Please, oh please, won't someone tell Red Skelton to stop knocking himself out and paying writers trying to be funny.

There have been few pantomime artists in the history of show business to compare with him — and certainly none today. So why not capitalize on his true talent, instead of wasting energy he can ill afford?

The O'Brien Family, Banning

Never heard it put so well as a writer from Temple City in regard to the Lawrence Welk show: it is a burlesque show for sure.

The Lennon sisters are lovely and Myron is great, but Alice Lon certainly can't and hasn't taken Roberta's place on the show.

We used to think the Welk show was great, and wouldn't miss it. But now we watch Hopalong Cassidy and Range Rider; they are much more interesting and entertaining.

Don't! Don't! Don't cut off Elvis' hair. You can't do it. Please don't give him a butch. Where would Louis Armstrong be without his horn. Or Pat Boone without his white buck shoes?

I was happy to see that I'm not the only admirer of Michael Ansara. As "Cochise" in Broken Arrow never before have I seen such acting. A rare thing these days.

My eloquent praise for the most sincere and genuine man on TV — Paul Coates — the man who dares to be himself.

Milton Berle went down the TV drain because he hogged his whole program. Well — Steve Allen is doing exactly the same thing. Only much worse.

Mrs. V. H., Hawthorne

It's sure nice seeing Betty White on TV again. And our family agrees that she has an excellent show in Date With The Angels. And her co-star Bill Williams is such a good actor.

Also, we were pleasantly surprised at the Plymouth commercials. They were short and direct. Which is indeed a change in the usual blah-blah of most TV commercials.

Selecting the right stories by the right writers for the right personalities has made story consultant William Kozlenko

Guardian Angel to the Stars

By Dave Vowell

WILLIAM KOZLENKO IS AUTHOR of "Men and Women," "Acts of Violence," and "Jacob Comes Home," a short play which won the National Thespian Award in 1942. He has a novel, "Star in the Dust," in preparation.

GUARDIAN ANGELS come in strange guises, but in television, and especially at Revue Productions, he goes by the name of William Kozlenko. It is his job to provide and recommend story material to stars when they want to appear in a video play.

Television is both a prodigious devourer of writers and a frightening electronic giant that makes even the most blase stars think twice before going in front of the cameras.

Most of them approach TV as they might a cobra—scared stiff. Because they are afraid of not appearing at their best with twenty million or more viewers, they invariably beat a path to Kozlenko's door to confer directly or indirectly with him about the stories and parts they want to play.

Kozlenko, story consultant for Revue, is the man who finds and recommends material.

"There are plenty of TV scripts floating around Hollywood," he explained, "but good ones are rare. And when an established star decides to take the video plunge, he or she isn't worried about the money in it. They can't keep much of it anyhow.

"The stars are after good stories, off-beat parts that will not only make them look good but the kind of roles they don't usually play in pictures."

Abundance

Kozlenko, who selects and recommends stories for the General Electric Theatre, Playhouse of Stars, Studio 57, and the upcoming show, Crisis, has approximately 75,000 short stories and plays in his library, sufficient to provide the needs of these and other dramatic programs. Somewhere among all these anthologies and collections is the appropriate vehicle for a particular star. Often he comes up with three or four stories and lets the producer and the star take their choice. When the final selection is made, it is then turned over to a writer who whips up a script angled at showing the star off at best advantage.

Kozlenko's ability to come up with the right combination has made him invaluable to those performers who might ordinarily shy away from television. Being himself a noted writer and editor of Seventeen play and story anthologies, one of which he did in association with Ernest Hemingway, Kozlenko has proven himself to be quite adept in finding story material for stars making their TV debuts.

Among those who have availed themselves of Kozlenko's story and play experience are Greer Garson, Gene Kelly, Bette Davis, Donna Reed, Linda Darnell, Tony Curtis, Piper Laurie, Robert Cummings, Lew Ayres and Celeste Holm. He has also provided winners for Rosalind Russell, Ray Milland, Jimmy Stewart, Henry Fonda, and dozens of others.

Play's the Thing

"It's been said many times," he declared, "that the story is the most important thing. The best actor can look like an amateur if the play isn't right.

