NEWARK, NEW JERSEY. JANUARY, 1934

Cleveland, Ohio —The Convention

CLEVELAND, the Sixth City, is the Nation's all-year-round va-cation city. It is different from most other cities, because Cleveland offers every variety of city and out-door amusement. Its location on Lake Erie creates a mild yet a zestful climate, a superb playground all the year around.

Cleveland offers facilities both for the individual and for conventions. Its many metropolitan hotels are aptly suited for meetings both large small. The Cleveland Public Auditorium can easily accommodate up to ten thousand and, with the new exhibition hall just completed, many different activities can go forward without conflict.

Cleveland with its new Union Tercleveland with its new Union Terminal offers a complete "city within a city." Here, under one roof, practically every business, transportation and shopping need is provided for. From the Observation Porch on the forty-second floor of the Ter-minal Tower, downtown, and suburban, the lake front, and the busy hive that is the "flats" are revealed in an intensely absorbing panorama. On the upper floors of the Builders' Exchange Building, the Home in the Sky, the Building Arts exhibit, and the Electrical League offer a wealth of ideas and services for the home-

Cleveland is fortunate that within this Terminal's group is embodied a transportation advantage few other large cities enjoy—a modern co-ordinated railroad and rapid transit terminal right at the very heart of the city. Some of the larg-est and finest stores are found in Cleveland. Many fascinating days could be spent in Cleveland shops and stores, yet the compactness of its fine retail district enables the visitor having only a few hours to see much of interest.

The diversity of manufacturing in Cleveland is yet another source of interest. Though iron and steel products form the largest class of products form the largest class of manufacturing, the city's industries are far from limited to them. Of the 280 classes of industry set up for government census purposes, 218 are found in Cleveland. More than half the population of the United States is within 500 miles of Cleveland, and splendid rail, highway, air and water transportation serve it. serve it.

Cleveland's park system embraces more than ninety miles of parks and boulevards. Twenty parks, linked with a forty-four-mile boulevard system, circle the city. Deep ravines, lagoons, natural waterfalls, Ine old forests, and the shore of Lake Erie combine to give these grounds rare charm. In the winter these parks and drives take on an added charm. Miles beyond the city park system stretch the Metropolitan Parks. This system embraces 1,000 acres of the most picturesque rolling land, much of it heavily Ninety miles of roadways insure easy access to these reserva-

For those less interested in nature, the city provides ample entertainment. An interest in things cultural may be fulfilled to the individual taste. An interest in art may be ful-filled at the world-famous Art Museum. An interest in music may be ing sports—polo, roller hockey, basketball, soccer, bowling. Enough sporting activities to satisfy the sporting activities to most ardent sports fan.

Cleveland is indeed fortunate that it has one of the finest transporta-tion systems in existence. The Cleveland Railway Company provides the city with a public transportation widely known for its efficiency and splendid equipment. It operates 300 miles of regular routes, consisting of railway lines supplemented by mo-ceeds 500,000 from every race, creed and walk of life.

The Cleveland Public School sys tem, the first to be established west of the Allegheny Mountains, has, from this humble beginning, devel-oped into a model metropolitan educational organization. Supplementing the regular day school are night schools and special schools for the blind, deaf, and crippled chil-

Students from all parts of the world meet and study on the campuses forming a part of University Circle. The cultural influences of Circle. The cultural influences of the college atmosphere are reflected the college atmosphere are reflected in Cleveland's political, social and economic life. Here in University Circle are found the colleges of Western Reserve University and the Case School of Applied Science, both famous throughout the United States. These two institutions joint-by operate Cleveland College in Publy operate Cleveland College in Public Square, where day and night classes are offered hundreds who might otherwise be denied benefits of college training. Fenn College, another downtown institution, provides special training for the profes-sions and trades by a combination of class work and actual employment.

Cleveland now takes its place with Baltimore, Chicago and Philadelphia as an outstanding medical centre.
The annual registrations of patients in its hospitals represent istates and foreign countries. Cleveland Clinic, under the direction of George W. Crile, maintains a staff of specialists whose work con-tinually finds its way into medi-cine's hall of fame. Another equally important medical centre is the Uniimportant medical centre is the University Medical Group, consisting of the University Hospitals, which include Babies' and Children's Hospital, Lakeside, Maternity and Rainbow. Other units in this medical centre include the Hanna House, Western Reserve School of Nursing and the Allen Memorial Library. and the Allen Memorial Library, which is the headquarters for the Cleveland Academy of Medicine. There are, of course, many other hospitals throughout the city.

Cleveland awaits you and you will find Cleveland a hospitable city—a city that is not too large and yet so diversified that it will appeal to all.

