The Ear Inspires the Pen

Mrs. Ivah R. Edwards, 3744 South East Stark Street, Portland, Ore.

Sirs: Why isn't the "Bridge to Dreamland" musical program ever listed under "Outstanding Music" on the Sunday "Program Highlights"? There isn't a better-loved program or a more perfect ending to a Sunday than Paul Carson's "Bridge to Dreamland." We wish that he could take longer to build his bridge of melodies and that we could hear him more often. In these nerve-racking times the music he plays is needed more than ever before.

(The log editor has been advised to list the program as requested.)

Mrs. E. Harder, 1773 Rose Avenue, Long Beach, Calif.

Sirs: I would like to air my personal viewpoint on the subject of commercials. The louder and more highly they advertise a product, the louder I say "phooey"! I wage a one-woman war to my own satisfaction by not buying any of these products when I go to the neighborhood store. And now about Radio Life, this is only Wednesday of this week and I can't buy a magazine of this week's date—they only have the issue dated a week ahead on sale.

(Suggest that you shop earlier. Also ask your market manager to stock more magazines.)

Mrs. R. Wright, 3506 Portola Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: Is there man or beast with soul so dead he never to himself hath said "Oh yeah? Modern Design! Blah!" The ear inspired this pen.

E. R. Kelley, 726 Manzanita Avenue, Pasadena, Calif.

Sirs: One of the finest things you have ever done was to publish a picture of Fulton Lewis, jr. What a magnificent face! If any woman should go "nuts" about him, let no one blame her. His strong, manly, honest face is enough for lots of men to go "daffy" about him. Honest, don't you think he would make a good statesman?

Mrs. H. F. Simons, Box 23, Bonsall, Calif.

Sirs: I would like to tell you what a wonderful help Radio Life is for us. We have no mail delivery. We are not able to get a daily newspaper, so your magazine sure keeps us up on the latest news reports and good programs we want to hear. Some of our neighbors have no electricity and use a battery radio. I plan to give them one year subscriptions of Radio Life this coming Christmas.

Willard Doc Hall, 323 San Marcus Street, San Gabriel, Calif.

Sirs: Answering Mrs. Ralph K. Foster's letter which wondered why I left "Tune Out Time." This program, on KFI and KECA for 79 weeks, was originated by me. I wrote and produced it and it got 41 people jobs in pictures, radio and night clubs.

The thing most people seemed to like about the program was the "oomph." This included the comedy which banished mike-fright in amateurs. When I moved to the Blue Network, they insisted I omit gags and comedy, revert to old-time routine, such as name, age, ambition, etc. The performers were hand-capped from the start. After eight weeks of this, I became disgusted, decided to leave the air with a good reputation.

I have just returned after a personal appearance tour in vaudeville with Henry Armetta, and hope to be back on the air soon, with a new show, at good old KFI, where they don't mind a little "oomph."

Mrs. A. C., Hollywood, Calif.

Sirs: May I have my say about 'Doc' Hall? I wish him success wherever he may be as long as he keeps off "Tune Out Time." His hundred-year-old jokes weren't even corny, and he'd never pick the right person for the right jokes . . . such as tossing a none-too-clean remark to a young girl. Arnold Maguire isn't trying to let us know how funny he is on the program now. He's there to give deserving amateurs a break. And believe me, they get it with Arnold Maguire.

Mrs. M. Bickmore, 539 West 110th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: I read Radio Life's article about the record ban. I would like to put in a kick against Petrillo's idea. I hope he gets enough razzing from the public to change his mind. I don't understand how one person can stop the whole record industry by the lift of his little finger and why is the public letting him do it? If enough people kicked, Petrillo would have to change his mind, wouldn't he?

(As you may have read, the government is already interested in Mr. Petrillo and his case will soon be front page news.)

Emily Malim, 553 25th Street, Santa Monica, Calif.

Sirs: Not long ago I happened to hear the program "Town Gossip" on KMTR. It was really gratifying, the plot seemed so every-day and genuine. Now I am an every-Sunday listener. I am more than curious as to the looks of "Jane." Is there any way I can get her picture?

(We suggest that you write KMTR your request for her picture.)

H. Chester, San Fernando, Calif.

Sirs: In your "Pre-Casts" department you say "Double or Nothing, this Phil Baker broadcast . . ." When did Baker take over that show?

In your article "Radio Wins Out" regarding Lionel Barrymore, you state "He will follow" Bob Burns on Wednesday over CBS. Neither program is aired Wednesday night.

(Sorry. The emcee on "Double or Nothing" is Walter Compton. The Lionel Barrymore show is filling out the unexpired 13 weeks of the Edna May Oliver contract for Lever Brothers. As stated, beginning Wednesday, October 7, it will be heard on CBS. The Burns show will air Wednesday from 6:00 to 6:30 p. m. and the Barrymore show from 6:30 to 7:00 p. m.)

Coming out of the Ether

By BERNIE SMITH

Radio stars have been grist for my mill for years. I've kissed 'em and damned 'em and praised 'em and slammed 'em. Their public lives have been ground to bits between these paws and many's the halo I've awarded. But up to now, the other end of the radio department has managed to escape the ordeal of publicity. Let's hold him under our microscope and see what makes him tick.

Bernie Smith

He's the guy next door, or the clerk in the drug store, or the stenographer who lives across the street. They all make up the most important part of radio that unique class of Americans known as "The Listener."

The Chatterbox: There are many kinds of listeners, but to me the chatterbox is the world's worst. She's the gabby dame who always has a bulletin about her grandma's appendix just when you want to hear the news. She's the noisy wench who can't shut up during your favorite program, but who remains ominously quiet during the commercials. No matter how many broad hints she gets, she always thinks what she has to say is funnier or more important than the words of a six-thousand-dollar-a-week comedian. If they ever hang me for murder, the victim will be The Chatterbox.

The Half-wit: Unfortunately there are all too many of this type of listener running loose, of both sexes. He's the guy who always spoils the jokes by asking: "What was that? What did he say? I missed that!" Everyone else in the room will be rolling on the floor in sheer delight, but the Half-wit never gets the point. When I'm President, I'm going to pass a law against this sort of thing.

The Sour-puss: Equally as dangerous as the Chatterbox or the Half-wit is the jerk who takes his radio too seriously. You'll find him with an ear glued to the loudspeaker, shushing everybody within the block. He makes every movement cease and barks when the wind rustles the trees. His worst enemy is the street-car, about which he can do nothing but curse. Too often he's also the bird who keeps his volume open all the way and blasts the neighbors' eardrums. I sometimes pity this person. It may be he's getting deaf.

The Wise-guy: He knows all the answers. He can tell you minutes beforehand how the drama is going to turn out, what the pay-off to a joke will be, or what the next five surprise numbers, on the Hit Parade are, in order. He used to sit right behind you at the movies, but now he's moved into your home to wreck your radio pleasure.

The Commentator: Raymond Gram Swing, Kaltenborn, Fulton Lewis and Rodriguez and Sutherland are a bunch of dopes, according to this genius. He argues every statement, thereby spoiling the next three minutes of commentary that you are particularly interested in. He can't understand why he hasn't been hired to go on the air himself. And he also can't understand why so many people make nasty cracks at him.

