DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS - DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be identified. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

All advertising must be prepaid; see "Payment" paragraph above. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black printing on white. No reverse type if A.R.C. is to make up the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85 line screen; otherwise, add $10.00 per photo for screening. Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.

If you are confused by these requirements and terms, please contact A.R.C. before beginning to prepare your ad. We will be happy to advise you on your ad ideas, estimate how much the ad will cost, recommend an ad size, etc.

We assume that advertisers want all ads which are submitted to run without delay; therefore, we will run the ad and bill for any additional work required for the ad to meet these specifications. A late ad will be run beginning with the next month. "Tear sheets" will be sent only for 1/2 and full page ads, and if requested when the ad is submitted.

Business card ads are limited to one per advertiser.

The 3-month rates represent about a 10% discount, the 6-month rates, 20%. Placement requests for display ads: add 15% but call first. Clubs: write for discount policy.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

Our lead article this month is Part II of Will Jensby's series "The History of Navy Radio Equipment." Thirteen pieces of early and rare equipment from 1915 to 1921 are described and pictured. Will is assembling photos of early equipment and is interested in contacting collectors who own sets he does not have.

"Radio Club Management," an informative article by Gerald Schneider, gives invaluable advice on how to make a club succeed. We now follow over four dozen collector groups and receive notices of new clubs monthly. Gerald "tells it like it is," and his article is a must for anyone thinking of starting a new antique radio organization.

George Potter reports on a very successful club event — the November 1991 Vintage Radio and Phonograph Society Convention. This event's auction, in both number of items and total dollar volume, exceeded the 1991 Antique Wireless Association meet.

A couple of helpful restoration tips are described this month. First, James Di Ruzza discusses the problems of replacing electrolytic capacitors in small AC/DC radios. Failure to follow James' careful steps and to observe his notes of caution may result in a burned out rectifier tube.

Do you have an extra hole in the panel of your favorite radio? In our second restoration article, Ron Brillinger explains an easy technique that leaves the hole virtually undetectable.

Sharing such helpful hints with our readers always generates positive feedback. In that regard, note the letter on page 9 from Bill Reid, who had such success with Jack Clark and Charles Conte's technique of cleaning with ammonia described in the December 1991 issue of A.R.C.

The answers to the Vintage Quiz in the December 1991 issue are included this month. I admit that figuring out the radio terms suggested by the cartoons was quite hard. Our "winner" was John Watson of Moorestown, N.J., who came up with a score of 12 out of a possible 18! It is too bad that A.R.C. cannot match the grand prize in 1923 — a Grebe CR-9 and a RORN valued then at $190. Congratulations, John!

For collectors of communications receivers, Robert Enemark has reviewed two recent Hallcrafters books — one by Max de Henseler and one by Chuck Dachis.

Another offering in our series of Telegraph Key Reviews by Gil Schlehman appears this month. This time our popular Photo Review includes mainly later sets. One interesting item is a 1950s RCA UHF TV converter which at first glance looks like a table radio.

Empire of the Air. I hope that many of you either will see or have already seen the PBS documentary Empire of the Air, based on Tom Lewis' book. Alan Douglas, in his A.R.C. December 1991 review, calls it "... the best book on radio history ever written." Produced by Ken Burns (producer of "The Civil War" PBS series), it has been previewed at a number of film festivals and has received very fine reviews! Both the book and a video are or will soon be available from suppliers, including A.R.C.

Old Tyme Radio Services Directory. A.R.C. is in the process of updating this directory of services for the antique radio community. See the invitation in this issue to add or update your free listing.

Club Events. The antique radio meet scene is active again with nearly two dozen events planned for February. Look over "Mark Your Calendar" on the Coming Radio Events pages for the many events scheduled.

A.R.C.'s travel plans will take us to the New England Antique Radio Club meet in N.H. and to the Greater Boston Antique Radio Collectors meet in Mass. We will also attend the Dayton, Ohio, HamVention on April 24, 25 and 26; a great many collectors make it to this largest of all (over 30,000 hams) amateur radio conventions.

Thanks. Many thanks for the holiday greeting cards that so many of you sent to us here at A.R.C. Quoting just a few — "Great job," Robert Nicholson; "Best Wishes, and keep up the good work," Steve Harrell; "No ads, no complaints, just a card to tell you that I think you are doing a great job with A.R.C.," Larry Babcock; "I hope that all of you super staffers of A.R.C. have a joyous holiday and a prosperous New Year. Thanks for a great A.R.C. 1991!" Charlie Harper; Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to the entire A.R.C. staff," Dave Bertinot.

And thanks also to all of you for your personal notes on so many of your ads, renewals and orders. We appreciate the words of overwhelming support that we receive each month, and we pledge to continue to publish antique radio's best monthly magazine.

Happy collecting.

John V. Terrey

ON THE COVER

We hope that you enjoy our "St. Valentine's Greeting Through the Radio" cover this month. A 1920s postcard provided the illustration. Postcards related to antique radio are another interesting facet of collecting.

The December 1991 cover was from the December 1923 Radio Journal, published in Los Angeles, Calif. We did not credit the source in our December issue because it was the same journal from which our Vintage Quiz was drawn, and we did not want to give any hints!

VINTAGE MILITARY EQUIPMENT

The History of Navy Radio Equipment Part II

BY WILL JENSBY

This is the second installment of a two-part series on early Navy radio equipment. Part I appeared in the October 1991 issue of A.R.C. Will Jensby presents us with a wealth of authenticated material on this subject, and he promises to continue his research on early military sets for future articles.

RADIO TEST SHOP WASHINGTON NAVY YARD

Before World War I, the majority of radio equipment in use by the Navy was designed and developed by commercial companies. Little, if any, commonality in design led to difficulties in training personnel to maintain and operate the various equipment. In addition, the Navy felt that the commercial designers did not fully appreciate its needs. The result was the establishment in 1914 of the Radio Test Shop (RTS) at the Washington Navy Yard. The shop was to be responsible for receiver design.

At RTS, Dr. Louis Cohen, along with George Clark and L.G. Butte, took the best portions of the new developments and incorporated them into the designs of the Navy Types A, B, and C receivers. These were completed in early 1915 and placed into production at the Washington Navy Yard in the same year. The Cohen Type A is shown in Figure 7.

