Our Famous Bandmasters of the Past

By HENRY WOELBER

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA

The members of Local 9, of Boston, are very proud of the fact that the subject of this sketch belonged to their organization. Born November 6, 1854, in Washington, he came by his talent naturally. father, a Portuguese, was a trombone player in the Marine Band since 1850, and gave him his first start. His mother. a German, by her encouragement and de votion, was a great inspiration in his There is no doubt the racial strain in his blood accounted for the wonderful musical genius he soon proved to be. As a lad of six he had vocal instruction; a little later piano, violin, and harmony lessons. From 10 to 13 he played triangle, cymbals, Eb alto, trombone, and At this formative period he absorbed a knowledge of band instruments. which stood him in such good stead later on in life. At 13 his father had him as second trombone Marine Band. From then on his rise was Soon he was leader of an remarkable. eight-piece dance orchestra, and played de Beriot's Concertos at amateur concerts. It is noteworthy that Theodore Thomas, the first symphony leader of renown in America, also played second horn in the Navy Band at Portsmouth, Virginia. Sousa, at this time, began the more serious study of harmony, and the world knows the rest. Young Sousa was so adept at the latter, his lessons were often extended to two or three hours. Correcting proofs for a music publishing company, at 12 cents a page, was a great help in concentrating. When 19 he was playing violin in Ford's Opera House in an Offenbach opera. Like all rising musicians he began giving lessons, even on the cornet. He taught four little Italian boys who played violins to the accompani ment of a harp, on the streets of Washington. No one ever knew how little he charged them. Just about this time he joined Milton Noble's company as orchesat Streator, Illinois, and traveled extensively in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Alabama, Louisiana, Pennsylvania and Missouri. Sousa heard the great Gilmore Band at the Philadelphia Centennial, in 1876, and here and now the idea came to him just what he intended to do with a band of his own. He enlarged his theatrical experience by playing one of the first violins under Offenbach, during the entire run of those operas. Strange, indeed, are the contacts and romances of a musician. When Sousa was a young boy in Washington, the Franko family was touring the country. Sousa heard, for the first time, a really fine violinist, who was none other than little Nahan Franko, a perfect wonder on the instrument, afterward eminent as violin in the Metropolitan Opera many years. Sousa was president of the American Bandmasters' Association, now presided over by the distinguished Edwin Franko Goldman, nephew of Nahan Franko. His band made five tours of Europe; one of the world. No doubt during the entire 40 years of its existence more good music was heard by millions of people than through any other agency. No orchestra can possibly be heard to such an extent. According to the latest estimates, not more than 10,000 people are interested in the largest cities supporting a symphony orchestra, and there are now twelve regular, organized symphony orchestras in the United States. Certainly no more than three or four thousand can be seated in any concert hall, so it follows, the band is the thing to carry good music to the great multitudes in the open air. The band will come back; at present there are more band players of every degree than ever was before known. Although most people regarded Sousa as a bandsmen, he was first of all a thoroughly routined and experienced theatrical musician, so in 1880, at 26, when he took the leadership of the United States Marine Band, he was equipped as few men could possibly be for that position. It was in St. Louis, was leader with a company playing Gilbert and Sullivan operas, that he received this important appointment. The "Hebe" of Pinafore introduced him to her understudy, who was the charming Jennie Bellis, 16, born February 22, 1863, who became Mrs. Sousa before the end of her 17th year. He understood progressions, modulations, dissonances, yet in his beautiful home life of nearly 53 years there was never the least semblance of discord. From then on Sousa's life work was the band. For twelve years he remained in Washington, then at Plainfield, N. J., September 26, 1892, at the age of 38, the first concert of the Sousa Band was given. Gilmore lay dead at St. Louis. Had he lived, no doubt his fame would have continued, because Sousa was no rival of Gilmore. There was room enough for both. Now that they are both gone, who are their successors? Is one from the sidewalks of New York? Is the other from the granite hills of Massachusetts, the home of American Presidents? Still room for both. There never was a time when people needed the solace of music more than now, and a real band is more capable of reaching their ears than any other medium. Sousa had the faculty of a perfect balance for a band. Here was no driftwood, no needless repetition of When his early reputation was in the making, he travelled this country far and wide with a marvelous instrume tion of forty-four men, nineteen of whom played brass instruments, three percussion, and the other half of twenty-two. the reeds. Of the reeds, one was an E flat alto saxophone, a B flat tenor saxophone, an E flat baritone saxophone, an alto clarinet, and bass clarinet. All through his career this band was increased, until at his death it numbered eighty-four players. Sousa always had the reed idea in the back of his head.

