Medal of Merit

A Weekly Award for Excellence in Broadcasting

AWARDED TO ELZA SCHALLERT

HOLLYWOOD is a place where any man's best friend may turn out to be a dog; where the show's the thing—but the show is a mink coat and a diamond tiara; where heartbreak is at home and success is more often than not a farcical prelude to failure.

That is the impression of Hollywood given practically all the world by professional "gossipers" who make their living sawing off the limb they're sitting on. That sort of thing is not what listeners hear when they tune in "Elza Schallert Reviews" on NBC. Her program makes no pretense of "glamour." It presents the film stars as they are; it previews the better motion pictures, without prejudice; it has had some of the Cinema City's biggest scoops—but not when they concerned private lives or news of questionable taste. It is not a "gossip" program in any sense of the word.

New York was once the home of Chamber of Commerce propaganda in reverse. "There's a broken heart for every light on Broadway" was popularized by small-towners too impressed by the Big City to realize that it is pretty much like any other big city. Now they have all gone to Hollywood, marching to the light air, "Ah, it could only happen in Hollywood, tra-la!"

Mrs. Schallert is not a native of Los Angeles, but she has been there twenty-five years. She knows the property-men and gate-keepers and script girls as well as she knows the producers and directors and stars.

cause the public overrules their opinion of Hollywood and its people, she feels and says that the motion-picture industry is purposeful and constructive. She knows—for she has interviewed at home and on the air most of those who direct Hollywood's destinies.

Before she began broadcasting two years ago, Mrs. Schallert was a nationally known magazine and newspaper critic. Her early experience as press agent for a Los Angeles theater had introduced her to many screen luminaries when they were just beginning. Through them she met others, and from them all she learned what Hollywood really is.

The wisdom and good judgment of her broadcasts have been even better demonstrated by what she has refused to do than by any single comment she has broadcast. She has not snooped into private affairs, nor stirred scandals. Her programs have not been sensational, for it is her conviction that listeners do not need sensationalism as a stimulant to interest in the really fine things Hollywood produces. She feels that it is only when commentators attempt to interest the public in scandals that they require sensationalism.

Schoolteachers and their associations, motion-picture officials and members of motion-picture review and censorship committees have praised her programs many times. This week, Radio Guide joins with them in saluting Elza Schallert by presenting to her and to NBC the Radio Guide Medal of Merit.

HAPPY LISTENING

THIS week radio is just bubbling with activity! Listeners who miss a day at their sets during this new year's first week won't be able to recognize their radio fare when they return. Lest you lose track of your favorites, lend your attention to these startling activities on the week's seething schedule:

M. Mouse

THE jaunty little gentleman on Radio Guide's cover this week is Mickey Mouse, better half of the team billed as "Screendom's Happiest Couple." Mickey and Minnie take the air Sunday night for a new NBC series. Mr. Walt Disney, Mickey's Edgar Bergen, says the little fellow's broadcasting is not prompted by the success of last summer's "singing mice" but rather by his fury over his studio's film, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," in which he wasn't even given a stand-in's part. Donald Duck, Pluto the Pup, the "Goof" and all of Mickey's friends will be with him on his new series. Your ticket to the "Mickey Mouse Theater of the Air" is on page 4.

Double Talk

WHEN Dominick Felix Ameche was swashbuckling through his boyhood in Kenosha, Wisconsin, he somehow got the impression that a little man was following him—a sort of shadow that looked like him, sounded like him and acted like him. For a while Dominick made a getaway by changing his name to Don and going a couple of thousand miles away, to Hollywood. But now the little man is back. His picture is on the facing page. Jim Ameche, the Don Ameche shadow, is now a star in his own right, after acting for several years in minor parts. You can check up on how much Jim acts and sounds like Don when the kid brother's new serial debuts on NBC Monday. It's called "Attorney at Law."

Yesterday's Children

FOR over five years a radio serial called "Today's Children" has stood at the top of daytime programs. This week marks its last airing. On Monday the children's "Mother Moran" will lead them out into the audience which will hear the program replacing it—"Woman in White." The scrapping of a big-time program when it's on top is unprecedented. You'll want to check up on the situation on page 4.

CHARLIE McCARTHY is in trouble. And over a woman. Wise listeners are saying he had it coming to him. Any man, they said, who insisted on making love to so many women was bound to get it in the neck sooner or later. Charlie got it. Last week, in theaters from Coast to Coast, people who saw him in a news-reel booed him. Last week, literally thousands of indignant radio listeners took pen in hand to address radio stations, broadcasting networks, and particularly Charlie McCarthy's bosses, to say that they were outraged.

Congressmen have made speeches, ministers have preached sermons, the Federal Communications Commission sits in solemn session as this is written. Headlines in newspapers have used an ocean of ink. All because a well-loved wooden dummy came a cropper at the hands of Miss Mae West, our leading exponent of sex appeal.

We have looked behind the scenes and we have most of the answers. Those listeners who cry "Radio needs a censor" will be interested. Those who believe censorship leads only to worse evils will find grounds for worry.

Mae West has been an infrequent visitor to the microphone. Either she was not interested or no sponsor would pay her price, which was once rumored at $10,000 a broadcast. So when the word came that she would appear with McCarthy, it was big news to most radio commentators. RADIO GUIDE itself called its readers' attention in a little masterpiece of understatement when it dubbed the proposed meeting "The Sex-Appeal Battle of the Century."

SO WHAT did Miss West say that launched a thousand earnest crusaders upon a thousand crusades?

Error One: The situation of her scene with Don Ameche was that of the world's first kiss between Adam and Eve. The locale was the Garden of Eden. On the printed page, it does not look alarming. It was not even original, other skits having been written about the same subject. But under the impact of the sexiest word-coloring and voice-pitching ever heard on a network, the skit became something else again.

For instance, here is some of the Adam and Eve dialog. Adam is well satisfied with the Garden of Eden. Eve is unhappy and spoiling for trouble:

ADAM: I'm not complaining.

EVE: But I want something to happen.

A little excitement, a little adventure. A girl's got to have a little fun once in a while. There's no future under a fig tree.

ADAM: Why don't you relax and take it easy?

EVE: Hm... 'Cause I'm a lady with big ideas.

ADAM: What kind of ideas?

EVE: Oh... hm... you've got no idea. Listen, Adam, I've gotta get a chance to expand my personality.

Up to that point everything obviously is quite proper. Even when she calls Adam "tall, tan, and tired," and "lazy, lean, and lukewarm," she is following only a familiar pattern.

ONE crack said to have upset any number of sincere wives and mothers came in the continuation of Miss West's vocal annoyance with the Garden. "A couple of months of peace and security," she said, "and a woman is bored all the way down to the bottom of a marriage certificate."

Followed by:

ADAM: Well, then, what do you want—trouble?

EVE: Trouble! Listen. If trouble means something that makes you catch your Charlie "romanced" filmdom's "much-kissed" Andrea Leeds on a recent Sunday show, but no furor resulted. It's a habit of Charlie's to make love to lovely ladies and Andrea seems to like it breath; if trouble means something that makes your blood run through your veins like seltzer water—hm... Adam, my man, give me trouble.

At that point, the sketch veered away from Eve's boredom to her effort to persuade the serpent to get for her an apple from the Forbidden Tree. Succeeding, she returns to Adam and serves him what she calls "Forbidden Applesauce."

ADAM: Eve, what have you done?

EVE: I've just made a little more history, that's all. I'm the first woman to have her own way and a snake will take the rap for it.

ADAM: But Eve, we've lost the Garden of Eden. We're... we're just...
Soft music.

ADAM: Eve, it's... it's as if I see you for the first time. You're beautiful.

EVE: Hm... And you fascinate me.

ADAM: Your eyes...

ADAM: Your... your lips. Come closer. (Panting.) I want to hold you closer. (Panting.) I want to...

EVE: You wanna what?

EVE: You wanna what...
Kiss and explosive music.

ADAM: Eve, what... what... what was that?

EVE: That... that was the original kiss.

AND there it ended, the innocently intended little skit which so many listeners have called sacrilegious.

Someone has suggested that this storm about the McCarthy-Mae West broadcast is merely a tempest in a teacup. They should read the letters the networks have received. They should read the letters the Federal Communications Commission has received. Or, for that matter, letters that have come to the editor of RADIO GUIDE.

This came, for example from a mother in Austin, Texas:

"I have always enjoyed the Chase and Sanborn Hour until last Sunday evening. The Don Ameche-Mae West skit was disgusting, vulgar, and sacrilegious. I am surprised that the sponsors and NBC permit such trash to be broadcast over the radio. My nine-year-old twin daughters were listening, for they enjoy the program. They said, wonderingly, 'Why, that is the story of Adam and Eve.' I hated to call more attention to the program by turning it off. I cannot see why such should be permitted, especially on Sunday evening. Is it coming to the point where the whole family cannot listen in?"

This comes from a man living in Massachusetts:

"Most of us radio listeners have become inured to comedy programs on Sunday night, the home night of the week, but last Sunday the most callous of us received a rude shock. We tuned in to hear the matchless wit of Mr. Bergen and the delightful voice of Mr. Eddy and were trapped in the astoundingly silly parody on Adam and Eve, questionable on any night. Obviously, we need a radio censor."

This was written by a dentist in Indiana:

"I am not a member of any reform league and consider myself just an average citizen, but when my favorite program is dragged into commonplace by the insertion of such a display as Mae West made on the Chase and Sanborn Hour Sunday, I raise my voice in protest."

From North Carolina:

"To me the drama in which she took the part of Eve was vulgar and sacrilegious."

THESE are not isolated examples, but are typical of the thoughts in thousands of minds. Biblical stories should not be satirized, they agreed.

As is usual with this program, the star of the skit returns for an interview with Charlie McCarthy toward the end of the hour. This meeting fed new fuel to the flames, as we shall see. Some of the dialog, as heard in the parlors of radio's largest single listening audience, was as follows. Mae West has just given some keys to Charlie, to his obvious embarrassment.

CHARLIE: Oh, thanks, Mae. Did I leave them in the car?

MAE: No, you left them in my apartment.

(Charlie is confused, tries to change the subject.)

BERGEN: Charlie, where did you leave those keys?

CHARLIE: I... blub... blub... blub... blub...

BERGEN: Where did you leave those keys?

MAE: He left them on my dresser, so what? Charlie, why don't you walk out on Bergen? What's holding you?

CHARLIE: Well, he is. You'd better tell him, Mae.

MAE: If you want to know, he did come up to see me.

BERGEN: Oh, he did? And what was he doing up there?

MAE: Well, Charlie came up and I showed him my etchings. And he showed me his stamp collection.

CHARLIE: There you have it, Bergen. There you have it.

BERGEN: So that's all there was to it. Just etchings and a stamp collection.

CHARLIE: Heh... heh... he's so naive.

BY now the skit has established pretty well that the amorous little dummy has made a visit to Miss West's apartment. They continue:

BERGEN: Tell me, Miss West, have you ever found the one man in your life that you could really love?

MAE: Sure, lots of times.

CHARLIE: Could you even like Mr. Bergen?

MAE: Oh, Mr. Bergen? Why, of course. He's very sweet. In fact, he's the right guy. Confidentially, you'll have to show me a man I don't like.

CHARLIE: That's swell. Bergen's your man. You know he can be had.

The skit swings back to Mae's interest in Charlie himself. She wants him to leave Bergen for her.

MAE: Why don't you come home with me now, honey? I'll let you play in my woodpile.

Charlie pleads an excuse. Mae continues with the conversation:

MAE: You weren't so nervous and backward when you came up to see me in my apartment. In fact, you didn't need any encouragement to kiss me.

CHARLIE: Did I do that?

MAE: Well, you certainly did. I've got marks to prove it. Splinters, too.

And so on to the end.

ANYONE with an active imagination can picture the scene in the millions of homes to whom Charlie McCarthy has become a welcome Sunday evening visitor. Those family groups were aghast all across the United States. Mostly, they were dumbfounded and hurt, with a feeling that they had been deceived. Then they got mad. When listeners get angry, things happen.

But in the meantime, what of Hollywood? Hollywood has been on the broadcasting spot for some time, for Hollywood standards are not Radio City standards. The reason is this: A man can say things in a crowd that he would be ashamed to say before a mother and her son in a home.

Mae West has taught radio a lesson. She has demonstrated that what is sauce for the movie goose is not necessarily sauce for the radio gander.

Strange as it may seem, this whole tragedy, for it is that to Bergen and McCarthy, happened despite an abundance of safeguards.

Believe it or not, the U. S. Government does not have the power of censoring any radio program. Most people believe Uncle Sam can step in whenever he wishes. They will be surprised to know that Uncle Sam cannot. Any radio station, if it had the courage or the desire, could go on the air tonight and talk itself blue in the face on any subject from the Benefits of Communism to The Curse of the New Deal and no government official could stop it.

