THAT radio is the cause of the record-breaking heat and drought experienced this summer over a large part of the country has been seriously advanced by many persons who have written in to various Government agencies following announcement that President Hoover had initiated an investigation to determine how the Government might assist agriculture.

In order that actual determination might be made of the part played by radio in causing the drought, it has been suggested that all broadcasting be entirely suspended for a period of thirty to sixty days to see whether rain might not result. The constant dissemination of electrical waves through the air, one serious thinker believes, has dried up all the moisture and brought about the difficulties in which agriculture now finds itself.

To blame radio for the weather, however, is not a new development. Reference to the annals of the past shows that less than three years ago broadcasting was being blamed for the excessive rainfall which was then being experienced. At that time an individual writing to then Secretary of Commerce Hoover declared that "the artificially produced electricity which is being broadcast throughout the world is a contributing cause of bringing on superfluous rainstorms." So radio waves, apparently, possess the dual faculty of causing either rain or drought.

However, all the blame is laid upon radio for weather conditions comes from the laity and not from the scientists. The latter scout the idea that radio affects the weather; on the contrary, the latter is the case, as anyone knows who has compared the poor, fading and static-ridden reception of mid-summer months with the clear, undistorted programs received from long distances in the winter.

As a matter of fact, it is held, unrestricted destruction of forests by lumbering has had a more serious effect upon rainfall than radio could possibly exert. Other factors of civilization also probably have an influence upon weather conditions. Scientists are continuously studying the phenomena of weather, but have long since abandoned any idea they may ever have held that the electrical emanations from broadcasting stations have anything to do with either excessive rainfall or the lack of rain.

APPROXIMATELY one-third of the 282,000 radio sets in use in Czechoslovakia are the home-made product of amateurs, according to reports to the Department of Commerce at Washington. Sixty per cent of all the receiving sets in the country are of the crystal type. Of the tube sets, only about 10 per cent are operated on domestic lighting current, the rest using batteries. The power-operated sets are becoming more popular because of the expense connected with charging batteries and the inconvenience of the battery set, particularly in the rural districts.

Radio broadcasting is controlled by the Czechoslovak government which operates six broadcasting stations and is constructing a seventh, which will be sufficiently powerful to cover the entire country.

Balancing Radio Programs

By ARTHUR S. GARBETT

Director of Education, NBC Pacific Division

ONE of the hardest things in the radio world is to obtain "balance" in a radio program. When somebody says, "I tuned in on XQU the other night for an orchestra concert, and the way they played Rubinstein's 'Kamennoi-Ostrow' was terrible, and it's one of my favorites, too," I have doubts about the playing being "terrible."

More probably "Kamennoi-Ostrow" was played about as usual, but was in the wrong place on the program. It is slow music, long drawn out, and in a major key. If it followed a previous slow number, long drawn out and in a major key, the listener was tired of that kind of music before "Kamennoi-Ostrow" began. Or even if the previous music was bright and quick it may have been too much so, and created a light and flippant mood. The listener was all pepped up when along came a semi-religious blurb that gave him the blues.

The program was "out of balance." This is a common fault with radio programs which fail to hold interest, and the program builder should not be blamed unduly.

The building of a musical radio program nowadays demands an almost encyclopedic knowledge of music if the program verges toward the classics. Yet many things besides music are involved, and the program builder must have those also at his finger-ends.

It has been my privilege to build programs for many symphony orchestras for over six years. Whatever success I have had has been due partly to an extensive musical memory, and even more to the ability to "read score." That is, to look at a page of music and know how it sounds without having to have the orchestra play it first, or even to run over it on the piano.

By this means, it is possible to get the music together, glance over the contents, and see to it that the program has variety and proportion from start to finish.

Proportion is a matter of length, usually. The public likes short numbers, but too many short numbers give the program a scrappy character. They should lead to a longer, more impressive work that comes as a climax, from which to start again and mount to another climax. Most program builders know that, even though they sometimes contrive climaxes that for some reason do not quite come off.

In that case the trouble is usually one of "variety." Here is where "score reading" helps. A glance at the score will show, perhaps, that one number (Liadow's "Musical Snuff Box," for instance) lies high in pitch and uses a lot of woodwind effects. It is light and gay. Something fairly bright with warmer coloring, lower in pitch, might follow. But there is a dramatic overture ahead, and after the second number we must begin to mount again toward the overture. Perhaps a sustained melody for strings alone is needed, somewhat serious in mood, to prepare the way for the excitement of drama.

