Quest

• Many Canadians must have felt a sense of shame as the Union Jack flew across the CBC-TV program Quest last night (The Establishment, October 1). One remembers the thousands of young men who died to keep the flag flying over a free country. Free for what? To fall as low as we please, or to live to build a great and decent nation?

This program did not even need a sponsor for it was paid for by us, the Canadian people. Fortunately, those of us who did not want to pay for this sort of thing still have the freedom to speak out. We have not yet lost our freedom through misuse and abuse, and public opinion can still count. . . .

During the war years it was our patriotic duty to deal with subversive material. The Quest program of October 1 shows that there is still an equal need for patriots in peacetime.

—H.D.L., Regina.

CFL Football

• It so happens that CFL games are broadcast only on Saturday in our area. It so happens too, that all games my friends and I have seen televised have been played in the East with Fred Sgambati and Steve Douglas describing the play-by-play.

Regardless of the outcome of the game, these two sportscasters register marked favouritism for the Eastern teams. On a personal basis this is excellent and we appreciate their sentiments. As mere reporters of a game should this not be kept to a minimum or deleted?

During the game between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and B.C. Lions last Saturday similar situations ensued for each team. The commentary ran something like this: “. . . can he go, it takes about six Lions’ defencemen to stop him.” Reverse the circumstances, “. . . he ran 14 yards then hit that Ti-Cat defence that is unbeatable.”

Hamilton Tiger-Cats were by far the better team in that particular game and they deserved to win it. We enjoyed their display of strategy and power, but that “particular flavour” of the reporting detracted from it seriously. Thank you for encouraging the unloading of beefs. We appreciate the CBC Times.

—A.M., Brandon.

Playroom

• I am writing to register a protest against the September 27 production of Playroom. I have listened to the program, with some interruptions, for several years and have usually found it well planned, and interesting and informative to young children, although I deplored the lowering of tone a few months ago when the name changed from Kindergarten of the Air to Playroom.

On Friday last the program was narrated by Alan Blye. The topic of the program was animals and my first opinion was that it attempted to cover far too much material for young children to grasp.

My second objection was to the kind of songs sung. Thirdly I objected to Mr. Blye’s own presentation of the songs.

—Mrs. M.W., Winnipeg.

Camera Canada

• Many times I have felt I should write and let you know how much we have enjoyed some of your particularly fine shows but after viewing Camera Canada of September 23 (Such is Life) it is a must. Shows like this give much food for thought in many aspects of life. I do hope we will see a repeat of this fine show. The cameraman should really be commended on the stupendous job he did, and also the staff of the Toronto General Hospital.

Thank you for a very fine hour of viewing.

—Mrs. E.M.I., Winnipeg.

Not Nighthawks

• I always read this page, and I am emboldened by a letter in the CBC Times of Sept. 14-20, headed “Earlier Shows for the Elderly,” to register a similar protest re: late programs, referring particularly to good music. Frequently such programs are on Winnipeg only, whether early or late in the day. Many retired people are perforce apartment dwellers and therefore are deprived of hearing some of the good musical programs.

—S.W.M., Calgary.

Talent Festival Returns

THE SEARCH for talented musicians continues, and for the next seven weeks it is concentrated on the western provinces.

Talent Festival commences its fifth year with the venerable Sir Ernest MacMillan, 70, once more conducting the orchestras that accompany the performers and serving at the head of the corps of adjudicators.

First program of the series will be heard Tuesday, October 29 at 9:30 p.m., with William Egnatoff, flute, of Saskatoon, Colleen Kaufmann, soprano, of Lethbridge and David Watson, French horn, of Dauphin, Man., competing in a program recorded in Winnipeg.

Two other programs will be heard from Winnipeg, on December 3 and 10. Edmonton will be the scene of the November 5 program, and Calgary will be the locale of the November 26 broadcast, marking what is likely the first time that a national network music broadcast has emanated from that city.

Calgarians dominate the list of competitors, eight of them having been chosen in auditions conducted by producer Tom Taylor of Winnipeg and Carl Little of the CBC's National Music Office, Toronto. There were so many Calgary competitors that the one show recorded in that city could not include all of them, so they were sent to other cities to compete. Competing in Calgary are Elaine Mossop, violin, Leonard Harder, baritone and Lorelee Monro, soprano. In Edmonton, November 5, Calgarians Patricia Colvin, piano, and Gloria Ablonczy, soprano, will compete. Marilyn Engle and Gloria Saarinen, both Calgary pianists, will be heard from Vancouver, November 12 and 19 respectively. And James Monk, bass, of Calgary, will be heard December 3 from Winnipeg.

Other competitors come from Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Regina, and Dauphin, Man., indicating the wide area reached by the auditions held this

WELL-KNOWN Canadian 'cellist Peggie Sampson introduces this week for the first time on radio a basso viola da gamba, made for her by Kessler, Swiss craftsman famed as a builder of stringed instruments modelled after those in use during and prior to Elizabethan times.

Miss Sampson describes the instrument as being "beautifully crafted with purfling (ebony inlay) around the edges of the top and bottom bellies. It is seven-stringed, tuned in the fourths and thirds and played without a vibrato. Portamente or glissandi are impossible on the instrument due to the fretted finger-board.

"The gamba bow is much lighter in weight than a 'cello bow, with a resultant sound that is relaxed without sounding wiry. The three upper strings are gut, and the four lower strings, copper-wound gut."

