Seen On The Video-Radio Scene

BECAUSE HER HUSBAND had been a wonderful father to her two children by a previous marriage, Mrs. Geraldine Kinnish of Sacramento wanted to be glamorous for him. Jack McCoy and KABC-TV's Glamour Girl very brilliantly accommodated her.

WILL THEY Change Ernie Now?

*Format may change
but what about Ernie?*

By Bill Weber

WHEN Tennessee Ernie finally landed a new night-time show on NBC-TV in addition to his five-a-week program, there was immediate speculation that you'd be given a brand new Ernie after dark.

However, when Ernie was asked about the new Tennessee Ernie Ford Show he quipped, "Well, as far as I can see the biggest difference between the night show and my day show is that it will be dark outside."

Bud Yorkin, 30-year-old producer and director who has been given a free hand in setting the format of the show, added his comment. "For one thing, we're not out to change Ernie—that would be something like gilding the lily or putting a moustache on the Mona Lisa. What we are out to do is to capture Ernie as himself—that unique being you know from just sitting down and talking with him."

In short, Ernie will still be Ernie—in the daytime or when the lights are on

New Show

Ernie's new show will have everything from Shakespear to rock 'n' roll. There will be music from the 20 voices of the Walter Schuman aggregation. They will also supply comedy in a by-play between Ernie and themselves with Ernie as the protagonist. Schuman will write original music for the show.

Top writers will be on hand writing special material for guest stars who will make frequent appearances. Bill Manchoff, Jimmy Allardice, and Tommy Adair are the three who have been handed the chore of giving out with the gags.

Even though Ernie has always wanted a night-time show, he has found it has its disadvantages as far as his personal life is concerned.

Personal Life

For one thing, he and his family had lived in Whittier—and for a good reason.

"I'd always insisted that my wife and sons live a normal life, away from all the glitter of show business," Ernie said seriously. "I didn't want them to be affected in any way by my work. And I've continually said that when the day comes that my kids start calling me Tennessee Ernie instead of Ernie or just Dad, that's the day I quit. I wanted them to grow up without having other youngsters refer to them as Tennessee's boys."

ERNIE CLOWNS IT UP with some of the lovely ladies who comprise the Voices of Walter Schuman. They will be on his night-time show. (NBC photos—Paul Bailey).

"But with five daytime shows a week to do and my night-time program, which actually involves three nights a week of work. I had to give up our Whittier home to move closer to NBC Burbank studios where I'll be doing the shows. So we bought a house in Toluca Lake. However, even though this move was taken reluctantly, I intend to be on my guard against any encroachments of my career on my home life."

It has been no secret for some time that Ernie was looking forward to the day when he could retire and live on his big 560-acre ranch in Clear Lake, California. This, he knows, is in the future. He also knows that any performer, to maintain a certain standing and to build any type of future, has to keep up with the pace. He has to improve year by year. And Ernie, being a showman, knows that the pinnacle is reached faster in the night-time hours than during the day. Consequently, he agreed to the new show.

"The move to Toluca Lake hasn't been without its advantages, though," Ernie grinned. "I love to play golf and now I'm close enough to the Lakeside Country Club that I can have lunch there with a couple of baskets of golf balls for dessert."

When Ernie was interviewed in his handsome office, where the walls are hung with trophies of his fame including the gold platters celebrating record sales in the millions of "Sixteen Tons," he was more interested in talking about his ranch than his show. He excitedly told about the recent completion of a dam on his place, his plans for planting spring pasture, and his recent admittance into membership of the American Hereford Association. With his many Herefords on the ranch, such membership has its logic.

"I'm starting in a small way with blooded stock," Ernie said enthusiastically. "And they cost dough. I've got a herd of about 25 head and I'll build from that. Sure it'll take time. It takes time to build up something good. But I'm more interested in quality than quantity."

That seems to sum up Ernie's whole approach to his career too. It looks as though his new show will have both.

Ernie ambled out of his office looking very relaxed. Not at all like the man who had just taken on a couple of TV behemoths.

As he left he cracked, "Sure I'm going to be busy now. But that doesn't mean I'm going to be on a merry-go-round. I don't look good tied up in knots."

"LET THE GIRLS REACH!" That seems to be Ernie's reaction to the gymnastic efforts of two Schuman lovelies. He likes the easy life.

THE GUY WHO COULDN'T STOP

Singing

By Bill Weber

EDDIE KEELEY, who found success when his wife picked up a business card he threw away.

IF IT HADN'T BEEN for Eddie Keeley's wife, Peggy, picking up the discarded business card of a listener who had presented it to her husband, Eddie would probably not be a singing star on KTLA.

The card was that of the late Klaus Landsberg, of Paramount Television Productions and general manager of KTLA—which meant all of nothing to Eddie when Landsberg gave it to him with the suggestion that he, Eddie, come around and see him.

The occasion of this first meeting with Landsberg occurred shortly after Eddie and Peggy arrived in Southern California from the Midwest. A night of dancing was in order, and the young couple turned up at the Aragon Ballroom. Eddie, who had done a bit of singing but had just about given up hope of ever being able to follow it up as a career, asked Lawrence Welk if he might sing a number with the band.