The bass drum and cymbal were not used to drown the music, but rather to indicate, and accentuate rhythm in the proper time and place, and then in the His reed band was so right proportion. complete, that often times in his marches, after playing a forte introduction, all the brass were tacit, with the possible exception of a tuba, and the four horns, until the repeat of the very last strain. Here was an effect never to be forgotten. At a society affair once, an enthusiastic debutante stepped up to him and said: "Mr. Sousa, I adore Fannie Hurst's 'Humoresque' you just played." "But," corrected Mr. Sousa, "it is by Dvorak."
"Oh, yes," she replied, "he is from Iowa, isn't he?" Sousa said: "He summered there once, but just now he is in Czecho-

If a complete orchestra of ninety-six men, including two harps, is a quartette, so was Sousa's Band, of eighty-four, a The orchestra qualities-string, wood, brass and percus-Each section alone represents a quartette. Strings-violin, viola, cello and wood-four clarinets, four flutes, four oboes, four bassoons; brass-four horns, four trumpets, three trombones, one tuba; and by stretching the imagination just a bit, one could easily analyze the percussion as a quartette; tympani and bass drum, tenor drum, alto xylophone, and traps, soprano celeste, and traps, with tamborine, and so on, because those four men in the battery section play everything known in that line. Sousa's lacking only the strings easily be likened unto a trio. A first-class band emphasizes the need of good wind players in an orchestra, because every complete orchestra has each instrument of a military band, differing only in its quota. The most striking thing about the Sousa Band was its resonance and flexibility, the liquid quality was always in evidence, and still it was capable of the most gradual crescendo and an overwhelming, even violent, climax. Sousa, the last few years of his life, attained his highest ambition, that of duplicating the instrumentation of what up to his time was considered the greatest in the world -The Guard' Republic Band of Paris, with a complete roster of ninety pieces. Sousa, with a few exceptions, did just that, by eliminating the E flat altos, the valve trombones, and tenor horns, gradually bringing his own band up to eightyfour men. He had accomplished what he had set out to do. If Bach is the musician's musician, Czerny, the student's musician, so is Sousa, the people's musician. He said years ago regarding the entertainment of the public: "If they will listen to a Liszt Rhapsody, I will play 'Has Anybody Seen Kelly?' Or I Or I play a Brahms Hungarian dance, and respond with 'Put Me Off at Buffalo'.' That was the order and custom; people knew it, and went in droves to hear his wonderful band. It is beyond the realm of reason that any one composer will write such hits as "The Washington "High School Cadets," "Liberty "Manhattan Beach," "Semper Post." Bell," "Manhattan Fidelis," "The Thunderer," "King Cotton" and "El Capitan." Time only will decide whether his fame will rest on his ability as a composer, bandmaster, or a typical American scholar and gentleman. A selfcontained man of affairs, with an ease of manner, a grasp of conversation, an attractive courtesy, and a sense of show-manship which was astonishing. It is my opinion that his style of playing, and his instrumentation, will models for others to follow. He was a kindly soul. Patriotism was spelled right in his name—so U. S. A., just as the name of the great Civil War general contained two of these magic letters—U. S.—Ulysses Simpson Grant.

The classical music will always endure in the form of symphonies and operas, played by superb orchestras, but the band will add quite a bit, by playing more popular music, thus entertaining and educating the great masses of people up to that high state. That was the hope and thought of John Philip Sousa. Such encore numbers as "The Barcarole," "The Lorelei," "Arioso," "Titl's Serenade," "Traumerei," "The First Heart Throbs," had a charm of manner, and were simply irresistible.

Mark Twain said: "The old horse and buggy were the greatest institution for the promotion of marriage ever known."

How many young couples must have decided to take that important step while listening to Sousa's encores at fairs all over the country!

I speak from experience.

"My Kingdom for a Horse."

My kingdom for a legato, a sostenuto, a largo, with the long-drawn-out tuba notes still drawn until the quarter's become halves, the halves, whole, and the whole notes leading us into an atmosphere of repose and relaxation, worthy only of the green pastures, and sunken gardens. In the mere playing of these numbers, it was not the men, nor the composition, but the art of interpretation, and the poetic soul of the conductor, that sent young and old alike to their homes, at least temporarily, at peace with the world.

Such was the power of a band conducted by John Philip Sousa.

Opinions

The necessity for maintaining the union or American standard of living at this critical time is recognized by industrial leaders and union men alike, and the union which aids in having them maintained not only benefits the workingman, but is the protector of local industry and hence a vital factor in the welfare of the community in which it operates.—Dr. John A. Ryan, Catholic University.

NOTICE TO ALL MEMBERS

THE new postal regulations require us to pay 2c on each postmaster's advice card we receive. These cards formerly came to us from the postoffice gratis. The idea is this: If you move without giving your Local Secretary ample notice, and your paper is mailed to your old address, the postmaster sends us a card telling us to discontinue sending your paper to that address and we pay 2c for each card. We receive hundreds of these cards weekly. You can help save a considerable sum of money for the organization if you will only fill out or copy the blank form attached hereto, and mail to YOUR LOCAL SECRETARY, giving your new address in time to avoid the necessity of the postmaster sending us an advice card.

Although the law of your Local may permit thirty days in which to advise your Local Secretary of change of address, you will be helpful in saving the organization a substantial sum of money each year if you will forward your correct address to him prior to or immediately upon changing your residence.

A. F. of L. Convention Call Issued

The call for the fifty-second convention of the American Federation of Labor, to meet at the Netherland Plaza Hotel, Cincinnati, Ohio, beginning Monday, November 21, has been issued by the Executive Council.

"The hopes and aspirations of millions of workers will be centered upon the convention and widespread interest will be manifested in its actions and in its deliberations," the call says. "The economic emergency which existed one year ago has become more intensified and The problem of unemployment overshadows every other social, economic and political problem which the American people are called upon to consider.

