VINIA HOOGSTRATEN on

Camping Trips

(Originally broadcast on "Prairie Talks")

Vinia Hoogstraten

HAVE you ever lain in a tent and listened to the sounds that replace the faraway noise and confusion of the city? Remember the soft puffing wheeze of air escaping from the mattress? The gentle pitty-pat of nature's teardrops making their way to you through the tent roof? The crash and rattle of some little woodland creature knocking things off the table you left outside? Or that most thrilling of all woodsy sounds—the whomping tearing effect of something yanking at a tent rope?

If you do remember all these things then you are a true veteran of that interesting summer adventure known as a camping trip.

There are other sounds with which you are doubtless familiar too: The hysterical whine of mosquitos on a drunken repellant jag. Two owls, one on either side of you, telling each other about all their relatives who died. The whoosh-plop, whoosh-plop of a toad or frog who has managed somehow to join you. The thundering crashing through the underbrush which I've been assured time and again is rabbits on an evening outing; and a whispering slithering sound which personally I've never had the courage to identify. There is nothing like a night in a tent to make you realize what a busy, busy place a forest is.

The best way to get the most out of these natural sound effects is to take along with you a nervous city slicker type dog. We have one who takes his responsibility as our protector so seriously that nobody for miles around gets any sleep. Another good way to make sure you don't miss anything is to bring along somebody who leaps up every fifteen minutes and says "What was that?" In our case we don't have to go outside the family because I'm one of the best in the business.

I was very startled one day when a friend of mine started a sentence with "Of course it's all right for an outdoors lover like you." I'd never thought of myself in just that way. Actually my affair with the great outdoors is a pretty shaky one. I never know what sort of little surprise packet nature has prepared for me next. Like the time I was sitting on a rock, fishing, lost in a dreamy haze of admiration for my lovely surroundings, and a great big snake came out from under my rock and gave me one of the dirtiest looks I ever saw. Or the time a porcupine sat down on my path back to the tent and wouldn't move. Or the time I sat motionless for half an hour absolutely enchanted while half a dozen chipmunks ate the cornflakes scattered around my feet and then a great big ratty looking thing came along and stampered all of us. The unsettling thing about the outdoors is that you can't depend on it.

It disheartens me to think of the number of times we've spotted a perfectly idyllic place and just had time to say "Oh, isn't this gorgeous!" before the mosquitos and black flies drove us back. Mosquitos and black flies have the keenest eye for beauty of any of nature's citizens.

Once we accidentally camped in an area where the loons of North America were holding their annual convention. This was an unforgettable experience. When you see one of these rather pretty birds floating peaceably on the water it's hard to believe that at any moment it might open its beak and make a noise like that, but believe me you haven't heard anything until you have heard them en masse.

I have never met a bear socially, but this has no effect whatever on my conviction that I'm going to come face to face with one every time I round a curve in a forest trail. I'm also immovably convinced that bears spend their entire nights circling 'round our tent or cottage.

The first thing you do on a camping trip is put up your tent. Doesn't that sound simple?—Just put up your tent. And while you test its strength

On the CoverFred Astaire and Barrie Chase

The dancers on our cover this week will be seen in a one-hour special this Wednesday night on CBC-TV. Also featured on the program are David Rose and his orchestra, the Count Basie band with vocalist Joe Williams, and a full company of dancers. Astaire and Miss Chase will dance to Tchaikovsky's Romeo and Juliet and Cole Porter's Miss Otis Regrets. The Basie band will play Not Now, I'll Tell You When and the music for an Astaire ad lib interpretation of Sweet Georgia Brown. Miss Chase and the dance company will present Sibelius' Valse Triste, and Joe Williams will sing It's a Wonderful World.

The following popular TV series return to the air this week—The Jack Kane Show (Mondays), Country Hoedown (Fridays, replacing Red River Jamboree, which moves to Saturday), Have Gun, Will Travel (Fridays), Speaking French, N.H.L. Hockey, The King Whyte Show, and Juliette (all Saturdays).

Among the new fall-winter series starting this week—Four Cities, described on page 9 (Sundays); The Red Skelton Show (Tuesdays), My Three Sons, a new domestic series starring Fred McMurray (Wednesdays), and Aquanauts, a series based on the adventures of a commercial diver (Saturdays).

A Word of Explanation . . .

Of special importance to CBWT viewers and Regina radio listeners

We suggest that readers examine this week's program listings—both radio and television—very carefully in order to avoid missing their favourite programs.

Some programs (such as "A Case for the Court" and "Red River Jamboree") have been moved to new times and new days. Some summer series have been pre-empted by the return of favourite fall-and-winter series (see above).

Southeastern Manitoba viewers especially will find many changes in the program times. Because CBWT receives its programs "live" from the network and because western Canada is reverting to standard time a month before eastern Canada, CBWT viewers will see ALL programs one hour earlier than usual during the next month. (The National Edition of CBC-TV News will be heard, for example, at 9:00 p.m. instead of 10:00 p.m.).

A special word of explanation to CBC radio listeners in Regina . . . Although the rest of Saskatchewan will be on Mountain Standard Time after September 24, Regina will go on Central Standard Time. The CBK listings in CBC Times are in Mountain time; Regina listeners must therefore add one hour to the times listed. For example, "Trans-Canada Matinee," listed Monday to Friday at 2:33 p.m., will be heard in Regina at 3:33 p.m.

PEARL BUCK On "PORTRAITS"

"THE TRUTH is, I cannot be happy without writing novels, quite irrespective of whether they are read or not," says Pearl Buck, author of over 40 novels in 25 years, many of them prize-winners and best-sellers. "I am one of those unfortunate creatures who cannot function completely unless he is writing, has written, or is about to write, a novel." And, she adds, "I don't agree with critics who complain about novelists being too prolific. What else is a writer to do but write?"

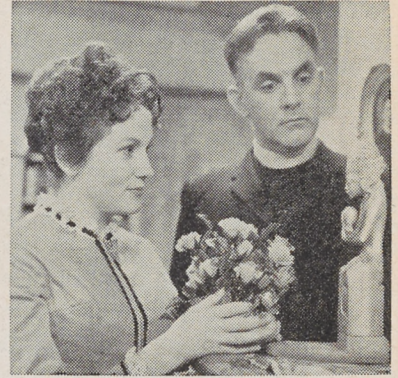

Pearl Buck is probably the most widely read interpreter of East to West. Because she spent most of the first half of her life in the Orient, mixing freely with both Chinese intellectuals and peasants, she says she is "mentally bifocal," able to understand and love two widely different cultures at the same time, and consequently she is able to depict them vividly in her writing. Probably her best-known novel is The Good Earth (1931), a long, sensitive portrait of the Orient which has become a classic, was made into a successful film, and won her a Pulitzer Prize. It took her just three months to write The Good Earth, but into it went impressions collected over 17 years of close association with Chinese peasants, whose humor, wisdom and philosophical acceptance of fate she admires profoundly and has made her own.

She will talk about her eventful career, her novels, and her outlook on life on Portraits, Saturday, Sept. 24, on CBC radio. The interview was recorded in London by Peter Reynolds, Canadian free-lance reporter currently covering the European scene.

