KHJ'S SYMPHONIES FOR YOUTH is a definite advance towards bringing classical music to children. Alfred Wallenstein, conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, is responsible for this musical development.

ALFRED WALLENSTEIN, sitting, explains the intricacies of a musical score to Susan Smith as Tony Lefrano, director of Don Lee Network operations looks on.

HERMAN WEINSTEINE, violinist, discusses his work in the Los Angeles Symphony with his young son, James.

ENTHUSIASTIC YOUNGSTERS surround Mr. Wallenstein after a Saturday morning concert for Symphonies for Youth. The conductor has proved that children are as interested in classical music as they are in the more pop kind of tunes.

He Knew What He Wanted

Edgar Buchanan almost missed being an actor because he obeyed his practical father.

By Mildred Ross

EDGAR BUCHANAN is a persistent man. If he wasn't we would know him today as Dr. Buchanan, DDS, instead of Edgar "Bucky" Buchanan, veteran character actor.

"To please my father, who was a dentist," he explained, "I enrolled in a dental college and at the same time joined the town's little theater group. For two years it was touch and go at school where my records were completely unimpressive. But my so-called theatrical talents were recognized with a scholarship offer to Yale University's dramatic school.

"It was the thing I wanted to do most but I turned it down. My father convinced me that there would be other stage struck youths who might have far more talent than I and that it was far wiser for a man to have something to fall back upon to make a living.

"I buckled down to get my degree and in the last year at college I met and married Mildred Spence, the only girl dental student at the school.

"For eight long years, we worked hard at building a practice. But during this period I found my attraction for the theater as strong as ever. When my wife suggested selling our practice and leaving Eugene, Ore., for Pasadena, Calif., home of the famed Pasadena Playhouse, I knew that she had been reading my mind and had the courage to give voice to my secret desires.

"We started a practice in Altadena but I'm afraid I spent more time at the Playhouse than I did at the of-fic. At last I was doing what I had been longing for all these years.

EDGAR BUCHANAN dispensing justice as Judge Roy Bean with the aid of his deputy Jack Beutel. Whenever possible the series minimizes violence in favor of humorous incidents.

"Yet, as I look back on my career, I sincerely know that if I had to do it all over again I'd select the same detour. By not having things my own way at first it made me work that much harder to become an actor. And although I didn't think so at the time, the years I spent as a dentist gave me a wonderful opportunity to study my patients. Subconsciously I was making mental notes for future character acting."

Today, Edgar Buchanan is known the world over as one of Hollywood's top character actors. The producers of Judge Roy Bean were fortunate when they landed him for the title role. Like most Western teleseries it glorifies the hero who is a self-appointed judge. Actually, Judge Roy Bean was an old reprobate, but emphasis on this frailty would hardly make a suitable family series.

Edgar is a happy man now. Besides, he never did like grinding some poor guy's teeth.

JACKIE LOUGHERY, former beauty contest winner, plays the role of Judge Roy Bean's niece in the KCOP teleseries.

Jackie Was Through Until ---

ROMANCE PLAYS A BIG PART in the amusing NBC-KRCA series. Pat Breslin is Jackie's romantic vis-a-vis. Cleo is, of course, around to lend sage comments about the proceedings.

JACK COOPER was brimming with confidence and enthusiasm. He looked just like a guy who had found the proverbial pot at the end of the rainbow.

He had just finished doing a scene in NBC-KRCA's popular The People's Choice and was back in his trailer having lunch. The last time I had seen him he was not as confident or as happy as he now appeared. Traces of defeat were etched in everything he said and did.

Defeat

"I had come out of the service and couldn't get any work," Jack said quietly. "The more I waited around for a part the more I began to wonder if I could really act any more; if I were any good. I gradually lost belief in myself. I wasn't sure where I was going, what I could do. And at this point I faced up to the first big decision.

"I had talked to Keenan Wynn and Julie (John) Garfield, both of whom advised me to go back east and do some stage work. I had never been on the stage. I didn't know if I'd ever get a chance, but I decided to make the move anyway. I managed to get in some summer stock and at the same time I looked around for a Broadway show. The hopes for that seemed slim since competition was then—and is now—very tough.

"My first chance to do a Broadway show came in a play called 'Sleep It Off.' It flopped fast after two weeks in Chicago, but at least I learned from it that I could do stage work—and do it fairly well. This alone made me feel better and gave me a smattering of confidence. I had made up my mind that I was going to prove I wasn't just a movie personality—that I was also an actor.

"Up to this time I had not been able to escape the stigma of having been a child star. I had read for people like Elia Kazan but no one gave me much consideration. The first real challenge came when I was offered a good part in a weak play. The role was that of a prizefighter who was frustrated and who had been so badly injured in the war he had to wear a plate in his head. I was like that guy. I was frustrated and my plate in the head was not being able to prove what I could do.

"I knew this play, 'Magnolia Alley,' wouldn't be a hit but I had to do the part anyway. Then, just before opening, the producers needed $15,000—without it, the play wouldn't go on. I dug into my savings and gave the money myself. This was, in itself, a big decision. I knew I was throwing the money away. It was also a gamble—that the part would pay off for me. The play, as I expected, lasted only a week, but the part did help me."

Josh Logan saw Jack in the show opening night and came back stage to offer him the role of Ensign Pulver in the road company of "Mr. Roberts." Here again he ran into a challenge—a challenge in the person of Mr. Logan.