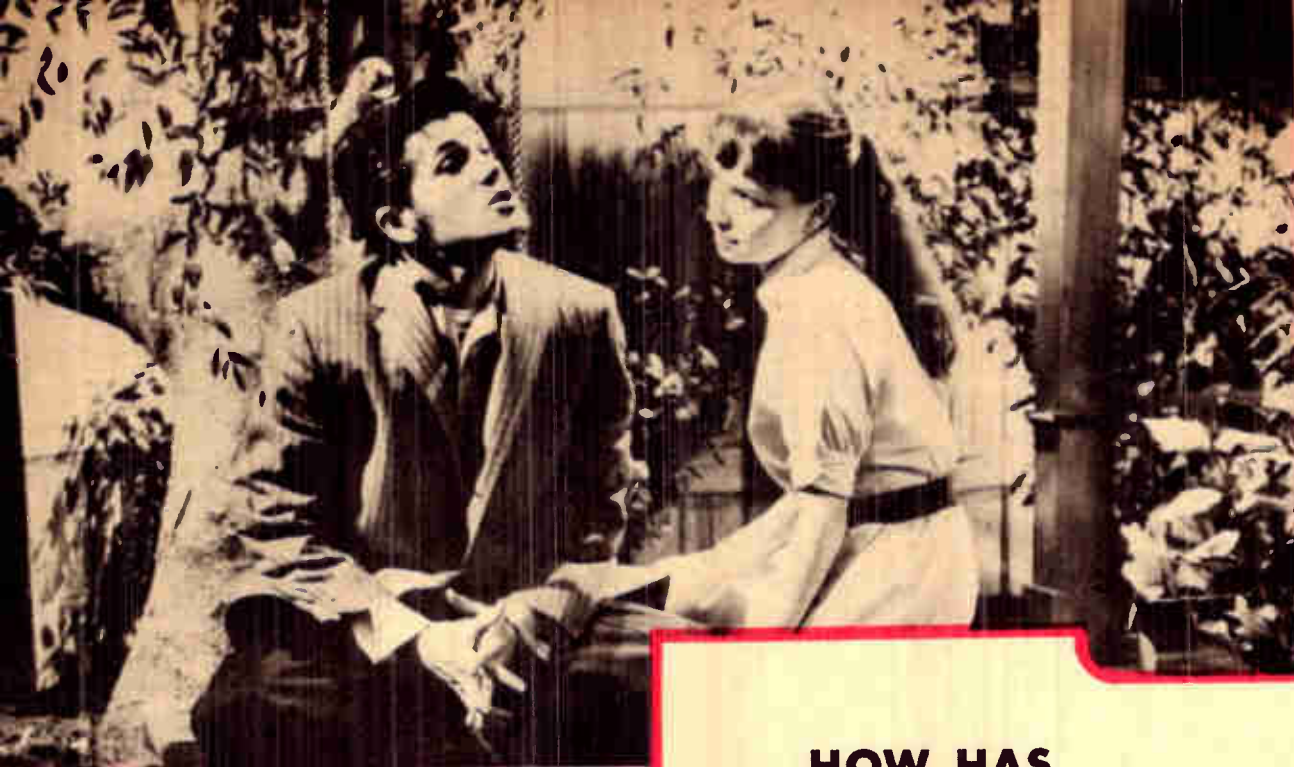

"The stars realize no matter how good their performance, if the story doesn't fit them like a wardrobe, their careers can be hurt. And performers, just like the public itself, are getting more selective all the time.

"It's even affected motion pictures. If a producer doesn't come up with a top-notch script or story he'll have difficulty getting big-name players."

Kozlenko believes that TV drama is gradually catching up with motion pictures—thanks to the ever more discriminating viewer. "Audiences can flip the dial when they get mediocre programs," he declared. "In the movies, because they had paid to get in, they just have to sit around and suffer."

Kozlenko is determined to continue finding even more unusual and outstanding story material that will not only attract other stars and make them and the sponsors happy, but will strive to broaden the scope of the television play and ultimately break through the barriers and restrictions of censorship and taboos to win an even larger audience. He, for one, doesn't underestimate the intelligence of the average viewer. Give him or her a play that is provocative, entertaining and adult, and presented skillfully and in good taste, Mr. and Mrs. Average American will respond intelligently and enthusiastically.

"THE SINGING IDOL" on Kraft was Tommy's debut into big time and it made him a star overnight. This is a scene from the show.

HOW HAS

Tommy Sands

TAKEN HIS SUCCESS?

CERTAINLY the hottest young star in show business today is 19-year-old Tommy Sands.

Six months ago Tommy was just a kid who sang very well on Cliffie Stone's Hometown Jamboree. He also had recorded a song called "Teen-Age Crush" for Capitol Records. Then he did a Kraft Theatre show, "The Singing Idol," his record was released, and Tommy Sands became the hottest name in the business.

Records —

His first record for Capitol — his first for anyone for that matter — is well on its way to the 2,000,000 sales mark. In fact, Tommy got his gold record for a million sales very shortly after the release. It was the fastest breaking record in the history of Capitol except for Tennessee Ernie's "16 Tons." Tommy's first album, "Steady Date" is also going great. The same success story applies to Tommy's latest singles: "Goin' Steady" backed by "Ring My Phone" and "My Love Song" backed by "Ring-A-Ding-A-Ding."

TV certainly made a star out of Tommy. He recently played an engagement at the Roxy Theatre in New York and was such a sensation he was held over for an extra week. The huge mob at the stage door waiting for him forced the theatre to set up a table in the lobby so Tommy could sign autographs — and so he could get out the stage door. But even this helped but little since the adoring fans still hounded the door.

Tommy also had to move from his hotel to an undisclosed place because of the kids who swarmed all over him. It was even impossible for him to walk down a street without a guard. This was his second visit to New York — and a real eye-opener to him. The first time in New York was for the Kraft show and Tommy was known by no one.

"I just couldn't believe all that happened to me in New York the last time," Tommy said, shaking his head. "I don't get it."

None of Tommy's closest friends, except possibly Cliffie Stone, his manager, and Mickey Freeman, his press agent, expected there to be such a furore over him. There is no longer any doubt in anyone's mind, though, that Tommy is on his way.

Life Changed?

Tommy's life hasn't changed much otherwise since his success.

"About the only real changes are that I bought a convertible Ford," Tommy said. "I always walked everywhere. And my mother and I moved out of the no-bedroom apartment we used to have into a two-bedroom one. Nothing else has changed."

Tommy is, naturally, different as a person in that he has more confidence, more assurance, and more maturity now. When he talks you get the feeling he knows exactly what he wants, where he's going, what matters.

Tommy's primary ambition now is to be a good entertainer — to be an actor of note, to do night club work, to make good records. "I want to be good in all phases of show business," Tommy has said. "And the more pressure I get put on me, the more challenges the better. I like to have to work hard for something."

