SAYS:

... it may never have occurred to you, but it's a fact ... you have never seen a kinky permanent wave on a Hollywood star. A permanent of little, tight curls may last longer, but believe me it shouldn't! Except on a scarecrow. In studio work and in our salon, my brothers and I have only two rules of good hair styling that apply to every woman: 1. To be lovely, your permanent must be soft, loose and natural. 2. To make it last, it must be styled so you can be taught exactly how to keep it lovely for months. But, everything else is individual. Your hair must first be cut to an individual style to enhance your most beautiful features and to obscure any that may be less flattering. Then your permanent is blocked in soft, natural waves patterned to your personal styling. And you are shown how to care for your permanent at home. The difference is in the styling, and it's a quality you can tell at a glance. I like to call a House of Westmore permanent "custom-built" because it's designed exclusively for you.

A New Deal for Ken

▲ "WHERE WERE YOU?" is an interesting new series. Here Ken Murray interviews by remote Captain Joseph McConnell, triple jet ace of the Korean War.

"Where Were You? brings Ken Murray back into TV in a new capacity. This looks like something different on the television scene.

By Jack Holland

IT TOOK a man with a cigar to introduce a novel twist to TV.

The man is Ken Murray. But you won't see his cigar on his new show, "Where Were You?" which is being seen locally on KFTV. Nor will you hear the typical Murray jokes. That phase of Ken's career has been dropped and in its place is a man who is completely devoted to a show that can be one of the most informative and entertaining offerings on TV.

"Where Were You?" may be compared in some ways to Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person" but only in an abstract sense. It does feature an interview with a famed personality but that is only one segment of the show. Basically, it introduces, without identifying, a noted figure of the past, surrounds him with film clips representative of his era, and then lets the viewer guess his identity. The clips themselves are of very real educational value in that they picture the manners and morals of the times.

But, actually, no description of the show does it justice. You have to see it to appreciate it.

For those who have followed Ken's career, his switch to a show of this type shouldn't be a surprise. Many remember his dramatic work in "The Valiant" which was part of his famous "Blackouts." And those who saw his TV shows from New York about three years ago remember the documentaries he introduced on his hour long program.

Jean Holloway

"Actually, it was Jean Holloway,

November 19, 1954

who is writing 'Where Were You?' who got me started in documentaries," Ken stated. "Now she won't even let me have a cigar during my narration for 'Where Were You?' and she's against the few jokes I make during the show. When I was doing the Budweiser program a few years ago I went over to her place one night to get some sketches from her. Two especially interested me—one on West Point and one on the Air Force. To get them I told her I wanted to have Van Heflin or Joseph Cotten play them. She said she'd like to see me do the part. And that's how it all began.

"The idea for 'Where Were You?' was really an outgrowth of a hobby I've always had. I've kept detailed records of people and events from the year 1903 on. I wanted to get this collection for my children. One day my brother-in-law suggested I make a TV show out of this material.

"Actually, what we are doing, then, is recording history in terms of people instead of events."

Ken was so convinced he had a solid property that he invested $80,000 of his own money in the beginning. He made four pictures and then made a deal with Bing Crosby Enterprises. Many companies, however, wanted to buy the show once they saw it. To date, more than twenty-six pictures have been filmed and Ken has hundreds of possible subjects on tap for the future.

Problems

"We naturally have many problems connected with the show," Ken went on. "There is the matter of sending our camera crew all over the country to film the various personalities in their own homes. There is the problem of getting famous men and women to agree to be present at a specified time for us to film their interview. There is the vast amount of research necessary for each show. Royal Foster and Jean have this unenviable task. They spend countless hours reading every bit of material available on a certain year. Then there are the film clips we use. These I was fortunate enough to get from one of the major studios. But perhaps the most difficult problem of all is tracking down the people we want to use on the show. It took us months to get Betty Lou Oliver, the elevator operator who fell seventy-two feet when the Empire State Building was hit by a plane some time back. We finally got her through an insurance company.

"But every show has its problems—and we feel the rewards on 'Where Were You?' more than compensate for its difficulties. I want an adult show, something to complement the mind. People don't like to be educated but they like to be brain pickers. We give them that chance here. There is definite educational value in our show but there is also entertainment.

"We were worried too about our audience appeal, but I know there is no show that appeals to everyone. There is enough in 'Where Were You?' though, to give us a very wide audience. It should appeal to all but the smallest of children."

Ken's program is a film show that looks like it's live. The interviews with the people involved are filmed and then Ken talks to a blank screen and cuts in with his questions.

Ken's family has also appeared in several of the episodes. His wife, Betty, has worked in the comedy skits, which are part of each show, and his three children have also been involved. As a matter of fact, this is a family affair since Jean Holloway's husband, Dan Tobin, is the typical American husband who is featured in all the comedy skits.

We'll make you a guarantee—once you've seen one "Where Were You?" show you'll want to see them all. That's a sure sign of success.

WHAT'S SO Funny ABOUT Gobel?

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

AS SMOG blanketed Los Angeles in the early Fall, so George Gobel did likewise to millions of TV viewers from coast-to-coast.

The NBC-TV star also made tears come to the eyes of the public—but they were tears of laughter. As a result of his own show, and his spectacular skit on the "Diamond Jubilee of Light" telecast, Gobel definitely established himself as the comic sensation of the season. Mention the word "Gobel" to the average TV viewer, and immediately a smile came to his face.

Although there was little doubt that the diminutive comedian had "arrived," a great aura of mystery surrounded him.

Immediately, the columnists and critics started to tear George apart; they wanted to know what made him tick. They knew he was funny, possibly even "great," but they wanted to know why.

Goodness knows, ever since the advent of TV on a large commercial scale, hundreds—even thousands—of new comedians, with new faces, and with jokes (some new, some old) had been exposed to the public. Some of them died after their first performance; some started a little flame of stardom but slowly flickered away to obscurity.

Not Gobel

But not Gobel. After a year of frantic searching by the top names in show business for a perfect format for Gobel, he finally landed in the average American living room with a thunderous crash (of laughter), and he has stayed there ever since.

Everyone wanted to know "Why?" "Why should Gobel succeed where others failed?" "What's Gobel got?"

Answers

The answers were as voluminous as the laughs on one of Gobel's shows.

They said it was his size. Small men (Gobel stands a mere five feet six inches and weighs only 135 pounds) have always had an advantage as comedians. As a general rule, audiences have a greater sympathy, and consequently are more relaxed and easy prey for a pun from a small man rather than a six foot giant.

They said it was his "warmth, individual charm, and wonderful grass-roots humor." Because of these things, Gobel always gives the impression that he is on "the same level," never "above" his listening public.

They said it was his "intelligence." Gobel seldom relies on a pun or "slapstick" for his laughs. His source of humor (as it should be with all "great" comedians) is in his very words, and in the way he expresses them.

They called him (such as Hedda Hopper), the "master of the unfinished sentence." A very apt phrase indeed, because time and again Gobel will stop talking about a subject completely—and as a result the unspoken words are funny. What was it the poet said about "those words unspoken are sweeter still"? In Gobel's case, he should have added the phrase—"and funnier still."