"Labor in our country is expecting that the fifty-second annual convention of the American Federation of Labor will give consideration to the thoughts which occupy the minds and attention of the masses of the people. We must speak for Labor and act for Labor in a way which

TO CLARINETISTS .. AND .

SAXOPHONISTS

A Manual of the Clarinet and Saxophone Has Appeared.

The author is Germany's leading clarinetist, the present solo clarinetist of the National Radio of Germany. He owes his position at the head of all clarinetists to the extent of at least 50% to the great experience he possesses in the department of mouthpiece adjustment and self preparation of the reed by hand. His work, which is unique of its kind, is entitled "Instructor for Clarinetists and Saxophonists," by Richard Knauer, Koenigsberg, Pr. Hoverbeckstrasse 8, Germany. It has been translated into English by F. W. Bevan, of London. In this book the knacks and secrets which have been mastered in the course of long decades by a deeply thoughtful investigator are placed in your hands like a fully-ripened fruit. The author has to date supplied more than 10,000 clarinetists with his hand-made reeds and regulated the mouthpiece of their instruments for 3,000 clarinetists, virtuosi in chamber music, in traditional national theatres belong to his clientele. Twenty years ago he was playing under the inspired batons of Arthur Bodansky (Mannheim), Dr. Wilhelm Furtwaengler, etc. His new work supplies the ambitious and industrious musician with the foundation of his artistic career. He who would spare himself heavy sacrifices in nervous energy, time and money, should acquire this unique work. "Let the artist stand firm and sure upon his own foundation; his aspirations and his aims are the highest goal of art." (Goethe.)

The work contains six sections:

Section I. Constitution of the artist's struction, with the aid of drawings and photographs.

Section III. Self-preparation of the reed for clarinet and saxophone. Exact description of the best methods of obtaining, by means of the friction method, sonorous depth, bell-like ringing middle tone, confident high notes, wonderful staccato and gradually fading pp.

Note on Sections II and III from my Manual: the correct application of the reed to the tube of the mouthplece is exactly in accordance with the physical and acoustical laws observed by the old. Italian violin makers (The golden form). Italian violin makers (The golden form). Stradivarius were really only so many attempts to achieve the perfect shape and quality of tone which found their highest expression in the great class of Stradivarius. The clarinetist must also put his own individual intellectual note into the work of adjusting the mouthplece and preparing the reed, and then the tone of the instrument will be a part of himself.

Section IV. Professional technique and its mastery through my preliminary gymnastic finger exercises (without instrument) and by practical note-exercises (with instrument). Letting the supporting finger rest in order to achieve an even union of tones.

Section VI. Impurity of tone. Faulty boring of the mouthpiece in clarinet and saxophone. Pushing forward of Duodecimi (in the saxophone of octaves). How to correct faults. Do you wish to take pleasure in your instrument? Do you wish to conserve your nervous energy? Do you wish to reach a respected position and to achieve honor, esteem and prosperity? Then order my "Instructor for clarinetists and saxophonists." Price $15. With complete apparatus for adjustment of mouthpiece and self-preparation of reed $20. Genuine work and goods guaranteed. As cash on delivery is not permissible, delivery only on receipt of the amount. Please do not send money by ordinary mail, but by registered letter. THE SECRET lies in the (new principle) VOCABELL, a feature that is exclusive with Conn and protected by United States Patents pending. The Vocabell is a distinct departure from conventional bell construction. Made from a single piece of brass—integral and homogeneous—with no steel wire or folled edge to dampen and muffle the tone. So this new principle bell vibrates freely, favors the high overtones and makes it intractibly easier to play the higher notes.

The sweet, high overtones are preserved in all their natural beauty. Delicate shades of tonal coloring are added, impossible to obtain on instruments with conventional bell construction and therange upward is amazingly increased. Besides, the instrument speaks more quickly, easily and freely and has a clear, pure resonance impossible to obtain without the Vocabell.

A new and vastly improved valve construction for the cornet and trumpet and the finest slide action ever built into a trombone, contribute new responsiveness and amazingly speedier performance. In addition these new instruments embody other refinements which make them supreme in performance, style and beauty.

Such outstanding artists as B. A. Rolfe—cornet—Charles ("Chuck") Campbell of Nathaniel Shilkret's famous Radio Orchestra—trombone—Lebert Lombardo, Royal Canadians—trumpet—and many others equally famous eagerly bought new Connquerors and write us of performance achievements far beyond the meg of conventional instruments.

ERE is a record of trade union courage, fraternity, solidarity and high ethics that ough every non-union man and every American. The International Photo-Engravers' Union and its subordinate local unions provided benefits amounting to $2,085,-408.30 during its fiscal year commencing June 1, 1931, and ending May 31, 1932.

This record is all the more remarkable when it is sidered that this organization numbers only some 9,000 journeymen members, of whom 32.7 per cent were unemployed, 45.2 per cent employed but part time, mak ing a total of 77.9 per cent directly affected by existing business conditions and leaving but 22.1 per cent employed on a full-time basis during the year.

The lives of all members are insured by the international union in the amount of $1,000 by a group policy with The Union Labor Life Insurance Company, which also protects against total permanent disability. Strike and lockout benefits of $25 per week, tuberculosis benefits of $15 per week and a funeral benefit of $200 are also provided.

