VOTE FOR YOUR FAVORITE STARS

WHO WILL BE RADIO'S 1937 STAR OF STARS? YOUR VOTES WILL PROVIDE THE ANSWER!

SOMEWHERE, in New York or Chicago or Hollywood, a youngish fellow slumps in a big chair and looks bored—although a pretty girl is singing to him. And he gets paid for it! Almost anywhere—in your own home town, probably—a radio-station manager sits behind a screen and listens to young hopefuls pouring their hearts into a microphone. And he gets paid for that, too.

These are talent scouts—of the movies and of radio. They select the stars you'll hear tomorrow. They draw great salaries, and they're worth them. For they know what makes a star—what it is in a comedian that makes people laugh; what a singer needs to make people cry. They know a "find" when they see one.

Maybe you know, too. Perhaps your judgment is as good as theirs. If you think so—here's your chance to find out!

Right now, a huge cross-section of America's radio listeners are selecting the Star of Stars of radio for 1937. They are also choosing the leaders in fourteen other fields of air entertainment. This is the annual Star of Stars poll conducted by RADIO GUIDE—the greatest listener-poll in the country!

THE stars chosen by this vast listening jury are the ones the talent scouts would have chosen—if they had been perfect. For the scouts must know what the greatest number of average American listeners want.

You can test yourself as a talent scout—like this: Vote now in the Star of Stars election. Vote for the one entertainer who has pleased you most during the past year—call him or her your own Star of Stars. Then, in each of the other fourteen groups, vote again—for whatever star or program you think best in that group. Sign your name, add your address, and send the ballot to the Star of Stars Election Tellers, RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Illinois. The ballot will not be counted unless you put both your name and address on it.

Then, when the election is over, see how close you came to picking the exact list that you and thousands of other listeners everywhere have named as the greatest on the air. If, at the end of the election, your favorites have won—you're the makings of a talent scout! For all it takes to be a professional in that business is to know what others like you will appreciate and enjoy. See how good a judge you are—vote today! And don't forget to sign your name and put your address on the ballot!

BY JACK
SMALLEY

Dick was a gay host on the air—but his heart cried "Stop!"

AFTER nearly three years as master of ceremonies at that popular radio resort, "Hollywood Hotel," Dick Powell was suddenly listed among the missing.

No longer was Dick on hand to welcome guests, flirt with Frances Langford or Anne Jamison, and toss light-hearted quips with Louella Parsons, "the first lady of Hollywood."

Rumors began to fly on every vagrant breeze out of film-land. Why had Dick checked out of Hollywood Hotel? Was he "given the air"? Was there a quarrel between him and Louella? Or was it illness, temperament—or something else that sent him away? Those questions have plagued radio fans—until RADIO GUIDE decided to lift the curtain on the mystery.

And here, not only are the answers, but another scoop as well. For behind the scenes has been going on a secret enterprise which may revolutionize the movie-radio set-up and lead to a new regime.

RADIO GUIDE has been given all the facts—with permission to announce—for the first time in any periodical, the full story of the first major attack in the inevitable war between movies and radio.

Dick Powell, unwittingly, found himself in the center of the conflict and the innocent reason for the war.

All the gossip about trouble in Hollywood Hotel, then, is nothing but a smoke screen over an intensive campaign in preparation for a move that upsets the radio apple-cart, and will eventually bring the clashing forces of the movies versus the radio to a peaceful understanding.

The fight all sums up to this: People who stay home to hear radio programs don't buy tickets at the movie theaters.

OF course, there are other problems, too. The radio pays big salaries, and offers steady employment. A star works once a week on the air; every day at the studio. Making a picture and, at the same time, broadcasting is a man-killing job, as any star can tell you. But, beyond that, there are the objections of twenty thousand exhibitors. In the case of Dick Powell, too many people stayed home to hear him on the radio instead of coming down to the theater to see Dick Powell that same night on the screen. That was the exhibitors' contention, anyway.

When Dick Powell came to Bill Bacher, producer of the Hollywood Hotel program, and said, "Look here, I'm worn out. My voice is tired. I'm not the gay fellow you hired. I want to quit," he was telling the truth.

But actually he had precipitated the first major offensive taken by a film studio to cope with the powerful forces of radio. Warner Brothers had decided it was time to act. Although Dick still had two years to go on his contract with the Hotel, his studio contract actually gave Warners a prior right. And they had a long-planned move in mind.

Because that move has a vital bearing on what you are going to hear on the radio in the future, let's go behind the scenes and follow the development of the Warner Brothers flank attack.

The Big Idea was born last June. Instead of worrying about inroads radio was making on movie profits, why not steal a march and combine radio with pictures? Take your stars, put them into your own radio program, and sell it for important money! Use this talent yourself, instead of permitting it to be worn out by other sponsors. In a word, control your competition.

So Warners hired a wily general—Martin Gosch—and got busy. Deals were made with Trans-American Broadcast and Television Corporation, for an ally was needed.

Marty Gosch brought Don Becker out and put him to work writing a show. That show would need a master of ceremonies, and who else could that be but Dick Powell?

The program was to be built around

ILLNESS? TEMPERAMENT? JEALOUSY? NO—DICK LEFT HIS SHOW BECAUSE OF A HOLLYWOOD FEUD. HERE'S THE STORY OF DICK AND THAT FEUD

stars and studios, and take radio fans right into the sets, whisk 'em about the lot to pick up all the glamor, excitement, and gossip of a big studio. It was to be called "Dick Powell in Movieland," to catch the Alice-in-Wonderland spirit of the program.

Such a scheme was too good to give out. Secrecy veiled every move, for fear other studios might grab it.

Now the entire program is ready. It has been filmed, using the new ultra-violet film that gives an amazing fidelity and range of sound. Dick Powell is the master of ceremonies, assisted by Allen Jenkins and Rosalind Marquis, who will be the backbone of each show. Edward G. Robinson, Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart—all are in that first show.

Here you've got big names, variety, plus a sure-fire theme. Leo Forbstein's huge orchestra provides the music. But the big advantage is this: The whole show can be filmed at times convenient to the players, between pictures or on off days. Using film to record it, the reproduction is perfect. Instead of wearing out the star, there is no undue tax on his energies. Scenes from forthcoming pictures will advertise movies and bring the radio fan into the theater—and the show can be timed so that a theater attraction does not have to compete with a radio attraction featuring the same star the night his movie production is showing.

This move switches the balance of power to Warner Brothers.

What it will do to revise the entire battle-front of the movies against radio can be guessed.

It was Jack Warner, head of the studio, who, with his brothers, threw the industry into revolution by introducing sound. They made the first talkie with Al Jolson. It broke the all-time box-office record of six million dollars.

"Dick Powell in Movieland," first all-studio enterprise in radio, will have results as far-reaching.

The trail has now brought us back to Dick and Hollywood Hotel. As you can see, the under-cover developments at the studio sooner or later would certainly embroil Dick Powell himself.

It is significant to point out that Hollywood Hotel was among the first to invade the movies and, through famed Louella Parsons, bring screen stars into radio.

At first, Hollywood Hotel wasn't a very popular resort. Two years ago the records placed it around 35 to 40 on the list of favorites.

Then dynamic Bill Bacher was brought out to produce the show. In a month or so he had yanked it out of the cellar and put it up among the five leaders, where it ranks today.

Bacher's first job to put the show across was to promote unity. With Louella, Dick Powell, Frances Langford—all big names, all in a sense competing for the spotlight—Bill had to weld them into a compact unit.

You don't know Bill, and you never hear him on the air. He's the slender chap with a shock of light hair who stands beside the mikes, weaving, gesturing, nodding, molding the whole show into a swift, harmonious torrent of sound. The whole thing rests on his shoulders.

BACHER produced "Show Boat," with Charlie Winninger, and thereby learned something important. He saw what happened when an entire show was built about one star, Cap'n Henry, and that star left the program.

Therefore none of the Hollywood Hotel stars was given an option on the spotlight.

I don't doubt that this irked Dick. It also must have bothered Louella. Yet, in time, Bill won them all over. As a result, when Dick Powell lost his voice, and went off the air, the show sailed merrily on. You even felt that Dick was still on it, for he was always mentioned. The rest of the crew was put on its mettle to make up for the loss. When Dick recovered and came back to the Hotel,

The Only Authorized Life

SMILING THROUGH CHILDHOOD TEARS, TODAY'S "MOTHER" IN "ONE MAN'S FAMILY" BROUGHT MOMENTS OF CHEER—IN VAIN!

BY LOUISE LANDIS

Above: Little Minetta Ellen rebelled against monotonous tasks and knitting "miles of afghans" when she lived with a fearsome grandmother after her parents separated. But today's airline "Fanny Barbour" knits for fun!

Years on a lonely farm and in a back-alley housekeeping room made no imprint on Minetta. Youth gave her a bright smile, a gay laugh!

WHEN the "One Man's Family" cast journeyed to Hollywood to undergo film tests preparatory to the screening of the Royal Family of Radio the members were called together just before they left for home. "You're all going back to San Francisco by train or automobile, aren't you?" a Paramount executive asked them collectively, and a bit anxiously. "Sure," they said—all but Minetta. That small, white-haired sprite whom radio audiences all over America know as the serene and lovely Fanny Barbour, ideal mother of the microphone, was industriously powdering her nose. She caught the executive's anxious eyes—and winked. It was the only reply he managed to elicit from her, but when she reached the flying-field that afternoon she met him at the door of the plane. "You can't fly in this weather," he sputtered. "It's going to be written into your contract! You have to stay out of planes—"

"Shoo!" said Fanny Barbour, pushing past him and seating herself in a chair behind the pilot. She came into the world on the wings of a storm, did Minetta Ellen, and her life has been filled with so many strange contrasts, so many strange victories and defeats, that it's little wonder she disdains fear. When you ask her to tell you the philosophy upon which she has founded half a century of living, loving, striving and giving, she's apt to quote some lines of Robert Francis:

*Life the Hound
Equivocal,
Comes at a bound
Either to rend me
Or to befriend me;
I cannot tell
The Hound's intent
Till he has sprung
At my bare hand
With teeth or tongue.
Meanwhile I stand
And wait the event.*

ON THE air she's the poised, confident mother whose strength binds the Barbour family together in unwavering love, the sheltered woman who has walked a conventional road. But when you know some of the things that have happened to Minetta Ellen you know why this gallant, white-haired lady regards life as a hound of doubtful intent. Not in bitterness, for there's never been a touch of bitterness in Minetta Ellen's heart. From earliest childhood she has had a strange power to mold the lives of other persons for good . . . and a strange inability to direct her own where she wanted it to go. Her own sense of justice or her affection for somebody, even her sense of humor—and what a sense of humor she has!—have been some of the obstacles in her way. She has known great love and she has known terrible betrayal. She has known the sickening feeling of defeat that middle age, coming before you have achieved any of the things you set out to achieve, can bring—and on the other hand she has known the sudden miracle of finding all that you wanted laid in your lap when you least expected it.

BORN in the midst of a storm, she has lived in one much of her life, and yet out of it she has fought her way to the calmness and beauty that makes the character of Fanny Barbour so universally loved. She came into the world on January 17, 1880, in a small, half-finished farmhouse on an Iowa homestead. Her father, a farmer who loved music better than he did farming, had taken Minetta's mother and their two little sons to the homestead, sure of making a success of the venture. But Winter set in, the fierce Iowa Winter, long before the house was completed.

The new baby wasn't expected for some time, and few preparations for Minetta's advent had been made when she arrived. No doctor could make his way through the storm, but the indomitable strain of the women in Minetta's family is something to wonder at. The mother and the mite of a girl lived, though snow drifted on their bed before morning came.

Six weeks later the entire family was on a train, bound for Ohio. The musician-farmer had given up the struggle against the elements and was returning to country he knew better. The tiny baby girl developed whooping-cough on the train and almost died. But between strangling coughs, she cooed delightedly at every bright object that she saw.

IN THE years that followed, everybody who knew little Minetta marveled at her good nature. Her parents settled on a farm at Independence, Ohio, near Cleveland. The district thereabouts contained a large settlement of German families, and before she was six years old Minetta had discovered them. She loved the big family groups, the plenitude of children, and the thick, rich soup and German pancakes they provided in such abundance. Once her mother, coming in search of her errand daughter, found the tiny thing standing on an improvised platform of boards in a big barnyard, with a group of the friendly Germans around her. "Show us, Minetta, show us!" called one of them, and Minetta's piping voice immediately responded with such an authentic imitation of the speaker that the group laughed with delight.

"Nein, nein, let her stay and sing for us!" they pleaded when Minetta's mother appeared. Curious about this new development in the youngster's character, she sat down and listened while for half an hour the small girl kept the crowd laughing and applauding. From that time on Minetta's unusual gifts were recognized. Her father taught her to sing, and on the rare occasions when he went to Cleveland, he took her with him. Sometimes they attended a theater, and for days afterward Minetta re-enacted all that she had seen for her playmates and their parents. Eagerly she performed for anyone who would watch, and when no audience was about, she sang or recited all by herself.

Nobody in her immediate circle ever dreamed of putting this unusual gift to any permanent use. A stage career for a girl was out of the question; her mimicry and her songs and dances were thought funny, but nothing more.

One grown-up took Minetta seriously. He was Andrew Jackson Spencer, famous figure of his generation, whose name is still recalled with admiration in Cleveland. He was secretary for twenty-three years of the Cleveland fire department and owner of Cataract House in South Cleveland—then called Newbgr.

MUSIC was a casual profession in those days, and Minetta's father, though unable to make a living at it, was often called upon to play for dances and similar occasions at the Cataract House. Once he took Minetta with him. Spencer lifted the tiny blond girl high, looked at her face.

"I wish you belonged to me," he said simply—and Minetta, awed but not frightened by the tall, handsome, well-dressed man, laid her tiny cheek against his. Then she slipped down to the floor, and out of sheer exuberance began to sing one of her little songs. Thereafter, every time her father was called to Cataract House, Minetta and her mother received a special invitation to accompany him.

Spencer scarcely noticed Minetta's mother, courteous as he always was to women; his eyes were all for the small girl who accompanied her. But events were occurring which were to change the lives of all of them. Minetta's parents were completely mismatched, and tragic quarrels were growing more and more frequent between them. Child as she was, Minetta would feel the family atmosphere growing thick and tense. And little as she was would try to avert the angry words which were quivering on two tongues by breaking out into some quaint bit of mimicry, some song she had just learned. A mere child, desperately smiling and clowning to try to make the two grown-ups smile, too! Sometimes she succeeded; frequently, the quarrel would only be postponed until she had gone to bed.

Her two older brothers would listen, too, and sometimes the three children would cling together in silent misery at the top of the staircase. Then came the last bitter night, a night which affected the sensitive little girl for years. At the close of a long quarrel, Minetta's mother came upstairs and her father flung himself out of the farmhouse door.

"We're going away," the mother told the child crouching on the floor in fear. She began to pack, and Minetta dressed in dumb anguish. She asked about her brothers.

"They will stay here with your father," her mother said briefly. And presently she took the little girl by the hand and led her down the staircase, out of the house.

MINETTA'S father came around the barn and stared at them as they turned out the farm gate. Minetta looked back at him with a strange, unchildlike knowledge of what was happening. She knew that the unhappy man standing there didn't really believe she and her mother were going; knew, too, that she never was going to see him again. She saw him lift his sleeve and wipe his eyes . . . and it was over. A new chapter of life had begun.

For several months Minetta and her mother lived with friends on an adjoining farm. Then they went to Pennsylvania, to live with her grandmother. They arrived at a big, trim farmhouse presided over by a wisp of a woman who weighed 85 pounds. She had borne seven children and outlived all of them except Minetta's mother. The countryside about her farm was the most beautiful Minetta had ever seen—rolling green hills, well-kept fields—but empty. There were no children to play with, only religious lessons and "tasks," as the old lady called them.

"Tasks!" says Minetta today with her irresistible chuckle. "She taught me to knit—I knitted miles of afghans—and to make quilts and to sew. She was the most unlovable, admirable woman I have ever known, and yet I have to bow before her memory when I recall that thanks to her I could make all my own daughter's dresses in later life—make them better than a professional dressmaker!"