She was born Pearl Sydensticker in 1892 in Hillsboro, West Virginia, the daughter of a broad-minded, intellectual missionary and his missionary wife who taught her "the beauty that lies in words and in what words will say." After a childhood in Chinking on the Yangtse River, educated by her mother and a Chinese tutor, Pearl Buck was sent to boarding school in Shanghai. At 17 she went to Randolph Macon College in Virginia, and after graduating in 1914 taught psychology there for a semester, then returned to China to teach. In 1917 she married Dr. John Lossing Buck, an agricultural missionary, and continued to live in China, teaching at various Chinese universities.

She began sending articles on Chinese life to American magazines with considerable success, and started work on two books. The Bucks spent a year in the States studying at Cornell University. On their return to China their Nanking home was invaded by communist revolutionary soldiers and Pearl Buck had to flee to Japan with her two daughters. When she returned a year later she found that the manuscript for one book had disappeared, but the other The Exile, was still there. This, with Fighting Angel (1936) biographies of her parents, won her the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1938. She was the only American woman to win this

Barbara Alleyn and Norman Welsh in a scene from "Aunt Jeanie and the Idol," to be seen September 21 on CBC-TV's "First Person."

BARBARA ALLEYN, who plays the title role in Aunt Jeanie and the Idol on CBC-TV's First Person, Wednesday, September 21, is an actress with a convertible accent.

As Aunt Jeanie, she has an unmistakable Scottish tongue. The story, set in a small Nova Scotia town in the 1900's, is a comedy about a young spinster who sets tongues wagging by "worshipping" a heathen idol.

Earlier in the First Person series, Miss Alleyn was as Irish as Paddy's pig in The Man Who Knew a Good Thing. And in Murder Story, a recent repeat on CBC-TV's Encore series, her Cockney was as authentic as though she'd been born within sound of the Bow Bells.

In real life, Barbara has more than a trace of native Welsh in her speech. She put this to good use when, before coming to Canada, she played Mrs. Organ Morgan in the original West End production of Under Milk Wood, by fellow Welshman Dylan Thomas.

Miss Alleyn's arrival in Canada more than two years ago was the direct result of a chance meeting in New York with Liam Todd, a story editor for the CBC.

She was on vacation in New York when she met Todd, with whom she had worked at the Pitlochery drama festival in Scotland a few years before. Six weeks later they were married, and Todd brought her to Toronto.

Television in Canada

The Picture Since 1952

THE audience research division of the CBC, using figures of its own compiling plus some supplied by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, has recently produced a report which contains both reviews and forecasts concerning television in Canada between September, 1952, and January 1, 1961.

Television, to put it mildly, has swept Canada by storm. The number of stations has grown from 2 to 72; the number of "TV homes" has increased from a hesitant 4 per cent of all Canadian homes in 1952 to a robust 80 per cent by March, 1960, and the forecast is for 83 per cent by January 1, 1961. Television, like the horseless carriage, is here to stay. It is doubtful whether any other industry has ever mushroomed in so short a period of time to such gigantic proportions and, if any conclusion is to be drawn from the audience research division's report, it is certainly that Canadians have turned into a nation of TV owners and, presumably, viewers.

For the purposes of this report, the Dominion of Canada was broken down in a number of different ways, among which: (1) Service Areas (i.e. three areas, A, B and C, in which television reception is either Excellent, Good or Fair, in that order); (2) Total number of households, excluding the Yukon and Northwest Territories (4,415,000 households); and (3) Total number of "TV homes" (3,650,000 forecast for January 1, 1961).

The report covers the growth of coverage and of set ownership from September, 1952, with a forecast into January, 1961. It covers the growth of television coverage in Canada in all three areas of reception between these dates; and the growth of set sales from September, 1952, until March 31, 1960. Findings are given on a national basis and also by province, except for sales.

In September, 1952, 30 per cent of the total number of households (1,070,000) were covered by television areas A, B or C, whereas only 12 per cent of the total number of households thus covered (130,000) possessed TV sets.

By March of 1953, only six months later, the picture had already undergone a radical change, although coverage remained the same (30 per cent), ownership had increased by more than twice to 27 per cent, representing 295,000 households. At this time, there were only two TV stations in operation.

Three years later, by March 31, 1956, the situation had altered drastically. With 33 television stations now in operation, coverage was up to 80 per cent of the total number of households (3,910,000 homes), while set ownership had increased to 63 per cent of the total number of households in areas where there was television coverage (1,980,000 which represented 51 per cent of all households in Canada, excluding the Yukon and Northwest Territories).

By March 31, 1960, 93 per cent of all Canadian homes could receive TV programs from a total of 72 stations (4,345,000 households) and set ownership was up to 86 per cent of covered households, 80 per cent of all households, representing a figure of 3,490,000 homes.

Obviously, the first flush of growth is over and the saturation point has almost been reached. Ownership forecast for January 1, 1961, is 88 per cent, or 3,650,000 homes representing 83 per cent of the total number of households in Canada. Of the remaining 17 per cent (the non-owners), it seems reasonable to assume that a good proportion is made up of hard core television detractors who will never own sets. But it is dangerous to make such an assumption; in view of the tremendous spread of TV's popularity over the past eight years, it also seems reasonable to assume that, within a few years, ownership of sets may well have reached the 100 per cent mark.

The forecast does not take into account the second stations in major cities, but includes additional households within the coverage of the other new stations recommended for approval by the Board of Broadcast Governors before February, 1960, but not in operation on March 31, 1960. On the basis of total A, B and C and A and B service areas in Canada, the additional coverage of second stations in major cities will be negligible.

In brief, television set ownership in Canada has leapt from 4 per cent total households in 1952, to the prodigious figure of 83 per cent of total households as of March 31, 1960. The number of TV stations in operation has grown from two to 72 (an increase of 3,600 per cent!) over the same period, and sales have increased from 140,000 to 3,931,000.

Breaking the figures down province by province, we find, as might be expected, that the two provinces leading in all categories are the richest and most heavily populated — Ontario and Quebec, with Ontario enjoying a slight edge.

In Ontario, 88 per cent of the total number of households are provided with a total of 1,405,000 sets.

In Quebec, 98 per cent of the total number of households own 1,000,000 sets.

The smallest number of sets is owned by Prince Edward Islanders (15,000), or 62 per cent of total households. Next comes Newfoundland with a total of 50,000 sets representing 56 per cent of the total number of households.

Of the total number of households in Canada (4,345,000 as of March 31, 1960), 80 per cent are "TV homes." Forecast for January 1, 1961, as mentioned above, is a total of 4,415,000 homes with 83 per cent (3,650,000) being "TV homes." Forecasts for January 1, 1961: a few sample forecasts for January, 1961, based on figures over the past eight years, indicate that the Montreal stations CBMT provement being carried on there. He also made a study of the Soviet educational system, especially at the graduate school level. Prof. Shebeski spent two months in the Soviet Union (the first in Moscow and the surrounding districts, the second in Leningrad, Odessa, Yalta and Kiev), then went to Sweden, Denmark, Germany, the Netherlands, France and England to visit plant breeding institutes and compare their research facilities with those in Russia and in Canada. Prof. Shebeski's talk will be illustrated with slides which he took during his visit to the Soviet Union. From Winnipeg.

Holiday Edition

With host Ross Snetsinger, Toby Tarnow and magician Michael Toth. Live segment: Duncan Cameron, of the Royal Ontario Museum, will tell about the new reptile gallery at the museum, and the revolutionary methods used to achieve it. (Saturday on CBWT).

Twentieth Century

Today—"The Addicted." Part one of a two part series about narcotics. The story of a 22-year-old man whose three years as a dope addict have been interrupted by time served in hospitals and jails and by his voluntary attempts to "stay clean." From a Brooklyn, New York jail, the addict himself tells of his hopes for a cure.