But the government does exert an influence in an oblique fashion. Each radio station is licensed by the government to operate in the public "interest, convenience, and necessity." That license must be renewed every six months.

SMUT is not in the public interest, convenience, or necessity. Sacrilegious skits are not in the public interest, convenience, or necessity. Mae West and Don Ameche as Adam and Eve or Mae West and Charlie McCarthy on the evening of December 12 were hardly broadcasting in the public's interest, convenience, or necessity.

So what happened? There was an amusing and amazing exchange of letters, and an unprecedented public apology which we shall explain. First, we shall look further into the present-day safeguards already established to prevent the wrong words reaching unprepared ears. For by such consideration, we can decide whether or not one of the week's letter-writers was right when he declared, "We need a radio censor immediately."

Any commercial broadcasting involves three commercial companies. First, the network which rents the broadcasting facilities. Second, the sponsor who pays the bills in order that he may advertise his product. Third, a sort of middleman expert who is known as an advertising agency and who is intrusted by the sponsor with the highly specialized and difficult job of producing a radio program which people will like.

PERHAPS the explanation given by Alton Cook, radio editor for the New York World-Telegram, is close to the truth. He stated:

"The Mae West script indicated the censorship bars had been let down for the evening. Actually, the script had been the subject of more strenuous censoring than almost any other that has gone on the air.

"An unofficial spokesman for NBC insists that the script was inoffensive to anyone who read through it. Implications that Mae West's insinuating manner brought to the lines caused the trouble. That had not been anticipated because Miss West did not rehearse the sketches completely.

"Preliminary rehearsal was scheduled in the Hollywood studio Friday, but Miss West failed to appear. As events turned, she was not needed

"The first rehearsals were held Saturday, but they gave no intimation of how the program would sound finally. Almost line by line, there were pauses for argument over changes that had been made. The story from Hollywood reports that Miss West did not approve the writers' revisions.

"Rehearsal Sunday was casual, too, Miss West merely running through the lines carelessly, without giving them much life. So again, no one had any notion of how the program was going to sound.

"When the broadcast came around, Miss West read the lines with her artful, sexy manner, bringing into the Adam and Eve comedy a risqué spirit that no one suspected in the type-written pages. The effect in her love scene with Charlie McCarthy was an even more striking and unexpected change.

"That is the NBC story of how the broadcast happened to get on the air.

"Once the program was under way with Miss West unexpectedly careening close to the limits of good taste, there was no way of toning down her treatment of the lines. The only option probably, because too many people will feel that Bergen went into this thing with his eyes open when he could have steered clear of it.

Don Ameche, probably, because he was the Adam of the sacrilegious skit.

Broadcasting itself, if this incident becomes a peg from which those who hunger and thirst for government control of all stations and networks can hang their arguments for stricter supervision.

Listeners, certainly, if the quality of our fine, clean entertainment is to be curtailed merely because of one serious slip on one program.

TODAY, and in the weeks following the broadcast, radio has busily been putting its house in order. First, there was a letter from the advertising agency which produced the program. It was addressed to the National Broadcasting Company and said:

"On behalf of our client, Chase and Sanborn, we wish to express our deepest regret that the program broadcast Sunday night, December 12, gave offense to anyone . . . It was a mistake, and we can assure the public at large that the same mistake will not be made again."

Shortly, the NBC replied in this fashion:

"We share with you the regret you express . . . Our interests are entirely mutual in striving to give to the American public the type of wholesome entertainment which it wants. The National Broadcasting Company can be counted upon to intensify its efforts to this end."

On Sunday, December 19, during the Chase and Sanborn Hour, listeners were surprised to hear the first public radio apology ever given for an offensive program. In well-selected words, the case was presented to the listener. No offense was intended, but of all those offended, pardon was asked.

While radio goes about putting its house in order, listeners also can tidy up their own attitudes. Here is the random opinion of a taxi-driver which carries the sting of truth. Last Sunday he leaned back and said to me:

"Sure, Bergen and McCarthy got mixed up with a stinkin' program, but they only work there. Like me, I can't choose the fares I pick up. I got to carry whoever flags me. Don Ameche, too. He's got a job. Them stars don't write that stuff. They get a paper handed to them and they read. I've been to a broadcast. I've seen 'em. So why pick on some swell guys we all like just 'cause they got handed the wrong paper. It ain't square. Personally, I'd like to forget all about Mae West and her broadcast."

SO on the night of December 12, Don Ameche had a script handed to him. So did Edger Bergen and, of course, Charlie McCarthy. So like good soldiers, they did the job they're paid to do. They put on a show. There was nothing else for them to do. Mr. Taxi Driver means to forget that one night something went wrong with the golden hour of entertainment which has made a nation's life brighter and nicer each Sunday evening for seven years. He means that Ameche and Charlie and Bergen should not be punished, that they are completely undeserving of the boos or hisses some people have tossed at them. He means that the broadcasters themselves have admitted that their good intentions went astray. Apologies have been offered and promises made for the future. That is enough. Last Sunday is old stuff. Next Sunday there is a new show.

I think my taxi-driver had something there.

Charlie McCarthy was Mae West's "man" at a recent "Chase and Sanborn" broadcast, but she "done him wrong." Her appearance made headlines, brought a deluge of protests from Coast to Coast anyway because NBC executives had flatly rejected the script as it stood then. It was taken to her apartment for revision.

"Revisions made by Miss West were brought in Saturday, but this version was declared even less acceptable than the original. The show's writers were called and there followed a lengthy session patching up the Adam and Eve playlet and the burlesque love scene with the little wooden dummy, Charlie McCarthy. Finally, a script was turned out that NBC officials would accept. That one was broadcast.

was cutting the program off altogether. A hasty decision ruled that cutting the show would cause more uproar than letting it run."

In summary, a chain of bad guesses and stupid decisions built up into a colossal blunder.

Today, there is the piper to pay.

But who will pay?

Mae West, probably, because the picture which she has just finished and which was soon to be released will undoubtedly be resented by a portion of the public.

Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy,

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE BROADCAST THAT SHOCKED A NATION, LAUNCHED A COAST-TO-COAST CRUSADE AGAINST "SEX APPEAL"

LISTENERS TO HEAR MICKEY MOUSE AND ALL HIS GANG IN AIR DEBUT OVER NBC—SUNDAY

The following exclusive story by Walt Disney was written especially for RADIO GUIDE. In it he tells why he's going to let Mickey go on the air over NBC Sunday.

By Walt Disney

I'M LETTING Mickey, Minnie, Donald and the rest of my gang go on the air, although I've been advised against it.

We consider this a good omen, for we were also strongly advised against ever creating Mickey, doing our pictures in sound, branching into Technicolor, making "The Three Little Pigs," and creating a feature-length picture.

People said Mickey would flop because women were afraid of mice, that both sound and color were fads, and that audiences would never sit through eighty minutes of an animated feature. However, the reception accorded "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" has convinced us that people will sit through it and like it.

So you can see why radio doesn't hold too many terrors as a new venture for us.

We have shied pretty clear of it until now. For several years many sponsors and advertising agencies have whispered the siren song of its riches in our ear.

"If you are capable of devising a formula for translating Mickey into your medium," we told them at first, "and if you can write and produce the show successfully without calling on us for help, take a shot at it."

Several tried, but none of them had the feeling for our characters. Then we realized that what we had begun to suspect was true: if Mickey went on the air we'd have to build the program ourselves.

Up until recently, we didn't have time to do this. We were working on "Snow White" day and night to get it into the theaters by the first of 1938, and were also turning out our usual quota of short subjects.

A few months ago, my brother and business manager, Roy Disney, talked to the Pepsodent representatives in Chicago. Frankly, I rather hoped the deal would fall through. Most of us were too tired to think radio, let alone do anything about it. But Roy came back with a contract. We were to build most of the program ourselves, for Pepsodent realized that this was the only way our characters could be aired successfully.

Minnie is training a woodland choir of song-birds, crickets, frogs, and tree-toads to sing a cappella or with orchestra. Felix Mills, who will direct our Silly Symphony Orchestra, has been doing a grand job of whipping into shape a group of singing hens, roosters, donkeys, goats, horses, and sheep rounded up by Mickey's talent scouts. However, the bee band still continues to get in his hair.

Goofy is collaborating with the sound-effects department on a gadget band. Its instruments are a bit rudimentary—a frying-pan section, a hot hosophone, a concrete mixer, and so on.

Seriously, though, we're all glad of this opportunity to go on the air, now that it's here. After all, we're a pioneering bunch at heart and radio will give us new interests and points of view. It's a rather logical direction in which we can expand.

We are sure that Mickey's many fans will welcome him to the air-planes, but the whole thing is not entirely a giving proposition where we're concerned. We are taking something ourselves. You see, out of this thirteen-week NBC series, we expect to develop new ideas and personalities which we can use in our pictures.

We look upon radio as a new stimulus, a challenge—something which will give us fresh ideas and a better perspective on our work.

"FRIENDS of 'Today's Children,' for over five and a half years you have been like neighbors to my family and to friends of my family. You have seen these 'Today's Children' work out their problems, one by one, problems that sometimes were difficult. But somehow, in some way, these children of mine now seem to be on the right path. They are happy and content, they are grown up and able to face their own problems."

With these exact words, "Today's Children's" "Mother Moran" asks a long and faithful audience to listen to "Woman in White."

Listeners who tune in "Today's Children" Monday will hear the characters of that serial in their final broadcast, as they become members of the great audience "out there." Following the click of a sound-effects radio-switch, engineers will plug into another studio, introducing "Woman in White," a new daily script show by the same author, Inna Phillips.

Everyone who listens and works behind the scenes in radio will wonder why "Today's Children" is being taken off the air when it enjoys top popularity rating among daytime serial programs.

The simple, homey words of "Mother Moran" are the answer. The new serial, "Woman in White," which dramatizes the gripping story of a young graduate nurse, "Karen Adams," will serve a real human need, as "Today's Children" has filled an important broadcasting spot for five years.

PLAYING the title role of "Karen Adams" in "Woman in White," will be talented Actress Luise Barclay; "Betty Adams," a sister of "Karen" and herself a student nurse, will be portrayed by youthful Antonia Gillman; "John Adams," a brother, will be played by Willard Farnum; "Dr. Lee Markham" will be acted by Macdonald Carey, and "Alice Day," nurse, will be portrayed by Ruth Bailey.

As the curtain rises on "Woman in White" Monday, tuners-in will hear "Karen Adams" giving her oath and pledge of service at a ceremony being held at a hospital for graduate nurses. Listeners will sympathize with Nurse Adams as she cares for her first case, they'll cheer her service of self as she nurses a middle-aged woman, defeated in her suicide attempt, back to health and adjusts her attitude toward life.

Presenting a series of actual cases from which the author bases her script material, "Woman in White" writes finis to Miss Phillips' career as an actress—for she played two important roles in "Today's Children." It also marks the first time in radio that an author and sponsor have invented this novel and effective means of signing off one successful venture to inaugurate a new one. Listeners will have the opportunity of being the critics in this rather revolutionary move.

FRANK SIMON AND HIS ARMCO BAND BEGIN
NINTH SERIES OVER
NBC — THIS SUNDAY

EACH day thousands of American youngsters give up play-hours for practise-hours, turning from enticing games of one-old-cat and make-believe to wearying sessions with cornets, trombones, clarinets, drums, saxophones, bass horns and sousaphones. Some, under prodding from parents and teachers, join school bands. Some, when the influence of their elders fades, quit. Others grow up to become members of town and community bands. A few, more gifted than the rest, find fame in later life as professional bandmen.

This week these perspiring young amateurs will find encouragement in the news that Frank Simon's Armco Band, off the air since last February, is returning to network broadcasting Sunday over NBC with a new series of programs featuring guest-star soloists chosen from the ranks of the nation's most ambitious and talented boys and girls. The young musicians, most of whom are members of public-school bands, have been selected by leaders in musical education in various parts of the country. Every section of the United States will be represented in this new series.

FIRST of the guests is a cornet virtuoso, fourteen-year-old Billy Snyder, of Edmond, Oklahoma, a member of the Oklahoma City University Band, who attracted Simon's attention last year when he won first place in class A cornet competition at a tri-state music meet at Enid, Oklahoma. On Sunday's program he will play Herman Bellstedt's "Napoli," a brilliant and difficult solo based on the familiar and lilting Italian air, "Funiculi, Funicula."

Simon himself, like the late John Philip Sousa, greatest of bandmasters, was a boy prodigy. Born in Cincinnati in 1889, of English-Bavarian parentage, he once played hooky from school to toot a paper horn in a circus band. At fourteen he was playing in a theater orchestra, studying in his spare time with Bellstedt, great American bandmaster of the nineteenth century. In 1912 he joined Sousa as a cornetist, after an audition before an audience in which sat Victor Herbert, Walter Damrosch and Nathan Franko. So great was his stage fright that he collapsed after he had played his solo. But he got the job he wanted and was with Sousa for seven years, during the last two of which he was principal cornet soloist and assistant conductor.