'Mr. Roberts'

"I was all for quitting the show after a few weeks," Jack said. "Josh wanted a lot of wide expression and tremendous projection from me. I confused this direction with being broad. I was mixed up, not because of Josh's direction, but because I just didn't know my business as much as I thought I did. When I told him I wanted to quit, he, fortunately, talked to me and explained that I could do this kind of a part.

"In time I learned my lesson—and by the time the show got to London it was a source of great satisfaction to me to see how well I was received by both the press and the public. Things I learned during the two years I was in 'Mr. Roberts' have even helped me in doing my TV show."

But Jack still had not learned how to have faith in himself. He thought he believed in himself more but a later incident proved he had a long way to go before he grew up.

While he was in London, Leland Hayward, who produced "Mr. Roberts," told Jack that he had found a play that would make him a big star. He told Jack the story, it sounded great, so Jack said that he was very interested. When "Mr. Roberts" closed

In everyone's life there are important decisions to be made. Jackie Cooper of The People's Choice is no exception. But the chances he took!

By Jack Holland

CLEO, THE SAD-FACED HOUND, horns in on a conference between director Peter Tewksbury and Jackie Cooper during a lull in shooting on The People's Choice.

he spent a couple of months abroad and then went back to New York — and the play.

"I had been so impressed by the way Leland Hayward had treated me," Jack remarked. "I couldn't even get into his office in 1948. I looked forward very anxiously to reading the script, but when I got it I realized one thing—Mr. Hayward had told a much better play than I read on paper.

"I frankly thought it was a stinker. I remember staying awake all one night trying to decide what to do. I reasoned that since 'Remains to Be Seen,' which was the show, was written by Lindsay and Crouse, two of the country's most famous playwrights; that since Bretaigne Windust, one of the top directors, was to direct it; that since Leland Hayward liked it, I must be crazy. I still had no faith in my instincts, in myself. I did tell Mr. Hayward that I didn't think the show was as good as he had described it to me, but he just said I was wrong. I believed him. And I did the show.

"It was roasted by the critics. The fact that my opinion had been borne out by the critics gave me confidence, but it was a blow to me to find that I hadn't had enough belief in my instincts to follow them. The part in the show, however, was good for me in that it brought me many offers for TV shows—and at a higher salary.

"One of the biggest decisions then confronted me—doing live TV. It was quite an adjustment for me to make, going from movies, which I knew, to live TV with all its hazards and headaches. When 'Remains to Be Seen' closed I had no other job. I wanted to work, so I began doing TV. In 1953, I played 31 live TV dramas. I was soon on so much that I decided I'd better pull back and do only about two a month.

"All this time my agent kept saying I should do a series, but I only said I didn't want to do the same part each week. That I didn't want to be typed. I wasn't interested because I was also, at this time, starting to do some directing. I had directed several American Inventory shows for NBC, I was in the middle of a deal to act and direct for Justice, and life was indeed full.

"And then Irving Brecher came on the scene. He was as good a salesman as Leland Hayward had been. He told me about this TV series, offered me a partnership deal, script approval and all other kinds of inducements. I thought the whole thing over, got more intrigued with the advantages, and then made the big decision to do the series. I haven't been sorry I took the leap."

The People's Choice started out slowly with mixed reaction and then suddenly began building. Not only was Jack a hit but so were Pat Breslin, his romantic vis-a-vis, and Cleo, the sad-eyed hound. It was Jack who helped get Pat the part. He had known her in New York. Recently, Jack and Pat went on a tour and were surprised to find how wide their audience was. Youngsters loved the show because of Cleo. Teen-agers liked it for the romantic appeal. Oldersters found it entertaining and yet a show that every once in a while had a message.

"We're planning to branch out in all kinds of directions," Jack went on. "A year from now no one will know what to expect. I've been able to do almost everything on the show—except a neurotic or an alcoholic, and those I've done on TV.

"I only plan to do the show, though, for a total of three years, and then I'll stop. I think three years is enough for me. Too many stars hang on and on and when a show inevitably starts to go down hill, they have to go with it. This is unfortunate and not fair to the performers. Why don't they bring someone new into the show if they insist on keeping it going?"

"I have my plans pretty well made. I'll someday form my own company. I want to make some pictures and to direct. I'll do some more live TV—and just keep busy. I know now I can do whatever I set my mind to. I've learned how to believe in myself. The walls have fallen down, and I'm ready for anything."

Jack has indeed won out over himself—his own worst enemy.

How they get those

From autos and mink coats to hot dogs, false teeth and girdles, CBS-KNX's Robert "Mickey" Finn has given away over a half million dollars worth of prizes in the past ten years.

a chicken or a turkey rather than an orchid. Young married couples, who are still in the romantic mood, much prefer the orchid." Finn smiled.

The biggest single effort which Finn put forth, and which he worked on with the entire KNX-CBS staff, was the station's "Bonanza" broadcast celebrating its 35th anniversary. A grand total of $65,000 worth of prizes was arranged for on that occasion.

"That's quite a figure for a local station," Finn boasted. "It's fairly easy to obtain prizes for network programs because the donors like to have things given away on them. It's a lot tougher for a local operation such as ours.

Double Problem

"We know that it's worthwhile for a company to use their products as prizes — because they usually receive more than their money's worth in on-the-air advertising. Each time, however, it's a challenge to convince them of it, and when I do make a deal, it's always a great satisfaction to me."

Strange as it may seem, sometimes Finn has his biggest problem — not in getting the prize — but in convincing the winner to accept it.

"Any prize over $600 has to be declared as income, and many people just can't afford to pay the tax on it," Finn explained.