Four Cities

This first in a series of four half-hour documentary films provided by the United Kingdom Information Service. In each program the city's story is told in terms of its people. Today's program is about Coventry. Other program will feature the cities of Edinburgh, Cardiff and Belfast. (See story page 9).

Newsmagazine

An examination of the Canadian auto industry, the competition from British and European small cars and the question of auto safety.

Why Is It So?

From Vancouver. A science series devoted to the exploits of a physicist and friend, featuring Professor Julius Sumner Miller and co-host Robert Quintrell.

National Velvet

This new series about a 12-year-old girl and her love for a beautiful horse stars Lori Martin as Velvet Brown. The story is based on Enid Bagnold's novel and the MGM movie of the same title but the locale has been moved from England to an American dairy farm region. Arthur Space and Ann Doran play Velvet's parents, Carol Wells portrays her boy-crazy older sister and Joey Scott plays young Donald Brown.

Walt Disney Presents

Today—"Perilous Assignment." Mountaineer and guide Gaston Rebuffat demonstrates mountain climbing techniques and narrates a film of adventure in the European Alps.

Hatful Of Music

Host and folk-singer Ernie Prentice, singer Lorraine Foreman and Ricky Hyslop and his orchestra welcome Eleanor Collins and George Murray as today's guests.

Ed Sullivan Show

Ed's guests this week will include David Seville and the Chipmunks, tenor Jan Peerce, French star Patachou, ventriloquist Ricky Layne and Velvel, the singing Audrey Sisters, singer Dick Roman and Melbourne Christopher. Seville and the Chipmunks will sing Coming Round the Mountain and Seville will do his solo hit, The Witch Doctor. Patachou will sing Menage and All The Way. Jan Peerce will sing Vesti La Giubba.

Encore

"The Beckoning Hill." A teleplay by Arthur Murphy, starring British actor Michael Craig and Martha Buhs. Hugh Campbell, a dour Scotsman working to establish a sheep farm on the bleak hills of Cape Breton Island, is derided by the people of the fishing village below. Friendless and embittered by his own

NATIONAL VELVET STARS
Lori Martin, 12, and James McCallion star in the new film series "National Velvet," seen Sundays on CBC-TV. Lori plays the role of Velvet Brown, whose love for horses causes her both heartbreak and joy. McCallion plays handyman Mi Taylor.

bleak past in Scotland, he is befriended by Anne Fougere in spite of himself. But Anne's father, a proud French-Canadian fisherman has other plans for his daughter.

Hotel De Paree

Final program of this series. Today—"Sundance and the Fallen Sparrow." Sundance's partner, Annette, persuades him to help an alcoholic woman by giving her a job as waitress in the hotel.

Outlook

Host Arnold Edinborough presents the second of a two-part series. Today—"Liberty and the Law."

Documentary '60

This week—"Emergency Ward." An on-the-spot report from the Montreal General Hospital. To get the inside story on the work done by the casualty ward, a National Film Board camera crew donned white hospital uniforms and joined the regular staff on duty. Speaking of his experiences, film director William Greaves says he was immediately overwhelmed by the infinite variety of casualties—accidental, criminal, psychological, nuisance cases, and many more. "Emergency Ward" provides a candid study of an efficient medical group whose work calls for nerves of steel, supreme patience, and the flexibility to cope with the unexpected.

The Buddha's advice to employers and employees astonishes me by its modern and up-to-date attitude. As usual, he gives it in five points. The employer, or master, which is the word he used, should assign to the worker only work in accordance with his ability and strength, provide him with food and fair wages, nurse him in time of sickness, give him a share in any extra dainty fare which may come the master's way and then, in due season, give him a reasonable holiday with pay. (All this advice was given over 2,500 years ago.) In return the servant should rise early and work until late, be satisfied if he thinks the wages and treatment are fair, do his work well, and, lastly, sing the praises of the good master everywhere.—Prince Chula of Thailand broadcasting in the BBC Home Service.

Sunday TV

A Tale of Four Cities

A series of four half-hour documentaries which examine the four countries of the United Kingdom by studying the cities of Coventry, Edinburgh, Cardiff and Belfast

THE most exciting place in all England—that was the proud boast of the architects who worked to rebuild the city of Coventry after the Second World War. The 600-year-old city had been flattened by enemy bombs aimed at the heart of Britain's wartime munitions and aircraft industries.

Postwar Coventry, like many another shattered city, shook off the ashes and rose again. It became the centry of Britain's automobile industry, prosperous and proud. It commissioned a South African playwright, John Wiles, to write a play to be put on in its new Civic Auditorium. But the play, called Never Had It So Good, saw Coventry as a "gigantic, money-grubbing machine;" its citizens fared no better "bending on their knees to the great god Mammon."

Is Wiles' charge true?

This Sunday CBC-TV viewers will get a chance to judge for themselves in the first of a series of four half-hour documentary programs titled A Tale of Four Cities. The series examines the four countries of the United Kingdom — England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland — by studying, in separate programs, the cities of Coventry, Edinburgh, Cardiff and Belfast.

In each of the programs, a city's story is told in terms of its people.

The program on Edinburgh, capital city of Scotland, recalls the economic pressures of past years that forced many a Scotsman to seek his fortune in another country. How do Scots today, the program asks, adapt themselves and their country to the demands and pressures of a new age?

Cardiff, on the mouth of the River Taff near Bristol Channel, is one of the world's great coal-shipping ports. It is also the home of large iron and steel works, flour mills, and a fishing industry. The program on Cardiff follows the activities of a number of typical Welsh people through the course of a day.

Belfast, capital city of Northern Ireland, is the centre of Ulster's commerce and is famous for possessing one of the greatest concentrations of shipyards in the world. The story of Belfast is told in the lifespan of one man who leaves his father's farm to go to war, comes home, studies engineering, then goes to work in the shipyards.

Thirty-year-old Ron Kelly from Vancouver was one of two men commissioned to direct the series. Kelly made the films on Cardiff and Belfast. His associate in the series, a young Englishman named Peter Broderick, is responsible for the programs on Coventry and Edinburgh.

JACK KANE RETURNS

to CBC-TV this Monday night on the new "Jack Kane Show." Guest singer on the first show is Steve Lawrence. Regular vocalist will be Sylvia Murphy.

Follow Me

CBC cameras follow a young boy or girl on a trip to investigate and explore some interesting place in or around Vancouver.

Today—A boy tours a flying boat base, sees four types of flying boats and learns the procedures of water spraying from the air for the purpose of extinguishing forest fires.

CBWT—How About That!

Today—host Jim Mitchell presents "On Such A Night," featuring stars of stage, screen and opera. The film takes viewers to the opera centre of Glyn-debourne, in the heart of the English countryside, where excerpts of Carl Ebert's production of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" will be seen featuring the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra with Sesto Bruscantini (as Figaro) and Sena Jurinac (as The Countess). The film is directed by Anthony Asquith.

Sky King

Nigeria

A film picture of Nigeria and its 40 million people three days before they gain independence (on Oct. 1). A recap into history shows Nigeria before the Europeans arrived, with its ancient city states and the forest kingdoms of Yoruba and Benin. The film moves forward with the development of the country to the present day and the problems confronting the Nigerians as they assume independence and become a member of the Commonwealth of Nations. Narration by Gordon Burwash. This is an NFB film. (See story this page).

