THE DEPRESSION

Readjustment With a Vengeance

By JOSEPH N. WEBER

URING the time of our so-called prosperity, we were successful in augmenting the number of the predatory rich together with inflating the values of industrial holdings out of all relationship to their intrinsic value. All warnings by economists and all reasons leading to past depressions were left unheeded and when the collapse came it found our so-called magnates of industry and financiers absolutely helpless and floundering, not only unable to recognize the reasons for the collapse, but also powerless in the application of proper remedies to correct the damage done and to prevent the undue deflation of values which almost resulted in the entire destruction of same and which, had it come to pass, would have reacted disastrously upon our entire social system, and dangerously involved our form of Congress was equally impotent in applying the remedy to prevent further deflation of values to ease the present depression and to prevent recurrence of such disasters in future, but rather remained content to act on the opinion that by mortgaging the future real lasting prosperity* could be restored.

Fundamentals responsible for the overinflation, of which deflation was only a natural reaction, were ignored and consideration of enormous unemployment was confined to mere gestures toward amelioration of its fearful consequences and nothing basic was done to correct it entirely and positively, much less to prevent its recurrence. Congress confined itself to attempts to liquify credit and give aid to industries and banks by making loans available to them, and to a minor degree to give aid to States which could no longer cope alone with relief of the unemployed. Aid to industries will most likely result in a reduction of unemployment and its consequences, but only to a certain degree, it will fall far short of being a fundamental correction and is certainly not a preventative for the recurrence of the same misery to which millions upon millions of citizens have been subjected in these last three years.

Nothing was done to guard against future over-inflation of values so that the return in the shape of profits be not ridiculously out of proportion to the original amount invested, thereby making for unjust and unfair distribution of the wealth of our country, nothing to curb machinations in stock exchanges which permit transactions in no wise different to the justly ill-reputed shell games, nothing done to prevent the banks from loaning the people's money for stock gambling, nothing to protect the American people against the investment of their money in worthless foreign securities, thereby cheating and in many cases impoverishing American citizens, nothing to regulate banks to the extent of making credit fairly available to all customers offering the same securities, or to prevent banks from forcing customers to make their private arrangements for loans through another party, much to the increase of the bank's profits, nothing to keep the money to be used for its original purpose, the fundamental of which is that it be the medium of exchange for service or material values and proper economically sound expansion of industry.

The displacing of workers by machines so as to prevent the continual growth of technological thereby unemployment, leaving the introduction of machines continual curse instead of a blessing in the economic life of our country, was not considered in spite of its overwhelming importance, and nothing was done to insure that-in the event the present unbe ameliorated should those who suffered by reason of technological unemployment should have an equal chance to be employed with those who lost their employment only by reason of the depression. The ignoring of all these fundamental problems carries with it the seed of destruction of the capitalistic system and this true as is the existence of the United States itself, and must so appear to any thinking person who has the courage to face conditions as they are and who does not hypnotize himself into denying their true nature.

It is recognized that every one and all of the things left undone represent difficult problems, but economic justice demands the solving of same or else our economic system, based upon individualism, is doomed. With this, even those who believe that democracy in which the individual should be left as much as possible free in the quest of his happiness will agree. As soon as industrial rights are rampantly exercised to a degree that makes it impossible for millions to even hope or strive for happiness, same will become a tyrant making the achievement of human rights and happiness an impossibility for millions. These rights include the right to work, proper recompense therefor, the right to be safeguarded against the results of unemployment or ill health and of old age. No sophistical lamentation that individualism must prevail or democracy will fail will avail anything in the face of conditions under which millions suffered these last three years, but will rather be held as made for the purpose of retarding reform, and will aggravate the situation.

This present depression will not be the last, even though actions of Congress may bring about a fictitious prosperity giving us a breathing spell for a few years, no effective remedies having been applied the existing misery will not be entirely lessened in millions of American homes, and the maintenance of a reduced American standard of living will continue.

Of all suggestions that have been made for the purpose of correcting all unemployment inclusive of technological, the labor movement has been alone in making such as were really constructive. They suggested that all industry should agree to a five-day week and a shorter day so as to create employment for all the unemployed, and that wages should not be reduced, and yet, it fell unheeded upon the ears of our solons.

In principle, even our captains of industry agree that the suggestions are constructive—however, they do not act thereunder. In other words, all agree that "George should do it." To labor's suggestion that wages should not be reduced, the President of the United States at the time also agreed. It is clear that with the reduction of wages the purchasing power of the masses is reduced, and being already tremendously reduced by reason of unemployment, it further strengthens all the elements which lent themselves to the prolonging of the depression. In spite of this, wage reductions were made by the wholesale. Verily, none are so blind as those who do not want to see.

The misery of unemployment was aggravated by the fact that during the entire period of prosperity, as it always has been, the division of the profits of industry was entirely unfair, and those who created the commodities did not receive the reward due them. As a result, the purchasing power of the masses during the depression was soon exhausted, and millions and millions became actually objects of public charity. That this dispensed by municipalities and States and is now in a measure dispensed by the United States itself makes it none the less so that the masses suffered un-Hand in hand with thisthis is ludicrous-went the disappearance of riches of many of those who profited unduly during the so-called time of prosperity, and as a result we have now many former millionaires, or least former wellto-do individuals, experiencing a taste of what it means to live from hand to mouth, or not to know whether the things necessary for mere subsistence will be within reach from day to day. They now realize that the prosperity of the country cannot continue together with non-prosperity of the masses, as prosperity depends upon the masses being in a position to consume that which they create, and that, if in times of prosperity they are held to the lowest possible level, then in times of depression their purchasing power soon ceases, with such consequences as we experience now.

What does it all mean, and what will be the inevitable outcome? It means that the current evils of the capitalistic system must be corrected-that reason logic must form the premise on which we proceed or else the system will fall. This is as true as is the lamentable opportunity we now have to witness the starvation of millions of Americans in a land of plenty. Millions upon millions of people cannot be brought face to face with starvation and it be expected of them that they should agree that our present economic system is all that it could possibly be and that in spite of the evils thereof, they should recognized it as a blessing. They cannot be expected to agree to the inane statement, of which one of our statesmen became guilty, to the effect that the suffering caused by the present depression is really a blessing to the people.