In late 1915, RTS was placed under the direction of Lt. W.A. Eaton. His group included Gunner T. McL. Davis; Expert Radio Aides William H. Priess, Lester L. Israel, and L.C.F. Horle; Radio Electricians Sharpiro, Carpenter and Worrel; and Prof. L.A. Hazeltine, consultant. In addition, George Clark, the Navy's first Radio Aide, worked with this group and contributed to the design of the new receivers. The group was also responsible for acceptance testing of radio equipment and, during WW I, tested 3,636 receivers, 1,100 amplifiers, 815 transmitters, and 2,835 associated devices.

RECEIVER REDESIGN

Early in 1916, it was decided to redesign the Navy Type A and B receivers — more properly called tuners, since detectors were not built into the sets. These sets employed capacitive coupling of the so-called “Cohen” type and used spool inductances. Evidently, selectivity was unsatisfactory, so specifications for a new design were supplied to the Washington Navy Yard and to the National Electric Supply Co. (NESCo), of Washington, D. C. NESCo had been building receivers for the Army and Navy using Dr. L. Cohen’s “static-coupled” design, which he had patented in 1914.

Capacity-coupling eliminated the need for a loose-coupler arrangement and permitted NESCo to design some compact receivers such as the CN-112 and the CN-113, shown in Figures 8 and 9.

NEW TYPE NUMBER SYSTEM

About this time, a type number system devised by George Clark was implemented to reduce the confusion in identifying the many different radio parts being stocked by the Navy. A specific consecutive number was assigned to each device or system. Preceding the type number was a letter designation indicating the source — “SE”, if designed by the Navy, or “C”, if of commercial design — followed by one or two additional letters indicating the particular originating company. SE units would often be built in limited numbers by a Navy Yard. Then, if needed, a production contract would be awarded to one or more companies, such as Wireless Specialty Co., Western Electric, and others.

RTS had completed prototypes when NESCo submitted models of its two receivers — the CN-208 and the CN-239. The induction coils of these sets proved superior to those used in the Navy sets. Production of Type A, 1917, had started but was stopped. Type B, 1917, was not phased into production. Sets marked A_A and B_A, no doubt the later versions, have appeared in collections. Front and internal views of Model B_A are shown in Figures 10 and 11.

THE SE-143 RECEIVER GROUP

The Navy modified the specifications and redesigned its two sets, designated the SE-95, shown in Figure 12, and the SE-143, shown in Figure 13 (front view) and Figure 14 (internal view). The SE-143 and CN-208 sets covered the most used frequency range — 100-1200 kHz — known as "shortwave" at that time. They became the Navy's wartime utility sets.

The SE-143 was built in 1917 and 1918 in large quantities by several manufacturers and is the most common set found in collections today. This was the first production set to use inductive coupling. The SE-95, a long-wave set using capacitive coupling, is the most complex of the four sets. Today, it is one of the rarest, with only a handful known to exist.

The CN-239 covered the long-wave band of 30 to 300 Kc but was not produced in large quantities. The CN-240, pictured in Figure 15, was essentially the same set with additional binding posts and an additional switch laid out in a way similar to the SE-143. This made it compatible with the SE-1071 audio control box, the most common one in use at that time by the Navy.

The SE-143 panel layout, with modifications, was also used on the SE-143A, SE-712A, SE-899, SE-952, SE-998, SE-1220, and others. The right-hand dial has calibrations in wavelength, with as many scales on the dial as inductance taps on the switch above. The inductance switch shaft has a rack and pinion assembly which moves the dial pointer to the proper scale. The main tuning condensers have vernier knobs for fine adjustment. The SE-143 knobs on the large dials are solid, while sets like the SE-1220 had conventional knobs with a hole for the mounting screw.

The inductances used in the SE-143 family are bank-wound and are sectionalized. A cam carried by the inductance switch separates the used and unused sections of the winding as needed, avoiding dead-end effects and providing a greater wavelength range than previously possible. A "tuned-untuned" switch disconnected the secondary condenser for use when listening for a station of unknown frequency.

These sets did not include a vacuum tube detector, as earlier sets had crystal detectors only, and separate vacuum tube detectors and amplifiers, built for the earlier sets, were already available. The binding post layout was designed to match the SE-1071 audion control unit shown in Figure 16. An SE-1000 audio amplifier, shown in Figure 17 was often used with the SE-1071. A tickler coil was provided in the SE-143 to permit regeneration for CW reception when using the SE-1071. The Triode A two-tube detector/amplifier was also designed for use with the SE-143 group.

Toward the end of 1918, the Radio Test Shop designed the SE-1220 long-wave set covering the frequency range of 43-1000 Kc. The feature distinguishing the SE-1220 from the SE-143 is a third position — "Send" — added to the "Crystal" or "Audion" switch in the center. This feature would prevent a transmitter from overloading a detector.

Instead of a black panel, the SE-1220 often has a reddish colored panel. This version of the SE-1220 is shown in Figure 18. There is also less engraving on the SE-1220 than on the SE-143. Plates were added to the variable condensers to accommodate the longer wavelength. Before the SE-1220 went into quantity production, the SE-1420 with internal vacuum tube detector was designed and became the Navy's standard medium-wave receiver, with a range of 37.5 to 1200 Kc.

The SE-998, shown in Figure 19, was a short-wave receiver (300-3000 kHz) and used in the SE-995 direction-finding system. Externally, the set can be distinguished by the fact that the "tuned-untuned" switch has been replaced by a "unilateral-bilateral" switch. For direction-finding, the loop is connected to the "primary load" terminals, as is a vertical antenna to the normal antenna terminal. The switch in "bilateral" position disconnected the vertical antenna. Robison's Manual of Radio Telegraph and Telephony, 1919 ed., gives a good description of how this direction-finding system works. The CF-122 detector and SE-1000 audio amplifier were used with the SE-998.