He has met challenges with determination since he was eight. This was when he started a career. He taught himself to play a guitar which his family bought for him on the installment plan. However, he was not allowed to take the instrument until it was all paid for so he'd go to the store and play in the back room. He was eight when the final payment was made.

With that he went to a radio station and was given a job there. As the years went on, he got a job in Chicago where he was born on August 27, 1937 on a local TV show called "Lady of the Mountain." Then he returned to Shreveport where he was active as a deejay and TV personality.

TOMMY WAS THE SURPRISED SUBJECT of Ralph Edwards' NBC-KRCA This Is Your Life. On hand to honor him on the show were Capitol Records' Ken Nelson, left, and Tennessee Ernie Ford. That's the gold record Ken gave Tommy for "Teen-Age Crush" which sold over a million copies in record time.

"After that my mother and I went to Houston where I went to high school and did radio and TV work," Tommy said. "It was here I got my first chance at acting — with the Alley Theatre."

While at Houston Tommy was discovered by Colonel Tom Parker, Presley's manager, who signed him to a contract and gave him the country music belt to play. After this he came to Hollywood where he met Clifflie Stone, auditioned, got a job with Clifflie's show, and became his client.

Ken Nelson

Another man has had much to do with Tommy's career too. He is Ken Nelson who produces records for Capitol. In fact, it was Ken who not only launched Tommy's record success but also produced the first pop record, "Young Love," for Sonny James and Gene Vincent's first record — both sold over a million each.

Ken met Tommy three or four years ago. At the time he thought Tommy had talent but he advised the kid to wait.

"I felt his voice was a little immature then," Ken has commented. "But I did tell him to come to see me at Capitol in three or four years and we'd sign him."

When Clifflie took on Tommy he contacted Ken, who was a friend of his, and the first record got underway. Tommy also signed with Capitol.

Tommy is very serious about every phase of his work. He can take criticism and direction easily. When it comes to his records he leaves most of the decisions up to Ken as to the numbers he will record, but Tommy has also made some good suggestions. Capitol, incidentally, is probably the most lenient of all recording companies with its talent in that it doesn't dictatorially insist that a performer record only numbers of its own choosing.

Tommy knows what is right and what is wrong for him. He is a perfectionist too in his work. This is an attitude that Ken Nelson highly respects.

Romance?

Now that Tommy is idolized by so many young girls it is natural to wonder about his own private life. He does have dates — mainly with Molly Bee, Judy Meredith, and Gigi Perreau.

"I don't care what a girl looks like so much as I want her to be companionable," Tommy said. "And it's great if she can ride a horse since riding is my favorite sport. It's important to me that she is spiritual-minded, that she has a faith, and that she likes a home. As for a career, I don't care if she is in show business or not.

"However, I'm not getting serious with anybody now. I'm young. I have plenty of time. And I've a lot to do before I feel I'm ready for marriage."

That "lot to do" item is the understatement of the year. Tommy Sands is undoubtedly the show business find of 1957. And his increasingly crowded calendar and his growing bank account will prove that to him.

CLIFFIE STONE has been the guiding light behind Tommy's success. Here the two discuss a song during a record session at Capitol. Tommy still appears on Clifflie's KTLA Hometown Jamboree show.

CELEBRATING FLAG DAY, Lt. Rip Masters hangs an American flag with its 48 stars and glances at a replica of the original American flag, immediate predecessor of the first standard with 13 stars. appearances by himself as just Jim L. Brown.

"Recently in San Jose after a rodeo," said Jim, "three or four giggling teenage girls stood in line waiting for an autographed picture. As one of the girls rather bashfully requested a picture for her little brother, the girl in back of her yelled 'Don't let her kid you. She hasn't any little brother. She wants it for herself.'"

Jim feels that because he has become so identified with Screen Gems' Rin Tin Tin, which many people think is just for kids, some teenagers and adults are embarrassed to admit they want the pictures for themselves and so ask for autographs for little brothers, nephews or grandsons. Actually, Rin Tin Tin is not just a children's show. It has a large adult audience.

While he travels many thousands of miles a year on personal appearance tours for the show, and to aid in Multiple Sclerosis telethons, most of the time Jim is able to be at home with his wife, Betty, and three daughters.

Suburbanite

"I thoroughly enjoy my home. Like most of the people in the San Fernando Valley where I live, I spend a good deal of time weekends puttering about the yard. I like to make things in my woodworking shop — sometimes far into the night when I get enthusiastic about a project. I even built my own redwood fence."

Jim's favorite sport is tennis. He went out for it in college and was discovered by a Hollywood agent while playing in a tournament in California. His first step in show business was touring as a singer, then movies and eventually television.

"One of my few luxuries," said Jim, "is my own tennis court. I've just finished it and plan to use it not only for my own pleasure but to help youngsters. Jack Kramer and I are going to teach kids to play. We think it is one way we can contribute to community efforts."

JHAT DASHING young cavalry lieutenant in the pretty uniform isn't really Rip Masters. He's just plain

Jim Brown, neighbor, who puts up his own redwood fences; putters around in the yard weekends, builds things in his woodworking shop and teaches youngsters to play tennis. Talking to Jim is like visiting with the guy next door because of his easy, friendly personality.