The Real George

Many other explanations were expounded by the experts to determine what Gobel had, that all the others lacked. To some degree, all of the theories about the thirty-four year old humorist were true. His size helps with the laughs; he does have "warmth, individual charm, and wonderful grass-roots humor"; his approach to humor is "intelligent" (that's why his writers like to work with him); and he definitely is the "master of the unfinished sentence."

In all these analyses however, the demons of the typewriter forgot one important thing: they forgot to ask the man himself. Not one had the time or inclination to go up to Mr. George Gobel and ask: "So what's so funny about Gobel?"

(Ah-h!—you guessed it you little darlings! Yes, indeed, we dood it!)

It was immediately after George had finished a script rehearsal at the NBC studios. The serious-faced Gobel listened to the question, and gave a straight-forward unfunny answer:

"This question of trying to figure out what makes me tick is one of my pet peeves. I honestly don't know why I am funny. I'm no analyst. I've never tried to figure it out, and probably never will.

"Ever since I started telling jokes

in public, I don't think my style has changed much. Of course, I have made many additions, but basically my approach is the same as it always has been.

"There is one thing, however. This business about my being the 'master of the unfinished sentence.' I guess that started because of my guitar playing. Many times, going from a song to a story, I would stop in the middle of a sentence and either play the guitar or tell a joke. I found out that for some reason the audience laughed when I stopped suddenly."

(Editor's note: You might say they were laughing at nothing, then, eh George? Ha! Ha? Oh, yes, as you were saying).

"Anyhow," George continued, "there is no one definite person or definite style that you can pin my humor to. My humor is just the way I tell things."

No Ad-libber?

"For example," George pointed out, "here's a script the way the writers have put it on paper. I don't read it the way it's written; without changing the meaning, I read it the way I say it, the way it is natural for me, and I hope funny."

"Also, unlike many comedians, I am not a great ad-libber. I can't say funny things on the spur of the moment."

Maybe George Gobel doesn't think so, but he is a great ad-libber, or whatever you want to call it. As an example, on the "Diamond Jubilee" show, at one point in the telecast when George was actually on the air there was a slight confusion about the script and about the "brain chart" he was making constant reference to.

Momentarily confused, George turned to the men offstage and remarked: "I don't like to be made sport of!"

Now does that honestly sound like a funny line—in black and white or November 19, 1954 in the way anyone else would say it? Of course not.

But the way George Gobel said it, it was one of the most humorous and most memorable lines on the entire two-hour telecast.

There—in the proverbial nutshell—you have the answer to the question "What's funny about Gobel?"

The answer: Gobel—that's what's funny about Gobel!

You don't believe it? Watch and listen to him sometime—or just ask your neighbor. He'll tell you:

"George Gobel? He's a riot. Keeps me laughing all the time. Why? I don't know why. I'll leave that to the experts."

It Got Its Face Lifted

▲ "THE RAY MILLAND SHOW" LOOKS LIKE A NEW SHOW now with Harry Tugend, center, producing. He has brought some much-needed changes to the series and everybody's happier—especially Ray Milland and lovely Phyllis Avery.

▲ VIRGINIA FIELD had a solid part in one of the shows. The new format has tossed some acting plums to several stars. (Bureau of Industrial Service, Inc. photos.)

"CBS-TV's 'The Ray Milland Show' has itself a new look—and everyone seems to be happy about it. But what brought about this change? Could it be a man by the name of Harry Tugend?"

By Jon Bruce

matic Arts—a sort of combination of Dr. Frank Baxter and the famous Dr. Baker of Yale. I liked the show business angle because I have always felt that show business was the royalty of America.

"I hope the new programs we're doing are giving Ray more dignity. We're also putting in prominent roles for other performers—such as the shows which featured Hans Conried, Virginia Field, and Henry Hull. Some people have felt that these stars have somewhat stolen the show, in instances, from Ray, but this doesn't bother him at all. He's concerned only with doing a good program. And the fact still remains that Ray always solves the problems in the shows and that it is his program. The audience, of course, is going to be the judge. It will be up to them to say whether or not the show was good.

"We changed the title because, to me, 'Meet Mr. McNutley' sounded like corny comedy. The 'Ray Milland Show' seems to have more dignity.

"Ray can do almost any kind of part and I want to make use of his versatility. He does wonderful things with his face. In fact, he could have been a fine silent motion picture star. Phyllis Avery amazes me. She really sparkles. She's one actress who is so vital and expressive you know what she's thinking every minute. You can see her mind working. With Ray and Phyllis' undeniable talent it's no wonder we can shoot each show in two days."

Vs. Groucho

There is still only one drawback—

the Milland program is in its same time slot, right smack against Groucho. And this worries Harry Tugend, not only because he likes "You Bet Your Life" but because he is also a close friend of Groucho's.

"Groucho is one of the toughest shows to be against," Harry said firmly. "I'd rather be against a top program like 'Dragnet' or 'I Love Lucy' and I'll tell you why. If we don't get the audience the first five or ten minutes it is doubtful if they'd turn to 'Dragnet' or 'Lucy' because they would already have missed the opening of the plot there. But they could and would turn to Groucho at any time. Consequently, we can't afford any lulls in our show—and that's why I feel scripts are the most important part of our program or of any program for that matter. Groucho is also tough competition because he has a different 'cast' each week.

"Of course, I consider Groucho one of the three greatest wits in the country, the other two being George Jessel and Fred Allen. So if we get people away from him we're just plain lucky."

If you'll note, "The Ray Milland Show" isn't stressing comedy entirely. In fact, a good part of its openings aren't comic at all. Some episodes will have pathos, some will have suspense, others will be intimate little stories primarily between Ray and Phyllis.

It's good to see a company take on a rejuvenation job on a show in which they have confidence. In fact, this one can turn out to be so good that even Groucho will watch it.

NO ONE was too happy last year about the "Meet Mr. McNutley" show. Especially the star himself — Ray Milland.

That was the season for Ray to be a comic buffoon, an addle-pated professor. The name of the show was just as ridiculous as asking a star of Ray's talent to play what amounted to a jerk. So when the new season began there were changes called for—and they were made.

The biggest move was bringing Harry Tugend, noted motion picture writer and producer of many of Paramount's biggest hits, in as "head man." And the first thing he did was change the title to the more sensible "Ray Milland Show."

Ray's New Stature

"I had worked with Ray for several years at Paramount," Harry commented. "I knew what his capabilities were and what he would be best received in. I felt he should be given something with more stature instead of just broad comedy. So I thought of making Ray a professor of Dra-

Around TV Row

Casting the role of "Baby Snooks" is becoming quite a chore. June Leff, NBC's casting director, has auditioned 600 aspirants for the TV role but so far no "Baby Snooks." . . . "Life With Father" celebrates its first anniversary on CBS-TV November 22.