Depressions, with ever-increasing intensity, will continue to occur periodically. This is certain as long as proper measures to prevent same are not taken. The people will only permanently endure the capitalistic system if such readjustments in same are made as will give them at least some measure of economic justice and relief, which must include the right to work and to escape starvation, undernourishment and the poor house.

The depression did not, as so many feared, destroy organized labor or make it ineffective. Labor organizations realized that they must keep their ranks together and carry on the best they could as otherwise, with the ending of the depression, the standard of the organized workers would remain considerably lowered and the opportunity to regain lost ground would have vanished.

In the main, during the depression, the organized workers fared far better than the unorganized, as in general they were not left absolutely to the option of the employer concerning wage reductions and working conditions. This ought to lead to a better organizing of the workers. The result should be that labor should become far more effective than it has been with only approximately one-fifteenth of the workers organized.

As far as the American Federation of Musicians is concerned, we kept our ranks fairly well, the percentage of loss of membership among men and women who follow music for a livelihood was small. The members that the organization did lose belong to the non-professional element, which to a great extent

Bartholomem C. McSheehy

Bartholomew C. McSheehy, Assistant to the National Treasurer for the past four years, member of the American Federation of Musicians for thirty-five years, President of Local 126, Lynn Musicians' Association for the past fifteen consecutive years, died at 5:30 Sunday morning, August 7th, at the New England Sanitarium and Hospital after an illness of four weeks, at the age of 56.

He was born in Whitinsville, Mass., son of Daniel and Mary (Shine) Mc Sheehy.

His sudden death was a severe shock to his thousands of friends. Death was the direct result of a stroke.

He was prominent in fraternal organizations, being high in Masonry, member of both Scottish and York Rites and a Shriner, a member of the Elks and also a Rotarian

He was National State Officer for the American Federation of Musicians Massachusetts.

His was an active life and music was his life up to the time of his death. At ten years of age he was called the boy wizard of the cornet. He was a fine business player, a brilliant soloist and famous as a bandmaster.

In his early years he was engaged as solo cornet with the band at the National Soldiers' Home at Togus, Maine. Later he traveled at different times with several large concert bands, his last time was with Liberati, the soloist and bandmaster, as solo cornet and librarian. He then organized the Salem Light Infantry Band, of which he was bandmaster, and traveled for some years under his own name as promoter and conductor. was also organizer and bandmaster of the American Legion Band of Salem.

He was generally known as B. C. or Mac among the employes, and his home local he was B. C., but to all friends he was just Mac.

He attended every Convention of the American Federation of Musicians for the past fifteen years and became prominent there for his keen insight and ability as a debater. When the Theatre Tax Law as before the Convention Committee, which committee consisted of nineteen presidents of large and small locals, Mac was appointed chairman. How well he did his work is plainly in evidence today with the success of said tax.

He was later placed in charge of that department in the National Treasurer's office and remained there up to his death.

He was a hard and conscientious worker and there is no doubt in my mind he worked way beyond his physical endurance, with only his nerve force to sustain him.

His was a tremendously likeable char acter and he in turn liked everybody. He was generous to a fault and nothing seemed to please him more than to be continually giving somebody something.
It appeared to be his greatest pleasure to see the look of surprise and apppreciation on the face of the recipient. still see his smile and hear that always accompanying chuckle as he handed out his gifts. He never waited for Christmas, birthdays or anniversaries, but he did it every month of the year.

The hours of work in the Treasurer's office were so long and so exacting that he was slowly paying the penalty, but none knew it until the last year, when it became evident he needed rest.

His heart was set on attending the convention in Los Angeles, and planned and talked of it continually. On May 1st we sent him to the Salem Hospital for five weeks to rest and gain strength. He appeared like himself again in June and left for Los Angele but the trip was too much for him. He was a very sick man throughout the two weeks he was there.

On his return to Boston we once again urged him to go to different doctors and a different hospital. He agreed, and at the New England Sanitarium they found he had an extremely high blood pressure of 220 and also uremic poisoning. His case was so serious that he was on tile danger list throughout the four weeks he was there, no visitors being allowed.

On the morning of August 5th the blood pressure suddenly dropped and he became delirious and from then on we knew the end was not far off. He never regained consciousness before passing

Once again there has left us another of those wonderfully fine old characters whose heart and soul were in the welfare of the American Federation of Musicians, who gave his time, energy and ability to the uplift of his fellow men.

The way we miss him in the Treas urer's office cannot be expressed in words, but we are proud to have known such a man and to feel that he called us "friend."

The last rites were held at the First Baptist Church, Salem, Mass., August 10. Rev Ralph A. Sherwood, pastor of the church and a life long friend, officiated. Masonic services were conducted by Worshipful Master W. F. Johnson and Chaplain L. O. Miles of Star King Lodge, A. F. and A. M., his Blue Lodge.

The floral offerings were in the hundreds, beautiful tributes of the memory of a lovable character. A large basket of roses, so huge two men could just carry it, was the offering of the American Federation of Musicians in the name of the officers of the Executive Board and all members as a tribute to the character of the man and to the esteem and confidence which all held for dear old Mac.

Burial was at Oakdale Cemetery, Mid-dleton, Mass. He is survived by his wife, one son, Donald Irving, a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; one daughter, Jeanne Katherine, in her last year at Simmonds College, and one sister, Mrs. Emma Bacon.

In attendance at the funeral were great crowds of people from all walks of life, not only musicians, but citizens of the locality and surrounding towns where he lived.

The American Federation of Musicians was represented by G. B. Henderson, Assistant to the National President; E. M. President of Local 802, Canavan. New York, and H. E. Brenton, National Treas-

Local 126, Lynn, Mass., was represented. by all of its officers and many of the members, and Local 9, Boston, and Local 143, Worcester, were represented by the officers of the respective locals.