Understandably cautious, Welk advised Eddie that he would have to audition him first. Eddie reminded the champagne music maestro of a time nine years previously when he had sung, audition-wise, with the orchestra leader's band in the East. Result—Eddie sang that night. Klaus Landsberg was in the audience.

"You never stop learning in this game," Eddie said. "Despite the fact I have been singing since I was 16, this is the first time I have studied singing. I was guessing at a lot of things for the past nine years, but now I can see what I do wrong and correct it."

Eddie's story, like many another entertainer's, began with amateur shows. The first six or seven of these may be put down to experience, but when he took first place in an area-wide contest, having tasted that first sweet morsel of success, he was on his way. Not that there was much money in it, but the singing was enough. It had to be when the pay was all of $2 for a night's singing.

Singing for somewhat less than his supper with small bands around the Joliet, Ill., area, Eddie was having a lot of fun singing and might still have been on the rural circuit had it not been for the single most important person in Eddie's life—his wife Peggy.

Peggy bearded the publicity director of the Goslin Hotel. She had a singer he should hear, she told him. He said he had heard plenty of singers.

"Not like this one," she persisted. And after several hours of sound argument and persuasion, nothing was left but that an audition be set up for Eddie.

Eddie auditioned. His audition audience was the waiters, bus boys and housekeepers of the hotel. But Eddie got the job—which ended in not quite a year when he received a Selective Service summons from Uncle Sam.

Army Welder

"I thought the Special Services branch of the Army would give me a chance to sing," Eddie said, "but when my assignments were cleaning up a football field and a baseball diamond, I forgot all about Special Services and took up welding."

But the Korean conflict did give Eddie a chance to sing in The Firehouse Five, a GI group that sang in hospitals, at the front, and in any spot where a group of soldiers wanted a song.

Back in civvies, Eddie and Peggy headed for New York. It was no dice as far as singing, so he took a job as a welder in a service station. But a yen for singing like Eddie's is not to be squelched. An engagement came from a friend of the service station owner who had opened a night club. Another customer, a chicken market proprietor (who incidentally happened to be Dagmar's brother-in-law), got Eddie an audition in a New Jersey night spot. Things were looking up for Eddie and Peggy Keeley.

Whatever satisfaction there might have been in the singing, the set-up was financially impossible despite the fact that Peggy was also working.

"Working as we were, we hardly knew each other," Eddie said. "That's when Peggy put her foot down. Either we got down to a normal human existence—or else. We pulled up stakes and left, lock, stock and barrel. We hit Highway 66."

"Which way shall we go?" I asked her.

"Just keep driving," Peggy answered.

The Keeleys and their daughter, Cynthia, now five, arrived in Los Angeles. A few nights later a man named Landsberg presented a singer named Keeley with his card—

Eddie Keeley has one other ambition besides making records and playing singing roles. "I hope that I will be in the position to help young singers on the way up. People like to tell you that real talent will always find a way. I've been lucky. But from my own life I have seen that the pressures of life, large economic, can condemn a sensitive talent to extinction. I'd like to think that maybe I could make it a little easier for someone than I had it."

GROUCHO STARTS BUILDING HIS $200,000 HOME

On a hill site in Beverly Hills the Groucho Marxes are beginning a new house which the NBC-KRCA-KFI wit explains with "My wife Eden wanted a circular bathtub."

Soon to rise on the 10,000-square-foot lot is a contemporary-style 10-room abode comprising 6700 square feet of floor space.

As behooves a man of his calling, Groucho has scheduled five built-in TV sets—in two of the bedrooms, living room, dining room and den. The den will also have a built-in projection room which can be closed off at one end.

There'll be an elliptical-shaped swimming pool with a small circular extension at one end. And Eden's round sunken bathtub, the cause of it all, will be 5'4" in diameter.

ON THE SCENE OF DESILU'S $6000 TV PARTY

BOTH LUCY AND DESI spent almost entire evening table-hopping, but here the comedienne takes time out for a bite.

To launch I Love Lucy's sixth CBS-KNXT teleyear, one of the season's most elaborate parties was held on a Desilu sound stage for 250 star friends and members of the press. In keeping with the "away from Hollywood" theme, the affair was Hawaiian. For two days artisans of Desilu worked to hang a colorful cloth-festoon ceiling. Center of attention was a small harbor and yacht, used recently for a show sequence. Banks of tropical greenery, tables laid with Island covers, a rhythmic aloha orchestra, fragrant leis and Hawaiian food pursued the theme. Favors were silver key chains and bearing engraved notations from Lucy and Desi.

BEHIND THE SCENES OF THE $400,000 SHOW

Though Wide Wide World's telling of the Hollywood Story did not provoke unanimous acclaim for content of the 90-minute telecast, this whopper show did elicit admiration for NBC's technical know-how. Since the event marked the first time Wide Wide World had originated away from New York in its entirety, tons of equipment had to be expedited westward and more borrowed from friendly local competitors of NBC-KRCA.

Rundown of materiel and personnel: 25 cameras, nine feature remote pick-ups, 45 mikes, 10,000 feet of cable, 16,000 miles of television circuits, 168 engineers. The blimp carried one live camera to give bird's-eye view of Hollywood and Vine.

This program was the most comprehensive live TV show ever to involve a single community.

ONE OF THE REMOTE originations was from Dan Dailey's Chatsworth Ranch (reportedly this pick-up cost NBC $16,000 for running in lines.) Here Sheree North and Dan rehearse with Gino Conte.

