Radio Guards Against Collisions

HAVING largely disposed of a number of major immediate problems connected with the operation of airplanes, aviation and radio leaders are now turning their attention to questions which, with the great increase in flying expected in the future, may soon be considered as hazards of considerable magnitude.

The problem of prevention of collision between aircraft in flight under conditions of poor visibility is rapidly becoming of great importance, especially on the more highly traveled lanes on which radio-beacon service is furnished. Several dangers are encountered when flying on those courses, such as that of collision between planes flying on the same beacon course, but in opposite directions, between aircraft flying on different courses intersecting at a given point, and between craft flying on the same course in the same direction, but at different speeds.

Aviation officials of the Department of Commerce anticipate that a system of traffic control will eventually be evolved tending to reduce the possibilities of collisions of this nature, but at the same time it is believed that some system of radio will be required in addition to give automatic warning to a pilot of the presence and approximate position of another airplane within a radius of, say, three miles.

Accordingly, the aeronautics research division of the department has been making studies of possible systems and methods for securing warning signals during the past year or so. Until recently, however, it appeared that a complete solution of the problem required continuous transmission of signals from each airplane and automatic direction finding in three dimensions, which tended to require unduly elaborate equipment.

A modification of this system has now been worked out which, while still requiring continuous nondirectional transmission from each airplane, will use ultra-high frequencies so as to simplify the transmitting end and also permit simple unidirectional reception of the signals transmitted by other planes. Both transmitting and receiving sets will operate on the same frequency, the receiving-antenna system, however, being located in front of the transmitting antenna and adjusted to receive signals from in front of and not from behind the plane, eliminating interference from the transmitted signals. The directivity of reception may be so concentrated as to pick up signals only from aircraft with a line of flight directly toward the plane so that, upon receiving the warning signal, a pilot may maneuver his plane to reduce the intensity of received signal, which automatically takes him out of the path of danger.

With this modified system, no warning is given a plane of a second machine approaching from behind, but the second plane is warned that it is approaching the first. Similarly, no warning is received by either plane when one overtakes the other, but flies at a sufficiently different altitude to eliminate danger of collision.

Radio Commission Bans License Speculators

POSSIBLE speculation in broadcasting licenses is being given intensive study by the Federal Radio Commission, which has formally announced that it will carefully scrutinize every application for transfer of ownership to determine the financial responsibility of the buyer and the necessity for continuing the station in operation.

"So many applications for change of ownership of stations have been filed recently that it appears trafficking in radio licenses is a new form of speculation developing in this country," it was declared at the commission.

Speculation in licenses, however, is not entirely unknown, having been practiced to some extent after the courts had held that the Secretary of Commerce was without authority to withhold license from any applicant and prior to enactment of the Federal radio law. During that period, it developed, several licensees were the owners of more than one station, some of which had been established with a view to their sale when, as was anticipated, the radio commission took steps to limit the number of broadcasters. In one instance, a station later was refused renewal of license when it was found that the "station" itself consisted of a "hay-wire" transmitter in a pigeon loft and had not been in operation, transparently having been built so that a license could be secured which later could be sold at a profit.

In most cases, sales of stations were accomplished before the commission could take steps to put an end to the practice; many of them fell into responsible hands and are today a credit to their communities. The commission, however, is determined there shall be no recurrence of this situation.

Much of the present trouble, it is said, is coming from stations authorized to broadcast only briefly each day for the benefit of schools or churches. Many of these stations, it is stated, are making application for the assignment of their licenses to commercial corporations, in most instances asking simultaneously for more time on the air. The commission, desiring to promote educational features and to carry church programs to the home, has been liberal in granting licenses to stations of this character, and discovery of an apparent attempt to capitalize this generosity came when a few stations of this type were commercialized and insisted on more time to take care of advertisers.

"It is likely that the commission, in many cases, will find it advisable to cancel these licenses, rather than add to the overloaded channels," it was declared at the commission. "It would be a fine, patriotic service for these licensees to retire voluntarily from the field, if there is no longer any need of radio in their service, thus aiding the commission in relieving some of the congestion.

"All applications for assignment of such licenses will be carefully studied by the commission and its investigators, and a real necessity for a commercial station must exist before such transfers are authorized."

General Use of Top Power Sought

GENERAL use of powers as high as 50,000 watts, the present maximum permitted by the Federal Radio Commission, is advocated by Louis G. Caldwell, former general counsel of the Government's radio control board.

