San Francisco Convention, A. F. of L.

The Fifty-Fourth Annual Gathering of Labor Hosts, October 1-12, 1934 —Notes and Comments

By Delegate CHAUNCEY A. WEAVER

ON the continental rim of the nation, where the Golden Gate swings outward and inward to the vast Pacific Ocean, the San Francisco session of the Fifty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor convened for action on Monday, October 1, 1934, at 10:00 o'clock. The Civic Auditorium was the arena in which the sessions were held. The vast hall was filled. The crowd of 433 delegates was augmented by officials, employes and visitors, until every inch of available space was occupied. An army of those amiable pests known as moving picture and newspaper camera men moved about in helterskelter fashion. Large portraits of President Roosevelt, the late Samuel Gompers, and President William Green, looked down upon the assemblage. The Stars and Stripes shared decorating space with the Canadian emblem. Inspirational music, from a fine orchestra contributed by Local No. 6, under the direction of Phil Shaprow, gave a touch of artistry to an atmosphere tremulous with the mission of toil.

Such was the scene when the sound of the gavel in the hands of Edward Vandeleur, President of the California State Federation of Labor, transformed buzzing conversational tumult into the calm essential to official deliberation.

Announcement was made by John O'Connell, Secretary of the San Francisco Central Labor Council, of the program of entertainment arranged for the convention delegates and visitors.

Invocation was given by Rt. Rev. Edward J. Hanna, Archbishop of San Francisco.

Paul Scharrenberg, Secretary of the California State Federation of Labor, gave an address of welcome in which he made an extended review of organized labor development in California.

Hon. Angelo J. Rossi, Mayor of San Francisco, formally extended the official city welcome, after which President William Green gave response and his opening address.

President Green Defies Labor's Enemies

President Green spoke with earnestness and vigor. He made it plain that Labor knows its rights. President Roosevelt's announced intention to seek a truce between capital and labor came just in time to especially focus public attention upon the issue. There was no suggestion of compromise or backdown on the part of Labor's head. He declared that Labor had been winning in the courts, but that the National Association of Manufacturers refused to obey a decision rendered by a judicial governmental authority, and that any man who refused to respect a court decision was not a good citizen. He boldly proclaimed that Labor would exercise its full power to strike if necessary to vindicate its rights. That President Green's sentiments hit the spot was evidenced by the ovation tendered him both at the beginning and the conclusion of his address. Many declared that it was one of the very ablest addresses he had ever delivered.

Tense Times

The San Francisco convention convened at a time of tense feeling throughout the realm of industry. The depression was still hanging like a somber cloud over the nation. While there was much hopefulness that the New Deal would eventually be able to function in accord with the declarations of its promoters, there was general admission that the scheme was still on trial and that thus far the results were far under expectations. The number of unemployed was still in the ten million estimate. Winter was rapidly coming on and it was plain to be seen that resources for public and private relief will be compelled to assume an increasingly heavy burden. The consciousness of these possibilities weighed solemnly upon the minds of the delegates and impelled them to the most serious consideration of the problems confronting them.

Plenty of Deliberation

Conventions are nominally spoken of as "deliberative bodies." The American Federation of Labor lives up to the classification. This is not necessarily a critical observation. The conventions run from ten days to two weeks. There is always a flood of resolutions introduced. These must be referred to the various committees. As a result, it is often difficult to keep a full program for the opening week. The ambitious arrangements of local entertainment committees must be respectfully considered. Speakers on a vast variety of subjects must be granted a hearing. Hence the heavy firing in debate does not get under way until about the beginning of the second week. This is about what happened at the San Francisco convention—although there was some pyrotechnical display during the first week.

Tuesday, First Week

Fraternal delegates were presented with the usual badges.

Mrs. Mary E. Ryder, President of the National Federation of Trade Union Auxiliaries, and whose home is in St. Louis, brought the fraternal greetings of her organization.

Max Winter, former senator of the Austrian Parliament, was a convention visitor, and gave a graphic review of the struggle which the working classes are undergoing in that country, and of the peril involved in the possibilities of an entrenched Fascism.

Hon. Richard Welch, a California member of Congress, known as a loyal friend of Labor, visited the convention and gave a brief address.

One of the notable incidents of the day, and in fact of the entire convention period, was the address of Andrew Furuseth, for many years identified with the International Seamen's Union, and invariably a delegate to national labor conventions. Mr. Furuseth is known far and wide as a profound student of economics. He is a man of the widest reading, a phenomenal memory and a capacity for critical analysis with few, if any, equals known to the cause. In the address referred to he touched upon the fate of India, Babylon, Assyria, Egypt, Greece and Rome, their identity with slavery, and of the forces which led to their decline in influence and power among the nations of the world. We have space for a single excerpt from his splendid address:

Work is worship—to labor is to pray, for that is to exercise the highest, the divine faculties implanted in us as the sons of God. It matters not if the labor be the writing of a thesis or the digging of a ditch, it is the use of the same divine faculty to labor—to create—and upon its proper and free use depends the life of individuals, nations and races. Those that have been untrue have shared the fate of the tree without fruit. They have passed away because they have encumbered the earth. Those that have been true have lived, and according to religious belief they are to live. Let us try to profit by this lesson and so live that labor shall be free, that it shall come into its own.