His new program series, he says, will be built around a solid foundation of the familiar marches that have set feet to tapping for many years, but more emphasis than heretofore will be laid upon sheer virtuosity. Sunday's broadcast, in addition to young Snyder's performance of "Napoli," will include Besterling's "March of the Steel Men"; an excerpt from Friml's "Katinka"; a tone poem, "Carnival in Paris," by Svendsen; Victor Herbert's "Serenade Espagnole"; and Eric Coates' "Knights-bridge March."

"COLUMBIA CHORUS QUEST" OFFERS REAL OPPORTUNITY TO SINGING AMATEURS—SATURDAY

ONE of the finest ways to encourage art in any form is to open competitive fields in which musicians, writers and painters can display their talents. What every artist wants most is an audience, a chance to vend his wares. More often than not, half his battle for success is a fight for a hearing.

Saturday of this week the Columbia Broadcasting System, cooperating with the Columbia Concerts Corporation, inaugurates a program series designed to throw a spotlight on the talent of young American choruses and choristers by giving them an opportunity to broadcast over a nation-wide network.

This series, known as the "Columbia Chorus Quest," will be aired on Saturdays over a period of at least sixteen weeks, and may possibly run beyond that. It is a contest open to amateur choirs, choruses and glee clubs whose members are not over twenty-five years of age. Prizes are a cup awarded by the Columbia Broadcasting System and (what is far more important to the singers) a concert tour arranged by the Columbia Concerts Corporation. First chorus to be heard in the series will be the Men's Glee Club of Pomona College, at Claremont, California.

The choruses will, in effect, be participating in open auditions on the air. Programs will be supervised by Miss Lucille Singleton, director of auditions for the broadcasting company, and judged for awards by a committee consisting of Deems Taylor, Davidson Taylor, director of the music department of the CBS program division, Ward French and Frederick Schang, Jr., of Columbia Concerts Corporation, and Dr. John Finley Williamson, founder of the Westminster Choir School, located at Princeton, New Jersey.

Under the terms of the competition, choruses may come from any part of the United States, but should be limited to forty voices. Written applications for auditions, to be addressed to Miss Singleton at CBS headquarters in New York City, should include an outline of the director's experience, a suggested program containing twenty-two minutes of music, the number of members in the chorus, and the name of the nearest CBS station from which a broadcast could be made. Prospective contestants who are unable to arrange broadcasts may submit recordings of their programs, which will be judged on the same basis as originals.

"This chorus quest," according to Davidson Taylor, "is intended to promote through radio the healthy interest in song which is evidenced throughout this country. It does not matter how large or small the community from which the choruses come may be, nor what type of music they may be interested in.

"What is most important is that rich talent is hidden in the amateur song-circles of the United States, and radio can help uncover and encourage some of this. Besides the formal awards of a cup and a concert tour, the winning group will enjoy the equally satisfying reward of winning a public hearing and popular approval, a vital and necessary stimulant for development. There is only one basis on which this may be earned, and that is merit."

Probably there is more fellowship in music than in any other art. Technically there is a vast void between the stein-thumping barber-shop quartet of the vintage of 1890 and the strictly disciplined chorus led, symphony-fashion, by a skilled director. Humanly, the distance is small. In each instance where music is made by groups there is the same feeling of unity, the same creative glow, the sense of the power to weld. Whatever their various artistic merits, community singing, the chorus, the village choir, and even the barber-shop quartet have been—and are —potent social agencies.

PERHAPS the most gripping and yet tender song ever penned by Schubert is his "Death and the Maiden." Expressional and lovely music is set to a text in which the young girl laments that she is called from this world before she has experienced all the joy of living. Schubert transfers the chief melody to his D Major String Quartet and enriches it with infinitely more embellishment and color than were possible in the original version for voice with piano accompaniment. Those who have the chance to hear Marion Anderson, the colored contralto, interpret the song should not miss the experience. Unforgettable is her differentiation between the pathetic pleading of the maiden and the solemn and sepulchral command of Death.

Haydn's music hardly ever needs the service of a commentator, for it nearly always tells its own stories in amiable tunes and transparent development. The excerpt on this program is of winning simplicity and charm.

TSCHAIKOWSKY'S Violin Concerto (his only work in that form) could not have better hearing than from expert, imaginative and warm-toned Mischa Elman. Russian by birth, he senses the racial intensity and rhythmic verve of the greatest of all Slav composers. The Concerto is a succession of picturesque and exciting moments both in its solo and orchestral episodes—the first movement dramatic, the second songful, the finale exhilaratingly gay with its main theme amusingly reminiscent of "Three Little Maids From School Are We," from "The Mikado."

It is interesting in these days of advanced violin technique for me to remember that when I was a student at the Berlin Royal High School of Music, its famous violin director, Joseph Joachim, declared the Tschaikowsky Concerto to be "unplayable." Time gave the correct answer, for while Tschaikowsky's opus has become a standard work, all the compositions of Joachim are buried in oblivion.

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air..."—Wordsworth

OPERATIDE now is in full swing at the Metropolitan, and if radio listeners do not all get a look inside that storied temple of song, at least they are able to make aural communion with it every Saturday afternoon.

Compared to some of the ornate opera houses of Europe, the Met looks plain and prim from the outside. However, the interior ranks worthily with even the handsomest of auditoriums, especially when the New York audience, smartly dressed and bejeweled, fills the boxes and parterre seats. As the lights dim and the gilded damask curtains open to reveal the immense stage, the picture is complete in impressiveness and glamour.

All that is not news to radio auditors who have read frequent descriptions in newspapers. Nevertheless, I wonder whether they, sitting in easy enjoyment, ever lend thought to the many other features which give the Metropolitan performances their world-wide prestige. Let us take a brief, informative survey.

To start with, financial and real-estate boards guarantee expenditures for the company and the building. An artistic advisory committee consults with General Manager Edward Johnson (formerly a leading tenor of the Met) and his assistants, Edward Ziegler and Earl Lewis, the last named also in charge of the box-office and its staff. A legion of lesser dignitaries do secretarial labor, keep records and tabulations, send out notices of rehearsals, handle advertising and publicity, arrange the traveling schedules of the company and individual artists, compile billboards and programs, and keep track of the enormous pay-roll.

The house itself requires another extensive battalion, one responsible head, John Brown, directing cleaners, furnacemen, doorkeepers, motor attendants, ticket-takers, and acting as warden of all the equipment outside of the stage, which is a small world in itself. There you will find an army of operators—some of the most famous artists in the world designing sets and costumes to be finished by technicians; scene-shifters, property custodians, electricians, carpenters, dressers, wig and make-up experts.

Already the force seems large enough to run a good-sized industrial plant, but you've heard only half the story, for there is still the musical branch of the organization. I should guess, roughly, that it comprises about 350 members: the stage director and his aides, solo singers, chorus, orchestra, conductors, accompanists, choral drillmen, cue-callers, music copyists, librarian, prompter, light manipulators.

Conferences and rehearsals are incessant, some of them in remote rooms even while the performances are in progress on the stage. The Metropolitan gives operas in four languages (yes, English occasionally makes its appearance), and each of the polyglot sections has its own

DR. WALTER DAMROSCH has built a sonorous orchestral frame for Bach's ringing proclamation of faith, whose original form was that of a church chorale accompanied by organ. In those days (copyright laws not yet being in existence) composers frequently fell in love with one another's melodies and used them without credit, merely making some slight addition or refurbishment. For the chorale heard on this program, Bach appropriated Martin Luther's old air, but with superior skill enhanced its sturdiness and grandeur. The composition dates from Bach's last period, and shows his genius at its richest maturity.

YOUTHFUL prodigies as performers have always been numerous, but as composers, history records only a few—chiefly Mozart and Mendelssohn. The latter wrote his celebrated overture when he was seventeen, and it remains a marvel of melody and craftsmanship.

Liszt's concerto features Adele Marcus, an American pianist still in her middle twenties but already recognized as a highly gifted keyboard exponent. When played in its entirety, from its declamatory opening to its glittering conclusion, the Liszt music entrances and thrills—the slow second section with romantic glamour, the third division (scherzo) with sparkling contributions from the triangle.

LUCY MONROE'S numbers employ that soprano's talents variously, in Mozart's jubilant outpouring, Rimsky-Korsokoff's flowery measures, Debussy's sensitive poetizing, and Bizet's delicate melodiousness in his "Open Thy Heart." Of the group, the Debussy song has the most historical significance, being from his cantata, "The Prodigal Son," with which he won the Prix de Rome at Paris in 1884, when he was twenty-two years old. The coveted prize entitled him to two years of scholarship at the Academie in the Italian capital, but he was too free a spirit to be subjected to conservative rules and so he left his sincere before its completion, returned to Paris and immediately wrote the daring "Afternoon of a Faun," which shocked the professors dreadfully but delights us no end today.

DAVID GUION has made a luminous name, particularly for his earlier American airs, which he voices with racy stimulus and feeling. Our land had long been ridiculed by Europeans for its lack of indigenous folk-music, but that reproach no longer holds good in the face of the abundant repertoire brought to light during recent years. Aside from the songs of the colored brethren in Dixie, researchers have unearthed veritable treasures from the mountains of Kentucky and the Carolinas, the Southwest mission territory, the cowboy regions, and many other tunefully fruitful localities. For his devotion and skill in amplifying such songs into concert form, Guion deserves warm, patriotic thanks.

Kostelanetz' program on the whole offers a rather light complexion, but perhaps he had in mind the relaxed spirit which holds over from the holiday period. "Casey Jones" rejoices in especially jovial handling from his pen.

"Il Trovatore": ear-tickling melody to fiery dramatic ardor singers and conductors. When everything is in full activity, with bustle and bedlam rampant, the mere contemplation of such a huge beehive of activity makes one completely dizzy. A-touring, the outfit resembles a mammoth caravan, but travels in special trains.

Next time Mr. Milton Cross, the commentator (seated in a glass-enclosed box with his control associates) says warningly, "The conductor has mounted his stand, and the opera is about to begin," you will appreciate the magnitudinous physical labor and artistic foresight and care which have made it possible for the Metropolitan to establish its luminous reputation and give the best performances of opera to be heard anywhere on the musical globe.

Lucy Monroe, this week's Banks star, is also the official singer of the American Legion, and her recitals on tour never fail to draw a big representation of soldierly auditors. Miss Monroe's winning attainments of voice and delivery are flanked by uncommon musicianship, for she also plays the piano skilfully and could well serve as her own accompanist. The youthful soprano's recent radio triumph in "La Boheme" should destine her for many more operatic appearances on the air.

Mischa Elman's violin art and kindling tone (of which radio listeners have been deprived for a long time) are to shine again with the New York Philharmonic under John Barbirolli. Elman's absence was due to his protracted world tours, which took him to such remote places as China, Japan, Java, India. He tells one of the most amusing musical anecdotes imaginable, when a Javanese rural chieftain attended the Elman recital, asked to look inside the artist's violin, and remarked: "I see how you can get so much music out, but I can't understand how you put it in."

Andre Kostelanetz' directing of the Chesterfield music is being supplemented (for thirteen broadcasts) by the vocal art and dramatic interpretations of Lawrence Tibbett, the American baritone.

A splendid musician in his own right, Kostelanetz started his career as a pianist, turned his attention to conducting, making arrangements of light music and featuring "digests" of the classics. A little bird—not Lily Pons—chirps that Kostelanetz' real ambition is to wind up at the head of one of the great symphony orchestras.

Conductor, Gennaro Papi

Now eighty-four years old, Verdi's "Il Trovatore" bids fair to attain the age of Methuselah, if one may judge by its unabated popularity. In that respect it resembles "Faust" and "Carmen." So sensational was "Il Trovatore" at its 1853 premiere in Rome that it swept the musical world and reached America as early as 1855 with a production at the Academy of Music in New York City.

Since then nearly every renowned singer has done the principal "Trovatore" roles, whose airs range from ear-tickling melody to fiery dramatic ardor, old friends to even the most superficial music lovers. Hardly anyone is unacquainted with the "Miserere," "Anvil Chorus," Gypsy Azucena's "Strike La Vampa" and Manrico's tenor aria, "Di Quella Pira" (Tremble, Ye Tyrants).

Even the best efforts of the barrel organ brigade to make the "Trovatore" music hackneyed, have failed to dim its easy attractiveness and effect. Insofar as the intrinsic merit of Verdi's score is concerned, earnest students of such matters know that it is deeply felt and wonderfully worked material, already prognosticating the greater things to come from the Italian master.

Of the many "Trovatore" performances I have heard, outstanding memory remains of Caruso's remarkable high C in "Di Quella Pira"—a note, by the way, that was never written by Verdi, but has been interpolated by many generations of tenors in order to add thrill and intensifying applause. That Caruso high C was the most powerful and long held tone in my whole experience of opera.