Then there was the unusual case of the lady who won a $10,000 mink coat—but who didn't want to accept it.

"Besides the tax she had to pay, the woman thought it was too 'showy' for her to own. But she won the coat and we had no alternative but to convince her to take it!"

GHIS IS A STORY about a man who has done a half-million dollars worth of business during the past ten years—and hasn't made a cent out of it.

In fact, many times the only compensation he has received has been complaints from people. To add insult to injury, the complaints have come from those who have received valuable prizes for nothing.

The man's name is Robert "Mickey" Finn.

"I always use the name 'Robert' on the phone," Mr. Finn explained to us. "I have to. If I use 'Mickey,' some character on the other end of the line will invariably say, 'Sure, and I'm Tom Collins!' and then hang up. Before I've ever started, I've lost a customer."

In case you're wondering what this is all about, let me explain: Mr. Finn, in addition to his job as director and associate producer for KNX-CBS Radio, is also in charge of getting prizes for such give-away programs as Matinee. Jack Linkletter's "Under 21" and various other local CBS Radio shows.

No Deals

Of course, Mickey has always received his regular salary while working at the station. However, despite the enormous sum of merchandise he has acquired for the station, he has never made any extra or "under the table" money.

"Some men who get prizes for radio and TV shows make something on the side, but I don't think any of the reputable ones would. It's just too risky to pull any kind of a shady deal. You just have to must to lose."

Prizes for radio and TV programs are actually acquired as part of a "trade deal." That is, the station will "trade" in time and plugs what the retail price of the particular item amounts to. For example, if Mr. Finn agrees with a company to give away a $600 piano, he then makes arrangements to have $600 worth of air time used to advertise that particular brand of piano.

Cars, Coats, Girdles

Ever since he started at CBS ten years ago, the smooth-talking Irishman has given away a wide assortment of prizes: from automobiles and mink coats to hot dogs, false teeth and girdles.

"The ladies who receive the smaller prizes are usually interested in something to eat. They much prefer

Legal Hassles

Lawyers had a field day in the TV world last week.

First there was the Fleetwood Lawton-Paul Coates controversy. "Confidential File" Coates claimed, through his attorneys, that "The Inquisitor" Lawton had infringed on his program. Paul's attorney informed Fleetwood so in a letter.

As Mr. Lawton told TV-Radio Life, his attorneys sent a legally worded reply to Mr. Lawton, was that he does not believe Mr. Coates has a monopoly on expose-interview-type programs. Mr. Coates' attorneys believe Mr. Lawton is just trying to cash in on some free publicity. The outcome has yet to be resolved.

Meanwhile, over at NBC, Stan Freberg launched a new character starring a ventriloquist prodigy named "Grover." Bob Clampett, producer of Time for Beany and Thunderbolt the Wondercolt, whom Freberg previously worked for, said, once again through his lawyers, that Stan was in essence stealing his stuff. Clampett went one step further than the Lawton-Coates situation (so far) and actually filed suit against Freberg. STEVE ALLEN SHOW, PREMIERE OF "ALEXANDER THE GREAT," (4), 12:30 a.m. This post-midnight time has been tentatively set for the two-city premiere of Robert Rossen's movie "Alexander the Great" starring Richard Burton. Hy Averback emcees the Hollywood end of the telecast at the Fox Wilshire Theater for benefit of the Olympic Fund. Manhattan opening at Capital Theater benefits the Cinema Lodge and Metropolitan Council of the B'nai B'rith. This marks the first time a network show has covered a two-city premiere.

of this fight, unless an agreement is reached, will take place in the confines of a courthouse.

Finally, Producers' Showcase cancelled a scheduled TV production of "Mayerling," starring Mel Ferrer and Audrey Hepburn, after producer Richard Oswald stated it was an infringement of his copyright privileges.

All of which still proves there's not only "many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," but also between the camera and the courthouse.

Circus Days

Klaus Landsberg launched an ambitious program last week with his hour-long live telecast of a complete and authentic circus. The bossman had a permanent big tent pitched on KTLA's grounds for the weekly show. There are 800 bleacher seats available for in-person viewers. Free tickets may be obtained by writing to the station. Dick Lane, ringmaster, the Landon Midgets and bandmaster Herb Wilkings are regulars on the circus telecast.

HOLLAND'S TUNNEL

BY JACK HOLLAND

Week-End Viewing: Bing Crosby's "High Tor" had a decidedly mixed reaction. This department thought it had moments of real charm but that the final result was less than what was expected. The songs were pleasant enough, but somehow the show didn't seem to catch fire. The play itself, as done on the stage, was a stand-out. But in its translation to TV it never quite got off the ground.

... From what I saw of "Richard III," I thought it a real highlight. Unfortunately, I was not able to see the entire production but this didn't bother me too much because I saw just enough to make me want to catch it in a theater where it can be seen with more scope and with all the color. This was a spectacle done on the grand scale and, for my money, TV cramped its style. However, this is the kind of thing that should be done on TV more often. Certainly, the number of people who allegedly watched it must prove one thing—that TV audiences will flock to see anything really outstanding. This was art, and the last I heard from some so-called authorities was that the public didn't want art in any form.

Label Talk

By TERREA LEA

At least once a week I am awakened quite early in the morning by the falling of bottles and tin cans into the truck that makes the weekly pick-up of such items. And whenever I hear that familiar sound it makes me a little sad because I know that all over the city people are throwing away labels. So? They're throwing away labels. What's so bad about that? Well, I'll tell you.

