Which do you want most in your new TV transmitter?

They're all yours when you select a CCA UHF or VHF TV transmitter.

Especially price.

There must be something in the way we build our TV transmitters and in what we say — we've sold more this year than ever before.

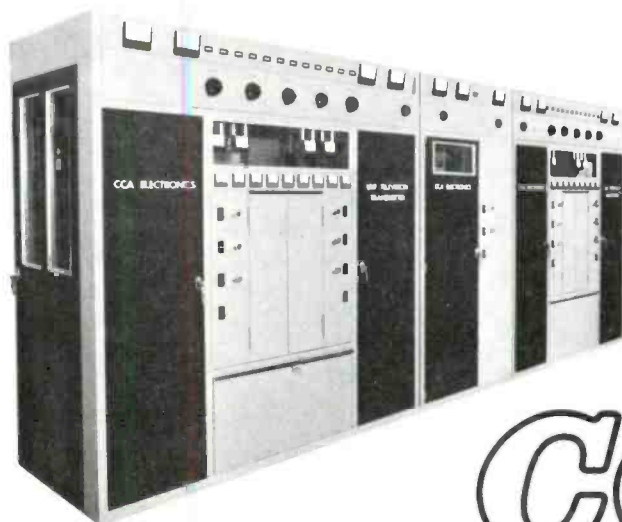

CCA builds both UHF and VHF TV transmitters with power levels rated through 220KW. Modular design allows field modification to higher power levels with no interruption in service. And they can be ordered to meet all FCC and CCIR operating specifications.

Check CCA features — and check CCA's price. You'll probably find, like our satisfied customers, that CCA offers the most value in a reliable TV transmitter at a price others can't touch.

Call our toll-free number — 800-257-8171 — for complete details.

Or write CCA today.

OR, perhaps the SKYJACKER is better suited for your needs!

Mounts on a 8600 GVWR pickup and is stable in any boom position. 33' working height and 16' side reach with 300 pounds in the basket. Electro/hydraulic power package recharges off the alternator. No PTO.

SKYVAN from UEC

specs read like a CATV operator's dream, but it's misnamed and underpriced!

SKYVAN is our new telescopic boom aerial unit that's just got it all together:

- 33' working height with 19½' side reach.
- Electro/hydraulic operation recharges directly from the alternator — no power take-off. Saves at least $1,000 annually in operating expenses.
- NO SPACE-ROBBING CENTER PEDESTAL. Four small out-of-the-way posts give you back all your working space.