With wartime production of receivers coming to an end, the I-P-500 receiver was announced by Wireless Specialty Apparatus Co. in its 1919 catalog. The set is also described in Radio Amateur News, August 1919. It is usually referred to as the commercial version of the SE-143, but it is actually much more like the SE-1220 both mechanically and electrically.

One of the last sets built as part of the SE-143 group is the SE-3649 long-wave receiver (12-300 Kc) made by the Washington Navy Yard in 1921 and shown in Figure 20. Removing the name plate on the panel of an SE-3649 revealed that the set is a modified SE-899, shown in Figure 21. The antenna and ground binding posts were relocated to the left-hand side of the panel. The diagram in Figure 22 of a 1921 battleship radio station shows the SE-3649 alongside the SE-1420, no doubt to provide long-wave coverage of stations such as NSS at Annapolis on 17.6 Kc.

Will Jensby is assembling a photo catalog of Navy receivers and would welcome front and rear photos of sets, especially the Type A and C, the SE-712 and the SE-952. For those who have a set with a missing nametag (not uncommon), he may be able to help with identification.

(Will Jensby, WØEOM, 645 Giannini Dr., Santa Clara, CA 95051)

An American amateur radio operator since 1952, Will Jensby began serious collecting of early detectors, wavemeters, and vacuum tubes in 1975. His work in Aero Space Communications led to his interest in early military equipment. He is a member of the Antique Wireless Association and of the Board of the Perham Foundation, which operates the Foothill Electronics Museum.

MEET & AUCTION REPORT

VRPS/AWA Convention & Auction November 8-10, 1991 — Irving, Texas

CONTRIBUTED BY GEORGE POTTER

The Vintage Radio & Phonograph Society (VRPS) and the Antique Wireless Association (AWA) held their 16th annual convention and auction November 8-10, 1991, at the Holiday Inn DFW Airport South in Irving, Texas. Total attendance was over 340. Two separate auctions were held because of equipment quantities.

Friday night's auction attracted 180 collectors with 492 items sold, for a total of $14,645. There were 51 passes. At the main auction on Saturday, 200 attended and bid on 408 items for a total of $40,074! Seventy-two items were passed over. The sale set a new record of $54,719. Michael Sherman, this year's auctioneer broke his 1990 record of one item every 57 seconds with one item every 43 seconds!

On Friday, Bob Olinger and Don Nordenholt presented the following programs: "Early Radios—Exits & Entrances"; slides on radio collecting, narrated by AWA's Bruce Kelley; and "3D Television and Effects."

At Saturday's Awards Banquet, the guest speaker John Rayburn of Denver, Colorado, gave an excellent presentation on the background of radio broadcasting. Over 70 awards were presented, and a Philco 20 and Victor VV-IV phonograph were given away as prizes.

The Sunday morning flea market started early, with a large room packed with radio gear and collectors.

Highlights of the auctions included an AK 10 B breadboard at $800, an AK 10C breadboard at $650, a Neutrowound at $200, a Grebe CR-8 at $425, an Emerson 564 Catalin at $650, a RadioCraft D4 at $425, a German WISI crystal set at $240, and a Crosley Pup at $300.

Empire of the Air ...Comments

From Pete Yanczer...

I received my December issue of A.R.C. a few days ago, and as always, enjoyed reading through it. I found Alan Douglas' book review of The Empire of the Air especially interesting because I had just finished reading the book myself.

Although he gives the book high praise in the beginning and again at the end, he devotes approximately half of his review to the three errors that he located. I congratulate him in his quest, but I think it would have better to recognize and say something about the effort that must have gone into gathering and assembling the information in this book. And then write it so that it would be interesting and enlightening to the reader.

I read the book over a period of two months, about an hour at a time. As I got further into it, I found it harder and harder to set down. My last session went over three hours. I found myself "rooting" for Armstrong a number of times and even Sarnoff once or twice. Because of this book, I feel I "know" its three major characters.

Tom Lewis has done an outstanding job on a subject where there is so much misinformation around. This is an important work, and anyone interested in radio should read it.

Peter Yanczer, St. Louis, Mo.

From The Pittsburgh Oscillator...

We can't imagine anyone interested in radio history not being interested in this book [Empire of the Air: The Men Who Made Radio by Tom Lewis]. Here is the non-technical history of radio from its beginnings through the 1950s, told largely through the concurrent biographies of three radio giants — Armstrong, de Forest, and Sarnoff.

Armstrong and de Forest may have been mere rivals at the beginning of their relationship, but by the 1930s that rivalry had turned to hatred. It is extraordinary the means which each man took to have himself proclaimed the winner in the priority debate over who invented regeneration...

If there is a hero in this great bittersweet tale of radio invention and exploitation, it must be Armstrong who, despite great public and professional adversity, continued throughout his adult life inventing and revolutionizing radio...Part of Armstrong's extraordinary technical success followed from his stubborn refusal to believe what "everyone" knew to be true, even when "everyone" apparently had mathematics on their side.

But Armstrong was a tragic hero, done in by his pride, which was manifested by his seeming inability to compromise when he thought he had been wronged...it was not in his nature to do so, and in the middle of his court battle with RCA, he committed suicide in 1954.

Do not dismiss the "Sources and Notes" section of this book...There is relevant information here that does not appear in the main text...

This popular study — well written, extensively researched, and highly readable — will change the way you think about its three protagonists and radio history in general.

CLUB SPOTLIGHT

Radio Club Management

BY GERALD SCHNEIDER

The rapid growth of A.R.C.'s listings of antique radio clubs and the increasing number of events on the "Coming Radio Events" pages attest to the great interest of radio collectors in preserving the heritage of antique radio through clubs. Out of Gerald Schneider's experience with the thriving Mid-Atlantic Antique Radio Club (MAARC), he offers many helpful suggestions for club success. Although some of his statements may sound negative, a club becomes a success only if it faces the realities of member attendance, support and active participation. (Editor)

Management of radio clubs is serious business now that there are about fifty such clubs in the U. S. Competition for members and money, already keen, will be even greater in the future. Only those groups that are well run are likely to grow and prosper.

But what can be done, given the voluntary nature of organizations involved and the few activists they produce? Much! Read on.