Every large city in the country has an outstanding hotel. In Cleveland it's the Hollenden; noted for its many years of unfailing service and an atmosphere of homelike comfort, the Hollenden stands for Cleveland at its best. Covering an entire city block, thirteen stories high, the Hollenden is suited to the most varied functions, for the individual guest as well as conventions. To the guest the Hollenden offers "life at its best." All the conveniences of the modern hotel with which the Hollenden is provided have not detracted from its atmosphere of hospitality nor the charm of its refined surroundings. For conventions the Hollenden's arrangements and facilities are unequaled in Cleveland. With its many-sided facilities for entertainment, and numerous private dining and meeting rooms, it can simultaneously accommodate many varied gatherings. The Hollenden Ball Room, one of the largest hotel Ball Rooms in the United States, has every necessity for conventions, banquets and dances, with comfortable lounges in connection.

Sports, too, are not neglected. Cleveland is the home of the Cleveland Indians' hockey team.

There are other and equally satisfy-tor coach routes. By the use of its facilities practically every point in Cleveland and its major suburbs may be conveniently reached.

Cleveland typifies the Nazarene cleveland typines the Nazarene ideal that a city is a home in which the health and happiness of the individual is of public concern. In other words, Cleveland CARES. It has led the way in the uniting of all of its charitable organizations, under its charitable organizations under one general financial head, the Community Fund. Generous citizens have contributed over fifty million dollars to this fund in the last four-teen years. The list of donors ex-

Here Goes for 1934

ILLIONS have gone back to work, through opera-tion of codes, through PWA and CWA. A new social order is being built.

New forces are in control.

A certain kind of industrial government is being

Employers are working frantically to create company unions.

There is one way to meet the new situation. That is with strong trade unions that can stand up and speak with tones of authority.

You can have all the justice in the world on your side, but you are heard more clearly when you speak with a strong voice.

The biggest thing in 1934 is organization of workers into unions.

Organization took a big jump in 1933. But it has a long jump ahead of it, if it is going to fit into the new order in a place of authority.

More MILLIONS of workers must be brought into unions.

It's well enough to say it's someone else' job. But if it is left that way ALL will get licked.

It's everybody's job, this business of organizing. Only through UNIONS can labor participate in the making of terms and conditions of work, whether the employers are private employers or government, whether the contest is with employers, code authorities or governmental agencies.

There is no short cut and there is no substitute for the UNION.

Organizing work is and must be of the first impo tance. It is not second to anything. ORGANIZE! ORGANIZE!

ASCISM" is a word which originated in the political economic atmospheres conditions. There are some minds which think that it is applicable to the American situation. Which reveals the failure of that class of minds to take note of the active factors in American economic and political life.

It is not easy to imagine a communist program in America, directing its efforts against the "kulaks" of our farm life. Not less difficult is it to imagine such an organization for the control of industry as those pro-posed by Gerald Swope and the United States Chamber

It is to the credit of these gentlemen of the financier and corporation management class that they begin to think of American industry and commerce in some terms other than "my business." They are, to some extent, catching up with the development of the machinery which has long since taught the intelligent workers the essential unit of our national economic productive and distributive processe

But if they imagine that the ground gained by American labor in the direction of industrial democracy, a territory whose limits forward are at this time marked by what is known as paragraph "7a" of the National Industrial Recovery Act, is going to be surrendered without battle, they are due for an awakening. These gentlemen and members of their kind who have appeared in the NRA code hearings have not acquitted themselves as well as might have been expected of them after four years of time to study the drift of American economies and American thought.

There may be a "drift to the right" among the members of the National Manufacturers' Association. But we seem to remember that it was the president of that organization who told us a few years ago that without poverty there would be no opportunity for the exercise of his religion.

Our religion has, we hope, a deeper and more perma nent foundation. And so, too, our industrial and political democracy are based upon experience—and accor plishment!

NRA Wages Too Low

700 many reports are being received of workers unable to earn a decent living under NRA code minimum wages. One instance is that of workers in a Minnesota packing plant who were forced to strike because their earnings under the code resulted in a weekly income which, in the words of the Minnesota Industrial Commission, were "inadequate to maintain American standards of living."

It becomes increasingly evident that NRA codes, by shortening hours of work and not making adequate compensating increases in hourly rates, have resulted in many cases in lowering wages. This will not bring re-. The situation was summed up well by Elmer E. Milliman, secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, who told the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems at Detroit:

"Progress has been made under the NRA along the lines of shortening hours and increasing wages, but in a great many cases it has been a question of only placing a small portion of the unemployed to work and on a minimum wage basis; and there has been a great, glorified 'share-the-work' program carried on which has helped to pauperize thousands of our workers who, before the application of the recovery act, were working longer hours.