Mickey Rooney's wife, Elaine Davis, plays a heroine in a "Daniel Boone" episode. . . . Groucho Marx, the diplomat, turns down guest appearances because he can't accept one invitation and slight all the others. . . . Jack Latham does not top George Putnam in the 6:45 time slot as reported but he does out-rate George old boy in the 11:00 p.m. time spot.

KTTV's "Flashback" and "Where Were You?" are basically the same format. Wonder how Paul Coates feels about Johnny-come-lately Ken Murray doing a similar show on Channel 11? . . . Elena Verdugo ("Meet Millie") was really swamped by her New York admirers during a recent visit there. For the first time in her life, Elena had to screen her phone calls because the fans kept it ringing incessantly.

Dinah Shore extends her November 23 program to a half hour as a tribute to General Motors and their 50 millionth car, which comes off the assembly line on that day. . . . James Brown and Rin Tin Tin filmed a March of Dimes appeal last week.

Weldon Goes Network

On Saturday, November 20, "Uncle Jimmy" Weldon gets the big break that he's been waiting for.

On that date, he and his famous duck, "Webster Webfoot" will emcee a new Ralph Edwards package on the NBC-TV network called "Funny Boners."

The show will be quite similar to "Truth or Consequences," except that it will be composed of children ranging in age from six to teenagers. The kids, with "Webster's" aid, will have to do various stunts instead of adults. Sounds like fun.

Roller Derby

The first program to be telecast from the soon-to-be-reconstructed KTLA Sunset Boulevard Studios of KTLA, Channel 5, will be "Roller Derby" starting Monday, November 22 at 8:30 p.m.

The banked track will be installed in the sound stage formerly used as a roller rink at the west end of the 10 acre studio. Bleacher seats accommodating a total of 2000 people will be installed around the track. Regular "Roller Derby" admission prices will prevail. The sound stage will be known as KTLA's Sports Arena and will have a separate entrance on Bronson Avenue, just around the corner from Sunset Boulevard.

"Roller Derby" will be operated on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights with the KTLA telecast on Monday.

KTLA Gets British First-Runs

KTLA has acquired thirty-four feature films, all of them first run on L.A. television, and three of them 1954 releases which haven't been seen in theaters here yet. Channel 5 plans to show the 1954 pictures on the same day-and-date with their theatrical showings.

"Green Scarf," starring Michael Redgrave, Ann Todd and Leo Genn; "Those Who Dare," with Akim Tamiroff, and "An Inspector Calls," with Patricia Neal, Alistair Sim and Eileen Moore are the three pictures KTLA will co-ordinate with the theater release dates.

Second Glances (Critical Comment)

View With Alarm

. . . the material, or rather the lack of it, Steve Allen was forced to use when he substituted for Bob Hope last week. We didn't expect the rapid-fire stand up Hope humor from Allen, but Allen couldn't stand up with the shoddy material he had. It wasn't his forte or anyone else's for that matter.

Point With Pride

. . . to "Fred Allen's Sketchbook" on "Armstrong Circle Theater" (9). It was a joy to see Allen comfortable in an adult-type drama. The three sketches he narrated were delightful. We'd like to see Allen do more of the same.

. . . to Jack Carson and June Lockhart in their powerful performance in "Goodbye—But It Doesn't Go Away" on "U.S. Steel" (9). Carson's blustery, bullying character portrayal was sharply contrasted to Miss Lockhart's timid, touching performance. It was a perfect build up to the story's climax.

. . . to Dorothy McGuire's magnificent performance in "The Gioconda Smile." Miss McGuire's acting epitomized the fury of a scorned woman. Her forceful emoting kept viewers spellbound throughout the tense drama. Every muscle of Miss McGuire's face registered hate and the delivery of her lines was superb. "Climax" is to be commended for the excellent caliber shows they have been presenting in their series. It is fast becoming one of the top dramatic shows in the TV field. Their video adaptation of the Aldous Huxley story was exceptionally well done.

BY EVELYN BIGSBY

AT A PRESS LUNCHEON WHICH JACK BENNY gave to introduce "actor" Leo Durocher preceding The Lip's appearance on Jack's CBS-TV show, the Waukegan wizard proved again that he can be just as funny for thirty editors as for thirty million at-home fans.

HIS DESCRIPTION OF HOW HE DREAMED UP the "Caine Mutiny" show to "star" Durocher was so amusing it is a pity Jack didn't have time to include it as a prelude to the actual television show.

IT SEEMS JACK'S WRITERS CAME UP WITH their usual satirical treatment on the "Caine Mutiny" and had all the work done (ten days' worth) when Jack had his brainstorm of switching it to baseball and using Durocher. His idea was a flaunty gamble, but as Benny says, "You gotta take a gamble in this business." It turned out that the new script "wasn't a satire on 'Caine Mutiny' . . . it was 'Caine Mutiny' with laughs!"

WHEN JACK AROSE FROM THE LUNCHEON table to make his speech, he did a big take at the L&M cigarets Leo was smoking, and then proclaimed, "You're smoking the wrong kind and you still may not get on my show!" After calling Leo "the world's biggest ham," Benny went on to say how smart he thought he, Benny, was by not starring on the show but more or less sitting on the sidelines and leaving Durocher to struggle with all the long speeches . . . yards and yards of dialogue.

WHEN DUROCHER BEGAN HIS "REBUTTAL," he said Jack had forgotten to mention one important thing. In his inimical manner, Jack interrupted, "It's that you're getting BIG money!" Durocher admitted both he and his wife, Laraine Day, had scripts and were spending every available minute rehearsing Leo's lines.

BEFORE THE PRESS AFFAIR BROKE UP, someone asked Jack if he'd ever played baseball and he said "Yes, with the Waukegan Wildcats."

INCIDENTALLY, HE TOLD ME AFT-ERWARD, when I inquired whether Mary Livingstone would be on more of his TV shows, that she would. "She has no objection if I'll film them," he explained.

AM SORRY TO SEE SOL SAKS LEAVING "My Favorite Husband" as chief creator-writer. He's been with the television since it started. Sol has always come up with good shows because he's worked from a general idea of what's going on in lookers' minds, rather than superimposing a story line in hopes of hitting a responsive note.

YOU MAY REMEMBER ONE SHOW ON which George was supposed to be the perfect husband. Actually, he wasn't the perfect husband, but he was a gentleman. Just the same as Sol. Every night he offers to help his wife with the dishes and every night she says, "No thank you. I'll do them." Finally, one night she said, "What would you say if I said 'yes' some night?" Sol answered, "I'd tell you I'd wipe them tonight, but I'd never offer again!"

One night Sol's agent's wife said to the agent, "Why don't you be a perfect husband and offer to help me with the dishes the way Sol does with his wife?" His agent replied, "I would offer if you'd always say 'no' the way Mrs. Saks does!" From appealing happenings like these, Sol got the main idea for his "Favorite Husband" script which really did ring the bell.