Geo. Price Wins Cowhide Trophy

The Cowhide Trophy, a unique award competed for annually by CBC farm broadcasters across Canada, has been won this year by CBC Winnipeg farm commentator George Price.

The trophy, fashioned of genuine cowhide, was first purchased by the broadcasters themselves in 1951 and put up for competition amongst commentators in the CBC's four regions. Each commentator submits a four-minute tape to a panel of judges in Ottawa who this year decided that a program by Mr. Price, contrasting agricultural problems and methods of the northern United States with those of the Canadian prairies, was an outstanding example of farms and fisheries broadcasting.

Winnipeg-born William George Price, 34, was appointed farm commentator at CBC Winnipeg in June of 1959. For the previous 12 years Mr. Price had been with radio station CHAB in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, serving at various

"NIGERIA"

A one-hour documentary outlining the problems confronting 30 million Nigerians facing nationhood

WITH world attention focussed on the Congo, one African nation is quietly going about the business of shedding colonial status to become a member of the Commonwealth of Nations.

The Federation of Nigeria, a former British dependency, officially becomes independent on October 1.

This Tuesday evening CBC-TV will offer an hour-long documentary, Nigeria - Giant in Africa, prepared by the National Film Board. By examining Nigeria's past and present, the program will outline the problems confronting the 30 million people of Nigeria at their moment of assuming nationhood.

Nigeria lies astride one of civilization's great divides. Cultural influences in its northern region stemmed from the Sahara and beyond, while in the south the patterns of old Africa were dominant.

Nigeria was the site of some of the highest peaks of the continent's old civilizations and evidence of these past cultures will be revealed in the film. A vivid recounting of Nigeria's history before the European will tell of its ancient city states and of the forest kingdoms of Yoruba and Benin.

The film material for the program was gathered by an NFB group under Ronald Dick, producer and writer. Nigeria's Minister for Information, Hon. T. O. Shobowale Benson, who visited the Film Board in Montreal a few months ago, opened doors for the film makers. In London, New York, Washington and Lagos, Douglas Tunstall and others combed for material pertinent to subject and theme. Much help was given by George Dove-Edwin of the Nigerian Liaison Office in Washington. Executive producer for the project was Nicholas J. Balla.

endar, the CBC's national farm series. This season he worked on the Manitoba Mirror radio team which visited Carman and Minnedosa. He is the third CBC Winnipeg farm commentator to win the coveted Cowhide Trophy. Bob Knowles won the first award in 1951 while working in Winnipeg, and the present supervisor of farm broadcasts at CBW, Lionel Moore, was the winner in the 1955 competition.

Wednesday Night

A Musical Soiree of 1828

Recreated on CBC Radio

By HUGH DAVIDSON, producer, CBC Montreal

THIS Wednesday night, CBC Montreal will recreate a famous concert organized by the Viennese composer Franz Schubert. The concert was given in Vienna on the 26th of March, 1828, at the Musikverein Sall, on the Tuchlauben, and was reported in the "Allgemeine Musikalische Zeitung," a popular journal for culture conscious citizens of Leipzig, as follows:

"If the Philharmonic Society's recent performance of music by Beethoven afforded an indescribable aural treat, the same must be said with hardly less emphasis on praise of that Soiree musicale which the excellent Schubert held in the same Philharmonic rooms on the 26th, giving hearing to a considerable number of his most successful works: a new string quartet, full of spirit and originality, four songs sung by the retired I. & R. Court Singer, Herr

Name Max Ferguson Open House Host

Max Ferguson will succeed Fred Davis as host of the CBC-TV women's program, Open House.

Interviewer on Seven - O - One (formerly Tabloid) since 1958, Ferguson will join Gwen Grant, whose appointment as hostess and successor to Anna Cameron was announced last month.

Open House, to be seen Mondays Wednesdays and Fridays this season, returns to the CBC-TV network on Oct. 17.

"We're delighted, and I think the audiences will be, too," says Eric Koch, supervising producer of CBC-TV talks department.

When the new Open House season begins, Ferguson will continue to appear on Seven-O-One approximately once a week. As yet, no replacement has been decided for the nightly interview show.

"Open House is a little closer to the type of show I did for four years in Halifax," says Ferguson. He was referring to the interview show Gazette, of which he was emcee. "It gives more chance to develop a subject—more time with each guest."

Andy Currie, assistant commissioner of football for the Canadian Football League, and guests discuss Western Conference Football activities and present filmed inserts of highlights of weekly games.

As the popular "Rawhide" of CBC radio, Ferguson began his CBC career in Halifax in 1947, and first came to Toronto in 1949. His satiric sketches, and repertoire of more than 40 voices, has gained him fans across the country and in the United States.

Born in Durham, England, he lived most of his early life in London, Ont., where he graduated from the University of Western Ontario in 1946. He was an announcer on CFPL, London, before joining the CBC in Halifax.

Ferguson is married to the former Norma Frazer and has five children, two boys and three girls.

Anna Cameron and Fred Davis, former co-hosts on Open House, left the show at the end of last season. Miss Cameron is now pursuing an acting career in England, and Davis is occupied with other television commitments.

Beginning Oct. 17, Open House will be seen for a half-hour on Mondays and Wednesdays and an hour on Fridays. Peggy Nairn is producer.

Pictures With Woofler

Today's films include: “The Treasure of Ice Cake Island” (Snip and Snap) — Pirate Bull-dog has a treasure map, and the prize is a bone in the iced cake. Snap makes a boat out of a French loaf and sails to Ice Cake Island and wins the prize. “Spunky the Snowman” — Spunky is a snowman who has a letter to deliver to Santa Claus. “Adventure in Toyland” — Scene: a toy village. Two little boys steal a car, which runs wild and crashes. No one is hurt but the boys have learned their lesson.

Man From Blackhawk

Starring Robert Rockwell as an insurance investigator for the Blackhawk Insurance Company in 19th century Chicago.

Today—“The Ghost of LaFitte.” An alcoholic ne'er-do-well is placed in charge of the insurance money left to four under-age beneficiaries. Logan and a kindly woman who has befriended the children conspire to get rid of the unwelcome guardian by means of a little make-believe witchcraft.

operation with the Canadian Bar Association. In each program practicing lawyers argue a fictional case before an actual judge or magistrate. Host Gil Christie questions people involved in the case, the plaintiff and defendant (or in criminal cases the accused and the police) and sometimes witnesses—all these people are played by professional actors. The scene then shifts to the courtroom where real lawyers present their side of the case to the judge. After the courtroom scene, a group of four panelists, all of them laymen with no more knowledge of the case than is possessed by the viewer, discuss the legal arguments among themselves, give their opinions and decisions, and question the judge (no longer in his courtroom robes) on points that interest or puzzle them. The judge then gives his decision.

Today — “The Forgetful Testator.” A daughter is left out of her father’s will after performing services for him in the belief she would be rewarded after his death. Cast:

Judge..... His Honour Judge Fuller,
County Court of Welland, Ont.
Lawyers..... Arthur Pattillo, Q.C., Toronto;
Terence Sheard, Q.C., Toronto
Panelists..... Joseph Pope, Hal Tennant,
Diana Maddox, Danica D’Hondt

Tennessee Ernie Ford

With singer-comedian Ernie Ford, the Top Twenty singing group and special guests.

CBWT—Wanted Dead or Alive

A western series starring Steve McQueen as rough, two-fisted bounty hunter Josh Randall.