Many of those labels are worth money. That's right. Labels, box tops, wrappers and bottle tops from some 400 products of 41 top quality grocery brands are worth points toward valuable premiums at Label Bank. And when you throw away certain cans with the Labels still on them you are throwing away money.

If you would like to know how you can shop and save with Label Bank like so many are doing — just send your name and address to Label Bank, Dept. TVRL, 727 No. La Brea Ave., Hollywood 38. You will receive—free—a premium catalogue showing pictures of over 300 premiums you may choose from, a list of all the products and complete information. You will also learn how your club or organization may compete for the monthly cash awards as well as save labels for premiums.

Don't forget to tune into KABC, 790 on your radio dial, Monday thru Friday nights at 10:30. I sing folk songs and ballads as well as play records of other folk artists. And of course, I talk about Label Bank three nights and about that wonderful George Super Cleaner on Thursdays. So tune in won't you? And on Wednesday afternoons from 1:00-2:00 you'll find me on Red Rowe's Get Together. That's on KNXT, Channel 2.

I guess that's about all the news for this time. I hope to be announcing some new products very soon. Don't forget about that Reddi-Whip contest for clubs. Save those little lock tabs because they may mean $100, $75 or $50 to your club. That also means two points to you at Label Bank toward premiums.

And don't forget to send for that free catalogue so you can start to shop and save with Label Bank. Bye for now.

3, 4, 10 Max Liebman Presents "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl"

Art Linkletter hosts the show starring Bert Lahr, Janet Blair, Helen Gallagher, Tony Randall, Nancy Walker, Tammy Grimes and Connie Russell. Randall, who introduces many of the sketches in the Spectacular, sums it up in his opening speech:

"Our show tonight concerns the working girl. It is not a cavalcade, a documentary, an anthology, a symposium, a kaleidoscope, a compilation, an encyclopedia, a catalogue, an epic, a chronology, a resume or a saga of the private or public life of the young ladies who toil for a weekly stipend. That is what it is not. In 90 minutes—including commercials—it would be foolhardy to attempt a comprehensive survey.

"What is the show? It is a series of highlights . . . the amusing highlights, we hope, that will recall some of the sorrows and the joys, the struggles and the triumphs, the problems and the pleasures of the salaried young ladies of the present and the past. We will bring you some of the songs, the motion pictures, the literature, the styles and the general background of the various periods we touch upon. The stars will depict for you the working girl in all her glitterless, glamourless glory."

Murray, who just wound up a sock engagement at the New Frontier in Vegas with Blackouts. His show-business know-how was also proved with his successful I Hear America Singing spectacular, and now it won't be long before you'll be seeing him actively engaged in a network's most ambitious program.

Another promising show is currently being developed and will probably hit one of the networks in the near future—if those in the know are smart enough to see a good bet. It's a project prepared by Bill Bendix's daughter, Lorraine, and his wife, Tess. Current signs indicate an early tryout and you can take it from me that it will be something different and of very real interest to TV viewers. More about this later.

You'll find fewer and fewer TV series made into movies now. So far the properties have laid good-sized eggs at the box office. No one wants to pay to see a show that he can see for free. And TV personalities are no longer the big draw they once were on the CinemaScope screen.

A lot of TV stars showed up for the "at home" party given by Robert and Rosemarie Stack. And what a royal affair this was! Our heartiest congratulations to the bride and groom.

Overheard a couple of musicians talking. One pointed to the circular Capitol Records building and said, "If that thing starts revolving, I'm going to take up drinking."

"WE REFUSE TO CUT OR EDIT any of it!" Medic producer Frank LaTour-ette told me last week after a Medic telefilm detailing Caesarian section had been pulled by NBC, New York, from its Monday evening's scheduled showing. Frank's grim words represented the Medic outfit's stand on this ticklish controversy.

"WE ARE GETTING LETTERS and wires," Frank continued. "All are in favor of showing the film."

I HAVE HEARD TWO SIDES to the question and from them gather that this particular subject had been worked out to the complete satisfaction of the Medical Association. About 50 per cent of the Caesarian operation, shot in an actual delivery room, was eliminated from the finished telefilm. NBC Hollywood asked for some further cuts, then granted the film approval. As far as I can gather, the run would have gone on unquestioned had not a syndicated column from here, describing the Caesarian operation, appeared in the New York Times. It was seen by Catholic Father Timothy Flynn, who wrote NBC to register a complaint. There seems to be some difficulty in obtaining direct quotes from the letter (even the Medic office has not been able to get them) but sum and substance was that such a film was unsuitable for TV because it was invading the province of sex education. Though signed by Father Flynn, the letter came from the office of Cardinal Spellman. Also, so far as can be learned, none of the protestants had viewed the Medic production.

AT A SPECIAL PRESS SHOWING, the portion devoted to the Caesarian section proved rapid and absorbing. Press consensus was that the film was suitable for viewing by all adults (it did not violate good taste) and children in homes where parents approved. One parent pointed out that sex education of his boy and girl had been very forthright and had developed naturally as the need had arisen. Others agreed. Another pointed out that though he agreed, there might be parents who would not want their children to see such a film, but whose children might just as well be "exposed" to it if other boys and girls were permitted to see and discuss it later. The entire problem seemed to center around the procedures and desires of individual families.