In short, the program builder must know in advance what the program is going to sound like. If he fails he may well be forgiven, for even the most experienced music masters sometimes fall down. Recently I went to a summer symphony concert which irritated me without my knowing why at first. Analysis showed that a somewhat bombastic symphony dealing with man's struggle with Fate had been followed by a Liszt tone poem dealing with the same theme in much the same strepitous way. For the life of me I could not brood twice in one evening on man's struggle with Fate. This was hitting twice on the same spot, and the program was "out of balance."

New Buffalo Station Building

The debut of Station WBEN, now being built by the Buffalo (New York) Evening News, is scheduled about September 1. This latest entrant into the broadcasting ranks will operate with 1000 watts on the frequency of 900 kilocycles. It is expected to join one or the other of the national chains.

Newest Fifty Thousand Watter

Station KMOX, St. Louis, is the latest addition to the 50,000-watt ranks. It is the ninth American broadcasting station to go to maximum power. Twenty-five other cleared channel stations are on the waiting list and will have hearings before the Federal Radio Commission this autumn on their applications for 50,000 watts.

MICROPHONE GOSSIP

Walter Bunker, Jr., KFRC announcer, arrived back at the station, after two weeks with the Bohemian Grove encampment, on a Sunday night at 9 o'clock. He asked Monroe Upton, who had been announcing the Cadillac LaSalle hour, to give the time signal and make the change-over to Val Valente's music because, as he said, "this stuff is strange to me now. I don't know how to start in. It's worse than the first time I ever announced." All of which goes to show what a real vacation will do to a man.

Billie Landers, the most colorful blues singer in the Pacific Northwest, is now a member of the KJR and Northwest Broadcasting System staff and is heard daily on programs by Pacific Northwest listeners.

Miss Landers began her radio career in Aberdeen by singing over the Grays Harbor radio station KXRO. Following her success at that station, she joined the KVI staff. Her popularity increased. When KVI moved to Tacoma permanently, Miss Landers sang over other Seattle stations. She has been one of the featured entertainers in programs originating in Seattle which were broadcast in California.

The addition of Miss Landers to the KJR staff has been welcomed by Pacific Northwest listeners. Miss Landers' fan mail is proving it.

Lindsay MacHarrie, KHJ's chief announcer, whose voice is heard on so many big programs from Don Lee's Los Angeles station, many of them nation-wide, payed a friendly visit to the KFRC studios while on his vacation during the first week in August.

* * *

Sarah Kreindler, NBC violinist, has been receiving favorable comment of critics since she made her professional debut at the age of fifteen. Miss Kreindler is just eighteen and gives great promise, musicians contend. She is heard weekly through the NBC Pacific network.

* * *

Perhaps this isn't the biggest fish story of the season, but it will be a hard one to beat. Julian C. Riley, traffic manager at KOA, Denver, is an inveterate follower of the rod and reel. Last week-end, however, he cast his casting rod aside, leaped into a mountain stream and caught a ten-inch rainbow trout with his hands. To give the trout its full share of credit, Riley explains that the stream was very small and that it really wasn't difficult to chase the trout into a shallow pool.

* * *

John Pearson's much-heralded marriage is soon to take place. Pearson, the Northwest Broadcasting System's golden-voiced announcer, will be married to Miss Mae Lowther.

Another vocalist who is joining the ranks of the benedict is Glen Eaton. The tenor will soon be married to Miss Madeline Kinney.

The continuity department is represented by Donald H. Johnson, Miss Jane Deetken and Johnson are to be married late in August.

* * *

A visitor to the KJBS studios recently was Donald Cope, brother of Frank Cope, KJBS announcer. Donald is a featured tenor singer on KSL at Salt Lake City, and like all the rest of the Cope family, he towers into the air well over six feet, in fact, six feet eight inches to be exact! He returns to Salt Lake soon, where he will resume his radio activities.

* * *

Dick Dixon, organist and program director for KGER, has busted into the ranks of continuity scribes. He has written "Broken Romances," with "A Cottage for Sale" as the theme song. It will be ready for the public's gaze . . . or rather ears . . . pretty soon. If it's any good, he promises to dash off another one soon. Should it prove a flop he solemnly promises never to write another one again. Well, that sounds fair enough, say we.