"Despite the intent of the NRA, the earnings of such employes have decreased rather than increased under this program. Consumptive power cannot be built up in this manner."

E have hailed inauguration of the Federal Civil Works program as a long step forward. ized and intelligent handling of the relief prob-

The program "is a big contribution to the maintenance of the national morale. Nothing is so demoralizing as charity. It saps initiative and self-respect and can only be justified if there is no other possible way to give help. Fortunately, the administration has found a way to remove men from charity lists and give them the work which they have so long desired and sought in vain."

Results of the civil works program justify this praise. It is giving renewed hope and courage to millions. One has only to see the faces of the civil works employes to realize what the program is doing for men and women driven almost to desperation by unemployment and its attendant train of evils.

Quick Relief Needed

THE urgent necessity for swift action in providing adequate unemployment relief was forcibly stated by Senator Robert F. Wagner recently in appealing for continuance of relief work by private agencies.

"No future wave of prosperity," Wagner said, "will ever be able to wash away one-tenth of the evils caused by the depression. Spiritual disintegration and physical collapse must be checked before they become complete. Next spring will be too late in hundreds of thousands of cases. The tragic warning of the great classical poet ounds through the ages, 'Easy is the descent into the oths. But to regain the heights, alas, what a hope-

Senator Wagner touched on a point that has not been sufficiently emphasized. Human deterioration can reach a stage beyond remedy. This has taken place in too many cases already. It is certain it will take place in even more unless relief comes quickly.

The President's Plain Speaking

RESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S spirited attack on industrial exploitation and his slashing denunciation of lynching came as a refreshing breeze in a poison-laden atmosphere. With selfish industrial interests moving to hamper and cripple the recovery program to preserve privileges that have enabled them to exploit the masses and with officials sworn to enforce the law openly approving mob rule and murder, it was time for the plainest kind of plain speaking from the nation's

The plain speaking came before the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, revealing the President again as a great leader of the nation and as a champion of the principles of fairness and justice on which the United States was founded.

I do not prize the word "cheap." It is not a word of hope, not a word of cheer. It is not a word of inspiration. It is the badge of poverty, the signal of distress. Cheap merchandise means cheap me cheap men a cheap country.—William McKinley.

Out Beyond

Where thought, un-hastened by necessity or the Surf trepidation, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallows throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

Curious thing, this clash of private greed and ancient superstition with new economic needs

Watching the contest day by day, there is an eternal struggle for the new to overcome the old. The old yields slowly, inch by inch-sometimes not at all.

NRA burst upon the world as a great ideal and everyone cheered.

Then the Old Guard went into a huddle to think it It came out of the huddle pretty generaly determined to stand for the least possible degree of advance.

As the code hearings drag along and as the finished codes come from the White House, there is a long procession of $15.00 wages and forty-hour weeks.

That surely is no Utopia. It doesn't look like that vaunted "American standard of living" so much boasted of back in 1929.

There are those that say it's a wonderful thing to double the wage where it has been as low as $6.00 a True enough, it is, but what a condemnation of the Old Order it is that there ever was a $6.00 a week wage. Yet there was, in plenty.

But this is sure: No New Order will ever find a firm foundation on such things as doubling a $6.00 wage. That is not where lies the way to a sound future.

There must be something more fundamental. A nation whose bottom level is at the $15.00 mark isn't very much safer than one whose bottom level is at the $6.00

After all, it's more than a difference in the degrees of poverty that we want. What we want is a difference in the way of doing things-a basic difference in the way the rewards of toil are apportioned.

When it was said that there must be a redistribution of the national income, that about hit the nail above

There is a great lot of shouting that the little shops cannot pay the new minimum rates and in some cases rates have been held down to save these little shops, remnants of a cruder age.

How far is a nation warranted in going in that direction? Not far, it would seem.

But if the oldsters are deliberately choked out by higher wages in better and bigger plants, then, of course, a way has to be found to prevent the evils of monopoly. That, however, seems preferable to a deliberate subsidizing of the ancient inefficiencies.

Meanwhile the little fellows of yesterday, striving to live over into tomorrow, are gnawing and chiseling away at the Great Objective, trying to pull it down to their

Up to this time it has been labor that has kept the battle flag flying. It has been labor that has kept the goal in sight. It has been Wall Street that has been trying to murder the program on the one hand by undermining its structural scheme, while on the other hand the little fellows have been trying to murder it by whittling away its immediate advantages. And there's a plot for you!

Well, the battle has to go on.

There is no road back into 1929, or even back into the first half of 1933.

The only road there is is the road that leads ahead. It can be paved with rocks or with a smooth, hard surface, according to the way men can bring themselves to act.

The great conflict, as usual, is between greed and human rights.