"Kids, of course, know me only as Lt. Rip Masters, but I'm always happy to learn that their young mothers remember me from the movies as Jim L. Brown. Teenagers who watch Rin Tin Tin are more aware of my double identity, they know me as Rip Masters and also recognize me in some of the old movies now being seen on television. Many of them also know me from my records."

I was starting out in the movies," Jim volunteered.

Having played a variety of parts in the movies, Jim doesn't want to be typecast in television. "I'd rather like to do other television roles, and since it isn't forbidden in my contract, as it is with some stars, I'm looking forward to an occasional role in a different type of show. I'm also going to do more recording... in fact I wouldn't mind a bit being a mature Tommy Sands," said Jim grinning.

Singing

"White Buffalo" which Jim recorded over two years ago is one of the most popular of his several songs on MGM label, and is still a current jukebox favorite. He'd like to sing more songs on the Rin Tin Tin show, but only if they're integrated. "I don't want to just stop in the middle of the desert and burst into song," he exclaimed. However, he expects to have a new record released in the Fall and it is possible that it may be worked into the show.

As Lt. Rip Masters, Jim travels all over the country making personal appearance tours with his co-stars, O'Hara, Rusty and Rinty, and he also makes

THE DRESS-ALIKE oldsters have a few words to say to KTLA Polka Parade host Dick Sinclair. What their comment might have been has been lost to posterity.

TURNED DOWN $25,000

SHIRLEY TEMPLE BLACK DREW a full house for her press conference in NBC-Burbank's executive lounge. She acquitted herself beautifully. What a lovely, poised, unassuming young matron! Facing a solid wall of reporters and photographers, Shirley answered queries about her hosting duties on 16 NBC fairy tales to be presented at various times beginning Jan. 12 (first one pre-empts the choice Steve Allen slot).

SHIRLEY, OBVIOUSLY PLEASED to see many familiar faces, said money was a consideration secondary to quality and stories in deciding to yield to TV's lure. Naturally with her stache this might be expected. She explained she had already turned down a six-minute monologue on a big TV show because it was "a very morbid sort of thing." It would have paid $25,000. "I told my friends about this and they were very respectful for a week," she laughed.

AS MRS. CHARLES BLACK, she is up to her pretty neck in community activities in Atherton, on the peninsula south of San Francisco. She belongs to seven charity groups, last year was vice-president of the Mothers' Club at the private school where her nine-year-old Susan was president of her class. "Mommy, you're not doing as well as I am," Susan pointed out. Last year Shirley was very active in the Peninsula Theater Association. She painted sets, did make-up and tackled publicity. "They're boasting they got me this job," she chuckled.

"I HAD 11 NEWSPAPERS to service so I got lots of thin paper and lots of carbon," she continued while the press, traditionally and violently opposed to "dupe handouts," let out a roar. "But I never saw stories," Shirley confessed. "Finally I called Joe Reddy and he set me straight. I bought nice heavy paper, typed double-space (with one finger) left wide margins, re-wrote the leads and put 'exclusive' on each one."

SHIRLEY WAS ATTRACTED TO HER new TV job because she expects she will be able to film a large portion of her part a day at a time in Hollywood. She doesn't want to be away longer than that from her husband, who is manager of business operations for Stanford Research Institute, and the three children, Susan, Charlie (now five) and Lori, three. Lori apparently is the thespian of the group. "She would certainly like to be a Shirley Temple," her mother claimed. The children love to see their mother's first 10-minute short films and their father often runs Shirley's full length features for them. "I go to bed," the ex-child star emphasized.

Looking trim as ever in a princess plaid cotton, Shirley admitted she had just the day before had her dark brown

Tunnel

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

Up to Las Vegas with Joe Bleeden of NBC to do a few interviews and get blistered by that desert heat. We stayed at the Flamingo where Jack Benny and Gisele MacKenzie were holding sway and where press man Bert Perry and manager Dan Merrin all but gave us the very elegant Flamingo. As for Jack and Gisele, they made night club history. Jack remarked how very nervous he was opening night and yet when I caught the act you would have thought he'd been in clubs all his life. As a matter of fact, he has quietly confided he was beginning to enjoy the whole thing. His show was a knockout — one of the best anyone in Vegas or anywhere else ever saw. Jack uncorked his usual brand of humor, such as his first remark when he ambled on stage to loud applause. There was a pause while he surveyed the audience. In his droll manner, he said, "He looks so much younger on TV — that's what you're thinking, isn't it?" In commenting about his stint he said, "This night club business is an easy life. You do two shows a night, get to bed by 4:30 or 5:00 and then just when you get to sleep a bomb goes off at 5:15 and lights up your whole room." Naturally he had to talk about his stinginess. As he explained it, "I'm not stingy. In fact, I throw my money away." A pause and he added, "Not far." In describing his eyes, which he said were blue, he remarked "They're a lazy lagoon blue." Jack, in short, was great. And so was Gisele, who displayed more versatility and talent than you expect even from her. You'll be reading more about her in a future issue of TV-Radio Life.

That same evening went to the Dunes to see Larry Steele's "Smart Affairs" show which was a fast-paced, spirited sepia revue with Sir Lionel doing a shocker of a dance. Dressed in gold paint and not much else he really jolted the midnight show audience. Rochester, from Jack Benny's manse, was starred on the bill but he hadn't had a chance to break in his act enough yet. He did some good dance numbers but his comedy material wasn't up to his standard.

The next day was at the Sahara to talk to Ray Bolger who was opening there. Ray had just wound up Washington Square for NBC-TV and I was interested in his new TV plans.