I IMAGINE THAT TV-RADIO LIFE readers will be both pro and con. The real point of the situation, to my way of thinking, is the matter of pressure on the network. Apparently one's religion doesn't have too much bearing on opinions. Several Catholics with whom I talked expressed the feeling that the film should not have been cancelled. "Let those who wish to see it do so," they said. "If you don't want to see something you can always turn the dial to something else." Others resented the fact that a protest had been lodged without the film having been viewed. Some said NBC should not have backed down. "I think," LaTour-ette told me, "that the pressure will be so great that NBC will have to give in."

THE "HIGH TOR"—"RICHARD III" weekend will go down as one of the season's greatest. Bing's vehicle was perfectly tailored to the Crosby measurements, Nancy Olson was charming, and Julie Andrews made a tremendous impression which left audiences wanting more. Bing, who looked great, proved again that he can play a romantic lead with the youngest and purtiest of 'em. Ever so many people I know said they wanted to go to the theater to see the "Richard III" movie in color, so the TV exposure may not hurt the box office as much as critics thought. And wasn't the "Richard III" music superb?

A DISTRESSING THING HAPPENED to a friend of mine who had just sat down and become engrossed in "Richard III" when company arrived. Without resorting to plain orders, the friend tried all her subtle powers to get her guests interested in the tele-show, but efforts were unavailing and she finally had to miss the presentation.

THIS INSTANCE RAISES A MATTER which has long been in mind. I've formulated my own personal code for TV and guests, but I am wondering what TV-Radio Life readers have done about this problem. Will you please write to tell me? Do you turn off your set? Leave it going and try to visit over it? Turn it on for special programs only? Or put a sign on the front door: DO NOT RING. TV IS ON. GO AWAY!

LINE OF DUTY

Lou Krugman, a busy dramatic actor, has worked with lions, tigers, snakes, elephants, eagles and monkeys for TV films and has been bitten, scratched, clawed and mauled, all in the name of entertainment.

Pick of the Pix

By Aubrey Dahl

I understand they had a sneak preview of Olivier's "Richard III" on NBC-TV a couple of Sundays ago. I realize that I should report to you on this little movie, but no one told me about it. At the time it was on, I was watching Buster Crabbe in "Ghost of Hidden Valley," on Channel 7. It was a western, see, and there's this ghost, see, and Buster rides in and . . . what? . . . oh, all right.

"The Steel Trap." (5) Mar. 25, 7:30.

1952. Assistant bank manager Joseph Cotten is overcome by the lure of the money he is required to handle impersonally every day and determines to get out of the rut by stealing a million or so. He makes his plans carefully and secretly . . . obtains passports for his wife, Teresa Wright, and children, selects Brazil as the hideout country because it has no extradition laws, and takes the money on a Friday so he will have the whole weekend to make his getaway. However, he misses the plane in New Orleans, his wife finds out what he has done and leaves him and he is forced to realize the enormity of his crime . . . sacrificing security and the love of his family for a paltry fortune. He hastens back to Los Angeles to return the money before the bank opens Monday morning. Does he make it? There is quite a lot of suspense involved in the whole operation, some of it contrived but effective, and there is added interest in the fact that the situation could happen to just about anyone who has access to a million dollars.

"Yellow Canary." (9) Beginning Mar. 27, 9:00. 1946. This entertaining British spy picture is based loosely on fact. Remember the titled British lady who had an inordinate and possibly treasonable regard for Hitler? Well, in this, Anna Neagle plays a member of the gentry who is booted out of England for displaying too much affection for the Nazi cause. She is in reality, however, and of course, an operative of the British Secret Service. In cooperation with Richard Greene, a Naval Intelligence Officer, she worms her way into the Nazis' confidence and is able at the end to warn her government of German plans to blow up the port of Halifax. This, too, is supposedly based on fact, but I happen to know (having been a member of KP Unit 86) that the German plan really was to sail a kite over the harbor (propaganda, you see) and Hitler is known to have screamed at the prevailing winds, "Blow it to Halifax!"

"Green for Danger." (13) Mar. 27,

8:30. 1947. A postman is injured in the blitz of 1944 and dies on the operating table under mysterious circumstances. A nurse discovers who murdered him (somehow, it was not the doctor) and she, too, is slain. By this time inspector Alastair Sim suspects doctors Trevor Howard and Leo Genn and nurse Sally Gray, as well as all the patients. I know who the murderer is and I should tell you to save you from the interminable conversation that finally leads to the solution, but I won't.

"There Was a Young Lady." (2) Mar. 25, 11:15. Named Alice? I've heard it.

"Framed for Murder." (13) Mar. 25, 9:00 a.m. As you can see from the title, this picture has a frame.

Ear, Eye Inspire

Mrs. R. A. Simmonds, Rivera

Regarding the Louella Parsons Story on Climax!:

What an absolute disappointment and farce it was! What a "sneaky" way to plug pictures. I couldn't believe my eyes, honestly!

Stupid as I was I sat through the entire thing in hopes maybe there would be even a tiny minute of entertainment with that heavenly cast. But no! I felt so foolish having sat there!

I was shocked at Climax! as I sincerely feel they have the number one drama program of all.

This is my first and only written gripe, but I did feel I had been cheated.

A. Chupple, Los Angeles

I have a complaint to make about Norma Gilchrist, for I think she has the most corny clothes I have ever seen. Besides that they are priced higher than any person watching her program can afford. And another thing, her commercials are too long.

Mrs. Emily Beisley, Nevada, Missouri

In a recent column, my sentiments were voiced perfectly concerning the lovely Betty White. I'm glad to know others are as irritated as I am about being deprived of the most wonderful show, and the sweetest personality ever to grace television. I want to hear her sing, too. She sings beautifully, and sincerely as no one else can. I could go on for hours singing this wonderful girl's praises. Everyone loves Betty and her show — what's wrong with the people responsible for this great injustice to Betty and to us?