Andrew Furuseth is a worthy example of the intellectual leadership which the organized labor movement has long enjoyed and which has given it place among the great reformatory movements of our time.

Secretary Spencer Miller Jr., of the Workers' Education Bureau, well known to National Labor Conventions, brought his message. The purpose of his organization finds expression in the following closing words of his address:

Labor early realized that if democracy was to endure it must be built upon the education of the whole citizenship. Today, as America faces the test to her social and political institutions, it is to these very processes of public education that it can look with certainty for the future. As the democracy has found the conditions of its permanence lies in the education of its citizens, so I predict that American Labor will discover that the assurance of its future will depend upon the education of its present membership.

Following the introduction of a large number of resolutions, the convention adjourned, after which the delegates and visitors were given a five-hour ride and a thirty-mile drive over scenic San Francisco.

Wednesday, First Week

A feature of those annual conventions of the American Federation of Labor is the addresses of the Fraternal Delegates. This year A. G. Walkden and J. Stokes had been chosen to represent the British Trades Congress. On the opening day President Green received a telegram from Walkden that he had received a cablegram stating that his wife had died suddenly as the result of an emergency operation, thus necessitating an immediate return. Fraternal Delegate Stokes was thus left to do the honors alone and he delivered a most interesting address.

The fraternal delegate's address from the Dominion of Canada was delivered by William Dunn.

An address very closely followed was one delivered by Hon. Joseph A. Padway, general counsel of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor. Mr. Padway is an able speaker and gave a very critical review of the history of recent labor legislation and the litigation involved in trying to carry the same into effect. He was not sparing in his criticism of the staff of the Attorney-General of the United States in their alleged failure to proceed with greater vigor against those corporations charged with violation of the provisions of the National Recovery Act. Judge Padway's strictures upon official inactivity resulted in a motion being filed by Delegate Daniel J. Tobin of the Teamsters' International Union, to have the alleged improper remarks stricken from the record. This motion precipitated a hot debate in which Mr. Padway was warmly defended by delegates from Wisconsin, and Tobin finally withdrew his motion.

United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, who was born in Wales, arose from a steel mill puddler to his present high official position, appeared, as he has done for more years than the writer can now recall, and made an extended address. It was conservative in tone and stressed the doctrine that capital and labor were essential to each other and must evolve a harmonious working program if industrial recovery is to be effectuated.

Thursday, First Week

As no committee had completed enough work to keep the convention busy, the delegates readily adjourned, and embarked on a five-hour boat ride on the palatial steamer Sacramento. The journey was a great revelation in disclosing the colossal work involved in the construction of the $4,000,000 bridge which is being constructed across the bay between San Francisco and Oakland—an enterprise which the powerful Southern Pacific Railway Company is alleged to have successfully retarded a great many years.

Friday, First Week

Under the caption "Organizing Work and Problems," the Executive Council made a detailed report on a wide variety of matters relating to labor administration.

Sol Rosenblatt, Divisional Administrator, came out from Washington to defend the New Deal and to admit that while some mistakes had been made the proposed revision was sure to be acceptable.

Delegate Randolph of the Sleeping Car Porters' Union made a strong plea for better working conditions and less discrimination against the union workers of his race.

Miss Frances Perkins

The high spot of the day, of course, was the address of Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, who came from Washington and gave an extended review of labor relations and governmental activities since the present administration began.

Miss Perkins has a pleasing personality and has made a record as a student of sociology and speaker on themes of that nature.

Her convention address was conservative in tone. She declared that neither Capital nor Labor can or should be coerced. She inserted a eulogistic paragraph concerning the administrative work of Hon. Hugh Johnson—which was met with profound silence on the part of the delegates, and caused the relaxation of corrugated eyebrows here and there.

An address was delivered by Dr. A. Micklejohn of the Experimental College of the University of Wisconsin. The crux of his theme was expressed in the following words: "We all have abilities, and the purpose of democracy is to so educate a people that every member of the community, in the measure of his ability, shall take his share in the making of the common decisions, shall know what is going on, and shall be alive intellectually in the life of his people."

FOR THE INFORMATION OF MEMBERS

On Page 111, American Federation of Musicians By-Laws, we find that Paragraph C, which has to do with the stipulation of a price for musicians traveling with vaudeville companies, provides the following:

"With vaudeville companies: 12 performances or less, per week, $85.00"

This price when made applied to vaudeville companies such as Harry Lauder had organized, playing in legitimate houses, charging an admission fee of from $2.00 to $4.00. It does not fit vaudeville shows which play houses with a lesser admission fee, many of them now only charging a top price of 75 cents or thereabouts.

Therefore, Paragraph C must be construed as only covering vaudeville engagements with companies which charge an admission fee of $2.00 or more, and it is necessary that for other vaudeville shows where a lower admission fee is charged, the price shall be as follows:

"With vaudeville companies charging an admission fee of less than $2.00—Price per week, per man.....$ 73.00
Leader ..... 100.00

The number of performances played is to conform to the policy of the house. However, not more than one rehearsal, not to exceed two hours, shall be given free of charge in any one town.

"Extra rehearsals, per hour or less, $1.00. Overtime in all cases, per half hour, $1.00."

Jos. N. WEBER, President, A. F. of M.