(By CHAUNCEY A. WEAVER)

"Ring out the old, ring in the new."

Probably few times during the past century have those familiar Tennysonian lines been voiced with a more fervent unction than with the ushering in of the new year whose threshold we have just crossed.

There are old principles, old systems, old philosophies which have stood the test of the ages; but there are others which have grown threadbare; others which have outlived their usefulness; others which simply sound the hollow mockeries of a day which promised much, but which utterly and signally failed.

For a long time there has been a demand for a new deal. Those elected to inaugurate the promised program are now at the helm. The new lights have been given a free and untrammeled op-portunity to shine. The acid test is being applied.

The attitude toward the newly enthroned occupants of the seats of power should not be one of critical challenge, but of generous assurance of well-wishfor, as we are all partners in depression, we have a right to expect that we will share in the prosperity for which we are ever wishing and hoping.

The most wholesome feature of the new regime is the apparent purpose to place some check upon capitalistic greed and give the common man a chance for ex-

When we view the long line of banking-house wreckage over the pathway of the years; the uncounted multitudes who have been dispoiled in the fake securipillage; the high-salaried brigands of high finance who have hugged their fabulous salaries and their unearned salaries to their bosoms and then for good measure have successfully held selves immune from income tax contribu-tion—we cannot wonder at the resentment which exists among the toiling, underpaid, or jobless masses, and the growing demand for a change.

Let us try and possess our souls in calmness while 1934 reveals what she may have in store.

Certain officials of the present national federal administration have proclaimed a desire to see government do something tangible in the way of giving encourage ment to music. It is to be hoped that this report is something more than transitory comment, designed to tickle the auditory sensibilities of those susceptible, but not to be taken too seriously.

What movement could yield more substantial or more wholesome returns than governmental recognition of music, both from its professional and its industrial standpoint, by reasonably adequate financial backing?

From the standpoint of money spending the national government is now in the most lavish mood that most of us can remember. It is almost staggering to note the fashion in which money is being spread broadcast. After the dreary years through which we have just passed, would not the sound of music, generously disseminated, bring a cheer to the masses which would hearten and quicken men and women into a newness of hope and aspirations, and thus give a newer and finer tone to all the world?

Always carry your card.

That reported cold spell in California reminds us of how little snow we have had to shovel in Iowa this winter.

fence-building for the 1934 fall elections

In the contemplation of their own perplexities, the American musician can occasionally find matters of interest in the problems which involve his fellows in other lands. For example, under a Paris date line, we find the following:

In view of the great distress among professional musicians owing to unemployment, M. Chiappe, the prefect of police, has given them special permission to play in the streets.

The number of permits is limited and the musicians' union is to control their issue. In this way the privilege will be enjoyed in turn by those who most need it.

most need it.

The hours during which street performances are allowed have been fixed at 11 A. M. to 2 P. M. and 6 to 8 P. M. These are the hours when strolling players reap their best harvest, for their most generous supporters are the midinettes, who during their luncheon interval and on leaving their workrooms in the evening are always ready to gather around an open-air concert.

Music publishers have also made their contribution by agreeing to pro-vide the musicians' organization with free copies of the most popular airs.

The Chicago World's Fair is to run another year. Perhaps the NRA, if it lasts that long, will insist upon a full quota of musicians.

The Thirty-ninth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Musicians: The place, Cleveland; the time, June 18, 1934. More anon.

The members of Local 161, Washington, D. C., seem to look upon Hayden as a sort of Rock of Gibraltar-a good thing to tie to. Brother Hayden has just been unanimously elected to his twentyto his seventh year as President. It is always inspiring to see faithful and efficient ervice rewarded. Congratulations on both sides are in order.

It is with genuine sorrow that we are called upon to announce the death of William J. Connors, Secretary of Local No. 564, of Altoona, Pa., which event occurred at his home Friday evening, December 15, 1933. Stricken in his own home, with cerebral hemorrhage, and surrounded by the members of his family, his death came within a very short time,

Brother Connors had been secretary of the local organization since its original formation, a circumstance which, together with the uniformity with which he was elected delegate to national Federation conventions year after year, was an impressive testimonial to his popularity among his associate musicians and those who knew him. Aside from musical affairs he was a storekeeper for the Pennsylvania Railway Company. He was born in Mt. Aby, India, his parents having located there by reason of his father's service in the English On coming to the United States army. he resided at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for me time, finally locating in Altoona in 1901. He was a trombone player and at different periods directed the Altoona Works and the Tenth Infantry Bands.

The final rites were held from St. Theresa's Church at 10 o'clock, Monday, December 18, and were attended by a large concourse of friends, including Federation members from all parts of the state. Surviving are his wife, who was Miss Nora Ryan of Poughkeepsie, and one daughter, Mrs. F. Edward Hersh, residing in Altoona.