Members of Masonic orders and also embers of the American Legion and the Elks were present.

only affiliated with the organization for the opportunity to mingle with professional members and who, even during prosperous times, often only played engagements now and then, which oppor-tunity was naturally lost to them during the depression. This class of member which became largely unemployed in the vocation they actually followed for a livelihood will flock back into our organization as soon as conditions have become more nearly normal.

In point of working conditions, we naturally conformed to the changed conditions, but did it in such a manner as to almost entirely safeguard the basic wage which is paid to members who are employed. At least, such was the result of the activities of our organization up to the present time. Having the maintenance of the basic wage in mind we readily consented that the hours of playing agreed upon should be made to conform to the necessity of the function wherein such playing was done. For instance, in theatres they were made to conform to the necessity of the theatre. This in most cases avoided the excessive accumulation of overtime. Modifications were made in extra price paid for musicians who ren-der services on the stage in addition to rendering such in the pit, the hours during which the services are rendered were spread over a certain number of hours, as for instance 5½ hours out of 8 or 6 hours out of 9 and so on. Payment for overtime was in many instances modified and many other changes were made by locals to conform to the changed conditions. This, of course, resulted in members hav ing their opportunities to earn good amounts, in addition to the basic wage, reduced, but for all that, by safeguarding basic wage the Federation fared much better than any other national or international labor organizations.

It cannot be said that we remained stubborn and did not realize the unfavorable vicissitudes which the depression brought to all industry; we met same fairly, but now, in spite of this, employers demand that the basic wage for services of our members should be decreased by from 25 to 33 1/3 per cent. there can only be one answer, namely, that we will stake our organization on the maintenance of a proper basic scale and will make any sacrifice rather than agree to the proposition of practically destroying same. This is the policy of the President's office of the Federation, and I know and feel that it will meet with the wishes of members and locals. If there ever was a time that we should willing to make more sacrifices if necessary so as to avoid a miserable future insofar as wage and working conditions are concerned, now is the time.

The demands that the basic wages should be decreased 25 to 33 1/3 per cent should not be taken as serious. I rather hold such propositions in the nature of grim humor. I have advised all local unions to whom same were made to ignore them, not to negotiate upon such a basis, but rather forego employment because if they would agree to the demands, all the efforts of the last 25 years to gain a more just station in life for our members in which we have been at least appreciably successful, would be lost again for many years.

I appeal to every local union to insist upon a fair basic wage, no matter in what form of employment. The lowering of same will not make more employment. Employment is made by economic conditions. Members should remember that they are only employed when needed and that the employer will have to pay a reasonable wage for their services. Even if the locals should allow such work as can be had to be done for a mere pittance, the result regarding the creating of more employment would nevertheless remain practically nil.

Locals are, of course, absolutely free to negotiate the wage and working conditions for their own members, but the Federation maintains a law which provides that if the scale of one local works to the detriment of the scale of others. then the authorities of the Federation may intercede. However, the policies of locals have, except in exceedingly few instances, always been in the direction of making it unnecessary for the authorities of the Federation to consider the general application of this law.

I suggest and request that local unions approach the condition with an open mind, conform to changed working hours and changed working conditions as long as same are reasonable and are not irksome, but insist that a decent and fair basic wage be maintained under any and all circumstances

Trade unionists, behold that cosmic joke-the captain of industry!

Wage-cutting is the banker's way of adding more to that of which he has already taken far too much. Resist!

Bright spots are appearing here and there. But the workers will be the last in line at the counter where the benefits are dispensed.

The depression is surely not over. But, anyway, that which is behind cannot come again. Wise men will plan forward instead of mourning backward.

What about new union members? If trade unionism is the bulwark of the nation's freedom we can't be too well

Is there any union member in the United States who can't get four new members in a year? Well, then, why not do it!

Before you condemn Congress ask yourself who elected it. Before you lambaste your union officers ask yourself who elected them. . .

It ought to be something of a lesson to note that wherever there have been revo lutions the free expression of public will has been stopped by one device or another. People revolt when they cannot make decisions any other way.

Trade unionism is rooted in the free institutions of America. The forces that have made this depression have been the forces most active in seeking to sub-merge those institutions. Labor's flag flies high and proud these days.

A noted editor in a public address not long ago was cheered to the echo when he referred to the big bankers of Wall Street as "male members of the world's oldest profession." And his audience was composed, not of workers, but of business

The tide is turning with a wide swing. More and more unions are halting the wage-cut drive. It won't be long before defenders become the aggressors. The ruthlessness of Big Business is not going to be forgotten.

When 2,500 miners surround a mine and battle for its possession it becomes clear that a job is actually worth some thing and moreover that the workers intend to have something to say about the disposal thereof. Harking back a bit we may recall that a Supreme Court decision said something about the property right of a worker in his job.

Standard Statistics reports 62.5 per cent of business "deflated" and ready to go ahead. To that extent have workers suffered unemployment and wage-cuts because of the utter foolishness of big employers and financiers who think they are still wise enough to run the country without any help from labor. We have been witnessing the supreme demonstration of incapacity.

Industry Faces Its Test; and Where Are Its Leaders?

NY true revival of prosperity and any lasting tenure of prosperity, once the revival comes, must depend upon conditions within industry and whoever forgets that fact forgets the main factor in the reckoning.

President Green, discussing relief at the executive council meeting in Atlantic City, said: "The govern-ment doesn't own industry."

Everybody knows the government doesn't own industry, but almost everybody is just now prone to forget the implications of the statement.

The United States remains a nation based upon and mmitted to private ownership and control.

That happens to be the fact.

Aside from the utilities field government has little nothing to say about industry.

The great bankers of Wall Street have a great deal more to say about them. . more to say about industrial policies than Uncle Sam

The point to this-and what President Green clearly had in mind—is that while there are certain things the government can do and must do, the main job of maintaining prosperity comes back to industry itself.

To that end and knowing the source of much of our present misery, labor demands that industry at once inaugurate the 30-hour week everywhere.

All that the government can do will not fully restore nor long maintain any great degree of prosperity as long as industry allows the old maladjustments to remain untouched.

The main maladjustments are and have been in relation to hours and wages.

Repeatedly it has been shown that wages were too low and that the drain-off in various forms of profit was too high.

No social order could long stand such a drain of its vital fluid.