LAURA SCUDDER POTATO CHIPS PRESENT

— a heart-warming dramatic story about real people and a woman's devotion.

Monday thru Friday
11:15 a.m.

KNX

sary. . . . Four colleges have requested the Shakespeare-Dr. Baxter script recently aired on CBS Workshop. . . . Overheard: Edgar Bergen. " . . . you are without a doubt the most unscrupulous, conniving, unprincipled, dishonest rogue I've ever met." Jack Kirkwood: "Please—no hero worship." M.R.

Radio Theater, Australia Style

Lux Radio Theater, one of radio's all-time great dramatic shows, was dropped from the domestic airwaves in favor of the video version. However, Radio Theater is still flourishing in Australia.

According to Stanley Quinn, who had spent several years in Australia producing the show for J. Walter Thompson and who is currently executive producer on Video Theater for the agency, the dramatic series is one of the most popular programs in the kangaroo country.

"During the war," he informed us, "Australians got a mixed diet of British plays, motion picture properties, and other stories. Because of wartime economy the rights to most American properties were prohibitive. Since the war there has been a greater diversification of material being dramatized. Now, here's a switch—they've adapted American teledramas, including three of Rod Serling's plays for their radio series."

To sustain interest in the series, the agency conducted a contest for the outstanding performer appearing on the Australian Lux Radio Theater. Winner Margo Lee is slated to make her American debut in "The Steel Trap" on Video Theater, March 22. The finalist will also be awarded a screen test.

CLASSIC BALLET

NBC's proposed animation of the classic ballet, "Petrouchka," would make Nijinsky and Pavlova turn over in their graves

Television paid its respects to the ballet with their presentation of the "Sleeping Beauty Ballet" by the renowned Sadler Wells troupe. Now the electronic and animation industry are experimenting with an animated cartoon version of "Petrouchka." NBC has commissioned Igor Stravinsky to revise his original score and prepare a 10-12-minute arrangement that could be used as background music for the cartoon. What price progress!

WES SANTEE, America's greatest miler, didn't realize it at the time, but his happy days in California (such as this one at Modesto, where he was appropriately congratulated by TV singer Joan Weldon for his victory) later led to his controversial rhubarb with AAU officials.

ON THE BALL FIELD, Joltin' Joe DiMaggio could give CBS producer Bill Froag (right) a few good tips. But in front of the mike, it's a different story.

"From lower case type to 'CAPS'"

By Evelyn Bigsby

ARM RESTING ON AN OLD CARVED TABLE, his figure outlined against a copy of a medieval map, Dr. Baxter prepares to unfold the wonders of the Renaissance. (CBS-Lewis photos.)

I THINK there will be a great cultural renaissance, but not in my lifetime. We're ripe for a renaissance if we can have faith in something. This is an era of waiting," So stated Dr. Frank Baxter, KNXT's host for the new "Renaissance on TV" series. He was discussing the over-all significance of the Renaissance and speculating on a cultural resurgence at this time.

Dr. Baxter, who still expresses amazement that a "broken-down, bald-headed school teacher of 60," through his Shakespeare on TV, could arouse coast-to-coast interest, is equally enthusiastic about presentation of the "giants in their field"—the five famous men who will appear on ten of the eighteen video programs which began February 4 and continue for seventeen successive weeks.

The television series comes as a fortunate outgrowth of a University of Southern California lecture program underwritten by the Francis Bacon Foundation of Pasadena. As an aid in selecting the scholars for the University series, a list of the ten greatest Renaissance figures in the United States was assembled and from these names a final five were chosen. Dr. Baxter, who initiated the lectures, was instrumental in scheduling these "giants" for TV.

Aims

"This television series may be an illumination to many people," Dr. Baxter voiced hopefully. "So much we have today is due to the Renaissance. Take Bacon, for instance," and in his inimitable fashion the Shakespearean expert painted a word-picture of Bacon and his companions riding along the countryside in their coach on a cold winter night, of their comments on the bitterness of the weather, of how sheep in the field would be covered with snow, and amazingly, how the meat would be in perfect state of preservation come spring; how one of Bacon's companions threw out the idea, "I wonder if cold might not be a way for vittling food for armies in the field?"

"Here's the forerunner of today's deep freeze," Dr. Baxter glowed.

As he waxes more enthusiastic about the meaning of the Renaissance he recalls the great discoverers and explorers of the time, especially Drake, sailing up the California coast; the excitement of writing, of art, the Reformation, and "to those who speak English, Shakespeare at the center of it all!"

He mentions the growth of cities, the beginning of commerce, the emergence of the individual, the tremendous stimulation of this period which will be discussed by experts on Renaissance on TV. And he sums it up, "It is as if the Middle Ages had been in lower case type and now they'll be in caps."

Indicative of KNXT's faith in the Renaissance series is the action of station manager James Aubrey who withdrew one of the most salable times, 4:00 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays, to offer this program. Dr. Baxter himself will fill in the eight remaining lecture periods not taken over by the visiting scholars and will be assisted by other scholars, either visiting or local, in rounding out the schedule.

According to the program producer, Bill Whitley, the final ten minutes of each telecast is being devoted to an exchange between Dr. Baxter and the guest speaker. This segment was inspired by a previous experience when, as Bill expresses it, "I was fortunate enough to get Aldous Huxley and Baxter together on a free exchange of ideas, and the result was very exciting."