Now active as counsel for a number of broadcasters, Caldwell is urging the commission to rescind its former order limiting to 20 the number of cleared channels on which top power may be used, and permitting the use of high power on all of the 40 cleared channels. Experience has shown that powers as high as 50,000 watts are not longer to be considered experimental, Caldwell asserts. Public interest, he declares, is not served by limiting the use of that power to stations on 20 frequencies, but, if it is permitted on any cleared channels, it should be extended to all.

MICROPHONE GOSSIP

Paul L. Hoefler, African explorer who was discovered as an interesting radio speaker by KOA, Denver, has found himself much sought after in the past few weeks. Following his series of talks at KOA, he was taken to New York for an NBC network broadcast on the Mobiloil concert. And he has just signed with Columbia Pictures Corporation to record a program describing his experiences with animals and native tribes in Africa.

* * *

Frank Anthony O'Neill, blind since birth, did not allow this handicap to interfere with his musical career. O'Neill entered the Merced local audition of the Atwater Kent Foundation's National Radio Audition and carried off first-place honors. He will be heard over KPO October 20, when he will sing in the state audition. O'Neill is a baritone and received his schooling at the California School for the Blind at Berkeley, Cal.

* * *

Tom Gerun, well known orchestra leader, whose band has been heard playing over the Columbia network, was a visitor at KJBS the other day, just prior to his return to Chicago.

* * *

Charles Marshall of NBC, possessor of the famous harp guitar and the No. 12 shoes, now has another claim to distinction. He's the champion horseshoe thrower of the radio world. Charlie won that title at a horseshoe throwing contest which took place at Ted Maxwell's home at Emerald Lake recently. Ted gave a clam chowder party for a large group of NBC artists, writers and other celebrities. Those who later roused themselves enough to be runners-up in the match included Bennie Walker, editor of NBC's Woman's Magazine of the Air; Carlton E. Morse, Arthur Ward and Rollen Parker.

* * *

Mel Le Mon, who was formerly manager of KTAB and KTM, and with KFVB, KMIC and KGFJ as technician and announcer, is now associated with KMTR, Hollywood, Calif. For the past year Mr. Le Mon has been in the employ of Warner Brothers' Studios in the capacity of sound engineer. He is also a musician, being the originator of the original Packard Six Orchestra.

One of KFRC's most interesting personalities is Richard MacCaffrey, trumpet player and arranger. "Mac," as he is called, is from New York City, and lets you know it with every word he speaks. He enlisted in the army because he wanted a musical career and was sent to the Philippines. The army gave him plenty of opportunity to learn. First he mastered the trumpet, then the saxophone and finally he went in for arranging. During the World War he was on active duty in Siberia. His tales of that country, salted with his natural wit, always command an interested audience. In fact, whenever "Mac" makes a comment on anything it is usually good for a laugh. When a good New Yorkese is needed in a skit, Richard MacCaffrey is persuaded to lay down his trumpet and take the part.

Stelly Crassas, appointed KHJ concert master recently, is an Athenian built on Doric lines, but playing a mean Corinthian fiddle. He was formerly concert master with the Minneapolis Symphony, has concertized throughout Europe and is the product of the finest teachers of Brussels and Paris. Mr. Crassas replaces Christian Sprotte, resigned.

* * *

A recent addition to the KTAB program and continuity department is Samuel B. Dickson, author and publisher of stories, books and plays. Mr. Dickson was previously associated with KYA and at KFRC he wrote the "Great Ladies" programs. He is a short story lecturer and the former publisher of the children's magazine, "The Treasure Chest."

* * *

KGER's miniature golf tournament is a thing of the past. It was won by Mrs. Constance Brown, secretary to C. Merwin Dobyms (station owner) with Fritz Martin, announcer, coming in second. Forty members of the staff feted the winners at breakfast in the Huntington Hotel, Long Beach, at the end of the tournament.

PERSONAL PICKUPS

BY GYPSY

Irene, Pasco, Wash.—The “Rounders” broadcast every Friday night between 8:45 and 9:15 over NBC on the Tone Pictures’ program. “Wee Willie” (William Hancock, KPO) was born in Cowbridge, Wales, in 1890. No, Hugh Barrett Dobbs does not wear a uniform when directing the Shell Happytime. The KHQ program for the week of September 21 was not received by BROADCAST WEEKLY in time to go to press, therefore could not be included in that issue.

* * *

E. S., Portland, Ore.—Arthur Schwartzman (NBC) hails from far-off Russia. His musical training began at the age of seven and when he was eleven years old he appeared in concert in all of the principal cities of Europe. He is twenty-nine now, has been in America six years (emphatically wants people to know he is a citizen, too), and is married to a former University of California co-ed who has glorious red-gold hair, is of Irish ancestry and plays the harp divinely. They have an adorable baby girl named Sally. Mr. Schwartzman is 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 178 pounds, has black hair and deep brown eyes.