HER grandmother frightened the child continually by her talk of a vengeful God, although Minetta was sure that Grandmother wouldn't be a bit afraid of Him, herself. She saw the old lady go out into a terrific thunderstorm many times to look for lost cattle because she couldn't trust the farm-hands to find them. Once the elderly woman and the child were on their way to the spring-house, when a rattlesnake rustled in the path ahead of them, rattling its warning.

"Get out of my way!" said the old lady irritably, prodding the reptile.

"And it got!" says Minetta, still awed a bit after all these years. The lonely little girl used to climb the beautiful green hills, one after another, and scan them for possible companions, every time she escaped from Grandmother and "tasks." Sometimes she lay on the grass and watched the clouds drifting overhead, seeing imaginary faces in them . . . The faraway tinkle of a cowbell was all she heard.

Then her grandmother died, and the little girl and her mother went back to Cleveland. Almost overnight, the frail, ailing child bloomed again.

But Minetta and her mother were very poor now. She calls this, with one of her delightful twinkles, "the back-alley period of my life." She and her mother lived in housekeeping rooms in a dilapidated house in a small alley. From here her mother went daily to a hotel where she mended linens and other articles.

Not much like the atmosphere of warmth and comfortable living Fanny Barbour creates in One Man's Family—Fanny, the wife of a prosperous businessman and mistress of a household where mean things are never al-

Love made Minetta's mother take her baby with her when she left her husband. Together they faced loneliness and poverty; together they bolstered flagging spirits loved to intrude.

But surroundings meant little to Minetta, who was agog with the excitement of being back in the world of people again.

THERE was the joy of attending a real city school. She was a pupil at the Walnut school, famous Cleveland public school in whose classrooms so many notable Cleveland citizens have learned their three R's, and whose alumni conventions are attended by men and women from all over the United States.

Minetta was eleven years old by this time, and her love for human beings began to take on a more definite form. It became a desire to help, to comfort and to mother. Herself the child of a broken home, she had a consuming passion for gathering hungry, soiled and lonely youngsters, skinny alley cats and flea-bitten dogs about her. As fast as they accumulated they were sent about their business by her tired, hard-worked mother. But Minetta never lost heart, and never for a moment did she falter in her passion to give succor. Dirty young street urchins were lured into the house and doused in a wash-basin (there was no bathtub), scrubbed and turned loose. "It was the only bath some of them ever had," she laughs. "My mother used to come home to find a strange youngster in the basin and tell me, 'Minetta, these children will die of pneumonia—they're not used to water!'"

And then there was the pale, frightened girl of 16 who one day came to the rear entrance of the hotel where Minetta's mother was employed. In the girl's arms was a baby, just a few months old. The girl's family had disowned her because of her nameless child and now she sought work.

What fateful part does this homeless baby play in Minetta Ellen's life? How does Andrew Jackson Spencer come again to change her destiny? Read Part II of Fanny Barbour's life story next week!

Minetta Ellen may be heard as "Fanny Barbour" on "One Man's Family" over an NBC network on Wednesdays at 8 p.m. EST (7 CST; 6 MST; 5 PST), and on Sundays for the West Coast at 9:30 p.m. PST (10:30 MST).

TWENTY-FOUR hours in a day. 366 days in 1936. 24 times 366 is, uh, 8,784. And 8,784 divided by 133 is—just about—66. One prize every 66 hours during 1936.

Not bad, not bad. Still, I've done better—and I shall again. Yep, you've guessed it: I'm a "professional" prize winner.

I'm the fellow whose hard-earned prizes are withheld and eventually paid to other people if certain prize contest-sponsors' "investigators" turn up the fact that I win "too often," whose neatly typed entries are bounced out, without a hearing, by certain other sponsors on the theory that, being neat, they can't possibly be "simon pure," and whose very name is a pain in the neck to still other sponsors who award their prizes after careful consideration of the map of the United States rather than of the entries in the contest, and who want, most desperately, to pay their money to a new crop of contestars each time, the idea being that the prize will serve as a bribe so flattering to the recipient that he will go on using the sponsor's product until the end of time—be it ever so punk.

I know them all—these meanest men in all the world, contest sponsors who cheat when it comes to the awarding of their prize money—their names, addresses, methods, judges and merchandise. Cheat? Certainly. They all advertise, over their names, that everyone is eligible and that prizes

Don't stop trying, says this champion contestar! If your first 14 entries fail—get busy on No. 15!

You can't get words out of the air! It takes effort!

everyone else might as well quit, because the prize is already in the bag—mine! And how reckless they've been with their decimal points in "estimating" my winnings!

AS A result, I get letters from disgruntled losers who berate me because I win. One, not so long ago, even took occasion to refer to my "ill-gotten gains." Others insist that I write "winning entries" for them, because "it will only take a few minutes" of my time, of which I have lots, while they have to work for a living. When I write back, quite respectfully, that I have my own troubles and little enough of that precious thing, time, and that winning entries aren't pulled out of hats like rabbits, they come right back at me—scorchingly—to the general effect that they don't believe a word I say and that I'm only trying to "hog it all" for myself.

Still others seek to cajole me into letting them in on my "secrets of winning"—my "magic formula," if you please.

"Magic formula." Bunk!
"Infallible." Rot!
"Professional." No such thing!
I'm getting sick of it. It isn't true.

It isn't decent. It isn't fair, to me or to anyone concerned. All these rosy tales of super-men and super-women who collect fabulous fortunes from prize contesting as easily and as casually as one might pluck a rose are lokum of the first water. Still, if they resulted only in my personal discomfort they wouldn't matter. I can take it.

BUT they don't stop there. They create, in the minds of hundreds of thousands who have tried a few contests and failed to win, the impression that they might just as well quit because the "slickers" get it all, anyhow. They discourage other hundreds of thousands to a point where they won't even try. The sum total of it all amounts to this: Contests themselves are in danger. If enough people absorb the wholly unfair and entirely wrong impressions created by this bungling ballyhoo, this misleading misinformation, this fantastic fiction, contests will die from lack of support.

I don't want them to die—the honest ones, that is. I like 'em.

Hence, this article. It is designed as a debunker. Its purpose is to tell how I, a "professional" (how I hate that word!) prize winner, got that way. To present me as I really am—as just plain folks, like you, and you—and you.

Listen: Education: High school and two years post-graduate work manuring horses in the army during the war. Job: 44 hours per week 50 weeks in the year in a humdrum office, just like yours. Mental equipment: One run-of-the-mill brain, just like yours, and yours. That's all.

that, either. In fact, I didn't know much of anything. If anyone ever started from scratch, I did.

In my first year I won five prizes, for a grand total of $17. I spent double that on postage alone.

Last year, one prize every 66 hours. Yes, I win—now. And why shouldn't I?

I stuck to it. I kept trying. I worked, and worked, and worked. I had no "lessons." I had to learn to use my head for something besides a lump on which to place a hat. I had to learn to take the words in the dictionary and string them together in unusual ways. I had to learn to respect the competition I was up against. Yes, I worked. I still do. There is no magic formula. Once in a blue moon I get an inspiration—an idea born with a full set of teeth and a complete wardrobe, so to speak—but those are the exceptional cases. Usually, I have to dig. And I do. I pace the floor. I claw at my skull. I go for long walks in the night air.

I spend hours hunting a thought that's worthy of being called a thought, or in piecing together the vital phrase or two necessary to put a punch in a short statement; the precious "twist" that will make it one of several hundred winners instead of one of several hundred thousand losers.

I was never "lucky." My number never comes up on bank night, and when someone raffles a car I never come within a hundred thousand of the winning number. And I have no "tricks," no "monkey business," no "secrets." I don't do it with mirrors. I just work. I earn every prize I win. I've just finished writing 3,000 words—count 'em: three thousand

Why should you win? Do you honestly think you earned a prize?

Once more: I work! Well, is that a crime? Does that make me a professional? Uncle Henry worked just as hard in reducing his dub's golf score of 136 to the sparkling 81 it is now, but no one calls him a professional on that account. Jesse Owens got a free trip to Berlin because he can do 100 meters faster than anyone else, but that didn't make him a professional runner. Why, then, am I a professional because I get a free trip to Kokomo when I happen to do 100 words better than anyone else?

Professional! No such thing! It's a hobby, Mr. Crooked Sponsor and Mr. Haek Writer—that, and nothing more—just like Uncle Henry's golf and Grandma's knitting. It becomes a profession only when I elect to try making a living at it. And I have no such intention. My "profession" is my 44-hour job.

AS for my fabled "infallibility," everybody has heard of my "fabulous winnings," but what of the times I lose? Ah, that's another story! 133 prizes last year: that's the rosy side, the publicized side. But what of the 403 times I lost? If you, Mr. O. Cas-sional of Mightan, Maine, tried four contests last year and won one prize, you licked me. Your average was an even 25 percent—better than mine.

Infallible! Rot! When I lose—I really lose!

This is a first-person story, but nearly everywhere you find an "I" you can substitute "We" instead, for I'm speaking for my kind as well as myself, the tens of thousands who win several dozen or more prizes each year

Golf? Knitting? Stamp collecting?

What's that? Oh. You want to know about the sponsors. Mr. and Mrs. or Miss Beginner, I'd give the best prize I'm going to win all month to be able to list the dishonest ones right here, in alphabetical order, in nice, plump, red letters. They have it coming.

How do they get that way? True, they've been gypped a time or two—but is that any reason for taking it out on the whole human race?

You can find out who they are—if you're really interested. Do this: Study the winning lists, in the newspapers, the magazines, the drug stores and the groceries. Note the names and addresses in your town, particularly the addresses. If you're observing, before very long you'll catch the same name, or address, or both, several times in quick succession. When you do, it's ten to one you've found a regular winner of contest prizes—like me. Chances are, however, that it will be a "she."

NOW, use your tact. Write a sincere note, explaining that you are interested in contests and would greatly appreciate some help and information. If you can convince the regular that you are not trying to get her to write your entries for you, or tell you all her "magic secrets," it's 100 to 1 you'll find her very patient and helpful. I've said we're just folks—and we are.

She won't write your entries for you, because she has trouble enough, what with Willie's sore throat and friend husband's socks in need of darning, to find time to write her own. And she won't tell you her "magic formula," because she hasn't any. But she will give you some very sound advice and some very helpful tips. And she'll tell you all about the dishonest sponsors.

For she knows them, too. We all do. Make no mistake about it, Mr. Investigating Company, and Mr. Geographical Company and Mr. Neat-Entry-Rejecting Company and all others of your ilk—we know. In spite of all your letters of solemn disavowal, we know. And you are all riding for a glorious fall—a fall that will shove you clean out of the contest picture.

We can do so well without you!

YOU see, for every cheat there are a score, or a hundred, who play the game on a four-square basis. Local newspapers who run contests to build circulation and don't care a rap who wins. The national magazines—bless 'em—who conduct clean, interesting contests, judge them fairly and competently, and pay the first prize to the best entry, no matter who writes it.

Then the honest commercials—on the air, in the newspapers, the magazines—everywhere.

More than you can possibly find time to enter! And all strictly on the level.

Why dabble with the dishonest sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Beginner? They've given us, the "old hands," some roaring headaches and some bitter disappointments. And I repeat, there are more honest contests than you can possibly find time to work on—if you intend to win.

Mr. Sorehead, Mr. Skeptic, Mrs. Doubting Thomas, I hope you understand things—and me—a little better. No Magic—No Mirrors—No Monkey Business. I win because I have more experience than you, because I try harder than you, and because I try oftener, and for no other reason in this world.

What I can do, you can do. Come on in!

will be paid to the best entries—and they don't mean a word of it. Cheating? False advertising! More about these gentry later.

I know, too, the other kind—the square-shooters. The hundreds of sponsors who conduct clean, honest, fairly and competently judged contests and pay the prizes, as advertised, to the best entries. Good old honest sponsors! Three heartfelt cheers and a whole bouquet of orchids, from me, to them. More about them, too—later.

Just now I want to talk about myself. It's not my habit, and as a matter of personal preference I'd rather not. But I'm on a spot, put there by certain people who, having no business of their own to attend to, have elected to mind mine for me. People who have seen "copy" in me and my winnings—chances for "stories"—and what stories they've written!

I've been pictured as a super-super-magician, who has only to reach out into thin air to pluck just the proper set of words to snare a thumping big prize any time I care to try a contest. I'm absolutely infallible! When I start,

You might as well throw away your entries as send them to certain dishonest sponsors! But Mrs. Housewife has as good a chance as anyone else in honest contests—if she knows how to work hard!

Like everyone else, I had spare time. And like hundreds of thousands of others, I wanted to do something with it. I might have turned to golf, or raising pedigreed cats, or stamp collecting, or knitting afghans, like Grandma does. But I didn't; I turned to contesting instead. For no particular reason. I just did.

"And he lived happily—and prosperously—ever after." Did I? Yes, I did not. It wasn't that simple.

I had a dictionary, but I didn't know how to use the words in it. I had a brain, but I didn't know how to use words—as an entry in a contest which, though it is open to everyone from coast to coast and border to border, yet offers but four prizes, the top one being $50. Indeed, I work!

Remember that, Mrs. Slipshod, the next time you enter a contest. There is no "easy" money—in contests or anywhere else. How could you expect that utterly dull statement you dashed off in the ten minutes between the time you rushed in from the matinee and the time you skipped out to dinner to win anything, when I and fifty thousand like me are really trying?

and the smaller but still quite respectable number who top a hundred. We are all—just folks.

Men who work for a living in the time-honored 8-hours-per-day fashion. Housewives in the literal and more laborious sense of the word, with cooking, kids and confusion to make it tougher for them to win. Just people—not magicians.

Come on in! It's swell! I'm sure you're welcome! Of course, you'll have to work at it if you hope to win—but doesn't anything that's worth doing involve a certain amount of work?

WHO'S AFRAID OF FLYING?

"ANDY" OF "AMOS 'N' ANDY" FACED DEATH ABOVE THE CLOUDS—SWORE HE'D NEVER FLY AGAIN—BUT HE DID!

Freeman (Amos) Gosden (left) and Charles (Andy) Correll were bored at Palm Springs

LATE the other night, Charles Correll was driving along Sunset Boulevard, west of Beverly Hills, California, when sudden death loomed in front of him.

Perhaps he was thinking of his next day's stint as "Andy" to Freeman Gosden's "Amos" on the "Amos 'n' Andy" show.

Perhaps he was thinking of a short airplane flight on which he was planning to take some friends.

One thing is certain: He was not trying to fly along that road in his car.

West of Beverly Hills, Sunset Boulevard is a winding, hilly thoroughfare, four cars wide. Like many a California boulevard, it is dimly lighted. But, like most well-traveled California roads, it has a white line down its center, defining the traffic lanes. Charlie was well over on his own side of the white line.

Approaching a sharp curve and a hill, he saw the headlights of an oncoming car. Just as he arrived at the curve and was about to round it, the other driver reached its opposite end.

"He must have been going all of sixty miles an hour, and he was on the wrong side of the road," Charlie continues. "He couldn't avoid hitting me head-on. I tried to do something about it—with my heart where my tonsils used to be. I grabbed the gear handle, jammed my machine into second, stepped on the gas, and headed for the bank of the road. All in a split second. But it wasn't fast enough. He hit the back end of my running-board and my back fender—sheared 'em off as if they were cardboard—and swung my car around. By the time I stopped, side-tilted on the road-bank, he was three blocks away, streaking out of sight."

WHEN Charlie arrived home—still in one piece, but beaded with clammy perspiration—he told Mrs. Correll about his close call. And added, indignantly: "You take your life in your hands every time you take a car out! The roads are crowded with maniacs! I'd like to be able to do all my traveling by air!"

The next morning, on his way into the city to have his car repaired, Charlie was passing a side street posted with a stop-sign, when a speeder bowled past the sign and smashed into him broadside. Nobody killed, nobody injured. But the car was towed from there on in.

"I'm getting so that I'm scared purple at the thought of driving," says Charlie, in all seriousness. "I've had those two narrow squeaks myself, through no fault of my own. And every time I pick up a paper, I see that some more people have been killed in auto accidents.