First, expect no more than 10 percent of members who come to club meetings to be doers and leaders. It is not that other members are lazy or unfit; it is just the way things are. Also count on losing some activists every few years because of diminished interest, moving away, disability, and death.

"Regular meetings (monthly if possible) that allow members to buy, sell, and trade radios and parts are critical. Nothing else is more important!"

Relying on help from members who have done little or nothing in the past may be disappointing. Odds are they will not complete any tasks they have agreed to do. Club project recruiters hoping for more are likely to become frustrated and finish the job themselves. A club's best bet is a large membership so that enough activists can always be found, given the usual activist percentages.

Groups lucky enough to start off with a more than 10 percent active membership will probably succeed. The chances are even better if these activists have different needed skills and savor the club work for which they volunteer.

These ingredients were the basis of the founding in 1984 of the Mid-Atlantic Antique Radio Club (MAARC), now one of the largest radios clubs in the world. About a third of its founding fifteen and other early members were activists with complementary abilities. Their initial momentum carries through to this day, and most are still active members, officers, and directors.

But luck plays a role only if you put a "p" before it so that you get "pluck." Making membership growth (and the money that will come with it) your club's focus is the way to go.

GETTING MEMBERS

What does it take to get members? Regular meetings (monthly if possible) that allow members to buy, sell, and trade radios and parts are critical. Nothing else is more important!

Having the same indoor meeting space in a convenient location with plenty of chairs, tables, and free parking is a bonus. Serving light refreshments adds a nice touch; a small extra charge for this is fine.

Auctions at each meeting, with both donated and consigned items, from which the club gets a commission, attract members. So does sale of radio-related publications that are hard to find at bookstores and awkward to purchase by mail order. Auction commissions and publication sales also bring in a lot of money for a club.

Programs are a help. But, they should be presented by articulate, knowledgeable persons so as not to bore. And they should be short enough not to take too much time away from radio exchanging.

Do not overlook getting support to attend meetings from spouses of collectors. Provide opportunities for non-collector spouses to socialize in a separate space at club meetings. Their enthusiastic involvement will carry over to their mates' radio collecting hobby and encourage club participation and membership retention.

A newsletter is a vital link for members between meetings! A monthly publication is ideal. One-sheet newsletters listing events, with free classified ads for members, are enough if you are not seeking membership beyond the club's meeting travel area.

Aim for a neat, grammatically correct, professional-looking newsletter. Non-technical people, even non-collectors, can edit the newsletter with aid from expert reviewers of technical material. Layout is important for appeal. Team editors with persons who have a flair for layout, if necessary. Never underestimate the value of a well-done newsletter.

Advertise! It may amaze you to know how few people interested in radio collecting are aware of area radio clubs. Free publicity for clubs comes from newspaper, television, and radio coverage of club events and media interviews with collectors. Get members or non-member friends who are good at getting media professionals to report on the club to do so.

Exhibits at libraries, in municipal buildings, and at fairs and malls pay off in new members and club prestige. An exhibit can be as simple as neatly placing radios in locked display cases alongside club literature. Make sure the media learn about any display.

Take out inexpensive classified ads in regional and community newspapers. Also advertise in radio collector periodicals such as Antique Radio Classified. Those clubs that have done so have found that these ads more than pay for themselves through new member dues.

ADMINISTRATION

Radio clubs should be non-profit organizations with a constitution and bylaws. Get a lawyer friend to help your club apply for non-profit status in your state, if necessary. Also, get Form 1024, an application package from the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, and fill it out to get federal non-profit status. Non-profit status in your state can make your club exempt from state sales taxes. The same exemption from the IRS means that donations to your club are tax-deductible to donors, as laws allow.

Club officers and directors should be doers and workers, not those who consider club office an honorary position. Of course, it is still an honor to be elected to leadership in a club. But, look for persons who actually do something as future club administrators, not those who just talk about activity.

The president should be an outgoing person, always vigorous about recruiting new members. A "sourpuss" who always bemoans the fact that there is no help is not the best choice. Proven management experience is less important than enthusiasm, friendliness, energy, and willingness to serve the club. But it does not hurt to have a president who is an administrator by nature.

Ethics can be a problem for key officers and directors. They are likely to hear first about radios that the public wants to donate to their club. Keeping any such radios for themselves, or acting on club classified ads before members receive newsletters is unethical. Such abuse of power will hurt the club regardless of how helpful the persons involved are to the club otherwise. Those accepting office in a club should make sure their own collecting pursuits do not conflict with objective club management. And members should not knowingly elect unethical persons to lead their clubs.

FINANCES

Every club should be self-supporting. That means that dues and other income should be high enough to cover all club administration costs.

Basic dues should pay for everything, such as the newsletter, from which every member benefits. Meeting expenses, if not covered by dues, should be paid for by those who attend the meetings. Any proposed new activity should not be undertaken without a way to pay for it. Deficit funding, no matter how well-intentioned, always leads to trouble, as proven by government.

Auctions and book sales, already mentioned, bring in extra money. So do 50/50 drawings at meetings. Selling commercial ads in your club newsletter also helps. Selling working capacitors, electrical supplies, and tubes, donated and purchased for resale to members, is a great fundraiser.

T-shirts, hats, and novelties with a club's name and logo (have a graphics artist make one up, if your club doesn't have one) bring in money, promote club esteem, and advertise the club. Bumper stickers are also good, but be aware that fewer and fewer drivers are willing to put them on their cars.

Sales of electrical schematics provide a valuable service and bring in income, if done by an unpaid volunteer. The Mid-Atlantic Antique Radio Club does this through its librarian at a charge of $3 per schematic. Of course, this means having a library (another membership service) and references, such as Rider's Perpetual Troubleshooter Manuals and Sams Photofact Picture Guides, along with copier capability.

FINAL NOTES

Any radio collector not active in a radio club is missing out on something special. Radio collectors are great people to socialize with for the most part. And it is always the case that persons who join a club derive the most satisfaction from active participation.

Perhaps the day will come when there will be a radio club large enough to employ a manager. But, until then, the success of your club will depend on your support and activity. There is no one else! If you like radio collecting and enjoy being around other collectors, get involved with a radio club. Help advertise, publish its newsletters, and assist in auction and fundraising activities.