PLAYS THE NEW
BUESCHER TRUMPET

In a letter to the Buescher Band Instrument Company, dated August 11th, 1934, Earl says: "I like the Buescher trumpet very much, very good tone, marvelous intonation; in fact there is absolutely nothing wrong with it."

Mr. Geiger purchased one of the new Buescher CUSTOM-BUILT MODELS with the famous ACOUSTA-BELL. This new bell produces a richer, more resonant tone which is remarkably uniform in character from the lowest note to the top-most register. Exceptionally free blowing high register, lightning-fast valve action.

Try these new trumpets—built in four models and two bores to suit the requirements of any professional player.

Clergy Hits Profit System

THE iniquities of our present industrial system, operated solely for maximum profits, with its idle rich on the one hand and destitute millions of jobless and their dependents on the other, is receiving not only emphatic condemnation from the organized labor movement, but also from prominent churchmen.

Declaring that the profit motive controlling those who own and control our industrial system will mean greater concentration of wealth, the Very Rev. John W. Day, Dean of Grace Cathedral of Topeka, Kan., in an address to 1,000 young men and women attending a mass meeting of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church at Atlantic City, declared that the profit motive animating those who own and control our industrial system will mean great concentration of wealth with all the evils inherently connected with such an iniquity. As a substitute for what he called "capitalism," Dr. Day advocated a new economic system, "based upon use instead of profit." He also urged public ownership of all public utilities, including railroads. He added that war is inevitable until we have a socialized economic system.

The present economic system was also scored by the recent General Conference of the Evangelical Church at Akron, Ohio. The conference adopted the report of its committee on the family, public morals, temperance and the Sabbath, which included the following statement:

"Any system which leads to the concentration of wealth into the hands of the few, while the great masses have less and less, makes for national ruin. Any system with the profit motive as its sole impetus is far from the Christian ideal. The present structure stands condemned and must be rebuilt. Only through an adequate process of experimentation can these needed changes be effected."

In addition to the condemnation of the churches, this atrocious system of maximum profits was under fire by the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor at San Francisco. Confronted with the plight of the army of 10,000,000 unemployed, thrown out of the factories by the Shylocks who own them, the convention, without a dissenting vote, declared that "when private business is not able to resume its normal functions, then society is forced to take over the means of production" and put the "unemployed back to work producing wealth."

Scored on every hand for operating industry solely for the maximum profit which can be wrung from the people, regardless of the social consequences, the reactionary industrial bourgeois refuse to read the handwriting on the wall and reorganize industry on the basis of social service. Perhaps the rugged individualists of American industry are not far from what may be their economic Armageddon.

Other emblems may satisfy the unorganized, but nothing but the Union Label, Shop Card and Working Button is good enough for members of Organized Labor.

The Popular CCC

ONE New Deal measure which seems to have universal approval is the CCC—Civilian Conservation Corps. President Roosevelt's statement recently that the work of the Corps must be continued will bring no protest worth mentioning from any quarter. Everybody's for it.

The Corps has a present authorized strength of just under 370,000 and its main work has been cleaning up, policing and making roads in national parks and national forests. Robert Fechner, director of the Corps, reports to the President that in his long inspection trip last summer:

"I did not meet one individual who expressed an unfavorable opinion of the organization or its accomplishments. On the contrary, everyone with whom I came in contact made an urgent plea for more CCC camps."

Mr. Fechner says that the work of these boys has advanced the forestry program of this country from five to fifteen years. On guard during the greatest drought recorded in our history, they probably prevented devastating forest fires; and some of them paid for their service with their lives.

Best of all, young men from more than half a million families on relief have been revitalized, encouraged, turned from hopelessness to confidence. At the present time about 10,000 of them are quitting each month to go to private jobs; and that means much for the training they have had, as well as for improving industrial conditions.

It is well to remember, too, that the director of this successful enterprise is vice-president of the International Association of Machinists.

Any emblem but the Union Label, Shop Card and Working Button is but temporary and can not be truly helpful to Trade Unionists.

Labor on the March

THE San Francisco convention gave proof that the American Federation of Labor is an organization which readily adapts itself to changing times and conditions. In every action, the convention demonstrated labor's ability and willingness to do the right thing at the right time.

The convention's entire program, from its advocacy of the 30-hour week to its endorsement of the industrial form of unionism for the mass production industries, showed American labor is in line with the trend of the times and looks toward the future, not the past. It was labor on the march, with its face toward a better and happier world. Re-election of President William Green and the Executive Council, together with the addition of other veteran labor executives to the Council, was a guarantee that labor will continue to press forward.

All in all, the record of the convention was complete refutation of the charge of its "radical" critics that American labor is unable to change as conditions change.

The union label stands for the solidarity of the Labor Movement.

Labor Queries

Questions and Answers on Labor: What It Has Done; Where It Stands on Problems of the Day; Its Aim and Program; Who's Who in the Ranks of the Organized Toilers.

Q.—Does labor believe that the Recovery Act should be extended to cover farm workers?

A.—The A. F. of L. Executive Council said in its report to the San Francisco convention; "The entire agricultural labor population has so far been left without protection in regard to wages, hours, organization, or in dealing with employers. Some extension of the National Recovery Act to the field of agricultural labor should be made, either through a broadening of the act now in existence, or supplementary act pertaining to agricultural labor."