I am an average housewife with two school girls and I like Elvis Presley and buy all his records. I have two good friends that share my views and we think the public should let up on criticizing Elvis and start some objecting to these women that appear on TV half-dressed, especially on shows that teen-agers and children watch.

J. C., Santa Monica

Daddy has been in the hospital twice since last December. All of this had a very bad effect on my little brother. His favorite entertainer, "Chucko," was informed of this and he invited him to be on his show.

This helped my brother Eddie over the hump very much. He was so wonderful and it really gave him something pleasant to talk about. I would like to thank "Chucko" and his entire staff for making my brother a little happier. I think TV should have more kid entertainers like "Chucko" instead of the ones that scare them to death.

Mrs. S. S., Baldwin Park

How dare you suggest that Elvis Presley be the actor for the life story of James Dean? Hollywood doesn't have an actor to fit the role.

The suggestion was made by Al Jarvis in a feature story on Elvis.

Disgusted with TV, Baldwin Park

It seems like we could do with a lot less crime and juvenile stories and a little more of the wonderful entertainment like Frankie Laine had on his show.

IN ADDITION TO THE wine-and-dine-'em method of attracting editors' attention to their TV and radio shows, some stations have lively press-promotion departments which keep up a steady barrage of clever gimmicks designed to make the editor stop-look-listen.

KTTV IS PROBABLY THE most active along this line. Just for kicks I've kept track of what's been sent me over the past week.

A TOY SPORTS CAR to remind that The Open Road was changing time.

A MINIATURE LION, MGM trademark, to call attention to Channel 11's new MGM film series. For same reason, a bright yellow lion made of pipe cleaners and sporting a profuse mane of brown yarn. Also for the MGM series, a toy watch to plug the first film to be screened, "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo."

A BOTTLE-HOPPER GAME, played with tiny Coke bottles, to ballyhoo return of Coca-Cola's Spotlight on Youth. Coke-charm key chain because Spotlight on Youth is "keyed to teen-age audience." Big red pencil to mark show's debut date on my calendar.

TOY RIFLE, delivered in person by a lovely long-legged model to tell me of debut of Sheriff of Cochise. Pair of spurred red boots to plug same show, also small bronze miniature of man on horseback.

A SMALL DICTIONARY appeared to call attention to Mr. Genius' new time and the fact he knows just about every word in the book. Other stations employ the same attention-getters, though not as profusely. For example, KTLA sent over a can of spinach to remind that Popeye Cartoons was set for Channel 5, and KABC-TV rushed in a World Almanac to flag Walter O'Keefe's debuting Remember the Year?

MY RECENT WAIL ABOUT the political conventions being expected to "put on a show" for the American voter appears to have struck responsive notes. From Mrs. O.T.H., Los Angeles: "Like you, I consider it a great privilege to see history being made from my living room."

FROM MRS. E.K., YUCAIPA: "You certainly are not the only one who resents people who resent political telecasts. We watched every bit of the two conventions and thought it most interesting and enlightening. Many who did are not the letter-writing kind."

FROM MRS. G.C.S., ONTARIO: "I don't know why it is, but it seems as though everything you discuss in your column and every time you propound a question, you do so in such a manner that I can't restrain answering. What I mean is that you seem to choose the most controversial subjects to write about and when you do end your column with a question it demands an answer—from me, at least. If I understand you, I am "with you" completely. I will go along with those viewers who complain that the whole thing was boring and at times hard to stick with. So was algebra, history and any number of school subjects. But they were all educational and held to be a basic part of our development as citizens of the human race. And that is the light in which I looked upon the political conventions. Some parts of them were drier than dust in August but, as you point out, it was all part of history in the making and something that I feel every American citizen should watch and listen to from beginning to finish, at least once in a lifetime. I'm very sure that the citizens of "iron curtain" countries would give such a privilege a high rating."

HOLLAND'S

Tunnel

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

Much has been said and written about Wide, Wide World's Hollywood story fiasco. Outside of a fairly interesting—(but with too many long shots)—back lot trip at MGM, the picture presented of Hollywood was a dismal affair. Since this show was produced almost in its entirety by New York personalities or those who have more New York TV experience than movie know-how, I now suggest that a group of about 25 movie people go from Hollywood to New York to produce the New York story. This would be just as logical as what was done here.

Another controversial show was Playhouse 90's "Forbidden Area." Some raved about it, others were considerably less than enthusiastic. There have been many comments that movies are too long, that no more than two hours is needed to tell a story. I don't go along with this theory any more than I believe that an hour is enough time to tell any good TV tale. After all, "Peter Pan" ran two hours and nobody objected, and many of Producers' Showcase offerings of an hour and a half were standouts. In this case, "Forbidden Area" was utterly dull for about the first 45 minutes and only picked up speed and suspense and interest the last half hour. However, Playhouse 90 is undoubtedly going to ring bells in the future. This was its first offering and many obstacles were encountered so nobody need feel too disappointed. In the case of this production, however, it does seem that one hour would have made for a tighter, better-paced show.