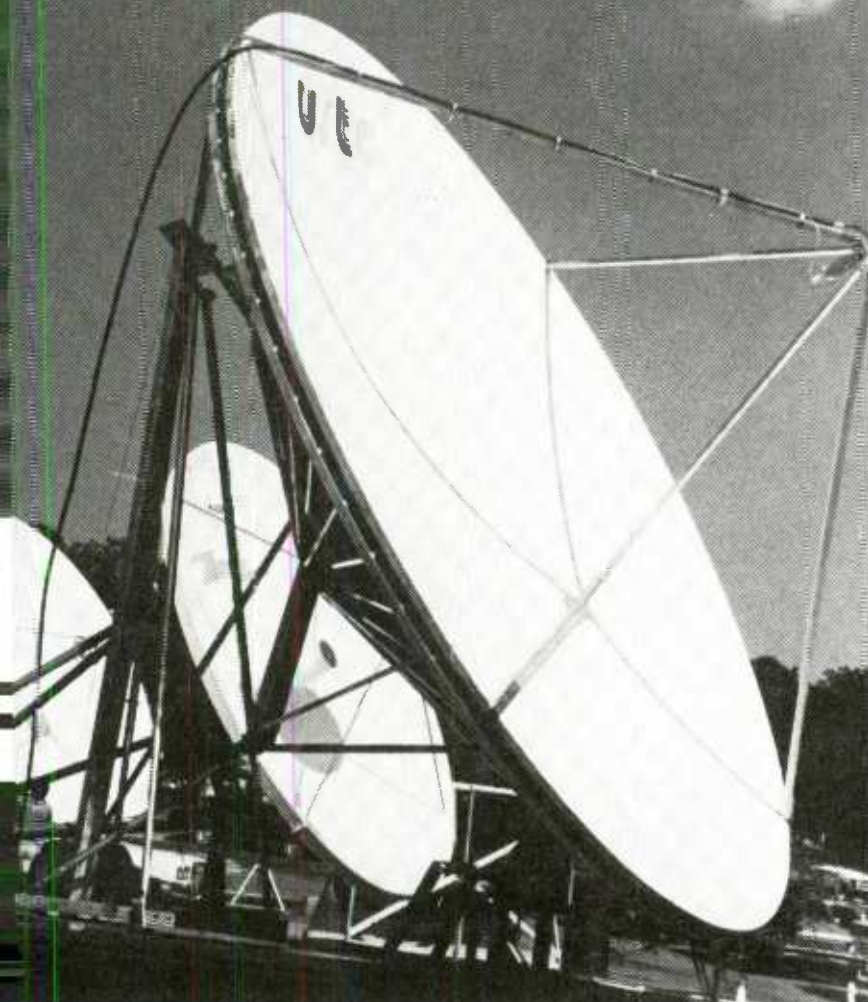

All this and a whole lot more on a 8400 GVWR van! but it is slightly misnamed: SKYVAN mounts just as easily on a 9000 GVWR pickup with the same stability both up and out!

Because We Have The Most Cost-Effective
TVRO Terminal Available Today!

A recent study of FCC data provides the proof (see CATJ for September, page 34). USTC six meter TVRO terminals cost less-per-channel to construct than any other large terminal available. Cost-per-channel delivered is the best way we know to compare competitive terminal prices. Cost-per-channel delivered takes in all factors. . .the cost of the antenna (installed), the cost of the LNA and the cost of the receivers provided. FCC published data proves it!

OTO BY JAY CONRAD STUDIO

Don't throw money away. . .come to the leader in cost effective large terminals for the six meter performance so essential in today's expanding TVRO world. Come to the structural strength and design integrity of all aluminum (or all steel) design.

BROADCASTING YESTERDAY, TODAY, AND TOMORROW...

The voices. The sounds. The sights and the eyewitness accounts of broadcasting's first half century have been carefully preserved for all posterity.

They are constantly enriched and supplemented in the unique Broadcast Pioneers Library in Washington, D.C. This priceless collection is in constant use by recognized writers, scholars, historians, and broadcasters from around the world. And, in addition to its own resources, the Library is a definitive referral center to other archival storehouses.

The Broadcast Pioneers Library now requires additional resources to meet the constantly escalating requirements of scholars and historians.

You—in the ranks of the early pioneers—and you—their successors—are the subjects of many historical projects currently underway. Your continuing participation is required to give you your rightful place in the industry's history.

The original funding some 10 years ago is now nearing exhaustion. Additional funding is urgently required to preserve this national treasure for posterity.

Who knows—the story your contribution preserves may well be your own.

Broadcasters are noted and praised for their contributions to others. Now, more than ever, the Broadcast Pioneers Library must receive financial help from its own and others to maintain its present level of service to its broadcast, academic, and professional users.

The INTELSAT Global System

A major portion of all long distance international communications and more than two-thirds of all transoceanic communications are now sent via satellites. The existing global satellite system, with more than 20,000 half-circuits in use, relays all forms of high quality overseas commercial communications, including telephone, telegraph and telex, facsimile & photos, data and television.

The INTELSAT satellite system comprises two essential elements: the satellites, owned by INTELSAT, the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization, and the earth stations, owned by telecommunications entities in the countries in which they are located. There are 102 member countries in INTELSAT.