Q.—How many local unions are directly affiliated with the A. F. of L.?

A.—On August 31, 1934, there were 1,788 local trade and federal labor unions with direct affiliation.

Q.—Are lumber workers being organized?

A.—Yes. There are now 130 local unions of lumber and saw mill workers in 21 States and Canada.

Q.—What did President Green of the American Federation of Labor say on Communism and Fascism at his opening speech before the San Francisco convention?

A.—"We are opposed to Communism in any form whatever. We are equally opposed to Fascism in any form. We are for the rule of the people, for democracy."

Q.—Who is Dr. William M. Leiserson?

A.—Noted economist and chairman of the recently-created National Mediation Board. He recently said: "Most strikes are the result of employers' attempts to deny to working people the right to bargain collectively."

Q.—Was the recent San Francisco A. F. of L. convention the first held in California?

A.—No. It was the fourth one having been held in Los Angeles and two in San Francisco.

Insist that the union label be on the wares and merchandise that you purchase.

When the Profit System "Worked"

PROFESSOR FRANK A. PEARSON of Cornell University, a defender of low wages as the best method to bring prosperity to business, in a talk at a luncheon given by the New York State Junior Chamber of Commerce, in the Bankers' Club, at 120 Broadway, New York City, declared that during the period between March and July, 1933, the industrial system based exclusively on maximum profits for those who own and control industry, regardless of the welfare of the masses, was striding along in fine shape. He said:

"The profit system was working and men were happy and contented to return to work at the old wage."

In July, 1933, there were 11,793,000 able-bodied working men and women in the army of the unemployed, pounding the pavements throughout the length and breadth of the country, begging for jobs without avail. Evidently the profit system was not working very well for these jobless millions.

About the time mentioned by Professor Pearson—July, 1933—the President of the United States opened the re-employment drive for shorter hours and higher wages to stimulate purchasing power and hasten recovery. This effort of the Chief Executive, with the cooperation of a few industries, re-employed 1,685,000 jobless during the next few months, reducing the unemployed army to 10,108,000 in September.

Then the influence of profit mongers in the NRA became paramount and higher wages and re-employment for the idle as the major objects of the recovery program were scuttled and profits for stockholders became the chief objective.

Speaking of this laudable objective of the Administration, Professor Pearson declared that it really retarded recovery, by which he probably meant recovery of maximum profits by those who originally wrecked industry in the pursuit of that subversive scheme. He says:

Among other things, the nation decided to create additional purchasing power by raising wages at a time when unemployment was a serious problem."

That is a rich morsel coming from a college professor. If there is ever a time when wages should be raised it is when a large number of people are unemployed. The increased buying power of higher pay makes a larger market for commodities and hence more work for the jobless. But this policy, according to Professor Pearson, is wholly unreasonable and really retards recovery.

When a university professor declares, as Professor Pearson does, that low wages make the profit system work, it is time to question whether a university education really enables some of those who possess it to think clearly, reason rationally, and accurately vision the fundamentals of mass prosperity.

Constructive Relief

THE New York State Economic Council baldly recommends the withholding of suffrage from those receiving relief. In plain language this is a proposal to revive "pauper" principles and regulations, and to require a certain financial status as a condition of suffrage. This is an amazingly brutal proposal against a background of medieval catastrophe affecting every group of society. The Council explains it is based on fear that those on relief will organize to control political and legislative policies. The purpose obviously is to put political control into the hands of those who have been lucky enough and privileged enough to have weathered depression.

On the other hand, the proposal is to put a stigma upon the victims of forces and conditions for which the Federal Government, the International situation, bankers, Wall Street, corporation management and many varied and complex factors are responsible. The proposal is a reversion to public and social policies which regarded the unemployed as morally and personally responsible for their fate and imposed conditions in distribution of relief which would discourage laziness and other vicious tendencies. The pauper's oath of dependence was required.

The Economic Council missed an opportunity to prove its disinterestedness in not specifically including a list of those on relief, headed by those who have benefited most—bank executives, railroad executives, corporation executives, etcetera, who have received hundreds of millions of public funds. Surely these persons ought to also lose the right to vote should that penalty be put upon those who get meager allowances to stave off starvation. The amount of public money received should not be a basis of discrimination—neither should the directness or indirectness of aid against starvation.

It is high time that a program of social betterment should be accepted public policy which would definitely abandon the pauper principle by necessary culpability of the unfortunate.

Good Instruction Material Is Beyond Price

Charles McNeil, acknowledged world's greatest authority, gives to the guitar and banjo fraternity the best that can be had in the way of instruction material. McNeil books have no equal—they are positively the last word.

McNeil Modern Method for Guitar

In the pages of this book lies the key to such problems and formulas as the guitar-playing fraternity has never known. It is the last word in guitar material. Interesting rudiments—tuning instructions, with tests, single-note exercises. A complete chapter dealing with Chords: How to build chords and letter-name them according to the latest symbol method;—How to perform the principal chords of all keys, in all the practical positions;—All the common types of chords, such as: Major, Minor, 7th, 9th, Augmented, Diminished chords and their inversions;—Perfect accompaniments in the 1st position (such as used to accompany the voice);—Accompaniments in position (used in orchestral work);—Fill-ins and Runs;—When and where to make bass runs;—Studio talks on fretted instrument harmony;—Plectrum examples shown by double staves—melody and chord style in the top staff and 2d guitar chords in the bottom staff—How to spell chords;—How to read and arrange chords solos from piano score;—How to transpose the chords from one key to another;—How and in what register to play orchestral accompaniments from tenor banjo parts;—Other requirements, including the tremolo, strokes and breaks.