From the amount of mail received here, Dr. Ernest Holmes on KTLA is certainly attracting a large audience. While the mail indicates a public-relations campaign on someone's part, Dr. Holmes is undoubtedly popular and is serving the needs of many. It is at least refreshing to see a religious program on TV that is not made up of quacks and racketeers—and for this alone Dr. Holmes' show should be welcomed. It makes no difference whether or not you agree with his philosophy and beliefs, he is at least doing some good.

Marguerite Piazza, who used to sing grand opera in the grand style on the old Show of Shows, is back again at the Cocoanut Grove with an act that goes from delightful Viennese waltzes to low-down Dixieland. The emphasis, however, especially in her champagne bath, is on sex. That she delighted the SRO crowd could not be questioned. The act itself is beautifully and imaginatively staged, and Miss Piazza brings out the wolfish instincts in the men present. The only criticism to be made, from this department's point of view, is that her lyrics are difficult to understand. Also, her low-down blues section didn't seem to have quite the zip that it had on a previous visit. However, she's fun. When she let down her long hair, she really let it down!

The Ford Star Jubilee CBS production of Cole Porter's numbers was a thoroughly ingratiating job from the start to finish. Dolores Grey, Shirley Jones, and Gordon MacRae starred and gave viewers a plentiful hunk of good singing and good music. It was simply staged with no mammoth spectacular effects which was a refreshing change. The point here was to sing good music and sing it the cast did! Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy were also guests.

Also noteworthy was Dinah Shore's last NBC-TV Chevy show with Frank Sinatra and Dinah joining for some happy kidding—with some nice vocalizing in addition. These two really sparked the whole affair and seemed to be having a ball. Later when I talked to Dinah, she told me they were! When Sinatra wants to, he can sock over a performance like no one else.

In line with the new style and improved quality of TV-Radio Life, I want to assure my readers that I am going to offer them more of what they have had in the past . . . the garbled syntax will be more garbled, the abstruse wordage more abstruse and the esoteric humor more esoteric. As far as information is concerned, however, I promise to give you less than ever.

"Bringing Up Baby." (9) Beginning Oct. 23, 9:00. 1938. This is one of those tenderly remembered farces of the thirties (along with "The Awful Truth," and "My Man Godfrey") about which people often say, "They don't make 'em like this any more." Now, you'll have a chance to decide if there's a reason they don't. Cary Grant is a zoology professor who chases after a missing bone he needs to reconstruct a prehistoric mammal and is in turn pursued by a love-smitten heiress, Katharine Hepburn. Together, they get mixed up with Charles Ruggles, Walter Catlett and a wild leopard, and this is enough, as I tenderly remember, to produce quite a few laughs. They don't make 'em like this any more.

"They Met in Bombay." (11) Oct. 26, 8:00. 1941. Here is the second in KTTV's series of weekly epics and as far as quality is concerned, I think they should have used "Act of Violence" (see below). But that's the way it's going to go . . . there are some very good films to be shown on the nightly 10:15 program. Clark Gable stars in this action piece about a couple of jewel thieves (Rosalind Russell is the other one) who get involved in the war in China and wind up heroes when Clark puts on a British officer's uniform and saves some civilians from the Japanese.

"Act of Violence." (11) Oct. 23, 10:15. 1948. Robert Ryan enters a little California town while a housing development built by war hero Van Heflin is being dedicated, and we soon learn that to Ryan, Heflin is no hero. They were in a German prison camp and Heflin's cowardly conduct led to the deaths of their comrades, with Ryan the sole survivor. Then begins a quietly desperate chase which forces Heflin to ally himself with a crooked lawyer and a killer in an effort to dispose of Ryan. Director Fred Zinnemann resolves this fairly humdrum plot with a sure hand for suspense and the performances by the principals are excellent.

"Submarine D-1." (5) Oct. 21, 7:30. George Brent commands a submarine which includes among its personnel Pat O'Brien and Wayne Morris, who feud over a girl, fight all the time and become heroes in a peacetime rescue operation.

"Her Highness and the Bellboy." (11) Oct. 24, 10:15. 1945. Robert Walker, as the all American bellboy, and June Allyson, as his sweet, lame, little girl friend are called upon to look endlessly cute while they grapple with the problems engendered by Walker's infatuation with a visiting princess, Hedy Lamarr. Most of the sequences are chokingly trite and I didn't like it.

"High Barbaree." (11) Oct. 26, 10:15. 1946. Pilot Van Johnson is shot down and as his plane floats in the South Pacific, he remembers, in flashback, a wonderful uncharted island uncle Thomas Mitchell told him about and so he steers the plane toward where it might be. As he drifts, he also remembers his childhood sweetheart, June Allyson, and how much he wants to see her again. He finally reaches the island, of course, and his pal, who didn't believe in it, dies. Moral: Have faith in uncharted islands when you're shot down in a bomber.

'Country Boy' Dean Comes to California ...And Then Leaves

Ole Diz came to Hollywood last week to appear on Dinah Shore's Chevy Show along with another special guest, Frank Sinatra. The hour-long telecast, incidentally, was tops with Dinah and Frank in excellent form.

Behind-the-scenes, however, ole Diz stole the show. He's seen here strolling through the NBC-TV studios at Burbank with Mrs. Dean. He calls her "Mom." She calls him "Jay." Full name: Jerome "Dizzy" Dean.