"TV plans for next year are nil," Ray remarked. "I don't want to do a series show again, and that's definite. To try to do a musical comedy show each week is dynamite. I used to wake up in the middle of the night almost yelling from the tension of trying to think of a new idea for a dance routine.

"Washington Square did help to get me an entirely new audience who hadn't seen me before. If we had had that show on at night I think it would have been a big success. The Sunday afternoon slot was murder. But NBC had no network night spot open for us next year so we had to call it off. For the present, I am making no plans, although I'm considering a Broadway show, possibly Meredith Willson's 'Music Man.'

"One of the reasons I feel Washington Square didn't become the hit it could have been was because we weren't able to establish a family of real 'characters' around the Square. Consequently, I felt we only had a title and we had no time to establish a format, a definite groundwork."

Thanks again to Joe Bleeden and NBC for the Las Vegas whirl.

Nat "King" Cole has a new half hour show on NBC now — and if any sponsor is real smart he'll latch on to this program. This could be a clever move. It's hard for anyone to understand why Nat has no sponsor — as yet. But NBC deserves credit for backing him up not only with faith but with time. He opens at the Grove the 17th.

IT ISN'T often that I find myself with nothing to say at the opening of this column, but it happens, sometimes.

"Journey Into Fear" (9) Beginning July 22, 9:00. 1945 something. Adapted from the Eric Ambler novel by Orson Welles and Joseph Cotten and starring Orson Welles and Joseph Cotten, this Orson Welles production about espionage and important papers in Central Europe is short on clear, concise plotting but long on suspense, characterization and humor. Cotten is an American businessman who gets mixed up with spies, is shot at several times for no apparent reason and thus is forced to become a hero. The Turkish chief of police is played in a grand, foaming manner by . . . oh, yes, Orson Welles and the cast includes Dolores Del Rio and Everett Sloane.

"He Walked By Night." (2) July 20, Midnight. 1948. Produced under the auspices of the L.A. Police Department, this documentary thriller is a gripping enactment of a cop killing and the resultant chase and capture of the murderer, played with finesse and insight by Richard Bosehart. Among the cops assigned to the case are Scott Brady and Jack Webb. Hm . . . I think there's a possibility for a TV series in this movie.

"Brother Rat." (5) July 22, 7:30. 1938. Sticking closely to the original stage farce, this comedic romp in a military academy stars Ronald Reagan, Wayne Morris, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman, Priscilla Lane and Jane Bryan. There is a baseball game, a prom, a secret marriage, an unexpected pregnancy and, oh, just lots of laughs. At least, in 1938. Of all types of dramatic presentation, comedies seem to stand up the least. They just lie there.

"Cluny Brown." (2) July 20, 10:00. 1946. Margery

Pick OF THE Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

Sharpe's novel has been transferred to the screen with style and wit by Ernst Lubitsch and offers a stellar cast, including Charles Bayer, Jennifer Jones, Peter Lawford and Reginald Gardiner. (I'm open to offers to write ad copy) Jennifer is an individualistic young lady who wants to follow her father's plumbers trade but he wants her to become domesticated to learn her place in life, so she goes to work as a second maid in a country mansion. She becomes entangled in all sorts of . . . of . . . entanglements, both romantic and chromium plated, and Charles finally helps her out. He's sort of a plumber's helper, I guess you'd say. I know I wouldn't. I've got class.

"Sentimental Journey." (11) July 21, 9:00. 1945. A tear jerker of the first water, this film relates the tale of a devoted theatrical couple, John Payne and Maureen O'Hara, and the problem John has in adjusting to their adopted daughter after Maureen's death. A sad picture with a warm ending, and I think that's necessary.

"The Thief." (13) July 23, 8:30. This is an interesting experiment in sound . . . or the lack of it. Ray Milland is a government scientist maneuvered into betraying his country and the entire story is told without the use of dialogue. Some of the dialogue I've heard, lately, I could do without. And this picture does.

"Heaven With a Barbed Wire Fence." (2) July 26, 11:00. To keep them in? Or me out?

TRIP TIPS

By Jack McElroy

Sixty miles South of Los Angeles lies the charming little town of Laguna Beach and between July 20th and August 18th, it will be the scene of the 22nd Annual Festival of Arts and Pageant of the Masters. This is a must-see for anyone even vaguely interested in art.

In the old days, the painters had the habit of hanging their work on downtown fences to attract the attention of tourists. Now, of course, they have a first class art gallery.

Artist Norman St. Clair is credited with discovering the charming little beach area in 1900.

One of the world's most beautiful restaurants, Victor Hugo Inn, gives guests a magnificent view of the town and beaches.

If you are looking for a perfect package for a two-week vacation, I would suggest the following:

It's a 13-day, round trip to Florida, Cuba and Mexico. You have three days in Miami, four in Havana and four in Mexico.

Included are nightclub tours, limousine tours of the cities and points of interest in Taxco, Cuernavaca, Mexico City, Havana, the Cuban countryside, and the Miami Beach area.

The all inclusive price is $628.00 including the airfare. The fall of the year would be a lovely time to make this interesting journey.

Hope to talk to you on my two travel service programs over Channel 4 on Friday evening at 6:15 p.m. and Saturday afternoon at 5:00 p.m.

hair trimmed into an upswept style "because my husband likes my hair short." Asked whether any of her children had Temple curls, Mrs. Black said Lori had golden ones. Apparently Lori is also a quick study like her mom, but Shirley is not too hopeful or desirous of a career for her younger daughter. "I am a great believer in right times. Rin Tin Tin and I were in the same boat. It was the perfect time for a dog and a little girl to work in pictures. Prosperity was just around the corner. Now is not the correct time." To which a reporter pulled a lot of laughs by cracking, "If it's going to take another depression to make the correct time, let's keep Lori home."