Vogl, accompanied by the composer, and the Battle Song by Klopstock, a double chorus for male voices, conceived with truly Germanic power and reflecting the exalted Bard’s sublime words.”

The concert was the only public affair that Schubert himself organized and in which he appeared as performer-impresario; 1828 was to be the last year of his short life, and perhaps with a certain premonition, Schubert felt that at last he should present to the public a cross section of his life’s work. Five years earlier, he had mentioned that “with God’s will” he would some day give a concert of his own, just as Beethoven did to present his Ninth Symphony and parts of the Missa Solemnis.

Exactly one year after Beethoven’s death he finally gave the concert, urged by his friends. The idea was that if the evening went well, it would give Schubert the opportunity to start a series of annual concerts that would—he hoped—make the publishers “sing a different tune.” His friends enthusiastically came to his aid: Vogel sang five of the numbers, Josephine Frohlich’s pupils from the Conservatory sang the Serenade, Bohm, Bocklet and Linke played a trio and a movement from a “new Quartet.”

On the evening of the concert, the hall was packed. Applause seemed endless and encore after (Please turn to page 31)

A garden snail's allotted span is about five years, and during that time its sex life is mildly sensational. Although it is a hermaphrodite (that is today, both male and female) it only functions as one sex at a time. In its youth it cuts a dashing caper as a male, but as it gets older it appears to realize its responsibilities and settles down to the cares of motherhood.—Eric Roberts, speaking in the BBC Home Service.

COUNTRY FAIR

ARTHUR PHELPS nostalgically recalls the charm and fun of country fairs he has attended over the years

SUNNY-FACED pumpkins as big as dishpans are ready for picking. The leaves have put on their gaudiest outfits. There's a mellow glow to the days and the evening's chill calls for a fire in the grate. . . .

It's country fair time again. And from the back roads and the cities families set out early to sample the very special offerings of this old-fashioned gathering.

The sounds: Animals vying for attention with a cheerful cacophony of moos, grunts and bleats in the cattle sheds. The nasal voice on the loudspeaker announcing the coming attractions. The cheers when a favourite wins a red ribbon. The incessant chatter and exclamations of men and women bent on enjoying themselves to the full in a day away from chores. The shouts of school-free youngsters darting through the crowd. And the low shuffle of hundreds of feet moving slowly over the sawdust floor.

The smells: The rich, pungent odour of well-fed animals. The sweet, promising scent of apples—hillocks of polished reds, yellows, greens and russets. And over all, the heady aroma of Fall, of a spent earth relaxing after her harvest, a combination of woodsmoke, fallen leaves, sunwarmed soil and woolens fresh from their summer's rest among the mothballs.

The sights: Mounds of choice grain so smooth and clean you can't resist running your hands through them. Corn stacked like giant green rifles, vegetables arranged in scrubbed perfection. Quilts, rows of them hanging like sails on some crazy galleon, patched and appliqued gaily from the county's scrapbags. How many thousands of tiny stitches pieced them together through the winter evenings? The show ring, where sleek animals strut their stuff while judges make their notes with frustrating slowness and proud owners hold their breaths. The graceful elegance of the jumpers with their jeaned riders, young, nervous and eager to impress the armies of relatives behind the fence. And of course the tug-o'-war, with perspiring musclemen at either end of a rope amiably testing their strength amid the cheers and taunts of sideliners.

The tastes: A melody of unsurpassed flavours on groaning tables at the sit-down suppers. Aproned ladies hover anxiously over hearty eaters tucking into Joe Carter's prime beef or their second large piece of Mrs. McGregor's lemon pie. And the home-cooking contest, where small boys watch enviously as the judges munch their way through the pride of a dozen kitchens. . . .

The country fair, where old friends meet, romance often blooms, and the land displays its fairest offerings. Will it ever change? We hope not. Unsophisticated, cheerful, unconcerned by the slick uptempo of the sputnik age, the country fair comes back each year to remind us of the timelessness and goodness of simple things.

Well-known Canadian broadcaster Arthur L. Phelps nostalgically recalls the charm and fun of country fairs he has attended over the years, in a special half-hour broadcast Tuesday night on CBC radio. Woven in and out of his commentary will be three eyewitness accounts of colourful aspects of country fairs in British Columbia, Ontario and Nova Scotia. As an unusual twist Hilda Brown, who knows very little about farm animals, will describe the show ring, cattle and livestock

MUSIC ON RADIO

By FRANK HAWORTH

PRIDE of place is allowed this week to those aristocrats of the instrumental world, the strings, with a program featuring violin and orchestra on Sunday (Marta Hidy and orchestra, Winnipeg Sunday Concert), one with 'cello and orchestra (Ernst Friedlander and the Vancouver Chamber Orchestra, Monday), and two violin and piano recitals (Francis Chaplin, with Gordon Macpherson, Distinguished Artists, Tuesday, and Tibor Varga, with Hilde Findeison, Festival from Europe, Friday). For good measure, Sunday afternoon's Chamber Music presents the Montreal String Quartet—four solo strings.

There are those who gruesomely assert that the first stringed instruments were formed by stretching the sinews of the enemy (the late enemy, of course) across his pelvis, suitably prepared for that purpose. Less gory minded speculators settle for a turtle shell, with strands of skin, or whatever, hardened by the sun, as suggesting the idea to primitive man. However that may be, stringed instruments, including those played with a bow, are recorded in remote antiquity, and they appear to have reached a standard of playable excellence long before other instruments did. In modern times this was certainly so; they reached the high point of their development at the hands of Amati, Guarneri, and Stradivari, a couple of centuries before Sax and Boehm took the wind instruments in hand, and they have remained at that point ever since.

The effect of this on musical composition has been enormous, and is not perhaps sufficiently realized or acknowledged. Composers found in these instruments a medium not only highly flexible, both dynamically and in power of articulation, and wide-ranging, both in expressive power and in variety of effect, but also reliable and subject to remarkably few limitations—two qualities in some ways more important than all the rest. To know in advance that what you wrote would sound more or less as you meant it to, and was not liable to be distorted beyond recognition by the widely varying abilities and unpredictable idiosyncracies of the old-time wind instruments, was a great boon. Not to have to worry unduly about the peculiarities and weaknesses of the instruments was a relief, too; even today, when you write for wind instruments you have to take into account their technical features—their relative strengths, the variations in their tone quality in different parts of their range, the playability of some passages, how long they can go on without a rest, and so on—to a greater extent than you do with the strings.

That composers, and musicians generally, realized these virtues, (Please turn to page 27)

On CBC Wednesday Night

A Poet's-Eye View of Winnipeg

A new work by JAMES REANEY, with music
by JOHN BECKWITH

A YEAR ago last March, CBC Wednesday Night presented the first performance of the opera, Night Blooming Cereus, by poet James Reaney and composer John Beckwith, which had been commissioned by the CBC. This Wednesday, CBC radio again presents the fruit of their collaboration in a half-hour program called Poet and City. In it Reaney gives a poet's-eye view of Winnipeg. John Beckwith's music, says producer Paul Wright, will be used as a commentary on the "poetry itself, sometimes beneath, sometimes separate from it."