Pressed for an answer as to our readiness for Renaissance II, Dr. Baxter admitted that materialism may have been responsible, at least in part, for America's inability to produce great culture of its own. He feels there is a gnawing hunger for new values in today's world.

"I like materialism," he stated, "I like it if it means being warm in winter and sitting on soft things, and sleeping on a comfortable mattress. But we must remember that things in themselves are not important.

"We've never had it so good. Maybe now is the time a man has to stand up and say, 'Is this all?' When things become important in themselves, God help the Republic!"

"When they give a little shoemaker $64,000, let him meet the Pope and kiss Clare Boothe Luce's hand because he knows his opera, I think it shows there has never been a time when individualism was more needed. Yes, we're ripe for a renaissance."

JIM VANCE, SET DESIGNER, with Dr. Baxter and Bill Whitley. Maps employed on the teleseries are blow-ups of priceless charts from Huntington Library.

He Took On The Indians

IT'S STILL HARD for me to think of handsome Keith Larsen as an Indian. I'd always thought of him primarily as a tennis player.

When I first met Keith he was living and breathing tennis but in between times he was toying with the idea of acting. He appeared in a couple of shows which I produced and directed, but he wasn't exactly the most fired-up guy I ever met about turning actor. Then the breaks started coming his way—and now even the tennis has taken a second spot.

Typed?

"When I was making 'Chief Crazy Horse' at Universal-International," Keith remarked as we chatted over old and new times. "I was asked to test for Brave Eagle. At the time, I wasn't too interested since I had already played about four Indians, was doing another in the picture and I didn't want to be listed in the Players' Directory under 'Indians.' However, I did make the test later. I came off looking like an Indian and I got the part. I've been happy about that ever since.

"Since I began the TV series I have been offered other parts as Indians, but I think now is a good time to avoid being typed. I don't want to become Keith 'Cheyenne' Larsen."

Keith's attitude towards acting as a profession changed gradually. From his earlier take-it-or-leave-it idea he became what he is now—an earnest and ambitious actor.

Turning Point

"I think the change in my attitude began about 1951 when I went to Europe to look for a job as an actor. I lived in the Place Pigalle, loved every minute of the life there, but wound up eventually as a publicity writer. I also like writing, you see.

"While I was in Paris, I coached French actors in American dialogue. I went with one company to Madrid and Rome. Then, I was asked to help out an actor who was testing for a role in a picture. I did the other part with him in the scene. When I returned to America, I kind of smuggled that bit of film back with me. I took it to an agent who proceeded to take it to Allied Artists—and I got a contract."

The first time Keith played an Indian was in "Hiawatha." From then on, he was handed the feathers and the war paint rather consistently, all to his advantage.

Has Massey Pulled a TV BONER?

At long last Mr. Raymond Massey, one of the greatest actors ever produced by the American stage and movies, is now seen each week on KRCA.

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

NO BEARD, and he's not giving a Lincoln speech, but he's still Raymond Massey. It's his new role as "Anton" on the I Spy series seen on Channel 4. (Guild Films photo.)

RAYMOND MASSEY is more than just a man. He's a tradition in both theater and the movies. His credits as an actor, director and writer are as long as my last name.

Now he's in TV—as Anton, the "master spy," and host of Channel 4's Guild Film series, I Spy. Described as an "authentic and fascinating dramatization of political spies who have changed the course of history," the KRCA show presents each week a "little known but true-to-life episode about secret agents who, with intrigue and ingenuity, have rocked countries, precipitated wars and upset balances of power."

Filmed in New York, it's the first regular TV series for Massey, who lives permanently in a Connecticut farm house with his wife, lawyer Dorothy Ludington.

Coast-to-Coast Commuter

Luckily, Massey happened to be in Hollywood working on a Ford Star Jubilee TV show—and was available for an interview at the time his "spy" series debuted in Los Angeles.

Offhand, it came as a bit of a surprise to many people who idolize Massey, particularly for his role of Abraham Lincoln, that he should use a spy series as his first steady TV series.

During a long and friendly chat—which, in our eyes, only added more dignity and stature to an already noble and erect 6-foot 2-inch frame—Mr. Massey explained his reasons for doing the show:

"I have had several offers to do various types of TV shows, but none of them. I felt, was quite what I wanted. Also, I didn't want to do any series that had a continuous acting part.

"When I first read the I Spy scripts, I liked them. I also liked the idea of doing the role of 'Anton.'

"I don't consider it any great achievement as far as acting is concerned," the dark-haired, rugged actor laughed, "but I do consider the stories themselves to be entertaining and honest.

Just the Host

"The main purpose of this series is adventure and entertainment. Nothing else.

"To date, I haven't done any of the actual roles in the series, and I doubt if I will. 'Anton' is merely there to tell the people what the show is about, and, if appropriate, to explain its moral and purpose. Anyone who criticizes 'Anton' as an acting part is being a bit silly."

Mr. Massey was also quite honest when asked his candid opinion of the shows that have been seen so far.

"I'm pleased with them. They are complete and utter entertainment. There's enough fact and enough hokum thrown in, I think, to please everyone."

Never Tires of Abe

Of course, it's almost impossible to talk to Raymond Massey without mentioning his famous portrayals of Abraham Lincoln. Some actors, especially in TV, are afraid of being "typed" because of playing one part too often. They get tired and bored with the role, with themselves, and with other people who always associate them with "their other self."