YOU may be a careful driver—may have your car under control every minute. But how about the other fellow? You never know what he may do . . .

"Now, in the air, it's different. If you're piloting, yourself, and obey the rules, you're all right. You don't have to worry about anybody else. And if you're riding in a big passenger plane, you're as safe as a babe in a cradle. Passenger pilots don't take any chances. And the planes today are as strong as bank vaults.

"Did you know that, according to the law of averages, you can fly five hours a day, every day in the year, for thirty-six years, before you'll be in an accident in a modern passenger plane? If you don't believe me, look up the statistics!"

Charlie's enthusiasm isn't the fervor of the new convert. He has been this way for more than a year now, even if he hasn't told why for publication before. He has had a plane of his own for months. He has more than 275 hours as a pilot behind him.

And two years ago he swore he'd never go up in a small plane again!

"Amos—my partner—and I were in Roanoke, Virginia," he recounts. "We had to be in Charleston, West Virginia, in a hurry for a theater engagement. So we chartered a private ship. Remember those flimsy crates that they used to call airplanes? Well, this was one of that breed. We didn't like the looks of it, but it was the only thing available. So we took it.

"Before we left Roanoke, we were told at the airport that we might run into 'some snow flurries' around Charleston. That should have warned us to wait over, even if the show didn't go on for once. But no—we set out.

"We didn't run into 'snow flurries'; we bumped into a blizzard. A mountain gale, whipping snow at us from all sides. And fog. Regular cotton-battling fog. The pilot thought we'd fly through it after a few miles. But we didn't. Then we were in trouble in earnest. His compass wasn't working. We didn't know where we were, which was bad enough, but we didn't even know where we were going!

"We circled around and flew this way and that, bouncing all over the sky in that section of the country. And when I say 'bounce,' I mean BOUNCE. Every few minutes we'd hit a down-draft, lose altitude, and have to start climbing again. Once we dropped two-thousand feet—plomp!—like that." He brought his right palm from a height down to his left, with a smack. "I told myself that if I ever got out of that plane, I'd never do such a fool stunt again.

FINALLY, after about a couple of hours—maybe centuries—we spotted a hole in the fog. We saw a river through the hole. We told the pilot to dive down and make a landing. If there wasn't anything in sight except the river—well, we were willing to swim. But he found a pasture and dropped into that. We discovered that we were near White Sulphur Springs. We hired a car to take us on from there. I never wanted another ride in a small plane, even in fair weather."

Charles Correll is happiest at the controls of his plane. He claims that flying is safer than riding in a car because you don't have to worry about speeders, careless drivers—or the car ahead or behind!

"Amos" (left) and "Andy" with "Andy's" wife—Mrs. Correll. She has to listen to all of her famous husband's theories on how safe flying can be made!

What can have changed his mind?
 "Well, my partner and I came out to the Coast for a little vacation. We went to Palm Springs, out on the desert. A beautiful spot for relaxing. There isn't much you can do there except swim and play golf and read and go horseback-riding. It's too hot to do anything very strenuous. And Amos and I craved a little painless action. So one day we wandered over to the Palm Springs airport, went up for a couple of rides, then decided to learn something about this business of flying. We both got as far as soloing there.

"After we got back to country where tennis was really possible again, Amos forgot about airplanes. But I still was pepped up about flying. I thought there was nothing like it, and I still think so. Boy, what a feeling to get up a few thousand feet, completely away from the world, and look down! Your worries dwindle into nothingness. There isn't a thing to harass you, distract you, disturb you. You're out of harness, feasting your eyes on limitless horizons . . .

WENT in for some advanced instruction. And I had a very good instructor in Chicago—C. 'Slim' Freitag. He taught Wayne King how to fly. In fact, Wayne suggested him to me. 'Slim' drummed safe flying into me—he doesn't teach any other kind—and sold me on it for keeps. There's real pleasure for me, or for anybody else, in safe flying. Underline that word 'safe.'

"My ship has a cruising speed of 135 miles an hour, and a top speed of 150 miles an hour. But I keep it down around 115 or 120. I don't believe in pushing a motor—automobile, airplane or outboard. Or human. A heart can stand only so much pushing. And an airplane motor is the same way. I'll take things easy, nurse my motor, and be there only a couple of minutes behind the other fellow.

"When I do go up, I go high. I can see more—and there's safety in altitude. If anything should go wrong, I'd have more of a chance to pick a landing-spot."

Not that there is much danger that anything will go wrong with Charlie's plane.

"It's built by a company that sells to the government and the big airlines. This means that, structurally, it has passed the stiffest possible tests. And it's equipped with all the safety gadgets, to insure happy landings.

"They tell me that if the ship should ever get out of control, go into a spin, take a nose dive, I wouldn't have to do a thing except sit tight. I could forget all the levers, drop my hands in my lap, and the plane would straighten out and stabilize itself, if I had altitude enough to give the automatic controls time to work.

"If fire should ever break out in the motor—and the odds are against its breaking out anywhere else—I'd know that it would be snuffed out instantly by an automatic liquid fire extinguisher inside the engine cowling. All airliners have this safety feature, too.

"I have a radio—receiving, not sending. I'm kept informed constantly of weather ahead, wind velocities at various altitudes and the direction of winds prevailing at different heights.

OF COURSE, if the wings of the plane fell off in mid-air, there wouldn't be much that I could do. But that just doesn't happen. The wings of modern planes are built to stand a stress of three to six times the weight of the fuselage, plus the pull of gravity. Benny Howard cracked up in the National Air Races because his propeller flew off. But that was a freak accident. It isn't likely to happen again in a million airplane flights.

"Flying is fast. You can cross the continent in fifteen to twenty hours in a big airliner. Flying is comfortable, with roomy, air-conditioned cabins, easy chairs, even berths. I don't fly my own plane at night (playing safe again!). I like to travel at night, but I never sleep. I get too big a kick out of watching the scenery—seeing the lights of a town appear on the forward horizon, then disappear.

"Those big airliners have twin motors, and they can still fly if just one is turning. They are in constant communication with ground forces by radio telephone; they always know what is ahead. They weigh six tons loaded, but their wings are stressed to carry thirty-six tons. They fly charted routes, with radio beams to keep them on their courses. They never risk such weather as Amos and I saw on that Roanoke-Charleston flight; they'll sit down and wait out a storm first—and, if necessary—send their passengers on past the storm area by train. That's how much they think of their passengers. Airliners just don't struggle through to their destinations, fighting fogs and blizzards, as the movies would have us believe. They have too much at stake.

THE newer insurance policies aren't voided, like the old ones, if you meet death in an airplane. That is, if it is an airliner, flying over a charted course. In fact, when you step aboard an airliner, you can take out a 24-hour accident policy for any amount up to $5,000—at $1.25 per thousand dollars. And there is at least one company that offers a $10,000 aviation-accident policy for $10, effective for a year.

"If the insurance companies are waking up to the fact that flying is safe, I don't see what other people are waiting for. Certainly flying is cheap enough. On any trips over five hundred miles, it is almost as inexpensive as any other mode of travel.

"Practically everyone I know is air-

"Andy" (Charles Correll) won't take chances in his airplane. He figures he wants to "be around a long time yet" and governs his flights accordingly. His bad luck in cars has made him afraid to ride in them

SHE SCOOPED THE WORLD

WHO is the woman radio commentator who first told the world why Rudy Vallee stayed off his own program for the first time in seven years the night after his divorced wife died?

What woman reporter first broke the story about Mrs. Simpson and ex-King Edward on a network which tabooed any mention of the royal romance?

Who is this Adela Rogers St. Johns whose name we've seen in magazines and newspapers and are now hearing on the air?

To Hollywood she is known as the "mother confessor" of the stars, for more secrets have been confided to her than to any other woman who ever lived in Hollywood. It was to her that the heart-broken John Gilbert confessed the real reason why he and Garbo had ended their romance; it was to her and to her alone that Rhea Gable confided the things that caused the breach between herself and Clark Gable; and it was to her that Jean Harlow gave her first interview after the tragic death of Paul Bern.

In the newspaper game they take off their hats to her as a "female Brisbane." She has covered all the big stories of our day, and has flown over the continent many times to get her stories.

As a novelist, she deals with fundamental human emotions—she has written such famous novels as "The Single Standard" and "A Free Soul."

And now as a new and distinctive radio commentator, Adela Rogers St. Johns is scooping the world on the air, just as she has always scooped other reporters in her magazine and newspaper articles. Not that she set out to scoop the world; she wanted simply to comment on personalities in the news from a woman's point of view. But some of the greatest stars, some of the greatest personalities in the world are her friends; and they would rather have Adela Rogers St. Johns interpret them to the world than anyone else.

She is amazingly honest with these world-famous friends of hers, speaking her mind freely and letting the chips fall where they may. And instead of resenting this honesty of hers, the flowered pajamas and plain black slippers, and sat before her typewriter.

With only three hours to finish an important rush story, she gave me one of those precious hours. She could have sent me away and told me to come back some other time—it was the only wise and sensible thing to do—and I felt humble and very ashamed and grateful that she hadn't.

"When the story of Mrs. Simpson and the King of England first broke," she told me, "I wanted to talk about it over the air at once. As a newspaper woman I realized this was the story that women everywhere were talking about; but I had to talk on trivial subjects."

For the NBC network had placed a ban of silence on the name and the story of Mrs. Simpson, fearing that any discussion of this question would antagonize Great Britain.

Finally, when the question of Mrs. Simpson became a matter of official import, Adela was allowed to comment. As always she went right to the heart of the question. She pictured King Edward not as a king but as a man in love; Queen Mary not merely as a queen but as a mother who, above everything else, wanted to see her son happy.

Everything in Adela's life conspired to make her a great writer and commentator on human affairs. She was born in San Francisco, the daughter of Earl Rogers, one of the most brilliant criminal lawyers of all times.

He adored Adela. He wanted to clothe her in silk and fine raiment; he sent her to finishing-school; gave her every advantage a girl could have. And that he might do this, he worked as though all the furies were driving him; he did not know what sleep meant—he turned night into day.

DURING her girlhood she often traveled with her father from court to court, and she was so greatly moved by what she saw there that she dreamed of being a criminal lawyer herself. But when she told her father that, he looked at her with his soul in his eyes; he swung her shoulders round so that she faced him, and he said, "I'd rather see you dead."

And so she became a newspaper reporter on the Los Angeles Herald, at $7.50 a week. About three months after becoming a cub reporter, Adela was sent out to cover an important murder trial.

"I was still in my teens, and I was terribly frightened," she told me. "You see, Winifred Black, who was also known as Annie Laurie and who was great stars who are her friends love it, for they know that they can always depend upon her for wise, disinterested advice.

That was how the Rudy Vallee scoop really came about. For five years Adela has been privileged to call Rudy Vallee her friend—and it is not a word she uses lightly. On the day his beautiful ex-wife died, Rudy Vallee hurried to the home on Beekman Place in New York where Adela Rogers St. Johns lives. Unhappy and distraught, he turned to her for advice, wanting to know if she thought he was right in wishing to remain off his radio program that week.

Adela, watching his harassed young face said, "No one will blame you, Rudy, for staying away."

So Rudy paid Fay Webb the great tribute of silence, making no explanation of why he missed that broadcast. And he let only Adela Rogers St. Johns, in her broadcast, explain his absence.

"FOR one," she said, "am glad that he missed that broadcast. Because by his silence he paid the woman he had once dearly loved the greatest tribute he could have paid her. On her grave he laid a wreath of silence. In the intervening years they had had troubles and difficulties, which were wiped out by death. When she was ill, he forgot those troubles and difficulties and remembered only the lovely woman he had worshiped and courted for two years—the woman who was like a dream come true—the woman he adored during the first few months of their marriage."

I went to see Adela Rogers St. Johns at the maisonette on East Fifty-first Street where so many famous people have visited. She wore gaily colored

Adela started reporting for $7.50 per week. But today—one of the greatest newspaper women who ever lived, was covering that trial for the morning papers, and I was doing it for the afternoon papers. I felt that my stories would be horrible beside hers."

And then an amazing thing happened. Annie Laurie seemed to sense the unhappy desperation of the girl who was covering her first big murder case, and instead of snubbing her or disregarding her entirely, she made Adela's problem her own. After each session in the courtroom she would slip down to where Adela sat and say: "Did you notice when So-and-So said such-and-such? I think that would make a swell angle for your story. Here's how I would handle it if I were you."

Today Adela Rogers St. Johns, who is one of the busiest women in the newspaper world, is prodigal of her time with young writers. Sometimes her sons protest lustily against this, telling her that she cannot afford to use up her energy this way.

"I know," she says, "but I can't help it. I can't break the chain that Annie Laurie started."

I knew then why she'd given me an hour that she needed so badly for her own work. It was another link in Annie Laurie's chain.

Since that first murder trial, Adela

Rogers St. Johns has covered hundreds of others. One of the big human-interest stories she covered was the case of Gabrielle Darley, whom her father defended, when the unfortunate girl was accused of slaying her sweetheart. Under the magic of Earl Rogers' pleading, Gabrielle emerged a martyr for whom women wept.

BUT in defending her and others he gave too much of himself, and he died at fifty-two, leaving Adela with only the memory of his courage and spirit to sustain her.

As much as she could, she buried herself in her work. And she wrote her newspaper articles, as she did everything else, with that great fervor which was her heritage from her famous father. Once she wrote a series of articles on the depression for a Los Angeles newspaper. While she wrote those articles, she lived and breathed the role of a poor girl, who worked as a mothers' helper, visited soup kitchens and waited in breadlines. One day, dishevelled, worn out, frantic with hunger, she showed up at the house of a close friend, who quickly gave her some supper. All day she had eaten nothing and at night she had slept in an auto. She wrote a magnificent series of articles exposing the charity organizations that were supposed to help such girls as she had been impersonating.

Rudy Valee: Death and heart-break sent him to Adela. She gave him wise counsel

When she talks on the air, her most interesting comments are not on the news at all but on her own personal experiences—how she felt when she was up in a plane and the plane almost crashed. (She thought: "I don't believe that God will take me yet. I can't be about to die—not while I have so much work to do and my children still need me.") . . . How happy she was because for the first time in three years she was able to spend this Christmas with her children all around the same table . . . How glad she is that electric bills are going down, because sometimes it seems to her that she hops from room to room like a marathon dancer turning out electric lights.

When she talks about these things, you forget that she's a great newspaper woman. She seems to be just like you and me. She could so easily be one of us, for she feels the same way about things as we do, and we laugh and cry with her.

Unlike most news commentators, she doesn't write scripts for her radio broadcasts. She gets up at seven in the morning, reads all the morning papers, and writes voluminous notes on what she is going to say.

The people at the broadcasting studio are always a little worried, knowing

Adela uses fast planes to cover news of a continent that she has no prepared script; and there's a stand-by pianist, ready to go into action in case some morning she should go all to pieces.

ONE morning she almost did. It was one of those terrible mornings when everything goes wrong. Her only daughter, whom she adores, was very ill; her youngest son had hurt his nose, and her oldest son had injured his knee painfully.

Suddenly, as she broadcast, it seemed to her she just couldn't stand it any longer. She blew up in her lines. Great tears rolled down her cheeks.

The program director looked at the engineer. "Shall we tune her out?" he asked.

"I won't do it," said the engineer. "She knows more about what she's doing than any of us, and I'm sure she'll find some way out."

As she stood there, Adela suddenly knew what she must do. She must explain to the audience how it was with her, as though she were talking to a friend, a kindly, congenial friend whose sympathy she sought.

Through her tears, she explained. She shoved aside her notes and said simply: "This is just one of those days when everything seems to have gone wrong. I guess all women have those days sometimes, when nothing seems right, when every time you open your mouth you feel you've said the wrong thing."

The audience loved it. She got more letters about that broadcast than about any other she ever made.

Adela Rogers St. Johns has been married three times. Her first husband was the late Ivan St. Johns. Before she met him, a colleague on her newspaper told her that Ivan St. Johns was away from the office because he had broken his arms going through a window after a story. Two weeks after they met they were married.