Peggie Sampson is joined by Toronto (formerly Winnipeg) harpsichordist Douglas Bodle in a program of works by Handel and Bach, Wednesday, October 30 at 7:35 p.m. on Recital in Miniature. Benjamin Horch is the producer.

SINCE World War II, and particularly during the last decade and a half, there have been many important, and sometimes spectacular, changes across Western Canada. Some are in the "work in progress" stage, while others are still on the drawing boards. Some of these developments are very obvious things—new highways, industries, and other physically evident changes. Others—not so apparent—will have vast consequences in the future lives and economy of parts, or all, of the Prairies.

The three Prairie Provinces, while vast in area, are still a closely knit community of provinces with people in Manitoba having literally as much interest in Alberta developments as those taking place in their own province, and vice versa. In a new series of radio documentaries, The Changing Face of the West, listeners across the West will have the opportunity of being brought up to date, on some of these changes.

Beginning with the broadcast of October 30, The Changing Face of the West will alternate on a weekly basis with the public affairs series Western Campus. In the 10 programs to be heard between October 30 and March 18, listeners will hear reports on such varied subjects as the Greater Winnipeg Floodway—an undertaking said to be larger in scope than the Panama Canal; the ever-puzzling Athabasca Tar Sands and their soon to be unlocked storehouse of oil; the proposed Inland Waterway, which would see the North Saskatchewan become the Mississippi of Canada, with direct water freight transportation between Edmonton and Winnipeg. These and many other timely, interesting subjects will be developed in detail by Outside Broadcast producers Dave Cruickshank in Edmonton, Craig Oliver in Regina and Larry Glover in Winnipeg.

The program that will kick off the series, on October 30, will be prepared by Craig Oliver, and will have the intriguing title From Fission to Fishin'. It will tell the story of Uranium City, Sask.—and of what has happened to it since the bubble of the uranium boom burst several years ago.

OUTER SPACE

HORIZON introduces viewers Sunday, October 27, to leading space scientists who answer questions about the drive towards the conquest of space

SINCE THE DAYS of Jules Verne and H. G. Wells, in thousands of short stories, novels, plays, comic strips and movies, men have been toying fictionally with the immensity of space. And with the developments of recent years, as man has probed ever further into the universe, the gap between fact and fiction has seemed to narrow constantly. There is no longer any awe or tingling wonder in the idea that man might some day reach the moon. The only question now is "When—this year or next?"

With the naive confidence that comes to a child wading in the sandy shallows on the edge of a great ocean, we may begin to believe that we know a great deal about the universe of which our small planet is a part. But the ocean is still largely unfathomed. Remarkable and astounding as man's scientific discoveries may be, they still disturb only the surface of knowledge.

For instance: When and how was the universe created? Is it infi-

NEWSMAGAZINE presents an hour-long documentary Tuesday, October 29, about the struggles of Central and South
American countries in adjusting to the 20th century

Latin America: Progress and Problems

A CBC NEWSMAGAZINE team headed by editor Bill Cunningham has just returned from a successful but sometimes dangerous month in Colombia, Venezuela, Brazil and Mexico, during which they narrowly missed death from bombs and bandits. They were preparing an hour-long "special" on sociological and political developments on the continental territory south of the Rio Grande, which will be seen on CBC-TV Tuesday night, October 29, pre-empting Quest on this occasion.

The team included Knowlton Nash, CBC Washington correspondent, Jean Bisson, Montreal cameraman, and Ron Wegoda, sound technician. The program's background music, Recife Lament, composed by a Brazilian, is played on a guitar in a variety of styles to suit the various scenes in the film.

The program explores problems general to these four Latin countries and some that are specific to each of them, comparing the ultimate in elegance to be found there with the poverty only a stone's throw away, and citing some of the incongruities observed: If you order snails in a restaurant, the waiter promptly asks you which kind you'd prefer; but the telephones won't work.

In the program, Cunningham has used Mexico as an example of a country which, in Latin terms, has "made it" in the leap from medievalism to the demands of the 20th century, and is now developing a stabilizing middle class; and Colombia and Venezuela are used as examples of what the New York Times assesses as the two most potentially dangerous trouble spots in Latin America. Cunningham used Brazil as an example of the way extreme sophistication and extreme poverty can co-exist in Latin America.

Just a few hours after the crew filmed an interview with the President of Colombia, Dr. Guillermo Leon Valencia, and left the palace area, 14 bombs exploded there. "If we hadn't left when we did we'd either have been killed or gotten a darn good story," comments Cunningham wryly.

One of the major problems facing Colombia is its bandits, who are conducting a reign of terror with Mau-Mau tactics. Many Colombians believe this is a result of the 1947 civil war. Thousands of Colombians have grown up knowing killing as a way of life, and this, plus their tremendous poverty and Latin temperament, has fostered the growth of bandit gangs. Since 1947 they have killed 300,000—equal to the population of a major city. Cunningham reports that the Colombian army, on a special service mission, is doing a wonderful job, not only in trying to control the banderos, but in building schools in the rural areas and coming to friendly terms with the people there, many of whom are suspicious of authority.