Previous reports of pets named after Cecil and Sally, the KPO funsters, include four pairs of goldfish, two pairs of turtles, a set of twins, and two pack horses in one of the California mountain camps. A pair of game bantam chickens, displaying in their attitudes toward each other many of the characteristics of the two radio favorites, has recently been reported in Tenino, Washington. A service station near Eugene, Oregon, also boasts a pair of young bears held captive for the entertainment of tourists and named for the two radio performers.

Allan Wilson, well-known ballad singer of KPO will be one of the leading soloists at the Banff Highland Gathering over the Labor Day week-end. Though a Lowland Scot, Mr. Wilson will appear in the full regalia of a Highlander, with the palid, kilt and sporran of one of the famous clans, and a glengarry or balmoral atilt his head. He will sing several groups of the most beautiful of Robert Burns' famous songs.

Banff Highland Gathering and Scottish Music Festival is one of the outstanding events in the hearts and minds of the sons of Auld Scotia on this continent, and the Canadian Pacific Railway feels it has achieved a triumph in obtaining the services of such a fine musician.

Other artists known to radio fans are Jean Haig of Toronto, Mary Frances James of Montreal and Vancouver, and the members of the Alfred Heather Light Opera Company, now at Banff Springs Hotel, which last winter broadcast a series of concerts weekly over a network of the National Broadcasting Company.

* * *

Shipley D. Burton, program director of KSL, Salt Lake City, was a welcome visitor to the studios of KFI-KECA, Los Angeles, recently. The Utah radio official was shown the entire Anthony radio plant, with its unique routing systems and monitoring facilities. But he was not half as interested in technical equipment as Cactus Kate, the office cut-up, was in the fact that Mr. Burton came from Salt Lake City.

"At last I've seen a Mormon," she sighed as he left, a smile of satisfaction mixing up her freckles.

Bill Simmons and his California Cowboys of KROW are to make a ten-minute talkie "short." The boys were so successful in the news reel of the Salinas rodeo that they were signed up for further work. Other KROW artists will furnish atmosphere for the picture, which will be made on a ranch in the Mount Diablo region.

* * *

Harriett Pool, organist and harmony singer of KROW, has announced her engagement to Glenn Branham. The marriage will take place in November in the Oakland studio of KROW.

* * *

"Wyn" of KFRC, who is well known all along the coast for her daily chats on Feminine Fancies and other programs, emphatically does not like worms and liars. We gather, then, that a lying worm would epitomize her dislikes. On the other hand, people, clothes, and traveling come under the herd of her likes. Wyn's real name is Mrs. Winifred Louthain.

M. A. E., Sacramento, Cal.—The villain with the blood-curdling laugh to whom you refer is Barry Hopkins. No, he isn't diabolical out of character. On the contrary, he is a genial, constructive sort, and wouldn't dream of killing people even if they bored him. Thirty-three years old, of medium height and weight, with merry blue eyes and dark brown, curly hair.

* * *

V. W., Turlock, Cal.—Bob Lee (KTAB) is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 168 pounds, has light brown hair and greenish-gray eyes. He was born in Springfield, Missouri, December 6, 1909, has attended seventeen different schools, indicating rather frequent changes of scenery, and now lives in Oakland with his mother and stepfather, Mr. Harry A. Powell, who is well known in the bay region through his compositions and musical arrangements. Bob is one of those eager, artistic boys, gets mixed up with a southern accent whenever he becomes excited and is just a wee bit superstitious about accepting the third light from one match. His favorite book is "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come", and his aversion is "baby-talk" in grown-up women.

* * *

M. V. T., Modesto, Cal.—Norma Lee (KFWI) is a statuesque brunette whose tendencies and personality strongly suggest a Latin background. She is, however, of American birth and parentage and hails from San Luis Obispo. Self-accompanied, she sings in several languages, has had opera experience, speaks Italian like a native and derives keen enjoyment in cooking. (I am told she is susceptible to hard-luck stories, so if you go about it in the proper manner you might get a dinner invitation.)

* * *

S. O. S., San Jose, Cal.—Rudy Seiger (KPO) is a combination of Svenngali, poet and Simon Legree. Sounds incongruous, but really he gives that impression. His personality might inadequately be described as dramatic. He is intense, fascinating, restless. Every move he makes must count. It is typically rhythmic, sure, swift. True to his name, Rudy confesses a fondness for the ladies. He prefers those of reddish-gold hair who adorn themselves in autumnal shades. He is among the pioneers in radio, has played at the Fairmont since 1907, and is a San Franciscan by birth. His hair is dark, his eyes are hazel, he is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 180 pounds. Unmarried.