A large number of Federation delegates will have most pleasant memories of William J. Connors and will join the writer of these lines in feelings of sympathy for the bereaved family and friends.

one can tell how long it will be before the American people revolt against the ruthless and widespread reign of crime which is making the United States the laughing stock of the world from the standpoint of law enforcement. Banks are robbed in broad daylight; hold-ups occur at all hours; the slightest show defense invites murder; kidnaping is on the increase; automobile thievery i rampant, and life and property are in constant jeopardy. There are reasons for this situation which it is ridiculous to ignore. There is plenty of evidence that politics and crime are in collusion in many communities. Many courts show timidity. Minimum sentences, if any, are imposed. Even when juries have the courage to convict, political pardon and parole boards are easily persuaded to nullify the decrees of justice. Lynch law acannot be tolerated if organized government is to remain, but if present conditions continue there need be no surprise at an occasional resort of the primitive methods of pioneer days.

ISHAM JONES ORCHESTRA

Isham Jones, renowned composer of popular music and identified as the leader of one of the finest "name" bands (now playing at the Commodore Hotel, New York), can proudly boast of having one of the greatest brass teams on the air. Each member is an artist performer. Each uses a BACH.

If you will tune in on the Isham Jones broadcasts you will immediately notice how perfectly the brass section balances and how well the cornets and trombones blend. Listen to the rich, mellow tone of Joe Carlson and and trombones blend. Listen to the rich, menow tone of for Carison and the brilliant "hot breaks" of George Thow. You will admire Sonny Lee, 1st trombone, who exhibits remarkable flexibility, playing trills and coloraturo passages with astounding ease. These are the performers you will want to emulate. They know how to judge the merits of an instrument and have tried every leading make until the BACH became their final choice. You can profit by their experience and, by using a BACH yourself, save much unnecessary expense and embouchure trouble.

The BACH is the finest quality instrument on the market and is used by the outstanding dance bands such as the Casa Loma (100% Bach), Paul Whiteman, Rudy Vallee (100% Bach), Waring's "Pennsylvanians," Phil Harris (100% Bach), Ted Lewis, Benny Meroff (100% Bach), Ozzie Nelson (100% Bach), etc. Write for our trumpet or trombone catalog which fully describes these meritorious instruments.

SHOW

By HENRY WOELBER

NE day more than forty-one years NE day more than forty-one years ago, with a tentative offer of $10.00 per week with the Claude Gillingwater Repertory Company in my pocket, I threw aside the broom with which I had been sweeping out a drygoods store, and said: "There, that's the finish; I'll never sweep out another store, or pack my nails full of shoemaker's wax again, as long as I live; that's the finish, I'm going on the road." The fat old German The fat old German storekeeper had opened the door too soon; the draft had blown the dirt all over the floor, and that act was the turning point of my life and the start of my musical career; the final decision to cast aside every obstacle that irked me, and dash ahead to the things that meant life itself.

I was 19: from the age of 12 I had had organ and violin lessons at 25 cents each; had played every instrument in the town band except the snare drum, and was a member of the opera house orchestra which, at the 6:00 P. M. rehearsal, was so bad that the traveling leader, with the occasional big night stand New York shows, would let us play only our own entr'-acte numbers. He invariably said: "Boys, I know you have been working hard all day in the corn fields, factories and stores, so when the show starts I'll play it alone on the piano; you fellows just draw out your chairs and enjoy the performance." At that identical moment e had our first psychological lesson, and didn't know it.

Monmouth, Illinois, where I was born 1873, is just another outgrowth of a settlement founded in 1831. It lies in the most fertile part of the great corn belt, so thickly populated between Buffalo and Omaha by the Germans. When Boston capital built the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad in 1856, the village began to grow. Not many years passed before the Weir Cultivator and the Pattee Tongueless Cultivator were sold all over the world. Soon the Monmouth Pottery was sending out its clay products, as did the Maple City Cigar factory.

Monmouth College added prestige to the town, which abounded in Presbyterians. Shontz and Wallace, great New York subway engineers, and Dan E. Waid, skyscraper architect, are among its graduates.

As there was no German Lutheran church in Monmouth, the children were brought up in the Presbyterian Sunday School, presided over by Mr. Pressley, the grocer, who contributed the town library. To the everlasting credit of these Presbyterians, the German children were absorbed into American life and habits and became part and parcel our best citizen-stubborn, loyal and plodding to the end.