When Cunningham and his crew expressed a wish to go on a bandit hunt, the Colombian air force flew them up to their jumping-off point. Over the mountain tops deep in bandit territory, about 10 minutes from their destination,

LE MEDICIN Drama in French for the English network

MALGRE LUI

Molière's farce is presented on FESTIVAL, Wednesday, October 30

THE SCIENCE of medicine in the mid-17th century has been described as "nine-tenths pure grimace," so it's no wonder that Molière, with his keen eye for the charlatan in art, science or religion, added doctors to his gallery of imposters. One of his sauciest comedies, Le Médecin Malgré Lui (The Doctor in Spite of Himself), in which he pokes fun at medical quackery, will be presented on CBC-TV's Festival on Wednesday night, Oct. 30. Except for Jean Gascon's gay songs outlining the action, the play will be performed entirely in French, the first time this has been done on the CBC-TV English network. The Honourable René Lévesque, Quebec Minister of Natural Resources, will introduce it to the English-speaking audience.

Franz Kraemer produced the 90-minute video-taped production in the Montreal studios. It was directed by Jean Gascon, who also appears in the all-star cast drawn from the ranks of Montreal's famed Théâtre du Nouveau Monde, which he directs. Because of its bilingual abilities this Company is unique in the world, and is especially noted for its brilliant Molière interpretations, enacted with such visual dexterity that the magic of Molière filters through easily to English-speaking audiences.

One of the Company's most dashing actors, Guy Hoffman, who appeared in the 1956 production of Henry V at the Stratford Festival, where Gascon directed The Comedy of Errors last summer, is cast in the leading role of Sganarelle, a sporty character who first made his appearance on stage in 1600 and appears in many Molière comedies. Others in the cast include Monique Leyrac, Jean Dalmain, Monique Joly, Gabriel Gascon, and Jean-Louis Roux.

In this play, as in all Molière's work, his subject is man in society. He had no bones to pick with society in general. As George Bernard Shaw, one of his great admirers, pointed out, Molière's quarrel "is really a quarrel with God for not making men better." Molière expressed his highly individualistic and satirical attitudes towards life by challenging and unmasking bigotry, imposture, and exaggeration in every class and profession, from philosophers to dancing-masters. The only British admiral executed for dereliction of duty is the central figure in a dramatization at 8:05 p.m., October 27 on CBC Sunday Night.

MURDER

by Court Martial

JOHN BYNG was a pompous, fat, lethargic, unattractive and sometimes stupid bachelor who wore a mourning ring to keep green the memory of a dead mistress, a man of no particular distinction or aptitude, either as a person, a British M.P. for Rochester, an Admiral, or as the son of a famous sailor and Admiral of the Fleet. But he achieved immortality in a notorious British scandal which culminated in "one of the most cold-blooded and cynical acts of judicial murder in the whole of British history." Byng was the only British Admiral ever executed for having failed to do his duty when the island of Minorca fell to the French in 1756, during the Seven Years' War.

Unappealing as Byng may have been personally, the poor man was a pathetic scapegoat, sacrificed for his enemies' own guilt and to divert public wrath, and one can feel only pity for him and admire the courage with which he met his tragic death—from a marine firing squad not two feet away from him on the deck of H.M.S. Monarch, in a strong north-westerly gale and driving rain. Byng's last request that he be shot on the fo'c'sle rather than the quarterdeck was refused, but they did let him kneel on a red velvet cushion.

James Bannerman's radio dramatization of the shocking facts of the case, which reads like a fantastic thriller, will be presented on CBC Sunday Night, October 27, at 8:05 local time, under the title of Murder by Court Martial. Production is by J. Frank Willis, long famed for his direction of programs about the sea. Seldom has he tackled a more astonishing naval tale than this chronicle of disaster and spiteful revenge. (A legacy of Byng's ineptitude at Minorca, which we all know well, is mayonnaise. The chef of the Frenchman who defeated Byng invented the sauce to celebrate the event.)

Bannerman prepared the script from contemporary letters, memoirs, diaries and other documents. It will be presented with music of the period arranged by Godfrey Ridout and conducted by Samuel Hershoren.

Tony Van Bridge will be heard as the unfortunate Admiral Byng. John Bethune is the reader, and the three narrators are Henry Ramar, Charles Palmer and Alan King. Norman Etlinger will be heard as the Duke of Newcastle; Henry Comor as Horace Walpole, an author and one of Byng's defenders; and Gillie Fenwick as the president of the court martial. Others in the cast are Alan Nunn, Tommy Tweed, Leslie Yeo, John Bethune, Ivor Barry, Eric Christmas, William Glover, Sean Mulcahy, William Osler, Tom Kneebone, Ian Thorne, and Vernon Chapman.

Kingfisher Cove

With Clarence Fleiger, Phyllis Ensher, Jean Marshall, Irena Boyer, host Pat Napier and the orchestra conducted by Gordon Macpherson. Irena Boyer plays Chopin's Waltz in C sharp minor. Pat and Phyllis sing Who Do You Love, I Hope? Jean sings West Wind. The orchestra plays Night of Nights. Clarence sings Come Back To Sorrento. The entire cast sings Gee, But It's Good To Be Here.

Countrytime

Through the eyes and voices of the local fisherman we see the character of the local fishing industry on the Maritimes and the sights and sounds and stories that make the fisheries one of Canada's most exciting industries.

NHL Hockey

Chicago at Montreal.

Juliette

Juliette's special guests are Sylvia Murphy, Ruth Walker, and Joyce Hahn. Regulars are the Romeos, a group of four girl singers, and the Bill Isbister Orchestra.

CFL Football

Don Wittman and Bob Moir report from Edmonton as the Calgary Stampeders play the Edmonton Eskimos. This game is to be seen on the western network less CBXT Edmonton.