Mrs. H. W., Sacramento, Cal.—Don't look. Not just now, but—there, she has turned the other way. Third table over by the wall. See that smartly dressed woman? The one in the—what is it—sun-burned orange frock. That's Grace Sanderson Michie. You can't see her hair with that shadow cast over it by her hat, but it's reddish-gold. Her eyes, Heavens! I couldn't possibly tell you. They are always different. A sort of jade, usually. Stunning personality I should say so, and brilliant as—oh, she's turning this way—brilliant as her smile.

* * *

M. D., San Jose, Cal.—These roving British. If they don't make your blood tingle with their adventures. Here is Mr. Brown, for instance. Mr. Gordan de Borde Brown of KQW. Born in England, moved to South Africa, back to England, thence to Canada, over to Vancouver, B. C., where, one day, he caught his parents off guard, wriggled his way out of school and skipped blithely over to China, India, Alaska, and what have you. It took a blue-eyed little blonde christened Ivy, to put a stop to his wanderings. Now, there is a small son and a wee daughter and Mr. Brown is so happy he doesn't care if he never again visits places and learns things. No foolin'. He is very emphatic about it.

* * *

F. H., Whittier, Cal.—Ted White (KHJ) is twenty-eight, six feet tall, weighs 170 pounds, has blue eyes, black curly hair, and an indisputable movie profile. His ancestors were Irish, he was born in Athens, Tennessee, and his affections are torn between a loyalty toward Reno, San Francisco, and New York. His favorite color is blue, his flower is the jasmine, he likes fried rice and raspberries, and is truly a lover of symphonic music. His hobby is collecting dogs, both alive and stuffed. He arrived in Hollywood armed with tons of letters to the powers that be, and when they didn't "take" he sauntered over to a radio studio and became a microphone idol instead. Ted is a graduate of Columbia University, completed his course in '23, and is a Sigma Nu.

H. O. Harrison Company to Distribute Edison Radio

THE H. O. Harrison Company, automobile distributors for the past twenty-three years, have been appointed Edison radio distributors for northern California and Nevada.

This was announced here recently by Horace H. Silliman, salesmanager of the radio division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

The H. O. Harrison Company have added a radio division to their concern and have placed in charge of it H. J. Zeusler, who was formerly Pacific Coast manager for the Edison Company.

"The choice of a distributor was a matter of great moment to us," Silliman said.

"We had to choose a concern capable of upholding the Edison prestige, one well organized, well financed and well thought of. The H. O. Harrison Company fill the bill.

"The H. O. Harrison Company are merchandisers of proven ability, and we are expecting big things of their organization."

Silliman also called special attention to the fact that Thomas A. Edison discovered the fundamental principle upon which all radio is based. Back in 1875 the great inventor discovered the hitherto unknown phenomenon caused by electric waves in free space. This effect Mr. Edison called "etheric force." In truth, Silliman explained, this discovery might well be called the birth of radio. Without knowledge of "etheric force," radio might never have been dreamed of.

In 1883 Mr. Edison, while experimenting with his incandescent lamp, made another discovery which plays a very important part in every radio set. He found that an independent wire or plate placed between the legs of the filament of an incandescent lamp acted as a valve to control the flow of current.

It was termed the "Edison effect" and a patent was issued to Mr. Edison in 1883. This discovery covers the fundamental principle on which every radio tube is based. In the broadcasting studios are found other evidences of the Edison contribution to radio development. The microphone, familiarly known as the "mike," is an Edison invention. The present "mike," is but a glorified form of the carbon telephone transmitter, as it was called when Edison invented it. These are by no means all of Edison's contributions to radio.

Coast Guard to Have New Radio Service

ESTABLISHMENT of a new radio system, calculated to be of inestimable value in safeguarding shipping along the New England coast, will be made effective by the United States Coast Guard in the near future.

The "nerve center" of the system will be located in the New England divisional headquarters in the Customs House at Boston, where a highly sensitive receiving station will be installed, with a 24-hour watch. Upon receipt of a distress call, the radio operator on duty will notify the radio station at Nahat, Mass., by teletype, and the Nahat station, which has a powerful transmitter, will then communicate the message to all Coast Guard vessels in the area.