"This stuff here ain't my business," Diz remarked when asked about his TV appearance. "If it ain't got something to do with baseball, I gets lost. These people here (meaning Frank and Dinah) are professionals. Me, I'm a rookie in this league. And I'm going to stay that way. As far as I'm concerned, it's strictly for the birds."

Immediately after his appearance, Diz and his Mrs. headed back home for Dallas, Texas. His plans for the winter: "That's easy," says Diz. "Nothing."

"LOVELY CONTEST"

Strike It Rich, which visits Los Angeles from New York the week of November 12-16, is seeking five girls to "Strike It Lovely" via paid coast-to-coast television appearances. These five girls will compete for a 30-day contract with Universal-International Pictures as traveling Public Relations Envoy on behalf of its new Technicolor release. "Written on the Wind," starring Rock Hudson, Lauren Bacall, Robert Stack and Dorothy Malone.

Still another prize for which the five finalists in the "Strike It Lovely" contest will compete is an appearance on the Bob Cummings TV show as a member of the cast.

In addition, each "Strike It Lovely" will win a five-day expense-free vacation for two at the magnificent Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas.

The contest is open to all girls over 18. Deadline for the submission of entries is midnight, November 2, so fill in the blank elsewhere in this issue or get one at your favorite market or drug store.

FOR WOMEN

Actor Edward Arnold's widow, Cleo, whose unique and original hobby of creating high-styled women's chapeaux out of men's old hats invariably was the hit of any party, went into the hat business for real Monday when she opened the exclusive "Cleo Arnold Salon," 12300 Ventura Boulevard, Studio City.

The new salon features Cleo's custom made hats, especially designed for the customer.

Additionally, Mrs. Arnold becomes a TV fashion coordinator with the opening of her place. One of the programs that will draw her styling attention will be "Do You Trust Your Wife?"

I Knew Hal March

WHEN . . .

By Bob Sweeney

BOB SWEENEY co-stars with Gale Gordon in the new CBS-TV series, The Brothers.

HOW CAN anyone write the truth about a guy handing out $64,000—even if it isn't his own dough? It'd be like trying to prove there isn't any Santa Claus, that June and moon don't rhyme, or that two can't live as cheaply as one. It'd be suicide.

I can't tell the truth about March. He'd tell the truth about me. We've already told the truth to each other. That was when we were doing the Sweeney and March Show. We didn't talk for six weeks. There's only one thing funnier than two comedians talking — two comedians trying not to talk. We couldn't take it.

March is one of those inescapable things in the life of Sweeney. That's why he's my daughter's godfather; that's why the Sweeneys were Candy's and Hal's best man and matron of honor.

As an announcer at KYA in San Francisco I didn't know just how inescapable Hal was to be that day when he showed up for an announcer's tryout. There wasn't a thing wrong with Hal's tryout—except that he did it in dialect. We had to gently break the news to Hal that a dialect comedian wasn't exactly a sponsor's dream of an announcer.

But his dialect stories did get him a job as a salesman for the station. That lasted just two and one-half days. An announcer quit. Hal was in. Doing it straight this time. His show was in the early morning hours, the half hour before mine.

My jokes seemed funny to him; his jokes seemed funny to me. What could be simpler? Evidently the station thought so, too. And Sweeney and March came into being.

Whatever the success of Sweeney and March, it was hardly enough to keep Hal from prospecting the Hollywood gold fields. I followed soon after with greater hopes than prospects of becoming a writer.

Hal, not fate, tapped me on the shoulder that day I stood in the lobby of a fancy Hollywood hotel about to register for a $7-a-day room. Hal invited me to share his double bed in a Gower Street attic. There was an irresistible economic soundness to his invitation. The rent was $10 per week.

Since the entertainment world was not beating a pathway to our attic for the services of March as an actor or Sweeney as a writer, the inevitable collaboration took place again. The result was There's Always the Guy.

We tracked down an agent who shared our enthusiasm for the talents of Sweeney and March. The agent tracked down a large and talent-hungry soap company. The company shared our mutual enthusiasm—up to a point. They reached that point when our agent declined their sudsy offer of contracts that would have reached $50,000. It was the company's turn to decline — firmly. And Sweeney and March have yet to appear in There's Always the Guy.

Whatever this brush with success did for our egos, it didn't help one bit to get Sweeney and March off that orange juice-hot dog diet. This diet, by the way, is weight reducing and economical. It is also monotonous. However, as far as actors go, it is sustaining — something like Arabs living on dates and camel's milk.

I don't mean to suggest that Hal and I were rabid food fadists. Once in a while we did get off this bill of fare. That was when Hal played poker, or when a girl named Bev, for whom I had developed an emotional attitude, would stake us to a meal or let her parents invite us home to dinner. It got to the point where she had a vested interest in our careers. I should note in passing that this emotional attitude towards Bev became a legal, permanent and productive attachment. Our daughter is now five.

There were other interruptions in this diet. One was the Hoagy Carmichael show, climaxed at the end of 26 weeks by one of those exquisitely phrased legal letters. These letters do not require any legal ability to understand. Any actor can interpret them.

Then came the Sweeney and March Show. After 86 weeks we were a bit surprised to find that CBS had other plans for the Sweeney and March air time—plans which did not include us.