The marriage wasn't a happy one. Perhaps Adela and Ivan were too much alike, and therefore couldn't get along, for when you put two high-strung people under the same roof, the result is usually chaos. At any rate, Adela and Ivan were divorced, and later Adela married Richard Hyland, a former Stanford University football player whom she met in Hollywood. Again marriage failed to bring Adela any great happiness, and again she found divorce the only solution.

IN JUNE, 1936, she married Francis P. O'Toole, an official of United Air Lines, and today she says that, having found spiritual peace and contentment with the man she loves, she is perfectly happy.

"I used not to be," she admits frankly. "I always kept thinking that some day I would be happy, when everything was going perfectly. It was Mary Pickford who pointed out to me how foolish I was. Mary and I have been friends for twenty years, and I don't know what I have given to Mary, but this is one of the great things that Mary gave to me. 'You can't wait until things are going right to be happy,' she said, 'for then you might have to wait forever. You have to be happy, anyhow, in your own mind, no matter what is happening.'"

Adela Rogers St. Johns may be heard Monday through Friday over an NBC network at 9:45 a.m. EST (8:45 CST; 7:45 MST; 6:45 PST).

shoulders! It was Officer Kuntze!

WHILE DEATH WAITED

BITTER Winter gripped Newark. And bitter Winter gripped the soul of Margaret Inveareta. A Winter of discontent that made her mind ache with sadness.

She wanted to die.

It was a few minutes to midnight when Margaret opened the window. A December breeze shook the curtains. She threw her leg over the sill, ducked her head under the sash. Up and down the street it was very dark.

"They're all against me," the young woman said. She was alone.

Neither the cold nor the darkness meant much to her as she let herself drop to the hard, flat roof of the porch. She wasn't hurt by the fall—just shaken.

Somewhere in the darkness a riverboat hooted mournfully. Somewhere in the house Margaret thought she heard a woman scream. That would mean somebody had seen her. Better hurry or they would stop her.

Inch by inch, Margaret began to edge towards the cave-trough. The dull pain of the roof against her wrists was like the dull pain in her tortured mind. She moved slowly.

Now the girl could look down upon the iron-hard, frozen ground. In just a few seconds more . . .

But things were happening. Things Margaret didn't know about—happening furiously fast.

She had dropped to the open roof at a few seconds past 11:42. And the thud of her falling body, booming hollowly on that roof, had made a neighbor—the woman whose scream she heard—run to a window. She ran to the telephone and called the police.

At 11:43—less than a minute later—a radio call was blanketing Newark:

"Calling cars 81 and 82 . . . Cars 81 and 82 . . . Go to 395 Summer Avenue . . . A woman is reported about to commit suicide. She is about to leap from a porch roof . . . Cars 81 and 82 . . ."

The two radio patrol cars immediately wheeled and headed towards the address given them. But Car 22 was even faster.

"We're only a few blocks from that place!" said Patrolman F. W. Thiele of Car 22, as the radio dispatcher's voice sounded in their loudspeaker.

"Let's go!" snapped his buddy, Patrolman A. Kuntze, spinning the wheel and skidding their light cruiser around.

At 11:44 Thiele and Kuntze slid to a stop beside the curb in front of 395 Summer Avenue. They had covered five blocks in one minute. They reached their destination less than two minutes after Margaret Inveareta dropped to the roof of the porch!

"There she is now!" Thiele muttered, as they piled out of their radio car.

Dim in the darkness, over their heads upon the high porch roof, they could see the face and form of the girl who wanted to die. Margaret had reached the very edge of the roof now.

YOU talk to her!" snapped Kuntze, "I'll try and sneak up on her before she jumps. Keep her there!"

For a split second that seemed a year, Thiele was tongue-tied. What should you say to keep a young woman from dashing out her brains?

"Hello," said Patrolman Thiele, as he craned his neck.

Margaret leaned forward.

"Don't!" cried Thiele. And then, inspired, he added: "It will hurt!"

The girl on the roof hesitated.

"They're all against me," she told the policeman. Her voice was monotonous, mechanical, but Thiele relaxed just a trifle. He had got her to say something—if only he could keep her talking. He moved directly underneath her.

"If you fell on me," he said coaxingly, "you'd hurt me, too. You don't want to do that, do you?"

From far away there sounded the siren of another police car. Thiele wished they would hurry, then realized that it didn't matter. In a fantastic mental flash, he wished that it were firemen, not policemen, who were on their way, and that they would bring a net to catch the girl in. It was very cold.

"They're all against me," the girl on the roof said again.

"Sure, you're right," said Thiele. "That's what we're here for. We're going to fix it up for you. We're going to take care of you. We're not going to let anybody bother you any more." He spoke as he would to a child.

"Get out of my way," said the girl. "I'm coming down."

"It'll hurt!" Thiele warned again. Then as she hesitated, he added: "How old are you?"

"Twenty-six. Go away."

"Well, you see," said Thiele, "if you were an old woman it would be different. Then your bones would break." He was talking desperately against time now, anything that came into his head, anything to hold the dim interest of that girl on the roof. "You see, old people's bones break. But if you fell just that little distance, you wouldn't die. You'd just get hurt. Oh, it would hurt a lot!"

AS HE paused for breath, Thiele heard the sirens coming closer. If only he could know where Kuntze was! Had he got the window open? Was he on the roof? Thiele couldn't tell, looking almost straight up.

"Nobody wants me," said the girl. Thiele could hardly hear her above the wild screaming of the police sirens.

The girl leaned over the edge again. "Look out or you'll fall!" Thiele bellowed. The excitement and power of his voice literally forced her to draw back, involuntarily.

"Go back, you'll—" Thiele shouted.

And then an arm slipped out of the darkness and encircled the young woman's shoulders.

Thiele went limp. It was Kuntze. He had reached the would-be suicide in time! Despite the cold, Thiele suddenly realized that he was drenched with sweat.

HE WENT into the house. They were putting a coat on the girl.

"It was easy," Patrolman Kuntze said modestly. "I let myself out of a window and crawled over to her on the roof. She couldn't hear me because of the sirens.

"But you talked her out of it," Kuntze added loyally. "Gosh, if it hadn't been for that radio call! About two more seconds and she'd have cracked herself up pretty badly!"

Kuntze chuckled grimly. "Some balcony scene!" he said. "You're quite a talker."

"Ah, shut up!" growled Thiele.

A CALLING ALL CARS STORY — BY ARTHUR KENT

PLUMS & PRUNES

BY EVANS PLUMMER

CHICAGO.—From my Windy City vantage spot, I heard the mammoth, three-hour Red Cross broadcast of Monday, February 1, but I can't say I was impressed. There were many plump spots, true, but there were also many pruneful lulls. Supposedly all big-time, the show was as full of holes as a sponge.

It was sporting of all the famous stars to donate their time to the great cause; yet their material might have been better. Outstanding in their topical material or appeals were Irvin S. Cobb, Bob Burns and Lum and Abner. Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence could have been a bit more entertaining than they were.

Add Flood Notes: Still waiting for word from their relatives in the inundated areas are Noble Cain, the choral director; Bruce (Professor Kaltenmeyer) Kamman, and Marjorie Hannan, of "Bachelor's Children" . . . Also having kinsfolk affected by the disaster but reported safe are Ford Bond and Bill Slater, the announcers; Jess Pugh, character actor; Charles (Shuffle Shober) Egelston, of the "Ma Perkins" cast, and Hugh (Dr. Graham) Stdebaker, of "Bachelor's Children."

Vital Statistics: David Gothard, of "Helen Trent," will fly to Hollywood February 11 to attach his name to that of an unrevealed Chicago girl who has a flicker contract . . . Perry Como, the Weems songster, is about to pass the cigars around to the boys!

Last Saturday I was privileged to hear a special demonstration of the "last word" in radio receivers. It was quite a word. The set brought in any station, long or short wave, played phonograph records, and would even make records of better quality than that of ordinary phonograph records. The president of the manufacturing company told how many musical stars have bought sets and are using the recording device to check up on their own singing or playing. He put on a record of a selection by the N. Y. Philharmonic Society orchestra, Arturo Toscanini conducting. The music filled the room. The manufacturer pushed up the volume, explaining, "I can make the orchestra sound twice as loud, probably, as is did originally." I said nothing, but I thought that if Toscanini knew that, he would be awfully angry' . . . Oh yes, the price? The set requires about a twelve-room house to handle it—and costs $2,500.

Joan Blaine is back at the mike after hospitalization for a rest following her recent collapse . . . Jack Shoemaker, announcer of CBS' "Organ Moods," is recuperating satisfactorily from an appendix removal . . . Killed last week in a Detroit car crash was Charles Hoffman, 18-year-old juvenile heard in "The Lone Ranger" . . . Conductor Walter Blaufuss is back from a Florida holiday . . . Vivian Fridell, star of "Backstage Wife," is having a second honeymoon with her Milwaukee businessman-hubby. He's been assigned to work in Chicago for a month . . . Speaking of Milwaukee, did you ever hear of Owen's Pet Hospital there? It's owned by Ethel Owen, the "lovely" of "Modern Cinderella" . . . "Betty and Bob's" Elizabeth Reller is vacationing in the Southwest until February 20 . . . Glamorous Gertrude Niesen begins an engagement at Chi's Chez Paree February 15.

It really happened at a "Houseboat Hannah" rehearsal. Jeanne Jewelier suddenly acquired a painful toothache. Harold Freedman, who plays Coleman in the sketch, produced a remedy—then revealed that he is a dentist!

Podium Potheeks: Imagine Maestro Carlton Kelsey's surprise when he opened a package supposed to contain the dozen batons he had ordered by mail—and found they were of the large bandmasters' size . . . Most treasured is the note recently received from a departing guest by Leonard Keller, now at St. Paul's Lowry Hotel. It read: "I enjoyed your violin selections very much. I play a little fiddle myself. (signed) Jascha Heifitz" . . . Hal Kemp goes into the Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y. C., with a CBS wire . . . Clyde Lucas signs off February 12 at N'Yawk's French Casino, to replace Dick Jurgens' ork at Chi's Drake Hotel . . . The King's Jesters have taken over Chi's La Salle . . . Ted Weems winds up Valentine's Night at Chi's Trianon, with MBS pickup. Replacing him February 17 will be Kay Kyser . . . Freddie Martin rounded out a year at Chi's Aragon, late Wayne King stronghold, on February 8 . . . Charlie Agnew's ork comes into Chi's Casino Parisien February 23. Jimmy Garrett leaves the spot.

INSIDE STUFF

BY MARTIN LEWIS

IF YOU like Argentine music, a good dish of it will be served listeners in America when the second of a series of intercontinental concerts will be broadcast on Sunday, February 21.

One week later the Ford Sunday Evening Hour scoops its contemporaries when it presents an act practically every other sponsor has wanted and couldn't get. On February 28, Yehudi Menuhin, the 20-year-old boy violinist, and his sister, Ilpezbah Menuhin, 16-year-old pianist, will be presented on the program in a joint recital. It will be the first time this brother-sister act has ever appeared on the air, and the only time this season they will appear together either in radio or on the concert stage.

From one classic, we mention another, but of a decidedly different type. On March 19 the networks will present a description of the most spectacular horse race in the world, the Grand National Steeplechase. It will be broadcast from the course at Aintree, England, where a crowd of 250,000 persons is expected to witness the race, rain or shine.

Another broadcast of international interest originating in England and which will be aired by the major networks, will be the coronation of George V. and Queen Elizabeth on May 12.

Milton Berle and company, which means the entire "Community Sing" cast, shove off for Hollywood immediately after the broadcast of February 21. From the Coast, Berle will have two stooges to annoy him, Bert Gordon, the "Mad Russian," and Tommy Mack, who is known as "Judge Hugo Straight." By the way, the rumor that Berle is to pay the expenses of the troupe on the trip west is just a lot of hokum. Don't believe a word of it!

Fred Waring will be doing quite a bit of cross-country traveling during his vaudeville tour, which means that he will not be on the air again at least until this Summer. This offsets the rumor that Waring would resume broadcasting for his old cigarette sponsor. Right now, Fred will consider nothing less than an hour show. Negotiations are under way with a movie company for Waring and his gang to go to Hollywood to appear in a flicker.

Bernice Claire has left the "Waltz Time" program for good, and of her own accord, 'tis reported, although her departure was announced as being a vacation. The real low-down is supposed to be that the songstress felt she wasn't getting as much fame and financial return from the program as she felt that she deserved.

A few changes also are taking place among the orchestra leaders. Russ Morgan's orchestra originally was hired to supply the music on the Phil Baker show during the comic's two-week vacation in Florida, but Russ got himself a steady job and succeeds Leo Reisman on the Tuesday night ciggy show . . . Charles Dornberger and his orchestra will make the music for the Baker show, instead of Morgan.

Graham Harris and his band are off the "Rippling Rhythm Revue," the Sunday night show featuring Shep Fields, Frank Parker and Judy Canova. Harris originally was engaged to direct his separate orchestra for Frank Parker, on the assumption that Fields' band did not lend itself to accompaniment work. The program directors found out otherwise, and now Shep has added several men to his band and is the one and only maestro.

The Saturday Night Party has signed Robert Dolan as its permanent orchestra conductor, Donald Dickson, baritone, and Lucia Graeser, soprano. The rest of the talent from week to week will be guests. Before selecting Dolan, Waldo Mayo and Yasha Bunchuk were presented as guest conductors in public auditions, but Bobby finally was elected.

Parkyakarkus was married at Beverly Hills, Calif., Sunday afternoon, February 7, to Thelma Leeds. Theirs was a quiet wedding at home with only the immediate family present. The newlyweds left for Ensenada immediately after the ceremony.

There was much nervousness and tension on a recent "Show Boat" program. Through an error, two sets of scripts were in use, one set not having been corrected. So much switching was done during the airing, the rustle of paper sounded like water lapping the sides of the faithful old craft—despite everything the cast could do.

From the Embassy Club in Miami to New York's Central Park Casino, the Mark Hopkins in San Francisco and The Grove in Hollywood—Henry King and his band have played 'em all! Below: Coffee for Mrs. King!

When Hal Kemp and Kay Thompson confer, there's swing in the air—on the air! When they perform, swing music is really swung!

One pair of glasses isn't enough for Alexander Woolcott, genial "Town Crier" for CBS, when he starts putting the finishing touches on a script. He uses the lower pair for fine print when checking up

Bidu Sayao Is To Debut in "Manon"

"You spell it S-a-y-a-o, but you pronounce it 'Sigh-yum'."

So does Bidu Sayao explain a name at least as unusual as any in the Metropolitan Opera Company's roster of internationalists.

First South American woman honored with a regular Metropolitan appointment, Miss Sayao, distinguished Brazilian soprano, Saturday afternoon makes her debut as Manon, heroine of Massenet's famous opera of the same name.

Very young as opera stars go, Miss Sayao has made a brilliant record with the leading companies of France, Italy and South America. She studied in Paris under Theodorini and Jean de Reszke, made her debut in Rio de Janeiro, and went on from there to triumph at the Royal Theater in Rome, Milan's La Scala, San Carlo at Naples, the Paris Opera and the Colon at Buenos Aires. She later became a regular member of the Opera Comique in Paris and last year appeared three times as soloist with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony under Toscanini.

Farley Dinner Will Be Broadcast On Monday

Already among the immortals in at least one respect is James A. Farley, U. S. Postmaster General, good friend & political lieutenant of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. In the calendar of the great and the near-great February 15 is "Farley Day" now!

NBC will help the bandwagon along Monday with a broadcast of a testimonial dinner for Farley.

President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner, and Sen. Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas are on the list of speakers.

Bernie Books Veteran Monologist As Guest

Ben Bernie may get in a couple of words on his Tuesday night show this week, but the odds are against him!

For the Old Maestro is bringing to the microphone one of the best monologists who ever lost an argument to himself; Julius Tannen, old-time vaudeville trouper.

Among the first monologists in the big-time, Tannen is still one of the best. In fact—so runs the build-up—he's just as good as Bernie and Winchell together!