ACT I

Preliminary related events have taken place. Old Count Di Luna, long since dead, had two very young sons, and the one was believed to have fallen ill because of bewitchment by a wandering gypsy hag, who is burned at the stake. Her young daughter, Azucena, witnessing the execution, swears vengeance and steals the stricken infant, intending to feed it to the flames that killed her mother, but mistakenly hurrying her own baby instead. She brings up the Count's son as hers. Arrived at manhood, he is known as Manrico, The Troubador. His real brother has fallen heir to their father's title and fortune.

When the opera opens, Ferrando is relating the story of the evil old hag, Azucena. Leonara, fair inmate of the Di Luna castle, tells her companion, Inez, of a handsome, mysterious knight who has won her heart. He serenades her in the dark garden and she rushes to meet him, arousing the jealousy of the Count, who flies into a rage and engages his rival in a duel.

ACT II

A gypsy camp in the Biscay mountains, Azucena, gazing into the fires, sings of the haunting memories it arouses. The band sings its Workers (Anvil) Chorus. The Count Di Luna, leading the forces of Aragon, had been overcome by Manrico, at the head of the Biscay troops. He magnanimously allowed his enemy to escape. Meanwhile, reports were spread that Manrico had perished and Leonara plans to become a nun. Count Di Luna arranges to abduct her, but Manrico disperses him and his forces and rescues Leonara.

ACT III

The Count's men have captured Azucena, who is made to confess her crime and reveals that Manrico is her "son." Just as the latter and Leonara are to be married, he learns that Azucena is to die at the stake. He rushes to her aid.

ACT IV

Manrico is Di Luna's prisoner in the same castle where he has dungeoned Azucena. The "Miserere" is intoned dolefully. The Count refuses Leonara's pleas for Manrico, but he relents when she promises to marry him. The despairing girl swallows poison and dies. The cheated Count has Manrico thrown into the flames and drags Azucena to the window to witness his agony as he perishes. She shrieks to Di Luna, "He was your brother!" and falls lifeless.

THERE WAS A WOMAN

Sundays, NBC-Blue, 3-3:30 p.m. EST

David—Wally! . . . Pericles—Aspasia! . . . Napoleon—Madame Walska! . . . Caesar—Cleopatra! . . . History and the long saga of romance from time immemorial tell the story of "the Woman" behind the deeds of great men.

"There Was a Woman" dramatizes the part played by these little-heralded influences in the lives of the men whom history credits with fame—turns the spotlight on the women, wives, mothers, sweethearts whose courage, love, devotion and guidance drove great men to high accomplishment.

Educationally, we may hope from this program a leavening of male pomposity and pride in this "world of men" . . . and a broadening of woman's appreciation of her part, both past and potential, in molding the world and guiding man's achievements. (Or is that, too, another age-old and little-publicized-secret of the female heart?)

STORY OF INDUSTRY . . . footwork

Saturdays, CBS, 5-5:30 p.m. EST

Argument thrives not so much on differences of opinion as on divergence of definitions. M. B. Folsom, young executive of the Eastman Kodak Company, will attempt a clarification of the issue between so-called "labor" and so-called "capital" when he augments the Story of Industry dramatization of the history of the American Shoe Industry with a brief talk entitled "Most Likely You Are a Capitalist."

Fanfare...

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

JAMES FARLEY

Saturday, CBS, 9:30-10 p.m. EST

Key men of the Democratic party lead the national salute to the memory of President Andrew Jackson. The President and the Postmaster General speak on the occasion of the "Jackson Day Dinner" in Washington, and through the eulogy and fanfare should filter a timely, first-hand study of White House attitudes on the state of the nation—a forecast of probable policies relating to the international situation, expectations of the regular session of Congress, and administrative light on "whither business?"

An Intimate Sketch of King George VI

HECTOR BOLITHO

Sunday, CBS, 1:30-1:45 p.m. EST

What happens to a man when he takes a throne? "Changes in the King" will be the subject of Biographer Bolitho's short-waved address from London on Sunday.

How has the rapid sequence of empire-shaking events that swept Edward VIII from the throne to comparative civilian obscurity influenced the younger brother who now reigns over the world's most far-flung empire?

What sort of man is this soft-spoken, apparently shy individual who was lifted to the British pinnacle by the same duty that thrust his brother out?

Whither England under the hand of George VI, family man, and what part will the gracious Queen Elizabeth play in the new tapestry of royal rule by The House of Windsor?

These matters will be discussed by Hector Bolitho, official biographer of David, Duke of Windsor, when he speaks over the Columbia network this Sunday afternoon. He will present the portrait of the King and the Royal Family from the intimate point of view of one who has been privileged to follow at close hand the personal lives of the members of the Windsor family.

The broadcast should provide American listeners, for whom the glamour of nobility still holds a vital interest, with a better understanding of the man whom a perverse destiny has called to the leadership of the British Empire in this day of great social change and political tribulation.

Serious listeners will find helpful clues, perhaps, for anticipating England's attitude and part in the play of international affairs in this intimate portrait of the King who can mold, if he may not execute, the Empire's role in affairs of state.

Radio's Grab-bag for Modern Adventurers

THE THRILL of adventure makes the whole world kin. We ride the wings when an Amelia Earheart challenges the vast sky girdle—and vanishes in the Pacific void. We struggle through Antarctic gloom to rescue a sick Commander Byrd. Our blood speeds up its work-a-day pace as radio offers armchair adventure in some distant arena of high achievement or daring action.

And this second-hand exultation in the excitement of adventure is fine nourishment for our imaginations—imagination too much waxed over with the traffic scum of timid living.

It swells the arteries with the virus of new ambition.

It paints the drab canvas of up-at-six-to-bed-at-eleven with the bright colors of neglected opportunity.

It brings to life the Marco Polo and the Mata Hari that sleeps in everyone of us. For you need only scratch a man to disclose a stay-at-home Columbus. Or lift the mask of a woman's bread and bridge interests to find the heart of another Florence Nightingale. Or watch a child, alone at play, and you spy on the mind's reincarnation of a Richard Lion Heart, a Robin Hood, a Kublai Khan or a Joan of Arc.

Yet this armchair adventuring lacks the fine edge of the real thing. You may be the most sensitive member of the audience, yet never know the actor's own sweet ecstasy. In the realm of action-adventure the best ring-side seat is at best a passive substitute for personal experience.

Strike out this year on adventure for yourself. Try the new trails of mental adventure . . . and you'll bring home undreamed-of treasures. Treasures, too, that are yours to keep—not fleeting enjoyment of reflected daring and accomplishment. You'll bring back more light for the dark moments of your job, more heat for the time you give to emotional and intellectual enjoyment.

This week, for example, we suggest a comprehensive gulp of the background and current facts in International Relations. Not a bad jumping-off place for a personal trek on the world safari that sweeps us along willy-nilly on the adventure of modern living.

E. S. P. . . .

MENTAL TELEPATHY EXPERIMENTS

Sunday, CBS, 10-10:30 p.m. EST

"What is it?" Announcers thunder the question, unpredictable thousands of homes are automatically transformed into the world's biggest laboratory . . . and a million-plus listeners turn scientist in the quest for the answer to E. S. P.

No, it's not a new cryptogram, nor another alphabetical puzzle from the political potpourri—it is extra sensory perception!

The program is produced by the Zenith Foundation and presented with the collaboration of several great universities and their scientific staffs. The listening audience is invited to participate in weekly experiments to test the validity of the phenomenon of extra sensory perception—or the transference of thoughts and/or feelings from one person to another without the use of regular mediums of such transference, namely, sight, sound, touch, smell.

Verified incidents of such phenomena are dramatized, and the person or persons who participated in these unexplainable experiences are brought to the studios to relate their own story and vivid impressions.

That the listening audience finds their efforts a source of both mental stimulation and a deal of fun is evidenced by the large volume of answers to the experiments that the Zenith Foundation receives for analysis following each week's broadcast.

We recommend the program on two scores: It is excellently produced, treats its subject with both the enthusiasm and restraint that are prerequisite to intelligent research, and above all it's as lively and interesting a thirty-minute parade of unusual information and entertainment as one can find on the airwaves in this day of development in radio service.

To recommend "Mental Telepathy Experiments" as an educational program may seem to some like diving into water of unplumbed depth. Perhaps. But unplumbed depths of human knowledge and unplumbed potentialities of the human mind are more than fit subjects, we feel, for educational enterprise. Try it. We'll be interested to hear what you think.

No Test Tubes...

SCIENCE SERVICE SERIES

Thursdays, CBS, 4-4:15 p.m. EST

Test tubes and chemicals, slide-rules and hieroglyphic formulae are no longer the symbols of the mysterious subject, science—not for the enthusiastic audience that regularly listens to Watson Davis and his guest authorities when they bring to life in quick-action sketch and talk the interesting activities of the world of physical and natural phenomena that surrounds our daily living. Emphasis is on current topics of widest interest. Definite subjects and the names of guest speakers are not announced sufficiently in advance to list each week, but plans promise an informatively profitable continuance of this most unusual listening adventure.

SCIENCE IN THE NEWS

Tuesdays, NBC-Red, 6-6:15 p.m. EST

"Science in the News," presented by the University of Chicago University Broadcasting Council, augments the menu of science data with spot news on science's contribution to the world's daily doings in every realm of human endeavor and development.

Thematic Listening

THEME OF THE WEEK:

International Affairs

Where will the cauldron of world conflict next spill its dirty brew?—in Africa?—the Balkans?—around the Rome-Berlin "axis"?—or on some new salient of the restless globe?

Diplomacy burns the midnight oil and apologies stay the itching fingers of international reprisal. Reporters cover . . . commentators decode, and we try to stumble through the welter of conflicting news and comment to a sensible digest and appraisal of the consequences to us of international passion, claim and counterclaim.

We are in that parade whether we wish it or not, and to keep step more intelligently is the prime concern of every thinking person. One way to accomplish this effectively is to hop on the moving reviewing-stand of radio and follow the front ranks of the march of international relations.

The reviewing stand for the week:
Selected minutes for the serious listener.

Sunday. Again we must spot for special reference "Headlines and By-Lines" on Columbia stations at 10:30 p.m. and the "Chicago Round Table," NBC-Red network, at 12:30 p.m. "Headlines and By-Lines" sifts the news of the week and funnels the final flashes through Bob Trout, while H. V. Kaltenborn and Erwin Canham decode and interpret the foreign and domestic press parade respectively.

Monday. "Brave New World," CBS at 10:30 p.m., presents another episode in the history of South America as portrayed in the lives of its leading figures, historical and contemporary.

Tuesday. "People in the News," NBC-Blue at 7:30 p.m. (also Friday, NBC-Red, at 10:45 p.m.) Dorothy Thompson dissects the figures, big and little, who are the scene-shifters for the sets of international events, and analyzes the reasons behind their action.

Wednesday. Hear the "School of the Air" broadcast—dramatization of a trip to "The Peasant Kingdom of Roumania," CBS at 2:30 p.m. Geography is the handmaiden of history and international relations are the blazing staff of today's history in the making.

Thursday. "The March of Time," NBC-Blue, 8:30 p.m. Needs no stress as the nation's timeliest text on significant news. These adroit, dramatic editorials are must programs for serious listeners.

Friday. NBC-Red at 11 p.m. George R. Holmes, chief of the Washington bureau of the International News Service in a sparkling review of latest developments.

Note: The programs listed above are recommended on the basis of past performance and content. In effect they provide the "meat" between the lines as presented by the reporters and commentators. Spice the week's listening with the raw material of news from the international front—fresh daily at the loudspeaker spigot—Hear:

Boake Carter, Mon., Wed., Fri. CBS. 7:45-8 p.m. For the West, 8:15 p.m. PST.

Lowell Thomas, daily except Sat., Sun. NBC-Blue. 6:45-7 p.m.
Gen. Hugh Johnson, Mon., Thurs. NBC-Blue. 8-8:15 p.m. Tues., Wed. NBC-Blue. 10-10:15 p.m.
George R. Holmes, Fri. NBC-Red. 11-11:15 p.m.