Reaney was born in Stratford, Ontario, but until this summer, taught at the University of Manitoba. He left to take a post at the University of Western Ontario. In 1949, his book, The Red Heart and Other Poems won the Governor-General's Award for Poetry. In 1958, he again won the award, this time for A Suit of Nettles, which was previewed, as have many of his works, on CBC radio's Anthology. His most recent work has been a play, The Kildeer, which was staged earlier this year. Sir Herbert Reid, an English critic, wrote about A Suit of Nettles: "How freshly [Reaney] uses the English language and its rhythms, how brightly he invents new images! . . . What appeals to me most in this poem is the way in which a new landscape, a whole new inventory of images revitalizes the diction." Reproduced below is a verse of one of the poems which make up Wednesday's program.

*Winnipeg, what once were you.
You were,
Your hair was grass by the river
ten feet tall,
Your arms were burr oaks and ash
leaf maples,
Your backbone was a crooked silver
muddy river,
Your thoughts were ravens in flocks,
your bones were snow,
Your legs were trails and your blood was a people
Who did what the stars did and the sun.*

Sunday on Radio

"Landfall and Departure"

Producer ANDREW ALLAN describes the last "Venture" program of the season

Andrew Allan

"Whither, O splendid ship, thy white sails
Leaning across the bosom of the urgent West,
That fearest nor sea rising nor sky clouding,
Whither away, fair rover, and what thy quest?"

THE famous invocation to A Passenger-By, written by Robert Bridges years ago when sailing-ships were less rare than now, enshrines man's sense of romance in dreams of far ports and happy places and the proud creatures of wood and canvas that could take one there. Even John Masefield, who had been a sailor, remembered how he had heard

"... the old chant of the sea,
And seen strange lands from under the arched sails of ships."

But to the men who worked the ships in the last days of sail there was a lot less of romance than there was of hard and dangerous work. These were the iron men to go with the wooden ships—to wrestle daily with what Joseph Conrad called "the drastic sanity of the sea."

It is from Conrad (himself a working mariner in the days of sail) that we get the title, Landfall and Departure, for the last broadcast in the Sunday series, Venture, on September 25.

"Landfall and Departure," says Conrad, "mark the rhythmical swing of a seaman's life and of a ship's career. From land to land is the most concise definition of a ship's earthly fate.

"A 'Departure' is not what a vain people of landsmen may think. The term 'Landfall' is more easily understood; you fall in with the land, and it is a matter of a quick eye and of a clear atmosphere. The Departure is not the ship's going away from her port any more than the Landfall can be looked upon as the synonym of arrival. But there is this difference in the Departure: that the term does not imply so much a sea event as a definite act entailing a process—the prewise observation of certain landmarks by means of the compass card."

The enterprise of a passage in the days of sail was as drastic as life and death, and as often as not involved both. From the BBC Archives and from other sources we have drawn for the broadcast recorded accounts from the mouths of men who earned their hard livelihood under sail. The voices of these men—some of them now dead—recreate for us vividly a day that is gone. Among them we hear of the last voyages of the great clipper, Cutty Sark, and of her grim captain. We hear shanties sung by the last of the real shantymen, quite a different sound from the concert versions we hear today. We hear of a man who fought to prevent his captain from amputating, without anaesthetic, his gangrenous arm. We hear of the ghost of a seaman who walked the deck at the exact compass point where he had been drowned on a previous voyage.

Laurence Stapley, Canadian Representative of the BBC, tells us of his own boyhood when he went to train under sail—a reminder that it is still possible to undergo this rigour even in the days of steam.

Why do men undergo such rigours? What is there about the sea that lures men, despite all hazards?

Joseph Conrad has tried to answer this: "By all that's wonderful it is the sea, I believe, the sea itself—or is it youth alone. Who can tell? . . . Wasn't that the best time, that time when we were young at sea; young and had nothing, on the sea that gives nothing, except hard knocks—and sometimes a chance to feel your strength . . .?"

In the broadcast we couple with the voices of old sailors some words from writers of the sea. The sea—perhaps because of the loneliness and the routine and the lurk of danger—has moved men to write with more quiet eloquence than almost anything else in life.

H. M. Tomlinson, for example, remembers seeing a passer-by at

POSTMARK U.K.

This week — "A Day on the Royal Daffodil." Arthur Bush goes on a cross-channel trip to Calais—no passports necessary — on the S.S. "Royal Daffodil," which recently celebrated her 21st birthday, and was presented with a birthday cake by the people of Calais. The Royal Daffodil had an exciting time during the last war, which the Chief Engineer relates, and some of the passengers — mostly from London — give their reasons, other than for a pleasant journey, why they wanted to visit that part of France.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OF THE AIR

The first program in a series of nine broadcasts titled "Children of the Bible." Rev. Ken Moffat of Wesley United Church, and Rev. R. Whyte will read the lessons on alternate weeks. Norm Micklewright will again be the story-telling announcer, and Mrs. Betty Marsh will write the scripts. Norman Lucas will produce the musical portions of the program, sung by the East Kildonan Choir under the direction of Miss Gertrude Lowery, and the students panel will be composed of Linda Hutchinson, Avis Louise Elliot, Reg. Curle, Doreen Buchanan and Mark Jenkyons. Today — "Joseph, the ambitious boy." Lesson: The dreams and hopes of an ambitious boy have to stand the test of adversity.

versity — and it was then that she discovered Tantara.

Don't Grumble — Complain. Toronto freelance writer and broadcaster Norman Panzica maintains that Canadians don't complain enough—at least, not to the right people. Too often, he says, Canadians will accept dissatisfaction with goods or services because they don't want to make a fuss. He points out that a fuss isn't necessary—at the most, all that's needed is a polite letter or two.

Profile of Madame Benoit. Madame Benoit is known throughout Canada for her broadcasts, television appearances, and writing about cooking. A French-Canadian who lives in Montreal, Madame Benoit and her husband also have a farm in Quebec. She has published a French cook book, and hopes to translate it into English. On Trans-Canada Matinee today, Madame Benoit talks with Montreal freelance broadcaster Marjorie Schwartz.

coveted award. By this time she had returned to the States with her daughters, had divorced her husband and had married Richard J. Walsh, president of the John Day Company, her publishers. They live in Pennsylvania and have six adopted children.

She says: “I have a novel in mind for about five years before I start writing it. It's a growing process. Never revise a novel until you've reached the end. Revision is uncreative and the mind, which is naturally lazy, will try to tempt you into revision when you should be persevering with the story.” She wrote her first novel, East Wind, West Wind, on a ship going to the States in 1930. It did not cause much of a stir, but after the success of The Good Earth in 1931 other novels followed in rapid succession. Among the best known of them are The Mother, A House Divided, The Patriot, Dragon Seed, Imperial Woman, and Command the Morning.

In 1958 she revealed that she had written five novels with American settings under the pseudonym of John Sedges, three of them book-club choices, because she “wanted to do something different—and wanted to make sure it would be accepted on its own merits.” She has also written several books for children.

Pearl Buck is greatly interested in child welfare work, and is founder of Welcome House, an adoption agency for children of mixed Asian-American blood, and she has been active for years in work for retarded children. In one of her books, The Child Who Never Grew, she told the moving story of her own retarded daughter.