Sylvia Murphy is one of Juliette's guests Saturday night in a program of song.

Playdate:

Drama About A Dream

TO THOSE who usually enjoy the sound sleep of clear conscience and good digestion, nothing can be worse than a night of insomnia. Nothing, that is, except falling into fitful sleep in that last half-hour of early dawn. As W. S. Gilbert put it: "Your slumbering teems with such horrible dreams that you'd very much better be waking."

That's what happens to Andrew Biggs, mathematics teacher, in this week's Playdate presentation on CBC Television: With My Head Tucked Underneath My Arm. It's a new play by Len Peterson, and it stars Powys Thomas as Biggs and introduces to television a young actor from Montreal, Richard Monette. Among others in the cast are Norma Renault, James Edmond, Roland Hewgill, Anna Palo-Heimo and Ian Thorne. Produced and directed by David Gardner, the play will be seen Monday, October 28.

It's a fascinating and tricky play to produce, but a very satisfying one, for playwright Peterson has created a work that can be appreciated on many levels at one and the same time. It can be taken as a dramatized and stylized documentary of the life of Evariste Galois, a French mathematician of the early 19th century; it can point a moral to those who insist on conformity, to the detriment of the brilliant individuals among us; it is a demanding but rewarding tour de force for its principal actor, in this case Powys Thomas; and it presents challenging opportunities for the producer, in achieving the unreal, ever-changing mood of the dream through which the action takes place.

Perhaps only a mathematics teacher or an avid student of history would ever have a nightmare about Evariste Galois. Though his life and achievements were so unusual as to be almost incredible, Galois was a real person, born in 1811. Almost unbelievably precocious, he became fascinated with mathematics early in life, and, despite the obstacles presented by dull, unappreciative teachers, he was able to develop his genius quickly, almost intuitively. He read heavy tomes on complicated abstract mathematics as easily and with the same relish that one might skim through a mystery novel.

His intense interest in numbers was later matched by a passion for political freedom, which got him into trouble with the government and military. His original thinking and research in mathematics was so brilliant that his theories have provided food for study for over a century. The most stunning fact about Galois was that he accomplished so much in such a short time. He was just 20 when he was shot to death in a senseless duel over a woman.

In his nightmare, teacher Biggs finds himself cast in the role of Galois' nemesis, appearing as a succession of teachers, petty officials and persecutors who, jealous of the young man's brilliance, attempt to destroy him, and eventually succeed.

summer. Last year's instrumental winner, pianist Irene Weiss, came from Cardston in Southern Alberta. Her recognition as the best of the nation's young instrumentalists won her a $1,000 award, plus many radio and television engagements. This fall, she will take part in the Radio International young artists series, meaning that her playing will be heard in many other countries of the world through an exchange of programs.

The Talent Festival series is open to residents of Canada under 30 years of age who have not appeared as soloists on CBC Radio. Each contestant receives a performers' fee for appearing on the program, plus travel expenses. Five

Programs About Unwed Mothers

TWO PROGRAMS dealing with the subject of unmarried mothers will be presented this week.

On Sunday afternoon, October 27, CBC-TV's Heritage offers a dramatized presentation of church work for unmarried mothers, filmed in a Presbyterian home, Armagh, outside Toronto.

And on Friday afternoon, November 1, CBC Radio's Trans-Canada Matinee devotes its first half-hour to a program on unwed mothers. It will consist of a montage of comments from the girls themselves: a 16-year-old who is pregnant, a 21-year-old who has just given up her baby for adoption, a 24-year-old who tried to keep her baby but finally had to give it up, and an 18-year-old (herself illegitimate) who is keeping her baby.

The program has been prepared by Cynthia Kelly, who reports that the illegitimacy rate in Canada has remained the same for 27 years: four per cent of recorded live births are illegitimate, or one in 25 children born in this country is born out of wedlock. The age of the average unwed mother is dropping, and over 50 per cent are now in their teens.

anonymous adjudicators from across Canada, people of prominence in musical circles, listen to the programs on the air or from tape recordings, and, with Sir Ernest MacMillan, select winners in the instrumental and vocal classes, each of them being awarded $1,000. Runners-up receive $250.

Sir Ernest MacMillan, who retired in 1957 after 25 years as conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, is one of Canada's most distinguished conductors. In 1935, the late King George V knighted him for his services to Canadian music. Since his "retirement," he has made many personal tours of Canada as guest conductor of major symphony orchestras, as well as being associated closely with Talent Festival.

Program Notes

OCTOBER 28

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

National Educational Television

1. International Zone, part 2 of 8. "Life is Short," (Ages 13 and up.)

Saskatchewan School Telecasts

Mathematics for Grade 9. Program 4, More About Sets: the null or empty set; subsets; symbols; identifying a set.

Alberta School Telecasts

Living Biology. Today, Green Thumbs. Dr. J. H. Whyte, professor of botany at the University of Alberta, gives advice on the preparation of soil and taking cuttings of the most useful plants for botanical experiments. He also takes viewers on a visit to the university's greenhouses.

Nursery School Time

Today, fun with Hallowe'en begins. Miss Toby finds a rack with costumes and discovers that they belong to the costume shop. She calls the owner and he suggests that she try them on to get some idea for her own costume. She also plays a trick on Rusty.