* * *

A. W., Sacramento, Cal.—Jerry Jermaine (KPO) is in private life Mrs. Henry Cheeseman. Will R. Hill is heard from Station KLX. Maud Nickerson, William Sherwood and Al Santoro are regular features of KROW. The “Sheriff” with the Arizona Wranglers at KNX is Loyal H. Underwood.

* * *

G. J., Los Angeles, Cal.—Olive West (NBC) has brown eyes, black hair, is 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 145 pounds. She made her theatrical debut as a very young girl in San Francisco at the Baldwin Theatre, toured the United States “backwards and forwards” in prominent companies and roles, married an eastern attorney, lived in New York and Boston until his death, then returned to her girlhood home and made a second debut, this time in radio. Miss West is one of those delightfully ageless personalities, stimulating beyond words, interested in everything, sympathetic, kind. She writes exquisite poetry, is a student of psychology, enjoys horseback riding and is addicted to late hours.

A. M., Alameda, Cal.—Raymond Marlowe has forsaken the ether waves temporarily for a series of personal appearances.

Claire, Sacramento, Cal.—Your Monroe Upton, alias Lord Bilgewater, alias Simpy Fitts stands six feet and possesses the standard number of features, but ’twould be blasphemous to catalogue him as a stock model. My dear! He is positively devastating when he smiles. His eyes are a remarkable gray, his hair is light brown (there’s an extravagant expression for that special shade, but I can’t recall it at the moment), and his nose—his nose is distingue—you know. He likes golf, hiking and brilliant red scarfs. Still eligible.

* * *

A. F., Eugene, Ore.—“Sunday at Seth Parker’s” is written and directed by Phillips H. Lord, who appears in the cast as “Seth.” Mr. Lord was born on July 13, 1902, lived, as a boy, on a farm in Maine, graduated from Bowdoin College and taught school before his broadcast days. He is tremendously handsome, athletically built, of medium complexion with an extraordinary broad, intellectual forehead.

* * *

V. T., Fellows, Cal.—William Don (NBC) is an Australian by birth and a graduate of King’s College in Melbourne. His father and mother are Scotch and to his father goes the honor of putting into operation the first tram car in Australia. “Doctor OOjah,” by which name Mr. Don is more popularly known, was introduced to American radio audiences in April of 1928 over KFI. He is 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds, has blue, twinkling eyes, gray hair, loves his pipe, a good mystery story, is keenly observant and plays a wonderful game of tennis.

Associated Oil Co. Sponsors Football Broadcasts

RIDING in on the crest of a wave of interest in football that appears to greatly exceed that of any previous year, the Associated Oil Company broadcasts of the season's leading football games are striking an increasingly responsive chord among western fans.

For three years this friendly-spirited oil company has been steadily building an enviable place for really worth while use of the radio air lanes. Its 8 to 8:30 o'clock spot on Wednesday evenings has built a vast army of radio devotees for the "Let's Get Associated" programs. Jack and Ethyl, the featured characters of the weekly dramas, are hailed wherever they go with a sincerity and a spontaneity that prove their unquestioned popularity. Up in the Northwest, the Triangle broadcasts with the Associated Equi-fractionated orchestra is similarly in demand.

But at this season, football, with all the glamor and the fevered excitement surrounding this most national of all pastimes, crowds all others out of the center position in the spotlight of public attention.

And Associated, easily the premier sports radio sponsors of the world and using more hours on the air for this purpose than any other commercial sponsor anywhere, is bringing some 100 games this fall to countless thousands of fans who for one reason or another are unable to attend the games in person.

The company has missed no bets whatever in making this feature as fine as it could be. Thoroughly trained announcers are at the mikes from one end of the coast to the other. They are experienced in painting a word description of the games that, in addition to picturing the color of the event, succeeds as well in telling the actual story of the shifting fortunes of the game which is as complete, at least, as actual sight itself.

Such well known men as Don Thompson, Jimmy Richardson, George Guttormsen, Carl Haverlin, C. C. "Harry" Lantry, Jerry King, "Slug" Palmer and Glenn Hill are enrolled in the Associated army of football announcers. They spend much time with the teams to become thoroughly familiar with men and plays. Thompson, a former star football man himself, dons football armor once more and gets a first-hand opinion of the team's capacity. So that the fan hearing the Associated broadcast knows that he's getting it all and that what he is hearing is as authoritative as knowledge can make it.

Determined to forget nothing in rendering an unexcelled service, the company has also just completed distribution through its red, green and cream stations and garages of a convenient, fan-shaped football directory listing dates and other data for all west-coast games. Every fan is urged to drop in at one of these sources of supply for his own free copy of this handy pocket schedule and guide.