The Dial-spinner: How often this fink spoils an evening! He's the expert who tunes something on his radio for your pleasure, and just when you're enjoying it, he'll step up and twist the darn thing to something else. Then you get set to enjoy the new program when... zing!... he's punched another button. He usually winds up by turning it off with the inane remark: "There's nothing on tonight that's any good." If I ever get hanged for double murder, this guy will be second on my list.

And so it goes. Everyone listens to his radio differently, each has his own tastes. Personally, I'm the kind of fish who shuts himself in a barred room and locks the door. That way I can hear what I want without interruption. They have a name for my type, too. "The Hermit!"

Meredith Willson has handled the music gratis on an even dozen government and benefit broadcasts within the past six months.

Victory Gardening in the

"Sure, I grow corn on my land. After all, if I hadn't dispensed plenty of the stuff in the last 20 years, I wouldn't have the land to grow it on. Now take this ear of corn," says Frank to John Conte. "There's enough there to keep the show going for at least five years."

"The only other time I saw tomatoes this big was when I first started out in my thespian career. How well I recall that humiliating night, when the over-ripe pulp, juice and seeds trickled under my best celluloid collar and onto my new mauve-toned cravat."

THE teller of tall tales on NBC's Maxwell House Show, the fabricator of fantastic falsehoods, the exaggerator par excellence—Frank Morgan, clung true to form when he planted and produced a Victory Garden.

For him no measly potatoes, no anemic tomatoes, no shrivelled squash. At least, not according to his stories and the pictures which he ordered taken as proof of his prowess on the field.

"My garden grew over night," claimed the loquacious Morgan. "In fact, I planted the seeds early one afternoon, then departed for the NBC studios to rehearse my weekly stint. Late that same evening, upon returning homeward, I experienced difficulty in locating my estate.

"After driving several times past what appeared to be an overgrown swamp, I suddenly realized that "A rolling squash gathers no sauce," contemplates Frank as he pauses to regard one of the puniest specimens of his Victory patch. "This undernourished vegetable required Vitamin Q, but I was unable to procure it. All Vitamin Q was being used to make synthetic rubber."

"Now this Italian squash," (zucchini to you) "is not up to the Morgan agricultural standards. It just happens to be one of the culls, tossed aside in the field. It should be mashed—same as the Big Italian Squash—you know who I mean!"

bounteous nature had blessed my efforts, and that what seemed to be a lush thicket was in reality my garden, full-grown and ready for harvesting.

"Grasping my machete, I was eventually able to hew a pathway into the house. By morning, when I arose to begin the task of garnering my crops, knives alone couldn't cut the veritable jungle of vegetation.

"As I was standing at the doorway, considering my dilemma, a solution to my problem was forthcoming from the skies. Suddenly, a formation of Lockheed P-38's swooped out of the heavens, and dipped over my field, the propeller blades neatly severing the fruits of my vines as the machines whizzed past.

"It alone remained for me to stride into the garden, where, single-handed, I was able to push the vegetables, one by one, down the path and into the barn."

NBC-Hollywood Pictorial Pictures

"If corporations could just whack into fruit like this, they'd only have to cut a melon once in a lifetime," observes Frank. "The problem of removing this melon from the field was acute, and the only way I solved it was to roll it in coordination with the earth's rotation."

"You've often wondered how I felt toward you," says Morgan to John Conte. "Here it is in a nut-shell. Up until now I was convinced that you were the biggest nut I had ever seen. But when I plucked this Nutticus Preposterous I knew you had slipped into second place."

"What a small potato you are," says the self-satisfied spud as he eyes the exultant Morgan. "If I weren't risking my life, I'd do a slow burn, but this pernicious prevaricator, Morgan, isn't worth my carbohydrates." . . . What's that?" demands Frank. "You! You're small fry!"

Worried About Rationing?

Here's What Harry W. Flannery Has
To Say About Rationing in Germany

Here is CBS correspondent Harry W. Flannery, surveying the 15 ration and permit cards necessary for eating, sleeping, and working in Germany. Most prized of all, his passport, was relinquished when he returned to the United States.

By EVELYN BIGSBY

A MERICANS who raise their brows in interrogation over sugar and gasoline rationing should consider the situation of the Germans. So says Harry W. Flannery, CBS correspondent who spent a year in war-time Berlin and managed to take leave of the country only two months before actual declaration of hostilities between the Third Reich and the United States.

Visual evidence of the rationing circumstances in Hitler's land is the stack of cards which Flannery carried around with him in order to eat, sleep, and pursue his radio activities.

To co-workers at CBS-KNX, where he is now delivering his commentaries, the war analyst displayed his ration cardboards the other day. Spreading them out on his desk, the West Coast commentator exclaimed: "Here are seven different food cards.

Here is one for soap. This one is for gasoline; this, for clothing.

"This paper," Flannery continued in explanation, as he singled out a small sheet bearing his picture, "was my permit to reside in Berlin. The German government keeps check on its citizens by requiring a similar paper of each person. In addition, it was necessary for me to obtain permission when I moved from the Adlon Hotel to a pension.

"Permits were also requisite for entering the radio station from which I broadcast my news reports and to attend the press conferences. The one paper which I valued more highly than anything, even food cards, was my passport," testified Flannery.

Questioned regarding the food rationing in Germany, the commentator advanced further explanations. The food cards, seven in number, took care of separate needs.

1. Bread. Four pounds per week per person. This included all breadstuffs such as rolls, cakes, pastries. This ration amount was recently cut.

2. Meat. One pound per person each week (subsequently cut to 11 ounces). This included both fat and bone, which constituted about 30 per cent of the piece. In order to obtain the largest possible amount of meat from a ration slip, many German families bought sausage.

3. Eggs. These averaged from one to four a week. What a ration-card possessor received depended upon arrival of supplies, which would be announced in the newspaper by the mayor. Those holding egg cards then hurried to their stores. Sometimes the store at which one was registered would not have received its allotment; sometimes it had already disposed of its meagre supply.

4. Sugar. A ration of two pounds per person monthly. Not an acute problem, unless an individual had an excessively sweet tooth.

5. Fats. These included not only butter, but margarine, lard and similar cooking substances, and cheese. Rations were short, considering the importance of this class of food. Germans could obtain a quarter pound of butter a week, 1/20th of a pound of margarine, 1/10th of a pound of lard, and two ounces of cheese.

6. Flour. Exact amount not stipulated by Flannery, who had no need for such rations as he took all of his meals out. The flour card covered purchases of oatmeal, rice, cereals, and macaroni as well.

7. Special. Used for buying candy, fruits, nuts, and such supplies. They were purchasable whenever a supply was announced. The special card also covered chocolate and ersatz coffee. Real coffee was obtainable at the rate of two ounces a year. The ersatz brand was compounded of chicory roots, bran and acorns, with bran making the tastiest brew. Most Germans drank it with skimmed milk. Tea was made from various kinds of roots. Peppermint tea was favored kind.

Fish and chicken were not rationed. Every so often the store keeper posted a notice informing families registered with him that such products were available.

When Flannery first arrived in Berlin, it was necessary for him to obtain a permit to receive food tickets regularly. Soon he became an expert in sizing up a piece of meat or portion of fat. When dining at a restaurant, it was compulsory for him to turn in coupons for rationed foods which he ordered. As part of their equipment, as much so as pad and pencil, were the scissors which all waiters carried to facilitate removal of coupons from ration cards. The number of grams in a portion was printed on the menu for items which were subject to rationing.

