Preface

This North American radio-TV station guide has been prepared from official FCC information. Every effort has been made to make it as complete, accurate, and easy to use as possible. All television, fm, and a-m stations in the United States, as well as Canada, Cuba, Mexico, and the West Indies, are indexed by geographic location and call letters. A guide to the use of this book is included immediately following the table of contents (p. 6) and at the end of the book (p. 157).

In nearly all countries each radio and TV station is identified by its call letters, such as WWLB. In the United States, call letters are assigned to radio stations by the Federal Communications Commission so that no two stations have the same call letters. In other countries similar agencies allocate call letters to radio and TV stations. By international agreement blocks of call letters are assigned to the various countries.

The frequency of an a-m or fm station is sometimes also used as an aid to identification of the station. It is the number of cycles of the transmitted radio wave which are completed every second. The frequency of a radio station is allocated to permit maximum utilization of frequencies with minimum interference between frequencies. For North American a-m stations, frequencies range from 535 to 1600 kilohertz (one kilohertz equals 1000 cycles per second). For North American fm stations, frequencies range from 88.1 to 107.9 megahertz (one megahertz equals 1,000,000 cycles per second).

The antenna height listed for a radio or TV station is the height of the antenna above the average terrain from two to ten miles from the antenna. Thus some antenna height listings are negative, meaning the antenna is below the average terrain level. In general, as an antenna is increased in height, the distance at which the station may be received is increased.

The power of a station is a measure of the strength of the station's signal. The greater the power of a station, the greater is the distance at which the signal may be received. Thus power and antenna height are alike in that the greater they are, the better the reception. Due to changes which occur in the ionosphere, radio signals are reflected back to earth at night and may cause interference with other stations. Consequently stations are often required by the government to decrease their nighttime power.

All stations currently on the air, plus those which have temporarily ceased operation and those which plan to start within the next year, are included in this book. Frequency, power, and network affiliation are given for each station. In addition, fm stations broadcasting stereo are indicated. Thus, regardless of where you travel, by consulting this handy book you can select those stations providing stereo.

The completely integrated alphabetical call-letter listing of all television, fm, and a-m stations is an important feature of his book. It provides a comprehensive one-source reference to all commercial broadcast stations of North America. In order to make the listings in this edition as complete as possible, changes have been inserted right up to press time.

A-M, FM, and TV STATIONS BY CALL LETTERS

Not all fm and TV station call letters are suffixed by the fm or TV notation. Many are just four-letter calls. To determine whether a station is an a-m, fm, or TV in this alphabetical call-letter listing, bear in mind that TV stations are indicated in the second column by the channel number (2-83), fm stations are indicated by the frequency in megahertz (88.1-107.9), and a-m stations are indicated by the frequency in kilohertz (540-1500).

North American RADIO-TV STATION GUIDE

by Vane A. Jones

This handy book contains listings for all the radio and television stations in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and the West Indies—nearly 10,000 stations in all. The nearly 6000 am stations, nearly 3000 fm stations, and over 1300 television stations presently in operation, scheduled to start operation soon, or temporarily off the air are each listed in three ways—by geographical location, frequency (or channel), and call letter.

This book is more than just a listing of stations, however. Important statistics such as power (day and night), height of antennas, and sharing of time with other stations are given. Also listed is the network affiliation for each station. Educational stations are designated, as are fm stations broadcasting stereo.

Regardless of your interest in radio and television, this book is a must for you. If you are traveling, it will list the stations broadcasting your favorite network in the area—or tell you what stations are in the city or state you are in. If you enjoy pulling in distant stations (DX'ing), this book will quickly help you identify each signal. For the radio and television time buyer, and others engaged in broadcasting activities, this book serves myriad uses. Each listing has been checked and rechecked, making this the most accurate and up-to-date guide available.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Vane A. Jones is engaged in many activities, but his first love is this book. Whenever possible, you will find him in his study, with a television set and two or three radios all operating at once. He can recite call letters and tell you the history of stations by the hour. He has prepared seven previous editions—the first was published in 1958 as a result of his DX'ing activity. With each edition, his list of followers grows, primarily because of the personal attention he gives each entry and the hairline accuracy and completeness for which he is famous.