In 1977, the third of the INTELSAT IV-A satellites was placed in service in the Atlantic Ocean region where demand for communications services is greatest. In January and March of 1978, INTELSAT launched the last two satellites in the IV-A series. These satellites are to be placed in service in the Indian Ocean region. An INTELSAT IV satellite continues to provide service in the Pacific Ocean region where growth in demand for satellite service is less rapid than in the other two regions. In addition, there are backup satellites in all three ocean regions. In 1977, construction began on the new INTELSAT

V satellites; the first of seven in the series is planned for launch during the latter part of 1979.

Each INTELSAT IV satellite has a design capacity of 4,000 voice circuits plus two television channels.* Each INTELSAT IV-A has a design capacity of 6,000 voice circuits and two television channels, while each of the INTELSAT V satellites is designed for a capacity of 12,000 voice circuits plus two television channels per satellite.

The INTELSAT global system currently serves more than 120 countries, territories and possessions. They are linked for control and coordination with the INTELSAT Operations Center in Washington, D.C.

The INTELSAT Spacecraft Technical Control Center in Washington, D.C. and six Tracking, Telemetry, Command and Monitoring (TTC&M) Stations constantly monitor and control the system's satellites. TTC&M stations are located at earth stations in Andover, Maine; Fucino, Italy; Carnarvon, Australia; Paumalu, Hawaii; Tangua, Brazil; Zamengoe, Cameroon.

The earth stations in the system form the essential ground links. At the end of 1977, there were 201 antennas at 163 earth stations in 88 countries, of which 147 antennas at 115 sites in 87 countries were being used for international communications, with the remainder used for domestic or specialized communications services.

Network of Earth Stations

COMSAT has a 50 percent ownership interest in all seven of the U.S. earth stations operating within the INTELSAT system; the remaining ownership interests in the seven stations are shared in varying proportions by other U.S. international carriers. The stations in the Atlantic Ocean region are located at Andover, Maine; Etam, West Virginia; and Cayey, Puerto Rico. The stations in the Pacific Ocean region are located at Brewster, Washington; Jamesburg, California; Paumalu, Hawaii; and Pulantat, Guam. COMSAT operates all of the stations except the one in Guam.

Satellite Services

Communications services are provided through the INTELSAT system in a number of different ways: (1) Half-circuits are leased full-time on a preassigned monthly basis (a half-circuit is each country's portion of a two-way communications link); (2) half-circuits are available on demand on a per-minute basis through the SPADE demand assignment system; (3) half-circuits are available for temporary service on a daily basis to meet peak holiday and special events requirements, and to restore communications service when there are undersea cable breaks and outages; (4) TV channels are available for both regular service and occasional use; and (5) capacity in a satellite transponder is leased full-time to meet domestic or specialized communications requirements. (A transponder is an amplifier/transmitter unit. Each INTELSAT IV satellite has 12 transponders, each INTELSAT IV-A has 20 transponders.)

Although television transmissions represent the most dramatic use of the INTELSAT system, they account for less than 2% of the system's use. The total of other occasional uses also amounts to less than 2%.

More than 95% of all satellite service is provided on a full-time basis. The largest portion of traffic, by far, is for telephone service, accounting for about 80% of the global system's use. Fifteen percent of the traffic is for message and data transmission, the so-called "record" services.

* TV time is expressed in half-channel hours, that is, each up leg from the originating point to the satellite is a half-channel and each down leg to the receiving point is another half-channel, and the time used is totaled in hours. For example, a one-hour program from Europe to the U.S. and Brazil would total three half-channel hours.

Television Services

Use of the INTELSAT system for satellite television transmissions largely reflects interest generated by individual news and sports events. However, a growing trend toward regular or daily news transmissions continues to contribute substantially to the growth of satellite television traffic. Steady expansion of the earth station network widens the market for satellite TV services and extends the areas from which live or timely news and sports transmissions can be originated.

In 1977, satellite TV transmissions totaled 15,195 half-channel hours; this compares with 12,952 half-channel hours for 1976. COMSAT's television services in 1977 totaled 1,665 half-channel hours, 101 more than in 1976.