GALE GORDON, WHO PLAYS GLORIA McMILLAN'S radio and TV father in CBS's "Our Miss Brooks" series, will give the bride away when Gloria marries Gil Allen, twenty-year-old USC student, on November 24 at Beverly Vista Community Church in Westwood. Eve Arden will be a special guest and Eve's daughter, Connie, will be a junior bridesmaid. Dick Crenna, who plays "Walter" on the show will be an usher and Michael Berns, son of producer Larry Berns, will light the altar candles. Harvey Grant, who plays "Harlan Day" on "Life With Father" will be ring bearer. It'll be an all-pink wedding for Gloria, who has played "Harriet Conklin" ever since the "Our Miss Brooks" show began.

JOANNE RIO'S RECENT NEWSPAPER SERIES "telling all" about her Liberace dates has disgusted many people and has made many speculate on whether the whole thing wasn't a publicity campaign for the Adonis of the keyboard. Lee's too nice a guy for this sort of stuff . . . A compliment to Jack Webb for his restraint in not making any future marital plans public until his divorce is final . . . That Danny Thomas show last week was based on fact—did you know he was told he could have a big movie career some years back? Provided he'd change his nose! Of course he refused. JACK LINKLETTER, YOUNG CBS RADIO STAR, plans to be hospitalized over the Thanksgiving vacation. He's on part one of a two-fold operation to have his nose fixed, but his surgery is imperative because his nose has been broken eight times playing football and now he can't even breathe through it. "Can kiss my best girl only as long as I can hold my breath!" he claims.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

"Panorama Pacific" celebrates its first birthday this week on Tuesday, November 16.

The KNXT show pioneered the 7:00-9:00 a.m. Monday-through-Friday time spot building an average weekly audience of 350,000 viewers in the Los Angeles area alone in the ensuing months.

Nine months after "Panorama's" premiere, when the first competitive programs finally ventured into the time period, ARB audience checks for the month of October showed Los Angeles area sets tuned to "Panorama Pacific" outnumbered all other sets turned on at that early hour, five sets to one.

"Panorama Pacific" is a show that started out in an untried time period when people simply weren't in the habit of watching television and at that hour simply didn't have the time to sit down and be entertained.

Or so some gloom peddlers predicted. But "Panorama" proved them wrong. Jim Patterson is producer. Chet Brouwer and Tom Fraser are "Panorama's" production coordinators. Bob Lehman directs. Jean Finnegan is script girl.

Red Rowe, disc jockey and former film actor is emcee. Grant Holcomb, considered by many to be one of the best newsmen on the West Coast, is News Editor; Helen Parrish is Women's Editor; George Wolfe achieves the rather difficult task of presenting the feature "spots" in both an informative and humorous fashion.

Happy birthday "Panorama Pacific." We hope it is just the first of many to come.

NEW DANCE RAGE

There's a new rage in dancing circles! The Hollywood Palladium "rocked" and "moved" as Jerry Gray and his orchestra invited viewers and dancers to do "The Kettle Drum Hop" on "Palladium Dance Time."

Jerry Gray's introduction of this number last Tuesday on KTLA started a new rage in dancing circles. "The Hop," as the fans call it, is the thing of the day. It's "hep," "cool," "crazy," "deep green" and "way out."

As always, many notables turned out for Gray's opening at the famed Hollywood dance hall. In addition to the thousands who still love and remember the old Glenn Miller renditions, Jerry, a former arranger for the Miller orchestra, has made many new fans himself.

HUNTIN' HAPPY

Tennessee Ernie Ford decided years ago that he would take 10-days each year out of his career to go deer hunting in Utah. To date he has refused to break this pattern of his life. Ernie has turned down the "Colgate Comedy Hour," a television film and a meeting with a potential sponsor for his CBS radio show. They came right in the middle of deer hunting season and he wasn't going to give this up for anyone or anything.

IT'S JIMMY

Jimmy Durante has a new identification seen at the beginning of all his TV shows on NBC-TV's "Texaco Star Theater" series.

The trademark is a portrait of Durante, seated at an upright piano, in one of his familiar poses. Although his back is to the camera, there is no doubt that it is Durante.

The picture was drawn by Jimmy's make-up man, Fred Williams, head of make-up for NBC on the West Coast.

WHAT A CAD

Tennessee Ernie Ford: "A city slicker friend of mine just discovered oil on his property. Says he's buying himself 50 head of Cadillac and going into the ranching business."

By AUBREY DAHL

I am in possession of an amazing fact. Millions of feet of television film have been shot (most of it is shot, anyway) in Hollywood during the past year, and I have been told that if the film were stretched out, end to end, from Los Angeles to as far as it would go (and a little of that film goes a long way) it would all be exposed.

"Things To Come." (13) Nov. 25, 11:00. This has been shown before, but not for some time and I think it deserves a mention. A critic once labeled it "a magnificent failure," but I don't agree with him. A picture isn't a failure because it doesn't say perfectly what it has to say. "Things To Come," in comparison to other pictures (and I grade on the curve), is an excellent movie. It is a dramatization of H. G. Wells' look into the future, at the holocaust of another thirty years war and the misery and desolation that are its result. Wells envisions then the rise of the world of science and the building of a great new civilization, with the attendant bickering of the rabble rousers that are always with us, and the attempted colonization of outer space. Wells had a great sense of "the shape of things to come," and we have not yet proceeded enough of the way along in time to prove him wrong. With Raymond Massey and Ralph Richardson, both of whom give admirable characterizations.

"Four Faces West." (9) Beginning Nov. 23, 9:00. This is a first run on television. It's a searing, blazing story about the white sands of New Mexico (ouch! where are my shoes?), and one of the most amazing desperados the west has ever known (that's what it says here in the ad). With Joel McCrea, Frances Dee and Charles Bickford.

"The Gangster." (5) Nov. 26. 10:00. Here is another movie that attempts to drive home the message that crime doesn't pay, and, all in all, manages to make its point. Barry Sullivan finds a substitute for love in power, but some bigger boys freeze him out and he discovers when he tries to resist that there is no one who will help him. Belita is his girl, Sheldon Leonard is one of the bigger boys and Akim Tamiroff is a coward.

"The Gambler And The Lady." (13) Nov. 26. 8:30. Dane Clark made this one in England and I'd like to know why we have to import our exports. He plays a gangster with aristocratic pretensions and there is a lot of shooting before he winds up in society. He deserved it.

"Call of The South Seas." (13) Nov. 20, 9:00. Paul: Isle love you forever. Mary: Nor till you put a reef over my head. Paul: But, darling, Polynesia. Mary: Yes, but Philippines for me.

HOLLAND'S TUNNEL

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

From recent shows, it looks like the hottest trio on TV these days is the one featuring Judy Holliday, Steve Allen, and Dick Shawn. They have at least managed to over-ride the "spectacular" stigma and have delivered some sock entertainment. Holliday acts as though she'd been tailored for TV. And Steve Allen, as always, is a bright light. The ease with which the man performs! You can almost believe it when he says he has trouble not relaxing. Shawn is one of the fastest-rising stars in the business. It was only about a year ago that I saw him at the Palace Theatre in New York and he showed plenty of promise then. He is a unique comic, just as George Gobel is different, so maybe he'll wind up with a show of his own. Regardless of that, Holliday, Allen, and Shawn are getting their messages across beautifully.