Nothing exceeds the companionship of fellow beings so much as the organization of the old-time town band. In 1870, Mr. J. A. Luft, a young German, came and started the Monmouth Marine Band. Just why he used the word "marine" was never known. He simply told the Mayor that "most all the players worked in the Sewer and Water Division;" ly the name, Marine Band. With the unnscious skill of a Belasco, he taught those band boys that, as it is with timber, so it was with a town band. Every knot in a board reveals some disease or injury that overtook the log as it was growing, and that his band was no better than his weakest player. We had faith in our teacher. Hours were counted until the two nights of weekly rehearsals. Many walked a few miles each way from the farms. Can anyone imagine a boy doing that today?

Mr. Luft played violin badly, the yellow clarinet worse; tuned pianos, repaired everybody's Estey organ, plowed corn all day, taught the band instruments evenings, Sundays and holidays. full strength of the band was fifteen pieces; the opera house orchestra six, including piano. In both outfits, the players wondered why they used so much manu-The reason was soon obvious; this German was clever with a pen. The White and Cundy Editions lay idly on the shelf. This fellow condensed those parts. After his death some perfect gems were found in those condensed arrangements of the Gungl and Waldteufel waltzes. Pretty much the same story can be written of Patz in Fitchburg, and Rietzel in Boston. From that German, many a country boy made the grade.

In the late 70's, a great Firemen's Tournament and State Band Contest was held in Chicago; all the professional bands in that city barred. The first prize of $250.00 was awarded to the Monmouth Marine Band because it had played "the least miserable." With such a reputation, it was the ambition of every boy studying an instrument to play in that band. In 1885, when I was 12, the piccolo player left: I took his place. My dream had been realized, and before leaving home in 1892, when I was 19, I had played (except the snare drum) all the instruments in the band, particularly baritone and Music, and that town band, trombone. was my only delight or interest in life.

In these formative years came such attractions as Bob Burdette, Bill Nye and Burbank, Salvini, Joseph Jefferson, Henry Irving, James O'Neil in "Monte Cristo," Henry Chalfante, Denman Thompson in "The Old Homestead," the Primrose and West Minstrels, the Beach and Bowers Minstrels, Al. Fields' Minstrels, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Josh Spruceby, St Perkins, the Andrews Opera Company, the Bittner Comedy Company, Cecil and Edna May Spooner, their uncle and cousin, Lem and Allie Spooner: their uncles. Ike and Corse Payton. Many of these shows carried a band and orchestra, usually of ten or twelve men; some only piano and violin. There was the love of pure adventure, color and pride in the theatre business in those days.

Every show band that played at the ticket sale on the public square consumed me with a burning desire to become one of their members. I was bored unspeakably with my duties at home, which meant I was a carrier on the paper route for $1.00 per week; the drygoods store paid $1.50; I also swept out a printer's office for $1.00, and helped my father in his shoe shop, pegging soles, running the Singer patching machine, leveling heels, and such other work as a boy would not destroy. He, too, paid me $1.50. With this money I paid Mr. Luft $1.50. for music lessons and for my clothes and other necessities. Often, walking to the corner of our street, I would watch the morning sun through the lone lane of shady maple trees and ask myself: Will I go East to Boston? Or, watching the setting sun: Will I go West to San Francisco? I did both.

For many years the Monmouth Band had played the adjacent county fairs, which started in August and continued October. They paid, nights of dancing, the munificent sum of $10.00, with board. We were young, healthy and strong boys, happy and con-tented; marching improved our health. Like all audacious youth, we were im-bued with a little success, and argued about the print of the Fischer and Schirmer editions, the tone color of the Conn, Besson and Courtoire band instru-ments. That old German philosopher, Luft, gently translated, after listening to the silly discussions, that ancient proverb: "In looking for strength, don't expect to find it in a mere mortal (musician), but, rather, look to the strength of the sun, the mcuntains, the sky or the

Even before the gay 90's, the Burlington (Iowa) Boat Club Band was a great feature; Phinney's Iowa State Band had appeared at many points in the Mid-west Then I began to notice things. section. Phinney carried several players who afterwards achieved fame and fortune. One very talented young fellow was Kid Kendall, baritone soloist. He had a natural gift for that instrument. Concurrently, Spencer's Band of Peoria was successful; also the Bloomington (Illinois) Band, then under the leadership of Frank McKee, cornet soloist, years before he wrote his famous waltzes. Positively the greatest thrill I ever got in my entire musical life was one hot day in July, when Walter West, manager of the Bloomington Band, called at my father's shoe shop to give me a try-out for his band, going to the Springfield Encamp

The next week found me with the regiment of militia. I often wondered in later years who tried out some of the managers!