The growth in TV transmissions was largely due to the increase in news sent on a regular basis. Eurovision News is transmitted three times daily from Italy; the Ibero-American News Service sends programs from Spain; France transmits daily to points in all three ocean regions; Visnews syndicated material goes out twice a day from London, once to points in the Far East and once to the Middle East. Both Visnews and UPITN have multi-destination transmissions from the U.K. to the U.S. and other points in the Atlantic Ocean area. UPITN also sends news packages from the U.S. to Japan and Hong Kong five times per week.

There is also a growing amount of television transmission over INTELSAT facilities leased on a full-time basis. For example, there are many hours of daily TV transmissions of this kind from Spain to the Canary Islands, and within the domestic systems of Algeria, Malaysia, Nigeria, Sudan and Uganda.

TV reception, however, is not confined to the major capitals of the world. Again in 1977, the earth station that received more occasional TV than any other station in the INTELSAT system was the station at Manaus, a Brazilian rubber port about 1,000 miles up the Amazon River.

Ownership of System Facilities; COMSAT's Role

The International Telecommunications Satellite Organization, INTELSAT, owns the satellites and associated ground control equipment in the global system. INTELSAT, which operates under permanent international agreements, had grown to a membership of 102 countries as of December 31, 1977. COMSAT, the U.S. representative in this multi-nation partnership, is the largest investor in INTELSAT and supplies technical and operational management services under contract for the system. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration furnishes launch services to INTELSAT.

The earth stations are owned and operated by individual agencies or entities of the countries or areas in which they are located.

Recent Advances

COMSAT Laboratories in Clarksburg, Md., is engaged in research and development programs to advance the technology on a wide front. COMSAT's research and engineering programs are directed essentially toward developing more powerful, multiple-beam satellites operating over longer periods, with smaller earth stations, and in higher communications frequency bands. These programs are leading to a more efficient use of the frequency spectrum allocated for satellite communications because of techniques that permit simultaneous use of the same frequency bands and the transmission of all types of communications (voice, video and data) in high-speed digital rather than conventional analog form.

COMSAT General Corporation

COMSAT General Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of COMSAT, provides satellite communications services through the MARISAT system to the U.S. Navy and to the commercial shipping and offshore industries, leases the capacity of its COMSTAR satellites to AT&T for U.S. domestic communications, and provides worldwide technical services.

COMSAT General is also participating in Satellite Business Systems (SBS), a partnership formed by subsidiaries of COMSAT General, IBM and Aetna Life & Casualty Company to provide satellite communications to industry, government agencies and others with a large volume of internal communications.

COMSAT TV Rates Overseas (As of August 1978)

COMSAT's rates on file with the FCC cover its charges to other communications common carrier companies for a TV half-channel, that is, for international service between a U.S. earth station and an INTELSAT satellite. The rates do not include services added by terrestrial carrier companies in their charges to broadcasters; nor do they include the other half-channel from the satellite to the receive earth station, or a gateway city abroad.

In mid-1978, COMSAT announced that it had filed with the FCC substantial rate reductions for international communications satellite channels. The lower rates became effective August 15, 1978. The new rates apply to satellite channels leased to COMSAT's U.S. international common carrier customers for voice, data and video services through satellites of the INTELSAT global system.

Television rates, which previously ranged from $414 to $725 for the first ten minutes of video and accompanying audio, have been reduced to $275 to all points. Additional per minute charges, which under earlier tariffs ranged from $11.40 to $20.50, are now $10.

COMSAT has reduced its rates for satellite channels several times since commercial service was introduced in 1965. However, the current across-the-board decrease represents the largest overall reduction in the history of international satellite communications.

The lower rates filed with the FCC result from a settlement between COMSAT and the FCC over the corporation's charges for its INTELSAT system services.