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

BY EVANS PLUMMER

WHEN a perspiring Santa Claus visited Cinemaland last week and stuffed full the stockings of radio folk and their families, he was a most generous fellow. Jack Benny received a star sapphire by special arrangement of a girl named Mary Livingstone, while Mary collected a complete Georgian silver set for the Benny home now being built in Beverly Hills . . . Kenny Baker, of the same cast, thinks he won the prize gift, however. It was a brown-leather zipper brief case given to him by a music publisher. When opened, Kenny found it full of the publisher's songs, which the latter hoped he'd sing! . . . Don Ameche was made richer by a flock of trailer accessories, including a portable phonograph and radio, while his wife, Honore, happily untied a beautiful suede sport coat, beret, blouse and skirt to match in two tones of brown, and a monogrammed silver vanity set . . . Christmas was Tony Martin's birthday, but at that he did pretty well. Alice Faye, his better half, gave him a jeweled set of formal studs and links, and received in return a matching diamond clip, bracelet and ring set . . . Mrs. Jack Haley was surprised when she unwrapped a new fur coat, and Hubby Jack, no mean billiard-player, received a new set of cues . . . Another fur coat, a mink jacket, was given to her mother by Claire Trevor . . . Bob Burns exhibited a most unusual present, an old book of jokes published in 1850, from a fan in London, England, but not fancying the wearing of a monocle during his performances, Robin is considering donating the volume to Charlie McCarthy . . . But just what Tyrone Power was shopping for in that Hollywood Boulevard department store probably never will be known, for Tyrone was spotted by the femme shoppers, pursued upstairs floor by floor until finally he was cornered in the toy department, where, exasperated, he bought three teddy-bears and a doll!

Add bright sayings of star children: That of Joan Benny, when asked by Mother Mary, "What shall we get nurse for Christmas?" Joan pointedly replied, "Give her some vegetables!"

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which recently premiered at the Carthay Circle, brought out an unusual group seldom seen in public—the whole Freeman (Amos of "Amos 'n' Andy") Gosden family. Amos and his wife, Lita, were accompanied by Virginia, seven years, and Freeman Gosden, Jr., nine. Virginia is quite disgusted with Andy's dumb secretary in the serial sketch. Junior also is a tough critic of his father's and Andy's work. When he grows up, Junior doesn't want to be a radio actor, no sir! He wants to be a football player. Little Virginia hasn't quite decided what she'll do.

Just to keep Mae West before the radio public, your reporter wishes to tell you that Mae's colored maid's left foot is bigger than her right. I know, because she left the strap of her left shoe unfastened while at Miss West's now historic recent broadcast.

Plums were earned by the December 16 edition of "Good News of 1938," a series which has had a long, hard pull after getting off to a rather confusing start. But watch "Good News" now. On the night reviewed, a most hilarious ladies' afternoon bridge burlesque by George S. Kaufman was excruciatingly enacted by Jimmy Stewart, Frank Morgan, Spencer Tracy and Meredith Willson; Fanny Brice was funnier than ever in her Baby Snooks role; a dramatic highlight was the Santa Claus sketch by Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew, and the master-of-ceremonizing of Stewart was comfortable. Keep your eyes on the RADIO GUIDE program listings so you won't miss the next bell-ringer.

For months now, canny Charlie Forsythe, Lux Theater sound-effects man, has been trying to dispose of eight cheap pottery urns. Originally he bought twelve when he needed crash sounds for "Tonight or Never," starring Jeanette MacDonald. But he used

Speaking of Hollywood Hotel, an odd coincidence has come to light with the revelation by Duane Thompson, the "hello girl" of the Hotel, that her very first theatrical job was on the old Christie film comedy lot at Sunset and Gower streets in Hollywood, where she was given the role of a telephone operator! Next year, when the new CBS studios are completed, she'll be doing the operator bit over the air his home, and a sand-box was provided on the front porch so that "celebrities" could record their footprints in it. A microphone and announcer (Hal Bock) at the door greeted all arrivals; there they were interviewed in most extraordinary fashion while the earlier arriving guests inside the house heard the "interview" questions and answers over a public-address system inside the house.

Charlie McCarthy of Sunday's "Chase and Sanborn Hour" is a busy little man these days. He's helping his ventriloquist master, Edgar Bergen, teach "Peggy" how to talk. "Peggy," whom Charlie thinks is really quite a nice lady, is a new addition to the McCarthy family only four. However, the pottery market took a sharp upturn Monday, December 20, when Marlene Dietrich and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., appeared in "Song of Songs." The latter's statue-busting scene consumed another quartet of Charlie's urns, leaving but four to go. So, with Christmas coming, Mr. Forsythe finally solved his irritating problem: he gave the rest of 'em to his wife's relatives!

Much has been spoken pro and con regarding Elaine Barrie Barrymore, but this column impartially opens its plum basket and dishes out a good helping for her fine work December 17 in "Bulldog Drummond's Revenge" on the Hollywood Hotel program. Elaine is a good radio actress.

Eddie Cantor and an ex-gagman of his currently working for Jack Haley are feuding. Charges soon to hit the courts, it is said, will be that the writer wrote material for Cantor, then, after leaving him and joining Haley's staff, resold the same gags to Haley.

One of the more unusual holiday parties was the open house staged Sunday, December 19, by the Chester Laucks (Lum of "Lum 'n' Abner"). Twitting the ballyhoo of a cinema premiere (or even a meat-market opening here, by golly), Lum had searchlights pointed into the air in front of Heard at a Jell-O rehearsal: Jack Benny to Phil Harris, who seemed to be having an attack of the jitters, "Bad night last night?" Harris to Benny: "No, badminton this morning!"

Hollywood's many "alumni" of Paul Whiteman turned out in force at noon Tuesday, December 21, to greet the "King of Jazz and Emperor of Sweet Swing" on his arrival to take over the Chesterfield Friday series New Year's Eve, which was also the date of the start of his engagement at the Coconut Grove. Many are the pupils of Whiteman's band who have made good in a big way in the city of sunshine. Present hereabouts at the moment are Bing Crosby, Connie Boswell, Morton Downey, Mildred Bailey, Lennie Hayton, Johnnie Green, Harry Barris, Al Rinker, Jane Froman, Johnny Mercer, Ferde Grofe, Joe Venuti, Red Nichols, Irene Taylor and Helen Jepson. Following the welcome at the station, many of Paul's old friends gathered to greet him later in the afternoon at an afternoon reception at the Ambassador Hotel. It was at the old Alexandria Hotel here in 1919 that Paul's then new band first achieved national fame. Whiteman has kept up that fame for a good many years.

When Mickey Mouse becomes a regular air-figure beginning January 2, he will also be recorded on transcriptions for English and Australian consumption. He may even be translated to other tongues, too, and re-recorded, for Mickey is probably the world's best-known film star.

Tag Lines: What Dorothy Lamour really intends to do about that retirement plan is this: Take a year's leave and have a baby before she's twenty-five years old. She was twenty-two December 10 . . . Fred Allen left Hollywood after his Town Hall opus of December 29 to spend New Year's Eve sleeping aboard a New York-bound train. He's tired from working in the picture, "Sally, Irene and Mary" . . . Into Hollywood and out on a flying trip to the Warner Brothers lot for a screen test last week came Gale Page, the Chicago singing actress . . . Dave Rubinoff in town for Christmas . . . Forty-three fans sent Deanna Durbin drawings and paintings of herself on her recent fifteenth birthday . . . Stu Erwin's scottie champ, Craghaven Clinker, took 500 movie blueblood pooches for the works when he won the "best dog in show" class at last week's Palm Springs dog show . . . Joan Woodbury and Patricia (Honey Chile) Wilder both will be seen opposite Joe Penner in the picture "Rolling Stones" . . . You knew George Jessel wrote "Roses in December" and lots of other tunes before that, but didja know that Accordionist-Comedian Phil Baker is no mean pianist and composer? "Heaven on Earth" is his latest tune and it looks like a cick . . . Baker's butler, Bottle, or Harry McNaughton, had an insurance examination the other day; was told, "Well, my boy, you're certainly young for your age." Now Baker claims his program is a fountain of youth . . . Ken Murray, off the air to meet his audience in person for a spell, will open with Oswald and Marlyn Stuart in Chicago on Jan. 14. He expects to return to the air with a program in February.

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

LAST week I told you how to go about obtaining tickets for an NBC broadcast. If you want a pass to attend a Columbia broadcast, the only way to get it is to write to the program in care of the Columbia Broadcasting System, 485 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Specify the exact number of passes you wish, and when it is possible for you to attend the broadcast. If you are a private individual, it is wise not to ask for too many passes. If you want passes for a convention or some large organization, specify that in your letter. Your letter will arrive at CBS and be referred immediately to the Pass Division. The CBS Pass Division, contrary to a great many beliefs, is not a distributing agency for passes. It is merely a clearing-house for requests, and an information service on broadcast tickets.

The Pass Division will study your request carefully. Perhaps you have requested to visit a program to which visitors are not admitted. In that case the Pass Division will tell you so. Perhaps the program you wish to see is not broadcast from the New York studios. In that case, you would be told to write to the Columbia Broadcasting System office in the city where the broadcast originates. Perhaps the program you wish to see is no longer broadcast; or, the studio quota is filled for the time you requested.

If your request is for a commercial program, your letter will then be forwarded by the Pass Division to the sponsor, who will send you tickets for his show, according to his own discretion. For sustaining programs, the Pass Division may have tickets. However, a great many CBS sustaining programs are closed broadcasts, and do not admit visitors. If there are seats available, the proper passes will be immediately sent to you.

Last week I also told you that Dr. Frank Black's luxurious office had been turned over to Toscanini during the latter's stay in this country. The room adjoining this office has been transformed into a modern kitchen, complete with refrigerator, stove, new chinaware, silver and cooking utensils. This will give you an idea how much time the Maestro intends to spend in the studios preparing and rehearsing his broadcasts.

Slips that pass in the mike: Only two days after NBC sent out a gossip item which brought to our attention a slip-up that Milton Cross made during a recent "Magic Key" broadcast, your correspondent personally heard this one, committed by the same announcer, "Toscoro Toscanini"—which, if pronounced accurately, would have been Arturo Toscanini. But the NBC release revealed a much more amusing tongue-twister. Cross announced Joe Lilly and his Seven Tones as "Joe Lilly and his Ten Toes."

This item doesn't concern tongue-twisters but it does have something to do with the word-spelling of a new NBC sports announcer. Early the morning after Sam Taub and Bill Stern announced the Buddy Baer-Eddie Hogan fracas to a nation-wide NBC audience, Bill was awakened by the ringing of his telephone bell. The voice at the other end of the wire anxiously inquired of Bill, "Do you think many people caught that mispronouncement?" It was Taub, referring to the previous night when he pronounced "the" as "de." That had diminutive Sam Taub so worried he had hardly slept. Since he won the NBC job, Sam has been especially anxious to improve his diction, overcome his accent. For this he is deserving of much credit. It's Sam's big chance, and he doesn't want to lose it.

A catastrophe almost occurred on a recent "We, the People" program. A truck-driver for a diaper service company was supposed to tell his story, and most of the laughs depended upon his talking about such delicate things as babies and diapers and things in his own rough way. At the dress rehearsal he failed to show up, so Gabriel Heatter played a recording of his brief talk taken at the first rehearsal, to get the will be written out of some of the scripts of this show for the week January 10-14. On January 13, 14 and 15 he will be in New York fighting his claims in a $15,000 assault suit against two prominent New Yorkers, one a big executive on a New York newspaper and the other a publicity man for an insurance company. The incident causing the suit happened just prior to Bentley's trip to Chicago to Madeline Gray, who conducts the "Dear Teacher" program on CBS, Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, brings four youngsters before the mike and asks them questions in the popular question-bee fashion. The children are unprepared, consequently some of the answers are extremely funny. The other day Miss Gray asked a child, "What did Lindbergh mean when he said, 'We'?" Quick as a flash, the ten-year-old piped into the microphone, "We, the People!"

Frank Parker has been looking over the steamship schedules and is contemplating a cruise to South America to get away from the chilly weather. Frank has been wanting to take a trip for some time and as long as he doesn't have any radio commitments for a few months, he is going to take the time off by going away for a rest.

On December 17, Irene Wicker was to fly to Chicago for an appearance on the "Today's Children" program. However, the bad weather caused all planes to be grounded. So at the last minute, plans were made to have Miss Wicker play her role from the New York studios with the rest of the program emanating from Chicago. Irna Phillips in the Windy City studios and Irene in New York both wore ear-phones in order to catch their cues.

There was almost a calamity on Bess Johnson's "Hilltop House" program last Thursday night, and all because of the popularity of RADIO GUIDE. Just before the show was to go on, Bess looked around for her new copy of RADIO GUIDE, but couldn't find it. "I've got to have it," she wailed. "I tucked my script into it." Everyone in the cast hunted for it, but no find. Finally, someone remembered seeing someone else sneak off with it, and the search was given up. There were plenty of duplicate scripts lying around, but Bess elaborately marks up her own copy to simplify acting. In the end, Bess had to take a fresh script and work from it without the aid of her guiding marks.

NBC Page Joe Wilkerson was seating visitors to a recent broadcast, steering them to the left, as all front seats were filled. In came a blonde, marching down the center aisle. Wilkerson stopped her, asked her to go to the left. "But I am Sandra Storme, England's most beautiful model," stormed the blonde, who thought she ought to have her choice of all seats. "And I am Joe Wilkerson, NBC's most handsome page," said the boy as he gently but firmly steered her back.