Girl Talk

Guests: Eva Gabor, film and TV personality; Lisa Howard, TV news reporter; and Eleanor Harris, author. Subject: Superiority of men versus women, and the women's role.

CBWT—Gale Storm Show

Sing, Susanna, Sing. Susanna guides a group of tourists into a night club where they are held prisoners.

CBWT—Gale Storm Show

Alladin's Lamp. Nugay buys Alladin's lamp from a fast-talking merchant in Karachi and gets Susanna involved in a plot full of intrigue and danger.

CBWT—Love That Bob

Bob's Birthday. Bob Collins issues an edict—no more surprise birthdays for him. When he arrives home to an empty house his feelings are hurt. Starring Bob Cummings and Rosemary De Camp.

Ladies First

The sewing series includes lesson number two for seamstress beginners, and another couple of ideas for making the perennially popular bazaar aprons, with Gerdine Crawford.

Consumer information to help homemakers recognize a good buy and to choose wisely.

Password

Allen Ludden is host of a word association game show in which two teams made up of a celebrity guest and a partner chosen from the studio audience try to guess enough passwords to beat their opponents.

Take Thirty

A film by Jack Zolov of Montreal of a conversation with Eartha Kitt and Percy Rodriguez.

Friendly Giant

Friendly and Rusty talk about animals — those that live in a zoo, on a farm and at home. Rusty is interested in a book entitled Nomi.

Misterogers

Lady Elaine Fairchild is renovating the bottom floor of King Friday's castle during his absence so that it can be changed into a motel. Allen Blye, the spaceman, accidentally arrives in the neighbourhood and she suggests that he stay in her new motel.

This Living World

Steve Bloomer talks about the great importance of the deer and other animals being able to hide and avoid detection by their enemies.

CBWT—Puppet Playhouse

Charlemagne, Marlborough, and Henrietta return in this puppet show. Florence Faiers will be there trying to bring a little order. Script by Norman Bortnick. Producer, Don Browne-Wilkinson.

CBXT—Kerry Wood Storybook

The Kootenay Plains. Kerry traces the route of a fur trader and explorer, David Thompson, as he searched for a route to the Rocky Mountains.

CBXT—Sports Page

Featuring today interviews with pro football players and coaches.

CBWT—Reach For The Top

First flight winner Selkirk Collegiate compete with the winners of Grant Park Collegiate vs. Churchill High.

Playdate

With My Head Tucked Underneath My Arm. A new TV drama by Len Peterson. Produced by David Gardner. Starring Powys Thomas and Norma Renault, and introducing Richard Monette.

In a fantastic nightmare, an Ontario schoolteacher becomes all the persecutors of Evariste Galois, a mathematical genius who died in Paris in 1832, at the age of 20.

Cast: Powys Thomas as Biggs; Norma Renault as Mme. Galois; Richard Monette as Evariste Galois; James Edmond as Bert Collins; Roland Hewgill as M. Galois; Anna Palo-Heimo as Mrs. Biggs.

Inquiry

Beyond A Reasonable Doubt. A look at a murder trial and questions that arise concerning admissibility of evidence and the adequacy of the defence counsel. The case draws attention to the misconception of justice and the individual's right to a fair trial.

Explorations

Comparisons — Wedding Day. Program examines weddings in three countries as they actually happened. All participants live in small town or rural communities and are people of modest means.

CBXT—Thriller

God Grant That She Lye Stille. Elspeth Clewer is burned to death for being a witch in England, and before dying shouts a curse that no woman of her clan shall have children until her body is restored to her.

test for the wife of the steamship board's chairman.

CBXT—Love That Bob

El Lobo Strikes Again. Paul Fonda sends a telegram announcing a visit which pleases Margaret but not her brother, who determines to get rid of the visitor by any means.

Ladies First

Co-hosts Joe Everett and Ernie Poscente present today's interesting features.

1. Madelaine Dunkley continues instruction on how to make a lynx fur hat.

2. Marjorie Verkland of Malabar Costuming talks about the trials and tribulations of preparing for Hallowe'en. Producer, Gloria Germain.

Take Thirty

The Birth and Death of a Marriage. From the wedding day to the parting of the ways, two versions of the same events and what it was that brought the couple together and then separated them.

Friendly Giant

Friendly looks for Rusty but he is nowhere to be found. Jerome hasn't seen him either. However, he has an idea that he might be getting ready for the Hallowe'en Party. They discover him in a pumpkin and he decides that it will be his costume.

Misterogers

A lady reporter arrives to enquire about the missing spaceman. It is Hallowe'en and everyone in the neighbourhood is dressed up in someone else's clothes. They all go to a party.

CBXT—St. Lawrence North

Whale Hunters of Anse aux Basques. A glimpse of the life of two brothers who live mainly from hunting white whales in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

CBWT—Stop, Look and Listen

This week, Bill Guest and Gerri Styne visit the Manitoba Telephone System to see some of the new equipment available to subscribers. Dave Ruskin, producer.

CBWT—Biography

Mao Tse Tung. The story of this 70-year-old Communist dictator of 700,000,000 people, born a peasant.

In 1921 when the Chinese Communist Party was formed Mao was among the first members. Today as the leader of the world's other communist power, Mao has been having ideological differences with Khrushchev. Unlike Khrushchev, who talks of peaceful co-existence with the western democracies, Mao believes that communist and capitalistic countries cannot exist peacefully.