This modern guitar book takes the embryo guitarist behind the scenes and shows him the results of a professional's twenty years' work. It is truly worth $25.00 to any guitarist, if he couldn't obtain this invaluable information in any other way.

Price $2.50

McNeil Chord System for Tenor Banjo

A complete course for beginners, advanced students and professional players—including lessons in simplified harmony. Two new revolutionary principles differentiate the McNeil Chord System from all other banjo instruction books—1st—it is the only book that shows chords in all keys and their inversions throughout the entire fingerboard of the instrument. The unique chord-charts tell instantly the fingers and frets required to make any chord in any position. 2nd—This modern book shows all the material in double clef style—two notation manner—actual pitch and octave pitch. Every phase of banjo instruction covered—chords and melody combined—fingerboard harmony—reading of banjo parts with or without symbols—reading of piano music—"strokes"—"breaks"—studio talks on harmony, chord combinations, their relative difficulty and the frequency of their appearance in popular music.

Price $3.00

McNeil Progressive Studies—Vol. I

Featuring single note technique—octave or universal notation. Arranged to be used in solo or duet (teacher and pupil) form. Graded from easy to medium. Teaches the correct method of fingering, the proper strokes—beginning with the rudiments of music—the first position in easy keys—then on to the more difficult keys and higher positions.

Price $1.50

McNeil Progressive Studies—Vol. II

A sequel to studies contained in Volume I—medium to difficult grade. Explains grace notes—appoggiaturas—with exercises showing their use. Studies in the various positions and scales showing exact location on fingerboard, using the two clefs—actual and octave—to facilitate reading. Also includes "fill-ins" employed by broadcasters and recording banjoists—likewise interesting jigs and reels for single note training.

Price $1.50

McNeil Chord System for Plectrum Banjo

Studio talks on harmony, giving the student a clear idea of chord definition and progression which will enable him to "FAKE" or Read more readily. How to read from Piano score or tenor banjo parts. The San Francisco Convention

Monday, Second Week

The second convention week opened with a manifest determination on the part of delegates to get down to business and make time count.

The annual American Legion fraternal greetings were delivered by Hon. Charles R. Mabey, former Governor of Utah.

The committee report favoring a six-hour day and a five-day week was unanimously adopted.

Francis J. Gorman, Vice-President of the United Textile Workers, addressed an attentive convention. The textile strike, surcharged with ominous possibilities, and its sudden termination, had presented a somewhat perplexing picture. Delegate Gorman explained the situation by saying:

We sought negotiation, then we agreed to mediation. Later we proposed arbitration and finally we accepted the Winant Board's magnificent award. We offered peace at every step, but when peace was no longer possible we forced the fighting, and by forcing the fighting carried the day.

Tuesday, Second Week

We believe one of the most startling revelations of the week was that made by the Committee on Education. The report prefaced its specific recommendations with the following words:

We are facing the passing of the public schools. In fact, the public schools have passed in many sections of our country. A program of retrenchment in public education has reduced school efficiency and educational opportunity beyond the point of retrenchment to the point of extinction.

An economy wave has swept over our schools, leaving in its wake a devastation appalling to behold. Two thousand rural schools in twenty-four states failed to reopen in 1933. A like situation prevailed in the cities where the increase in school population was met, not by additional classes and teachers, but by increased enrollment in the already overlarge classes. Nearly one million children in rural states went to school less than six months during the year 1934. The per pupil cost of education was cut 22 per cent last year. The teachers in service were reduced 5 per cent. The school year has been shortened in a large number of cities. The so-called frills, in reality the essentials of sound education in our modern world, have been eliminated or excessively curtailed. The sale of textbooks dropped 16.8 per cent in 1931-1932, as compared with the low level of the previous year. The building and repair program fund for schools in the United States has dropped 57.6 per cent in cities in the last two years. Salaries have been reduced from 10 per cent to 75 per cent.

This report is a challenge to serious thinking. The figures disclosed can point in no other direction than to indications of intellectual decay. It denotes that trivialities are overshadowing essentials. The real friends of popular education will have to assert themselves for a new awakening of public opinion.

The Remaining Days

One of the high-lights of the convention period was the address of Walter M. Citrine, General Secretary of the British Trades Congress. Citrine is an orator, modest but forcible, and a master of the purest English. The address was a graphic portrayal of conditions in the various countries of Europe. It was a warning against the disintegrating forces of Fascism, a vivid depiction of the intolerable conditions existing under the reign of Hitlerism, and an admonition to Americans to preserve and cherish the institutions which have developed in the atmosphere of our own free government. Those fortunate enough to hear the address will never forget it.

Another great utterance was that of B. Charney Vladeck, general manager of the Jewish Daily Forward, published in New York. The address was couched in chaste language, and was a masterly defense of the Hebrew race against the persecution to which they have long been subjected and especially an expose of the almost indescribable tyrannies suffered on German soil in recent months.