Unemployment benefits provided by local unions range from $5 to $25 per week. Assessments to meet this obligation have ranged as high as $16 per week in some cities during the past year. Many local unions also provide additional life insurance, sick benefits and funeral expenses

Surely this is an astonishing example of the benefits of trade unionism. The Photo-Engravers' Union is to be congratulated and so is each of its members. The photo-engraver who loses his job or is ill or injured faces no cold world unaided.

The Economic World Is Today a Whirling Maze

STRAWS in today's winds may tell which way to-morrow's hurrican of events will blow.

Take Detroit. Today there is too much quiet in Detroit. The big motor companies are entrenched behind the biggest pile of cash they have ever had.

General Motors has enormous reserves. So have the others. They are planning behind locked doors for the battle over next year's markets.

Ford cuts wages, abandoning his $5.00 a day minithough he has plenty of cash. Detroit predicts that the wage-cut was in preparation for a tremendous price war.

The great motor companies are laying plan, not to see how fairly they can deal with their employes, but to see what they can do to each other.

And now the banks-the big money-lenders of the world.

Cash is piled high. Short-term interest rates are But the cash does not move with any great spec into industry. On every hand it is said that industry needs credits. But needing credits, it goes on thirsting without getting them. Why?

The banks have the money. Two things are said to act as a check.

Banks are still clinging to their cash, refusing to make loans. make loans. On the other hand, many concerns that need money fear to ask for it. So, unemployment con-

Big bugs always have said Demos has no brains. Where are the brains of the moneyed big bugs?

Work-sharing enters the industrial arena. Of 5,000 firms questioned, 3,857 report that they have inaugurated work-sharing plans to save their employes from lay-offs. A powerful national committee is at work promoting work-sharing throughout the nation. It will save many from hunger and it is aimed to put millions back to work.

Many employers have begun working on a five-day week basis and of these a good many are concluding they will never return to a longer wee

Perhaps the short work-week will emerge from this depression as humanity s great gain. Slowly and in tremendous pain the race works its way away from

First, freedom from lords and monarchs. Now free dom from the machine.

But at what cost? Brains, it is sure, COULD win the battle more easily.

But brains often are in one place-power in another. So the struggle goes on in agony, but with a great victory chalked up on the big record books ab so often.

Meanwhile, as for today and today's needs, there are trends on every hand. Some gain in employment, mostly spotted. Some gain in commodity output. Some recovery in price levels. Some gain in steel and in car loadings. Evidently the famous "corner" turned.

How much better to use brains, to organize for curbing reckless exploiters, for a better distribution of the rewards of toil and industry. But, as we survey, we see some gains made permanently.

High Point, High Hope

N High Point, N. C., there has just been a strike. Some 6,000 workers quit their jobs spontaneously. Some among the 6,000 were trade unionists. Some knew the technique of strikes.

But mainly it was an uprising—a spur-of-the-moment walkout in protest against the proverbial last straw.

Now the great thing about this strike was solidarity. There were no quitters.

The next and consequent great thing was that they

Trade unionism cannot take any great amount of credit for this strike, and yet, more than two years ago the American Federation of Labor carried into that section the gospel of unity and the hope of protest, so perhaps trade unionism is entitled to a great deal more of credit than on the surface seems warranted.

But strikes are not all there is to trade unionism. Strikes are only a part of the business of trade unionism the dramatic part, but the smaller part.

These workers could win a strike handsomely and with tremendous credit to themselves, but for the long pull for justice they need organization, training, dis-

Every day organization becomes more imperative. shall yet see that the salvation and safety of industrial civilization depend upon organization.

The question should be, not, can we organize? But, Can we organize rapidly enough.

For the equilibrium of modern industry can be maintained only by and through organized control. For the workers that means unions and they had better comwith great speed.

The union organizer today is the foundation builder. Let him be conscious of his high mission—let him work as he never worked before.

Questions and Answers on Labor: What It Has Done; Where It Stands on Problems of the Day; Its Aim and Program; Who's Who in the Ranks of the Organized Toilers, etc., etc.

Q.-Who said: It is a widely accepted principle that the government as an employer should on its own ac-count and as an example take the lead in establishing just and practical conditions of employment"?

A .- This is from a declaration by the 1920 convention of the American Federation of Labor.

-Does organized labor believe that victims of occupational diseases should come under provisions of workmen's compensation laws?

A.—Yes. The 1918 convention of the American Federation of Labor said: "We believe that trade and occupational diseases should be considered in law as in fact an obligation of industry, and that those who contract for the employment of the workers should be required to provide compensation to those suffering from health airment due to their employment."

-Is the term "open shop" properly used when used to designate a non-union shop?

A. It is not. The only proper terms to use are "union shop" and "non-union shop," except that the non-union shop may be designated as an anti-union shop. But "closed" and "open" are customarily misused. La bor does not and cannot close any shop to non-union workers. Labor can and does say that if non-union workers are employed the union workers will cease work. If there is any truly closed shop it is the shop whose doors are closed to union men by the owner or

Out Beyond the Surf --

Where thought, unhastened by necessity or trepida-tion, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallows throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

There are those gloomy persons who go through the days, as fall puts the warmth of color in the last of the leaves and a counter-balancing crispness in the air. telling us that never shall we recover from this de

Political spokesmen and those who for spokesmen tell us that we shall never again have prosperity

Meanwhile a steady parade of figures passes in review telling all who care to ponder over them exactly what is happening and forecasting measurably what is

The United States is going to recover from this depression and it may have another foolish burst of over-expansion, because lessons of such magnitude are learned but slowly.