Best of luck, I mean pluck, with your radio club!

PHOTO REVIEW

RCA MODEL U-70 - At first glance, this set appears to be an RCA Victor large-dial radio, but the markings show that it is an early UHF TV converter. The tuner came out in the late 1950s when the "new" expanded ultra high frequency TV band opened for commercial service. It hooked to the TV sets' antenna terminals. (Allan H Weiner - Yonkers, NY)

FREED-EISEMANN MODEL 30 - This 1926 battery-operated receiver uses six Type 01-A tubes. (Clark Trissell - Lincoln, NE)

AUTOMATIC RADIO MODEL 986 - This nicely finished table model features a brass escutcheon around the push buttons and brass dial trim. Manufactured in 1939, this set receives broadcast and shortwave stations. (Dave & Terry Masterson - Cheshire, CT)

GENERAL ELECTRIC MODEL GD-60 - This 1938 radio featured an automatic "Touch Tuning" system and still works great. Note the drum dial used for both the volume control and for tuning in stations. As a promotion, GE offered a package containing this radio, a lamp, toaster and an iron, all for $24.95! (Philip Lupo - Astoria, NY)

RESTORATION TOPICS

Replacement of Electrolytic Capacitors in AC/DC Radios

BY JAMES DI RUZZA

Many small AC/DC radios were produced from the late 1930s through the early 1970s. These sets have series-wired tube heaters and a DC power supply that produces about 150 to 200 volts. The series-wired heaters and the power supply are connected directly to the 115/120 volt AC/DC line. As a safety precaution when repairing these radios, you should operate them only from the AC line via an isolation transformer.

Repairs which involve replacement of electrolytic filter capacitors in these sets can be a disaster, unless the proper precautions are taken.

The rectifier tubes used in these DC power supplies provide only small amounts of current. For example, the "Typical DC Output Current Rating" for tube types 35W4 and 35Z5 is 60 to 90 milliamperes (mA). For the 25Z5, it is 75 mA. The rectifier's DC output current should be limited to that rating to prevent possible damage to the rectifier tube. A defective electrolytic filter capacitor may cause the tube's current rating to be exceeded. An old "off the shelf" electrolytic may cause the same problem, an issue that will be discussed later in this article.

CAUTION: Do not apply full AC power to the radio being tested. Power should be applied using the isolation transformer described above and a variable autotransformer (Variac) which will allow control of the AC voltage. An AC voltmeter and AC ammeter should also be used to monitor the AC voltage and current.

First, adjust the variable autotransformer to about 50 volts. Now plug in the radio and observe the set for anything abnormal, such as brighter than normal tube heaters and pilot lamps, smoking, etc. If any of these conditions exists, turn off the power and make the required repairs to correct the malfunction, before proceeding.

If, at this point, everything appears normal, slowly increase the variable autotransformer output to 120 volts while observing the AC voltmeter and ammeter. If everything still appears normal, except for a loud hum from the speaker regardless of volume control setting, it is likely that the electrolytic capacitor requires replacement.

CAUTION: All replacement electrolytic capacitors have a limited shelf life. If unused, an electrolytic capacitor will develop a higher than normal leakage current due to the loss of the initial dielectric forming which occurs during the manufacturing process.

Before installing a replacement electrolytic capacitor, you may find it necessary to reform it. Reforming can be accomplished by using a capacitance bridge that has an adjustable power supply and meters for measuring the DC voltage and current. If a capacitance bridge is not available, the reforming can be done with an adjustable DC power supply and meters.

To reform an electrolytic capacitor, set the adjustable power supply's output voltage to zero, connect the capacitor to the power supply, and then increase the voltage slowly, keeping the current under 10 milliamperes DC until the rated working voltage is obtained. At this point, observe the current reading. When this current has dropped to less than 1 milliampere at the capacitor's rated voltage, the capacitor has been reformed and is ready for installation.

If these precautions are not observed, an electrolytic capacitor with high leakage current may damage the rectifier tube.

How to Fill an Unwanted Hole in a Metal Cabinet

BY RON BRILLINGER, VE3XH

You have acquired a nice collectible communications or other metal-cased receiver, but the previous owner has modified it in some way, maybe by adding a switch or access hole in its metal panel. In so doing, he made a hole that just doesn't belong there. How do you get rid of an unwanted hole in a steel panel?

Here is a simple way that I have used effectively for some time. Just fill that hole with solder. The results are usually so good that, after re-spraying, the repair to the cabinet is virtually undetected.

The trick is to bevel the sides of the hole so that the solder has a larger area of metal surface with which to contact and bond. The bevel can be applied by a small rattail file or a "rose" reamer that has been fitted to a hand drill, as shown in Figure 1. Normally the bevel is sloped out towards the back side of the panel.

After beveling, I usually apply a thin film of rosin paste to the newly beveled edge to assist the soldering process.

Now lay the panel face down firmly against a smooth, heat-resistant surface, such as a hardwood board, and melt enough solder into the hole from the back or beveled side to fill the void completely, as noted in Figure 2. Both the solder and the beveled edge of the panel should be hot enough to allow the solder to flow smoothly to the front of the panel and bond to the inside metal edges of the hole and to the beveled surfaces. 60/40 solder works well, but I think 50/50 would be just as good.

On occasion, when the hole to be filled is large, I have beveled both sides of the hole in the panel. This process effectively locks the applied solder into place from both sides. If you do this, you may want to "tin" [apply film coating of solder to surface to insure greater adhesion] both beveled edges of the hole before placing the panel face down on the smooth surface to fill up the

After the solder has cooled, you will find it to be a dependable, permanent filling. The front side of the panel's surface will probably be quite smooth, but the back side of the panel where you "puddled in" the solder may require a bit of filing and sanding. Small imperfections can be removed with the usual techniques employed for refinishing a metal panel.

How big a hole can you fill? Well, the technique is perfect for small bolt holes and up to the size made for a toggle switch, but I have filled even larger and more peculiar shaped holes on rare occasions.