When Flannery moved into a pension, he had to map a veritable campaign for breakfast. If he owned an egg, he would inform the landlady that he desired an egg for his meal. If he wanted it prepared with butter, he relinquished a coupon to cover this process. Similarly, he turned over bread, flour, sugar, and other coupons.

A foreign correspondent in the German capital was not restricted in fare like citizens of the Reich. Flannery found that liberal tipping worked magic in the supply line. He was the only guest at the Adlon Hotel whose fruit supply was consistent. By shopping at one or two stores where he contacted the same sales person each time, the CBS correspondent found that he managed quite adequately. At one shop there was a gray-haired woman who took a motherly interest in Flannery and always saw to it that he received a portion of sweets, fruits, or other specials happening to be in stock.

He would never converse with her about the special supplies, lest he be overheard. He would order what obtainable items he needed and would usually note that the bill totalled more than it should. Giving the woman a liberal tip, Flannery would take his sack unquestioningly.

"It was just like Christmas when I returned to my room after such a store expedition," Flannery recalls. "Sometimes I would find a few oranges or apples, maybe a chocolate bar. I was always in suspense until I emptied the sack."

The analyst never discovered himself in dire food circumstances. One American woman of his acquaintance lost all her ration cards and was temporarily forced to rely on friends' generosity in order to eat.

Anticipating a shortage of good clothing in Germany, Flannery went over with three suits and two pairs of shoes. The only articles which he found need of buying were a pair of gloves, some overshoes, and a hat. Permits were necessary for the first two.

Unlike correspondents, the ordi-

Music, Taylor Made

EVER since the stillness of the night was first broken by the screeches and howls of regenerative sets, the Paul Taylor Chorus has been synonymous with radio.

You'll recall Paul Taylor's work on the Kraft Music Hall for three years, with the Marion Talley concert series, with Grace Moore's similar series, with Mary Pickford's "Party at Pickfair" program, with the Chase and Sanborn super-duper of a few years ago when Ameche, McCarthy, Bergen, Lamour and Nelson Eddy swapped fun with an equal number of big name guest stars. . . . If you recall any farther back than that, don't admit it or you'll date yourself.

From the film studios, the radio, and the musical comedy shows, Paul searched for talent and gleaned no less than 1500 applicants. After listening through four long and trying months, he finally selected fourteen who answered his requirements. He then put in two months of rehearsals, seven nights a week. Ah, he had something he was mighty proud of.

Then came the war! And with it went every nice young tenor and bass in the group. Paul would probably have torn his hair out by the very roots if it hadn't been for Mrs. Taylor, who works with her husband and is recognized as one of America's foremost choral arrangers.

So-o-o, Paul started out in search of more male voices with a new requirement: The applicant must be 3-A or better in the eyes of the draft board.

Paul Taylor finally got his draft proof group together and at this moment, they all look permanent. There are eight men and six girls, a scientifically balanced group that can work on operatic programs, variety shows, swing shows and Sunday school music. They can work in any kind of movie and in any kind of concert. The group of 14 can be broken down into a male octet, a female sextet, a girls' trio, a male quartet, or a mixed combination of any size. That's where modern, mass-production methods enter the choral picture.

If a producer should suddenly call up and ask for a quartet, he has only to wait until Paul's boys can get from home to the studio. In fact a film producer called the other day and said he wanted the whole bunch. They were in his office by the time he was hanging up the receiver. They're all working in films now, with more work in the offing than they'll be able to take care of for the moment. They are heard on the airplanes in "The Inevitable Mr. Sand" over KECA, 4:30 p.m., Sundays.

The youngsters who sing under Taylor's direction now come from every corner of the country, and they look, sing and act like brothers and sisters. All of the girls are between 20 and 25 years of age, all are five feet four, (or thereabouts), and all weigh between 115 and 118 pounds. The measurements of the male members haven't been taken, but they run pretty much along the same lines as the girls'—taller of course and heavier.

There's something else that shouldn't be overlooked. Next time you see a Douglas bomber skyrocketing overhead, you can thank Paul Taylor in a very small way. He's organized a glee club at the Douglas plant among the workers. With music in their hearts, they turn out those planes a lot faster and a lot better. Paul's doing it as his own personal contribution to the war effort.

He deserves a chord in G from all of us.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and the Taylor Maids, (left to right) Margie Cooke, Virginia Friend, and Marian Bartell.

ANN MALONE

Here are Jerry Malone (Alan Bunce) and his wife, Ann (Elizabeth Reller), leading characters in the day-time serial, "Young Dr. Malone." Heard over KNX, Monday-Friday at 11 a. m., the story relates the triumphs and struggles of husband and wife. Recently, Jerry was shot down over Germany, and Ann, believing him dead, undertook to carry on her medical work alone on the home front.

Ban Hits Home

For the past several weeks, Radio Life readers have been following the results of the Petrillo edict, which banned the making of any new records, other than for home consumption, by union musicians after July 31. Shortly after the ukase went into effect, the Anti-Trust division of the Federal government filed a bill in equity against the American Federation of Musicians. This action, and the union's counter-action to dismiss the bill, will be heard in Chicago, Oct. 12. Then last week, the Senate ordered an all-out probe into the Petrillo affair.

To the average radio listener, all these skirmishes seemed very abstract until last Sunday when they tuned in on the Blue Network's local outlet, KECA, at 8:30 p. m. to listen to Jack Benny's repeat broadcast and instead heard an Eastern dance band.

Why? Because Petrillo told the Blue Network on Friday preceding the broadcast that the only way it could release the Benny program at 8:30 p. m. was by paying the musicians double money or by having Benny stage another "live" show at 8:30. Because Benny leaves next week to play army camps, the latter proposition was out. So was the former, as far as the network was concerned, as the 15 musicians in Phil Harris' band already receiving $17 a half hour for "live" broadcasts, would have to be paid $34 a half hour (double pay) to record the 4 o'clock show.

Further complicating the situation was the fact that the program was released at 4 p. m. on NBC and at 8:30 p. m. on the Blue, a different network. Petrillo has allowed the radio stations to take "live" shows off the line for later rebroadcast in another section of the country provided the record was never played again after the rebroadcast. But in Benny's case, the same program was made available to people in the same section of the country being serviced by the first show. Petrillo said this could not be unless his stipulations were met.

Along radio row Sunday, the general feeling toward this newest twist was that it was extremely unfair; that this latest clamp-down on Petrillo's part might serve to hasten a clarification of the whole record situation.

Said Don Gilman, Blue Network vice-president: "The Blue Network has had nothing to do with this matter.

We have used every reasonable means in our power to give this service (the repeat show) to the public. We expect a tremendous response from the public as the result of the Jack Benny cancellation. It has been the greatest disappointment the radio audience has ever received as the result of an action of a union labor decree.

"Our opinion is that the matter will be satisfactorily settled shortly."

Brave Board

From all the serials which parade in regimented order throughout daytime listening, the Planning Board of the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs was able to select one, the other day, as "the best example of representative American radio in the serial form."

Patricia Dunlap

has been airing for eight years, with Patricia Dunlap as Janet Ryder, Hugh Studebaker as "Dr. Bob," and Marjorie Hannan as "Ruth Ann Graham." If Radio Lifers want to evaluate the Planning Board's choice, they may hear "Bachelor's Children" by tuning KNX, Monday-Friday, 12:45 p. m.