Meanwhile, the important fact is that there are definite signs of recovery. That recovery will not reach everyone at once is the sad truth. Some will not be reached for months. But despite all sad facts in the situation, it is of enormous importance that the tide has turned.

Of course, it would not be true to say that politics and government have nothing to do with hastening re-They have a good deal to do with it. covery. would be equally untrue to say that everything depends upon the action and operations of government and political figures. Have employers and financiers no responsibilities? And if not, then since when has that been the case?

The fact is that we have today an industrial civilization. One of the flaws in this industrial civilization is that, to a large extent, we vote in politics but we live in industry. We have not developed a way of making our voices felt and respected in industry.

The extent to which we are lacking in that respect is measured precisely by the strength or weakness of our trade union movement.

Of all roads toward lasting, consistent, honest prosperity, the surest road is the road that lies through trade union organization.

Until we learn that lesson we shall have penalties to pay and suffering to undergo.

There are all too many short thinkers handing out prescriptions.

Too many who take a look at the stars and then solve everything.

Too many who are unwilling to think over the whole sweep and scheme of things to find the seat of wrong. Our disaster was not a surface affair. The cure will be no surface affair.

The best service that can be done today is to dig for truth and to think deeply.

Wages are too low-hours of work too long. In the gala boom days there was too big a slice of profitcriminal looting. Do we expect to remedy those things in a day, or by a magic formula, or by the actions of a politician no wiser than we? We shall cure these things faster and more surely if we stick to fundamentals-and, above all, if we organize trade unions!

Let us be about our business everywhere. Let us press upon all the justice of our cause, but above all and first of all, let us bring all workers into the fold of unionism, in solidarity.

Idols Go Crashing

SINCE the beginning of usury, bankers have sought to create a reputation for wisdom and integrity. Financiers of all sorts have followed suit.

How the mighty have fallen!

There was Ivar Krueger-failure and suicide-trick-

Remember "the old counsellor" of Halsey, Stuart & Co., on the radio a year ago, radiating integrity? Halsey, Stuart & Co. has gone plop.

There was Sam Insull and his pile of hokum. What a crash!

Three S. W. Straus companies go to the wall-more misery. John A. Machray, respected Canadian university treasurer and financier, loots millions. And so they go. By their confidence in so-called leaders the people have lost millions. Bank failures have carried away tons of money, painfully hoarded by the poor. Will the people ever again have confidence in money wizards?

It is the poor who are left "holding the bag."
It is not the so-called big men of finance who have seen clearly into the future. It is the trade union movement that has seen clearly. It is time its counsel was heard-its plans adopted.

OVER FEDERATION FIELD

(By CHAUNCEY A. WEAVER)

There is no more appreciative section of the achievements, purposes and ideals of the American Federation of Musicians than in the Dominion of Canada. From its far-flung border line bathed in Labra dorean waters to the Vancouver Pacific ost the sentiment is the same. This feeling found notable expression upon the recent visit of President Joseph N. Weber to Toronto, Local No. 149. Accompanied by his assistant, G. Bert Henderson,, for many years identified with the Toronto organization, this supposedly simple ordinary visit speedily took on the color and dignity of a civic event. The visitors were met at the morning train by a goodly local delegation. At 11 o'clock President Weber was tendered a civic reception by Mayor W. J. Stewart, the Board of Control and the City Counciltogether with a band of sixty-five pieces under the direction of Captain John Slat-At the Hotel King Edward, the Mayor and City Council tendered a dinner at which Luigi Romanelli and his orchestra furnished the music. On the following Sunday morning President Weber addressed the regular meeting of Local No. 149. In the afternoon, at the Imperial Theatre, President Weber addressed a mass meeting—at which music was furnished by Captain Slatter and his band; and also by a band of fifty pieces from Hamilton under the leadership of Lieutenant Lomas. On Sunday evening the official visitors were guests at a spedinner arranged by the Executive Board of the local. Delegations were present from all of the locals in that sec tion of Canada. In a special message by Local President Walter M. Murdoch, appearing in the October Bulletin of the Toronto Musical Protective Association,

"I am quite sure that every member of the association is deeply grateful for the magnificent service rendered by Brother Joseph N. Weber during the past week. His visit made it posfor the association to get true facts of our organization before the public. We have been inundated with congratulations from many prominent citizens who are not mem-bers of our profession."

It is officially announced that the midyear meeting of the International Executive Board, mandatorily authorized by Article I; Section 6, of the International By-Laws, will also be held in Toronto some time during the coming month of

Here is where we emerge from the transcendently beautiful Fairyland which October unfolds into the November of gray and leaden skies, moaning winds, denuded tree-limbs, and political campaign reflections. By the time these lines reach you the verdict will be known. hope you may be happy over the result.

It is to be hoped the enthusiasm of the year's political campaign will enough of a hang-over among local members to generate an interest in their own organization elections and will see to it that officers are duly elected who will be proud to "carry on."

The following tragic story is taken the New York Morning Telegram:

On the concert program of one of the larger orchestras, not so many weeks ago, was Beethoven's "Leonore" overture, the two climaxes of which are each followed by a trumpet pas-age offstage.