The new system, it is anticipated, will give assurance that an SOS originating between Quoddy Head, near Eastport, Maine, and New London, Conn., respectively the northern and southern limits of the New England division, will start any Coast Guard craft in the area to the position indicated inside of five minutes. Ordinarily, six destroyers, two large cutters, three 125-foot cutters and eight or ten 75-foot patrol boats, and at times many more, are at sea day and night in the New England division.

Home Recording Newest Wrinkle in Radio Sets

HOME RECORDING" is the newest wrinkle in radio receivers about to be offered to the buying public. Within a month or two, one of the leading radio manufacturers will announce the production, already under way, of a combination radio-phonograph set that will also be capable of recording both radio programs as they are received and home performances by home talent.

Such apparatus has been expected for some time, for the recording process has been simplified to the point where it is regarded as foolproof even when handled by amateurs. The recording apparatus is simply an adaptation of the phonograph part of the combination; a few gadgets added to the phonograph transforms it into a record-making machine.

Thus will favorite broadcast programs be preserved for phonograph reproduction at will. Thus also will ambitious talent without an outlet therefor be afforded an opportunity to record and then hear its own singing, instrument playing, speechifying, and the like.

The new set will sell in the medium-price class, and its producers foresee a large market for it and for the sale of disks on which the recording will be done. The formal introduction of "home recording" may be timed with the opening of the Radio World's Fair in New York City, September 22, when much of the season's newest in radio is revealed to the buying public for the first time. The apparatus will probably be shown also in the various other radio shows held throughout the country during September and October.

With home record-making devices on the market, some experts see the time as not far distant when radio "timing" apparatus will also be vogue. Several inventors have perfected and applied for patents on clock attachments for radio sets which will automatically dial any station within tuning range at any given time, as well as turn the set's power on and off when desired. One manufacturer has announced clock-tuning for this fall's production. When clock-tuning, is introduced, the radio listener will be able to select the programs he wants to hear from two or more stations, adjust the clocking device and let it save him the bother of manipulating the dials.

Combining the recording process with clock-tuning, the next natural step will be the automatic manufacture at home of records of a favorite radio program that the set owner has missed hearing. Unable to be at home at the time "Amos 'n' Andy" or "Mr. and Mrs." go on the air, he will return home to find that a record has been made of their dialogue which he can play on his phonograph at leisure.

Some interesting copyright problems will develop from the use of "home recording." The present copyright law does not protect the broadcaster, but does protect the owner of copyrighted selections against their performance for profit. If home-made records of broadcast programs are offered for sale or for rebroadcasting, the copyright owner will have cause for action.

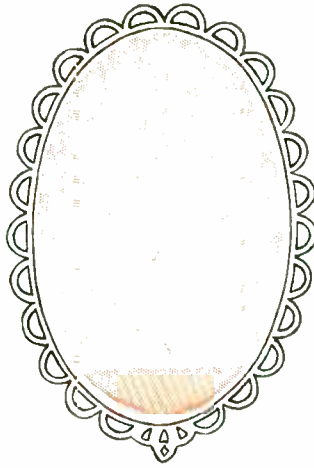

Unlike newspapers and magazines, however, the broadcasting station itself has no legal right in a broadcast program once it is rendered, except that the radio law protects him against its being rebroadcast. Presumably the broadcasters will welcome "home recording" because the home-made records probably will also carry station announcements and the announcements of the program sponsors. The copyright owners may not object unless some commercial use is made of the records, although they face a possible encroachment on their sales of records.

On the other hand, there has been a movement among broadcasters to obtain the enactment of legislation that will set up a legal right in a broadcast program to give it copyright protection, just as newspapers and magazines are protected. They have suggested this chiefly because some theaters lately have been reproducing radio programs for their audiences but have been tuning-in those programs only after the call letters and the sponsorship announcements have been concluded.

DUDLEY AYRES—KYA

By MONROE R. UPTON

THESE is a decided trend among actors, these days, to desert the smaller theaters for the largest one in the world. With the talkies dealing a deadly blow to the legitimate stage, and the golfette courses clubbing the talkies, the trend has deepened. In fact, it has almost ceased to be a trend and become an exodus. Prominent among those who have deserted the foot for the studio lights is Dudley Ayres, now affiliated with KYA, San Francisco. Ayres is very well known in the San Francisco Bay region, chiefly due to his long engagements as leading man in Duffy play-houses, including three years at the Alcazar in San Francisco.