Democracy's Birthright

At this time in American history, more than ever before, citizens should concentrate on thinking their way, rather than feeling it emotionally. One of the finest stimuli offered toward exercise of gray matter is the radio program, "University of Chicago Round Table," which began its 10th year on NBC Oct. 4.

This round table discussion program came into being as a public service experiment. Three college professors participated on the first broadcast, sitting around a "target mike" which stood on a card table. Immediate and ever-increasing response established it as a network "must."

Today, radio and research staffs meet 10 days before each Sunday broadcast to select a timely and controversial subject. Then speakers most familiar with the topic are sought. Although many of the guests are university professors, others than educators have made appearances on the program.

No longer an experimental gathering, the "Round Table" now is presented at a specially designed triangular table equipped with rubber elbow pads, signal lights, and warning cards. The cards caution speakers to "speed up," "slow down," "interrupt," and "stay before the microphone."

Several hours before the broadcast, an informal rehearsal is held and a recording of this is made and played back to participants just before they go on the air, that they may strengthen salient points and align their talk.

If you plan to follow a broadcast you may be assured a thorough discussion by experts, whose chief attraction is the fact that they make some summaries, but allow the listener to draw his own conclusions.

KNX, 11:30 a.m. Sun.

$64 Question

How long will the Phil Baker show "Take It or Leave It" be out here on the coast? Tentative arrangements have it that it will stay here eight or ten weeks. . . . But when Phil gets a load of our climate—who knows, it may be here all season. But it is definitely known that the show will be heard from the CBS-KNX studios on Sunday, October 11.

Baker had a tremendous job to do when he stepped into Bob Hawk's place on the program, and has done a bang-up job. About six weeks ago he celebrated his first anniversary on "Take It or Leave It" by inviting all the people with the surname of Baker to be his guests at the program. . . . the studio was packed with "relatives."

During its stay here the show will have some new faces. Ken Niles will do the announcing, and Edgar "Cookie" Fairchild is to be musical director.

KNX, 7 p.m. Sun.

Sink the Enemy

The Bombardier Quiz made its initial opening on KHJ Thursday night at 8 o'clock with "Skipper" Stu Wilson in his usual fine form as he conducted the "sea battle" with North American Aircraft Company and four men in the United States Service vying with one another to see who could sink the most enemy ships.

This unique quiz designed by Jim Doyle, who serves as Lieutenant Commander of Ordnance during the attack, is held in front of a huge board on which are painted enemy battle-ships, cruisers, airplane carriers, and destroyers. Attached to the various types of ships are colorful balloons, and by piercing one of the balloons with a dart, a contestant can make a score for his bombardier crew.

However, before any bombardier can take part in the engagement with the enemy, he must answer Wilson's question correctly. The audience cheered enthusiastically as the big silver dollars and defense stamps galore rolled into the pockets of the service men and defense workers. Loud walls expressed their regrets when wrong answers were given or a dart missed aim, until Skipper Stu Willson informed the audience that all prize money not won by the contestants was to be turned over to the U. S. O., which brought another burst of applause from the audience.

KHJ, 8 p.m. Thurs.

Beware Borge

Despite rumors to the contrary, Victor Borge, Danish-born concert pianist and comedian has been re-signed for another stretch with Bing Crosby on Kraft Music Hall. Considered one of the finest concert pianists of Europe, he was long an antagonist of Nazism and was forced to flee his native land when the "big push" started. What little money he was able to bring with him to America melted away like ice cream, and Victor has many amusing stories to tell of his financial embarrassments in New York, like the time he and his wife attended a swank dinner party using a friend's snazzy car for transportation, then found they had only a nickel between them to tip the door man!

Victor's comedy talents developed from his habit of making quaint introductions to his concert pieces. "This little number I'm going to play," he would state, "is just a little something I picked up in the park ash-can." Then he'd sit down and rattle off a brilliant concerto. Audiences loved it. But Americans who are hearing only comedy from Victor and aren't hearing him play, are being cheated.

KFI, 6 p.m. Thurs.

Charmers

"We didn't dream people—so many people—would want to see us," said girls from Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm" orchestra last week as they recuperated from the gigantic crush of fans which packed Shrine Auditorium to see the all-femme orchestra perform its Sunday night broadcast.

Tickets for the five shows which the group did from Southern California were being requested as soon as word came that Spitalny's orchestra would air locally while in process of a picture at Universal. By hiring the biggest hall in town, officials thought that all "Hour of Charm" devotees would be satisfied. Accommodations were made for 6500 people, but by Tuesday night preceding the broadcast date, all tickets were gone. Additional seats were installed; the tickets for them were gobbled up. NBC, promised 500 ducats for distribution, ended up with 50 over which zealous clients made a scramble. Six lines into Guest Relations Office were kept humming, some people calling up as late as 5:30 p. m. Sunday (90 minutes before airtime) to express a desire "to see the show."

Only consolation that Radio Life can offer to its family members who were unable to see the broadcast is this: the girls have apparently made a success of their first movie venture, and may receive offers from other studios which will keep them here indefinitely and make their broadcasts available to some, at least. As far as the girls themselves are concerned, they like it here and want to stay.

Billets for Boys

The three things our service men want to see when they come out West are a radio star, a movie star, and the Pacific Ocean.

With every motorist more than eager to give the boys a lift, and take them wherever they want to go, they have little difficulty in getting out to the blue Pacific, or on a tour of the moving picture stars' homes they find welcome written on every door mat.

As for the radio stars, the broadcasting studios together with the U. S. O. make it a point to see that every last soldier, sailor, and marine has a chance to see his favorite star in action.

Each day, every show that goes on the air, remembers the boys in service and sets aside a certain number of tickets for them. All a service man has to do to get a ticket is to go to the lobby of NBC or CBS and ask for one, a privilege accorded only to service men.

Mrs. Robert Cross, founder of the ticket distribution, says, "The boys are very definite in their likes and dislikes. They do not want to see a show which they have not heard on the air. They don't want to see shows about the army . . . they see enough of that without coming into town to see more of it. They want shows in which they can laugh and be gay."

The most popular shows, according to Mrs. Cross, are Lux Radio Theater, Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Dinah Shore, and band programs. They enjoy most the ones they have seen in camp.

One fellow wanted to see Fibber McGee and Molly so he could write home and tell his Mom, who always listened to 'em, what they really looked like.

Noticing a soldier-boy wandering about the lobby at NBC the other day, Mrs. Cross asked him if he would like to go into the studio to see Bob Burns' show. He could scarcely believe his own ears. "You mean . . . I can actually go in there where he is?" he questioned dubiously. After the broadcast he came running back to show her the autograph Burns had given him.

The U. S. O. sends out tickets each week to the boys in the convalescent camp at Santa Monica, some of whom are brought in ambulances to see the show.

Assisting Mrs. Cross at the reception are Mrs. Tracy Moore, Mrs. Kendall Frost, and Mrs. Myrtle Verheyen. . . . These volunteer workers who take turns at the U. S. O. reception desk at NBC distribute an average of 1500 tickets each week.