Fortunately, Mr. Massey doesn't fall into that category. His voice rings with the sincerity of Honest Abe himself when he says:

"The Lincoln role is the greatest part I have ever had or ever will have. Never will I tire of it. Far from getting sick of it, I'm very happy and proud that people associate me with truly one of our greatest Americans."

Still Looking

Massey fans might also be interested in knowing that the Canadian-born, English-bred, naturalized American (since 1944) has not yet found the TV role or series that will bring out the immense power and magnitude of his true acting ability.

"I'm still looking," Massey commented.

His role as "Anton," then, when taken in its proper light, can not be looked upon as a TV mistake for Massey. So if you watch I Spy on KRCA, prepare for some good adventure stories and some excellent acting. But don't expect to hear Raymond Massey break out into "Four score and seven years ago, our fathers brought forth . . . etc." It just won't happen.

Meet Your Movie Host

AT THE END of his first week on Channel 2, Dick Norris, host on KNXT's Early Show and Big Hit Movie five days each week, reported some surprising happenings involving his new audiences.

"People call up and ask me where they've seen me before. Others who come into our studio keep trying to place me and finally ask where they've met me before," he said.

Dick likes his role, but he's convinced that it is much more pleasant when one's guests know the "what, when, where, who and how" of their host.

To clear up the "I remember the face, but who are you?" question, Dick is an established actor, both in the East and in motion pictures. His last big break was in "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," in which he played in the stage version, in the motion picture and in the television production. He was cast as the psychiatrist, "Dr. Bird," and later was Henry Fonda's understudy in the play.

His "big picture" was the lead opposite Joan Dru in Bing Crosby's production of "Abie's Irish Rose." He also has had numerous lesser roles in pictures.

Dick has been an actor since he was eight years old, when he was featured on the Adventures of Jerry Parker on KFJH, Wichita, Kansas, until he was 14 and moved to Huntington Park.

Dick's acting interests came about naturally. His parents, John and Lucille Norris, were vaudevillians. He was born in Fort Worth, Texas, while his parents were on tour, and was exposed to the theater from the time he can first remember.

Dick was graduated from the Huntington Park High School and went almost immediately into the U. S. Air Corps. He spent six years as a pilot, much of that time in the South Pacific area. Seriously wounded, he was two years in military hospitals. When the doctors had patched up his entire right side, including both his right arm and leg, he had to learn to walk all over again.

Intent on following his career once he was out of the service, Dick succeeded in conquering a noticeable limp and plunged back into acting by enrolling at the Pasadena Playhouse in 1945. Less than two years later he won the lead in "Abie's Irish Rose."

After several other motion picture roles, Dick went to New York and did summer stock for several seasons.

"New York is experience but Pasadena is home," is the way Dick explained his return to the West Coast.

Being a young man of ingenuity and imagination, he soon was back in the swing of things. Among his friends was Dick Powell, actor-director in motion pictures and television.

One day Powell introduced Dick to Paul Gregory, who was getting ready to launch the stage version of "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial." Gregory took Dick to New York, where he played the role of the psychiatrist who testified against Captain Queeg.

"Of all the roles I've ever wanted to play, this one offered most possibilities and challenge. I needed experience and I got it," Dick relates today.

Norris is one of six cast members who never missed a stage performance. During most of the New York run, Dick also was understudy to Henry Fonda.

TV Credits

Among Dick's television credits are roles in I Led Three Lives, Mr. X, Celebrity Playhouse, Father Knows Best, and the part of "Sergeant Hatch" in Dragnet.

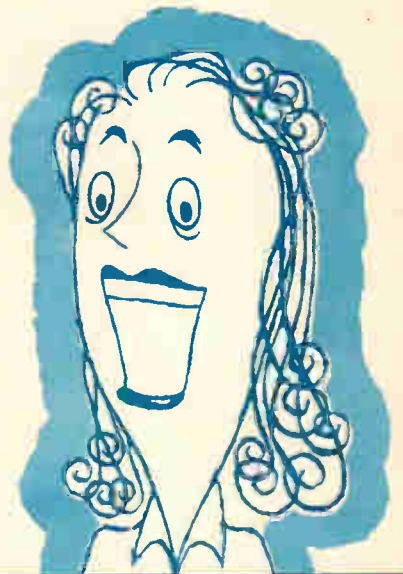

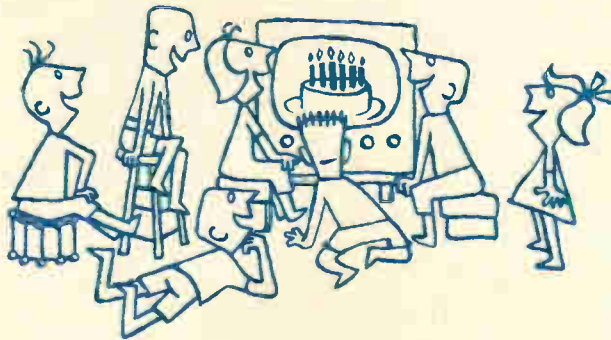

He recently completed a feature role in the Humphrey Bogart starrer, "The Harder They Fall," at Columbia.

Dick and actress Karen Petersen were married in 1947 in Van Nuys. They have a daughter, Kristen, and a son, Jason Richard, whose birth occasioned Dick's greatest dramatic role. "Our son surprised us by arriving unexpectedly," Dick relates, "and I didn't have time to think about acting while waiting for the doctor. I was the doctor, nurse and hospital staff." When the doctor arrived, Jason Richard had already arrived on the scene.