Repeatedly it has been shown that workers are and have been working too many hours a week.

The situation is obvious—it needs no proof in figures.

Future confidence in the system of private ownership will be largely determined by the ability and willingness of industry to bring about the drastic and sweeping readjustments now needed.

Failure of industry to fulfill the requirements will surely drive millions of men and women against their inclinations to demand further encroachment on business by government,

The fact that any other social order now known would bring worse penalties and harsher conditions will make little difference to the millions who are denied any measure of justice under our own private owner They see their own plight and little else-and

It is clear that there must be a return to work or there will be a sweeping rush to attach industry through political action. There has been many a jump from the frying pan to the fire. Everyone knows how hot the frying pan is; few stop to think the fire may be hotter.

The path industry must pursue is clear. Where is leadership in industry that will force the pace and lead Thus far it seems lacking, but it cannot long the way? remain so in safety.

HEN members of organized labor and other forward-looking people protest against ward-looking people protest against machinery in production being used by those who own and control industry to enrich themselves at the expe the workers, reactionaries often exclaim: "What! Are you opposed to progress?"

The reactionaries imply that labor-displacing ma chinery contributes to progress regardless of the inequalable distribution of the economic benefits resulting from its application.

This point is considered by Thomas E. Dunwoody, editor of the American Pressman, the official organ of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of America, in the following editorial on "High -Short Hours":

"High speed machines, new methods and types of machines are coming fast even under present conditions.

"They cannot be stopped, and as long as they represent progress, as long as they serve mankind, no one wants to stop them.

"But man was not made to serve the machine. On the contrary, the machine is the creation of man—a vehicle to serve mankind, and it cannot be allowed to become anything else.

"The machine can only serve society when regu-

"The machine can only serve society when regulated to do so.
"High-speed labor-displacing machines make necessary the shortening of the work week.
"In no other way can be balanced the factors of production and unemployment, and production and consumption of the products of the machine."

Mr. Dunwoody is right. There is no progress in the mere invention and introduction of machines that enable one person to produce as much of the good things of many persons produced without the machines. Nor is there progress when the benefits of the machines are appropriated, as they have been hitherto and are being now, by those who own industry. Progress is social, not individual.

Iowa farmers have been showing the country what strike can be like when there is desperate determination to win. It took all that forty deputies and police could do to prevent a raid on stock yards at Sioux City. Farmers have been patrolling roads, stopping milk, except for hospitals. The farmers in this case call their strike a vacation. Perhaps they are of the type that finds a real fight enjoyable. In any event here is another example of resistance to robbery. What the men want is the same thing wage-earners want-a decent living and a chance to earn it by honest effort.

Out Beyond the Surf --

Where thought, unhastened by necessity or trepida-tion, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallows throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

With all of the endless and tiresome repetition of Kipling's fascinating, irritating Boots

Boots, boots, boots

The ponderous critics march on, dripping their dauby ink over pages upon pages of virgin paper

Telling us what to do.

It seems as if the more profound the critic the more vapid may we expect his comment to be.

The obvious being simple and therefore without sensation value, the really astute crtic turns to the abstruce, the abstract and the ponderous.

For the modern highbrow critic is a good showman if anything.

It is, to be sure, little less than lese majesty to make mention of Prof. John Dewey, without going hat in hand, so many have been the laurel wreaths laid upon his doorstep and hung about his neck. But, be that as it may. He serves as an example of sorts.

Dr. Dewey gained vast reputation as a philosopher, whereupon it developed that ipso facto, or something like that, he must know all about social reconstruction.

A visiting foreigner arrives. Somebody is managing his tour and the somebody manager needs discussion. So the visiting foreigner becomes an authority on everything-in these days social and economic reconstruction, most likely. Again, what utter nonsense.

Of these gentlemen there have been vast shoals, domestic and imported. And they have done amazing harm. As we shall endeavor to see.

The political field is the one easiest of entry. Everybody votes, so everybody has a theoretical interest in politics. Everybody pays taxes, in one way or another. It is the one field of universal interest of universal contact.

It becomes, quite naturally, the great arena of show-

Thus we slip easily to the point where everything that goes wrong does so because of bad politics, everything that goes right does so because of good politics.

These are bad times. There must be more of politics. More things must be done through politics. If times get still worse the leaning toward politics will become More Americans look toward salvation through politics-which is government-than ever before. That goes for trade unionists, too.

The power of original thought seems to be forsaking us, as a people.

We have unemployment, not because the government isn't running, but because factories are not running. Nobody seems to think about that Nobody seems to carry the thought through to its conclusion.

Ah, we are told, but the government should compel employers to do this and that and the government should do vast public works.

And, because the nation has got itself keyed to that idea the government now must, in truth, do vast public works. For all of which we shall have to pay presently.

Meanwhile the enormous fact that we have an industrial civilization escapes us. The tremendous fact that we need to organize industry to govern itself flits by us without leaving even a mark.

We miss the whole monumental lesson of the dayand as we miss so shall we pay presently .-- C. M. W.

The Banks Have Been Helped

REPORT of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shows with dramatic detail how the banks have been helped by that enormous governmental financing enterprise.

Almost all loans made went to banks.

Clearly the banks needed help or they would not have at once absorbed so much of the Corporation's money. If they needed money they needed it because their own reserves were frozen.

Which again shows us that the banking fraternity has no wizardry up its sleeve. Ordinary mortals are told to "ask your banker" what to do with your money.

Anyone wanting to know how good the average anker's advice is can get good idea by observing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation report on loans

And anyone wanting to know more about the bankers' deep interest in the welfare of the American people can get some light on that, too, by reading the reports that tell of the difficulties of business in securcredit to push new projects to help pull the nation out of its distress.