The first climax came, but not a sound emanated from the trumpet.

The conductor, considerably annoyed, went on to the second. Again

This time, the overture being finished, he rushed into the wings. There he found the trumpet player still arguing with the house fireman. 'I tell you, you can't play that thing back here," the latter was saying. "There's a concert going on."

We have no official report of the affair from Local No. 802.

Edward Moore, the very able musical critic of the Chicago Tribune, headlines an article in his paper - "Public Wants Good Music at Lowest Rates." tion is significant and we wish it might be shown to point to a new era-one in which a more rational adjustment of a certain type of public admission might be brought about. The artist, like the common laborer, is worthy of his hire and is entitled to all that his talents may command of the coin of the realm. Our protest is against the commercial exploitation of the artist which limits patronage to the well-to-do and deprives multitudes of music lovers and art patrons of that which they should have some opportunity to enjoy. For example, we chanced to be in a metropolitan city recently and thought to spend the evening hours at a theatre where a high-class musical attrac-tion was billed. Calling at the box office the human icicle glaring from the ex terior told us there were no seats available—although they were widely advertised in the morning papers of the same day for $3.85-best seats. Returning to the hotel, the piratical ticket broker officing therein sold us a ticket for $6.05. We suppose the extra 5 cents was for the rendered in handing the ticket across the counter. We have never been able to comprehend the so-called wisdom of making it a business of seeking patronage by the hold-up method. Music for the masses is the rule in other countries. Music for the classes is too pronouncedly the vogue in our own. Experience has demonstrated that the American people can be easily brought to a keen appreciation of good music when it is made available. We trust that Mr. Moore is sponsoring a cult which will spread far and wide. He will find a rich field for his missionary work close at home. More music and better music will mean augmented employment and decent wages for those who have prepared themselves for activity in the musical profession.

Glimmerings of hope spatter their way through the gloom that has shrouded the landscape for lo, these many months. Reports come telling of new jobs and new enterprises. In many communities there is a movement back to work.

Other and deeper signs of improvement, meaning more in the long run, but not so appealing to the average mind, are found in the credit situation, in the figures about the gold supply and in statistics about prices and export trade.

Every item of good news ought to bring cheer, and most folks will see matters

But, strange as it may seem, there are many who will not cheer and who will accept every piece of good news with doubt and cynicism.

Certain types live on bad news-and what a feast they have had these last three years.

Sure enough, there is plenty of bad news yet and all through the winter there will be plenty, for it seems impossible that even the best of news can bring work for eleven millions now idle.

There is bad news, too, in the fact that banks, overloaded with money, still do not lend and that many enterprises, so accustomed to fear that they have forgotten courage, are timid about asking loans that are warranted and needed. The credit situation is this: There is plenty money, but not the courage or the Hoot Mon!

A salesman asked a Scotch farmer to buy a bicycle. "They are cheap now and I can let you have a good one for seven pounds."

"I would rather put the money in another cow," replied the farmer, reflecting.

"You would look mighty foolish riding around your farm on a cow, now wouldn't you?" said the salesman.

Said the Scot: "No more foolish than I would milking a bicycle."—Ex.

Worth Trying

Friend—Now, you don't need any medicine. I had a toothache yesterday and I went home and my loving wife kissed me and so consoled me that the pain soon passed away. Why don't you try the same?

Sufferer—I think I will. Is your with at home now?—Hanselman's Manna.

DON'T SNEER AT THE STREET BUSKER

ALLAN BYTHEWAY

IN BRITISH MUSICIANS IOURNAL

enever I see ex-kinema musicians "husking" in the streets, my heart misses a beat. There, but for the grace of God, go I. Quite apart from that, I am always afraid-for their sakes-that I shall know happened the other night, and it wasn't nice. As I crossed to my bus stop, I saw two people, a man and a woman, a violinist and a 'cellist, playing under a street lamp. The man was desperately jaunty about it; the girl horribly shamed but utterly determined.

I didn't know the man, but I recognized the girl. She had played in the same kinema orchestra with me more than once. She's done some chamber music, too, in her time. What could I do? I smiled at her, and tried to speak to her. She cut me dead.

Poor girl-I don't blame her. There were smudges under her eyes and her face was haggard, her mouth tightly com pressed. It took all her courage to sit there in the street and play. People stared at her and commented upon her, sometimes maliciously. No doubt they found it a little odd for a girl-a nicelooking, respectably dressed girl at that to be playing for coppers late at night.

Why couldn't she sell her instrument? woman asked, a trifle tartly. "I woman said, a trifle tartly. "I wouldn't do that-make a public exhibition of myself-until I had nothing but rags," said another. No, she wouldn't have the pluck. But both of them missed the point. Would you say to an out-ofwork carpenter, "Go and sell your tools"? Of course you wouldn't; his tools are his means of livelihood, so why say to an out-of-work musician, "You should sell your instrument before you beg.'

What has happened to them, the lost legion of ex-kinema musicians? Many of are playing on the streets as away from their home town as possible. A man I know is a waiter; a girl I know is a "Nippy." Another man kept a shoe shop for a time. Two other men are running a greengrocer's shop somewhere. They are the lucky ones.

e or two of us are eking out our living as free-lance journalists trying to prove that man can live by the pen alone. A man I know has taken up work as an insurance agent; many more are hawking goods from door to door.