BOOK REVIEW

The Hallicrafters Story 1933-1975

By Max C. de Henseler, HB9RS

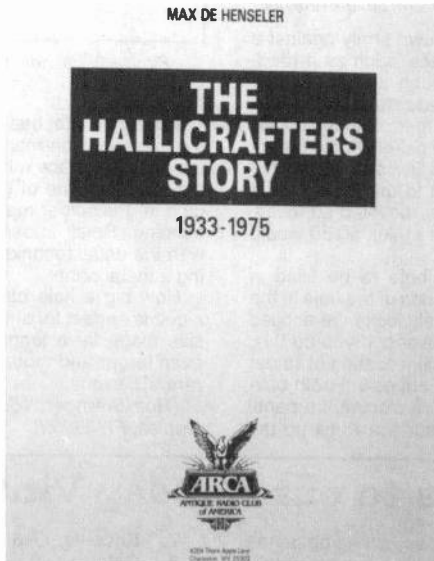

REVIEWED BY ROBERT B. ENEMARK, W1EC

Dr. Max de Henseler, an intensely dedicated collector and thoughtful historian of Hallicrafters, has had a distinguished 30-year career as Chief of Cartography for the United Nations. Now in retirement, he is Director-Curator of the Swiss Audiovisual Museum in Montreaux. He has been a ham operator for over 40 years, as well as a longtime member of the AWA and ARCA.

In his preface to this "story," de Henseler right away sets its tone when he describes "the deep nostalgia collectors have for the 'good old days' when the sky was really the limit, and the conquest of the skywaves by 'riding' or 'defying' them was the challenge of Hallicrafters." Here and throughout the book, his flowing style extends to and livens up model specifications. The models he describes are limited to the range of communication equipment that was used by hams and SWLs, mainly receivers, transmitters and transceivers.

Easily moving into Chapter I, de Henseler introduces Hallicrafters' driving force and founder Bill Halligan. An anecdote about Halligan's early life as a shipboard radio operator before World War I recalls the "Waving Girl" on the Savannah River whom he had actually seen from his ship. She is now immortalized by a statue located at the Savannah Visitor Center. (Coincidentally, while I was writing this review at Hilton Head, S. C., I found that the statue was pictured in the local phone book.)

Because of his facility with both international and continental Morse Code, Halligan became a World War I Navy CPO doing duty on Cape Cod. After that, he spent a year at Tufts University and then went on to West Point by appointment. However, he dropped out during his second year to get married and to work for a newspaper. Years later, he became a trustee of Tufts and was presented with an honorary degree.

This chapter, which concludes with an overview of the company's history, is a fascinating portrait of an innovative, impatient, affable entrepreneur. Halligan's foresight led to partnerships with early radio pioneers Larry Chambers and McMurdo-Silver prior to his purchase of Echophone and the founding of Hallicrafters. In working earlier with Tobe Deutchmann (capacitors), he founded and located the Radio Shack in downtown Boston, naming it after his shipboard radio operator's room. The Radio Shack became an institution where many a ham went to see and buy his first rig.

In the remaining Chapters II-V, the author goes way beyond the mere compilation of technical facts with pictures by producing a heady stream of Hallicrafters' nostalgia that is nicely organized by date, model number, episode, and historical event. Here, photocopies from manuals, ARRL handbooks, QST, and CQ literature are duplicated, including many schematics and block diagrams, contributing to a well rounded description of each model. There is also an interesting chart of receiver genealogy in the epilogue. Scattered throughout are reproductions of sales literature, and references to company sponsored contests and expeditions that show the breadth and scope of Hallicrafters' fame and influence.

The Hallicrafters success story started in 1933 with the "Z" and Handcraft models designed by Kendall Clough. The purchase of Echophone got the RCA patent license the company needed to cash in on the big turn-around year of 1936. In addition, the SX-9 Super Sky rider, the famous 5-T Sky Buddy and four other new receivers gave the company another big boost.

For the next five years, up to when the SX-28 was introduced, a total of twenty new receivers

The Hallicrafters Company: 1932-1982, 4th Edition

By Chuck Dachis

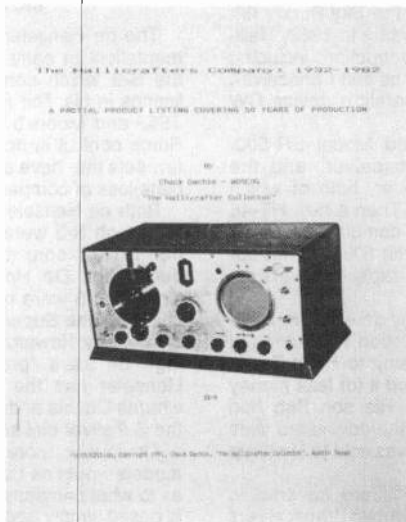

REVIEWED BY ROBERT B. ENEMARK, W1EC

While most collectors have heard of Chuck Dachis or seen his want ads, few realize that he has compiled a very comprehensive account of Hallicrafters products in his book, The Hallicrafters Company: 1932-1982. This fourth edition of 42 pages lists over 500 products.

Early in the book, a brief history of the Hallicrafters Company and its flamboyant president, Bill Halligan, is presented. This account helps to explain the company's product diversity and rapid growth through the acquisitions of the Silver-Marshall and Echophone Companies. It also discusses the role of the Howard Radio Company in early equipment production runs.

The variety of products listed is enormous. The products range from early regenerative sets, complex shortwave receivers, small and large radio transmitters — including the famous HT-4A/BC-610, transceivers, marine radio-telephones, TVs, CB sets, clock radios, and test equipment, to ancillary devices such as pan-adapters, speakers, and power supplies.

The book has no photographs. Photocopies are included on only one page — the author's "Most Wanted" list. The renowned SX-9 is pictured on the cover. However, Dachis catalogues a large amount of information, including model numbers, names, production dates, prices, and brief descriptions.

It is curious to note that information is completely lacking for the SX-147 and the Echophone EC-4 and EC-6. (The EC-4 is listed on page 31 of Moore's Communication Receivers as a portable 4-bander with 9 tubes and 2 loop antennas.) Interestingly, Dachis notes that the SX-38 is similar to the SX-28, not the S-38 as one might expect.