Frank Redick, character actor on the "Johnny Presents" dramas, was rehearsing the part of Henry Armand, window-washer whose strap suddenly broke and left him dangling on the twenty-third floor of an office skyscraper. When he got to the part where his strap was supposed to break he kept slowly backing away from the microphone and shouting "Help" in a stage whisper. He backed and backed and shouted "Help" several times until he finally backed himself right off the stage and fell on the floor below with a nice, heavy thud. He yelled, "Help" again . . . and meant it!

A homey little touch is added to the "radio column" broadcasts given each Friday by Mary Margaret McBride, by the presence of three sherbet glasses full of tapioca, one vanilla, one chocolate and one strawberry—each topped with a generous dab of whipped cream. Miss McBride, who is a homemaker and cook, as well as a radio speaker, brings them over each week for the announcer, the production man and the control-room engineer. The production man usually "takes vanilla."

Youthful romance was the theme with George Ernest and Marcia Mae Jones, talented young players on "Hollywood Hotel's" recent preview of the film—"Lady Behave!" Marcia Mae will be remembered for her brilliant performance in "These Three" on both the screen and radio timing. Everyone in the studio laughed and Heatter knew he had a show-stopper there. Came the final rehearsal just two hours before actual broadcast time. The truck-driver made an appearance, stood before the microphone and in elegant, albeit strained, English told his story. The effect was ruined! "Aw," he explained blushing, "my daughter spent the whole afternoon yestiddy learnin' me how to say this thing right." The next hour was spent in unlearnin' him—and when he took the air he was once more a beaming truck-driver—large, sinewy, unstrained—and ungrammatical.

Spencer Bentley, who recently followed Les Tremayne in the role of Bob Crane in the "Betty and Bob" serial, take over the part in the "Betty and Bob" show. At the time he was acting in New York in the "Pepper Young" serial. Early one morning Bentley's wife was walking their dog, which broke away from his leash and dashed down the street. Before he was overtaken he had engaged in a fight with another escorted pooch. When Mrs. Bentley came to get her dog, according to Spencer's suit, the owners of the other hound started an argument with her about the incident and she was pushed around in a very undignified manner. Spencer arrived on the scene, and before the tiff was settled had received a right to the jaw that nearly broke it (he had his jaw in a bandage and missed several broadcasts of the "Pepper Young" show).

So You Like Contests?

LAST week we said that the new year would bring a flock of contests—soon. Here are the first tips on them: In the next issue of RADIO GUIDE you'll read a full-page announcement of a thousand-dollar contest RADIO GUIDE is sponsoring. The contest is based on the motion picture "Hollywood Hotel," so if you want to get an early start, read all the stories you see about that film. RADIO GUIDE will take you behind the scenes at "Hollywood Hotel" next week, too.

The contest will be amazingly easy—and the best part of all, for contest fans with lots of ideas, is that you can enter as many times as you like—and win more than one prize. Don't forget to look up this competition on page 19 next week!

Here's another tip way in advance, so you can start your preparations. Present plans are for the Johns-Manville Corporation to open a $10,000 contest on April 1 for the best essays on "What the Home Means to Me." Winning tip: When winners in the recent General Electric contest are announced, save copies of them for ideas. The contests are very similar. As you gather ideas for your entry, remember that the purpose of the contest is to boost enthusiasm for home building, and for the sale of building materials.

Here's another one you don't want to miss—the Screen Guide magazine "Love and Hisses" $1,000 contest. It starts in the February issue, now on sale, and will be concluded in the March issue. See "This Week's Prize Specials" in the adjoining column for winning tips.

Ivory Soap (Proctor and Gamble) will announce the new year's largest contest in RADIO GUIDE for the week ending January 22. Right now, start digging out those winning tips we've distributed on the Proctor and Gamble contests. You'll be preparing to win part of a large prize consignment—60 Studebaker automobiles and 1,200 cash prizes. Look for this announcement on the back cover and on this page.

Some Special Contests

With Appeal to Special Groups

A great many contests are not announced by this department regularly because they appeal only to special groups of people—that is, they are not general enough to warrant the attention of the general public. Let's look at some of them and see whether any are designed especially for you:

Photographers. "Pictures, the Snapshot Magazine," which is distributed free by Kodak dealers, gives away $100 a month for the best snapshots submitted. . . . Consolidated News Feature Service, 280 Broadway, New York City, pays $10 for pictures illustrating things people wouldn't believe if they didn't see your proof. . . . "Hunting and Fishing," 275 Newbury Street, Boston, Massachusetts, pays prizes of $10, $5 and $3 for the best sporting pictures submitted each month. . . . The picture magazines, Life, Look, Pic, Click, Foto, Peek, See and others pay $5 up for pictures, as do the news services, International, Associated Press, Acme and Wide World, although these are not contests, of course.

Children. The Philadelphia Sunday Inquirer is the best bet in the country for children's contests. . . . "Open Road," the boys' magazine, 729 Boylston St., Boston, Massachusetts, has monthly contests for boys.

High-School Students. Write to the Scholastic Awards Art Committee, Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, if you are interested in America's most prominent art competition for high-school students. . . . The National W. C. T. U. Publish-Kayser, Dept. L, 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, are all conducting limerick contests at this time.

Incidentally, would you like such specialized contests to be listed in RADIO GUIDE in this fashion from time to time? We've never tried it before, but if the readers of "So You Like Contests?" are interested in them, they can be included as often as requested.

best letter of them all will be paid $5. All the letters will be forwarded to the person who asked our advice, thus giving him more opinions than we alone could provide. Here are the entries exactly as they were sent to us:

I like Ivory soap because—I want quality as well as economy and have found it in Ivory. The superlativeness is surprising and it never fails to give perfect satisfaction.—F. R. L.

I like the New Super-Creamed Crisco Because—It gives me lighter cakes, flakier pastry, crisper fried foods and so digestible. It saves work, saves time, by being already creamed.—G. B.

I like the new super creamed Crisco because its wholesomeness, fine keeping qualities and creamy texture are a combination ever ready for a dependable short cut to serving many appetizing, healthful meals.—C.L.K.

After riding in the New Packard the one thing I like best about it is: "The Jones' turn-around stares of admiration, and why shouldn't they, for who could resist a second look at America's Dream-lined Floating Palace?"—O.D.

Select any one of these you feel you can criticize constructively, and send your letter to Dept. E. C., in care of "So You Like Contests?" The writers who asked for advice will join with this department's editors in appreciating your help. If yours is the best letter we receive, we'll be happy to help pay some of those Christmas bills! It's not necessary to send a self-addressed envelope with these letters unless you have some other question you want answered, incidentally. Thanks for your interest.

This Contest World

The State of Affairs

It is a very heartening thing when contestants write to us to say how much they like contest sponsors' products, even when they haven't won any contests. It proves the value of contesting to the sponsors, and more than that, proves the good sportsmanship of nearly all contestants. . . . It appears that Canadians are being allowed to enter more and more contests sponsored in the United States—a good thing for international trade! . . . Here is a belated suggestion—read over those Christmas cards and save any good rhymed sentiments. Sometimes they contain good ideas for entries!

An encouraging sign for contesting is the number of people who are enrolling in the various contest correspondence schools. They prove that the impression is finally getting around that quality work—not luck—wins in prize contests. . . . Letter contests seem to be losing some of their popularity of a couple of years back. Statements have replaced them. Even more simple requirements than statements will probably determine 1938's winners, because 25-word statements are uninteresting to write and don't stimulate much imagination. . . . Final suggestion—a study of winning entries indicates that humor is on the increase in judges' favor. Make your next entry funny and see what happens. But remember that humorous entries are the hardest in the world to think up!

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE SPECIALS

These are this week's best contest bets! RADIO GUIDE has singled them out for individual discussion to increase your chances to win. These exclusive winning tips are presented in this form weekly, except in the first issue of each month, which contains "Your Opportunity Guide," listing all the current contests, complete with rules, closing dates and addresses.

$25.00 for Letters

PRIZES: (On occasion) $25 each.

TO ENTER: If you can truly credit to Fleischmann's Yeast some part of the health that made your success possible, send to "Life Begins," 420 Lexington Ave., New York, a letter explaining how, and enclose your picture. The writer must be older than 40, and his true testimonial letter must be "so helpful to others we will wish to print it," according to the sponsor.

TO WIN: Sincerity and simplicity are the keynotes of this contest's winning entries. Sample: "I used to be a cashier for a taxicab company. I disliked the work. It finally got on my nerves. Constipation was bothering me and I had splitting headaches. Then I heard of a job I knew I would like—but my health made me hesitate. My wife had heard that Fleischmann's Yeast does wonders for people in a slump like this one of mine. I am eating yeast every day now. My constipation has stopped, also my headaches. I soon felt strong enough to tackle a new job—and I got it. I am now 42. I am one of the managers of a fine restaurant—younger and more ambitious than I was ten years ago." Other letters printed in this company's series tell of similar experiences, all in simple phrases and sincere expressions. This contest is part of a campaign built on the title "Life Begins at 40," and is designed to prove that "What Others Have Done—You Can Do." Make your letter about the same length as the one shown.

$1,000.00 in Cash

PRIZES: 1st, $500; 2nd, $250; 3rd, $100; next ten prizes, $10 each; next ten prizes, $5 each.

TO ENTER: In each of two issues, February and March, Screen Guide magazine is publishing four pictures of Ben Bernie and Walter Winchell as they appear in the motion picture, "Love and Hisses." A blank conversation "balloon" is to be filled in on each, giving a reply to a remark made in a balloon already completed. Send all eight answers, written on the pictures, to "Love and Hisses" Contest Editor, Screen Guide, 551 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Contest closes March 15.

TO WIN: This is an exceedingly simple contest—one in which the rules eliminate practically no entries, so that an entry must have some special merit to win. Humor is the best approach, particularly as the motion picture is a comedy. It is essential that the film be seen before the entries are submitted, as appropriateness to the situation photographed will doubtless influence the judges. Suggestion: Read in magazine and newspaper files in your public library all the behind-the-scenes stories of the making of this film. Also read Walter Winchell's "On Broadway" daily for at least a week before submitting your entries, so you "get the feel" of his style to adopt it to your own use.

ing House, Evanston, Ill., offers prizes of $40 and $10 for declamations in both Senior and Junior classes.

Poets. Ted Malone's weekly poetry contest, announced on his CBS "Between the Bookends" program, is included regularly in this department's "Your Opportunity Guide" . . . "Wings," 939 Woodycrest Ave., New York City, pays $25 ($20 and $5) for the two best short ballads submitted each month. . . . Limericks and jingles are hardly poetry, but they might be included here. The Chicago Tribune, Station WKBW (Buffalo, N. Y.), and

Ideas Gone Wrong

Entries That Failed

A new idea has come on us this week. Many contestants send us their non-winning entries for criticism. In answering each of those letters, we serve its writer alone. To increase the range of service to these letter-writers, and to give other readers a chance to analyze entries of someone else's creation, this week we are printing several of them and asking readers to send in their criticisms. The best criticism of each entry will be printed in this department, and the writer of the

STORIES of the SONGS YOU LOVE

"CASEY JONES"

BY JAMES STREET

INSPIRED, A NEGRO LAD CAPTURED IN SONG THE STORY OF A RAILROADIN' MAN—MIS'R CASEY JONES

a'rainin' plenty," said the call-boy.
"Yep. Is Old 638 ready?"
"Chunk full of coal, Mr. Jones, and hossin' to roll."
"No. 1 on time?"
"Yes, suh. The Cannonball ain't ever late."

Inside the roundhouse, Jones wiped the rain from his face and reported.
"Howdy, Luther," said the dispatcher. "Your engine—Old 638 is ready."

Everybody knew Luther Jones. He was a tall fellow, who swung his arms in a wide arc when he walked. He had come to the I. C. fresh from the from Luther Jones, for his whistle was the time-piece of the valley.

The folks called him Luther or Mr.
Jones as a rule. But a few called him "Kaintuck" and Cayce. But there was one little fellow, as black as the coal in the engine's tender, who called him Mis'r Casey Jones, because that little boy couldn't spell Cayce and figured that, after all, Cayce and Casey were the same.

The little Negro did odd jobs around the roundhouse, but his main chore was singing and dancing for the "hogheads." He could play anything—a fiddle made of a cigar-box, a comb with tissue paper wrapped around it.

Casey Jones was kind to him, and to the little darkey the lanky engineer was Santa Claus, John Henry, St.
George and most of the saints rolled together into one being.

SO ON that dreary morning in 1900,
Casey Jones patted the little Negro's head "for luck," watched an oiler oil the drivers of 638, climbed into his cab and checked his instruments. He waved his left hand at his fireman, a big black fellow. He coupled his engine onto No. 1, and sat in his cab, his eye on his watch.

He eased his throttle out gently so his wheels wouldn't spin—then shoved it back in and let his engine pant. The wheels caught, and he pulled back his throttle—easy—and slowly old No. 1 moved away.