When the referee's whistle sounds at any of the major football games in the west this year there will be an Associated sports announcer somewhere in his little radio booth sending out a play-by-play description of the event.

To the motoring public, Associated football broadcasts mean: "Play ball with Associated" and the red, cream and green Associated dealer.

New Ship Service Tells Distance from Land

VESSELS approaching the United States now are able to determine their distance from land by a simple method devised by the Lighthouse Service of the Department of Commerce, which is being installed in lighthouses as rapidly as possible.

By the use of the new device, a radio signal is sent out simultaneously with an audible signal from the lighthouse siren. The radio signal is received aboard ship almost instantaneously, and it is only necessary for the navigating officer to note the lapse of time before the audible signal is received and then figure out his distance from the station.

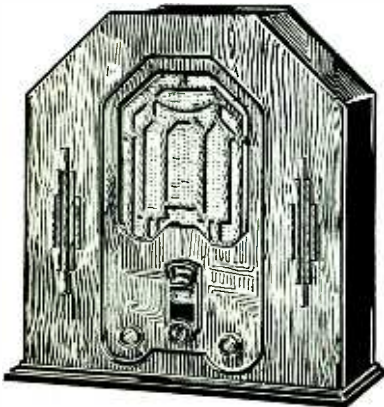

MELLOWED to the MOOD

Combining the best of workmanship with the best of materials, Remler engineers have achieved a rich flowing tone quality in the Remler Cameo which is not duplicated in any other miniature.

And now these round and mellow tones may be further refined to suit the varying moods of the individual listener by a tone control device which lends new distinction to its superlatively perfect musical reproduction.

Remler Cameo features include: Screen grid circuit; specially designed dynamic speaker, and tone control.

The price complete, with six tubes, ready to plug in, is $64.50

Russian Radio Plans Huge Expansion

PLANS for the establishment of a chain of 62 radio stations covering all of soviet Russia have been incorporated in the ambitious "five-year program" of industrial expansion put under way by the red government in 1928, as a result, it is claimed, of the rapid development of national economy under this scheme for the modernization and industrialization of the soviet republic.

The whole communications plan of the government has been enlarged, and now contemplates the expenditure of approximately $683,000,000, instead of the $154,000,000 originally figured. All told, nearly 200 additional broadcasting stations are planned as part of the five-year program, carrying out the soviet policy of educating the people in communistic doctrine by every available method. Radio has long been considered by red leaders to be the ideal propaganda medium, and steady efforts have been made to extend its reach since 1925, when the first station was established in Moscow.

The program for 1930 called for additions and extensions to the 215 "transmitting substations" which relay broadcast programs over the telephone lines and the beginning of work on 530 additional substations, 300 of which are to be located in villages, with a view to adding 340,000 subscribers to this service during the year.

Administration of broadcasting in Russia is one of the duties of the People's Commissariat for Posts and Telegraphs. The construction program of the commissariat originally called for the building of 95 broadcasting stations with a total power of 1,347,000 watts. During the current year its schedule calls for the production of 100,000 loud-speaker sets and 200,000 headset receivers.

In addition, the Low Current Trust, which produces most of the radio equipment used in the soviet republic, planned to turn out $31,000,000 worth of radio apparatus this year, and double that amount next year.

The broadcasting plan for the more than 250 stations which the communist government claims it will have in service at the conclusion of the five-year program in 1933 calls for the placing of large stations at strategic points throughout the union of socialist soviet republics, which will act as distributing centers, their programs being rebroadcast by the subsidiary stations, so that a complete radio network will be spread over the entire country.

In addition, the program calls for installation of 13,000,000 receiving sets, of which 9,000,000 were to have loudspeakers, together with 1,000,000 short-wave receivers, 30,000 of which were in use at the beginning of this year. It is planned to have radio sets in 35 per cent of the peasant dwellings and in 50 per cent of the urban houses by 1933, as well as loudspeaker installations in schools, clubs, reading rooms, factories, public dining rooms and on state and collective farms.

At the beginning of 1930, according to information supplied by the soviet authorities, there were over 60 broadcasting stations in operation, ten of which were of high power, and one, using 100,000 watts and having a radius of 2500 kilometers, being rated as the largest in Europe. There were, however, only 410,000 receiving sets in use.

The $683,000,000 which the communications program calls for covers not only radio, but postal service and all other means of communication, and no figures are available as to the amount allocated to broadcasting, which, however, is understood to be in the neighborhood of $50,000,000 or more.