School's in Session

Last week the biggest classroom in the world assembled for its 13th season at the opening of the 1942-43 radio school year over KNX Monday-Friday at 1:30 p. m. Millions of children all over the United States, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico heard the familiar trumpet fanfare introducing the "School of the Air of the Americas."

During this wartime year "School of the Air" is designed to perform a double service. Its first use is to supplement the regular classroom work of teachers and pupils. The second service performed by the program is to promote, among children, an understanding of the causes of the war to show them how they can help in winning it. More than 200,000 teachers supplement their classes with information furnished by the program, and already the requested 150,000 of teacher's manuals have been mailed to listeners.

In order to connect "School of the Air" fully with our total war effort, the Federal Office of War Information has designated it as an official news channel, and all important youth information is relayed through this medium.

Each day a different topic is discussed. The Monday series, entitled "Science at Work," is designed to explain science to children and show them how it is doing its part to win the war. Tuesday's "Music For Victory" series presents patriotic and folk music from all the Americas. A Pan American pageant is presented by the regular Wednesday series entitled "New Horizons," which tells the story of the great heroes and liberators of North, South, and Central America. Thursday's program, "Tales From Far and Near," relates stories for the children of the Americas. Friday's "This Living World" series is dedicated to student youth in time of war and dramatizes important subjects of the day.

Chills and Thrills

If your nerves haven't sent in lusty calls for Vitamin B . . . they will! Just leave that to Arch Oboler's new Ironized Yeast program, "Lights Out," heard over KNX Tuesdays at 8:30 p. m.

Compounded of suspense, imagination and toughness, the new mixture that Oboler has whipped up will explore the convolutions of the human mind; delve into the mysteries of the future; and run the gamut of fantasy, chills, and thrills. Produced without music, the plays are staged with stark realism ordinarily foreign to radio.

Incidentally, the War Department and the Association for Education by Radio are backing a new book of 50 Oboler plays called "Plays for Americans" in which he has compiled some of the radio dramas which made such a tremendous impression last season, when they were produced under the same title.

Sound Speed Limit

America's new 35-mile-an-hour speed limit for motor cars has tossed a puzzling problem in the laps of radio's sound effects men. To your Radio Life reporter, Al Span, CBS sound effects chief said: "After spending twelve years developing and perfecting recorded racing motors, screeching tires and clashing gears, I and my men must forget it all and start anew."

Span's new general order to his men is that automobiles must (so far as sound effects are concerned) start up slowly without grinding gears, never travel at more than 35 miles an hour, never whine on turns or slide to a stop. In fact, Span suggests that for quick stops, a line of dialogue such as "Oh, goody, let's stop here" might be written into the script.

Pardon My Error

Elizabeth Bemis, CBS-KNX news commentator, claims the laurels for this week's "prize boner."

Idle chatter with a young service station attendant led to a discovery that said gas tank filler-upper was ambitious to join the Navy. As the youngster was obviously under the official age limit, Miss Bemis launched into a pep talk, plus instructions on how he could enlist by getting his parents' written consent. When her recruiting speech was over, the attendant grinned, and countered: "But there is another reason . . . you see, I'm a girl." And she took off her cap to reveal a mop of curls!

Fibber Beats Dionne

After their NBC broadcast last Tuesday, Jim and Mrs. Jordan (Fibber McGee and Molly) dashed over to Lemoore to get acquainted with their flying cadet sons.

Molly McGee

Didn't know they had more than one son? Oh, my yes, they have 4500, and that isn't one of Fibber's exaggerations, nor is it a secret Molly has dug up out of Fibber's past.

Of course they're adopted . . . but sons, nevertheless.

Fibber and Molly adopted the entire body of United States Army Air Force Cadets at the Lemoore Basic Flying School near Hanford (California) in the first mass adoption of a flying field.

As foster parents of the fledgling fighters, the NBC comedians are planning to visit the field as often as their schedule permits, get acquainted with each class of boys as their training begins, put on camp shows with the members of their NBC troupe, provide medals for athletic, scholastic and military achievement, furnish guidon flags for each squadron and personally present the medals at periodic graduation exercises.

Lemoore Field is one of the largest basic training centers under the West Coast Air Forces Training Center command. It takes in aviation cadets who have won their wings at primary flight schools and polishes them up for advanced training. Far removed from any large center of population, the boys at the field are compelled largely to rely on their own resources for relaxation and entertainment. This is one of the needs Fibber McGee and Molly will try to fill.

Fibber McGee's mythical "Wistful Vista" is known to every 'adopted son' on the post. The boys come from all parts of the United States and have been listening to Fibber on the air for years. Having McGee and Molly actually adopt the field, and come visit them in person is a treat they never expected.

KFI, 6:30 p.m. Tues.

Righto!

Bumming their way from above the border, two R.A.F. fliers, flight training in Canada, finally arrived in Hollywood on a two-week leave.

Like every other service man, these English lads headed straight for a radio studio and wanted particularly to see Nelson Eddy, CBS-KNX star.

Tickets to all radio programs are kept in reserve for service men, so even though arriving just as the "New Old Gold Show" was ready to close its doors, the young fliers were ushered in to hear, as well as see Nelson Eddy. They said they had spent half of their fortnight's leave hitch-hiking the 3000 miles from Canada to Hollywood, and would have to spend the other half hiking back. But with broad grins of satisfaction, they contended it was well worth it.

JUNE 11, 1940—ADMIRAL WILLIAM V. PRATT SPEAKING: "A BATTLESHIP IS SO HEAVILY ARMORED THAT WHEN A BOMB STRIKES IT, THE FORCE OF THE EXPLOSION GOES UPWARD, INTO THE AIR, AND VERY LITTLE DAMAGE IS DONE."

OCTOBER 10, 1940 — ADMIRAL CLARK H. WOODWARD WRITING: "THE NAVY IS UNANIMOUS IN ITS BELIEF THAT THE BATTLESHIP IS STILL SUPREME AT SEA . . . EXAGGERATED STATEMENTS AS TO THE EFFECT OF BOMBING PLANES UPON BATTLESHIPS SHOULD BE HEAVILY DISCOUNTED."

A brain-buster propounded on a recent quiz program caused intensive behind-the-scene research before the answer could be found. The question: "If ten men pull at each end of a rope is the rope more likely to break than if one end were tied to a tree and ten men pulled on it?" After many calls to scientists and universities in and near New York, here's the answer: "No. The tension is the same."

Radio Lifelines

By EVELYN BIGSBY

HIGHLIGHT OF THE WEEK: Attending the Chase and Sanborn Show Sunday afternoon (the last one here before the troupe started on its Eastern trek). Gueststar Hedy Lamarr had everybody in the cast a-dither, as she was supposed to show up for rehearsal at noon and didn't punch in until 3:30. She was as luscious as ever and we had plenty of chance to see, just two feet away from her off-stage. But her spot on the show—that tropical sequence—fell short of doing justice to a gal of Hedy's intrigue. We thought Edgar's and Charlie's War Bond plug, skilfully meshed with an argument about the dummy's allowance, was one of the neatest given so far by any star and exactly what the OWI is asking for.

Dale Evans fits into her new chores on the show quite zippingly. She promised Radio Life to keep a diary of her cross-country trip with McCarthy and to make a candid report when she returns. What a break for Singer Dale to have Ray Noble as orchestra leader! His poise and kindly understanding are sure proof against mike fright.

