "Hey Little Dinosaur" and his vegetarian anthem, "Hey Little Grain of Corn." (Be on the lookout for Jonathan's upcoming aerobics video, "Hey Little Exercise.") We're still big fans of the guy's music, even if he is a brain-damaged, mean-spirited prima donna from another planet.

THE CALIFORNIA RAISINS – Christmas With the California Raisins – Priority Records

It's easy to get confused about the Galifornia Raisins-not with the music, which is so simple that you an't help enjoying it, but with the nature of the product. This version of the California Raisins and the version on Atlantic Records represent two different groups of musicians, neither of which is composed of actual raisins. (What? You didn't know that man beings were behind the whole thing?) Both groups are authorized by the California Raisin growers association and both have competing new releases in the stores. The two groups are now suing each other.

Beyond all the confusion and the massive merchandising push, however, is the music. The "original" aisins project was a rehash of Motown standards; now the project has evolved. The Priority Records Raisins' new album is a Christmas offering. Like the original, it features blues-rock great Buddy Miles on most of the lead vocals. Here they do their thing to some of the more upbeat Christmas favorites-"Frosty the Snowman," "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," "Jingle Bell Rock"—and each is given a soulful, spirited arrangement. Even if you hate the whole idea of cuddly, anthropomorphic raisins, you should like the music if you have any affinity for classic R&B whatsoever. The vocals are terrific, and the whole project exudes an innocence and a joy that are infectious. It's too bad that the innocence and joy doesn't extend to the boardrooms of the companies that are competing for your Raisin dollar.

HENRY KAISER -Those Who Know History Are Doomed to Repeat It-SST

Like a lot of the people who endured the early '70s, improvisational guitar whiz Henry Kaiser has a secret affinity for acid rock. Last year, his eclectic embrace of all things musical resulted in a psychedlic guitar freefor-all with a hand-picked group of like-minded musicians, an extended jam session that is recorded here. This album consists of five unlikely cover tunes, ranging from "The Andy Griffith Show' Theme" to the Grateful Dead's rarely performed magnum opus, "Dark Star." Sprinkled throughout the album are sly musical references, sonic quotations from the likes of Creedence Clearwater Revival, Aaron Copeland and Captain Beefheart. This is the kind of record that would be especially appealing to listeners with large, eccentric record collections. Dead Heads will be thrilled, both with the side-long meanderings of "Dark Star" and with the spirited "Mason's Children," a tune which the Dead performed a few times in 1970 but never recorded. "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" and "Ode to Billy Joe" are both a lot of fun, as is the whole record, even if you don't get all the jokes.

POSITIVELY BLACK -"Think Like Ya Enemy" (12") - Trumpet Records

Positively Black is a potent new posse featuring a dynamic young rapper named Prince Khalique. "Think Like Ya Enemy" is among the growing number of social outrage raps, the kind that mix a messsage of black pride and aggression to an ambiguous effect. Khalique's surefooted double-time patter over a bass line that seems to be sampled from Grandmaster Flash's "White Lines" decries a whole series of societal ills, from impending nuclear destruction to famine in Africa to poverty under our very noses. The enemy, we presume, is "the system," a system that obviously is not controlled by blacks. Whether this rap is a call to arms is open to debate. But there's no denying the power of these words, and it's increasingly obvious that half-hearted evolutionary forces are not going to save this world. This relatively simple rap packs a mighty wallop of truth.

MAGIC CARPET RIDE—Look! Up in the sky! It's Peter, Paul and Mary (not necessarily in that order), shown here during the taping of their upcoming television special, A Peter, Paul & Mary Holiday Concert. Their 90-minute celebration of good cheer and much-needed liberalism features a bevy of Christmas and Hanukkah tunes, as well as such favorites as "Blowin' in the Wind," "Puff, the Magic Dragon" and the timelessly relevant "This Land is Your Land." The special premieres on PBS stations around the country on Saturday, Dec.3 (although it will be seen a week later in selected markets, so check your local listings.). It coincides with the release of a companion live album, Peter, Paul & Mary: A Holiday Celebration, on Gold Star Records. The multi-talented and politically correct trio are shown here in their jaunty jalopy, which is apparently under the control of producer/director Rudi Goldman.