IN a world of increasing power for everything, including broadcast stations, WSBP, the World Battery Company station at Chicago, stands out as unique. It has asked Uncle Sam to reduce its power. With its brothers and sisters requesting power increases of from 50,000 to 400,000 watts, this 500-watt broadcaster has asked if it may please go down to 100 watts. The stunned radio commission, after reading the request through several times to make sure it was seeing things right, has gone into conference over it.

MUSICAL ROMANCE

with Sparton's thrilling realism

. . . Football season is here. See an authorized SPARTON dealer today!

Only SPARTON can give You the Musical Beauty of SPARTON

ANY good radio reproduces the fundamental full tones of the musical scale. But in addition to these, the new SPARTONS give you those subtle, elusive wisps of sound known as Overtones . . . the very essence of Musical Beauty. You may not be able to sense these individually, any more than you can distinguish individual moonbeams. But, as you listen to a new SPARTON, the difference becomes apparent in added sweetness and realism, a radiant, inspiring beauty and fullness that literally seems to throb with emotion and burn with the fire of the Artist's personality, a sense of complete satisfaction that causes you to exclaim . . . "Here, indeed, is the radio I have always dreamed of." Experience this sensation yourself, to-day, at any authorized SPARTON Dealer. Only SPARTON can give you this Musical Romance.

Johnny O'Brien

NBC Harmonica Player

JOHNNY O'BRIEN, popular NBC harmonica player and one of the Hill Billies, has played the tiny pocket instrument since he was old enough to remember, but it did not occur to him until a few years ago that his hobby might prove his profession.

Here is Johnny's explanation:

"I heard the Walman Brothers doing a turn at the old Orpheum in San Francisco. They played the harmonica and entertained the audience with a bit of patter—and they got away with it. Right there I decided I could do the same thing."

So Johnny went back-stage and asked the players just how one went about breaking into the "big time." That was in 1917. Before long Johnny found himself playing at the Warfield Theater, San Francisco. Then came tours through the Orpheum circuit and as a Pantages headliner. An engagement followed in Los Angeles with a musical show featuring Olson and Johnson.

But John remembered then that in San Francisco there lived a mother and dad who were lonely for him. He packed up his harmonica and came home to the city by the Golden Gate.

About the time radio programs took definite shape, Johnny brought his harmonica to the NBC San Francisco studios and he's been playing here ever since. Notes don't mean a thing to him. He plays entirely "by ear" and he's ready for any emergency, for there's always a harmonica in his pocket. Usually he carries several and gets a great thrill out of giving them to small, admiring boys. He's a regular guest at the city playgrounds and he's given hundreds of harmonicas to the kiddies there.

John was born in San Francisco in 1904 and completed his education in the schools here. Besides his music, he enjoys athletics and in 1921-22 he won the Pacific Coast amateur boxing championship for the Olympic Club, boxing in the 125-pound class. He's much heavier now, but he still boxes, and several times each week he takes a "work-out" in the Olympic Club gymnasium.

Tom Breneman, KFWB

IF a radio programmer brings out one program that commands enthusiastic attention, he is considered a success.

Thus Tom Breneman, who is "proud papa" to more radio brain children than any other ether personality, may well be looked upon as a more than average success.

His "Radio Periscope" feature, heard every Monday night at 9:30 o'clock, was not an accident, but its manner of birth was unusual.

TOM BRENEMAN

"Come over to our house and put on a program, will you?" asked Gerald King, manager of the station.

"Oke," returned Breneman, and he proceeded to crack up "a program" more out of personal friendship for King than for any other reason.

Figuratively speaking, Tom reached into his bag and drew out the "Radio Periscope" idea, supposedly a small gadget which, affixed to a microphone, defies all time and space. Thus Breneman began, projecting his darktown characters, "Tom Lincoln Cottonham," "Miss Somaphine" and "Corp'ral Sam" into the atmosphere of Revolutionary days, Civil War times, and back to the eras of Alladin, Ponce de Leon, and Benjamin Franklin.

Once—yes, once—he even sent his dusky hero and party to Hades. It was a sort of chilly evening and Breneman thought it would be good for all concerned.

Listeners have proclaimed "The Radio Periscope" as one of the most humorous programs on the air; certainly, there is not another even remotely resembling it.

Breneman it was who entertained the radio public for many months with the "Tom and his Mule" skits over KNX. Now he has "only" four acts commanding his attention: "The Radio Periscope," "The Adventures of Tom and Wash," a daily skit at 12 noon, except Sundays, in which he plays both roles, the two-hour frolic known as "Friday's Follies," and the rustic character, "Senator Ezra Simpkins," heard every Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.