He wiped the rain from his eyes and leaned far out the cab, his left hand on his throttle. The green lights glowed even through the rain. He had a clear track, so he fed his engine more steam, nursed her out of the yards and onto the highroad. The lights of Memphis sparkled behind him. He pulled his whistle cord—one long, one short blast—his farewell signal—a signal to his wife that he was long gone, and to Mississippi that he was heading that way.

"Shovel that coal, boy," he shouted across to his fireman—"we're going to Canton!"

HE PULLED his throttle back, gripped the side of the cab window under his elbow, felt his engine lurch and grunt and then settle down to work.

He didn't look at his water, "and the water was low." His engine's water was never low! He didn't look at his watch, "and his watch was slow."
Casey's watch was never slow.

"We sho' are ballin' the jack," yelled his fireman.

"Have to on this run," Casey shouted.
"I got mail on this train, and she's coal fields up in Kentucky—up near Cayce. He had driven a donkey engine, then a big engine. And finally, that yearning to railroad down the line gripped him, and he began heaving coal and was graduated from the shovel and left side of the cab to the throttle and the right side.

HIS schedule was his Bible and he got the fast run of the division—that long, weary road from Memphis to Canton, Mississippi—past Grenada, Duck Hill, Durant.

His train—No. 1, the Chicago-New Orleans Limited—always left Memphis before dawn. He would pick his way out of the yards, blow a farewell to Memphis, yell to his fireman to stuff her with coal, and stick his head out the window and watch his drivers roll.
He would tear across the Tennessee-Mississippi border with his whistle screaming and give his big engine her head and let her run.

His fire-box would cast eerie glows across the black, flat lands of the cotton country. Past plantations and through villages he would hustle, blowing for every crossing. He awakened the farmers for their chores. Merchants opened their stores by his whistle.
Bankers opened their vaults. Life in that gentle land worked by the salutes slouching near by, was quickening for the coming flood.

A dispatcher—an old railroadin' man in a railroadin' land—looked at the call-board and checked his time. Dawn comes early in Tennessee.

"Hey!" the dispatcher shouted to a sleepy call-boy. "Go wake up Luther.
He's taking No. 1 down today."

The boy slipped into his oilskins, pulled a battered felt hat over his ears and walked into the rain—past the turntable and between rows of locomotives, their fire-boxes cold, their sides rumbling hollowly to the pounding of the rain. He stopped at a modest little home, opened the screen door softly and rapped.

"Coming," said a voice from within.
And Luther Jones, the crack "hoghead" of the Illinois Central, stepped to the door. His wife was in his shadow. She had fixed his breakfast, and he had his lunch in a tin box. He kissed her at the door, and followed the call-boy down the street, between rows of sleeping houses in Memphis.

"Mean night, Mr. Jones, and hit

Best beloved of all railroadin' songs,
"Casey Jones" will be the featured selection of Morton Gould's orchestra Monday of this week. The orchestra will play it as a tribute to Luther ("Casey") Jones himself. No hero in all the Deep South has ever basked in greater heroic glory than has Casey Jones. His story, in song, is hummed by pickaninnies, heard in homes, and is known to the nation. It is symbolic of the life of a "a railroadin' man in a railroadin' lan'." To increase the enjoyment of those who will hear it Monday, RADIO GUIDE presents the true story of this famous song.—Ed.

"Come all you rounders if you want to hear
The real story about that brave engineer . . ."

IT WAS raining that night in Memphis—a slow, slushing rain that beat around the roundhouse and blew under the eaves. High water was coming. The Mississippi, stretching and going to be in Canton on time. Shovel, boy, shovel away!"

Tennessee fell behind. Mississippi villages flashed by. The farmers waved to Casey. He saluted them with his whistle. Farm-wives waved to him from their back porches. Children stood in groups on the cabin porches, waving and shouting. The Cannonball was thundering by!

HAS there ever been a thrill like living in a little village with water oaks down the only street, and Cannonballs to roar by and Casey Joneses to idolize? Take your Siegfrieds, your Romuluses, Don Quixotes—a pox on them! Give me railroad engineers for heroes! Give me heroes like Casey Jones and keep your white chargers and your knights and your ships—give me trains like the Cannonball!

The rain on that day turned to a cloudburst as No. 1 hustled and snorted down into Mississippi. The wheels shrieked as they hugged the rails, careening around the bends.

"Takin' them bends mighty fast, Mis'r Jones," the fireman yelled.

"We'll straighten 'em out," shouted Casey. "Shovel, boy!"

He bore down on a big curve near Grenada. The lights beckoned "come on, Casey." Old 638 hit the curve, lunged, straightened out and took the bend like a greyhound.

And there ahead of him was the caboose of a freight train! It was red—a dull red, even in the rain.

They both saw it at the same time. The fireman shouted. Casey shoved in his throttle with his left, and began shooting air to his train. His wheels screamed. He roared at his fireman: "Jump, damn you, jump!"

THE fireman went out of the cab window head first. The last thing he saw was Casey standing in his cab pulling back with all his might on the huge emergency brake.

When they found him he was buried under his engine—in Mississippi mud. His hand was not on the throttle. It was on the brake. He had been scalded to death.

Back up in Memphis the roundhouse "hogheads" shook their heads and sent flowers to Mrs. Jones. They gave Casey a hero's funeral. But the next day there was another man at the throttle of No. 1. And a new hero was born down the Cannonball line.

The little Negro minstrel wasn't seen around the roundhouse for several weeks. Then one day he appeared, and the boys demanded a song.

"Gonna sing yu' 'bout Mis'r Casey," said the lad, and in sweet, childish voice he sang about "a brave engineer." A ballad it became; a railroadin' lullaby. "Hogheads" and firemen and brakemen took it up, and wherever railroad men were gathered—in roundhouses, station cafes, section houses—they sang about Casey Jones.

There were no written words. The South doesn't write its ballads—it sings them! And the ballad of the brave engineer spread over Mississippi. Then, in 1909, two men put it to sheet music. But the words were changed. They said Casey was bound for Frisco! And the words also said "go to bed, children and hush your crying, 'cause you got another papa on the Salt Lake Line"—or something like that.

THE South was shocked and appalled. "Casey Jones bound for Frisco—" To the barricades, men! Casey didn't know anything about San Francisco, and there the far West was trying to steal our hero. What the South didn't know was that at the time the melody of the song was public domain and had never been copyrighted. The little roundhouse minstrel who created the patter chorus out of sheer rhythm of his being never heard of a copyright, or of San Francisco, either, unless some of the "hogheads" carelessly had mentioned that such a city existed. It just happened that owners of the song heard the melody on their way to San Francisco, where they were opening a vaudeville skit. They figured it was smart to bring Frisco into the song and flatter the civic pride of Californians, of which there is a heap. It is doubtful if the owners even knew that Casey was a real man, and it is highly possible that they reasoned he was another of the South's heroes of ballads and fiction, like Steamboat Bill, John Henry and Mike Fink.

IF THE song were to be accurate, it should read that Casey Jones was trying to make Canton—and, incidentally, pronounce that with the accent on the "Can" and not on the "ton." The town was named after China's Canton, but it is not pronounced the same way.

The line in the song about Mrs. Jones children "having another papa on the Salt Lake Line" stirred up a hornets' nest.

As soon as she recovered from the shock, Mrs. Jones went to court. There were long-drawn-out and complicated law suits. Mrs. Jones said she had been libeled, that the memory of Casey Jones had been defamed. The defendants contended there was no libel because the engineer they sang about was bound for Frisco, was killed by a passenger train and that their Casey Jones was a myth. But Southerners were peeved at the time. Folks can't talk that way about Casey Jones and get by with it. Frisco! The Santa Fe line! Salt Lake line! Fighting words! Rouse the countryside! Get the squirrel guns! Sound the clan horns! You can take our land and dam our rivers and burn our homes and mortgage our mud and have our mules, but leave our heroes alone—leave Casey Jones to us, to our maudlin sentimentality so we can weep and wail over his memory. You haven't done right by Casey Jones. Pistols for two, coffee for one!

IF YOU are ever through that neck of the woods, riding the Illinois Central between Memphis and Canton, or driving over the new highway between Memphis and Grenada, you won't have to ask anyone where Casey Jones died. The natives will point it out. They may forget to tell you that the Natchez race ran near there once, that Aaron Burr crossed that territory, that Andrew Jackson went that way, that the bloodthirsty Morrel gang ruled that domain, but they will never forget to point out that "right around that bend yonder is where Casey Jones died."

Mrs. Jones still lives. So does Casey's fireman. And so does Casey in the minds and hearts of the folks in those villages where water oaks troop down the main street and the Cannonball still flashes by.

And the trumpets can sound for the immortal Casey—the bugles can blow his requiem—the saxophones can moan his elegy—crooners can sing of his fame.

But never say he was Frisco-bound, or that his watch was slow—for he was a railroadin' man in a railroadin' lan, and he's ours!

And I wonder what ever became of that little Negro boy.

Casey Jones may be heard Monday on Morton Gould's show over an MBS network at:

EST 8:00 p.m. — CST 7:00 p.m.
MST 6:00 p.m. — PST 5:00 p.m.

"YOUR MAN GODFREY"

BY JACK JOHNSON

IF YOU'RE in the market for 1938 predictions, please consider Radio Row's nomination of Arthur Godfrey as radio's next satellite turned star. At the moment, said Mr. Godfrey is serving his "apprenticeship" very happily, earning twice the prodigious salary of the President of the United States and indulging in the recreations of gentleman farmer, horse-breeder, aviator and speedboat enthusiast.

The greater part of his income is derived from his Coast-to-Coast program heard via WOR-MBS on Friday evenings at 8, and his Sundial morning shows originating at station WJSV in Washington, D. C. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 8, he is heard via WABC in a "pipe-in" from the nation's capital.

Godfrey's versatility as a "one-man show" is no less unusual than his varied background as a radio operator

(a) Mr. Godfrey insists his hair is red, not "titan."

(b) Mr. Godfrey's sponsorship is based on a commercial technicality in which program credit is shared.

The Godfrey technique employed in his programs of WJSV, WABC and WOR-MBS is very simple to analyze. It shows personality.

In defining radio personality, the reader may consider himself strictly on his own. The best the writer can say is "Godfrey has a terrific act."

MR. GODFREY talks, Mr. Godfrey sings, Mr. Godfrey plays the piano and ukulele and disports himself favorably in the other fundamental forms of radio entertainment one can name.

The best material standards of his success are evident at his gigantic farm in Fairfax County, Virginia. His stable of thoroughbreds would warm the

The proverbial "power of the press" made Arthur Godfrey when "Key-hole" Winchell heard him ad-lib and presented traditional "orchids" in the U. S. Coast Guard, an automobile polisher in the Ford plant, vaudeville entertainer, salesman of cemetery lots, and a penniless member of society. All told, he counts 38 distinctly different jobs, averaging more than one for each of his 35 years.

JUST as the movies unintentionally borrowed his name in filming "My Man Godfrey," so did Godfrey unconsciously benefit from lifting a typical motion picture circumstance in his bid for radio fame.

Godfrey created his "first big moment"—if the time element isn't taken too literally—when he did an eight-hour stint on an all-night air show. The "chores" included ad-lib gagging, "straight" talking and singing "duets"—with the phonograph recordings of opera stars.

That Winchell feller heard it and lost no time in telling people how much he liked "Your Man Godfrey."

Came the dawn, and nineteen offers for commercials with it!

Subsequently, Winchell was impressed again with Godfrey and bestowed that rare flower of the editorial room, the "orchid." Mr. Godfrey was now sharing poses with such illustrious orchid-catchers as Leo Reisman, Benny Goodman, Sheila Barrett, et al.

Today, when radio's worthies invest in trade paper advertising to apprise agents, producers and managers of the fact that they have more than one sponsor, the red-haired Mr. Godfrey admits he has more than 80 sponsors!

Two points concerning Godfrey and his work should be cleared up at this stage of your reading:

hearts of the Whitneys, Vanderbilts and any other family whose colors go to the post at the Kentucky Derby, Preakness or similar big-time race.

Horse breeding is strictly a hobby with Godfrey but none of his friends will be inordinately surprised if a Godfrey bangtail should capture the next Kentucky Derby.

If you're in the neighborhood, drop in to see him at his farm or his other home in the city of Congressmen and Senators. He'll take you out to the Coast and very hospitably offer you a ride in either of his two seaplanes. Godfrey, himself, will pilot, of course.

FOR the occasion, it might be well to visit with a book on the technique of aeronautics. If you can't find such a book, bring a box of aspirin.

Twenty minutes with Godfrey's expatiation on the mechanics of a plane make either or both necessary.

As a clue to the man's character, listen to this:

One day, wanting to gauge the number of persons who heard his morning programs, he made an announcement on the air, offering a free plane ride to anyone who would meet him at the airport. This wasn't exactly the Crosby technique of assaying popularity, but it was effective.