After twenty-one years on the stage the veteran actor was led into a broadcasting studio and told to amuse, instruct, entertain or divert an invisible and hypothetical group of humans known as the radio audience. He felt about as much at home as an Esquimaux medicine man on the floor of the New York stock exchange. Did he falter? Did he turn tail and make for the nearest exit? He did not. He opened volumes of poetry, ranging in quality from Robert Service to Robert Browning and began reading. In due course of time he was rewarded with tangible evidence that there was not only such a thing as a radio audience but portions of it, at least, enjoyed his efforts. Letters came from elderly ladies and shut-ins, who are supposed to make up a large portion of the radio-fan writing public. Doubtless as soon as the flappers learn a "leading man" is reading poetry over the air his mail will be augmented from that direction.

Dudley Ayres is heard on KYA each morning from 11 to 11:15 o'clock in a feature he calls a "chatologue." Besides his poetry he delivers little informal talks about the theatre and anything at all that comes to his mind. Altho he finds it difficult, because so totally different from his previous work, he enjoys it very much and busies himself for long hours each day in preparation. On the stage, he says, an actor's job is to speak the lines put into his mouth by competent playwrights. They are quite often brilliant lines. They develop the capacity for interpretation, feeling and expression. On the other hand, the radio is very largely a theatre demanding, in addition to these, ideas, originality and invention. The radio has the tendency to develop more sides of a person than the theatre. That is why it is more fascinating.

It must not be supposed that Dudley Ayres' activities on KYA are confined to reading poetry, however. His principal duties, in fact, involve the production of plays. Twice weekly, Tuesday nights at 8 o'clock, and Sunday nights at 9:30 o'clock, he directs and acts in dramatic productions. Tuesday night it is a one-act play and Sunday night a serial called "The Courier to The Czar." He has grouped around him such competent players as Henry Schirmer, Rupert Drumm, Charlotte Treadway and Leona Powers. It may be interesting to note that he will soon be directing the Harpers Corners series which made such a hit on the old ABC chain.

Dudley Ayres was born in Iowa but his parents brought him to Tacoma, Washington, at the age of three. His male ancestors had all been professional men, lawyers, doctors and ministers and young Dudley would doubtless have followed in their footsteps had it not been for the chance visit to the Tacoma High School of the director of a stock company. The students were putting on a show and the director was looking for some likely young talent. He needed some characters with uniforms, young Dudley had one, and so he got the job. It carried a weekly stipend of $11, which was one dollar more than he was used to getting for vacation work in the hay fields and lumber camps. When the time came to go back to school his pay was raised to $14 per week and the temptation was too great, he stayed on. For four years he remained with the company, playing character parts at 16 and 17, and leading man at 19. Since then he has played in every principal city in the East, with William Collier, John Mason and A. H. Woods, in vaudeville and in silent pictures. He has mainly stuck to stock, however, because he prefers the home life to travelling about. He was leading man at the Castle Square, in Boston, for two years, at the Majestic in Los Angeles for one year, and as we mentioned in the beginning, was three years at the Alcazar in San Francisco.

There was one period of three years during his career that he deserted the stage. His health began to fail him, due to the continual grind of study, and his physicians advised a change of occupation. And so he became an automobile salesman in Long Beach, California. In contrast to his previous work it was like a vacation. He soon became very good at it and was made sales manager. It is largely a matter of selling yourself, he says, of inspiring the confidence of others. And after all, that is part of an actor's job. But he was afraid that selling would begin to tell on his ambition and he gave it up. He didn't want to get into the rut of laziness.

Ayres is only 36 years old, though the gray in his black hair, the repose in his lined face and the smouldering fire in his blue eyes would cause you to believe he was older. Twenty-one years of projecting the range of human emotion over the footlights might well be equal to twice as many years lived in the usual manner. He is a large man, physically, with 175 pounds in weight and 5 feet 11 inches to go with them. In spite of his apparent dignity, he claims that he is something of a roughneck at heart, and when he says it you catch a glimpse of the youth that left high school to join a stock company, still persisting underneath his suave and confident exterior.