SKELTON ON LOOSE: Red wowed a capacity preview house at his Sunday night rehearsal. Must have been an overflow of 300 people on the stage. When Red was supposed to say: "The rooster barricaded himself inside the chicken coop" and it came out: "The rooster barbecued himself inside the chicken croup," he cracked: "I'm the only guy in radio who reads the blotches on the script." Wonder how many in the audience who saw him do his doughnut dunking sequence in the after-show knew that they were witnessing the routine which started the Skelton lad on his way to fame.

DORSEY OPENS: What a show the Dorsey Brothers put on Tuesday night when Jimmy opened at the Palladium! Mickey Rooney couldn't keep away from the drums, but the real jam session started when T. D. grabbed his trombone, Joe Zerbe sat down on the piano bench, Buddy Rich took over drums, Ziggy Elman trumpeted, and Milton Berle acted as emcee. Radio fans may catch T. D. on KFI, Wednesdays, 8:30; Jimmy on KNX, Monday-Friday, 10:35 p. m.

WHATNOT DEPT.: Chef Milan! tells us he secured all food for opening of Hollywood Canteen free of charge. Bravo, Chef! . . . Kudus for Los Angeles' own Nadine Conner, making her fifth guest appearance on Kostelanetz' program. . . . Cass Daley, who made her second appearance on Kraft last week, is such a friendly sort to meet. Says she was so nervous on her first radio appearance that she consumed a whole pitcher of water just before air time. . . . Billy Artzt, "Blondie" and Bob Burns maestro, is wandering around like a lost sheep. He sold his Beverly Hills home and bought another place. Had to get out of the former and can't take possession of the latter. Low bows to Conrad Binyon for sending that five-year Radio Life subscription to the Motion Picture Relief House.

THANKS TO: Bob Garred for his thoughtful parting note and gift. Good luck, Bob, in the service. . . . GeGe for that two-pound box of sweets. It certainly made the Radio Life editorial office attractive to a lot of sweet-toothers in the building. . . . Bob Brooks, NBC engineer, for being so helpful with technical information for the magazine. . . . Bill Baldwin, Blue special events man in San Francisco and formerly of KFWE, for a chance to see him as he took a fleeting look at Hollywood. . . . Abbott and Costello for that stupendous gag gift—a five pound live turkey delivered to the office with this note: "starting on Oct. 8 on NBC we'll give you enough corn to have this turkey fat by Thanksgiving." . . . Dean Simmons, for his nice comments about Radio Life. Nice meeting you, Dean, and the new little missus, out at Andy's and Virginia's swimming pool. . . . Ted Yerxa for his swell Radio Life plugs in his "Lampighter" column in Daily News.

More Miles

Joan Davis, comedienne on the Rudy Vallee program, is one Hollywood star who is not too concerned over the prospect of gasoline rationing. Joan is driving one of those midget cars to the Hollywood Radio City studios each week for her broadcast . . . and the little thing gets 48 miles to the gallon.

Ben Bernie and all the lads continue to keep workers on the production lines of the nation humming as they work at their war jobs. Bernie's programs are being heard over the public address systems in an increasingly large number of munitions factories.

Tomorrow's History

Pleased was Dwight Hauser, program director for the new KWKW, to receive the following postcard: "The program (name of nationally known news re-creation program) has long been a favorite of mine, but I consider your 'Tomorrow's History' superior to anything of its type on the air and from now on I shall be a regular listener." Hauser writes and directs this new dramatization of the news, aired at 5:30 Sundays.

Dick Joy, CBS newscaster, was recently informed by a New York owner that he had named his race horse "Dick Joy." The only catch is, the colt hasn't won a race so far this season.

Still Biggest Seller

Kate Smith's report on a recent poll of service men's preferences, in which more than fifty per cent asked for Bibles—had its bit to do with Representative Paul Cunningham of Iowa introducing a bill requiring that Bibles be issued to members of our armed forces who request them.

Keep Smiling

With HAL STYLES

Last week I told you that time and again the heroic crews of merchant ships have, after incredible hardships, returned to port when their ships went down, to 'bob up' on another ship for the glorious cause of the United Nations. Well, here is proof in the following 'log' of the S.S. ROBIN MOOR, the first American ship to be torpedoed, before Pearl Harbor. It was recorded by George Newton, a member of California's chapter of the Veteran Wireless Operators Association, of which I have the honor to be chairman.

Hal Styles

"On the 6th of May, 1941, the S.S. Robin Moor left New York harbor bound for Cape-town, South Africa, with 45 Americans on board. Fifteen days out, at 4:00 a. m., I was excitedly awakened, to be told that a German submarine had surfaced on our portside. Signalling the mate not to allow me to use the radio transmitter, the sub's captain questioned the American flag painted on our side, and then suddenly ordered that we abandon ship at once. Rounding up 'all hands' (among whom was a two-year-old boy named Robin), we immediately swung out our four life boats.

"My captain assigned me to command boat No. 2, and before lowering away, I hastily stowed a five gallon jug of distilled water on board, together with some soft drinks and a canvas cover. My boat contained 13 passengers, including myself, and I remember before pulling away, mumbling, "Oh—oh—That's my unlucky number!" However, I quickly joined the other life boats on the opposite side of the submarine, which immediately let loose with a torpedo that landed squarely under the Robin Moor's smokestack, exploding her entire mid-ship section.

As the ship began to sink slowly, the submarine sent 33 shells from her deck guns, into the groaning freighter's flaming hull and in a few minutes, our 'home' up-ended to Davy Jones' locker. Still not fully dressed and thoroughly awake, all in our life boat began to cry softly at the stark realization that we were actually adrift!"

Did Newton and his charges remain panicky as they faced the elements, on the vast stretches of the mighty South Atlantic? Read the next installment of this authentic account of the first merchant marine disaster of World War II, in this column next week.

BUILDING A Dream-Hobby.

First Exclusive Pictures of the Man Who Builds the "Bridge to Dreamland" And His Rare Collection of Glassware

No. 9 in Radio Life's Hobby Series

(Radio Life is deeply indebted to Mr. Carson for his gracious permission in allowing this magazine to interview the organist in his home and to obtain pictures of his fascinating hobby. This marks the first time any radio magazine has been granted such a privilege.)

HIGH on a Hollywood hilltop, in a charming, mellow, red-brick, English style home, lives the man who builds "The Bridge to Dreamland." There, Paul Carson, well-known Blue Network organist, has a collection as delightful as his music—representing his hobby of Early American glass.

That hobby demands discrimination, a deep study of American history, a thorough education in glass. Yet, side by side with the dignity of gathering precious glass is the tantalizing adventure of discovering rare pieces.

Much of Paul Carson's glassware has been purchased through agents, just as pictures are bought through art dealers. Much of it he has found himself. There was the sugar bowl he bought in a second hand store on Los Feliz boulevard, a delicate, priceless bit of glass, spun out by masters of another century—carelessly wrapped in a piece of old brown paper. The matching top to the bowl was purchased in Maine! A compote, one of the finest articles in his collection, was found—dusty, neglected—in a dark corner shelf of a second hand shop!

Among Mr. Carson's prized pieces are his salt sellars. Every one of his collection is characterized by the frosty, fragile beauty of Sandwich glass, which derives its name from the Cape Cod town of Sandwich, Mass., where the first American glass factory began in 1825.