Arriving home, the dry-goods store incident about the broom happened, and, after much wailing and gnashing of teeth, my parents finally allowed me to join the Gillingwater show at Ottumwa, Iowa. But I was bound for perdition; gone to the dogs. The old bus rattled up to the door, my feeble mother cried hysterically; I was going more than 100 miles away, perhaps never to return. My father was so anxious to have me on time, he shipped on the 2:00 P. M. train Saturday, but the show did not arrive in Ottumwa until Monday noon, barely in time for the parade. Saturday evening at supper was seized with the pangs of home sickness. Sunday morning I braced up to attend the Sunday School service at 10:30: church at 12:00, young people's meeting at 3.00; Christian Endeavor at 6:00; evening church service at 7:30; precisely as I had done the preceding Sunday at Monmouth before leaving home. In the Gillingwater show was Katie Bruce, who was to become the great screen-mother in the David Griffith

The next season found me with the Glenn Chase-Loretta Wells Repertoire Company. Mrs. Wells became a fine actress in some of the big New York shows. The bookings were all week stands. Boy like. I became restless; my spirit moved. Traveling like a prairie fire was "Si Perkins," a farmer show of twenty-two people, living in a gaudy, yellow show owned and operated many years by John W. Harpstrite, who knew the value of yellow as a means of brightness and suc-That Show Car was a most perfect cess. specimen of the art of condensation. In the middle were two staterooms with mirrored doors at either end, with a washroom between the two connecting state cooms used by the ladies of the company. Performing, the company used twenty two people, including, of course, the nine musicians. Traveling, there were but fifteen; each trip seven of us were obliged to take turns being locked up in that washroom, until after the conductor went through collecting the tickets, some-2:00 or 3:00 o'clock in the morntimes at ing. Fifteen tickets were required to move the car. There were four convertible sections where we all ate, and where sixteen of us slept. There was also a bunk in one end of the car where the star comedian, Sam Burton, slept. In the other end was the kitchen, with a bunk over the cook stove; consequently colored waiter and cook never could go to bed until after the stove cooled off. Beneath the sagging car were great open-ings for coal, mops, brooms, brushes and three-sheets.

During my first season with the Show Car the company played every night stand having a theatre in every town west of the Mississippi, to the Pacific Coast, British Columbia and into Canada. The second season we played east of the Mississippi to the Atlantic Coast, and into Can-ada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Although for their own protection the Show Car was daily inspected by the trainmen, we observed it was always the last on the train, as otherwise the danger of it being pulled apart was grave. in spite of its seeming frailty, that dear old yellow Show Car had carried the company safely up and down both the Atand Pacific coasts; the entire length of the productive Mississippi Valley, through the granite hills of New England, the rugged Rockies, the Adirondacks, the Blue Ridge, around the base of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, the vast space of fifty-five night stands in Texas and seventy-seven nights in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, as well as every other State in the Union.

Who among us would not exchange the dull, monotonous reality of the present for the glamour and romance of the past? No serious band or orchestra musician could possibly see what lies in the years ahead If a man in a boat floats between the banks of a winding stream he may have passed a clump of maples, signifying the past; he sees them no longer, but knows they are still there. He now floats further down the stream, and sees a field of daisies, which signify the presbut he can't see around the bend, which is the future; yet a man in a plane Scarcely any above could see it all. young musician in that old yellow Show Car could have foreseen that in a very short time indeed he was destined to see a Sousa, or a Victor Herbert, on the banks of a stream and, by floating a little more, a Gericke, an Emil Mollenhauer, or a Weingartner, who were not far in the distance.

The musicians with these companies were of paramount importance, yet received only $10.00 per week, usually cut to $8.00, and expenses, which was ridicu lously disproportionate to their real value. "A thousand years is as one day." In those days of hustling, my mind be to travel eastward, for we were in the Buffalo district; but, no, not for long, because the route was changed again, and it seemed as if it were only one day until the show was playing around Monmouth once more, but never stopping there Many times at all hours of the early morning, going to or from Davenport, Rock Island, Moline, Galesburg, Burlington, Quincy, Springfield, Streator, Bloomington, Mattoon and Peoria, we rattled through old Monmouth. I knew the dear old parents were sleeping soundly in the old home. They knew, too, that our train was going right by the head of our street. I simply drew the curtain of my bunk window, looked out to see the waving maples in front of our house, and soon we were miles away once more. On one the Show Car was hooked on the end of the Chicago-Omaha flier. A11 trains stopped at Monmouth five minutes. This time the conductor announced that, owing to engine trouble, we would leave in thirty minutes. It was 2:00 A. M. I immediately took the hint and, unknown to a single soul, I walked through the streets of Monmouth to the house where I lived. All was still. I crept into my mother's flower garden, picked a rose, flower garden, picked a rose, an apple from the tree, some walnuts, went through the back alley, and then to the railroad station. In two days we were playing Allegan, Michigan. When finally the season closed at Fargo, North Dakota, we ran into Chicago. I packed grip, emptied my locker under my own seat in that dear old car which, to many med but a yellow appartion, and left turned once more for a last look as stood on the tracks of the Wisconsin Central, never to see it again, as I made way to the C. B. & Q. station to take the 5:40 P. M. train for Monmouth. have heard that it at last had been sold for a lunch car and was still serving I should like to see the that purpose. sturdy steelwork, the wheels, the structure that had been the foundation for our home during those traveling days. That precious car had been our refuge, our haven of rest, our centre of hopes, our ambitions and longings for two full seasons of night-stand experiences.