The Lucy Show

Lucy Goes Duck Hunting. A blind date leads to a date in a blind as Lucy Carmichael goes duck hunting. Lucy's inexperience with a shotgun leads to near disaster. Featuring Keith Andes.

The Serial

Son of a Hundred Kings (Episode 6). Billy Christian gets backing for his great invention, the roller boat. The town's committee decides against sending money to Ratticlipper, but Matilda is persuaded to invest her savings. Clyde and Catherine elope.

Cast: Martin Morton as Ludar; Drew Thomson as Billy Christian, Ruth Springford as Matilda; James Edmond as Mr. Alloway; Bruce Gray as Clyde; Patricia Farmer as Catherine.

Parade

Guests are Betty Robertson, Cy Coleman, and the Four Saints.

CBWT—Thriller

The Weird Tailor. When young Arthur Smith returns home in a drunken condition he inadvertently walks into a magic circle created by his father, and dies. His father is dabbling in the black arts and determines by such means to return his son from the dead.

Betty Robertson, a perennial favourite on Parade, is featured again on the musical program Thursday.

This week: posters. Aims: 1. to clarify what is meant by a poster; 2. to provide a background of poster forms throughout history; 3. to provide an exercise in collage in which pupils may arrange and rearrange forms, including lettering, on a given area.

Perry Rosemond, producer. Al Tasler, program organizer.

Nursery School Time

Miss Toby and Hoppy go to a mask-showing at the costume shop. They examine the real practical ones and discuss their purpose.

Girl Talk

Lois Stone, wife of comic Harvey Stone; Katherine Leonard, wife of comedian Jack E. Leonard; and Cindy Adams, wife of comedian Joey Adams are guests. Subject: The problems of being married to a comedian.

CBWT—Gale Storm Show

"Alp, Alp." Susanna and Capt. Huxley turn mountain climbers and challenge the Swiss Alps.

CBXT—Gale Storm Show

Witch Doctor. Susanna enlists the aid of a witch doctor to give a shy young man a charm which will give him courage to ask a girl to marry him.

CBXT—Love That Bob

Bob Glamourizes Schultzy. A sailor and a picture of a pair of legs is the cause of a quick and unusual campaign to glamourize Schultzy.

Ladies First

On the fashion front today, Marilyn Phillips illustrates and demonstrates wardrobe variations from a basic $10 costume.

Ruth Dyker, our home economist gives us some new ideas on imaginative box lunches for school children and lunch carriers.

Take Thirty

Mary Sutherland continues her series on collecting and antiques. Joan Sutton presents a fashion show with winter woollens as the theme.

Friendly Giant

Friendly and Rusty talk about animals, particularly about those that live on farms. They all read a book entitled Animals for Me.

CBXT—Stu Davis Show

Stu invites young and old alike to gather around for a story entitled The Haunted House. Producer, Les MacDiarmid.

CBWT—Calling All Children

Bill Guest hosts a talent show for children aged 2-12. Producer, Don Browne - Wilkinson. Appearing this week are:

An information series about the CBC, its programs and its personalities with J. Frank Willis. Guest, James Bannerman.

10:35 p.m.—The Massey Lectures

The first of a series of six lectures subtitled The Canadian Rainbow, and delivered by Canadian author and historian Frank H. Underhill.

In the course of these lectures the Professor intends to examine the image of Canada put forward by various writers and thinkers since 1867, to trace the origin of these ideas, and to compare them with Canada as it eventually developed.

James Bannerman introduces CBC Radio's package of cultural programming, now moved to Sunday night after 15 years of broadcasting on Wednesdays.

W. O. Mitchell Dramas Back on CBC Radio

TO MANY Canadians, the little town of Crocus, Saskatchewan, is much more real and familiar than, say, Meadow Lake, or Rockglen, or Rosetown. Which is odd, because the latter towns really exist in Saskatchewan, while Crocus cannot be found on any map. It was created and nurtured in the mind of Canadian writer W. O. (Bill) Mitchell, but so potent are his powers of characterization that Crocus and its inhabitants—as depicted in dozens of CBC Radio and Television plays, and stories in Maclean's magazine—have become completely believable.

Crocus isn't the only Western town created by Mitchell. Others have come to life in his stories and plays, and a couple of years ago he created a new town in the Rocky Mountain foothills region of Alberta, the area in which author Mitchell himself has made his home since 1951. The town came to life for the radio series called Foothill Fables, heard in the winter of 1961-62 on CBC Radio.

This week, a new series of weekly plays under that title begins on the radio network. The new Foothill Fables, to be heard Sundays at 12:30 p.m., will feature leading Canadian actors, with narration by John Scott as "Doc," the only continuing character in the series.

Produced in Toronto, the plays will have music by Morris Surdin, who has been associated with Mitchell scripts since 1950, when Jake and the Kid was introduced on CBC Radio.

Advice to aspiring young writers usually includes the axiom that one should stick to people and situations one knows well, and Bill Mitchell has kept to that rule through most of his successful stories and plays. Though he wandered widely through the world in his youth, most of his formative years were spent in Canada's west, and it's that locale that appears time and again in his writing.

Canadian author and historian Prof. Frank H. Underhill, presents this year's Massey Lectures starting Sunday at 10:35 p.m. The image of Canada put forward by various writers since 1867 is his subject.