The everlasting jurisdictional dispute between the brewery workers, teamsters, engineers and firemen seeking to control certain phases of labor occupied considerable time and provoked an animated debate. The question as to who is who and which shall be which was left practically unsolved, except as to the according of an earnest wish that the warring elements get together.

Craft and Industrial Unions

What was expected to precipitate a warm battle on the floor of the convention was settled with scarcely a ripple of opposition, namely, the proposition that there is room under the Labor Federation banners for both the craft and the industrial union. It was settled on the simple principle that there is room for both organizations; that the primal object is the unionization of all industrial workers, and that technical differences of method should not be permitted to stifle or thwart the consummation of this ideal.

The American Federation of Labor is now in position to cover a wide range of labor dominion. Unskilled as well as skilled fields may be opened for missionary effort. Important branches of labor will no longer be left so free to the exploitation of communist agitators. And experiment has thus been launched which will be watched with the keenest interest.

Communism Squelched
Communist activity experienced a frosty time in this convention. Several radical proposals made their appearance by the muscians-in. Their schemes were adversely reported on by the various committees, and when the Reds sought to argue the issues, the delegates had no patience for listening and they were hooted off the floor. It was very evident that the convention was determined the general public should be made to understand that organized labor is marching under the Stars and Stripes of the United States in the prosecution of its ideals and not under the red flag of Soviet Russia.

Executive Council Enlarged

The movement for enlargement of the official roster of the American Federation of Labor, which has been brewing for several years, at last reached the goal of victory at the San Francisco convention. The Executive Council was increased by the creation of seven new vice-presidents. The officary as thus created and as it now stands is as follows:

President—William Green of the United Mine Workers.

First Vice-President—Frank Duffy of the Carpenters.

Second Vice-President—Thomas A. Rickert of the Garment Workers.

Third Vice-President—Matthew Woll of the Photo-Engravers.

Fourth Vice-President—John Coefield of the Plumbers.

Fifth Vice-President—Arthur O. Wharton of the Machinists.

Sixth Vice-President—Joseph N. Weber of the Musicians.

Seventh Vice-President—G. M. Bugniet of the Electrical Workers.

Eighth Vice-President—George M. Harrison of the Railway Clerks.

Ninth Vice-President—Daniel J. Tobin of the Teamsters.

Tenth Vice-President—Wm. J. Hutchinson of the Carpenters.

Eleventh Vice-President—George L. Berry of the Printing Pressmen.

Twelfth Vice-President—John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers.

Thirteenth Vice-President—David Dubinsky of the Lady Garment Workers.

Fourteenth Vice-President—Harry C. Bates of the Bricklayers.

Fifteenth Vice-President—Edward J. Gainer of the Letter Carriers.

Secretary—Frank Morrison of the Typographical Union.

Treasurer—Martin J. Ryan of the Railway Trainmen.

Fraternal Delegates

As a recognition of the wonderful manner in which he had looked after the entertainment program of the delegates and visitors, John A. O'Connell, Secretary of the San Francisco Labor Council, was unanimously elected fraternal delegate to the Canadian Trades Congress, which will be held in Halifax.

Without opposition, Henry F. Schmal of the Photo-Engravers and Dennis Lane of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters were elected fraternal delegates to the British Trades Congress.

Next Convention City Fight

As a location for the next labor convention, Atlantic City, Akron, Montreal and Miami were the cities placed in nomination. A vigorous assault was made upon Atlantic City under claim that that city had thwarted the efforts of the National Fire Fighters' Association to organize the firemen of that city. After considerable rag-mastication, a motion to leave the selection in the hands of the National Executive Council was unanimously adopted.

Golden Gate Glimmerings

California is the State in which American civilization takes its last stand. It cannot push farther to the west. In that direction lies the vast Pacific, upon whose expansive bosom the navies of the world may some day wage that Armageddon which shall determine the issue of racial destiny for all time. Historically speaking, how far seems the time from the Landing at Plymouth Rock to the hinging of the Golden Gate! A little over three centuries! Our forefathers had plenty of faith, but they could not have dreamed, in the wildest flights of the imagination, of the picture which the Pacific Coast presents to the world today. On Saturday of the opening convention week there was no session and we improved the opportunity to visit Mount Tamalpais. We went there in 1915, but she veiled herself in cloud-mist that day and refused to disclose her scenic charms. Upon this later occasion, however, her behavior was about all that could be desired. Four years ago the railway up the Mount was removed and complete surrender made to the bus lines. Boarding a bus, which was ferried across the bay, first came the journey to Muir Woods in whose solemn vastness we wandered for hours. Trees showing credentials which traversed the centuries, massive in proportion, dizzying in height, reminded us of William Cullen Bryant's immortal lines, "The Groves Were God's First Temples." Here and there a startled deer darted forth from the brush. We had no gun; we would not have used it if we had; to have been implicated in the slaughter of these woodland natives would have been an act so closely akin to murder as to utterly despoil the glorious memories of the day. San Francisco Laborites had prepared a feast under the trees, for which much tramping had generated appetite, and then the journey up Mt. Tamalpais was begun. On the upward climb the inspiring panorama of mountain, and ocean, and bay, and silver river, and woodland verdure, and city and town, stretched out before us.