Making Faces

Not with Two but with 10
Faces, Depicting Your
Perennial Comic-Favorites

YOUNGSTERS from two to 82 have gone gaga over Ge Ge, the versatile little lady with as many faces as a diamond has facets, and a voice to accompany each face as she romps through the pages of the Los Angeles Examiner's comic strip each Sunday morning at 8 o'clock over KHJ-Don Lee System.

As full of spunk as Sweetpea, as alluring as Queen Desira, as volatile as Maggie, as mischievous as Hans and Fritz, and as sweet as little Lena—that's Ge Ge Pearson, pretty young blond, who started doing characterizations at the tender age of two in Daddy Pearson's stock company. So, despite the fact she's still very young, she can quote "years of experience" in boat shows, tent shows, musicals, stock, and vaudeville.

Ge Ge produced her first dramatization of the funnies about a year ago, and won acclaim from every critic for her apt characterizations, which range through a complete half-hour review of the comic strips. Her only assistant is leading man Hal Gerard.

Marriage and the birth of a baby daughter intervened between Ge Ge's stage work and her current career in radio. Luana, the beautiful black-haired, black-eyed daughter, has added complexity to a confusing family picture centering around Ge Ge. Her own mother looks like her sister, and she herself doesn't look old enough to have a five-year-old daughter.

In fact, that youthful appearance has always been a problem with Ge Ge. She has always had to contrast her ability to do older characters with her youth. One of her best roles was that of a 65-year-old grandmother, played when Ge Ge was 15. On a recent Vallee show, she impersonated a 90-year-old woman. But the funny paper lady does all right with the youngsters, too, in roles on the air and in audience appreciation.

About that name Ge Ge. It has a history, of course, revolving around another Hollywood girl—Ginger Rogers. From the time she was a child in high school in Kansas City, where Miss Rogers was also enrolled, Ge Ge's path has crossed and recrossed the professional right of way of the star.

They've both appeared in "Stage Door," and in "Girl Crazy." Once

Just in case the grimaces fool you, here is Ge Ge Pearson, pretty young blond wearing her own affable face. She's ready to jump into a smooth half-hour show ranging all the way from Jungle Jim's hair-raising experiences to Prince Valiant's heroic deeds.

May we present Fritz Katzenjammer, the little brat with a hornet's nest for a mind. Ve vood like to tell you der truth vy he iss pouting, but he says it's chust nobody's bizness.

Here's sweet little Lena without her all-day sucker, who shadows Hans and Fritz like a guilty conscience, seeing all and telling more. Aunt Ge Ge's magic touch makes little Lena as real as life.

Ge Ge was considered for the role of Ginger's sister in a picture, but was turned down because she looks too much like the star.

Their mannerisms, speech, face, and figure are always being compared. At one time their names were identical. That's why Miss Pearson today is Ge Ge, to you. When she was about 13, Ge Ge appeared in a musical comedy, and because the word typified her pep, energy and vivaciousness, she was called "Ginger." The name stayed by her until the Ginger Rogers star became so bright the little Pearson girl feared that she was doomed to the role of a satellite unless she made a change.

So, she adopted as her professional name the diminutive her mother had used for her, "Ge Ge." At least it was different, and it didn't have a Rogers connotation. That is, it didn't until a few months ago when Ge Ge picked up a magazine to read that Ginger Rogers' mother had a pet name for her lovely daughter, too—it's "Ge Ge." Actually, Ge Ge fits our radio actress so well it's pretty likely to stick. And since from a professional point of view, she's in on the ground floor with it, Ge Ge doesn't have to worry about a hex from it.

Next Sunday morning when the kiddies come romping into your room at the crack of dawn, begging to have the funnies read to them, just twist the dial to KHJ (8 a.m.), turn over, and go back to sleep.

"Howdy folks, I didn't have a son to send to the front, but my daughter, Tillie, is doin' her part as a W. A. A. C. and she's prouder of that uniform than anything she's ever worn."

By golly, even Jiggs can't tell 'em apart and starts dodging rolling pins every time Ge Ge goes on the air. Ah, Maggie, why don't you give the poor guy a break once in a while?

Aunt Ge Ge can do things with that voice of hers that would make even Flash Gordon believe he was listening to Queen Desira (if he tuned in KHJ Sunday morning at eight o'clock.)

Yes, sir-ee, I'm now W.A.A.C., and in addition to being in my country's service, this uniform is saving me a lot of money. I walk right past sales I never could have resisted before."

"Popeye may get his muscles from eating spinach," says Sweetpea, Pop-eye the Sailor Man's precocious li'l son, "But I get mine from strawberry iced cream soders!"

THE PLOT Thickens

Shirley Mitchell, playing Shirley Anne

Gil Lamb, playing Homer Clinker

FOR 13 years, Rudy Vallee has been the star of a radio variety show featuring his band, his voice, and his proteges.

Last fall, the very clever cinema comic, Miss Joan Davis, was invited to appear on one of the weekly Vallee broadcasts. She was an immediate hit, and was bidden for a return engagement which lengthened into a settled contract on the program.

Each week, the show featured a skit, usually with one guest star, in which Joan, to no avail, pursued Rudy as her ideal man.

But those of you who have listened to the Rudy Vallee program during recent weeks realize that the erstwhile routine has been modified. Two new characters are making their bid for laughs on the Thursday night stanza.

One is a girl, Shirley Mitchell, who complicates Rudy's love-life. The other, an actor named Gil Lamb, is written into the script as the swain smitten with Joan's charms.

Some listeners have accepted the plot's thickening as a natural incident. Others have wondered whether there is some connection with the change and Rudy Vallee's enlistment in the Coast Guard.

They ask the question: Although Vallee is donating his radio salary of approximately $10,000 a month to Coast Guard relief, will the singing star be able to continue his radio program if war's exigencies intervene? If Vallee should suddenly be summoned elsewhere, and unable to continue his broadcasts, who would fill the breach?

Some advance the idea that Miss Davis is sufficiently established as an air comedienne to carry the stellar spot herself. Others feel that a male lead is essential to the Seal-test program, and have suggested such stars as Groucho Marx or Ransom Sherman.

Whether or not Rudy Vallee is called from Radio City and his Blue Network show, everyone is more or less unanimous in thinking that it is smart and smart showmanship to promote a thickening of the plot on Vallee's airer.

1 "Oh, Rudy," pleads Joan, "why do you jilt me as soon as this Shirley-Anne joins the program? Look at me, Rudy, look at me—and stop flinching! After all, what has Shirley got that I couldn't have straightened!"

2 But now comes Shirley, the village belle, with her sweet talk and her catching ways. "Rudy-Wudy," she sighs, "did you bring me a present, something wonderful and sweet from the Coast Guard Station?" . . . Says Rudy: "Uh huh . . . me!" . . . Thrills Shirley: "Rudy, that's all I'll ever ask for!" . . . Pouts Joan: "Shirley, that's all you'll ever get!"

3 "This may come as a blow," says Joan, "but you're not going to be Rudy's little pigeon much longer." . . . Shirley: "What's wrong with my being Rudy's pigeon?" . . . Joan: "Nothing. You've certainly got the toes for it."

4 "Ah, Rudy," moons Joan to his picture, "don't spurn me. After all, men are men and women are women, and it's a wonderful arrangement. I wouldn't change it for the world—I just want to get in on it!"