Thanks to Chuck Dachis' dedication and perseverance, we can now identify collector's items that lack model numbers, particularly those from the early thirties. His book is a valuable compilation heretofore lacking because of lost company records.

I find an omission that Raytheon was Hallicrafters' export agent around the late fifties, an error that the SX-16 has 10 tubes rather than 11, and a few misspellings to be rather trivial failings.

Chuck Dachis started collecting radios at a very early age, but since 1973, he has concentrated on Hallicrafters only. His collection now numbers over 350 major items.

and six transmitters were developed and marketed, making the total Hallicrafters line larger than that of all its competitors combined. The HT-4 evolved almost unchanged into the BC-610 workhorse and main component of the SCR-299 series of World War II mobile command sets. The war years' production of thousands of receivers, transmitters and other electronic gear then capped this success, which totalled over $150 million in sales, or several billion at today's worth.

The company quickly incorporated new technical and design advances into new postwar sets. There was the artful SX-42 coveted by collectors and designed by Ray Loewey of Avante fame.

Then, the first of many low cost S-38 models came along. In the early 1950s, the first 50 kHz IF receiver in production was the SX-76, preceding the monstrous, highly stable SX-73. But, who could afford the $975 tab? The SX-88 followed. Although touted as the finest ham receiver ever built, it weighed 80 pounds and was priced handsomely at $595.

By the mid-fifties, when Hallicrafters had improved techniques and costs, it introduced its first SSB transmitter — the HT-30, as well as a matching HT-31 linear, and a companion SX-100 receiver. Also available was a combination of these incorporated into the SR-500 console shown in the picture on page 177 of the author's ham station. These models were supplanted by the HT-32, the HT-33 linear and a superb ham-band receiver — the SX-101. All were available integrated into console SR-1000.

The late fifties and early sixties brought further improvements with the HT-37 exciter, a matching receiver, the SX-115, a less expensive SX-111 ham-band set, and transverters for two and six meters. The company's first "TO" electronic keyer was introduced, as well as, of all things, an ugly and last resurrection of the Sky Buddy (II), or S-119. By its 30th anniversary in 1962, Hallicrafters had 37 models in production, including the SX-117 and the SR-150, its first transceiver. (The SR-75 of 1951 was merely a novice CW rig.)

There followed a renamed Model SR-500, changed to a tri-band transceiver, and the SR-2000 Hurricane transceiver, both of which suffered technical problems. Then a new HT-46 transmitter/SX-146 receiver combination came along in 1966 together with the SX-130, (an up-graded SX-110) and a less expensive version, the S-129.

From here on, it was mostly downhill for Hallicrafters, as sales and production fell. Although Halligan had sold the company to Penn-Texas Corp. in 1956, he repurchased it for less money fewer than two years later. His son Bob had taken over as manager, but the downward slide continued until the company was sold to Northrup in 1966.

Northrup-Wilcox operations are covered in Chapter V. Essentially, only two transceivers were developed by the new owners: a simplified SR-200, the SR-400, and a newer look, the FPM-300 also at a lower price, the last to be manufactured. Apart from previous model upgrades, Northrup developed only the SX-133 receiver, which had both ham and shortwave bandspreads (not pictured).

Poor sales and future prospects led Northrup to sell Hallicrafters in 1975. In spite of some announcements by several successive owners on impending new model releases, none materialized, and the company gradually faded away.

De Henseler's substantial five chapters are followed by an epilogue and an appendix that is chock-full of useful references, tube line-up charts, and a simplified 1962 company production list covering 186 models. Even the table of contents is a useful, quick reference.

The book should serve both as a useful reference for Hallicrafters' collectors and as interesting reading for all radio buffs. The author's enthusiasm, evidenced in an overly generous use of superlatives, does not in the least wear thin. De Henseler has generously donated his time, costs, and proceeds for the production and sale of this book to the Antique Radio Club of America, certainly a good cause.

COMPARING DE HENSELER, DACHIS AND MOORE BOOKS

The de Henseler book presents some documentation for early Hallicrafters' models prior to the S-9 which conflicts with both the Dachis' listings in his The Hallicrafters Company: 1932-1982 and Moore's Communications Receivers. Some conflict is not surprising, considering the few sets that have survived and the almost complete loss of company records.

Both de Henseler and Dachis say that the S-1 through S-3 were manufactured by Hallicrafters, while Moore mentions that Silver-Marshall built them. De Henseler claims that the S-4 through S-6 were made by Silver-Marshall. Dachis says the Super 7 and the S-8A were probably built by Howard Radio, but in his model listings he says "probably built by RCA." De Henseler has the S-7 identical to the S-7A, whereas Dachis and Moore say the S-7 looks like the S-9 silver dial set.

Obviously, more information on these early models would be useful to collectors. My opinion as to what company manufactured which models is based simply upon appearances. I believe that the S-1 through S-6 look like Silver-Marshall products. The S-1—S-3 series is housed in rectangular boxes, and they are called "Skyriders." With the change to a formed, rounded cabinet with tapered skirt, as in the S-4 through S-9, the name "Super Skyrider" was adopted.

The S-7A, the Super 7 (Airline 37), S-8A, and the Silvertone Super 8, I believe, were all built by RCA or by Howard using some RCA parts. (Some chassis layouts and construction look like Howard radios.) This takes us up to 1935 when the S-7 appeared. Since the S-9 is definitely of Hallicrafters' manufacture in late 1935, and the S-7 is its look-alike, this latter model is probably the first original Hallicrafters' receiver to be designed and manufactured.

TELEGRAPH KEY REVIEW

BY: GIL SCHLEHMAN, K9WDY, 335 INDIANAPOLIS, DOWNERS GROVE, IL 60515

While searching for old radios, many collectors have the opportunity to acquire telegraph keys and related items. To broaden your knowledge of this collecting specialty, A.R.C. periodically presents photos of keys, bugs, sounders, etc., contributed by noted collector Gil Schlehman. If you also have unique key-related photo contributions, please contact Gil at the above address.