Got a letter from Jerry Courneya Productions asking for a picture of this tunnel to use in a new process of theirs. Seems that United Producers Distributors, agents for Synco-Vox, claim that any object, animate or inanimate, can be made to talk with perfect lip synchronization at approximately fifteen percent of the cost of equivalent hand-drawn animation. Would love to oblige this company with a nauseating photo of yours truly but just don't have any. The only one available shows me as a Boy Scout and I sure as heck don't look like that now.

Watching a Groucho Marx show is quite an event. The press was invited to attend a show, after which a get-together was held with Groucho, Bernie Smith, Dick Pettit, and others from the John Guedel office. It was especially interesting to see how much material is gathered for the half hour radio and TV programs. It takes about an hour and a half to do each of Groucho's shows, from which approximately twenty-three minutes is used. Some of the lines tossed out and some of the uninhibited actions by the contestants will unfortunately be cut. This is too bad—because they're loaded with laughs. The look "Klondike Kate" gave her fellow contestant on a question Groucho asked was a killer. This might get by, but it will be a surprise if it does. Groucho seems to have a ball doing the show and gags things up beautifully in the warm-up. The director, for instance, tried to explain a few points to the audience and Groucho kept interrupting him by singing some of the beer commercials. When you watch "You Bet Your Life" this way you can easily understand why it has remained popular for so long. Groucho is TV's most completely individual personality. Can you think of anyone like him? His effortless managing of the show is a joy to see.

Subscription TV talk has died down here a little, but there are interesting developments elsewhere. It will be introduced to Australia and New Zealand by Phonevision under terms of a contract signed between Zenith and the Rola Company of Melbourne, that country's leading manufacturer of loudspeakers, magnetic winding wire, and other radio and TV components. Rola will organize a new corporation which will be licensed under Zenith's Phonevision patents and will immediately seek governmental and industry support for Phonevision. Let's hope Australia gets approval for subscription TV faster than we have.

Got a letter from a viewer complaining about a certain sequence in the "Dear Phoebe" show. She thought it was too silly and that the boy, George Winslow, was much too rough. We can make no comment since we didn't catch that show, but any program is apt to go overboard at times. This same viewer also wanted to know when Hollywood Music Hall would be back on TV. So far nothing on this. We agree—it was an entertaining show.

Talked to Fernando Lamas, who has been doing several things on TV recently. He had one comment to make about live television. "After I did that I could do anything," he smiled. His performance in "Hold Back The Dawn" is still a pleasant memory. And his comments about live TV pretty well express the views of most motion picture stars—and, in fact, some TV stars. Frankly, you can't blame them for wanting to avoid live television as much as possible. It's still a drain on the most accomplished performers.

BUSY MAN

Robert C. Dennis who created and writes "Affairs of China Smith," starring Dan Duryea, has completed thirteen scripts in the second series of twenty-six films for this series. New episodes will be filmed in San Francisco's Chinatown in striving for authenticity and a natural background. First episodes in the "China Smith" series were shot at a Hollywood studio.

Radio in Review

For Love o' Mike (General Comment)

Radio Ramblings

Columnist Leo Guild debuts as a record spinner on KFWE with "Amateur Record Hour," Wednesdays at 9:00 p.m. . . . Dave Vaile, CBS director and newscaster celebrates his twentieth year in radio . . . KNX's Nelson McIninch broadcasts from India next week in honor of the "Holiday for Dates" festivities.

Ralph Rose, scripter and director of the Roy Rogers show wrote a special song for Roy's Thanksgiving show. The song, "God Made Them" pleased Roy so much that he is recording it on Bell label. . . . Joe Allabough, CBS assistant supervisor of network operations, celebrates his thirtieth year in the broadcasting industry. Allabough started as an announcer-singer at WBBM, Chicago.

On behalf of the Community Chest's drive for the Children's Hospital, all seven of KFWE's disc jockeys did a three-hour show on November 15 from the hospital. . . . Lowell Thomas has been chosen a member to the advisory board of the First International Winter Sports Show to be staged at the Madison Square Garden November 20-28.

Peter Lind Hayes substitutes for vacationing Arthur Godfrey during the week of November 15. . . . Mutual's Harry Wismer celebrates his twentieth year as a sportscaster. . . . But the celebration to top them all will be KFWE's upcoming thirtieth anniversary series of programs commemorating their birthdate, February 1925.

KFAC's news director, Dick Joy, addressed the Palm Springs Rotary Club last week. M.R.

It's No Secret

"This Woman's Secret," NBC-Radio's popular Monday through Friday true-life series, moves into a new time slot effective with the broadcast of Monday, November 29.

"Secret" will be heard at 3:30-3:45 p.m. The Myron J. Bennett Show which bows on NBC-Radio, November 29, will be heard in the former "Secret" spot, 3:45-4:00 p.m.

Off Mike (Personalities)

Roby Likes Response

Max Roby, one of KNX's top newscasters, had a rather unique experience of broadcasting the news with a live audience present. Very few radio newscasters, if any, disseminate the news with an audience present. But Roby does two brief newscasts on a live show, "Matinee" and before a live audience.

On his first "Matinee" newscast he was surprised by the immediate reaction he received to a news item. It was a burst of laughter and he was almost shocked into silence. The item was in a light vein and the laughter wasn't out of place. But it was just that never before, in all the years of newscasting, had he ever heard his audience respond.

Now he's wondering if newsmen should pause between each item, allowing the audience—at home or in the studio—to have time to react to the news.

Although "Matinee" is a program designed for fun and musical enjoyment, Roby says it is his duty to read the news, whether it is unpleasant or not. But whether it's a laugh or a sigh, Roby confesses that he likes the reaction to his news items from a live audience.

Gale Storm

When it's news you're looking for, Gale Storm is a natural for copy. The busy, vivacious Gale has officiated at some fifty ground-breaking ceremonies. But last week she topped them all. She dug the first shovelful of earth from the lot on which will be erected a huge office building, owned by her husband.

Gale, who has appeared on the lists of the top ten best-dressed consistently in the past three years, was voted "the best-dressed star in show business" by a teen-age club in San Diego. The star of "My Little Margie" was chosen because her clothes represent the kind the girls not only prefer to wear but are also not out of reach budget-wise.

Because of advance production schedules, Gale confuses her seasons, and little wonder. In one week she filmed a Washington's Birthday show, taped a New Year's radio show and posed in summer play clothes for fan magazine layouts.

Gale Storm spells n-e-w-s.

Notes to You

By ANDY MANSFIELD

(KF1, Monday thru Friday, 8:45 a.m.)
(Saturday, 9:30 p.m.)