Greener pastures—a new show—opened up in New York. But foraging in any pasture at 6:30 a.m., the time of our opus, is a little bleak. It means you get up at 4:30 a.m. It also created a conflict. Hal March is not an early riser. He does not go for that early-bird stuff. As an actively practicing bachelor who generally arrived home at 4 a.m., Hal had discovered that there was more to life than rising to catch the legendary worm.

This we survived, however, until requested by a station executive to celebrate the premiere opening of a market in New Jersey by playing our show from there. This request was emphasized by the promise that unless we did play the market, he'd "get us."

Sweeney and March did not play that premiere; the station executive faithfully kept his promise.

Having exhausted the possibilities of East and West coasts in the joint carcens of Sweeney and March, it was the time to "unjoin"—if either Sweeney or March was to survive in the entertainment world.

The truth about Hal? I'd better get a couple of shirts back to him—the ones he gave me right off his back.

HE'S MY Friend...

By Hal March

HAL MARCH adds emcee chores to NBC-TV's Most Beautiful Girl in the World to his CBS-TV quizzer, The $64,000 Question.

THIS PROJECT, I'm afraid, is a little frustrating in that I am to tell what I think of Sweeney in a few hundred words. It is frustrating because I don't need a few hundred words. A short sentence would do. But, alas, this space must be filled, so, if you will allow me, I will indulge in a few pleasant memories.

My first recollection of Sween, was looking at him through a studio glass wall as I auditioned for a radio announcing job in San Francisco. He, being chief announcer at the time, had my fate in his hands and it was then I first became aware of the inherent kindness in the man. He was not one to toy with another's emotions like a cat plays with a mouse. He listened attentively, digesting my resonance, timbre, poise, and other vocal attributes. As I poured my heart into the written copy, he gave me his complete attention. And when I finished he raised his grizzled young head and reverently uttered to the station manager, "Get rid of the bum! He sounds like an ant-eater who's been taught to talk." or some such tribute.

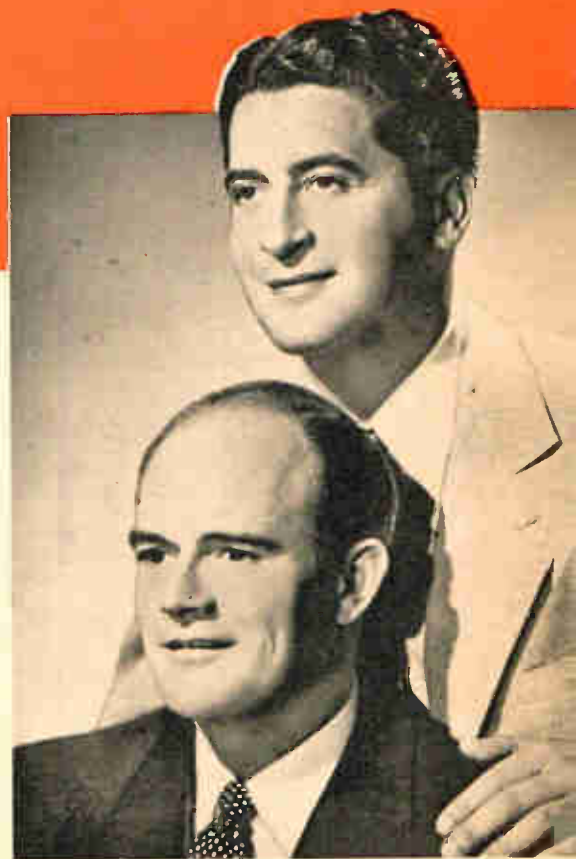

After I started to work at the station, however, we began to know and admire each other—I, him for his glibness, intelligence and quick wit, and he, me for my tailoring (I was impeccable). One thing we had in common at the beginning, though, was a similar sense of humor which was strong enough to form a foundation for our eventual relationship.

To recount the many escapades we shared, even my version would be redundant, so I'll talk a little about the influence Sween has had on my life. To begin with, my pre-Sweeney days were spent pretty irresponsibly. By that I mean that the only thing I cared about was having a good time out of life. I sought out situations which would offer me fun, never being especially concerned about anything beyond that. Sweeney, wiser than his years, saw here a lad who would come to no good end, and proceeded to indoctrinate me with mature ideas which would eventually turn me from a happy-go-lucky youth into a respectable member of society. I am proud to say that the metamorphosis took place. No longer do I indulge myself in life's goodies, but instead accept, nay, seek and plunge into challenges which are certain to ultimately make my cousin Myron, who is in the cardiac game, a rich man.

He taught me many other things which should be in any decent person's behavior pattern. Among them—Accept graciously, don't embarrass the donor. Like the time when Bob and Bev got married. After that event occurred, I remained in our garret on Gower Street, being quite able, by this time, to handle the full rent load of $10 a week alone—while the newlyweds hid themselves to romantic North Hollywood. Conducting all our business around Radio City and Hollywood, I had no need for a car. But Sween was in the unenviable position of having either to hitch-hike or make bus connections to town. This sort of transportation would not do for a future star so he went immediately in search of a car.

He was successful, too, in encountering a dandy 1931 Pontiac on sale for $165 which, coincidentally, was just what I'd socked away in an old sock (which I had socked away for an old foot). He, not having any money at the time, made me aware of his plight and possible salvation. I, bursting with gratitude at what he had already given me in intangibles, jumped at the opportunity to help my friend in need. He accepted the offer and bought the car. I'll always be grateful for a lesson in character that he taught me. Knowing that I'm easily embarrassed at giving, he to this day has never mentioned or shown me that 1931 Pontiac which, I understand, he still drives.