OVER FEDERATION FIELD

(By Chauncey A. Weaver)

The campaign is on. Political parties bent on saving the country after their fashion are vociferating through the medium of printer's ink and oratorical platform. The fight is waxing bitter. Promises are being made on all sides which will never be carried out. The demagogue is in his element. There are many kinds of predictions afloat, but it is too early to hazard an intelligent guess. From campaign standpoint it is a long stretch between the national nominating convention and the November election. Mid-summer heat and late autumn coolness both have their figurative or sentimental counterpart in the emotional tide ebbing and tide-flowing of a Presidential campaign. The older ones will recall the 1896 campaign when Bryan's election was a foregone conclusion in June and McKinley swept the country in November. There are elements in the present contest which were not in evidence in the 1896 campaign. There are a multitude of cross-currents of energy whose ultimate force and effect cannot now be foretold. What will the wet do? What will the dry What will the voter with badly deflated securities do? What will the man long out of a job do? The natural reaction would be to hit the party in power. But supposing prosperity, string-halted and spavined, and lingering "just around the corner," should come galloping in? Such situation might tell a different story. This is a campaign in which every voter should go to the ballot box. And yet, there are untold thousands with so little appreciation of the right of suffrage they will lazily remain away. There is no country on the face of the earth where the masses themselves have so much direct power in the shaping and regulating of their own affairs. If they fall to assert themselves when the oppor-tunity comes they should forever hold their peace if dire consequences follow. Whoever wins we are going to predict that the Ship of State will continue to sail majestically on.

Federation members will be shocked to learn that the devasting hand of Death has removed both Frank Gecks and Mrs. Frank Gecks-the demise of these wellknown people having occurred within a very few hours of each other and under circumstances peculiarly tragic in their home city of St. Louis.

Brother Frank Gecks died Tuesday, August 17, following a long illness. On Thursday, August 19, while the funeral services over the husband were in progress, Mrs. Gecks was stricken and passed away before she could be removed from the undertaking establishment.

Thus, this highly estimable and sin-cerely devoted couple were spared the sorrows of long separation.

Frank Gecks was for many years a violinist in the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra and for thirty years conductor of the St. Louis Philharmonic Society. He was 66 years old.

Brother Gecks attended Christian Brothers' College and later studied music in Germany. He was a fine teacher and for many years was a notable factor in aiding in the development of young musi-cal talent of the city. He served one year as a member of the national executive board of the American Federation of Musicians; was long prominent in the affairs of Local No. 2, and had attended many national conventions as a delegate.

Frank Gecks had fine abilities outside the realm of music. He had a good mind and was a most effective public speaker. Concerning the passing of Mrs. Gecks, the St. Louis papers say:

Mrs. Gecks collapsed as the body of her husband was being carried from the mortuary shortly after 3 o'clock. A physician was summoned, but was unable to revive her, and she died an hour later. Death was due to heart disease, the physician said. Other relatives and friends accom-panied the body of the husband to the Bellefontaine Cemetery, it being thought that Mrs. Gecks had merely fainted. Mrs. Gecks was 64 years old.

Mrs. Gecks frequently accompanied her husband to federation gatherings and h a wide acquaintance. The passing of Mr. and Mrs. Gecks will carry sorrow to all parts of the federation jurisdiction, and multitudes will recall kindly memories of both husband and wife.

Two saxophones were stolen from a fraternity house in Columbus, Ohio. Although both were high-grade instruments the jury refused to convict the burglar of anything more than petty larceny.

It is refreshing that twenty-three members of the last Congress have already bitten the dust in the race for re-nomination. Perhaps after awhile the family pay-roll racket will lose its charm in our so-called halls of state.

This is the month during which most of the theatres used to open. Moderns who run out of bed-time stories might tell the kids what a theatre used to be like.

Local No. 10 is already making preparation for the 1933 Federation convention "I Will" is a favorite Chicago motto.

SETTING A FAST PACE

for DRUMMERS

OWHERE will you find a sterner test for drums and drummers than amid the stirring action of the circus. The drummers than affid the stirring action of the circus. The drums set the tempo for the whole performance—A swift, furious, remorseless pace. Of the 140 musical numbers which make up a typical circus program, 40 are gallops played at record breaking speed. And the daily grind of circus routine demands men and equipment of iron stamina.

Give a hand then to these king pin drummers of the circus world. Thompson and Paulsen, of the World's Greatest Show, are one of the finest drum teams in the business. And don't overlook the lesson that they bring to every drummer who wants to go places and do things. For their exacting work they have found that they get best results with Leedy drums.

For more than 35 years, America's leading drummers have preferred Leedy equipment. You, too, will find a Leedy the key to improved performance and greater success. Play the drum that's standard with big time bands and orchestras everywhere.

Try a Leedy. Ask your dealer to show you the newest models with all their improvements. Outstanding values are offered Now.

An Inspiration

Noah Webster compiled his famous book long before the advent of radio Consequently, it was a positive inspiration when he defined CROONING: make a continuous hollow sound, as cattle in pain; to lament or wail with low monotonous sounds."

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR TO MAINTAIN NON-PARTISAN POLICY

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has made the following declaration announcing its determination to adhere to the non-partisan political policy of the Federation in this year's campaign.

"The American Federation of Labor has found from experience that the best interests of its entire membership have been protected and conserved through a strict adherence to a non-partisan political policy.

This procedure requires that the platforms of the political parties must be compared and the records of candidates for office must be carefully studied and scrutinized.

"When all such political information is made available the individual members of organized labor invariably support candidates for office who are known to be friendly and sympathetic toward the aims and purposes of the American Federation of Labor and who enjoy the confidence and esteem of the members and representatives of organized labor.

"The wisdom of such action is clearly apparent when it is considered that the American Federation of Labor is composed of men and women who entertain different political opinions.

"They are not required to become iden tified with or to support any political party when they become members of the American Federation of Labor.

"After giving consideration to all these facts the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor is of the opinion that the membership of the American Federation of Labor should continue to adhere to its nonpartisan political policy during the ensuing political campaign.

"All information regarding platforms, candidates and their records will be com-piled by the Nonpartisan Political Committee and submitted to the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor so that they may exercise their political judgment in a way which will be to the individual and collective interest of all working men and women.

"In connection with this very impo tant decision the executive council is taking into consideration the fact that the candidates of the two great political parties for the presidency of the United States will make important pronouncements upon questions of unemployment and labor in their speeches of acceptance.

"We firmly expect that each of them, in these addresses, will make declarations of great significance to labor.