In "Brewster's Millions" for DeMille

Jack Benny will spend a million dollars Monday night—but don't get excited, none of it will come any closer to you than your loudspeaker!

The spending will be done on the air-stage of Lux Radio Theater, where Mary Livingstone and Jack are scheduled to play a radio adaptation of the famous "Brewster's Millions."

One of the best-known stories in popular American literature, "Brewster's Millions" tells the tale of a young lad who inherited a million dollars, and then, immediately after getting his hands on the fortune, was notified that he would inherit much more on the death of another relative, providing that he spent, within a year, every penny he had on hand.

The problem sounds easier than it really is. Poor Brewster finds it difficult enough to spend every one of his million dollars legitimately and account for it all. But he tries hard, and to cap the riotous climax, has to borrow money on which to be married.

Yascha Benny, as the famed wizard of the violin was calling himself when last heard from, promises to bring some new and different angles to the production. His treatment of the scene in which Brewster gives a dinner costing a small fortune a plate, and his frantic efforts to lose money in the stock market, only to be frustrated by incredible winnings, will be high-spots.

McLaglen Preview On Next Hollywood Hotel

Film Star Victor McLaglen, who stopped playing "he-man" roles one time just long enough to make the classical "The Informer" is back in the groove again with the two-fisted lead role in "Sea Devils."

But nobody plays that kind of part better than McLaglen, and he'll be on the air Friday night to prove it with a preview of "Sea Devils" on the Hollywood Hotel show.

The part of rough & tough Chief Bo'sun's Mate "Medals" Malone will be McLaglen's, and he'll be supported by Preston Foster and Ida Lupino.

"Hit Parade" Adds 15 Minutes

There will be 15 minutes more melody on the "Hit Parade" program starting Saturday, February 13, when the regular weekly program is expanded to 45 minutes.

Saturday, February 13,
10 p.m. EST (8 CST), CBS

Morgan Will Take Leo Reisman's Program

Rudy Vallec, Stoopnagle and Budd, Guy Lombardo and Paul Whiteman.

That's the guest list announced for Russ Morgan's first appearance on the Philip Morris program, Tuesday, February 16.

Famed for his "Music in the Morgan Manner," the new bandman succeeds Leo Reisman and his orchestra in the popular spot over which diminutive Johnny Roventino presides.

Russ Morgan is one of the best-known bandleaders in the East, has played for dance lovers all up and down the Atlantic coast. He comes to the Philip Morris show from an engagement at the Royal Palms in Miami.

Morgan started life as a coal-miner, found it little to his liking, quit for a job as pianist in a Scranton, Pa., theater. He played in orchestras in Philadelphia and Detroit before making his radio debut in Michigan City. He's been on the air some five or six thousand times, says he still gets mike fright.

Tuesday, February 16.

Lincoln Drama Played For First Time On Air

A play never before performed or published, "This Was a Man," will be offered by NBC Friday, February 12, as part of special nation-wide Lincoln's Birthday celebrations.

NBC's Radio Guild will present the biographical drama over the Blue Network at 4 p.m. EST (3 CST) with four principal actors, a Negro chorus, and a symphony orchestra. Another drama, "Lincoln Goes to College," a re-creation of a Lincoln-Douglas debate scene will be offered at 10:30 p.m. EST (9:30 CST), also over the Blue net.

Alfred M. Landon, former governor of Kansas, candidate for the Presidency in 1936, will be heard during a broadcast from the annual Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club in New York at 10 p.m. EST (9 CST) over the Blue network.

Columbia plans a talk by Ida Tarbell, famed Lincoln biographer, at 11 a.m. EST (10 CST) and another by Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin, at 10:30 p.m. EST (9:30 CST) as Lincoln's Birthday features.

Recitation of the Gettysburg Address by a World War veteran, who, as a child, heard Lincoln deliver it, will be aired by CBS, originating at the Great Emancipator's tomb in Springfield, Ill., at 2:15 p.m. EST (1:15 CST).

Friday, February 12
4 p.m. EST (3 CST), NBC

Jackie Heller Will Sing From England

"May We Reverse the Lot?" That may be a puzzle to you, but to the English, it's the title of a picture Little Jackie Heller is making.

And speaking of England, and of Jackie Heller, the former NBC Jamboree star will sing over an international hook-up Thursday, February 11, in order to appear on the regular Jamboree show. Heller's part of the program will originate in the British Broadcasting Corporation studios in London.

Also to be heard on the Jamboree will be Morey Amsterdam and Mabel Todd, comedians, and Tony Romano, guitarist-singer. Don McNeill will m.c.

Woman Novelist Begins New NBC Program For Writers

Everybody in America wants to write. Authors' agents and magazine editors complain that you can't toss a rejected manuscript out of a skyscraper window without hitting a pedestrian who hopes some day to turn out the great American novel or a play that will live forever. Nearly everybody's writing, and those who aren't will be, they'll tell you, just as soon as they can get around to it.

Bet on it, then, that NBC has a find in the new "Do You Want To Write?" program scheduled for 3 p.m. EST (2 CST) every Wednesday, starting February 17.

Margaret Widdemer, novelist and poet, will put the fifteen-minute show on the air, backing it with her sincere belief that everyone who is at all interested in writing a novel can write a novel—or anything else. She'll be talking to—and for—those listeners who feel they have latent writing ability and want help and advice in putting it to the test.

Miss Widdemer is no novice. Her first novel was published when she was in her teens—and it sold! Her latest is "This Isn't the End," a story about New York radio stars, and there's a long list of successes in between. She has written many volumes of verse.

Preliminary to Miss Widdemer's new series was a round-table discussion headed by Ralph Thompson, book critic of the New York Times and put on the air February 10.

Quick, Jeeves, the Mirror!

The suitability of the starched bosom, the advantages of silk over wool as cravat material, and dark blue as against black for evening clothes will be among the points settled, no doubt, when a men's fashion show is broadcast on Thursday, February 18, over the NBC-Red Network from Philadelphia.

And that's not all. America's ten-best-dressed men positively will be named!

George Rector, Famed Host, on New Program

What's the difference between a tort and a torte?

You may not know—you may not even care—but back at the turn of the century that was an important question to George Rector, famed restaurateur who begins a series of quarter-hour broadcasts three times weekly (WTF) on Wednesday, February 17, over the CBS network.

Reared in the tradition of the master chef—his father and grandfather both were well-known restaurateurs—George Rector was a law student at Cornell University—and bored to death—when he decided to leave the law to lawyers and follow family tradition.

After an apprenticeship in his father's New York restaurant, Rector went to Paris, where eight months of study brought him a coveted membership in the Societe des Cuisiniers de Paris. He returned to New York in 1902 to take complete charge of the Rector's Restaurant at 44th and Broadway—and made it one of the most famous addresses in America. He retired in 1918.

Marcella Shields, veteran radio actress, will appear with Rector.

Maestro Bradley Gets Promotion from Baker

When Maestro Oscar Bradley was born in dear old England, nobody said: "What a dear little boy! Maybe he'll grow up to be a stooge for Phil Baker!"

Nobody said it. Too bad, too, because that's the way things have turned out. After assorted triumphs in his native land, and in this country as musical director for the Shuberts and Florenz Ziegfeld, after successes as director of the St. Louis Opera Company, Bradley has risen at last from leader of Baker's orchestra to an honored position among his stooges.

The news leaked out when Baker announced that Bradley would accompany him to Florida for the two special Sunday broadcasts originating in Miami February 14 and 21, despite the fact that Charles Dornberger's orchestra had been engaged to take care of the musical end of the two shows.

Reason, it seems, is that Bradley is going South as a stooge!

Irene Wicker Presents 'Meistersinger' Friday

Simplified and condensed, Richard Wagner's immortal opera "Die Meistersinger" will be sung for the children of America by Irene Wicker "The Singing Lady," Friday afternoon.

Miss Wicker will take the part of Eva, daughter of the goldsmith, Pogner. The knight, Walther von Stolzing, will be played by James Meighan, and Charles Warburton will sing the cobbler, Hans Sachs. Eva's maid, Maddalena, will be played by fourteen-year-old Charita Bauer.

LOVE PLUS LUCK

BY
BROCK

Harry Sosnik: Three times he found love—and lost it. Then his eyes failed him. But heart-break and tragedy brought glory!

TWO plus two equals four. And in the same sure way, heart-break plus hard luck add up to explain the success of Harry Sosnik, composer, master arranger and haton swinger for NBC.

Women have made him suffer—and out of suffering have come exquisite compositions. Life has been hard—and out of his struggle has come the ability to work incredibly long hours, have come his skill and versatility.

At the age of thirty, he stands out as the lad who always gets the job on the first audition. And he's one of the few!

Take the woman angle first. No man in the entertainment world is so pursued by women as an orchestra conductor, and Harry Sosnik, "tall, dark and handsome" in a better than average way, is no exception. Add to his good looks the fact that he is well-tailored, a smooth dancer and can twist his way through the fanciest French bill of fare—and you have a total with plenty of appeal to women.

But of the many who have admired him, he has admired only three. Each in turn he cared for enough to marry. Each let him down, and he remains unmarried today, conducting an austere bachelor's hall, a trifle bitter, a trifle wary. Next time love comes a-knocking, there'll be no answer—for Harry will be scampering down the fire-escape!

His home is a suite of rooms in a New York hotel—like any other hotel suite, unadorned by the human, the personal, except for a piano and a scatter of music. There is no litter of cigarettes, for Harry does not smoke. You'll find him there mornings, afternoons, evenings except when he is at the studio. A place to work, an office—not a home.

TWO of the women he loved left him after quarrels. The facts are hard to get, because this lean and fervent youth does not talk easily. In one case, we know, the split was the fault of the girl's mother. This much we also know—the third girl broke his heart, reduced him for a time to a remnant of the man he was.

For this girl, Harry Sosnik, the man accustomed to being pursued, became the pursuer. He went off the deep end, shattered himself against the rock of her indifference. In the end, he packed his trunk and fled—to save himself from ruin.

The wound remains. They had a song together, their theme song. It was the melody that brought them together, that greeted her when she came into the dining-room of the hotel at which he was playing, the song that wailed their parting. You know it. "Tea for Two" is the name. It is today the one melody this conductor can't play without wincing.

Out of these experiences there has come a man with a tough hide, determined never to pitch himself again at a woman's feet.

"I'm through with thinking of marriage," he said. "Through for good. I'm older now. I have work to do. That part of my life is done."

YET, in the same breath, he adds that the rough treatment he received did him precious service. He is grateful to the three who scorned him. They added fire to his music, gave new verve to his conducting. They were for him what deafness was to Beethoven, what an incurable disease was to Tchaikowsky—the ordeal of suffering out of which comes good music. Responsible in his case for "Lazy Rhapsody," "Simplicity," and others.

Hand in hand with misfortune in love went the mishaps of every-day life, to furnish this musical dreamer the drive necessary to carry him to the top. Some of them extraordinary, as the accident that took place when he was seven years old.

It happened in Chicago, in a little side-street candy store. Harry gave the storekeeper a nickel, the storekeeper gave Harry a bottle of pop. The bottle exploded and a piece of glass buried itself in his left eye.

"You will be blind," said the Chicago specialists. His parents refused to believe it. They were wealthy. They spared no expense. They took him to New York, to Baltimore; they cabled London and Vienna. There was nothing to be done, said the surgeons. The boy will certainly lose the eye. But still his parents did not believe. At last in Milwaukee they found a Dr. Schneider, who conceded the boy an outside chance.

The operation made medical history. Dr. Schneider took the eye completely out of the socket, removed the glass and put the eye back again. When the bandages were removed, Harry Sosnik had almost normal eyesight. Newspapers front-paged the story; it was a Coast-to-Coast sensation.

How did this affect the later life of Harry Sosnik? For the answer, skip through the calendar to 1931, when you find the lad grown into one of those skilful musical carpenters known as arrangers. These are the lads who take simple melodies and build them up into fascinating orchestral pieces. Pay for this varies from $25 to $150. It is payment given for the ability to inject personality into music.

That year, 1931, Harry Sosnik was working day and night making arrangements for Paul Whiteman, Ben Bernie, Coon Sanders, Ted Weems, and between whiles knocking out songs for Hollywood stars such as Claudette Colbert. He was good and he delivered on time. Everybody wanted him. And he should have been satisfied. There he was—25 years old and earning $400 or $500 a week. That's money under any flag.

NOW, here is where the pop-bottle comes in. His eyes, which had been a trifle weaker than normal since the accident, began to bother him. They grew weaker. The making of arrangements was too much of a strain. He decided to quit. Like that. To quit and go into radio as a pianist or a conductor.

The job he held at the time was fat-salaried—arranger of all commercials for CBS—but he left it to head his own orchestra at a weekly wage of $56. But before another year was gone, he was in the money again.

There were other accidents, pieces of hard luck to drive him on. In fact, his story might be entitled, "Through the Broken Looking-Glass to Fame and Fortune."

Twice he was rescued from drowning, twice he escaped death in automobile accidents, and in 1931 the wealth of his father and mother disappeared in the depression. The crash of the family fortune coincided with the crash of Harry Sosnik's third and last romance.

It sobered him, brought him to earth with a ringing in his ears and a horrible fear of the same thing happening over again.

NOT satisfied to be an ordinary conductor, he studied the art at a conservatory and under the masters. He is one of the few popular-orchestra conductors who can mount the dais of a symphony ensemble and carry it through.

It was Harry Sosnik's orchestra that opened the World's Fair in Chicago. Always he has been able to win engagements at the best hotels, at the leading theaters. The Mardi Gras committee of New Orleans, for example, brought him from Chicago to New Orleans for a single night, named a horse race in his honor—and paid him $1,600 for the job.

But without woman trouble, without hard luck he would still be small-time. He almost makes one believe there is really a jinx. Here is the latest episode.

HARRY SOSNIK FOUND SUCCESS AT THE TOP OF THE LADDER— BUT BAD LUCK PUT HIM THERE!

When he came to New York recently, he brought his large and valuable music library with him. He stored it for safety in the basement of a large office building. And then a water main broke. Most of the music was ruined, some of it irreparably.

That too will do him good. It will keep him from burrowing in the music of the past, and, perhaps, cause him to write better, original compositions.

Harry Sosnik may be heard Sundays with Edwin C. Hill over an NBC network at 9:45 p.m. EST (8:45 CST; 7:45 MST; 6:45 PST).

You Can't Count On Meals Alone For Vitamins You Need

A shortage of Vitamin B results in fallen stomach, flabby intestines, and many nervous disorders.

B

A daily supply of Vitamin B—the NERVE VITAMIN—is important to keep stomach, bowels and intestines strong and active—and assure steady nerves. Eat Fleischmann's fresh Yeast regularly to make sure you get enough Vitamin B. It is one of the foods richest in this essential vitamin.

Not Enough Vitamin D

The crooked bone above shows what can happen when there is an under-supply of Vitamin D—THE BONE VITAMIN. Note the deformity—the enlarged joint, and the porous texture.

D

Plenty of Vitamin D

An ample supply of Vitamin D should be had by mothers during pregnancy and while nursing to assure her child strong, straight bones and good teeth. Mothers should eat Fleischmann's fresh Yeast as it contains an abundant supply of this BONE VITAMIN.

Yet a Shortage of Even ONE Vitamin in Your Diet Can Lead to Impaired Health. By Eating a CONCENTRATED Supply of these 4 Vitamins EVERY DAY You Don't Need to Worry About Getting Enough of them at Mealtimes

EACH separate vitamin has its own special part to play in helping to keep you healthy. No one vitamin can take the place of any other.

Yet, ordinary meals, dietitians say, often fall short in one or more of these necessary food elements.

That's why today more and more people are increasing their supply of four of these food essentials by eating FLEISCHMANN'S fresh YEAST.

This one food added to the daily diet assures you an extra supply of 4 essential vitamins, A, B, D and G. No other single food gives you such an abundant supply of all 4 of these important vitamins at once.

Just eat 3 cakes daily—a cake about $\frac{1}{2}$ hour before each meal. Eat it plain, or dissolved in a little water. You need the added daily vitamins this tonic food provides. Start eating it regularly—today!