There are many such instances which have served to make me a better man but I know that they would embarrass Sween because he is like me about giving. One thing, however, that I never learned from Bob is modesty and after reading what I have written I must honestly admit that every kindness of his to me that I mentioned was returned in kind.

To avoid becoming maudlin, let me sum up this piece with the sentence which could have answered the original query, "What Do You Think About Sweeney?"

He is my best friend.

WHY THE DUGGAN SHOW IS A

Hoax

What's behind the continual insults that Girl Friday Judith Bess Jones has to take each night on KCOP? Do star Tom Duggan, producer Irwin Berke, and Miss Jones really "hate" each other?

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

HAVE YOU EVER seen the Tom Duggan show on Channel 13? If you haven't, a major part of the format—in addition to the sports news and special guests—consists in having the two men (Duggan and producer Irwin Berke) throw as many insults as possible at Tom's "Girl Friday," Judith Bess Jones.

Poor Miss Jones sticks up for her rights and defends herself occasionally; however, most of the time she has to swallow her pride, endure the sarcasm, and utter the meek defense that "I have to take their insults. I need the job."

Now many people in the TV audience—judging from the mail received at KCOP and at our magazine—take this verbal onslaught very seriously. They think poor Miss Jones is treated horribly and should seek some other means of employment. The feud which goes on continually between free-talking Duggan and uninhibited Berke is also taken quite seriously by many viewers. The whole shenanigan, of course, is nothing more than a theatrical trick—a gimmick, as the modernists would say—or just a plain "hoax," as the realists would express it.

No Feud

One afternoon we chatted with actor-producer Berke and wide-eyed Miss Jones. Naturally, they admitted there wasn't any feud between the three featured ad-libbers.

For one very good reason there couldn't possibly be any ill-feeling between them: Mr. Tom Duggan is the boss. Period.

He owns the Tom Duggan show, lock, stock and format. Berke and Miss Jones are on Tom's payroll, and what he says goes. So all the sarcastic remarks that are bandied back and forth each night are a part of what Berke calls "good show business."

"I don't think too many people take our feud seriously," he explains. "Those that do—and enjoy it—what's the harm? When people call me at the station during the day and say it's terrible the way Mr.

Duggan treats me, or vice versa, I tell them it's all part of an act. That way, they feel they have some 'inside information.'"

While Berke fronts as a producer (and he does actually "produce" the program), his main ambition is to be an actor. The same is true of Miss Jones—who also aspires to be a singer and dancer.

"I've always taken vocal lessons and I've just started with dancing instructions," the wide-eyed one declares.

In One—Out the Other

Originally from Waukegan, Illinois, where her father is a well-to-do owner of TV repair shops, she attended the exclusive Stephens College at Columbia, Missouri. After graduating, she took a quick jaunt to Hollywood and ended up with one line on a Ray Milland show.

She then headed back to Illinois and landed a job as a singer on Duggan's afternoon program in the Windy City. Actually she had met the loquacious Irishman when they worked together doing summer stock at Wheeling, Illinois.

When Tom decided to leave Chicago and try his luck in Hollywood, Judith and Irwin joined him.

While most of Tom's comments "go in one ear and out the other,"

there have been a few occasions when the five-foot-two, 100-pound brunette lost her temper.

"Once in Chicago he sprayed me with shaving lotion and I threw water at him," she explained, still a little annoyed remembering the incident.

"Most of the time I know Tom is kidding. But once he said my father was crooked. I didn't like that either."

So you see, friends, Miss Jones isn't always so calm about the physical and verbal beatings she has to take.