TOPS IN EVERY CATEGORY are available on the counters of your favorite record shop this week, with long-playing records at their best. For the jazz collector, there's RCA-Victor's

"Fats" which can only mean the immortal Waller. On these previously unreleased selections, "Fats" Waller talks, sings, plays piano solos and heads his own orchestra as only he could do. More than thirty selections make up this

Waller memorial album showcasing the free-wheeling touch of this great jazz man as he played in the thirties. Waller's remarks lend broad humor as he drives his way with a combo and, just as subtly, meanders over the keys in a series of improvised piano solos. The selections included are either standards or Waller originals, but all bear the unmistakable touch of this keyboard stylist having a ball for himself while he made music that will never be forgotten in the annals of jazz.

Lovers of light classics will welcome the MGM long-play version of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite," coupled with Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suites" as played by the Philharmonic Orchestra of Hamburg and conducted by Hans-Jurgen Walther. Both have been light favorites for years and, with their interpretations so ably presented, should be well received in these complete versions on one record.

For dance music with a strong beat, we'd heartily like to recommend a pair of LP's on the Westminster label by Billy Butterfield's new orchestra. Excellently recorded, here's another new sound in hi-fi and ample proof why Butterfield is still a top-drawer trumpeter. No doubt you've heard all the standards before, but listen to this recording and hear how every instrument stands out with magical clarity. "That Butterfield Bounce" includes a trio of unique jam sessions, while "Ballads for Sweethearts" is in slower mood and features Billy's trumpet in outstanding solos against great band backing.

Let's we forget, there's a top Rosemary Clooney LP on Columbia called "While We're Young"—and no more appealing interpreter could be found for these songs of the grandest time of our life, nor could Rosie's singing be better. . . . A.M.

Ear, Eye Inspire the Pen

Jack Mylott, Eddy's Liquors, 5601 East South Street, Lakewood.

"A HAPPY TODAY"

We know your brothers both quite well
Fred and Steve, we think they're swell

Another—we're not certain tho
His name is Edgar Allan—Poe

You flit around so unconcerned
It's little wonder that George Burned
For keeping up with my pet
Would send a man out to get wet

You jabber as you walk the stage
Are you about Jack Benny's age
Of care or worry there's no sign
Oh sure—you must be thirty-nine

You are our deep-dish apple pie
We laugh at you until we cry
Your patter soothes like falling rain
The difference is—yours is insane

You are the baby for our dough
We're nuts about your tee vee show
A bunch of roses banked with ferns
"A Happy Today"—Mrs. Burns.

M. Evelyn Duncan, Lemon Grove.

Just call me Joan—wife of John Q. Public and mother of three little Publics. TV-Radio Life is as necessary as potatoes in this house. Your very good treatment of Flicker Fare (even though pickin's are poor) and program descriptions help chose our TV fare. Never miss Ear & Eye—both agree and disagree, heartily, with what I read there.

Actually, very few Publics write letters—this is my first to any magazine, star or program. We just watch and talk—among ourselves, to the neighbors, friends, and if we are really impressed, John takes it to work with him to discuss further. You never see the opinions in print, but John, Joan and the little ones remain the true judge of whether or not a program is a hit or a miss.

I define spectacular, in the TV sense, as a show really out of this world. One we will wait dinner on, rather than miss; one that might make us late in arriving at a party. Spectacular—the "Bank of America Show," "California," "Diamond Jubilee of Light," Ed Sullivan's DeMille Story, and a few others. Not spectacular—"Spectacular" itself. Color doesn't make a show. We have black and white TV, but when we go to the movies, we choose by story and star, not by Technicolor.

The same will be true of TV. I have watched all the Spectaculars so far but will not watch another. My husband has found Spectacular time a convenient time to water the lawn—that is what he thinks of it. The only spectacular thing they have had was Betty Hutton. She was the spectacular part—not the story. She held us all spellbound for the entire show, so imagine our shock when we heard she had flopped. Such statements got my dander up. I'm not a fan of Betty's, because I don't particularly like comedy, but she's great with the music, and she was wonderful on TV. I have taken Betty across the street for coffee, to fold Christmas Seals for the coming drive, and to Legion Auxiliary meetings—just about everywhere I've been. The only people whom I have found who didn't like Hutton were the ones who wrote critical columns. The writing public may see fit to criticize, but the talking public loved her. If she had a show of her own, such as Jo Stafford's, she would be one of TV's top stars. So cheers to you Betty—your watching and talking public hopes you will reconsider your decision to quit.

Other shows we never miss—so long as I'm writing — "This Is the Life," "Teen-Age Trials," Walter Winchell, Loretta Young, "My Favorite Husband," "This Is Your Life," "Big Story." The kids' bedtime will be changed on Wednesdays by "Disneyland." It's a toss-up between "Justice" and "Dragnet" and "Climax." "I Led Three Lives" should be on a major channel so that all could see this wonderful, patriotic program. Also—love that Lawrence Welk. We need better movies. Okay—off the soap box, and back to being Evelyn again.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith Simmons, Loma Linda.

Ever since "Anonymous" launched that attack on Lawrence Welk and his most excellent musical program I have wanted to put in a word concerning the stupid criticism made of him and his outstanding show, but have waited to see what others might have to say about this ineligible, self-appointed critic. I am happy to say I am not disappointed, but wish to add a little more to what they have said.

When one "blows his top" saying unkind and undeserved things which is as far from the truth as "Anonymous" criticisms were, he advertises to the world how completely unfamiliar he is with refinement and artistry as exemplified in the Lawrence Welk program and all the excellent artists appearing on it, which refinement and artistry have been recognized and expressed by the many leading professionals and publications which are outstanding in their field, and have proved it by voting and awarding Lawrence Welk the many, many citations of merit he so richly deserves.

Naturally, being so completely and conclusively unfamiliar with refined, artistic musical programs as "Anonymous" undoubtedly is, such lack of appreciation is apparent, and verifies the old adage that, "Those who criticize most harshly are those who know the least about what they are criticizing."

Truly, Lawrence Welk's show is outstanding, clean, entertaining. Every member of his show is an artist in his own field, and that is the reason why such great organizations as the Dodge-Plymouth dealers are eager to sponsor the "Champagne Music of Lawrence Welk." May that program and its sponsors enjoy continued prosperity and lucrativeness. More power to them.

M. Wilder, Los Angeles

This is the first letter I have ever written to a magazine, but I think that a recent letter deserves an answer.

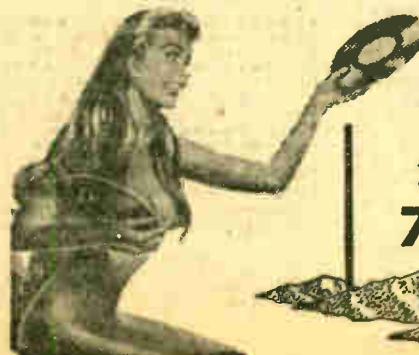

First of all, I agree that Lawrence Welk's music is very good and I wouldn't miss one of his shows. But why did the writer have to make the unkind remarks about teen-agers? Has he forgotten that he was a teen-ager once himself?

I'm not a teen-ager myself, but it hasn't been many years since I was. All teen-agers aren't be-boppers, as all individuals have their own musical tastes. I know quite a few people in their late twenties and thirties that enjoy jitterbug, be-bop, and the latest rhythm-in-blues type music.