THE PRESS CONFERENCE broke up with flash bulbs popping in all directions while Shirley patiently posed, although she was anxious to go behind scenes at Matinee Theater. "I've never been in a big television studio before," she said somewhat wistfully.

Here's How to Gussie Up A BEEF STEW

ANITA BENNETT is the Director of Home Economics for the Los Angeles Mirror-News. TV Radio Life does not have a home economist but Evelyn Bigsby makes very good fudge, if it hardens.

Miss Bennett has suggested in print (Thank you Anita dear) that you top KoldKist Beef Stew with onion pinwheel biscuits. And then this splendid woman goes on to say this:

"If you're the type who has a 'guilty' feeling after serving a meal of completely ready-made foods..." and she goes on to suggest various personal touches that you could add to such too-easy-to-fix dishes as those made, for example, with KoldKist's eleven wonderful frozen cooked foods and meat products.

Personally we don't think any wife need have a feeling of guilt for serving KoldKist straight and neat — but if you really want to put a little of yourself into such delicious dishes as our SIRLOIN TIPS WITH MUSHROOMS AND SAUCE or KoldKist CREAMED CHICKEN, there are two ways to go about it. One way is to think up new ideas of your own, such as grated rind of jelly beans on the creamed chicken and maybe little personalized Christmas trees stuck in each plate of beef stew.

That's one way to give meals a personal touch. Another way is to help yourself to a dozen or so wonderful ideas for putting a little extra buzz into the already-yummy KoldKist specialties — ideas contained and explained in our small but valuable file of cookery tips for KoldKist users. Just mail the coupon. You'll be let in on some secrets... an easy way to serve Beef Stroganoff for example.

WALDO, A Walter-Mittyish kind of character who carries the commercial ball for Dodge Division on the ABC-TV Lawrence Welk Show, in his first film is given a parade for having rescued the girl of his dreams, Rita Colton, from a gang of thugs.

WALDO, played by professional Donn Driver, arrives at Fort Lauderdale Country Club and the Boca Raton Hotel to film an African safari commercial.

RITA COLTON and Donn Driver make an "inspiring" commercial, aided and abetted by the Grant Advertising Company, called "B'Wana Waldo." It was "filmed in its entirety" in native Florida, where cannibals and prop tigers were a tourist attraction.

Adventure Theater
Saturday, 10:30 p.m.,
KRCA, Ch. 4

LED GENTLY into the Saturday summer night line-up by host Paul Douglas, Adventure Theater looms as something a bit more substantial than a mere replacement for the Hit Parade. And for those fans who prefer well-done mystery and suspense instead of the current musical tastes Adventure Theater is replacing, this Saturday time slot offers good entertainment.

It should be noted that the series is English-made. I say this not as an appeal to the Anglophile or a threat to the Anglophobe, but simply because there is a point to be made. There seems to be an unmistakable quality to the British-made thriller which pertains to their stage plays, pictures, and in this instance, to the television film. Perhaps it is the awareness that the criminal first of all is a human being and that his acts of criminality affect a wider circle of human beings than the proverbial corpse and cops that make up the stock American thriller. Thus, we see a criminal first as a human character with actual relationships with those about him rather than as a quarry whose whole existence is somewhat in the nature of a mechanical greyhound to be pursued by the law.

With this emphasis on character, the pace, insofar as physical action, is much slower, permitting the building of suspense on interplay of character which intensifies the suspense element by deepening and broadening it rather than following a too thin line of development based solely on physical derring-do.

Achieving this calls for a goodly amount of significant detail in exploration of the character and his relationship to others. Emphasis on character as the mainspring of any story, suspense or otherwise, eliminates any stereotype concept of the criminal and bears out the fact that the most charming, quaint, or delightful individual may be a sinister human, and all the more repugnant because of a superficial likability. In short, the British quite soundly refuse to recognize that there is a so-called criminal type easily recognizable by every man, woman and child.

Fortunately this is carried out in casting by "casting against" the role with actors possessing a quality quite foreign to the generally accepted criminal expected by audiences. Such a device, of course, greatly heightens the effect of reality. Casting in this series is excellent, as is the direction.

Although the thought of a show being listed as a summer replacement often has an unfortunately derogatory connotation, it is a consumation devoutly to be wished that Adventure Theater might permanently replace some of the current efforts at suspense stuff.

AROUND THE SPORTS CIRCLE ...WITH HANK WEAVER

OLGA AND HAROLD, both Olympic stars, achieved world fame recently when Harold traveled to Europe and married his bride—proving that at least love, if nothing else, can penetrate the Iron Curtain.

INTRIGUED by everything and everyone they see—particularly each other—the young, athletic and extremely happy couple was fascinated (as most people are) by one of Hank's many pipes. As always, the congenial and understanding ABC-TV sportscaster made both of them feel at home—even in front of the cameras.

AS FAR as I'm concerned, there is no one like David Niven. This is the funniest, the most interesting, the most likable, the most charming man you'll ever meet. He is, in fact, the most.

This man who is now being seen on KNXT in a series of re-runs of his Four Star shows titled David Niven Presents had just finished making "My Man Godfrey" for Universal-International and was about to leave for Europe to make "Bonjour Tristesse" with Deborah Kerr. But he was more than a little excited about the new deal Four Star has entered into for the next season — a little package involving about $5,550,000.