With very little money saved, a new era was opened to me. I arrived in Boston. The pen falters, words fail, the mind hesitates to tell of a brand-new life. After being duly installed in a hall bedand arrangements having been made for my trombone lessons, an acquaintance invited me to attend a dance. I had a waltz with a charming young miss of 19, another, then another—in fact, we danced with no one else the entire evening. She was a beautiful creature, with dimples in her cheeks—she as simply blessed with dimples, as I learned a few years later. Her father was foreman at $15.00 a week in the Bos ton & Albany freight yards. On that meagre pay he sent three children meagre pay he sent three children through the wonderful Boston schools. Then, in two nerve-racking story writing contests, this young lady won a $500.00 cash prize, and one of $700.00. money in hills in the modest little flat. the family was so happy. She paid her own way through the elocution and dramatic department of the historical New England Conservatory of Music, under such task-masters as Annie B. Lincoln, Samuel R. Kelley and E. Charlton Black. All her life she had been known as Elsie Frances Adams (The Little Quakeress), a lineal descendant of John Adams, a President of the United States. youth the Boston Postshad published some of her poems; now, recently, in maturer years, the Boston Globe has published two of her stories. What seemed to me a thousand years in waiting, transpired in a single day. Although I am tooth and nail of the West, those dimples kept me in Boston with no desire to leave except on many visits to the old folks be-fore their passing. This girl and I chummed around together for five years and, at last, thirty-one years ago we "took the long path" with no sign as yet of the end. Such events are preordained; they do not just happen.

After I had been in Boston a few months, my savings were nearly gone was about to go back on the road, this time with James R. Waite's second company, which also carried a band and orchestra of twelve men, and paid $12.00 per week. But it was not in the cards. Early in the morning a knock came at my hall bedroom door. It was Charles Hooper, leader of the Steamer "Puritan" of the Fall River Line. Mr. Hooper saved the day for me. He at once engaged me for $12.00 per week, the season to run ten weeks; before the end I had played twenty-five weeks, which indeed gave me a new lease on life, both in a financial way and for the new friendship One bright afternoon dur-I had made. ing the band concert as the "Puritan" sailed out of New York harbor, a strapping big handsome fellow asked me how I should like to play in the Park Theatre, a first-class house in Boston. The question took away my breath. The leader of that theatre, Louis Baer, was speaking. Needless to say, I accepted the engagement and played for him five full seasons. During the last season another great surprise came to me in the shape of a postal card from George W. Stewart. asking me if I should like to fill a vacancy in the ranks of the Boston Festival Orstra Band, and Boston Band, both organizations conducted by Emil Mollenhauer. I am very proud to say I remained a member until the death of Mr. Mollenhauer in 1927, I having joined his ranks in 1902. Manager Stewart is still alive, active and well, although the awful de pression has all but rendered the band and festival business nil.

In the open-shop days, when the Bos ton Symphony Orchestra was at its peak, when an extra or substitute trombone was needed, I had such an entree to that famous organization through the recom mendations of Stewart and Mollenhauer, and never enjoyed anything more, or had a chance to learn so much, as when playing a great part of two seasons under the best of drill-masters, Mr. William Gericke.

In 1909, the Boston Opera Company, with a permanent orchestra of seventytwo men, was formed. It ran five seasons, until the World War. After that it closed, never to reopen. Felix Weingartner, the great Beethoven authority, had charge of the German opera three seasons. The first time he stepped on conductor's stand, my mind diately reverted to those boyhood days when I went to the corner, looked at the rising sun through the long lane of maple trees, and said: Will it be Boston? Playtrees, and said: ing under this renowned conductor had exceeded my fondest hope, and made me realize there is a guiding star.

To enumerate 'all my experiences Boston and elsewhere would be needless and wearisome; yet suffice it to say to the patient readers of the previous articles on bandmasters, and other musical subjects, that for the most part I had myself actually lived many of those interesting events and wanderings. The With great last article is now written. joy I announce I have derived a world of comfort and satisfaction in the life of a band and orchestra musician, with many ideas developed and fostered in those formative days of hope, ambition and struggle in that never-to-be-forgotten