'We anticipate that they will express their opinions regarding the serious eco nomic condition which prevails throughout the nation and will amplify the larations of the platforms of the political parties relating to labor question

'We will await, with very great interest, the expression of each of the candidates, reserving to ourselves a final decision regarding our future policy during the remainder of the campaign.

"In conformity with this declaration and decision of the executive council, the Nonpartisan Political Committee of the American Federation of Labor is in structed to communicate with National and International Unions, State Federations of Labor, Central Bodies and directly chartered Local Unions, transmitting to them copies of the platforms of the two political parties and the records of the candidates for the presidency of the United States, together with a copy of this declaration

"Furthermore, the records of candidates for the United States Senate in the different States and candidates for the House of Representatives shall be supplied for general distribution throughout the different States and congressional districts.

COMPOSE and ARRANGE

Learn at home in half the usual time

Wouldn't you like to say "goodby forever" to your "follow-the-leader" days? Wouldn't you like to know the fascinating secrets of Harmony—the little tricks of arranging music for all instruments—the knack of composing that will make your musical career a profitable and artistical success? Then here's a definite, very inexpensive way to realize your ambitions—without conflicting in any way with your present activities.

Now, through a simplified method, prepared by the celebrated exponent of Harmony and Composition, C. W. Wilcox, you can learn right at home—in one-half the usual time—how to do "off hand" orchestrations—all about chord construction and scale harmony—how to find the fundamental basses to a melody—how to compose. The essit is only a frastlen of that charged by sensevateries. Write for full particulars of this remarkable Home-Study method and receive an unusual trial offer. Address—U. 8. TELEVISION SURE WITH LOW COSTS OF MANUFACTURE

That television has passed the stage where there is any doubt that it is scientifically practicable and now faces the problem of being developed inexpensively enough so as to be commercially practicable is the statement of Acting Chairman of the Federal Radio Commission Harold A. Lafount.

Reports from experimental laboratories reveal that slowly but steadily and inevitably the scientific barriers are being surmounted. Television's scientific practicability is inevitable—the chief problem now is to cut down manufacturing and operating expenses so television will be a commercial industry.

As things now are, it is impracticable to forecast any immediate time when apparatus will be inexpensive enough to come within the reach of the average pocketbook, and until cheaper methods of manufacture and operation are found there is no chance that television will develop to a great industry.

Its potentialities, however, are almost limitless. In combination with broadcasting, television becomes one of the na-tion's greatest industries, affecting every resident of America. Ever since 1925, when C. Francis Jenkins gave his first public television dem-onstration, consisting of flickering shadows of a little girl in silhouette bouncing a ball, the laboratories have become a magnet for the promotor who pictures to his prospective clients the untold wealth to be found in this new field, which, in his opinion, will far outstrip such prosaic industries as were created by the automobile and radio.

Let Us Not Overlook Facts

Put the Responsibility for Unemployment Where It Belongs and Look for the Cure from Where It Should Rightly Come.

By CHESTER M. WRIGHT

POLITICAL campaign has been begun and we shall have torrents of words about issues of kinds. Much will be said about agriculture and much will be said about the wage earners. In these two great groups the votes which candidates must

The sincerity of candidates will not wholly prevent the making of promises that cannot possibly be filled, the giving of pledges that cannot possibly be kept.

Among all the issues the greatest that of unemployment. We shall no doubt hear much about it.

The easy thing is to accept unemployment as a political issue solely and leave it to politicians and office holders to cure. nothing is more foolish.

Barking Up Wrong Tree

That Government has functions which it can perform to influence in some degree the tides of unemployment is clear enough, but that Government can either regulate or remedy the whole situation. short of a headong plunge into socialism is just that much foolishness. The proam laid down in the Wagner bills marked out about the highest degree of statesmanship we have witnessed in relation to unemployment, and yet it cannot by any means be said that the Wagner program, had it all become law, would have met all the needs of this crisis.

To say that this is an unusual crisis. the worst the nation has ever had, gets us nowhere, for the next will be worse than this, just as this is werse than the last, Statesmen, if we have any, and the masses alike, forget that the forces that make for depressions grow larger and reach deeper with every passing year and that the speed of all events of all social forces grows greater likewise with each year, if not actually with each month.

If the United States keeps out of socialism, or some of its allied and related isms, unemployment will be eradicated by action within industry itself.

Plenty "Jes Sit"

Again let it be said, the easy thing is to write unemployment down as a political issue and let the politicians have the blame for its existence, as well as the responsibility for its cure. It saves thinkand thinking is perhaps the most painful process in which we can indulge. There is more than a jest in the old saw about some who "jes sit and think and some who jes sit." Plenty "jes sit." Add to their number those who think to no purpose and those who think to false conclusions and the prospect of arousing straight and constructive thought is not so bright as it might be.

And yet, if we are to find the right way out of unemployment, there must be some real thinking. The maintenance of democracy requires thinking. "Government OF the people and BY the people" never fails unless the 'people display either an unwillingness or an inability to meet their own issues.

American industry is not run by the Government, if we except the post office and if we except the railroads, which are under more or less Government regula-tion. Neither of these institutions is doing any better than other business.

What Fell Down?

Industry is privately owned. Government can influence industry either by owning it, regulating it or financing it. Unemployment came, not because the Government broke down, but because industry broke down. For Government to own industry is something like socialism. For Government to regulate industry is to approach socialism by the creation of a stepmother relationship that cannot fail to disappoint and lead either to Gov ernment ownership or back to private ownership. For Government to aid by financing may be necessary, but it should The trouble is not for lack of funds in the banks from which to extend credit, for the great banks are today more than 80 per cent liquid, which means "cash money."

Beware of Emotion

To be satisfied with and committed to the private ownership and operation of industry in time of prosperity and to that the Government set matters right in time of adversity betrays a genuine inconsistency of thought and philosophy.

It is natural to seek a new cure in desperation, but it is not always wise. If a change of national philosophy is to be made it should be made upon the basis of reason and of discovered facts, not upon the basis of emotion.