"And we have such chic sponsors!" David grinned.

New Program

Four Star is going to make 39 anthology films for Alcoa and Goodyear and 39 Zane Grey Theaters for General Foods and Ford and 39 Texas Rangers under the title of "Trackdown" for General Foods. Then there are the 13 Richard Diamond shows for General Foods.

"As I said before, you can see what really chic sponsors we have," David repeated with a sly grin. Only he would ever think of referring to sponsors as chic.

"I will do seven shows as will Jack Lemmon and Robert Ryan," David went on. "Jane Powell will do not quite that many and Charles Boyer will make about two in Europe. Dick Powell will, of course, continue with the Zane Grey Theater."

At this point the waiter at the Beverly Hills Hotel arrived for our luncheon order.

"What's that salad that's chopped up till there's hardly anything left of it?"

David asked, "Whatever it is, that's what I want."

"Altogether, our new project is thoroughly delightful. We are happily spending $5,500,000 of other people's money and enjoying it hugely.

TV Big Aid

"Frankly, I love doing TV, although I don't know what the viewers think of it. I have had some frightfully angry letters from some people. My prize fan letter is one from a woman who said that she had two favorite pictures — one of me and one of a crab leaving a pool.

"TV saved my bacon. Before TV came along, though, I was in a horrid mess. It was like Ocean Park gone mad. I was in the depths of the sea beneath Ocean Park. This was five years ago when what are laughingly known as movie stars was told by studios that if they did TV they would never again and various and sundry other matters.

see the inside of a motion picture studio. Well, I wasn't seeing the inside of one anyway so I didn't see what I could lose.

"I had a chance to produce my own shows and to play parts I liked. I did the first live Schlitz Playhouse with Helen Hayes six years ago, in fact. I shall never forget that show.

"In one scene Helen was to be sitting at my right. Then she had to make a fast change and suddenly appear, supposedly years later, but this time on my left side. She couldn't get around behind the cameras because there wasn't time, she couldn't get to her room, so she literally crawled over me, changing a bit of costume as she did. Then up she bobbed on the other side. She said later, 'How did you feel that time I crawled across you?' I replied, 'I just looked at that charming expanse of red flannel crossing over me and then I asked what her reaction was. Helen laughed, 'I could only think as I was crossing over your bony Scottish knees, here I've spent 35 years in the theater and I have come to this!'"

David is full of such stories, but my favorite is the one dealing with his not so impressionable youth.

He was in rather bad financial straits and then one day he heard that London hospitals would pay $25 if a person would will his body to them for research.

"This seemed like a jolly convenient way to get needed money," David remarked, "so I proceeded to sell myself to eight different hospitals. My brother heard about this and became frightfully upset. He promptly marched over to these hospitals, paid them back the $25 and then presented me to myself for Christmas.

Heading Four Star are David, Dick Powell, and Charles Boyer.

"Dick is the business manager because he always used to arrive carrying a brief case," David said. "He kept that up until I told him one day that was how Hitler got it. Charles was the financial advisor because he is the foxy Frenchman. As for me — there was no particular job left so I was named publicity director. We're now in the fifth year of business."

Of the Four Star films David has done he is especially fond of "The Answer," "The Collar," and "The Tunnel of Fear."

"But I like doing almost anything as long as it isn't having to play comedy that's not very funny. There's nothing as terrible as that.

"My favorite review, however, is one that I have framed and which hangs on the wall. It was the result of my first American picture for Samuel Goldwyn called 'Splendor.' This critic wrote: 'In this picture we are privileged to see Samuel Goldwyn's latest discovery. All we can say about this actor (?) is that he is tall, dark, and not the slightest bit handsome.' I love that one!"

When David was asked whether he preferred making films to TV he said, "I look upon myself as a plumber. If someone has a burst pipe I'll go."

He has certainly mended his share of pipes!

"THE ANSWER" was one of David Niven's favorite shows. It was repeated in the David Niven Presents series on KNXT.

ONE OF THE ROLES to show most startlingly his versatility was "The Collar" in which David plays an Anglican priest. With him in this scene is Abraham Sofaer.

With Johnny Jacob's success in the oil business, KNX-CBS' "Second Cup of Coffee Club" might well be called . . . . .

Second Cup of Oil

By Dave Vowell

"THERE'S OIL IN THAT THERE BOTTLE!" That's Johnny Jacobs with the bottle — the only oil he has seen yet from the oil wells he has invested in. The fellow on the left is Harry Babbitt, he and Johnny are up to something every morning on KNX-Radio's "The Second Cup of Coffee Club."

THERE'S ALSO OIL ON THAT CANVAS — This guy really dabbles in oil! When Johnny's not looking for oil in the ground he finds it in a tube and spreads it on canvas. Both the looking and the spreading have turned out pretty good.

AFTER EIGHT YEARS with Harry Babbitt, Johnny Jacobs of the daily KNX-CBS "Second Cup of Coffee Club" has struck oil.

Although he's far from being an oil tycoon, Johnny does have holdings in five producing wells in Oklahoma and Texas — wells, by the way, which he has never seen.

"The only oil from my wells that I have seen," Johnny says, "came in a bottle."

"Last year while I was doing a summer replacement stint on Art Linkletter's 'House Party' I received a huge package. When I finally got it unwrapped, I found a small bottle of oil with a note explaining that it was oil from my first well. The next day I received a bill for about three hundred dollars to pay for drilling a few more feet. I could have bought cheaper oil at a drug store."