His work has always been his principal interest. For relaxation and diversion he enjoys all kinds of sports, though principally golf and riding; bridge and light reading. The output of writers like Peter B. Kyne and E. Phillips Oppenheim serve to provide him with pleasureable distraction. He is very fond of contract bridge.

He was married about two years ago to Marjorie Spaulding. There are no children.

Equitable Distribution Held Impossible

EQUITABLE distribution of radio facilities, as contemplated by the Davis amendment to the radio law, is impossible, and those provisions of the act should be repealed, it is held by the standing committee on communications of the American Bar Association in a lengthy report just filed with the Federal Radio Commission.

All phases of the radio situation are considered in the report, in which opposition to the Couzens bill for the establishment of a permanent communications commission is withdrawn, without, however, actual approval being given the provisions of the measure, and recommendations are made for the repeal of those provisions of the radio law forbidding the merger of radio and wire companies. Elimination of other sections of the law, denying radio licenses to holders finally adjudged guilty of violations of the anti-trust laws, also is urged.

Distribution of radio facilities cannot be governed to the benefit of the public by any "yardstick" method of allocation, it is asserted by the committee. Such distribution cannot be made without either a waste of radio facilities, on the one hand, or the creation of tremendous interference in certain sections of the country, on the other. Not only is the Davis amendment condemned on this score, but the proposed substitute in the Couzens bill is equally unsatisfactory. The latter would require the distribution of 25 per cent of the facilities equally among the States, 50 per cent on the basis of population and 25 per cent on the basis of area.

The net result of any attempt to equalize radio facilities, it is found by the committee, is either to over-equip areas of small population or cut down facilities in areas of dense population. The fact that reception varies tremendously in different parts of the country, a station in some sections covering a vastly larger territory than an identical station in some other sections, also enters into the picture.

A change from the present method of allocation used by the radio commission to the mathematical method of division provided in the Couzens bill would have a disastrous effect upon the present broadcasting set-up in many states, it is asserted.

Making Flying Safe for the General Public

AMERICA has stepped suddenly forward in the application of radio to aviation, in a definite nation-wide endeavor to make flying safe for the general public. This is inspired by certain grim air tragedies and also by the facility by which experimentation lends itself in this country to new ventures.

The United States now boasts the most comprehensive aeronautical radio installation in the world, with the completion of the radiotelephone network of the Boeing air transport system. Fifty Boeing planes have been radio-equipped for radiotelephone work with twenty-two ground stations over 3,000 miles of airway in seven states. Others are to follow.

So complete is the newly established radio system that Dr. Otto Merkel, managing director of the German Luft Hansa, largest commercial aviation concern in the world, was moved to remark that it was superior to any in operation in Europe, during a recent tour of inspection in this country.

The Boeing system includes some 10,000,000 miles of flight handling, as it does, mail and passenger service from Los Angeles to Seattle and from Chicago to San Francisco. Establishment of this far-flung radio chain assumes added importance when it is understood that every aeronautical operation problem found anywhere in the United States is encountered on the Boeing system's two lines.

Boeing planes fly from sea level to 12,000 feet and land and take off at airports from sea level to 6,200 feet. Flying routes are over deserts, snow-capped mountains and thickly forested areas. Temperatures range from 20 degrees below to 120 degrees Fahrenheit.

Radio has become a more important adjunct to the flying of Boeing planes than any other agency. Pilots are kept in constant touch not only with airports but with each other, picking up and disbursing information on flying conditions, weather reports and position locations. The planes are never at any time more than 100 miles from some ground station. With them back and forth conversations are carried on ceaselessly.

As an instance of how well the system works, a plane coming into Seattle the other night picked up another plane flying over North Platte, Nebraska, talking to a ground station. While cruising over the Sierra Nevada another pilot heard a fellow pilot in Omaha talking to a ground station. The ground stations work together, "train dispatching" the planes day and night.

The operator at the Oakland station of the Boeing service, for instance, has but to throw a switch to be in instant touch with Rock Springs, Wyoming, Elko, Reno or any important ground station of the Boeing system.

Fight Radio Set Taxes

TEST suits have been instituted in Federal district court in South Carolina to determine the legality of that state's proposed tax on radio receiving sets. Station WBT, Charlotte, and a radio dealer are protesting against the tax, which ranges from 50 cents to $2.50 per year, according to the cost of the set. Their main contention is that radio is interstate commerce and thus outside the jurisdiction of the state taxing authority.