5 The plot sickens. Enter our bashful hero, Homer Clinker—a nice guy, but the dim-out has gone to his brain. He thinks kissing a girl is like eating watermelon—"especially when you get these seedy ones like Rudy's!"

6 "Guess who?" breathes Homer. "Rudy!" squeals Joan. . . . "Naw, I'm Homer Clinker, but you know me well enough to call me Homer." . . . "I know you well enough," snaps Joan, "to call you Clinker!"

7 "I just wanta buy some of your perfume," reassures Homer. "Gonna feed it to my chickens. Then every egg they lay will remind me of you." . . . Joan: "Do you want it delivered, or shall I break it over your head here?"

8 "Whatta life!" mourns Joan. "I could pull my blonde hair out by its black roots. But I WON'T give up. Anyway, Rudy has doubled my salary. Guess he means to FOLD that dollar bill. So long, folks. See you next Thursday!"

picture of customs of days past. Cup plates, for instance, which are small glass plates, made in 1300 designs, are cherished by anyone who knows glass. In the 19th century, it was polite to pour tea into a deep china saucer and, while drinking, it was customary to set the cup upon the miniature glass plate.

Design is fascinating and important. Two identical pieces of glass vary in price, because one has the image of George Washington upon it making it more expensive. One of Mr. Carson's most interesting pieces has that image, another has the eagle and 13 stars, representing the original states.

Names are rare on glassware, although Mr. Carson has one plate with the name of "Robinson," a manufacturer, another bearing the word "Pittsburgh," home of original pressed glass.

Mrs. Carson, who writes the poetic prose and verse for "Bridge to Dreamland," also collects glass. "Baltimore Pear" is her most interesting pattern.

nary German people regulated their wardrobe purchases by clothing cards which totalled 150 purchase points per year. A man's suit and top-coat consumed 80 and 65 points respectively, while a woman's suit, depending on material, might run around 45 points.

William L. Shirer, Flannery's predecessor as CBS correspondent in Berlin, had left behind some shirts which Flannery found useful after his own started fraying. Shirer, who clipped back to the United States, also left behind as excess baggage an accordion and a fine overcoat of gray tweed which he had bought in London.

Flannery, who returned by boat, obligingly brought back both the instrument and the topcoat. He had been wearing the latter in Berlin. Once landed in New York, he pitched into a series of lectures which made delivery of the accordion and coat impossible. Shirer, too, was rushing about on speaking engagements and could not contact Flannery.

One day, Flannery donned the coat and boarded a train for Washington. Who should get aboard at Philadelphia but Shirer!

"Shirer didn't say much," recalls Flannery, "but I was so embarrassed that I made special efforts to return his coat after I went back to New York.

"The accordion? No, I didn't use it. I didn't even try."

"The Army Hour" often works on a close margin of time. For a recent broadcast two channels had been arranged for a pickup from Australia; one by way of San Francisco, the other through London. Before air-time both channels became doubtful. A last-minute choice had to be made. London was chosen and came through as clear as a bell. The decision was made exactly 10 seconds before the program went on the air!

Upton Close

His Name Is a Phoney

W

HEN you hear the calm, fresh, sometimes salty and ironical voice of NBC's Upton Close commenting on the Pacific crisis, you are listening to an outstanding authority. He is as much at home in China, Manchuria, Japan or the South Seas as he would be in California, Oregon, or Kelso, Washington, where he was born one February morn.

Upton Close is the son of a French mother and a husky down-east Yankee, who christened him Josef Washington Hall. He was re-christened Upton Close by a Chicago newspaper who misunderstood his private cable word between him and his editors, "up close," which meant that Hall was close to the source of the story he was after. Consequently with Hall's uncanny ability to get whatever he went after, a great deal of his material came in signed "up close." When a proof reader was going over Hall's copy he decided "up close" must stand for Upton Close, and sent it to the press that way. When Hall returned to the States, the public demanded to see and hear Upton Close, but not Josef Hall, so he has used the name ever since.

He speaks Chinese fluently and is known to millions in the Orient by the name of Hou Ya-hsing, which means "Marquis of the Elegant Disposition."

How many names does that make for this one man? Josef Washington Hall Upton Close Hou Ya-hsing. Oh yes, and one more, his most recent addition and the one he prizes most, "Da-Da." His young son, born September 11, hasn't started calling him that yet, but Upton hovers over the crib every spare moment hoping to hear it. Four other lusty sons call him "Dad."

The Orient sometimes does strange things to a sojourner. For instance, it has left Upton Close averse to sitting while writing—a purely mental idiosyncrasy. His typewriter is perched atop a specially built desk which stands chest-high to the six-foot Yankee. On this desk he not only hacks out radio scripts, books, and magazine articles, but romantic poetry to his wife.

PREPARED FOR RADIO LIFE'S
CONSUMERS' CLUB BY CHEF MILANI

A MEATY THOUGHT:

There has to be plenty of thinking along the lines of meat these days. You see, our boys in the service need a lot of meat and they deserve the best. That means a little less for us at home—fewer of the better cuts. But that doesn't bother us. The inexpensive cuts are just as nutritious, and with a bit more care in preparation, just as good. The pennies we save can go into that tea cup on the kitchen shelf. You know, the one that holds our penny savings for an extra war bond.

To make the most of our shopping these days, though, we are carefully observing three rules.

1. Know the cuts of meat.

It's not difficult to distinguish the various cuts of meat. Our butcher will help us. We can get a meat chart. We saw one in a magazine the other day, or there are many good books on meat in the library.

2. Know the grades of meat.

As a general rule, the leaner grades of meat are less expensive. We look for the United States grade marks on meat. Ask YOUR butcher to have his meat graded. This service is open to anyone. U. S. Commercial means a meat that is medium fat. U. S. Utility means a thin meat.

3. Make yours a "planned buying."

This is a part of our shopping that can no longer be done haphazardly. We decide on approximately the kind and price of meat before hand, and choose meat that has leftover possibilities.

If we were adding a fourth rule, it would be this. Take time in preparing the meat—how you cook it, the seasoning, and so on.

Bring out the flavor in it.

A little thought about inexpensive meats will do wonders for that part of the menu.

FROM HISTORY:

If you think we're particular about meat today, you should have lived in the days of Louis XIV of France. He took care of it in style. Loney, we might add, was very fond of eating! To put it politely, he was a bit of a gourmand. Consequently, meat was a thing he treated with respect.

He issued an ordinance of the Palace of Versailles deciding the manner in which his meat should be served.

We quote:

"The meat of His Majesty shall be carried in this order: Two guards will march first, then the beadle, then the maitre d' hotel, the gentleman servant panetier, the comptroller ecuyer of the kitchen carrying the meat and after him two other guards."

Well? What do you say to that?

TID-BITS:

You should allow one-fourth of a pound of meat without bone for an average serving, or one-half a pound including bone, lean meat, and fat.

Lamb can be distinguished from mutton by the bones. Lamb bones are slightly streaked with red and the joint is separated. The joint of mutton is smooth and round.

In preparing glands and organs be careful not to over-cook them, as this destroys the delicate flavor.

Incidentally, the glands and organs are the most nutritious kinds of meat you can buy. What's more, they are inexpensive. And you know what that means. More pennies for that tea cup on the kitchen shelf!