Another man has got a job as a kinem attendant, and thinks he's lucky to get it. Whatever we're doing, it's "catch as catch The Musicians' Union can't help us. It is too young an organization to have sufficient funds to cope with a distress so general, so widespread. And a musician cannot draw dole. The most he can hope for, his last resort, is a little outrelief, or the workhouse.

The whole thing was so sudden, so calamitous. The talkie boom swept across the country like a tornado. One week the talkies were a matter for amused speculation; the next, they were an established And now a silent film seems odd, stilted, irritating.

No, there's no going back. There's no stemming the tide of progress. Even those who have been swept away by it will admit that without bitterness

But there's one thing about which we are bitter—the way you've treated us. You—and you—and you. You never knew we were there unless we displeased you, even in the old days. We fitted films for you so cunningly that music, scene and emotion were one and indivisible. That was an art; an art you didn't always ap preciate.

We played you musical interludes twice nightly, and you talked through them. That's what they were for. We gave you of our best, nevertheless, and if we were a little tired of receiving requests for "O Sole Mio" and the Intermezzo from "Cavaleria Rusticana," even a hackneved request showed that somebody took slight interest in us, so we gratefully played it for you as well as we could.

Ours wasn't a soft job, sitting in a dark pit, very often ill-ventilated and not too well lighted, with the flicker of the picture just above our heads, worrying our all night long.

We sat in hard chairs in cramped positions, with just enough room for our bowarms, while you lounged smoking in your plush seats. Our leader stood up hours on end and was lucky if he had any support for his back.

There was no time for dreaming. Constant vigilance was necessary if we were to switch from one tune to another without perceptible pause at the psychological Yes, it was a nerve-wracking job that deprived us of normal hours of leisure, a health-sapping job. A night off was almost unheard of, and when we went on holiday we had to supplydeputy.

But we loved it. It was a hard job, but it was a job worth doing, and we took a

And now the profession of kinema musician is no more. It's dead, dead as the dodo. But we're not. We're here in the midst of you, trying to keep our end up somehow, anyhow. It we're on our own we can just tighten our belts, but if people are dependent on us it's a different matter. Behold, we are with you always. One of us may serve your soup in the next restaurant you visit, or sell you a paper at the street corner, or usher you to your seat at a super-cinema, or weigh you a pound of potatoes.

We are your servants still, and still you ignore us in our plight as you ignored us, or reviled us, in our prosperity.

We've done precious little moaning, all things considered. We're not moaning now, when our years of expensive training are wasted utterly, and our profession is no more. But, when you see us "busking" in the street as a last desperate alternative to the work-house, the last throw of independence we can make, we would rather you didn't sneer at us for trying an "easy way" of raising money.

The trees have dipped their branches Into the sunset dye, And reds and golds and yellows Reflect on brook and sky. The days are growing shorter, The apples in the bin. Are nodding friendly faces To pumpkins gathered in!

SHARE-WORK MOVEMENT COMMENDED BY GREEN

Workers Urged to Co-operate With Committees Set Up by Organization Headed by Walter C. Teagle.

"Substantial aid" can be extended to the unemployed through the share-thework movement, in the opinion of President William Green of the American Federation of Labor. President Green, in a statement strongly commending the movement, urged employers and workers alike to join in promoting the objects of the committee now working under the chairmanship of Walter C. Teagle.

"The share-the-work movement spon sored by the Federal Reserve Banking and Industrial Committees and of which Walter C. Teagle is chairman has for its purpose the creation of work opportunities so that those who are idle may be reemployed," said President Green. employment is to be overcome and if work is to be found for millions who are idle the amount of work available, that is the amount of work at hand, must be more equitably distributed.

"Earning power is bound to follow the creation of work opportunities. The employment of additional workers represents the first step which must be taken in order to enlarge consuming units and increase buying power. Artificially created work cannot last because it does not rest upon a sound economic basis, but an equitable distribution of the amount of work necessary and available will tend to create a demand for manufactured goods and this, in turn, will create additional jobs for idle men.

"If employers of labor throughout the nation will give the share-the-work move-ment their full and complete support, increasing employment, creating work opportunities for idle people, great improvement will be noticeable within a very short time in the industrial and economic

"In a great emergency such as now exists it is the duty, the patriotic duty, of employers of labor to give the share-thework movement a full and complete measure of support. In like manner, laboring people can well afford to cooperate and work with the committees formed for the purpose of furthering the share-the-work movement. Through such co-operation and support they can extend substantial aid to more than eleven million idle workers and those dependent

SHORT STORIES ON WEALTH

By IRVING FISHER

Professor of Economics, Yale University

MINIMUM STANDARDS

In the last short story I discussed insurance as a method of raising the minimum incomes or preventing their collapse. In this story I shall speak of setting minimum standards of living as means toward the same end.

Fixing a legal minimum is an example. The economic objection to a minimum wage is that it artificially raises the rate of wages beyond the "natural" result of supply and demand. Some people will be thrown out of work by the minimum wage, namely those incapable workers who are not worth even that minimum. And the higher the minimum, the more such people will be thrown out of work. We could certainly not enforce a minimum wage of a hundred dollars a day without throwing almost everybody out of work. It is clear that, to be all practical, a minimum wage must be set very low, and aimed merely to help those unfortunate few at the very bottom of the economic scale.