"That's What I Like About the South"

Remember when Phil Harris extolled the merits of Dixie by praising those great Southern dishes, such as black-eyed peas, ham hocks, hominy grits, corn pone, etc. I'll admit they're all succulent, and I've never had my fill of Southern cooking. But, I'd like to go the maestro one better.

Want to know 'what I like about the South?' (South California, that is, suh). It's the SPORTS OF THE SOUTH that make me want to sing.

During the summer we have great baseball with the Angels and Stars... golf and tennis all year long... tremendous track and field stars... championship college basketball... and right now, the Southland has more GOOD football than any other three sections of the nation combined.

Even if you can't get to all games of the Los Angeles Rams, you should gather from the broadcasts and telecasts over KHJ and KHJ-TV that Hamp Pool's outfit is among the three outstanding professional football clubs active today.

The Rams boast of the National Football League's finest passer in Norman Van Brocklin. Many think he's as good or better than any pitcher the pros have ever seen... and there is substantiation in the records for this theory. Norm, unlike many passers, is just as successful on the short hooks as those long pay-off heaves of sixty to seventy yards. His accuracy is uncanny... and his timing is superb. Van has some of the finest targets pro football has ever seen in Hirsch, Fears, and Boyd. Watching them leap high to take a pass away from a defender or dive headlong toward the turf to make a shoestring catch is as thrilling a play as produced in any sport.

Now, collegiate-wise, where else in the United States grid front can you find two members of the top ten from the same area. I'll tell you... NO-WHERE. UCLA is the nation's best, running over all opponents with ease, alerting the nation that the western slope has the country's best this season. That doesn't only mean as a unit, but the Bruins, in my opinion, have the country's number one full-back in Bob Davenport. This lad was sensational as a sophomore, and when he reported this year 18 pounds heavier than in 1953 the Bruin coaching staff couldn't believe their good fortune. Davenport has been the backbone of this year's wonderful UCLA squad... which has captured the fancy of all fans we've seen on our Rams' trips away from Los Angeles. And, from what we've seen, read and heard, the 1954 Bruin-Bunch is every bit as good as their record indicates.

Across town, to complete our threesome of 'great grid groups' we have the western representative in the upcoming New Year's Day Rose Bowl game... the Trojans of Southern California. They haven't blossomed into the power unit advance billing indicated... but they've been good enough to win the important ones... and capture the Rose Bowl bid for 1955's classic. And, they've done this facing a schedule which took them back to the midwest once, to the northwest twice and northern California once.

Jess Hill has one of the nation's fastest and most explosive backfields, with Jon Arnett, the talented Sophomore, grabbing off most of the attention, due to his entry into varsity football this year and his speed-plus shiftiness. Observers feel that if any team has a chance in remaining games... against UCLA, Notre Dame, and more than likely Ohio State... the Trojans hold an inside track to victory... for they can be sparked into brilliance more rapidly than most major college elevens.

Yessir... we have great football here this season. We here at KHJ and KHJ-TV are just sorry we cannot bring you more of the thrills generated by the Rams, Bruins, and Trojans. They're all three 'football fantasies' in my book... and just another reason that SPORTS around here are "WHAT I LIKE ABOUT THE SOUTH." (South California, that is.)

MOST POPULAR RAM

▲ IN HER HAPPY-GO-LUCKY WAY, Spring manages to get into a few difficulties here and there. This time it's car trouble.

How To Be A Good

By SPRING BYINGTON as told to Jack Holland

I'M a mother-in-law myself—and have I worked at it! In fact, I've a double-header on my hands since I have two married daughters—and the things I've learned would delight almost any psychiatrist!

You know, there have been psychological books about almost every problem of human nature, but it does seem that only now are psychiatrists getting around to mothers-in-law. It's about time!

There is, as I have discovered, quite a difference between fathers-in-law and mothers-in-law. After the son or daughter leaves the fireside and starts living a new life, the father's career goes right on. The mother's, however, is over. She feels at a loss. She wants to be helpful and she doesn't know how. She suffers from a deprivation of affection. She is actually a displaced person. So it is not too surprising that in her attempts to adjust to her new life she makes more than a few blunders.

Young people starting out on their own are apt to regard a mother-in-law as of not too much use—except as a baby sitter. They're so excited with their new stature that it's natural for them to feel this way. "Mother" is fine with them if she'll drop by occasionally but not say too much. In fact, it's better if she doesn't say anything at all. And yet "mother" goes right on trying to be of help.

Faux Pas

I can remember one of the several faux pas I pulled. One day I gleefully took out three personable filet mignons from my freezer and proudly carried them to my daughter's house. I was sure she and her husband would greet the sight of the steaks with glee because it was towards the end of the month and I knew about their strict budget. Well, the gesture was all right—but I had forgotten one thing. My daughter and her husband were proud of the fact that they still had seventy-three cents left and a can of salmon to carry them through the rest of the month. The steaks had thrown their plans into a cocked hat. I had hurt their pride. I had interfered with the achievement of their independence. I learned then there was no point in my saying, "I only meant to help" or in my daughter's saying, "I know you wanted to help, mother, but—" so I decided then and there to button my lip. I have kept my lip buttoned on that and other matters for several years now—and I have found that silence is the best antidote to an awkward situation. Some time later, and with a sense of humor, it doesn't hurt to talk about the matter—but always with a laugh!

No Advice

I have found that it's much wiser for mothers-in-law never to interfere in any way and particularly it's good for them not to give advice. Oh, perhaps a subtle point can be tossed in the right direction by a device like making a general criticism of another couple. Make up the story you're telling if you have to. Use it as idle gossip. And then hope that the young people towards whom it is directed don't get on to your game.

It's not good to give advice even when it's asked for. Every mother has found herself in the position where her son or daughter comes to her with a marital problem. Here is the perfect pitfall for the mother to fall into, since it's her natural inclination to take her own child's side. But I think it's much safer to let the son or the daughter talk, to be a sounding board, just ask a lot of questions, and come to no conclusions. Most of the time if the offspring talks enough he'll come to his own conclusions. And then, at least, no one can blame the outcome on the mother-in-law.

My daughters are fortunate in a way. I'm much too busy working in "December Bride" and in pictures to have time to drop in on them and give them whatever pearly words of wisdom I may have stashed away. I don't heartily approve of a mother-in-law dropping in unannounced. I always telephone before I visit my daughters—and their husbands. Fortunately, I have no problems because I happen to have very understanding sons-in-law.

Sons-in-law in particular, need to be considered. A mother-in-law accepts quite normally her own husband's place in the household. She occasionally forgets that the son-in-law has just as much right to find his department in his home. He cannot be expected to do everything the same way her husband did. The

▲ THIS IS A MIGHTY STRANGE COSTUME FOR A MOTHER-IN-LAW, but Spring is called upon to do some unusual things in "December Bride." She gets the last-minute make-up touches before going into a scene.

▲ LOOKS LIKE SHE'S going fishing—but for what we wouldn't know. Spring will undoubtedly become one of the most popular personalities on TV.