Too Little Vitamin G Means Poor Growth

Diet Ample in Vitamin G

G

When children are weak, thin and poorly developed, it is often a sign their meals do not provide enough of Vitamin G—the GROWTH VITAMIN. A plentiful supply of this essential vitamin is especially important to assure proper development of the body tissues. Fleischmann's Yeast is very rich in Vitamin G. Children from 5 to 12 years can be given 1 to 2 cakes daily.

A

INSUFFICIENT VITAMIN A lowers resistance to infections of nose and throat—contributes to frequent colds. Lack of Vitamin A also causes eye and skin disorders. Eat Fleischmann's Yeast and keep up your supply of this vitamin.

THE SUPERB PHYSICAL strength and vigorous health of Herman Brix—Champion Shot-Punter—prove he gets an abundant supply of the 4 important health-building vitamins, A, B, D and G.

HOW THEY SOLVE THOSE "BOY PROBLEMS"

What about casual caresses, telephone calls, expensive gifts? Hollywood's younger set knows all the answers!

BY JULIE LANG HUNT

WHAT do you do when a nice young man insists upon kissing you good-night?" an eighteen-year-old college freshman recently wrote to Betty Furness. "And please let me know if the young Hollywood stars have worked out any sensible up-to-date code of conduct that solves this bothersome boy question. Or is the younger film set royally immune to the mundane worries that have to do with that problem of beaux and petting and popularity?"

To which Betty promptly replied: "Indeed we're not immune. But out here we settle the boy question individually. There just isn't any such thing as a blanket beaux-and-petting code that can be successfully applied to every girl in America. In Hollywood, all the unattached actresses I know have carefully worked out their own personal systems of behavior concerning dates and escorts and casual caresses, and each girl sticks to her system through the thick of approval or the frowns of reproof."

But before we discover whether Betty says, yes, no, or maybe, let us take this Hollywood boy question apart and see what makes it tick so smoothly for the town's younger set. Let us start by ripping into a few of those personal systems that Betty recommends so highly. For example, let's take a look at the Alice Faye system:

BOLLEY STRIDES

BY MARY O'NEILL

HERE'S a fellow who not only stops people from working (they do that to hear his "Sports Parade" program over WFBL and WGY) but he also stops crack trains!

You see, Leo Bolley, sports authority and announcer, makes a 6:45 broadcast, personally, in Schenectady, and that very same night at 11 o'clock he's broadcasting, personally, in Syracuse. How come? Well, the Commodore Vanderbilt makes an unscheduled stop at Schenectady, being flagged at 7:44 on its westbound trip three times weekly for Bolley to board. He stands ready to hop on so the train will not lose a second from its fast schedule.

Now, if you think you detect a broken nose in his picture you're right! In fact, he holds the "broken nose" record among radio commentators—seven broken noses, or rather, one nose broken seven times. (We understand there is no race to beat that record either!)

Bolley is a triple-threat pro-man in the sports world: he played professional football, basketball, and boxed, to begin with. But then, you couldn't say "to begin with," really, for he began in this field, away back in high school around Hornell, New York, his home town. He piled up nice football records there and further distinguished himself in football and basketball when he attended Niagara University.

Leo graduated in 1927 to find he had a leaning toward radio. So, as an announcer, he started at Elmira, station WESG. They promoted him to production manager very soon and then he left for WFBL in Syracuse.

However, right about here would be the spot to tell how Leo decided to stick to sports in his radio announcing. He was handling a commercial one day (over WESG) and, glancing at the calendar he noted it was Mendelssohn's birthday. So he decided to do a little ad-libbing, remarking about the great composer's "Orayshio" (which should have been "oratorio" if you are a bit puzzled), and later, while taking his medicine for such a blunder, he decided then and there to stick to the field he knew best.

LEO'S ambition was to broadcast a football game in early radio days. He liked that particular sport and he wanted to take an active part in it, although connected with radio. One day the opportunity came, and in broadcasting a game he started WFBL listeners into being sport-conscious. They liked his comments and particularly they liked Leo. So Bolley was put in charge of sports.

This broad-shouldered husky lad claims people are not so interested in the fact that Notre Dame made a score of 13 to 6 as they are in why Joe Smith made that 50-yard run—why the coach called in Bill Brown and replaced him with Al Jones. "Those behind-the-scenes glimpses are what the people clamor for—they want to know the why and wherefore of things, and therein lies a fellow's chances to interest his listeners. Get the inside story—there is always one if you look for it," says Leo.

With this fact in mind Bolley suggested an 11 o'clock "sports comment" and survey on WFBL three years ago. After all, it was an idea (although some wagged their heads in grave doubt: An 11 o'clock sports broadcast—who ever heard of such a thing?); but Bolley went ahead, and he's still going ahead in the same big strides. His Syracuse program is three years old, while his WGY 6:45 broadcast is only six months old.

Leo has an idol, like everyone else. His happens to be Ted Husing. First of all, when Leo started his series on WFBL, Ted happened to be in town and graciously came over to inaugurate it with Les Quaily. Of course, with Husing to inaugurate anything there should be good insurance for success. And Bolley can tell you some "behind the scenes" stories of the voluble Husing that make you realize just why he has his admiration.

The curly-haired athlete has interviewed more than two hundred celebrities during his sports career. Among them have been Jack Dempsey, Fred Frame, Willie Hoppe, Clyde Beatty, Jimmy Fox, Johnny Evers—and the list is almost like a roster of the 44 in sports circles.

Evers gave him the privilege of announcing the scoop on Alabama Pitts' release into baseball. Clyde Beatty even abandoned his script on his second appearance with Bolley, the latter making the lion-tamer feel at ease that much (and Beatty always had felt he needed the security of a script up until then).

In addition to his radio announcing

Leo Bolley, a sports announcer, has a success formula that works of scores and events in the game and pugilistic world, Leo writes for one hundred and seven newspapers. His column is entitled the same as his air program, "Sports Parade," carried by towns and villages throughout the New England states and New York. You would wonder how he finds time to do all he does. He likes being crowded and claims "A man can't succeed without plenty to do—he's got to have responsibility, and without that all his ambition and talents can be lost."

Bolley is fast-moving, fast-talking, and accurate. Besides, he has plenty of responsibilities with his broadcasting, interviewing and columning—so do you blame us for not hesitating to predict him as definite network material in the very near future?

News and Notes

Bruff Olin resigned at WFBL and Edgar Jacobs has replaced him as news editor. Jacobs was at WNAC, Boston; WINS, New York, and WTIC, Hartford, before he went to WFBL in an announcing capacity. He has been with WFBL about a year now.

His first radio work was as a pianist when he was featured over Syracuse radio stations while still in high school. He is a graduate of Christian Brothers Academy in Syracuse, and Rider College, Trenton, New Jersey.

BOB KEEFE has a new weekly program on WSYR. He writes, produces, and puts it on the air. It's the "Behind the Mike" series that he made popular a few years ago, dramatizing the lives of important personalities.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letterforum will be printed as a regular feature in Radio Guide each week hereafter. These columns are offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Radio Guide will pay prizes for fine letters as follows: $10 for the best letter each week; $5 for the next best, and $1 for each additional letter which is printed.

Sit down right now and tell what you think of the program on your radio this minute. It'll be interesting to others—and perhaps profitable to you!

HIGH SCHOOL SHOW ($10 Prize Letter)

Editor, RADIO GUIDE: I feel I can freely express myself upon the subject I have in mind, since I myself am a high-school student.

It seems to me that with all the acknowledgments radio has made to modern life, a vital and interesting part has been omitted. I am referring to the modern high school. There are tens of thousands of high schools in the United States today, and each is a powerful and energetic force in modern life. In these high schools are the men and women of tomorrow—the citizens who will eventually take over the work of their parents. A great many of these boys and girls will undoubtedly enter radio. However, if anyone will even casually glance over the lists of radio programs of the entire country, he will seldom if ever find a program upon or about a modern high school, much less a program consisting of musical or dramatic talent of the high school . . .

Our great universities and colleges have been "put on the air," so to speak, and successfully, it seems to me. Why cannot some sort of high-school program be put on the air? . . . —John F. Kovach, St. Louis, Missouri.

"BIG BIT"—MISSED ($5 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: I believe that radio sponsors are missing a big bit of advertising by not having their theme songs apply to their products.

For instance, when such songs as "Tasty Yeast is Tempting," "Barbasol," and "Have You Tried Wheaties?" have become so popular that even the grown-ups know and recognize them, the sponsors have gone a long way in advertising their products.

Theme songs such as Wayne King, Guy Lombardo, and other orchestra leaders have are all right, but many of us forget the names of their theme songs, and also forget who they are sponsored by; but we cannot forget "Barbasol" and Singin' Sam, nor will we fail to recognize "J-E-L-L-O"—and we go around our homes humming just such foolish but catchy theme songs . . . —Mrs. A. P. McPherson, Chevy Chase, Md.

CONTEST CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL

Editor, RADIO GUIDE: As you perhaps know, I conduct the world's only correspondence school in "Contest Technique." A short time ago, you published an article entitled "Seven Secrets of Contesting." The writer, Miss Marge Kerr, wrote: "Sponsors patronize certified contest planners equipped to combat schools in contest technique and to defeat racketeers . . ." You can see clearly that this sentence places me in very bad company. A number of my students have written to me since this article appeared . . .

I have no secret information that I disclose to some few people so they may have an unfair advantage over others . . . My correspondence course simply teaches people how to improve their command of English, and thus improve their chances of winning . . .

My school is really one of the best friends the contest sponsor has. I teach sportsmanship. I teach my students to be good losers as well as good winners. I create enthusiasm for prize contests that goes out in ever-widening circles.

Contest sponsors should not regard the consistent winner as a menace. Consistent winners are an inspiration to others to enter contests—and they prove contests are on the level. If they were lotteries or rackets, none would win consistently . . .

I feel that I am entitled to have my slant printed also . . . —Wilmer S. Shepherd, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa.

"TERRIBLE!" . . . "FLAWLESS!"

RADIO GUIDE, Sirs: (Jack) Benny's program is tolerable, but Fred Allen's is terrible—and now they've started lamming each other. Don't they know that Ben Bernie and Walter Winchell have worn that publicity stunt threadbare?

I don't suppose you'll print this, but . . . —(Unsigned), Cincinnati, Ohio.

(No name, no check!—Ed.)

Voice of the Listener: As a reader of RADIO GUIDE, I wish to recommend for a full hour of diversified entertainment Fred Allen's "Town Hall Tonight." Here is a show that carries punch, variety, sketches, comedy, music and vaudeville—all complete in sixty minutes. The program is practically flawless . . . —George Giegerich, Jr., Richmond Hill, N. Y.

AMATEUR SONG SHOW

Voice of the Listener: I suggest that some sponsor give us an amateur-song program. I understand that a few stations are broadcasting programs of this type now, but I think it should be on a Coast-to-Coast network. What Major Bowes has done for the amateur entertainer can be done for the would-be song-writer . . .

Radio demands new song material all the time and a program of this type would enliven the interest for creative music by unknown writers. Not only would this presentation be appreciated by the hundreds of amateurs but it would be greeted highly by the listeners not taking part . . . —Billy Mark, Crosby, Minn.

THE RADIO WEEK

Voice of the Listener: I have been a regular reader of RADIO GUIDE since the second week of its publication, and I have seen it grow each week until it has now become not only America's original radio weekly, but also one of its finest publications. I was delighted to notice that the publishers are now giving the public another addition, "The Radio Week," which provides the most interesting and latest news on all radio stars and programs . . . —Sarah T. Jamieson, Charlotte, N. C.

"PLEASE—COMMON SENSE!"

Voice of the Listener: My dear Mr. R. C. O'Brien: I think you are very wrong.

In my opinion an audience in a studio hearing a broadcast should pay admission. Any sponsor pays a big price for his broadcast, and anyone who is privileged to hear and see everything should be willing to pay . . . The radio audience at home misses many things which a studio audience is privileged to see . . . —Mrs. Ella Van Rudiger, Stamford, Conn.

Voice of the Listener: If we must have an audience present in the stu-

MUSIC of the MASTERS

BY CARLETON SMITH

WITH the broadcast of Massenet's "Manon" Saturday, in which the petite Brazilian, Bidu Sayao, steps into the shoes of Lucrezia Bori and makes her first bid for operatic fame on this continent, the half-way mark will be passed in the Metropolitan Opera's present broadcast season. The final opera to be heard from the Metropolitan's own stage is on Saturday afternoon, March 27. Then the company will spend ten days in Boston and will visit a few other eastern cities before its celebrated members disperse to the four corners of the globe.

The season so far has been remarkable for its repertoire. Not a single Puccini opera has been presented. No "Tosca," no "Boheme," no "Butterfly"! It is an almost unbelievable fact, and certainly one that would cause the greatest tenor, Enrico Caruso, to sprout gray hairs. But, of course, it never would have happened had he been singing.

The Puccini operas, as every one knows, have been replaced by those of Richard Wagner. In part, the change is due to the presence of a few superlative singers in the German section of the company; and, in part, to the fact that our public is becoming better educated musically. They now understand the idea behind the leit-motif. They realize that Wagner's scores are pictorial, even obviously so. If you know the opera's motif, you can follow the action and the thoughts of the characters on the stage even without seeing them.

The incredulous Richard put precious little faith in people's imagination.

as long as its copyright lasted, was heard only in Bayreuth. The Germans made a serious effort to amend their copyright laws so that outsiders could not touch the score. The first performance at the Metropolitan was spoken of as the AMERICAN THEFT, and sentimental Teutons still refer to it as "a sin against the Holy Ghost of German art."

"PARSIFAL" is an opera that has not been sufficiently aired. It is always given at the Metropolitan on Good Friday, and this year we should be invited to be present. Thanks to Mr. Edward Johnson's perspicacity, we will have heard the three principal dramas of the Ring before the end of the Saturday series. The glorious finale of "Siegfried" a week ago, with Kirsten Flagstad as the awakening Brunnhilde, was certainly a treat never to be forgotten.

The frequent microphone appearances of Mme. Flagstad and of Lotte Lehmann have brought to the fore the controversy between their respective enthusiasts as to which is the greater and more indispensable artist. Comparisons are always invidious and unfair. The talents of these two sopranos are different and hardly comparable. For the most part, they do not sing the same roles. They appeal to persons of varied tastes.

At the box-office, there is, of course, no comparison. Madame Flagstad has the greater "draw." She, also, possesses the greater voice and is, from the operatic impresario's point of view, the more valuable. She sings this season nearly eight times as many performances at the Metropolitan as Mme. Lehmann.

BUT the German soprano has her charms—not all vocal. She is unsurpassed, for example, in "Der Rosenkavalier," and as Elizabeth in "Tannhauser" and Leonore in "Fidelio" her appeal is unique. Mme. Lehmann is the type of artist who gives her all to any role she takes. That she frequently oversteps her vocal powers, that she has abused her voice and forced it to heights never intended for it, that Maestro Toscanini was forced to transpose the big aria in "Fidelio" down a half tone for her, thus diluting its brilliance and character, are to be regretted.

Notwithstanding all this, there are those who prefer her art to that of Flagstad. They will be overjoyed by her program this Sunday evening (CBS at 9 p.m. EST): Elizabeth's Prayer from "Tannhauser," aria from Alfano's "Risurrezione," Schubert's Serenade, Leo Blech's "Heimkehr von Fest," and Tonerio's "Sjoberg."

Scarcely anyone outside of Russia is cognizant of the influence on music and position of Alexander Pushkin, the great poet and father of modern Russian literature, whose death occurred one hundred years ago Thursday. If you read this in time, listen (Feb. 11, NBC at 2:45 p.m. EST) to the Pushkin celebration from Moscow. Music inspired by Pushkin's works and written by Rimsky-Korsakoff, Tchaikowsky, Moussorgsky, Borodin, and Glinka will be broadcast.