Project '64:

The Black Ghetto

A CHURCH is bombed in Birmingham, Alabama, and innocent children die. Negroes are set upon by dogs and blasted with high-pressure hoses; others are shot or beaten or hanged. It's all part of the struggle for equality, for integration, for treatment as human beings, being waged by the Negroes in the deep south of the United States. But what of the Negroes in the north, where "integration" of a sort was achieved long ago? Is the Negro in the so-called "ghetto" of New York's Harlem any better off than the southern Negro, who is trying to achieve what his northern brother ostensibly has already gained?

These are some of the questions to be examined this week on Project '64, as the CBC Radio series begins its fall-winter season (Sundays, 5 p.m., local time, beginning October 27) with an hour-long documentary entitled Harlem—The Black Ghetto. It is the first of two programs prepared by Austin Clarke, a writer from Barbados, West Indies, in co-operation with Lloyd Chester of the Project '64 staff. Clarke lived in Harlem while gathering the many tape-recorded interviews heard on the program, and points out that, being a Negro himself, he was able to elicit from the slum-dwellers their honest, emotional reactions, rather than the guarded, suspicion-filled opinions they might have given to a white reporter.

The resulting programs, in the view of Lloyd Chester, are among the most powerful he has worked on in his five years with the Project team, on a par with the series entitled The God That Failed, which won an Ohio Award when presented two years ago.

What is life like in Harlem today? . . . A study in abject poverty, degradation and misery, according to Clarke. "The Negro's will is taken away," he writes in his script. "He is completely stripped of his humanity. Demoralization stalks his half-death like a mortal shadow. And if he survives a day of drinking, a day of crime, a day of weeping for himself, he goes home to rest, but that rest is a mere nightmare of the horror of his waking hours."

Harlem is a jungle, says Clarke, "where a man must use his wits to live even if it means killing a friend or stealing from his mother . . . There is no escape, only death. But before the coffin is nailed tight, there is some time, time to stand at a bar, look inside the crystal ball of a whisky glass or a bottle of beer, and see if perhaps a miracle is lurking there to save me."

one of the engines in their twin-engine plane suddenly failed. But the pilot glided the plane down through the valleys to the airfield, and they landed safely. "If a crash hadn't killed us, the banderos most certainly would have," says Cunningham. The Colombian President told him that there is evidence that the banderos have recently been supplied with Cuban weapons and pamphlets, so there is grave danger that the gangs will become a political problem as well as a sociological one.

When the CBC men were setting up equipment before interviewing the Venezuelan President, Romulo Betancourt, they were puzzled by a hum in the sound system which they couldn't track down. Finally they mentioned it to the President, at which he smiled and reached inside his vest. Immediately the humming stopped. They learned that it had been caused by his personal alarm system, which he always wears. His hands are badly scarred from putting out a fire in his car when an attempt was made on his life about a year ago.

Betancourt, reports Cunningham, has made some progress in leading his people with moderate methods, but is working against tremendous pressure from the Communists. Cunningham feels that because of Betancourt's personality and character, and the country's oil resources, Venezuela stands the best chance of the three South American countries the CBC men visited, of finding its feet in democratic fashion. That's why the Communists are putting tremendous pressure on trying to wrest the balance of power, encouraging a state of terror—people are being mown down in the streets of Caracas, and city travel by night is extremely unsafe.

Another problem is the fact that 80 per cent of Venezuelans are illegitimate. CBC Newsmagazine did some filming at a Venezuelan hospital where an illegitimate baby is born every eight minutes. At least one spokesman told Cunningham that Venezuela has developed a resentful, bastard society that demands a strong, dictatorial father-image at its head. Most Venezuelans have grown up without knowing a father.

Brazil, particularly in the northeast, is just beginning to realize the importance of large-scale agrarian, industrial and sociological reform. The Sudne, a government agency, is attempting many improvements, but there is so much to be done, and it is so hampered by inflation, that it will be another decade before the effect of all the changes is widely felt.

Economics Dull? Not on 'Index'

ECONOMICS may seem to many to be a dull, dusty subject, fit only for study by dull, dusty individuals.

But all of us have ideas about economics, whether we know it or not. People become aroused about the cost of houses, or the price of groceries; they're convinced that taxes are too high, wages too low, expense accounts too large, public transportation too slow, parking too scarce, commercials too plentiful.

And when they talk about all those things, people are really talking about economics. Dull? Dusty? Hardly.

Beginning this week on CBC Radio is a new series of weekly documentary programs about economics. The half-hour broadcasts, entitled Index, will be heard Friday nights at 9:00 p.m., and each program will originate in a different region of the country.

A single topic will be dealt with in each program, and, although specific subjects for the first few broadcasts are yet to be chosen, they are expected to deal with such topics as the pros and cons of international unions, high rates of interest of mortgages, new directions in personnel policies and other subjects related to the business and labour scene.

LE MEDICIN MALGRE LUI

grocers and priests, from hypochondriacs to snobs and devotees.

Le Médecin Malgré Lui, perhaps the best of his farces, maltreats the medical profession, but in a good-natured way. The play bursts with energy, invention, and a delightful lightness of fancy and fitness of expression. In the Festival production the bright ditties sung in English by Jean Gascon add greatly to the high spirits and comedy of the show.

The story tells what happens when Sganarelle, a humble woodcutter, is persuaded to pose as a great apothecary by a pair of mischievous servants who have been sent to find a doctor by their master, whose daughter, Lucinde, was stricken mute when the father attempted to marry her off to a wealthy suitor. The following is a synopsis of the play's three acts, for the benefit of viewers whose knowledge of French is a little rusty.