Let us repeat: It is not Government that collapsed; it is industry that collapsed. Government does not own or operate industry in America. ask and expect the Government to help if it can, but to expect the Government to assume the whole burden of a collapsed industry is neither sound nor safe. Moreover, that assumption takes all the blame from those who ought to be held responsible and puts it upon the shoulders Government. And there is something even more important than that. If Government is expected to procure the cure, when it fails, as fail it must, the resentment against Government conceivably might go to the point of destroying Government itself.

Why Exonerate Barons?

Why should the barons of finance and industry be absolved of the blame for the collapse of their operations? Either they are to blame or Government is to blame and since they were in full control it is a fair assumption that they are to blame. Why not hold them to their responsibilities? It seems seldom to occur to people that the over-emphasis of governmental responsibility provides a readymade alibi for those who perpetrated the crime and precipitated the wholesale misery of today.

When Samson pulled down the pillars he didn't point an accusing finger at someone else. When Wall Street and its allied streets pulled down the pillars they pointed the finger at Uncle Sam and told him to get out his wrecking crew to repair the damage. By and large the rest of us have aped the gentlemen of Wall Street. We have very little imagination and we find history a difficult thing to remember much about.

Principles Never Decay

The American labor movement grew up on a doctrine which held that Govern ment should do nothing for the people that they could do for themselves.

There are those who say that was an old doctrine and that it is out of date. Sound principles are never out of date. And there is no sound principle that is new to this present day. Tactics change, but principles do not.

The long and short of it is-as trade unionism points out-that if and when unemployment is conquered it will be by the readjustment of industry within itself, unless we adopt the alternative of forcing the State into industry through socialism, fascism or communism, in one form or another. And for that reason a great deal that politicians and candi dates will say is bunk, which they will believe themselves forced to deliver because people have forgotten their moorings and mislaid their fundamental prin-

Government has committed some high crimes, to be sure. For years upon years Government helped reactionary industrial barons to prevent labor from organizing by throwing legal protection around the yellow dog contract. Were labor unions twice as strong today Government would be having less trouble and were labor unions four times as strong no wage earner would think of asking Government to do anything much about unemployment. He would know that the edy lies within industry and he would be in a position to help apply the remedy.

The right road through seems a long road and a painful one, but that cannot change the fact of its rightness. There is generally a penalty visited upon those who take wrong roads, and this case will be no exception.

THE FOODS WE NEED

HAZEL K. STIEBELING lor Food Economist, Bureau of ome Economics, United States Department of Agriculture

To the hungry man the food he needs is something to eat-anything to eat. He craves something to quiet his hunger, and bread by itself will do that. Any "filling" food will do it for the moment.

But bread in whatever amount is not enough for anybody to eat. No single kind of food is enough. A certain variety is a necessity. This needed variety, however, is in the substances of which foods are composed and not primarily in the number of articles of food. The right combinations of a few food materials can provide all the different substances needed by the body. But it is essential to know and not merely to guess at those combinations.

The foods we need are those which will do definite things for the human body They must provide the substances needed for the building of bones, nerves, blood and muscle. They must provide body fuel to give warmth to the body and power to They must regulate the processes work. of the body and help it to resist disease. The scientist knows these necessary foods or nutrients as proteins, fats, carbohydrates, mineral elements and vitamins. But we must buy them in bread, milk, vegetables, meat and other commodities found in the market.

Because of the nutrients, or food substances, for which they are important, the foods we use may be arranged in five groups:

- (1) Milk and cheese
- Vegetables and fruits (2)
- (3) Bread, flour, and cereals
- (4) Fats and sugars
- Eggs, lean meat, and fish. (5)

Milk and Cheese

Milk used to be considered chiefly an infant's food, but recent scientific studies show that the liberal use of milk and green-colored vegetables makes even a good family diet better. Plenty of these foods not only make for good growth and development in children, but tends to "preserve the characteristics of youth" and to extend the prime of life for adults. Who is not interested in prolonging the best years of maturity?

Milk contains the best assortment of nutrients of any single food material. With bread, flour and cereals it forms the safest foundation on which to build an adequate diet. Milk is particularly important for its high quality proteins, for its minerals, especially calcium; for vitamin A; and for its pellagra-preventing values. These are food factors which are not put into the family diet so easily and inexpensively from other sources.

Vegetables and Fruits

Among vegetables and fruits there are several important kinds. The inexpensive potato is so mild flavored and so valuable for starch, minerals and vita mins that we may well eat potatoes several times a week or even every day. Tomatoes and raw cabbage are important for the vitamins they contain, and so are the citrus fruits. Some one of these should be used every day. All kinds of greens and other green or yellow-colored vegetables-spinach, turnip tops, beet tops, green peas, snap beans and carrots —are especially valuable for minerals The importance of vegeand vitamins. tables and fruits can hardly be overemphasized. That is why gardens, even the little backyard city gardens, are so necessary in hard times. They can supply some of the foods that might otherwise be left out of the family fare.

On the other hand green vegetables and milk are less important than some other foods as sources of body fuel. They must be supplemented with bread, cere als, fats and sugars to provide the amount of energy-giving food needed for physical activity.

Foods Made from Grain Products. Such as Bread, Flour, Cereals

The refined grain products are cheap sources of body fuel and protein, but are poor in minerals and vitamins. The dark, less highly refined wheat cereals, used about once a day or more, will increase the iron content of the diet at little cost.

Fats and Sugars

Fats and sugars are primarily important as sources of body fuel. They add flavor to food. Butter carries most of the vitamin A of the milk or cream from which it is made. Unrefined cane contains mineral elements which the refining process removes from white sugars and syrups.

Eggs, Lean Meat, Fish

Eggs, lean meat and fish are important mainly for their proteins of good quality, for their pellagra-preventing values, and for the flavor and interest which they add to the diet. Eggs and liver also are good sources also of iron and some other minerals, and of vitamins A and D.

> A Guide to Good Proportions in the Diet

Within each of these five general classes of food there are numerous kinds or forms of food materials from which to choose our daily food supply. them can be used interchangeably so that by choosing the cheaper forms and varieties in each we can markedly reduce the cost of our food.