How many adults have learned self-control and tolerance even by middle-age? Yet they'll expect a person who has only been alive a few years to swallow disappointments at home without a fuss, to face up bravely to punishments at school without a fuss, and to fight his own battles with his lawless contemporaries.—Janet McLeod, on BBC.

and took full advantage of them, is apparent from the merest glance at the musical history of the last 250 years or so; it is hardly too much to say that the development of sonata, symphony and concerto was conditioned by the availability of the instruments played with a bow. Strangely enough, however, the public at large was not always so enthusiastic. In England, to "fiddle" became a term of scorn, ("fiddle, I need hardly remind you, being the "folk" term for violin), and "fiddlesticks!" an expression of contempt. An Oxford don once referred to a visit to that city by "one Handel and his lousy crew of foreign fiddlers;" and the genteel Victorians were likewise not amused—the inevitable old lady once rebuked the great Sir John Stainer, that he, who was privileged to play the organ in the church, should demean himself by having violins at his concerts and oratorio performances — "a common instrument played outside public houses."

It is true, of course, that few instruments sound so horrible when badly played, and in the hands of beginners, where they would chiefly be met with by the general public, in the days before radio and gramophone, they are particularly painful. But rest assured—the distinguished ladies and gentlemen listed above are not beginners.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

"Ma" Lumley—Queen of the Trobriand Islands. Renata Cochrane, who lives in the Territory of Papua and New Guinea, calls "Ma" Lumley one of the real pioneers of Papua. Mrs. Cochrane tells the story of this remarkable woman—one of those rare people whose personality is strong enough to influence events over a number of years. Renata Cochrane is heard regularly on Matinee.

Animal Characters. The latest of Happy Bonnell's "Animal Characters" is a milk goat called Ethel, and she has the strongest personality of them all. Mrs. Bonnell, who has been heard frequently on Matinee since its early days, reports that Ethel bullies all the other animals, big or small, and is no respecter of persons, either.

Fall Fair Drama Festival. Elizabeth Odlum talks with Mrs. Doris Samuel, the spark behind a rather unique Drama Festival at Orono, Ontario. The Festival is held in connec-

Newest, Largest Northern Station On Air Soon

The CBC's newest and largest radio station in the Canadian north, CHAK, is nearing completion at Inuvik, N.W.T. Construction of the studio is expected to be completed this month, and the 1,000-watt transmitter is expected to be on the air by November.

CHAK will be the first CBC station to broadcast inside the Arctic circle and the first Canadian radio station to broadcast regularly in the Eskimo language. It will be the 10th CBC station in the north; the others are at Whitehorse, Dawson City, Yellowknife, Hay River, Fort Smith, Fort Churchill, Goose Bay, Watson Lake, and Fort Nelson. (The last two are low power relay transmitters.)

tion with the Agricultural Fair in this predominantly agricultural community. Elizabeth Odum is a school teacher at Whitby, who has previously contributed to Matinee.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Mary Southin from Vancouver, recorded musical selections by Francean Campbell, and another reading by Aileen Seaton from James Pope-Hennessy's "Queen Mary," adapted for radio by Doris Mosdell.

SCHUBERT CONCERT

From CBC Montreal, a recreation of a famous concert organized by Franz Schubert and given in Vienna in 1828. (For program see story page 13). During the intermission, Thomas Archer, music critic of the Montreal Gazette, will talk about Schubert's choice of poems for his songs.
W-8:00 pm K-9:00 pm X-9:00 pm

The CBC building at Inuvik, housing a small studio, control room and offices, is situated in the centre of the new townsite. The transmitter is located about 1½ miles from town. The new station will have a staff of seven—manager, technician, secretary, and four announcers. The manager and technician will be experienced CBC employees sent in from "outside"; the others will be hired locally. At least one announcer will be an Eskimo.

CHAK is expected to bring CBC programs to about 5,000 listeners living along the Arctic coast and in the MacKenzie Delta. Its program schedule will be similar to that carried by the CBC in other parts of Canada. Tapes of musical and dramatic programs heard "live" on the CBC radio networks will be flown to Inuvik each week from Montreal. News, sports, and special event broadcasts will be picked up from the CBC shortwave transmitters at Sackville, N.B. Local programming will include messages to residents of isolated areas and features in the Eskimo and Indian languages.

Louis Applebaum To CBC Music Post

LOUIS APPLEBAUM, music director of the annual Music Festival at Stratford, Ont., since 1955, has been named CBC music consultant, it was announced September 8 by A. K. Morrow, director of the CBC's English networks and the Toronto area.

Mr. Applebaum will work with Dr. Geoffrey Waddington, the CBC's director of music.

Toronto born, Mr. Applebaum studied music at the University of Toronto and later with Roy Harris and Bernard Wagenaar in New York. He returned to Canada in 1941 as composer with the National Film Board and soon after became its music director.

In 1945 he went to Hollywood where he scored a number of night off the Longships Light, as he stood on the deck of his dirty collier: "The schooner was a trim black silhouette in luminous night, with a red spark in her middle. I don't know her name, but she has not yet completed that voyage for me . . . There was nothing of consequence about my ship, nor in her business, and there would be no romance in her destination. She was deep with fuel for France, no more than an item in the old traditional economy, now lost, of coal out, and corn and wine home, but it is as if she moved into a position where, for the lucky, there is a glimpse of a truth which endures beyond routine and duties, and departures and arrivals."

Since the inauguration of the Stratford Festival in 1953, Mr. Applebaum has composed many of the incidental scores for the productions and has directed the Stratford Music Festival each year since 1955.

This season Mr. Applebaum composed the music for Romeo and Juliet and conducted the National Festival Orchestra for Tyrone Guthrie's production of H.M.S. Pinafore.

His work for the CBC will be mainly in the television area.

Gazette will speak about Schubert and his choice of song poems.

It is our hope that this program, presenting as it does several aspects of Schubert's genius may enlarge and encourage a knowledge of this creative genius' musical manners and styles, and bring to our listeners a future understanding of his unique contribution to our civilization—as it did to those Leipzigers and Viennese on that evening in March so many years ago.

Shown here is the text of the original invitation sent out by impressario Schubert. Names in brackets and bold face indicate the performers in the CBC Wednesday Night production.

In England, in the Stone Age, it took a man all his time to feed himself. In the late Middle Ages one man's work could feed one and one-third men. In Elizabeth the First's time one man's handiwork fed three men.

Today, with our astonishingly rapid mechanical development one man's work can feed twenty-one men. And very soon, with the coming of automation in industry, fewer and fewer "hands," as we call them will be required to operate the vast machines of production. All of this is very good, but we are in danger of losing our sense of touch — the human touch, and with it our sense of values.

Irish poet W. R. Rodgers on BBC.

CBC Programming

• What kind of mentality do those people have who, because they do not like a certain program, demand that it be taken off the air? I have discovered a little switch on our television set which, if turned, will remove anything offensive from the screen. To my mind, one of the major roles of a publicly-owned communications system is that it can, and should, present those programs which private stations are unwilling and/or unable to give. I fear that private television will sink to the same appalling level as some private radio stations in their search for "audience appeal" and "sponsor appeal." (Perhaps I am thinking in terms of extremes since the private radio station I have in mind is the epitome of trash and cheap commercialism). Are we going to see an extension of Cariboo Country? This has become the highlight of television viewing to me. The quiet and sometimes uproarious humour and the marvellous depictions of character have been combined into a show which I can only describe as great. I would like to put in an aside here to G. R. (of Winnipeg, I'm ashamed to say) whose letter concerning Cariboo Country appeared in the July 22 issue of CBC Times. I am sorry to report, G.R., that people do use obscene language; they do, also, spit, smoke, and consume alcoholic beverages. As a matter of fact, what surprises me most about Cariboo Country is that Mr. St. Pierre has cleaned up his characters so greatly and still managed to preserve the realism of the play. Please, G. R., worry about what is bad for you and leave me to decide what is bad for me!—T. W. M., Winnipeg.

