The use of streaming music services continues to grow

- Canadians' use of streaming music services is growing. In 2015, 55% of Canadians streamed music videos on YouTube, 23% streamed AM/FM radio online, 20% streamed personalized online music, and 22% listened to podcasts.
- In 2015, 16% of Canadians 18 years of age and older subscribed to satellite radio services. This figure is unchanged from 2014.
- Private commercial radio continued to experience slight decreases. Commercial radio stations reported a slight decrease in revenues, from $1.61 billion in 2014 to $1.60 billion in 2015.

RADIO - CANADA

As in past years, CBS was the network with the most shows appearing in the Top Ten. They had five of the highest-rated shows on television – one less than the previous year.

NBC's NFL Sunday Night Football topped the list, with 21.3 million weekly viewers, up one place from the previous year.

CBS's The Big Bang Theory fell to second on the list, with 20.3 million weekly viewers, down one million from last year's 23.1 million. This was closely followed by CBS's NCIS, which attracted 20.1 million viewers each week.

CBS's Thursday Night Football was fourth on the list, ahead of Empire, the first entry on the list for the FOX network.

NCIS: New Orleans of the CBS network appeared in sixth place; the FOX drama The X-Files came in seventh; and the ABC reality show Dancing with the Stars landed in eighth.

Rounding out the Top Ten list were NBC's The Voice in ninth place, and CBS's Blue Bloods in tenth.

Figures for 2015-16 include video-on-demand and "live plus 7" numbers – that is, one week of time shifted viewing (DVR) data.