At last the altitudinous destination was reached. Some found their hearts beating faster; others noted that their respiratory organs had quickened their pace; and there were those who were disinclined to talk, but were content to lose themselves in wonderment over the scene stretched far and wide below. We were accorded twenty-five minutes on the mountain top. At the end of fifteen the heaviest fog we ever beheld suddenly settled over the scene and all other sight-seeing was at an end. We cautiously started on the homeward return. Half way down the mountain side the fog lifted. Land and water were bathed in the glory of a closing October afternoon sun. Soon the day had reached its close. We had witnessed a Nature drama in which earth and sea and sky had played their wondrous parts.

We have referred to California as a sort of final governmental experimental station. Certain it is that within her ample borders one can hear expounded every brand of political science, economic philosophy, or social uplift ever emanating from the mind of man, frequently exploited with fog-horn vehemence and scatter-brain incoherence. At this writing a state campaign is in progress, with startling issues under discussion in the public forum. As the outcome will be determined before this issue of the International Musician reaches its readers, it would not be worth while to attempt their analysis now. Simply take it from us—it is a hectic campaign.

We are in position to speak in glowing terms of San Francisco weather for all autumnal convention purposes.

California and her thriving cities have long been the envy of many other localities in the success which they achieve in going after governmental assistance in behalf of meritorious local enterprises. This comes from maintaining intelligent and resourceful go-getters at Washington. San Francisco muscians are being paid $1,200 dollars a week at the present time through the medium of the SERA—State Emergency Relief Association. The governmental appropriation for the next three months is $42,000. Musicians are being paid for rehearsals even when there is no job in sight. They have a man in that city (a member of Local No. 6) named K. Attil, harpist, who is serving as supervisor of musical projects, and who in the matter of accomplishing results is beginning to make it look as though Santa Claus would lose his long enjoyed laurels. Local No. 6 is certainly to be congratulated upon the governmental connections which it enjoys in fighting Old Man Depression. This is a healthy sign of the times. It indicates muscians are receiving some of the recognition long past due.

On a Sunday afternoon we made our way to Golden Gate Park, where we heard the band bearing that name play a two hour concert under the leadership of Bandmaster Edwin Arrolido. It is a fine organization of forty-two men at the present time. It played a carefully selected program and the rotund organ-like tone emanating from the Shell, constructed by the late Claus Spreckels, was a delight to the large audience present. The band plays every Sunday in the year except on those Sundays when it happens to rain. We understand that Upton Sinclair has promised that if elected Governor he will decree rainless Sundays the year around—holding all down-pours for Mondays—the usual San Francisco wash-days. It must be great to live in a commonwealth where Utopias are so easily ushered into being.

Seldom have we heard a four-piece orchestra which could provide so much good music as did the Barney Frankel instrumental quartet which accompanied the convention holiday excursion to Muir Woods. The combination embraced violin, saxophone, accordion and drums. They played everything from grand opera to jazz. They added their full share to the pleasure of the occasion.

The Municipal Band is another fine musical organization of 33 pieces, under the direction of Phil Shapiro, and which is in constant demand for public functions. In fact, we do not know a city in which good bands and orchestras—including a symphony—are more uniformly maintained.

Our old friend, Harry Menke, delegate to many national musical conventions, plays with the municipal band and also has divisional direction over one of the governmental relief departments.

National Executive Officer Albert Greenbaum was a frequent convention visitor and extended many courtesies to the A. F. of M. delegation.

The A. F. of M. delegation was augmented by the presence of President A. L. Eggert of St. Paul Local, representing the Trades and Labor Assembly of that city; and Secretary Edward Ringius of the same Local, who was present as delegate from Minneapolis Central Labor Council. They had seats with the muscians' delegation.

We found Frank Borgel, for many years member of the National Executive Board, A. F. of M., in a fairly good state of health, looking natural and enjoying life.

Another opportunity was afforded to hear San Francisco muscians at their best at the rendition of "Midsummer Night's Dream"—presented as a musical fantasy and which was having an extensive run during the convention period. There were fifty-two pieces in the orchestra, and the incidental musical setting to the Shakespearean comedy was interpreted with a delicacy of shading which was all that could be desired.

The automobiles in San Francisco are not equipped with wings, but they do fly. Having had extended practice in dodging we escaped being hit.

Communism is not a thriving plant in American Federation of Labor circles.

San Francisco Federation muscians are housed in their own commodious and well-located home at 230 Jones street. Local No. 6 is officered by the following staff: President, Walter A. Weber; Vice-President, Jack A. Haywood; Recording Secretary, Eddie B. Love; Financial Secretary and Treasurer, Clarence H. King; Secretary Oakland Branch, Tom Lowans; San Francisco Business Representative, Karl A. Dietrich; Oakland Business Representative, Albert Morris; Board of Relief, Barney A. Frankel, Elmer Hubbard, George W. C. Kitter, Ed. S. Moore, Jules Spiller; Board of Directors, James G. Dewey, Elmer M. Hubbard, Walter King, Walter Krusgrill, Ed. S. Moore, Jerry Richard and Clark Wilson.

It was a pleasure to find that Local No. 6 is looked upon as a substantial and influential factor in general labor affairs throughout the San Francisco territory and that professionally it maintains harmonious relations with the employing public.