Robert Herridge Theatre

• In my opinion Robert Herridge Theatre is the worst of all your CBC programs. Everything, from story to acting and costuming, is in poor taste, and not up to your high standards.—M. T., Winnipeg.

• Congratulations for presenting Robert Herridge Theatre. I have found these shows to be of exceptionally high calibre (for an American production). Perhaps this is why the American networks will not touch it? And also an indication of what we will not get from private TV?—T. W. M., Winnipeg.

• I saw Robert Herridge Theatre for the first time last Monday and was simply appalled. The calibre and intelligence of this program is beyond words; never has there been such complete and utter rubbish as "The Antics of Irving Harmon" shown over the CBC network. Reports from friends who have seen this show several times state that it is always the same. There must be something wrong with the program director who had the nerve to show this program to such a vast audience. I certainly shall not waste my valuable time watching this program again. It is an insult to one's intelligence. — Mrs. B. W. M., Calgary.

We do not challenge Mrs. Morrison's right to dislike any of our programs, but we feel we must question the "reports" of her friends that the programs in this particular series are "always the same." Its main characteristic, in fact, would seem to be its variety. It has included, besides such novel experiments as a ballet version of "Frankie and Johnnie" and the satirical pantomimes of "The Antic World of Irving Harmon," dramatized versions of stories by such famous writers as John Steinbeck ("The Chrysanthemums"), John Milington Synge ("Riders to the Sea"), and Shirley Jackson ("The Lottery"). We sincerely hope that, in spite of her vow not to do so, Mrs. M. will watch more programs in this series and not depend entirely on her friends' "reports" in making her decision as to its merits.

Outlook

• Your interview program, Outlook, last night was simply charming. Mr. Edinborough certainly didn't have to pump his two West Indian guests. Their easy-flowing comments and songs made the half hour fly by. Since junior high school days I've been very interested in the West Indies, and your program last night has made me determined to visit them.—R. W., Red Deer, Alta.

• We have just returned from holidays and are happy to find some bright new spots on CBC-TV. The most delightful, I think, was Arnold Edinborough's Outlook of last Sunday evening. Congratulations. This is the type of program that makes TV worthwhile for me. We regret having missed H.M.S. Pinafore from the Stratford Festival, as many others must have done through absence from the city. Is it possible it may be repeated?—D. McK., Fort Garry, Man.

The radio broadcast will not be repeated, but the Stratford cast will be presented in a television version of "Pinafore" in the near future.

U.S. Listener

• I know you get a volume of letters of appreciation from listeners across the border, and that there is nothing new in the expression of praise for your fine programming that I can contribute. I must, however, express my appreciation and special gratitude for the fine recording from the Bergen Festival last Friday. Igor Oistrakh's performance of the Tchaikovsky violin concerto was unbelievably superb. The Choral Series and Songs of My People which followed were also exceptionally fine. I also want to express my appreciation of Trans-Canada Matinee with Ruby Mercer, the appearances of Helmut Blume, and your university series. Some of us living across the border must depend almost entirely upon CBC for acceptable radio. My sincere thanks to CBC and CBW. — A. S., Jamestown, North Dakota.

CBC Times

• Your publication is certainly worth the investment. I didn't realize that radio and television could be so interesting until I subscribed. — R. W. E., Hanley, Sask.

Three Exceptions

• As a Canadian I am very proud to claim CBC radio and television as "ours." I enjoy everything you present on radio, but there are three programs on television which I feel are not up to your standards: Twilight Zone is mentally unhealthy; it would appeal only to an unbalanced mind. Mike Hammer spoils a lovely evening's entertainment, and Dennis the Menace belongs in the comics; the acting is poor and even our children don't enjoy it. None of this is news to you I'm sure, but I don't believe in complaining behind your back. — Mrs. C. S. G., Winnipeg.

you also test your marriage. If you can smile pleasantly while you deny that you have spent the last three weeks tying knots in the tent ropes and deliberately throwing away the tent pegs, your marriage has a firm foundation. Also I have found it a good plan to have on hand some sort of cooling restorative for the inevitable moment when it is discovered that the last three pegs must be driven into solid rock.

To see that things are not allowed to get dull, we have the ever-dependable thunderstorm, which always arrives at about two o'clock in the morning. For a real feeling of roughing it there is nothing like waking as the tent pole comes down to find that that everything you have left on the floor is floating away. I've often thought it's a good thing that the bitter words which are exchanged in one of these emergencies are inaudible in the general uproar. And it's an even better thing that by morning, after a night spent bailing the tent and wringing things out, you're beyond speech. Because that's when you discover that somebody left the top off the sugar, which is now a wet block weighing ten pounds instead of the original five, and that all the bread you have is soaking wet.

That is when you really appreciate what wonderful things eggs are. There they sit, undamaged little white ovals in their dripping sagging boxes. Of course they're wet, but they're bravely ready to save your breakfast. Unless something has been knocked over on them.

Which brings us to outdoor cooking. The brown tones I've had on my face from time to time are not always there because I've tanned. Sometimes I've been cured, like a side of bacon. I still marvel at the amount of smoke a tiny little fire can produce, and I'm even more impressed by the fact that it is impossible to avoid it. Did you know that the wind always blows in circles around campfires?

There are so many places where open fires are frowned on that we have taken to cooking on a portable stove. The most remarkable feature of these contraptions, to my mind, is the incredible time they take to boil a pot of water. When you consider that they will fry one egg solid while you are reaching for another, this is hard to understand. I hate to think of the number of hours I've spent peering hopefully at six little bubbles in the bottom of a pot which never move and never get any bigger.

The question may possibly arise as to why I go on these excursions when I feel this way about camping trips. The answer is very simple: I don't feel this way when I go. I feel this way when I come home. Each time I set out I've forgotten about hornets in the orange juice and I'm full of bright-eyed expectation. I'm like the man who's madly in love with a girl whose one interest in life is making him miserable. There's no more sense to be gained by asking me why I keep going back for more than there is in asking him.

The answer, I guess, is that it's not all ants in the sandwiches. Every once in a while something turns up that makes any amount of inconvenience unimportant. One of the most charming sights nature ever offered me turned up one night when I was awakened by the sound of bait cans rattling. We were safely tucked away in a cottage that time, so I rose and looked out of the window. It was a clear bright night with an enormous moon lighting everything up, and on a flat rock nicely within my range of vision were three baby skunks, romping like kittens. I stayed there spellbound until their mother came for them and they marched away in single file, tails erect, out of sight. That was years ago and I still remember it with pleasure.

A thrill of which we never tire is the sight of deer, especially if there are fawns with them. And once we saw a red fox, his tail wrapped neatly around his forefeet, sitting on a rock watching the cars go by. Twice we have seen moose, but I was distracted both times by a feeling of sorrow that nature should have seen fit to give one of her helpless creatures a face like that.

And there are the sunsets over lakes, moon reflections on water, birds and bird songs, flowers, rock and the wonderful dewy smell of early morning.

Of course, there's just one thing about all this. Every one of these goodies is just as available to softies who have spent their nights comfortably settled behind insect-proof walls, resting luxuriously on inner-spring mattresses. I keep thinking that maybe they're the ones who are right about all this. After all, when you come right down to it, what's the matter with a summer cottage? Or even, for that matter, a motel. And the more I think about it, the more convinced I become that tents and I had very little in common from the start.