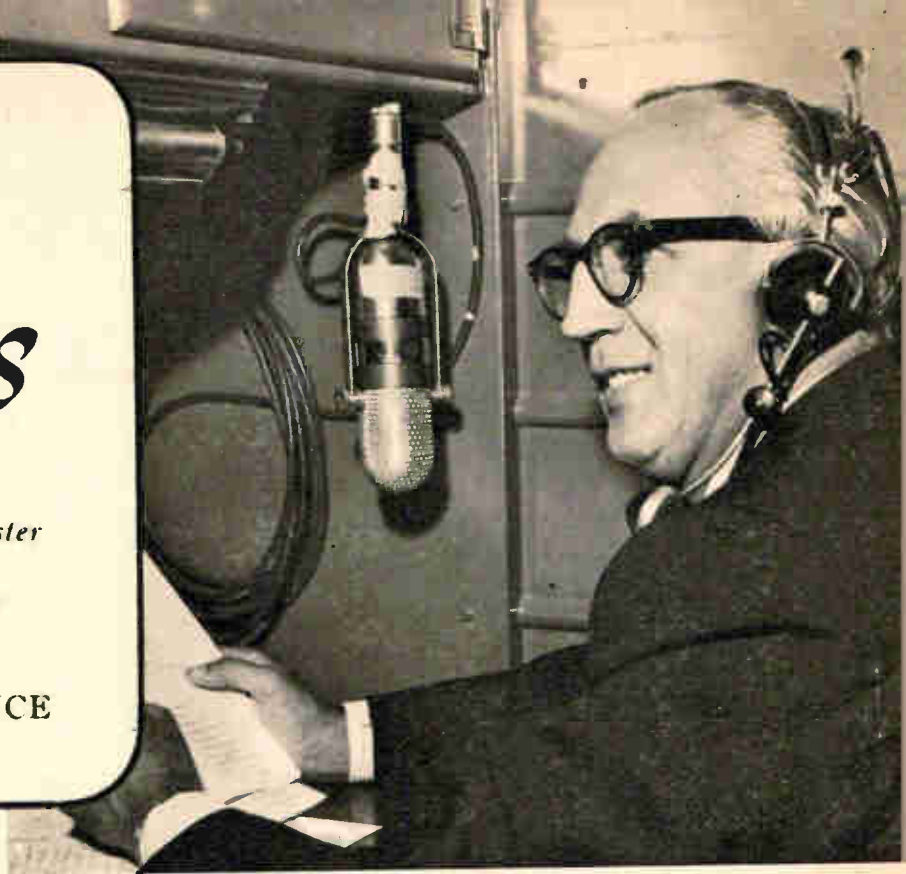

Both Berke and Duggan also believe that their "Girl Friday" has a great future as an actress and singer. Since Tom is her personal manager, and has never been known to be adverse to the idea of making money, he's naturally quite hopeful that she will click with some studio or recording company.

Regardless of what the public, or the people in the TV trade, may say about these three-ad-libbing-musketees, they must be given credit for creating a minor splash in the entertainment world. And in Hollywood, filled with more gimmick-happy promoters per capita than any city in the world, that's not an easy thing to accomplish.

A TV MENACE ... RELIGIOUS Quacks

This is a challenging story. Rev. Clifton Moore, an ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church, presents some facts about the misuse of religion on TV that will shock you.

By JON BRUCE

REV. CLIFTON MOORE, who is in charge of KTTV's Great Churches of the Golden West and who produced the Eleanor Powell show on KRCA, was in a fighting mood.

"It's high time the churches clean house and rid themselves of these religious hucksters," he said flatly. "Too many completely unqualified men are on TV and radio acting as ministers, selling a dangerous kind of religion, and endangering all the efforts of those who are sincerely trying to bring religion to the public.

"On the 250th anniversary telecast of Great Churches, I gave a sermon on Church and TV. In it I tried to show what a tremendous medium for selling products TV is—and what an educational medium it is. I stressed that, therefore, churches and regularly ordained ministers should be the vanguard of an aggressive movement to bring religion to the public. Yet, so many national leaders seem to be dragging their feet when it comes to TV. In the meantime, there is a fringe group who are making a racket out of religion for their own personal gains.

"It is not for me to say which men are sincere in their purpose. Only God can do that. But I do know that because of some quacks with no principle, people are becoming suspicious of any kind of religion. This is not good.

The Racketeers

"It's really easy to find out whether any religious huckster is qualified for a job in the ministry. For one thing, just ask one of these people for the financial statement of his organization. This can be had from any reputable church. The Church Federation in Los Angeles can also supply information of this kind. But write one of your TV or radio racketeers for any statement and see what happens.

"Then there's the business of ordination. I know how many years, over eight to be exact, it took me in college and post-graduate work to become an ordained minister. I also know how long it takes for anyone to get the credits for such a profession. Yet, I have known some hucksters who attended some classes for one day and were ordained a 'minister' the next day. By whom? Usually by some buddies. Any man who is taking years in study is bound to be sincere in his desire to enter the ministry—or priesthood. He is not concerned with the money to be made but wants only to serve God. Test your quacks on what they're doing with the revenue they're getting, for 'by their fruits shall ye know them.'

"There is another dangerous thing about this problem—the so-called faith healers who can cure all. I have a strong faith, a belief in the power of faith, but I also realize this can be misused by some. There is an evangelist in Florida who took the braces off of a little girl, a polio victim, and made her walk around. Her parents are now suing him for a large sum of money because he, by this action, ruined the girl's chances of ever walking again. There are too many of such 'operators' around, too many making a mockery of faith for their own personal gains.

"Some people go to these quacks when they feel all hope is lost. Supposing they are told by their doctors that they only have a few months to live. To fight against the truth, they contact these racketeers, hoping for a cure. This is a tragedy to me—that there are unscrupulous characters willing to exploit the extremities of a man's life. It is an abominable thing."

What TV Can Do

Rev. Moore then turned his attention to what TV can do to promote religion and to bring more people to church. His Great Churches has already done an admirable job in increasing church attendance.

"I see nothing wrong with having people endorse in a one or two minute spot the church they attend," he stated sincerely. "They could say something like, 'I go to such and such a place and this is what it has done for me.' Children could also tell why they like their particular Sunday School. This would do much towards stressing the good that religion can do.

"I'm working on another show now for TV—showing how we get our religion. I believe this will be of very great interest and will increase attendance at church. In addition, I think it would be a good idea for viewers to submit questions, the more pointed the better, to a group of clergy to answer."

Then, quietly, Rev. Moore concluded with, "Eventually, like the old-fashioned medicine men quacks and the money changers in the temple, the religious hucksters will be forced out. But this can only come by a concentrated effort on the part of the public and ministers alike. Without your help, it cannot be done."