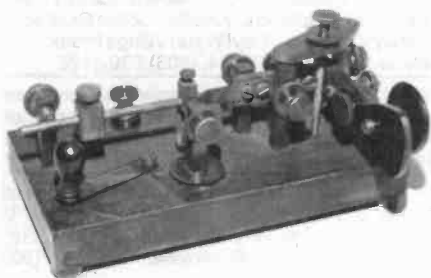

BRONZE KEY - This massive bronze key has unusual legs in that they are not threaded like most leg keys. Although it is stamped "L.S. & M.S.RY.," there is no maker's name. The style of this fine example of a brass straight key appears to date in the late 1860s or the early 1870s. (Photo courtesy of Serge Krauss)

SE-86 "FLAMEPROOF" KEY - Made by American Marconi about the time of World War I, this key was reportedly filled with oil and then sealed. It was used with the spark rigs of that era. With a very smooth feel to it, the SE-86 must have been a pleasure to operate. It would handle 1/2 KW, a large amount in those days. (Photo courtesy of the Stan Johnson Estate)

J.H. BUNNELL "LINEWALKERS' TEST SET" - Actually one of the first transceivers, this ca. 1870s set contains a key and sounder and was used by the telegraph companies to find a break in the line. A person would "walk the line," usually along a railroad, climb up the telegraph poles and hook up to the line to see if he could receive or transmit up to that point, and then move on. (Photo courtesy of Gil Schlehman)

1908 MECOGRAPH BUG - This unusual model made in Cleveland operates much like the Vibroplexes, only it retains the 90 degree offset popularized by Mecograph. This bug seems to be rather scarce. Most other Mecograph bugs used the release mechanism to accomplish the dot vibrations. (Photo courtesy of Murray Willer)

MESSAGE: Do you collect regular or novelty transistors? Do you find it difficult to locate other people who are interested in transistors? Would you like to join a network of transistor collectors? This is a new and exciting field of radio collecting and transistor prices for both novelty and regular sets are climbing at a steady pace. I am considering starting a national network of transistor collectors which would offer a regular transistor newsletter featuring transistor-related articles and classified ads. If you would like more information about joining a transistor network, send a LSASE to: Marty Bunis, RR 1, Box 36, Bradford, NH 03221 or give me a call at (603) 938-5051. Please include any suggestions or ideas you might have to help get the ball rolling.

MESSAGE: "There's gold in them thar hills," or so it's been said and for the Arvin collector, Mister Transistor has a gold-plated 444 (with back) ready for you - no kidding. The first serious caller gets it and it won't cost the contents of Fort Knox either. As usual I'd like to thank the many collectors who made my December incredibly successful and year EW, the TR1 sold at the quoted price despite your written admonition. FOR SALE: This month I'm featuring starter collections for the transistor enthusiast. The Sony group features a near mint TR610, a working TR84, and several other early collectible sets. For the Zenith folks I've got a 500, 500E, 500L and many others all in very good to excellent condition. I also have a number of desirable RCAs including its second model in mint working shape and a number of small pocket sets from the early days. Of course my cache includes restored 888s, and other necessary collectibles, so keep those cards, letters and calls a-comin. The 5881 is Russia's selected military 6L6WGC and is regarded as the very best 6L6 type in the world. Eric Clapton recently replaced the Philips/Sylvania 6L6 STR's in the custom Soldano amp which he uses live, with SOVTEK 5881's because of their milky smooth sound. Discriminating musicians thruout the world are retubing with the SOVTEK 5881/6L6WGC.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be identified as such. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

Publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason. Since club activities receive free advertising on the Coming Radio Events page, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.

CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: NOON - 10th of the month!

Classified ads must have a standard heading such as WANTED, FOR SALE, FOR TRADE, FOR SALE/TRADE, SERVICES, MESSAGE, HELP, AUCTION, MEET, etc. This heading is the only bold or all-capitalized words allowed in the ad. Capitalize only manufacturer names, model names, etc. Wanted and For Sale ads are mixed together to encourage the reading of all ads, including the Wanted ads. This standard ad format makes scanning the ads easier.

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

To encourage varied content of the ads, the same classified ad may be run only once per issue and for only two consecutive months. (To run an ad longer, use a boxed classified or display ad.)

Classified Ad Rates per Month

Subscribers:

- First 20 words: FREE
- 15¢ per word for extra words over 20 plus
- 10¢ per word for a shaded ad (count all words including free words).

* Subscribers may take 20 free words on only one ad each month.

Non-Subscribers:

- 30¢ per word plus
- 10¢ per word for shaded ad.

Please do not forget to send in the extra 15¢ per word when your classified ad runs over the free 20 words; your payment will be appreciated, and it will help to keep A.R.C. healthy.

BOXED CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: 1st of the month!

Boxed classified ads can run unchanged for three months or more. No words are free. Ads may be shaded and may include bold and all-capitalized words freely. The ad need not begin with For Sale, etc. Minimum run is 3 months, prepaid.

Boxed Classified Ad Rates per Month

Nonshaded ads:

- 25¢ per word for all words,* none free, plus
- 10¢ per word for each bold word plus
- 10¢ per word for each all-caps word.

Shaded Ads (All words are bold at no charge):

- 35¢ per word for all words* plus
- 10¢ per word for each all-caps word.

Non-Subscribers:

- Add 20¢ per word to above costs.

*Three words can be bold-all-caps at no extra charge.

for all ads with drawings or photos!

Drawings and photos are encouraged as the response to your ad is much larger and the reader knows better what you want or are selling. Send in your drawing or photograph, and A.R.C. will reduce it or enlarge it as needed.

CHANGES & CANCELSATIONS

Please check your ads carefully before sending them in. Once ads are received, it is not always possible to refund the amount sent, pull the ad or make changes.

IMPORTANT — COUNTING WORDS — IMPORTANT

The standard headings: WANTED, FOR SALE, etc., count as one word each time used in an ad. Name, address and (one) telephone number, count as 6 words, regardless of length. Ham call letters and business name can be included in the 6 words and do not count extra. Full name and address is required in all classified ads — it does not cost extra! Each additional word, abbreviation, model number or number group, extra telephone numbers, etc. count as one word. Hyphenated words count as two words.