RCA Passive Components for Quality and Performance

The RCA line of passive components includes a wide range of subscriber taps and trunk passives for cable system applications. RCA Subscriber Taps are available in 2-way, 4-way and 8-way units and are used in the feeder line to distribute the signal to the subscriber. RCA Trunk Passives include directional couplers in 4, 8, 12, and 16 dB values, 2-way and 3-way splitters and a power inserter. The directional couplers and the splitters are utilized for splitting the main trunk lines in a cable system into sub-trunk lines. The power inserter combines the AC Power with the RF signal onto the coaxial cable. For more information contact RCA/Cablevision Systems, 7355 Fulton Avenue, North Hollywood, California, 91605. For Total CATV Equipment & Services

THERE'S GOING TO BE A PAY INCREASE FOR EVERYONE IN THIS BOOK.

And HBO will be responsible for a large part of it. Because the network continues to grow, both in terms of the number of affiliates and the number of subscribers in existing markets. That's the way it's always been. We were the first pay-TV network. The first to utilize satellite communications. The first to originate special programming.

We offer the best movies, specials, and sports to your subscribers. And a comprehensive marketing and promotion program to your system.

If you'd like to hear more about us, call any of the regional managers listed below. They'll tell you how you can see the pay increase first hand.

In profits.

General Description

A cable television system as defined by the FCC (Sec. 76.5 of Rules) is as follows: "A nonbroadcast facility consisting of a set of transmission paths and associated signal generation, reception, and control equipment, under common ownership and control, that distributes or is designed to distribute to subscribers the signals of one or more television broadcast stations, but such term shall not include (1) any such facility that serves fewer than 50 subscribers, or (2) any such facility that serves or will serve only subscribers in one or more multiple unit dwellings under common ownership, control or management."

Television Factbook counts as one system those subscribers in a community or communities which are primarily served by one headend.

(*) Indicates firm holds franchise, is not yet operating.

(†) Indicates application for franchise is pending.

Cross reference in all capital letters (e.g., CRAIG AFB) indicates community is served by an operating system. Cross reference with initial capital & lower case letters (e.g., Brighton) indicates franchise only, service planned by an operating system or from another franchise under construction.

N.A. means information is not available.

Subscriber Counts

Subscriber count is as of latest information received from system operator. Dates have been inserted to show latest correspondence from system operator or figures filed with FCC on Form 325 for year ending Dec. 31, 1977. If no date is shown, subscriber count for 1978 had not been furnished to Television Factbook at time of publication. System operators were furnished samples of their listings repeatedly during 1978. If no information was received directly by Television Factbook during 1975 or before, the following appears at the end of the system listing: "Note: Current information not available."

Computation of subscribers is based on FCC formula wherein (1) The total individual-dwelling subscribers are added to (2) Total revenues from bulk-rate subscribers (such as motels) divided by rate of individual-dwelling units. NOTE: Total U.S. subscribers reported in this directory is 13,303,874. Reports from systems are of varying dates. The reporting dates for most systems are mid-summer, 1978, and the foregoing total is as of that date. Television Factbook estimates the total (including systems not reporting current totals to FCC or Television Factbook) as of January 1, 1978 at 13 million; as of September 1, 1978, 13.7 million; as of January 1, 1979, 14.1 million.

Potential

Potential is the number of subscribers expected within 5 years, as estimated by system operator.

TV Market Ranking

Indicates whether or not system lies within 35-mile radius of commercial TV market as defined by FCC Rules & Regulations Governing Cable. Complete listing of Top-100 Markets may be found in Television Digest's Cable & Station Coverage Atlas. If system lies within 35-mile radius of more than one Top-100 TV Market, both market numbers are shown, with highest-ranking market listed first.

Population

Total number of people living in community or communities served by system as based on 1970 U.S. Census, later estimates or figures supplied by system operators.

Began

Date service started, according to operator.

Channel Capacity

Number of 6-MHz channels system can carry.

Two-Way

Indicates whether or not system has 2-way capability between subscriber & other points.