Act I: Sganarelle (Guy Hoffman) quarrels with Martine, his wife (Monique Leyrac), and M. Robert (Jean Gascon) chides him for beating her. When Martine spurns his chivalry, Robert offers to help Sganarelle beat her. Sganarelle tells him to mind his own business and Robert departs, apologizing.

Winnipeg soprano Nona Mari is soloist Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. when the Winnipeg Pops Concert moves to a new day. She is first of a series of guest artists to be heard in coming weeks.

Sganarelle goes off to cut wood and Martine acts forgiveness, but vows revenge.

Valère (Pierre Theriault) and Lucas (Guy L'Ecuyer) discuss their master's daughter, Lucinde (Monique Joly), her love for Léandre (Gabriel Gascon), of whom her father, Geronte (Jean Dalmain), disapproves, her strange illness, and their search for a doctor to cure her. Bent on revenge, Martine directs them to her husband, who, she says, is really a great doctor but prefers the life of a woodcutter. Convinced by her revelations of the "doctor's" miraculous "cures," the men hustle off to find him. Sganarelle boasts to them of his prowess as a fagot-cutter, but when they insist that he is really a great physician, he quickly agrees, and assumes the new role—with the promise of ample payment for his services.

Act II: Geronte is overjoyed when Lucas and Valère tell him of the great doctor they have found to treat his daughter, for if she can be made to speak again, he can marry her off to wealthy Horace. But the household nurse, Jacqueline Lucas' wife (Germaine Giroux), thinks doctors are quacks, and insists that the cure for Lucinde is marriage to her poor but handsome lover, Léandre.

Sganarelle appears, dressed as a doctor, and madly quoting Hippocrates to improve his disguise. He mistakes Geronte for a doctor and beats him up for denying it. After apologies all round, Sganarelle spies Jacqueline, and makes inhibited advances to her, all in the interests of medicine, of course. Lucinde is brought in, and the "doctor" fabricates a long, jumbled diagnosis which fools Geronte completely.

When the others have left, Léandre asks Sganarelle's aid in his courtship of Lucinde, saying her illness is only a pretext, to evade an arranged marriage. Sganarelle is outraged at first, but agrees to help when Léandre produces money.

Act III: Disguised as a doctor, Léandre prepares to visit Lucinde. Sganarelle admits the truth about himself to Léandre, and explains how easy it is to act the part of a doctor. Thibaut (Jean-Louis Roux) and an English soldier (Victor Desy) seek the doctor's advice about Thibaut's wife. After money is exchanged the "doctor" prescribes a very special cheese. Then he meets Jacqueline and persuades her to cuckold her husband as a punishment for his jealousy, but the appearance of Lucas and Géronte forces them to hide. Sganarelle returns with Léandre, whom he introduces to Géronte as an apothecary. Lucinde comes in and Sganarelle holds Géronte's attention with high-sounding but nonsensical medical talk, while she visits with Léandre.

When Géronte hears her talking he is overwhelmed with gratitude to Sganarelle, but when she tells her father she'd rather go into a convent than marry Horace, Géronte implores the "doctor" to make her mute again. Sganarelle offers to make him deaf, instead, but is refused. Then he announces that his apothecary, Léandre, can cure Lucinde with a special drug, and the young lovers go off together.

Later Lucas bursts in with news of Lucinde's elopement. Géronte angrily sends for a policeman. Martine learns from Lucas that Sganarelle is to be hanged. Sganarelle pleads for a beating instead of the death penalty, but Géronte is adamant. In the nick of time the elopers return. Léandre tells Géronte he prefers an honourable marriage. It also transpires that Léandre's uncle has died, leaving him a fortune. Géronte blesses the marriage, Sganarelle is exonerated, but tells Martine she must be prepared to live as a doctor's wife, and a doctor's tempers are not to be trifled with!

Civic Symphonies Return to Radio

THE MONTREAL, TORONTO, Winnipeg and Vancouver Symphony Orchestras, which visiting conductors rate among the best on the continent, will be heard in weekly hour-long radio concerts in the Symphony Hall series beginning Thursday night, October 31, at 11 p.m. (11:05 p.m. on CBX).

In the first program, the Montreal Symphony is directed by its permanent conductor, Zubin Mehta, also conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony, who plans to conduct at La Scala in May. Outstanding soloists during the season include violinists Christian Ferras, Igor and David Oistrakh, Henryk Szeryng, and Zino Francescatti; cellists Leonard Rose and Mstislav Rostropovich; pianists Leon Fleicher, John Ogden, and Rudolf Serkin; and bass Yi Kwei-Sze.

A young Nova Scotian, 30-year-old pianist Neil van Allen, who went overseas 11 years ago to study in London and Paris on scholarships from the Nova Scotia Talent Trust, was recently appointed to the staff of the famous Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London. He has been heard frequently on BBC Radio, has appeared on British television as an authority on George Gershwin, and has won many prizes, including the Harriet Cohen Commonwealth Medal in 1962, and the Silver Medal of London's Worshipful Company of Musicians (1961). In August he returned to Canada as a featured artist at the Nova Scotia Festival of the Arts held in Tatamagouche, where he gave the first performance of Sonata No. 2, written for him by Wilfred Josephs.

The glee club of Killarney, Man., leads off the season as Parade of Choirs returns to CBC Radio each Thursday night, commencing this week.