The A. F. of M. delegates to the A. F. of L. Convention are grateful to Local No. 6 and its officers and members for more courtesies than we can here enumerate during the entire convention period.

President W. Stross of Vallejo, Calif., Local No. 367, A. F. of M., was a labor convention visitor and extended greetings to the muscians' delegation.

Delegate Otto Kapl of Cleveland is fond of birds, and so he flew home.

Slight seismic disturbances seem to cause about as little commotion in San Francisco as a hot summer wind does in Des Moines.

"Distinguished visitors" to a national labor convention could almost organize a large union of their own.

Following A. F. of M. precedent, the A. F. of L. referred the matter of selection of the 1935 convention city to its National Executive Board.

Anyone who never had the experience of having his mouth water should visit a San Francisco fruit market.

The fifty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor finished its work at 11:00 o'clock Friday evening, October 12, 1934. The American Federation of Musicians was represented by the duly elected delegates as authorized by the Cleveland Convention. All were constantly on the job and all had something to do. The delegation was composed of Joseph N. Weber, Edward Canavan, C. L. Bagley, Vincent Castronovo, Otto Kapl and Chauncey A. Weaver. We have not the space to cover the lengthy resolution offered by the A. F. of M. delegation relating to matters of interest to the profession for the reason that the approval of the convention did not come until the closing hour of the session. We, therefore, reserve its presentation and review for a future issue of the International Musician.

The A. F. of M. delegates appreciate the honor and the confidence expressed in their election for so important a function. They have done their best to vindicate that confidence. To have been identified with a convocation of such far-reaching importance, and upon ground so picturesque and historic, will be a memory to be cherished.

The Cherry Tree Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly

Reaction dies hard. Business doesn't want to pay higher taxes. Business doesn't want this; business doesn't want that. Business can't get it through its thick head yet that business no longer sits upon a throne before which the multitudes must bow and scrape the last nickle out of their pocket and the last patch of skin off their knees—and other places. And it is whispered that the Administration is going to reassure business. Well, business shouldn't be butchered and made to serve as the sandwich filling for a Roman holiday. That isn't part of any fair program. But this returning tendency to stand up and try the dictatorial stunt can only react against business to bring it more contempt than ever.

There wasn't any restraint upon business in 1929. It had the world by the tail and the swing was all with the wind. So what happened? Ten million people are still out of work as a result of a plunge that threw fifty fifteen million workers into the streets in one of the most awful calamities of world history.

It takes nerve now to step forth and try to tell the nation how to run itself—nerve on the part of that famous wrecking crew. Just now southern textile manufacturers are giving an example of piggishness—they're famous for it—by demanding no more government interference, while in the same breath demanding that the government arrange trade agreements for them so they can export more cloth at a profit. All take and no give. It's a great idea!

Now here's a guess. If the Administration starts leaning toward business at the expense of its social justice program, then labor will begin doing some leaning.

But that isn't probable, on the basis of all known facts. The social legislation program is being broadened, rather than contracted.

There is a real possibility that the legislation to go through this winter will make last year's crop seem tame and pale by comparison.

There may be a shocking invasion of the pasture wherein the sacred cows are kept.

All of which leads to just one conclusion: Business will have respect and protection only insofar as it can point the way to re-employment. If it insists upon the old game, which piles up unemployment, then it is clearly going to be too bad for business, and very much too bad, at that. If it can show that the business way is the way to decency and jobs and good order, then there will be an accolade

PHILADELPHIA'S FINEST—Here are three of the finest sax players in Philadelphia. They comprise the sax section of the staff band at WCAU, principal and most powerful of the Quaker City's broadcasting stations—outlet for the CBS chain. Left to right: Whittlesey K. Searles, Conn alto sax and baritone sax; Milton Schatts, Conn alto sax and baritone sax; and Elmer L. Ziegler, Conn alto sax and baritone sax. All three men have written us commending Conn instruments in enthusiastic terms. Their letters are dated Aug. 7, 1934, and August 8, 1934.

ALL CONN TESTIMONIALS ARE GUARANTEED TO BE VOLUNTARY AND GENUINE EXPRESSIONS OF OPINION FOR WHICH NO PAYMENT OF ANY KIND HAS BEEN OR WILL BE MADE for business and many other rewards likewise.

Business, of and for its own sake, isn't worth very much of a headache. What we call business is simply a method—a way of doing things. There isn't anything holy about any given way of doing things.

If one way doesn't work, then some other way may work, and surely some other way must be tried.

The President doesn't accept unemployment as a permanent and necessary thing—neither does labor.

Business, thus far, doesn't accept anything else.

There's a show-down coming 'round the bend, tra la la.

What Next?

An "electric eye" which automatically provides the amount of light needed at any given time in homes and other buildings, as well as in street lighting, airway beacons and navigation signals, was recently demonstrated in Baltimore. The "electric eye" is a sensitized cell, which measures the amount of light existing at any given time and turns on artificial illumination when the light reaches a set minimum.

What Next?

Showing of big events on motion picture screens in a minute and a quarter after they occur is possible by a new invention tested recently in Berlin. The film is shot from a special car, but instead of being wound on a spool, it passes through a canal into the interior of the car, where it is developed, fixed and washed, ready to show. By means of a telephoto system films of events miles away may be made on a theatre roof and shown in 75 seconds.