It is a rare coincidence when the greatest pianist and the greatest violinist ever to appear before a microphone happen to do so within the space of two hours. The other Sunday we listened first to Josef Hofmann and then to Yehudi Menuhin, and we heard such

He said each thing that he had in mind over and over again, a little differently each time, it is true, and with another inflection, but nevertheless often enough so that the most insensitive understand with only slight application. In addition, he insisted on staging every detail, from Wotan's brandishing the sword when the "sword" theme is heard in "Das Rheingold" to the gods actually walking on a painted rainbow to Walhalla. In the first performances at Bayreuth, a large painted canvas was hoisted up during the finale of "Die Gotterdammerung" and on it Wotan and the gods were shown going up in flames.

FORTUNATELY, many of Wagner's crude examples of realism have been discarded or improved by later technical advances. But it was to satisfy his desire for stage realism and, incidentally, his colossal ego that the famous Stage Festival Play House was built on the hill north of Bayreuth. (And from which we are promised the Festival performances next Summer.) It was to be a monopoly and must, in his own words, "be impossible for the whole modern theatric world to copy."

He intended that neither the four dramas of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" nor "Parsifal" should ever be heard outside its four walls. Circumstances forced him to grant the performing rights of the tetralogy to other theaters even during his lifetime. He needed money to pay his bills. But "Parsifal,"

Time, 1721. Place, Amiens, Paris, Havre.

The Abbe Prevost's affecting and tragic romance of MANON LESCAUT has been set to music by four famous composers: Halevy, Auber, Puccini, and Massenet. The works by the last two composers now remain in the lyric repertoire. This Saturday we hear the French Master's music with its familiar "They call me 'Manon'" (First Act), the plaintive "At our small table" and the famous "Prelude" (Second Act), the organ prelude of the Seminary and Des Grieux's "Fly from me, fair image" (Third Act) and Manon's heart-rending finale, beginning, "Ah! I can never forget those days of joy."

THE STORY

Act I: The Elopement, Amiens

Manon Lescart, a young and beautiful maiden (fond of pleasure and adventure), arrives before the Inn at Amiens, (where a gay party is in progress). She is en route to a convent and escorted by her cousin, who leaves her to wait for an hour (while he goes to gambling table). The sporting old rone, Guillot, plans to abduct her (and offers a seat in his carriage). But Manon is more attracted to Des Grieux, a handsome young Cavalier, himself destined for the priesthood. In record-breaking time, the two plan an elopement (and drive off in the rone's waiting carriage).

Act II: The Life Together, Paris

Des Grieux and Manon live quietly together in Paris, while he tries to persuade his father to consent to their marriage. Gay and flirtatious, Manon wins the heart of every visitor and, though she loves Des Grieux, she is not always faithful to him. Sadly she decides not to warn him when she learns that his father's hired men will abduct him.

Act III, Scene One: A Promenade in Paris

Three actresses surround Lescart, Manon's cousin, while two of her former suitors discuss her. Manon herself appears and hears from Des Grieux's father that the young man has retreated to the monastery.

Scene Two: Interior, the Seminary at St. Sulpice

Manon visits Des Grieux, who has seen her in a vision. After some reproaches, he leaves the monastery with her. (The two renew their vows of love.)

Act IV, Scene One: Gambling House in Paris

Des Grieux, anxious to win money with which to satisfy Manon's demands, plays for increasingly heavy stakes. (Manon is delighted that he is winning.) Suddenly Guillot, the old rone, to get revenge, accuses Des Grieux of cheating. The police appear and arrest Manon and her lover.

Scene Two (Labelled Act V in Score): The Road to Havre

Des Grieux, because of his father's influence, is released, but Manon is deported to Louisiana with a group of unfortunate women. Lescart and Des Grieux are waiting along the road to rescue her. They do, but too late. She is worn out from grief and fatigue. There is a moment only for one last, tearful reconciliation. She falls lifeless in Des Grieux's arms.

surpassing artistry as we are not likely to hear soon again. Any skeptic who thinks piano playing will not come over the air accurately should have heard Mr. Hofmann play Chopin and Liszt. That estimable gentleman was at his impeccable best and there was not the slightest doubt about it over my receiving set.

THE twenty-year-old Menuhin showed that he had lost nothing in his year's retirement. His playing with his teacher of the three movements of the Bach Concerto for Two Violins in D Minor was the outstanding violin performance of the season, from the viewpoint of popular interest. There had been some difficulty over the encore suggested for this occasion. Eager to make use of all Mr. Enesco's talents, the impresarios planned that he should accompany Yehudi at the piano in the "Ave Maria."

Mr. Enesco refused. "I say nothing about 'Ave Maria.' I say nothing about the piano, because I can play that, too. But to play it after the Bach two-violin concerto, which will be having its first major performance here since Eugene Ysaye and Mischa Elman made their first tour, this would be—how is it in English—an anti-climax."

There were hours of debating the various musical merits of the "Ave Maria." But, in the end, it was not played. Mr. Enesco's Roumanian persistence and musical sagacity carried the argument, upheld his convictions.

DIAL-TIME STARS

Big-name news commentators may crowd the airwaves, but they don't daunt Claudine MacDonald. In a field dominated by men, she more than holds her own. She broadcasts over NBC

When Phil Baker goes on the air every Sunday evening, his show is enlivened by Oscar Bradley (above) and his orchestra. Bradley has a solid British background, with Broadway training added

Left: Joe Cook, who would rather be funny than be President, is on the air again for you. He's m.-c.-ing the new Shell show, and you can hear him and a bevy of guest stars every Saturday night on the NBC-Red net

Stuart Churchill sings at his work! In fact, that is how he got his start: He was at work in a restaurant, and singing, when Fred Waring came in! Now he's working on NBC's Saturday Night Parade — singing!

Another Phil Baker helper! This time it's Agnes Moorehead, comedienne and dramatic actress. She made her professional debut in an opera chorus, and first went on the air in 1926 in St. Louis

When you dial NBC's Musical Camera on these Sunday afternoons, the music you hear with Willie Morris' singing is batoned by Josef Cherniavsky. He toured the U. S. in 1919—and stayed!

DAY AND NIGHT,
BIG-TIME STARS AND BIG-TIME
SHOWS ARE BE-HIND YOUR DIALS!

When Jerry Cooper hit New York about three years ago, he had $20, a big voice, and not much else. He sang in night clubs until the big chance came along. Now he has his own hit-show on the NBC-Red network

Left: A Hollywood director in the old days of the silent screen, Fred Niblo now masterminds "Fred Niblo's Professional Parade" every Wednesday night for NBC. He brings Hollywood life and action to this variety show!

The MAESTRO in ACTION— FRANK BLACK

He brought symphonic technique to the microphone, made the audience like it, and made it pay him well!

Frank Black's father wanted him to be a dairyman, and he was trained as a chemist. But he knew music was his life work!

"Softer, softer!" NBC bandmen know Black as a strict, but kindly, disciplinarian

Frank Black is known as one of the hardest workers in radio. Sixteen hours a day is his normal stint. Above: NBC's director looks angry, really isn't!

Frank Black's first job—playing piano in a movie—paid ten dollars a week. Now he's general musical director for NBC, and his salary has many figures!

SHORT WAVES

BY CHAS. A. MORRISON, president, INTERNATIONAL DX-ER'S ALLIANCE

(Figures in Parentheses Are Megacycles)

TRY an early morning session at the dials between 4:30 and 6 a.m. EST (3:30 and 5 CST) for exceptionally fine reception, says Paul Dilg, Evans-ton, Ill., who recommends this for those elusive signals. During this period the Australians are quite loud, although VK3ME (9.5), Melbourne, weakens considerably with the approach of dawn. VK3LR (9.58), Melbourne, sends strong signals until it signs off at 8:30 a.m. EST (7:30 CST). As a rule, the strongest station heard is ZMBJ (8.84), the S. S. Awatea, which plies regularly between Wellington, New Zealand, and Sydney, Australia. Transmissions from this floating broadcaster can often be enjoyed as late as 8 a.m. EST (7 CST) . . . GSO (15.18) and GSB (9.51) are heard well, as is TPA3 (11.885), Pontoise, France, up to its sign-off at 5 a.m. EST (4 CST). All three of the German transmitters DJA (9.56), DJN (9.54) and DJB (15.2) are at enjoyable strength, with DJA the weakest of the three. OLR (11.87), Prague, Czechoslovakia, signs on at 5:15 a.m. EST (4:15 CST) with a program directed to Australia and Asia, which reaches North America with fair volume . . . ZBW (9.525), Hong Kong, differing from other stations, seems to grow louder after daybreak.

CSW, the National Broadcasting station of Lisbon, Portugal, seems to have adopted a regular schedule, after several months of testing, as follows on 11.84 megs, to 1:30 a.m. EST (12:30 CST); on 11.04 megs, till 6 p.m. EST (5 CST), then to 9.94 megs where it signs off at 8 p.m. EST (7 CST).

A NEW station, HP5I (ah-chay pay sinko ee), "The Voice of the Interior," Aguadulce, Panama, has been logged by R. B. Oxrieder, State College, Penn., on 11.895 megs. Before signing off, which takes place between 11 p.m. and 12 mid. EST (10 and 11 CST), chimes as those employed by NBC are sounded . . . On Thursday, January 28, around 7 p.m. EST (6 CST), another one of the Spanish war broadcasters, with a call believed to be FGT1 was heard on 7.004 megs. The station signed off at 7:10 p.m. EST (6:10 CST) with "Espana Libre" in the form of a cheer, repeated three times . . . YV1RG, "Radio Valera" Valera, Venezuela, has shifted to 6.225 megs . . . A Costa Rican heard nightly on 6.88 megs with very poor modulation, has so far defied identification . . . The Latin on 11.804 megs which has been heard with weak signals since last November has been definitely identified as OAX5B, "La Voz de Ica," Ica, Peru.

Japanese broadcasters JZJ (11.8) and JZI (9.535) are being heard daily from 9 to 10 a.m. EST (8 to 9 CST).

Germany has issued a statement that the wave lengths used by its transmitters at Zeesen must be kept free of interference from other stations operating illegally on, or near, channels allotted by international agreement for their use. Listeners are requested to aid in keeping their broadcasts free of heterodynes or cross-talk by reporting the call and location of the offending station at once, preferably by cable, to Funkuberwachung, Reichspostzentralamt, Berlin . . . Experimental station DJP (11.85), Zeesen, Germany, is transmitting daily from 11 a.m. to 4:20 p.m. EST (10 to 3:30 CST), with antenna beamed on Africa.

One of the world's loneliest amateurs is Prince Vinh San, ex-ruler of Annam, in exile on Isle d' Reunion. To while away the hours the Prince operates his own amateur station whose call letters are FR8VX. The transmitter, which has a directional antenna for transmission to North America, is on the air daily from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. (10 to 4 CST), on 14.34 megs. Thomas P. Jordan, Scranton, Penn., reports hearing this interesting station several times close to 11 a.m. EST (10 CST).

Harry Kentzel, Averill Park, N. Y., is hearing the new Peruvian OAX4J (9.33), "Radio Nacional, La Voz de Lima, Peru," daily from 6 to 11:30 p.m. EST (5 to 10:30 CST).

BAFFIN LAND is now represented by amateur station VE5TV on Nottingham Island, which is operated by Canadian government observers. According to H. S. Bradley, Hamilton, N. Y., this station operates on approximately 14.3 megs irregularly from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. EST (6 to 5 CST). Listeners reporting to VE5TV will have to wait patiently for a verification as operator will not receive another mail until next August.

ZHI, Singapore, Straights Settlement, is definitely off the air.

Work will soon be started on the new 20,000-watt transmitter for W9XAA of Chicago, Ill., which is scheduled for completion by August 1 . . . W4XB, Miami, Florida, which has been off the air for some time, has received permission to increase the power of its transmitter from 250 to 5,000 watts.

A new station, CEM (8.88), Amclennes, Chili, heard at 10 p.m. EST (9 CST), was reported by Roy Myers, Los Angeles, Calif.

George Ebbecke, Philadelphia, writes that EAQ (9.86), Madrid, Spain, is transmitting a daily program for Europe and Africa, from 2:30 to 5 p.m. EST (1:30 to 4 CST), which includes war news in English, German and Italian . . . PHI, Huizen, Holland, on January 17 shifted back to 17.77 megs, where the usual schedule is still in effect . . . Moscow has been heard testing on a new frequency of 10.065 megs from 4 to 5:15 p.m. EST (3 to 4:15 CST), and occasionally from 6 to 7 p.m. EST (5 to 6 CST) . . . EAJ43 (10.37), Tenerife, Canary Islands, is now transmitting for Latin America, daily from 8 to 9:10 p.m. EST (7 to 8:10 CST). The last fifteen minutes is occupied with the playing of almost all of the South American anthems.

The Latin broadcaster on approximately 9.443 megs, is HC2EBA, "La Voz de Alma," Guayaquil, Ecuador, reports Pedro Rodriguez, New York City. The station is best heard from 9:15 to 11:15 p.m. EST (8:15 to 10:15 CST).

MIGUEL A. RIVERA, a Peruvian, temporarily stationed in Hong Kong, reports that several new stations have been inaugurated in Peru, at Cusco, Ica, Arequipa, Trujillo, Oroya, Huancayo, Talara, Huacho and other centers. In Arequipa, the Arequipa Import Corporation has opened two: "Radio Landa" and "Radio Arequipa." OAX7A, "Radio Cusco," Cusco, began transmitting on 6.128 megs several months ago. OAX4P, "Radiodifusora Andina Junin," is located in Huancayo. A new 10,000-watt national short-wave transmitter has just been completed in Lima. It will broadcast on 6.092 and 9.562 megs, as well as on the regular broadcast band on 850 kc.

NOTICE: The programs as presented here were as correct and as accurate as the broadcasting companies and RADIO GUIDE could make them at the time of going to press. However, emergencies that arise at the studios sometimes necessitate eleventh hour changes in program listings, time, etc.
Bell Δ indicates religious services and programs. Star ★ indicates high spot selections.
If your favorite station is not listed at quarter or half hour periods, consult the time listings immediately above. The chances are that a network program of 30 or 60 minutes' duration is on the air at a quarter-hour when you do not find your station listed.

MR. FAIRFAX KNOWS ALL

Not one but two men composed the perennially favorite melody, "Play Fiddle Play." They are DEUTSCH and HOFFMAN. The latter's whereabouts is not known. Emery Deutsch is conducting at the Rainbow Grill, Rockefeller Center, New York City. Doctor John Wayne of the "BIG SISTER" cast is in real life Martin Gabel.—J. D., Pittsburgh, Pa.

The cast of "RICH MAN'S DARLING" follows: Peggy Allen, played by Peggy Allenby; Gregory Alden, Ed Jerome, Claire Van Roon, Ethel Re-may; Paeky O'Farrel, Carl Swensson. Blanche Sweet reads the announcements.—T. G. I., Hol-leston, Mass.

The Mutual Broadcasting System and affiliated stations carry the feature, "MOLLIE OF THE MOVIES" five days weekly, Monday through Friday at 3 p.m. EST (2 CST; 1 MST; 12 noon PST).—W. M. B., Huntington, W. Va.

The real name of JOE COOK, who heads the Chateau show, is Lopez. His parents died when he was not yet four and he was adopted by a family named Cook who lived in Evansville, Ind. He's nicknamed: "JoJo."—R. G. J., Lima, Ohio.

JAMES MELTON is on a vaudeville tour. He played Chicago recently. You may see him in your city soon. He also has made several slicker shorts and is contemplating going at Hollywood in earnest.—Mrs. N. R., Buffalo, N. Y.

Marian Jurian, Molly of radio's "FIBBER MEGEE AND MOLLY," comely team, portrayed the character of Mrs. Smith in that old time serial favorite, "The Smith Family."—W. G., Chicago.

her hilarious antics on the revived WBBM "Nutty Club" every Saturday night from 12 mid. to 2 a.m. EST (11 p.m. to 1 a.m. CST; 10 p.m. to 12 mid. MST; 9 to 11 p.m. PST) . . . Block and Sully are making frequent guest appearances on the air, notably on Jack Oakie's College via CBS, Tuesday evenings at 9:30 p.m. EST (8:30 CST; 7:30 MST; 6:30 PST).—J. H. M., Chicago.