To insure the right proportion of these five kinds of food in the diet here is a guide to use in planning family meals: Divide every dollar spent for food into five parts for five different kinds of food. For a family in which there are children, this is a good division:

Milk and cheese Vegetables and fruit 20-25c Flour, bread and cereals 15-20c Butter, lard, fat meats, other fats, sugar and molasses

Eggs, lean meat, fish and other foods

A good diet is always a balanced diet including all the kinds of food the body needs in the right proportions for good nutrition. There must be variety as well as a sufficient amount of food to keep us from hunger and in good health.

SHORT STORIES ON WEALTH

By IRVING FISHER

Professor of Economics, Yale University

THE "SINGLE TAX"

We come next to the so-called single tax proposal. The single tax would (1) rent, as an "unearned increment," (2) tax nothing else than land rent, and (3) tax that rent nearly 100 per cent. Although I believe there is a good deal of truth in the proposal to tax the so-called "unearned increment," instead of taxing land improvements, there eem to be two chief objections to the single tax as it is proposed by the orthodox single taxers.

One is that it involves confiscation. It is true that many single taxers have now given that idea up. Yet it was the idea of Henry George, the originator of the single tax. He said that land was analogous to stolen goods. If you steal my automobile and someone else buys it of you, it is still mine; I can reclaim it. Any person who buys it from you has no right to keep it, even if he bought it in good faith.

But there must be a time limitation; and when you come to land, the analogy is especially foolish. It may be that men did originally get land by seizing it. We know that gold claims originally were staked out. Sometimes the Government held it first, and on a certain day allowed the public to rush for it and take it. This is "seizing" if you like,

But does this show that you had no right to it and that therefore none of your successors have a right to it? may well be that the land on which you now stand was taken from the Indians by fraud or force some day in the dim and distant past; but if we should now try to find the heirs of the Indians and restore that land to them it would be ssible, or if possible, such "justice" would be silly. The original injustice, if any, would not be corrected; but a new injustice, to the present holder, would be

And so if a person owns a house and lot and has a title deed which is legal, bought in good faith, the fact that it was originally gotten by a process that Henry George doesn't approve of doesn't invali date the title today in any sensible scheme of things. So I can't believe that we ought suddenly and completely to confiscate economic rent. But I do believe, with Henry George, that we can't take the opposite extreme. We can't say that there is a vested right in land such that, since you never taxed certain land efore you can't tax it in the future. We have to use common sense.

In addition to the objection of confiscation, there is a second objection. This is that the single taxer-the orthodox single taxer—doesn't want to tax anything else than land. That is why the plan is called a single tax.

Such a rent tax is to him a natural According to this doctrine we must tax. use that one tax and no other. We must make our expenditures fit exactly what that one tax will yield.

Now look at what this means. We know that the rent of any land is due to the difference between productivity that land and the productivity of the worst land in use. If land rent is very great because of a big difference between the most fertile and the least fertile land the Government will have more money than it needs and will waste it. But if you happened to live in a country where all pieces of land were equally productive you would have no land rent at all and the Government would, under the single tax, have no funds at all! What would you do then?

Clearly taxation should be based primarily on what is needed by the Government. Taxes must be made to correspond to needed expenditures, instead of expenditures being made to correspond to accidental land differences. So a mixed system of taxation, such as we haveor rather, not such as we have, but such as it might be after certain conservative tax reforms—is, correct.

There are other arguments against the single tax. The increment of rent is not always unearned. Sometimes, as is the water front, land is manufactured, so to speak. Then the increment is not altogether "unearned," but comes about through the same profit motive as any other increment.

Yet we should work in the direction of taxing the land rather than the improvements on land, for the simple reason that when you tax the land the tax cannot be shifted. It does not reduce productivity. But when you tax the building on the land it does discourage the improvement.

The best example of this reaction to a tax on improvements is in the window tax, the famous example in France. There the Government has tried to assess the size of a man's house by the number of windows. The result was that people were having fewer and fewer windows until some people had only one window in the entire house. The tax resulted in less, not more, revenue and discouraged sanitary building.

HORDES OF JOBLESS BOYS

Tramp the Highways Looking for Work, Children's Bureau Says.

Growing hordes of jobless boys are tramping the highways and riding freight trains throughout the United States in search of work, according to a study by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor at Washington, D. C.

The study covers boys under 21 years of age. Many of them have attended college or high school. Local employers refuse to give them jobs. Local authorities do not institute public works to employ In many instances support from the family provided by relief agencies is wholly inadequate to feed all the children. So the older boys take to the field in search of work.

The study points out that most of the communities through which the boys pass are no longer able to meet the needs their own unemployed properly and so allow the transients to remain but twenty four hours. "Move on! Move on!" cry the authorities in every town.

Dr. A. W. McMillen, associate profes sor in the graduate school of social service administration at the University of Chicago, who made the investigation on which the Children's Bureau based its study, concentrated his efforts in the Southwest from March to June. He found the boys had swarmed to that region to escape cold weather and to look for sea-sonal work in the cotton fields, lettuce gardens and canteloupe patches.

He found them hitch-hiking and riding freight cars, cooking their crude meals in the "jungles" about railroad yards, sleeping on jail floors, and then moving on because municipal authorities refused to help them.

"Along the route of the Southern Pacific Railroad," Professor McMillen said, "many small towns in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona reported the passing of about 200 men and boys daily during the winter and spring. This railroad from September to April recorded almost 417,-000 trespassers ejected on its 9,130 miles of track. In the month of May it was estimated that 1,500 transients per day the freights through Kansas City and that from 20 to 25 per cent of these were boys.

"Boys from New England and the north central States were found in Washington, D. C., and farther South. During the six months ending in April in the of Columbia, for instance, ap-District proximately 2,600 boys were known to be transients. In Memphis, Tenn., from September to March 3,000 transient boys were on their way."

To remedy the situation Professor Mc-Millen recommended that life in their home towns be made more attractive for the boys by various sorts of community activities in vocational education, recreation and gymnastics. To provide for the boys already on the road he urged a national transient service fund to aid communities who are getting "more" than their normal share of vagrants" and labor camps with forestry activities and similar work for the transient jobless who have no homes.