AROUND THE ROUTE

ere's a flash for you! Next year's AMOA convention, Expo '89, has been rescheduled and relocated to the western part of the country. The new dates are September 11-13 (Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday), the convention city is Las Vegas, and the Expo site is the Las Vegas Hilton. The ÁMOA board decided that because of the abundance of first class hotels and extensive exhibit facilities, Las Vegas would prove to be a much more desireable local than Atlanta, the previously announced choice which, unfortunately, could not provide sufficient accommodations. If my memory serves me correctly, when we polled tradesters a few years back, September dates ranked high on the preference list for this convention. It will be interesting to see what the trade's reaction will be at this point in time... And now for some comments about this year's Expo. It's too soon for a complete attendance breakdown (AMOA is still tallying the figures), but we did get an estimated count of between 7000 and 7200. Expo appears to have outgrown the Hyatt Regency with a record number of 513 exhibits. Expo '89 marks the show's departure from its longstanding Chicago home... AMOA Expo '88 was a successful and well organized convention and, from what manufacturers have been telling us, there was a good deal of business written up... Was there a hit of the show? Not exactly, but there were a few "honerable mentions." Was there an abundance of brand new, never before seen equipment? Not to any great measure. However, the equipment that was featured obviously generated a lot of interest, brought in orders, and that's really what this show is all about. Operators had plenty of pieces to choose from, which made their attendance at Expo worthwhile and, hopefully, profitable down the road as they start installing the equipment on location... Pinballs really came alive at this convention, in the form of Taxi from Williams, Truck Stop from Bally, Time Machine from Data East and Bad Girls from Premier... C.A. Robinson & Co. prexy Ira Bettleman told us he had already seen some of the pieces that were shown at Expo but singled out the following new games that impressed him, namely American Technos Double Dragon and Williams' Narc. He added that, "the game that came into the show alreadu established as the finest kit on the market and is still maintaining that position is Cabal from FABTEK." ... As this reporter queried operators on the convention floor, inn elevators, etc., the game most often mentioned as a "hit of the show" was Taito America's Chase H.Q.... Atlas Dist.

prexy Jerry Marcus said nothing really "grapped" him on the floor or measured up to Pac Man, Operator Wolf or Double Dragon. He observed a lot of "sameness" in themes. But, on the other hand, with the lack of a specific "great gamee" on the floor, he found that rather than being flooded with demand for one specific item, he is instead selling a little bit of everything else and that's terrific! Following are a few of the choice pieces at Expo that Jerry singled out: Atari's Cyberball, Leland's Team Quarterback, Taito America's Chase H.Q., Data East's Robocop, FABTEK's Cabal and America Technos' Double Dragon II. He also took the manufacturers to task for scheduling so many meetings during exhibit hours, which prevented distributors from doing their thing on the convention floor... Must mention how oftern FABTEK's Cabal was singled out as an outstanding piece at the show... During AMOA Expo '88, the now famous 50 Year Club—composed of individuals who have spent 50 years or more in the coin-op business, with associate members who have racket up 40 years-held a get-together in the Monarch Suite of the Hyatt to herald the establishment of the Coin Machine Hall of Fame and install the ffirast slate of occupants. The "pioneer" award was presented posthumously to David Gottlieb, founder of D. Gottlieb & Company. His son Alvin Gottlieb was on hand to accept the award. Bill O'Donnell-who was at the helm of Bally Manufacturing for many years and holds a special position of prominence and respect in the trade—was honored with the leadership award (see photo). The award for the most outstanding game of the last half century went to Pac Man, with Hide Nakajima, president of Namco (and now president of Atari), accepting. Al Rodstein (who got this club going with the assistance of Replay's Ed Adlum), presided over the presintation and then opened the floor to anyone who might want to come up and share some experiences from the past. Sol Tabb of Florida, Leonard Nims of New Orleans, Paul Calamari of Chicago and Alvin Gottlieb, among others, responded to the call. Expecting to see maybe a handful or so, I was amazed by the number of people who attended this function and have signed up as members of the club. The room was packed and from what I understand, plans are underway for a repeat performance at ACME '89 in Reno... Keep tuned to Cash Box for further Expo coverage in subsequent editions... And here's another flash! Steve Blattspieler has returned to Bally as vice president of sales and marketinf. Welcome home, buddy!