Mother-in-Law

Are mother-in-laws really pests or are they just misunderstood? What in-law mistakes are you making? Spring Byington of CBS-TV's "December Bride," a mother-in-law herself, has her views on this most controversial of all species.

mother-in-law has to let him adjust to his place. In fact, she has to let him and his wife adjust to their places.

The crucial point in the relationship between a mother-in-law and her new family is about a year or two after the son or daughter gets married. In the beginning, the mother-in-law is still consulted about problems and then comes the time when she is no longer so much in the picture. If she can get by this period, she will find that in about six or seven years she will reach a far more adult understanding with her family. She may even find that as a mother-in-law she is really someone who is loved. That's if she is careful about her actions previous to that time. For the first five years the kids are anxious to prove themselves. They have an attitude of "Don't look yet, mother."

Grandmother Now

Then comes the time when the mother-in-law becomes the grandmother. She knows just what to feed the baby, when to feed him, how to take care of him—and she's driven by some urge to pass on her invaluable information to the parents whether it's wanted or not. But she forgets that, although she has spent a great deal of time learning about life, the baby's parents are better suited to regulate the life of their child because they're one generation closer to that infant than is the grandmother. The best advice then is to let the parents raise the child whether you agree with the system or not.

Sometimes a situation arises where it's almost impossible for a mother-in-law to keep quiet. She feels that, in all honesty, she must make her ideas known. This has happened to me on occasion. So I have written a note to my daughter, expressing how I feel, and always being careful to add, "Maybe I'm right and maybe I'm wrong, but this is what I think and I think you're heading for a fall." By adding that I give my daughter the right to refuse or take the opinion. After I've written it I leave it alone for a few days and then I go back and read it again and make deletions. Then it is mailed. I never have gone to see my daughter about some problem because too often a tone of voice can cause rancor, words pile upon words, and soon the fire is blazing.

Outside Help

If a couple is faced with a mother-in-law who persists in interfering, who won't be silent, who won't change, the problem needs outside help. It is wise then to consult a psychiatrist or a minister or doctor who is a good psychiatrist. Take it to the outside where it's away from all emotional involvement. You can't think clearly when emotions are too involved.

Usually, if a mother-in-law isn't changing it's because of some very real trouble inside her. If she refuses to try to change then the only recourse left open is for the couple to see to it that she remains around people of her age who share her views. And a mother-in-law can be too old to change if she's forty or eighty. Age, after all, is not dependent on years but whether life seems to be ahead or behind. The future is always unknown and always demands change.

I guess that's the major point a mother-in-law has to face. She has to look ahead to a new life. She has to change with the times. She has to start all over again in kindergarten if she hopes to build a firm new foundation with her family. She can do this if she wants to.

Well, I've had my say—and I'm glad. It's not often that a mother-in-law can talk as much as she wants to without feeling like kicking herself in the back.

GROUCHO MARX

Superstitions

was born June 13, 1913 at 13 minutes after midnight. He was married on August 13. He had his first audition for an announcing job on Friday the 13th in New York. And he sold "Truth or Consequences" on radio on March 13 and it played a limited network of 13 stations. So you can see why Ralph believes that number 13 is lucky for him—a successful life, a happy marriage and an outstanding career in show business all coincided with number 13.

Barrymore

John Barrymore, Jr. boasts a superstition which in reality is more of a tradition. It dates back to his famous acting ancestor, John Drew. Before Barrymore goes on stage, his wife kicks him three times, spits in his face three times, and then Barrymore takes one bite of an apple.

Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, NBC's explosive pair, will never perform unless they are wearing their medallions. They each wear a St. Christopher backed by a Star of David.

Jimmy Durante wears a felt hat which has been his trade mark for the past thirty-five years. He feels that it would be unlucky if he went out without it. There are some who argue Jimmy's secretive reference to Mrs. Calabash is a gesture of respect.

while others claim it's a superstition.

Joan Davis, one of NBC's gayest comedienne, insists upon using the same door for her entrances and exits. A door she had been using in a scene accidentally locked one day and Joan held up rehearsals until the key was found and the door unlocked. Joan has the same reaction to doors when off camera. She can't remember just how this superstition started but she has no intentions of raising any questions about it.

Crosby

Bob Crosby will never call anyone on the telephone whose number includes a zero. He believes that an "0" in a phone number is a sign of bad luck, and he's positive that any time he might dial the number something ghastly will happen, such as catching his finger in the dial so he'll have to go through life with a telephone on his hand.

Jack Benny will never play "Pomp and Circumstance." Although he's actually a fine musician with a large repertoire, a boyhood experience has made this one number taboo with him. He was giving a violin concert in Waukegan, Illinois, when he was a small boy. In the middle of his rendition of "Pomp and Circumstance" a runaway horse raced down the street, upended a delivery wa-

SOME PEOPLE in show business would rather drop dead than be caught whistling in a dressing room. Of course, there are many others who merely shrug their shoulders and trust that lady luck will smile upon them without harboring any pet superstitions.

TV-Radio Life brings this exclusive report on superstitions of the stars to its readers. The net result? Most stars don't have superstitions.

Ralph Edwards doesn't carry a rabbit's foot but he is a firm believer that thirteen is his lucky number. He gon, and ran madly through a fence that surrounded the small auditorium where young Jack was playing. His audience stampeded. Since that chaotic moment Benny has shied away from the number, believing it's a jinx that may bring runaway horses down upon any audience he may play it for.

Red Skelton never lights a cigar, because in his early vaudeville days a loaded cigar exploded in his face, nearly blinding him. He says he refuses to go through a prop door with a prop concrete block tied around his neck and refuses to talk on a telephone because he wants to see to whom he's talking.

Jim Jordan has an unusual superstition that started twenty years ago in Chicago during the early days of radio. Jim would write his name, and doodle a bit, on the first page of his script. He did so because in those days, despite the many revisions, actors received but one script per show and Jim would hurriedly affix his name on his script to protect his sole copy. With two decades of broadcasting to his credit, Jim would no sooner start rehearsing a show until his signature, with flour-ishes, was penciled on his script. There have been occasions when Jim was unavoidably late for rehearsals. Instead of plunging right into rehearsals to compensate for his tardiness, Jim always takes time meticulously to sign his name on his script and then gives the go-ahead for rehearsing.

Negative Approach

Groucho Marx says: "I have no superstitions. By now I thought everyone knew I was a die-hard realist." Ray Milland simply comments: "I have no superstitions." Art Linkletter likes to flaunt superstitions. He embarked on a world-wide trip on Friday the 13th merely because it was Friday the 13th. Veterans like Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll are free from superstitions.

But the performer who is uniquely different is the lovable canine Lassie. Lassie is remarkably free from superstition, for a performer who has spent as much time in show business as "she" has. None of the old superstitions about whistling in a dressing room, or throwing a hat on a bed, or opening an umbrella in the house worries Lassie. As a matter of fact, there's only one thing that could be classed as a Lassie superstition. She isn't afraid of black cats crossing her path—unless they have bushy tails and white stripes down their backs.