You may address correspondence to DORIS KERR, ANNE JAMISON and TITO GUIZAR to the Columbia Broadcasting System, Artists Bureau, 485 Madison Avenue, New York City. SAL-LY SINGER and LUCILLE MANNERS may be contacted by writing to the National Broadcasting Co., New York City. Address FANNIE BRICE care of "The Follies," Chicago. To reach GRETE STUECKGOLD, address the Metropolitan Opera,
New York.—E. S., Chicago.

HARVEY HAYES takes the part of "Michael" in the drama, "MARY MARLIN," while NAT CROWLEY portrays "John Perry" in NBC's "JOHN'S OTHER WIFE." Donna, also in the Mary Marlin sketch, is done by LORETTA POYN-TON. The "Philip King" in the "ROMANCE OF HELEN TRENT" is really DAVID GOTHARD. As you asked for a description of him, here it is: He's six feet of handsome height, weighs 148 pounds, has light brown hair and blue eyes.—A. M. H., Rock Island, Ill.

UNCLE EZRA BROADCASTING
from Station E-Z-R-A
EVERY MON.-WED.-FRI.
NBC — Coast-to-Coast

You'll enjoy the philosophy and quaint humor of this old man with young ideas. One of the best loved characters in radio, in a program that's DIFFERENT. Never a dull minute. The Hoosier Hot Shots supply the music. 'Nuff said.

Solution to Puzzle Given Last Week

THE COVER PORTRAIT

THE little French girl on the cover of this week's RADIO GUIDE is known today to almost everybody as Lily Pons—coloratura soprano. But Lily Pons was well known in musical circles in her own country long before she even considered developing and training her voice.

Lily was born in Cannes, France, not long enough ago to make the date worth fibbing about. Her moderately wealthy parents were overjoyed to see traces of musical talent in their vivacious daughter. They lavished encouragement on her, and sent her to the Paris Conservatoire for training—but not for her voice. She was an accomplished pianist. Her teachers loved her, gave her their best advice—and she graduated with highest honors. She was a piano virtuoso, and happy with her future.

But then she became very ill. Doctors ordered her to abandon music for at least two years. On returning to Cannes, she met a foreign music critic, August Mesritz—and soon they were married. It was her husband who first noticed the quality of her voice, and he suggested that she take singing lessons.

Three years later she made her vocal debut at Mulhouse, in Alsace. Minor engagements in France and Italy followed—and then the great opportunity! She was recommended to Gatti-Casazza, of the Metropolitan Opera Company. She was practically unknown, and still in her twenties—but he gave her a chance.

HER debut at the "Met," on January 3, 1931, was a sensation. Critics raved—audiences gasped. Then came movies, radio, personal appearances. She was on the air with Andre Kostelanetz in his great musical program, and is now appearing in a much-praised movie, "That Girl from Paris." Lily Pons is the girl. She's not from Paris—but still, Lily Pons is the girl! Fans swear to that!

MAN CAN NOW TALK WITH GOD
Says Noted Psychologist

"A new and revolutionary religious teaching based entirely on the misunderstood sayings of the Galilean Carpenter, and designed to show how we may find, understand and use the same identical power which Jesus used in performing His so-called Miracles," is attracting world wide attention to its founder, Dr. Frank B. Robinson, noted psychologist, author and lecturer.

"Psychiana," this new psychological religion, believes and teaches that it is today possible for every normal human being, understanding spiritual law as Christ understood it, "to duplicate every work that the Carpenter of Galilee ever did"—it believes and teaches that when He said, "the things that I do shall ye do also," He meant what He said and meant it literally to all mankind, through all the ages.

Dr. Robinson has prepared a 6000 word treatise on "Psychiana," in which he tells about his long search for the Truth, how he finally came to the full realization of an Unseen Power or force "so dynamic in itself that all other powers and forces fade into insignificance beside it"—how he learned to commune directly with the Living God, using this mighty, never-falling power to demonstrate health, happiness and financial success, and how any normal being may find and use it as Jesus did. He is now offering this treatise free to every reader of this magazine who writes him.

If you want to read this "highly interesting, revolutionary and fascinating story of the discovery of a great Truth," just send your name and address to Dr. Frank B. Robinson, 403-2nd St., Moscow, Idaho. It will be sent free and post-paid without cost or obligation. Write the Doctor today.—Copyright 1935, Dr. Frank B. Robinson.—Advertisement.

it was as if he had never been away. That's clever work, and you can credit Bill for it.

Under this policy of one for all and all for one, the Hotel has prospered. People coming to Hollywood actually try to find the hotel, believing it exists. Who wouldn't like to register there, and rub elbows with its stars!

But the show had its inner trials and troubles. For instance, a love story had been written around Dick and the girls. This romantic thread had the fans all agog, wondering which girl Dick would get.

One day Dick came to Bill Bacher. "I am going to marry Joan Blondell," he said. "What will that do to our radio story?"

Well, of course it would knock any imaginary romance into a cocked hat. "I appreciate your confiding in me," said Bill. "We'll fix it up somehow. Let's see, I'll change the story so that you gradually break off your love affairs and we'll drop the story."

THOSE who wrote in, wondering what happened to cause a cooling off between Dick, Moonglow, and Ginny, now have their answer.

And then the bomb burst. Dick, who had been on a honeymoon in New York, returned to plunge into picture work and radio. The public appearances in the East, the constant glare of publicity, had him fagged out.

The publicity boys had been too efficient—Dick and Joan hadn't had a moment's peace. In fact, when Dick got back and had a bird's-eye view of the colossal amount of publicity over his marriage, he called a halt on all interviews on matrimony.

Worn and tired, Dick wanted to get off the radio program. The Warners decided the time was ripe to withdraw him quietly and go to work on their own program. Hollywood Hotel didn't want to lose Dick. And in a way, he hated to leave.

BUT as for the stories of jealousies, temperament, and friction—

"There's nothing to it," said Bill Bacher. "There's nothing we wouldn't have done to keep Dick on the program. It was all a business deal, and in the slowdown Dick had no alternative. And neither had we."

"As for the Hotel, the new master of ceremonies, Fred MacMurray, has stepped right in and made good. I rate Fred about third among male stars—Gable, Taylor and MacMurray."

"He brings the program something new. Just as there's only one Dick Powell, there's only one Fred MacMurray. They have different styles. Both are strong personalities."

"So, while Dick's loss was keenly felt, the show goes on."

Questioned closely about the possibility of any clash in temperaments between Louella and Dick, Bill grinned.

SHE invited him to be her guest of honor for the big February 5th broadcast," pointed out the producer. "Does that indicate ill-feeling? That program will celebrate Irving Berlin's thirty years of song writing—a great cavalcade of American music. Many big stars will be present. No, Louella is very fond of Dick, and they are good friends."

The reason Dick left the Hotel can be attributed only to the fact that Warner Brothers wanted him for their own program. And by the same token, Dick's appearance in the first studio-owned commercial program is the shot that will be heard round the movie industry. Jack Warner and all the lads who mapped out this strategic move are to be complimented, for it means even better radio programs emanating from Hollywood.

Those commenting on the development point out that the stage first pooh-pooed the movies, and eventually went down to defeat. By the same line of reasoning, can the movies afford to ignore the radio any longer?

With television on the way, with radio making deeper and deeper inroads as a medium of entertainment, the movies must merge with the radio. Warner Brothers have done it. Will the others follow?

Hollywood Hotel may be heard Fridays over a CBS network at 9:00 p.m. EST (8 CST; 7 MST; 6 PST).

WHO'S AFRAID OF FLYING?

mind today—and not by any persuasion of mine, either. Los Angeles is surrounded with airports, and at every one of them you'll find scores of small planes in the hangars, all owned by amateur Hollywood fliers. And I can remember when movie studios and broadcasting studios had a ban on their stars' flying, either in private ships or airliners!

THE other day, I flew a friend of mine down to Palm Springs, a hundred miles away. He was a little leery about going at first. He had been up only once before—and that time in a cross-country airliner. I said to him: "Now, don't worry. I'm not going up if the weather isn't absolutely perfect. I'm just as anxious about my neck as you are about yours. I want to be around a long time yet, too." He finally decided to take the "chance."

"On the way down, I set the controls with the ship stabilized, merely keeping my feet on the rudder pedals to hold it on the course, and sat looking out at the scenery, talking with him. My ship isn't as sound-proof as a big airliner, but we could talk by leaning close to each other. And he said to me: 'I didn't know flying could be like this. You don't have to keep your eyes glued straight ahead; you don't have to keep gripping the wheel. You can see as much of the scenery as the passengers do. You couldn't try this on that road down there, and live!'"

"And is it a thrill to ride the airplanes, far from the crowds, effortlessly—with the machine doing all the work, while you take in the scenery! With no maniacs ahead of you or behind you, you can be as free as a bird from all the limitations of plodding mankind. And as free from fear!"

P. S.: I just saw Charlie Correll on his way into the NBC studios in Hollywood. He looked harassed. Freeman Gosden noticed it, too.

"What's the matter now?" asked Amos.

"It happened to me again," Andy explained, with slight-lipped irony. "I wasn't a minute away from the house this afternoon, going around one of those curves out in the Bel-Air hills, when a fellow in an old rattletrap lizzie banged into me, almost head-on. I know the curve; I was taking it on four wheels. He didn't, and he was taking it on two. Smacko! and another hundred dollars' worth of damage to my car!"

Amos 'n Andy may be heard Monday through Friday over an NBC network at 7 p.m. EST (6 CST; 5 MST; 4 PST), and later for the Midwest and West at 10 p.m. CST (9 MST; 8 PST).

RADIO GUIDE ASKS YOU!

IN ITS effort to increase its service to readers, RADIO GUIDE asks you—the readers—to express your opinions about the contents of the publication: What you like about it—and what you don't like about it. Your frank answers to the questions below will give the editors an opportunity to improve the publication, to take out what you don't like—to put in what you like. And—for giving your answers to the questions below—RADIO GUIDE will send to you—FREE—"The RADIO GUIDE Program Locator."

This new, up-to-the-minute Program Locator is the handiest aid for locating radio programs on your dial that has ever been compiled. Remember—it is not for sale; you can't buy it! And—there are only 5,000 of these program locators available. Last week there was a similar edition of only 5,000 copies for those who answered last week's questionnaire. If you did not get yours then—now is your chance to get one of these invaluable helps to "happy listening"—"The RADIO GUIDE Program Locator"! Fill out the questionnaire now, and mail it to The Editors, RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill. Do it today!

 - I'd like to see short wave relay stations listed for every American program possible.
 - Put the Foreign Short Wave programs on the same pages that carry the regular program listings.
 - Put the Foreign Short Wave programs right in with the regular program listings—under the proper "time" periods of the regular programs.
 - Discontinue "starring" programs.
 - Give us a daily "reminder" box for the important broadcasts we mustn't forget.
 - In your NBC program listings, show whether programs are on the "Red" or "Blue" network.
 - Mark length of network programs running over 15 minutes.

RADIO GUIDE'S OWN MID-WINTER LOG OF ALL STATIONS IN NORTH AMERICA

EVERY well-dressed radio set should wear a station log that is both up-to-the-minute and correct in every detail. A good log can solve the mystery of those faint squeaks and squeals which intrude between your local stations or it can make the game of "fishing for stations" as much fun as a taffy-pull. Herewith is such a log, designed to fill every need. It is brand-new and it is authentic.

Radio Guide extends thanks to the governments of the United States, Canada, and Mexico for their collaboration in preparing it. Now, how can it serve the listener?

For the sake of simplicity, we have listed in DARK FACE TYPE all stations which are members of networks. Stations are grouped under the kilocycle listings on which they operate, the same numbers that are duplicated on the dial of the average radio. Call letters, locations, power, and network affiliation are important facts included for the listener's convenience.

KEY—networks are indicated as follows: N—National Broadcasting Company; Nb—NBC's basic Blue network; Nr—NBC's basic Red Network; C indicates Columbia Broadcasting System's basic station; c indicates an optional CBS station; M—Mutual Broadcasting System. This log will appear in four consecutive parts. Paste these columns on a cardboard and "Double Your Radio Enjoyment."

dio, let them keep silent or limit their applause to a reasonable volume of short duration. I find sustained applause fully as objectionable as a roll of static. In fact, I call it "hand-made static."—Charles A. Wright, West Rumney, N. H.

(In RADIO GUIDE dated Feb. 6, 1937, the $5 prize letter by Mr. R. C. O'Brien was entitled, "Audience Actors' Equity," and suggested that studio audiences should be paid for their contribution to radio programs.—Ed.)

"TRUSTY" RADIO GUIDE

Editor, RADIO GUIDE: I have been an ardent RADIO GUIDE fan for the past two years, but have been unsuccessful in selling it to my family. They are much interested in opera and classical music. They never miss the Sunday evening hours—Ford and General Motors. As we did not know you was guest on the Ford program on January 24, I ran for my trusty RADIO GUIDE. Not only was the guest listed—but also the selections to be played! —(Unsigned), Hartford, Conn.

HITS OF THE WEEK

"GOOD NIGHT, MY LOVE" was the sensation of last week, moving up in the listing of the nation's favorite songs from fifth place to second. The sentimental number displaced another of the same general type: "When My Dream Boat Comes Home."

Among the other leaders, "In the Chapel in the Moonlight" held its top spot for the fourth week, and "Pennies from Heaven" held the third position, which it had had for the same period. It was once the leader.

The first fifteen hits this week are rated in the following order:

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 1. In the Chapel in the Moonlight | 9. I've Got You Under My Skin |
| 2. Good Night, My Love | 10. It's De-lovely |
| 3. Pennies from Heaven | 11. Serenade in the Night |
| 4. When My Dream Boat Comes Home | 12. You Do the Darnedest Things |
| 5. With Plenty of Money and Your Love | 13. Ridin' High |
| 6. One, Two, Button Your Shoe | 14. Let's Grow Old Together |
| 7. The Night Is Young | 15. One in a Million |
| 8. There's Something in the Air | |

Bring your RADIO UP TO DATE

With ADD-A-TUBE

Do your strong local stations come in all over the dial? Do they keep you from listening to out-of-town stations you've always wanted to hear? We guarantee ADD-A-TUBE to bring your radio up to date and to correct these conditions, or your money back. ADD-A-TUBE gives any radio the same melow tone, the same sharpness of selectivity, the same static-free reception as the latest, most expensive sets on the market! OPERATES BOTH IN LONG AND SHORT WAVES AND ON INSIDE OR OUTSIDE AERIALS. Amazing new invention improves reception on every type of set, battery or electric. Easily installed in a few minutes.

GET THESE CLEARLY SEATTLE, LOS ANGELES, MEXICO, CANADA, FOREIGN COUNTRIES, NEW YORK, POLICE CALLS

USES NO EXTRA CURRENT

ADD-A-TUBE costs nothing to operate. Uses no extra current. Actually saves you money by preventing overloading of tubes. With increased power of many stations, the average radio cannot handle volume or distance without distortion and overloading. ADD-A-TUBE eliminates this, and prevents overloading, exactly the same as newest, latest-improved sets. Anyone can install.

SEND NO MONEY

Try ADD-A-TUBE at our risk. We guarantee you'll be delighted with new thrill of clear local and long distance reception. Simply send name and address and ADD-A-TUBE will be mailed to you at once. Pay postman only $1.00 plus few cents postage on delivery. Complete with instructions. Nothing else to buy.

USERS SAY: "My set works like new." "Amazing." "Can't believe it's the same radio." "Send 2 more for friends—It's great!" Etc., Etc.

Money-Back Guarantee

Use 5 days—If not delighted, return ADD-A-TUBE and your money will be refunded instantly. Order today!

Gentle on Your Throat

ONE REASON A LIGHT SMOKE IS BETTER FOR YOU

Keep your throat clear... your voice clear. Choose the smoke that treats you right... the light smoke of Luckies. Lucky Strike is the one cigarette to benefit from the famous process, "It's Toasted." And "Toasting" removes certain harsh irritants naturally present in even the finest tobacco. That's why Lucky Strike—a light smoke—is kind to your throat, gentle when you inhale, better for you in every way.