And then we must be prepared to take care, in some way, of those people who cannot earn even this minimum, those who will be unemployed because of the legal minimum.

For this reason, some people oppose any minimum at all as a useless, if not harmful interference with supply and demand. But from a general point of view, a minimum wage, if not set too high, is a wise if not a necessary part of any complete program for economic betterment. Mere supply and demand will always take advantage of weak gainers. A legal minimum wage will tend to eliminate the sweat shop, unsanitary conditions and demoralization of the standards of living of working men generally. It is worth a great deal to Labor to eliminate the weakness in bargaining of the lowest grades of labor.

A minimum wage will also tend to protect the whole population from the risk of infectious disease as a by-product of extreme poverty. The risk of epi demics will never be taken care of by any let-alone policy.

Even if the result of a minimum wage is to require us to carry an added tax burden, nevertheless, it is good public policy to make up the difference, to set our standards and maintain them. The most hard-boiled individualist must admit this. It is better, in the end, for Labor, for society in general, and even for employers.

We already do something like this we have our institutions for the incapables, such as the insane, feebleminded, idiots, paralytics, epileptics, deaf, blind, and paupers.

LABORGRAMS

What this country could have and should have is fifty million union members.

Henry Ford will not deal with unions and Henry Ford has cut wages so that the once-boasted five dollar minimum has passed out of the picture. These are bad days for industrial heroes.

The man who keeps his union card in good shape when every penny is a strain on his pocket indicates his faith in unionism and proves that he is not a union man for revenue.

More than eleven millions are idle as winter sends along its advance indications in the chill days of fall. Ahead of us there lies a winter of gravity, a winter when trade unionism will need all of its faith and its good sense-when all of its resources will be tested.

This depression has awakened the consciences of many employers to a sense of responsibility. Let us see to it, and let us hope this newly-awakened sense is not lulled by the first returning of better times. Let it not be a case of "when the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be.'

Mrs. Simpson was taking her son to school for the first time and, after impressing the schoolmaster with the necesof his having a thorough education, finished up by saying, "And be sure he

"But, my dear madam," said the mas-

"All right," said Mrs. Simpson, "he'll want it. He's going to be an undertaker."

Summary and Digest of Important Events Here and Abroad. nently. World economic conference is to be held in London during December. Freda Kirchwey, strongly pro-soviet, has been made chief executive editor of "The Nation," New York. Longshoremen's Union committee has approved new contract for workers on deep sea piers. France has 1,200,000 quarts of champagne ready to rush to the United States if and when repeal comes. Rockefeller fortune is reported to have dropped down to a mere $150,000,00 from its earlier bulk of $1,000,000,000. President of the Chicago Great Western announced his company soon will buy 300 box cars and 200 gondolas and may buy Less hoarding, rising prices, larger business turn-over and flow of gold toward the United States are given as reasons for increasing bank deposits.

Commercial reports are that a great many Southern textile mills have returned to full-time operation, some even working overtime, in defiance of the spread-work movement.

Farm wage rates now stand at lowest level recorded since 1902, United States Department of Agriculture reports. In two Southern states the average is found to be 60 cents a day, without board.

France's attitude toward war debts is shown by declaration of Premier Herriot, who said when asked about debt to the United States, that the debt is a matter for negotiation.

National works of American Sheet and Tin Plate Co., Monessen, Pa., announce calling back of 1,200 workers. Another 1,200 will be recalled shortly, the mill announced.

Great Britain has given notice of intention to cancel its trade agreement with the soviets, asserting the Ottawa Empire agreement makes this necessary. But, England assures the soviets she wants to find other ways of developing trade.

National Industrial Conference Board

reports that depression is giving an impetus to inauguration of the five-day petus to inauguration of the five-day week. The board reports that 47 per cent of companies reporting say they intend to continue the five-day week perma-

Hearings on "dumping" of foreignmade goods have begun before Commissioner F. X. A. Eble, commissioner of customs. Commodities to be covered are grass rugs, electric light bulbs, steel, manganese ore, calf leather shoe uppers, porcelain and other china. Eble says the evidence is "amazing."

Bluebird—one of a species of poultry that would rather sing than eat, or vice Blues-that run-down feeling; galloping geographobia.

Cottage-a small white structure, lousy with apron strings, clinging vines, running water and second mortgages.

Dream Girl-a nocturnal prowler whom the house detective never bothers. Girl Friend-a feminine acquaintance whom one cannot get along with or with-(See Baby.) Ireland—an island made famous by John Machree and Mother McCormack.

Moon (rhymes with June, soon, etc.)an astronomical phenomenon frequently observed in Indiana. Pal-any person of either sex whom one has met at least twice, but whose proper name cannot be recalled.

Pent-house-living quarters designed by Houdini, equipped with floating power and accompanied by the orchestra. Rally-a street gamin of some years' standing; the best chum that anyone or George Gershwin ever had. South-a region in the Carolinas populated entirely by Negroes, shadows, banjos and bungalows.—Ex.

Congressional Mathematics

There was a man in Washington, And he was wondrous wise; He jumped into a budget job-Vowed he'd economize. But when he saw where cuts must come, With all his might and main He took more money than he'd saved And spent it all again.