Prolific Inventor

SCARCELY a week passes without the issuance of one or more patents on a "wired radio" development to Edward E. Clements, patent attorney and inventor of Washington, D. C. An 1888 graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and co-inventor of the automanual telephone, Mr. Clements has probably taken out more radio patents than any other single inventor, with the possible exception of C. Francis Jenkins, also of Washington.

A New Power Tube

OUT of researches into electron discharges which produced the radio tube, Dr. Irving Langmuir of General Electric has developed a new tube, known as the "thyatron," by which it is believed that power transmission by means of direct instead of alternating current may be accomplished over transmission lines 50 per cent longer than those now in use.

Red Cross Seeks Use of European Radio

ITALY'S recent disastrous earthquake is expected to bring about an arrangement whereby European Red Cross societies will be afforded use of the radio facilities of the Continent under a formal arrangement which the organization has been seeking for some time.

In the United States, the Red Cross enjoys maximum privileges, this being the only country where at the present time the organization has a formal arrangement with the radio broadcasting organizations. Here the Red Cross is the only organization which shares the President's privilege of priority, whether the message concerns a membership campaign or an appeal to the Nation in a public disaster. It is the only association in the country which has the right to use the radio in an appeal for funds.

Greater opportunities for more extensive use of European radio were sought at a series of conferences held by the International Broadcasting Union at Barcelona, Spain, where, following discussion of the role played by broadcasting in cases of disaster, it was recommended that national associations and government offices concerned with broadcasting be urged to extend to the national Red Cross societies and the International Relief Union facilities to issue, from time to time, short communications of general interest in the framework of the ordinary program, and priority in the issuance of appeals in cases of public calamity.

At least twenty Red Cross societies have already tested the efficiency of this means of communication with the public. The League of Red Cross Societies has received information concerning the use of radio by its organizations in the United States, Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, France, Great Britain, Hungary, India, Yugoslavia, Latvia, Norway, Poland, and Sweden.

In general, the Red Cross uses the radio in membership campaigns, for health lectures, to tell the public of its activities and to make appeals in case of public calamities. The Belgian society uses radio to supply a medical service to ships carrying no physicians; the Norwegian society supplies a similar service to ships of the merchant marine. The Chilean organization has installed a radio on the island of Juan Fernandez to provide communication, in case of illness, with the Red Cross doctor at Valparaiso, 200 miles away.

It is when calamity strikes, however, that radio becomes the greatest ally of relief. The Mississippi overflows, a hurricane strikes Florida, a forest fire devastates a large area in the Northwest, famine hits China, or an earthquake terrorizes Italy. Money, food and clothing are needed, and needed quick. Over the air into the more fortunate homes in unaffected areas goes the appeal of the Red Cross and the response is immediate and generous.

Before radio, newspapers and personal appeals were the only means of meeting the demands for relief. The generosity of the newspapers with their space and effort was unbounded, but it took time to drive home the need; both newspapers and personal appeals are used today to even a greater extent than ever before, but the radio affords an opportunity for a Herbert Hoover to tell the people personally what he saw along the raging Mississippi and what must be done—and done at once—to save the lives and start anew the homes of those who lost all in the disaster. The press and the radio, working hand in hand, form a combination which unlocks the heart and, more important, the pocketbook, of the Nation.

The United States has long realized the tremendous value of radio as a part of the Red Cross machinery. Possibly that is one of the benefits of private operation, for in Europe, where government control is universal, much red tape must be unwound before the message of mercy can be broadcast. Advertisers who have reserved time on the air at great expense and have spent large sums in preparing their programs and securing their artists, willingly step aside on a moment's notice when the message comes in that a disaster has occurred somewhere and the Red Cross needs money for relief work.

Harvest time is upon Goshen Center, the typical mid-western town of the late nineties depicted in H. C. Connette's Memory Lane plays. Billy Smithers is in his glory because he has won the privilege of riding on the engine of one of the thrashers. There is an accident to the engine which gives a dramatic touch to the play. The bountiful dinner for the crew of the thrasher, always a feature of these occasions, figures prominently in the play.

Emil Polak, director of this vocal ensemble, is responsible for the eight-voice adaptations of the songs. 10:30 to 11 p.m.—Musical Echoes, KGO, KOA 11 to 12 midnight—Laughner-Harris Hotel St. Francis Dance Orchestra, KGO, KFI, KFSD