The following day, more than 300 men and women turned out for the promised plane ride.

Mr. Godfrey kept his promise, but because his aircraft is a two-seater affair, he spent the better part of the day keeping his pledge!

P. S. He'll probably charter a dirigible for his experiment on WOR-MBS.

A SCREEN QUEEN'S RADIO REHEARSAL

JEANETTE MACDONALD, absent from the mike during the filming of "The Girl of the Golden West," plans to return to the air this Sunday! By that time, it is expected that all work on her new picture will have been completed, and the golden-voiced soprano will be back on her popular Sunday night program, Vick's Open House.

Getting ready for her return, Miss MacDonald already is rehearsing her songs—and during one of these rehearsals, a Radio Guide cameraman, visiting the studio, took these unusual pictures of the stage, screen and radio star.

In private life, Miss MacDonald is Mrs. Gene Raymond, wife of the well-known movie actor. She has reddish-gold hair and expressive green eyes.

The ODDEST HOBBY

WILFRED PELLETIER, conductor of the Metropolitan Symphony Orchestra and the "Met" audition program (Sunday, on NBC, 5 p.m., EST), became a national figure to radio listeners because of his broadcasts of operas in English tabloid versions. Born in Montreal, destined for a musical career, he was in his teens when he was engaged as assistant conductor of the Montreal Opera Company. In 1914, he won a prize for European study and left for Paris. Returning to the United States, he became (at twenty) assistant conductor of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Later he conducted the Ravinia concerts in summers, and in winters toured with the Scotti Opera Company, afterwards spent ten years with the San Francisco Opera. Pelletier has a tremendous repertoire, and during the ten years he has spent at the Metropolitan he has conducted German, Russian, French, Italian operas, both classic and modern, and prepared many American works. He has two hobbies—the theater (which he says is his life) and collecting penguins. Screen and Stage Actor Roland Young's collection intrigued him and he began a race with Young to get a greater number. Now Pelletier has hundreds of them, sent to him by friends all over the world. He even wears two on his watch chain! These he especially prizes, because they were gifts of Lily Pons and Rose Bampton.

After pursuing penguins for ten years, Wilfred Pelletier has almost filled his apartment, above, with between 800 and 900 models, all shapes and kinds. He is very proud of them, places their value at $2,000

The above cabinet is not large enough to house all his penguins, so Pelletier is planning to get a new and roomier one

The smallest penguin of the collection is of ivory, the largest, of a plush material. Opera stars have given many

Most amusing penguin, made in Italy, is carved of wood. It can be placed in rather silly positions

The two penguins above stand humorously on Wagner's famous wedding marches and other compositions

The conductor's penguins are of all materials: blown glass, wood, horn, brass, porcelain, silver, ivory, onyx. His most valuable one, above, is jade, cost $100. Right: Penguins have many uses—book-ends, ash-trays, cocktail shakers. He's expecting a stuffed penguin promised by Frank Chapman

A EUROPEAN SENSATION COMES TO AMERICA

THIS Monday night Marek Weber makes his Coast-to-Coast debut on the "Contented Hour"—bringing to America a new style in dance music. Not that Weber comes as an unknown, for music played by the "Toscanini of light music" has reached these shores by short waves many times in the past. Word of his ability has been brought back by enthusiastic European travelers who have heard him. Thousands of his records have found ready sale in this country. But never before has the music of this far-famed maestro been offered to all American radio listeners.

Born forty-one years ago in a part of Austria which now is in Poland, Weber soon proved a very poor student—and a brilliant violinist. Not yet in his teens, the prodigy was sent to Berlin and Vienna for advanced music lessons. Then, at fourteen, he ran away to join a theater orchestra—and three years later he conducted his own orchestra at Berlin's Hotel Esplanade. Still seventeen, he filled an engagement at the Hotel Adlon in Berlin—and from then on his life was a series of musical triumphs.

Weber has been decorated with the Turkish medal of arts and sciences, honored with a medal by the Prince of Hessen and his wife, Princess Mafalda of Italy, praised by such world-renowned composers as Oscar Straus, Franz Lehar, many others. A versatile violinist, Weber plays all types of music from old operas to rumba rhythms and modern swing. His specialty, however, is the Viennese waltz.

STAR AND SATELLITES

WHEN Rudy Vallee first heard Frances Langford four years ago, she was singing over a Tampa, Florida, radio station—for $5 a program. But Vallee recognized her ability at once, asked her to sing on his program—and when she did, she was an immediate success. Three years later, the "Moonglow Girl" was the second most popular songstress on the air. In 1937, she moved up to first place in Radio Guide's Star of Stars poll—and proved to be the fourth most popular personality on the air, as well. Yet up to the age of 16, Frances didn't even have the contralto voice which has made her famous. She was a soprano!

It was while she was a student at Southern College that a tonsillectomy became necessary—and when the operation was completed, she was amazed to find that she had a deep, resonant voice. Friends urged her to go on the radio, and her accidental audition for Vallee resulted when she followed their advice.

Now 23, and one of radio's highest-paid stars, Frances lives with her father and mother in a beautiful new home in Brentwood, Hollywood's exclusive new development, and owns a large Florida orange grove which is run for her by her older brother, Jimmy.

Hard work on her part has brought her to the popularity peak she's achieved since she was first given a chance by Rudy Vallee. But for her continued success, Frances shares credit with others important in her life. They're not celebrities, but by handling the many details that are a part of every star's life, they leave Frances time to give her undivided attention to her work, help her to be the great star that she is. Here, Radio Guide presents them for the first time.

Left: Frances Langford (right) and her secretary, Roberta Walker. Miss Walker handles all of Frances' fan mail, arranges appointments and interviews for the star, and checks publicity

Above: Frances Langford, heard Fridays on "Hollywood Hotel," starred on the stage in "Here Goes the Bride," has made 7 films. Her 8th, to be released Jan. 15, is "Hollywood Motel!"

Below: Frances and her manager, Ken Dolan, looking over a new song. Dolan takes care of all her important business matters, handles all contracts, pays her bills, and acts as financial adviser

Frances is 5 feet 3½ inches tall, weighs 100 lbs., wishes she weighed more. So it's Cook Ruby Coulter's job to see that she's served fattening food. Above: Ruby gives the problem her consideration

Above: William Coulter, Ruby's husband, is Frances' butler. He answers the door, serves cocktails, meals, and does odd jobs

Hours are long at the studios, and Frances doesn't like to drive alone. So Chauffeur Robert Williams (above) drives her to and from work. He also drives for her father and mother. Frances owns two cars, a Cord phaeton and a Packard sedan

Above: Lillian Williams dresses Frances' hair and manicures her nails every day when the star is making a picture. Once or twice a week suffices at other times

Gardener for Frances' 3-acre estate is Walter Crosser (above). Right: Maestro Raymond Paige provides the musical setting for her songs on "Hollywood Hotel"

Bob Gordon (above) and Wally Heglin (right) are Frances' arrangers. Members of Raymond Paige's orchestra, they adapt all pieces she sings so they'll suit her voice and her style of singing

Dan Thomas (right) of Hunt & Thomas, a publicity firm, is her press agent, keeps her name before the public—also works for Ann Dvorak, Sally Rand, Sally Eilers, others

SHORT WAVES

BY CHAS. A. MORRISON, president, INTERNATIONAL DX-ER'S ALLIANCE

Broadcasts mentioned below are Eastern Standard Time. For CST subtract 1 hour; for MST, 2 hours; for PST, 3 hours.

LONDON'S Guildhall is a place of many memories. Henry VI, Lady Jane Grey, Archbishop Crammer, Charles I, William Pitt, Nelson, Wellington, and Disraeli are a few of the famous people who passed its portals. A program describing the most dramatic incidents in Guildhall's history, which dates back to the beginning of the fifteenth century, will be aired from Daventry on Friday, January 7, at 6:20 p.m. EST... Alexandre Dumas' famous romantic melodrama, "The Count of Monte Cristo," has been adapted for broadcasting as a dramatic serial, in the form of twelve short plays, will be heard over Daventry, every Monday, starting on January 3, at 3:20 p.m. EST.

The popular American hour from Prague, Czechoslovakia, is now being heard on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays over OLR3A (9.55), from 8 to 10 p.m. EST and over OLR2B (6.03), from 10 to 11 p.m. EST. These transmissions during the next few months will include programs of the Czechoslovak broadcast stations at Prague, Brno, Bratislava, Kosice, and Moravska Ostrava, which will be recorded on steel-tape and subsequently used in the American programs.

A special broadcast to be heard over HP5J (9.607), Panama City, Panama, on Saturday, January 8, at 7 p.m. EST, will inaugurate a world-wide contest for short-wave listeners in connection with the famous English news broadcast heard nightly at this hour. George Williams, globe trotter, soldier of fortune and current news-commentator for HP5J, will give complete details concerning this contest, which it is reported will include among other prizes a two-weeks vacation in Panama, with all expenses paid.

Programs in Spanish and Portuguese particularly for listeners in South American countries and in Arabic for listeners in the Near East, will soon be radiated from Daventry, England.

A letter from Short-wave Station COGF (11.805), Matanzas, Cuba, conveys the important information that all announcements from this station are now being made in English, as well as Spanish. I think Senor Bernabe de la Torre, the owner of COGF, is to be complimented not only for providing this attractive service to English listeners, but for the consistent high standard of programs radiated from his station and for the fact that one can always find this broadcaster on the same frequency at a time in which all of the other Cuban stations are shifting, and hopping about from night to night without regard for international allocations, or the rights of other stations.

Alfonso Velasco of Mexico D. F., writes that on Sunday, December 12, at 11 p.m. EST, he heard a new station on a frequency of 6.465 megs, announcing as YV3RD, "Radio Barquisimeto," Barquisimeto, Venezuela, stating this was an inaugural broadcast and that reports would be greatly appreciated.

The following new schedule of transmissions is now in effect over PCJ, Hilversum, Holland: on a frequency of 15.22 megs, for Australia, Tuesdays from 5:30 to 7 a.m. EST, and for Asia, on Wednesdays, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon EST; on a frequency of 9.59 megs, for Australia, on Tuesdays from 5:30 to 8 a.m. EST; for Africa 2 to 3:30 p.m. EST; on Wednesdays, for Central America, and Northern South America, from 8 to 9:30 p.m. EST; on Thursdays, for South America, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and for North America, from 9 to 10:30 p.m. EST.

Short-wave Station PRA8, the Radio Club of Pernambuco, Brazil, back on the air after a long absence, is operating a new 5,000-watt transmitter on an announced frequency of 6.01 megs, although R. B. Oxrieder of State College, Penn., states that the broadcaster is actually being heard on 6.015 megs.

First reported by Ray Shaffar of Waterloo, Iowa, a powerful Latin station, announcing merely as "Radio Nacional," Lima, Peru, is now being heard daily from 1 to 3:45 p.m. EST. The program selections which consist mostly of American recordings are interspersed with announcements in English, and Spanish, to the effect that these special tests on a frequency of 15.17 megs, are for the benefit of the British Broadcasting Corporation. This is probably the same transmitter that may be heard nightly on a frequency of 6.077 megs, using the call OAX4Z.

A verification bearing a photograph of General Franco, received from Short-wave Station EAJ8 (7.203), Radio Espana, San Sebastian, Spain, states that broadcasts are radiated daily at 3:30 a.m., 8 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. EST. News in English is given at 8:20 a.m. and 4:20 p.m. EST. The letter went through the military censors.

Ellis J. Bird of Kalamazoo, Mich., writes that the National Broadcasting Company, is now verifying reports on their station VP3THE, base-camp transmitter of the Terry-Holden Expedition, located at Isherton, British Guiana. This broadcaster is being heard most frequently at present on a frequency of 14.12 megs. Russell Graham of Montreal, Canada, reports that he heard Orrin Hungerford, the operator of VP3THE, state that Mrs. Redfern's expedition left Bartica, British Guiana, on December 13, for their journey up the Essequibo River.

On Monday, December 13, at 9:50 p.m. EST, John Evanovsky of Clifton, N. J., logged a new station, announcing its call as HC1CQ and frequency as 9.176 megs. The program which consisted for the most part of waltz recordings was interrupted every few minutes by a station announcement in Spanish. Heavy code interference from an adjacent channel made identification difficult.

Hong-Kong's Broadcasting Station ZBW (9.525) has been having a busy time recently with refugee messages. The camps which have been established there to house many homeless people who have had to leave Shanghai and other war-infested areas have been the scene of some touching reunions. Frequent broadcasts of names, with their new addresses, have proved valuable in aiding the organizers to bring together again children, parents and other relatives. These SOS messages are sent out from ZBW in batches.

Egyptian Radio inquires if any listener in this country has picked up a transmission from Bucharest, Roumania, on a frequency of approximately 9.68 megs. The address given by the announcement was Institut d'Electricite, Victor Emanuelstrasse, Bucarest, Romania, but no call-letters were heard.