Taito's 'Chase H.Q.'

To set the stage for playing Taito's new action-packed driving game, Chase H.Q., let's focus on the following radio transmission:
"This is Nancy at Chase headquarters... We've got an emergency here...

Ralph the Idaho Slasher is fleeing toward the suburbs..."

'10-4 Nancy, we read you loud and clear...'

The action begins when the player slams the pedal down on Chase H.Q. and proceeds on a high-speed chase through downtown streets and country backs roads in an effort to run down and capture wanted criminals.

The player drives a turbo-powered sports can in hot pursuit of some of the world's most-wanted criminals. The action starts right after the radio message is transmitted from headquarters. The radio messages, by the way, are heard throughout the chase to assist the player with helpful hints and comments on his performance. An on-screen timer displays the time limit given to apprehend each criminal.

Once the criminal's car is sighted, the lights begin to flash, the siren is sounded and the time is extended. To successfully apprehend the criminal the player must repeatedly crash into the criminal's car, completely immobilizing it. A gauge indicating the amount of damage to the criminal's car is dis played on the left side of the screen. With each hit, the measure on the gauge is increased. When the gauge is full, the car stops and the criminals are ar-

Chase H.Q. presents a race against time, with the safety of the world at stake so it offers plenty of challenge. And if the player runs out of time, he can continue the chase with the Continue Play option.

This unique new driving game was among the most popular pieces at AMOA Expo '88. Further information may be obtained through factory distributors or by contacting Taito America at 660 S. Wheeling Road, Wheeling, IL 60090.

Arachnid Files Suit Against Valley

CHICAGO—Arachnid Inc. of Rockford, Illinois has filed suit in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, sitting in Rockford, against Valley Recreation Products Inc. (the Valley Company and Valley Recreation) Projects). The charge claims that Valley, by using a substantially identical ye low, red and black dart target in one of its dart games, is guilty of trademark and trade dress infringement.

Arachnid stated that it has exclusively used its distinctively colored dark board—which has a yellow spider and red and black segments—in its Englist Mark Darts dart game for over twelve years and stressed that the color theme is widely and exclusively associated with Arachnid and its dart games.

Arachnid's complaint seeks to enjoin Valley from any further sales of its "look alike dart targets" and seeks damages from Valley for past sales of the "infringing yellow, red and black targets."

NSM/Loewen Honors Distribs & Shows New Line At Expo

By Camille Compasio

Chicago—NSM/Loewen America hosted their annual breakfast meeting on Thursday, November 3rd, opening day of AMOA Expo '88. During the meeting they elaborated on the individual phonographs they would be showcasing on the convention floor and presented awards to members of their distributor network. Three distributors were received awards recognizing their outstanding achievement over the past year. Sammons Pennington took first place honors, with George Sammons accepting the award. Cleveland Coin president Ron Gold was on hand to accept the company's second place award. And Operators Dist. took home third, with Dick McCannell aeeepting the award.

Peter Kuhn, vice president of sales and marketing at NSM headquarters in Cermany, assisted Loewen America president Rus Strahan in presenting the awards; and then proceeded to honor Strahan with a special tribute in recognition of his numerous contributions to the success of the NSM line in the American market and his dedicated compact disc models to combo units (that program both 45s and CDs) tot he first CD wallbox (for all dedicated NSM machines) and everything in between, including the CD Star (which sports a nostalgia design) and a video jukebox.