However wry that may sound, Johnny is actually very much enthused over the oil business. Commenting on the five straight gushers that he has hit, he said "It's like drawing to an inside straight in poker and hitting it every time — but there is always the large possibility that you might miss."

Even the hits take a long time to materialize. It has taken two years for Johnny to realize any return at all on his initial investment. Only in the last two months has there been any profit.

"In my kind of investment," he says, "a fellow can't get rich over night. I'm not a wildcatter. I invest in good solid adjacencies — leases that are pretty close to oil producing fields. If there is a dry hole within smelling distance, I'd rather put my money in the bank."

And that's a rule of thumb that he has followed ever since he started investing — and how he started is a story in itself.

"It seems that television is the root of it," relates Johnny. "I have a friend who is a television film salesman. He sold some film to a television station in Oklahoma that was owned by an oil man. My friend came away convinced of the soundness of oil investments and the honesty of the man. He convinced me — and here I am."

And where he is, is right in the middle of a five-well operation involving investments in three different oil companies in two states — Oklahoma and Texas — plus some leases in northern California that look, according to Johnny, "interesting."

Investing in oil is a dangerous business, "oil man" Jacobs warns and advises potential investors "to first be sure of the honesty of the person or firm, or better still, unless you are absolutely sure, deal with an established investment broker."

What does Johnny's lovely wife Virginia think of all this?

"In a phrase," Johnny smiles, "she doesn't like it. She asks me where all our savings are and the only answer I can give her is a ride on the Freeway and a look at all those exhaust pipes. 'There it is, honey,' I say, 'going up in smoke.'"

At $12 a Minute

'Martin Kane'

Has to be a Fast-Talker

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

A FAMILIAR PICTURE to KTTV mystery-detective fans: William Gargan as private-eye "Martin Kane," with merry ole England as the setting.

AT $12 A MINUTE, you can't afford to sit and waste words. And that's exactly what it costs to talk to Bill Gargan, the star of KTTV's The New Adventures of Martin Kane.

It's not that Bill is such a big shot. Or that he's being paid that much. It's merely because he happens to be in England at the present time, filming the detective series on location throughout Europe. Talking long-distance to England costs just that: $12 a minute.

"Yes, that's right," Bill explains on the phone. "I'm talking to you from London. I have a suite here. Say, you sound as if you were right here in London making a local call. It's that clear."

"Listen, I wish I were," I remarked.

"Have you ever been in England," Gargan the detective asks, forgetting for the moment that he is the TV star who is supposed to be giving the answers.

"Yes. About seven years ago. How are things in England? Do the people still have austere lives? Isn't it strange that England always wins the wars, but seems to lose the economic battle which follows?" I asked.

"Some articles are still scarce over here," the KTTV star explains. "But you very seldom find the people complaining about it. They're just great. Believe me. You have no idea of how wonderful we've been treated since we've been here.

"When did you arrive in England, Bill? And when are you coming back?"

"We arrived in June. And should be through shooting by September. We'll have 39 films done."

Back Where He Started

"You were the original Martin Kane, weren't you Bill?"

"Yes. That's right. It was on live TV back in New York at that time, if you remember."

"Yes, I do."

"I left the role in 1951 to do some other parts. Three other guys subsequently played the part."

"Why did you re-sign for the role? I should think you'd be pretty sick of it by now."

"We've changed Martin Kane in numerous ways," he explained. "He's no longer the smart-cracking private eye who is always at odds with the police. This time, he's a former Air Force officer who stayed in England after the World War II. He works closely with the Embassies and private industries in solving peoples' problems—primarily Americans.

"Instead of being such a wise guy, Kane is a little more dignified, reputable, smart, expensive, and even a homebody. But he's still willing to take a chance doing things the regular police have no immediate authority to do.

"So this new approach to Martin Kane interested me," Gargan continues. "And I'll have to admit that the foreign element intrigued me."

"Doesn't it seem like you are doing just that: I mean—using essentially the same format as Foreign Intrigue," I asked.

"No, not at all," Gargan replies, quite emphatically. "There's no connection between the two whatsoever. As a matter of fact, you'll never see a trench coat of any kind on any of our programs." (For viewers who haven't seen Foreign Intrigue, the trench coat is practically the Uniform-of-the-Day for the hero in the story.)

Big Bill

"We're not filming exclusively in England, either, you know," the famed actor elaborated. "We've gone all over Europe. We just returned from Garmisch in Germany, where for the first time in 28 years they stopped ski tows going up into the snow so we could get some special effects shots. It should turn out terrific."

"One review I'm reading here on your preview show, Bill, is quite complimentary to you, but knocks the program itself, saying it's strictly a commercial program, intended for a lowbrow audience."

"That's okay by me," Gargan replies, quite frankly. "As far as I'm concerned, we're making these films for the guy in Two Dot, Montana. If he can understand them, everyone will."

"What's the pound worth these days?"

"The same as always: $2.80."

"It dropped just at the time I was over there. Speaking of money, I'd better hang up—or someone will drop me. So long, Bill. Nice talking to you. We'll see you when you get back home."

Bill said goodbye. And the conversation ended.

The total bill came to $40. Which wasn't too bad, considering the cost per minute. One girl reporter, talking to the same Mr. Gargan recently, ran up a tab of $125. But then, I guess she had a lot more to say?