Via an arrangement with Carson City Parlor of Shakopee, Minnesota, NSM distributors will be able to purchase the unique SongBird model, which is a 45 magnum stereo jukebox contained in a modified '57 Thunderbird tail section. It drew a very favorable reaction, for its unusual styling backed by the outstanding collection reports that were revealed at the meeting.

Strahan advised the assemblage that that NSM/Loewen had finalized negotiations with Mobile Records whereby authorized NSM distributors would receive discount prices on record set-ups.

Mr. Kuhn assured distributors that NSM will "continue to produce" jukeboxes that program vinyl records "this year and next year" and for as long as the market demands them. Referring to the Galaxy dedicated CD machine he explained that "all of the insides have been completely changed and redone" and stressed that "only the appearance remains the same."

The Galaxy dedicated CD jukebox, by the way, will go into production in January with sample shipments scheduled to begin in December. Further information regarding the new line may be obtained by contacting Loewen America Inc at 5207 N. Rose Street, Chicago, Ill 60656.

Williams Distributors Conclave

The new Swiss Grand Hotel in Phicago was the scene of this year's distributors meeting and new product presentation, hosted by Williams Electronic Games Inc. the evening before the opening of AMOA Expo '88 (11/2). This annual event provides the opportunity for the Alliams' distributor network to see and examine the factories new equipment before it goes on the convention floor. When Marty Glazman, Williams' vice president of marketing and sales, opened the program he said, "We are bringing you our best pnight." This premise became reality as various pieces were revealed. He also indicated that the factory has some "thrilling merchandising programs in the works." Ken Fedesna, vice president and general manager, reiterated Williams' "commitment to excellence" and stressed the importance of "teamwork" in the day-to-day activities at Williams as well in the creation and production of their products. "We listen, and we care," he told distributors, "and if we keep pulling together, I feel confident that 1989 will be our best year ever!" Before revealing Top Dawg, the factory's latest shuffle alley, sales manager Leslie Ross touched briefly on Williams' impressive track record with respect to this product category. "The shuffle alley has been in the Williams product line for over forty years," she said, during which period, she continued "we have led the field and perfected the art... Top Dawg is a well-conceived, highly sophisticated product for today's player." In addition to Top Dawg, the equipment featured at this event included the Banzai Run and Taxi pingames, the later which, as Glazman pointed out, "is easy to understand, but difficult to master." A great deal of fanfare accompanied the introduction of Narc, the much awaited new video game from Williams, which boasts a "technological leap into tomorrow," and marks Williams re-entry into the video game arena. As Narc was being unveiled, the lights were dimmed and members of the "elite team" (in full combat attire, with machine guns in hand), proceeded to shoot pellets into the audience to set the mood and get everyone involved in the excitement this game has to offer—(needless to say, the Cash Box photographer had difficulty shooting this scene!) A cocktail party preceded the show, and a gourmet dinner was served afterwards.

Cleveland Coin's Ron Gold (1) and Betson's Joe Cirillo are pictured at the cocktail party that preceded the product presentation.

Williams' marketing and sales VP Marty Glazman welcomed distributors and promised them an exciting line-up of "the best" in new pieces.

Amusement & Music Operators Association

NEW AMOA LOGO—At its November meeting, the board of directors of the Amusement & Music Operators Assn. (AMOA) approved a new, modernized logo for the association. The new logo will replace the one that has been used since 1976 when its name was changed from Music Operators Association (MOA) to AMOA, to better reflect the activities of members. During the coming months, the new logo will be gradually incorporated on AMOA letterheads, publications and other materials.

HENRY'S BEEN KEEPIN' BAD COMPANY—Recently arrested and harassed by police, WEA president Henry Droz...ops, how silly of SNAPS! Those aren't real coppers.
