Monkees cancel British tour

THE Monkees are not touring Britain in March after all. Their seven-concert tour was cancelled this week as "I'm A Believer" grabbed the number one spot in the Pop 50 from Tom Jones.

Their British publicist, David Cardwell, told the MM on Monday: "The tour has been cancelled because the record is breaking all over the place. But they may fly to Britain at the end of February for one day of press interviews."

The Monkees, whose US concerts have been sell-outs, will start a major feature film, probably in March. "The film will probably be for Columbia Pictures and will be in colour. The script could be changed, but at the moment they will not be playing the Monkees," said Cardwell.

Reports that the Monkees do not play on any of their records were denied this week. Don Kirschner, head of Screen Gems TV and publishing was reported as saying that they did not play on their first two shows, but now they play on all their recordings. "They are at present doing a 70-minute spot on their tour," said Cardwell.

ban Stones new single

JEW YORK, Monday. — The Rolling Stones' new single "Let's Spend The Night Together", has been banned by many US radio stations, reports Ren Grevatt. Many stations have decided not to play the side, although the flip "Ruby Tuesday" is getting plays. The controversial

A-side title was changed for the group's appearance on the Ed Sullivan TV show to "Let's Spend Some Time Together". But it is not known whether the group will change the title and lyrics for their forthcoming appearance on the Palladium TV show on Sunday (22). A spokesman for ATV told the MM: "It has not yet been discussed. No decision will be made on whether we want a change in title or lyric until a day or so before the programme."

Shortly after landing at Kennedy airport, New York, the Stones were involved in a near accident. The motorcade of limousines taking them to their hotel was crossing a parking runway when one of the cars almost collided with a taxi-ing jetliner. Fans rloted outside the CBS Theatre on Saturday as the Stones arrived for rehearsals of the Ed Sullivan Show. Mick Jagger cut a hand but the other Stones were not hurt.

Eric Clapton said he was looking for a double-necked guitar in a recent MM. Guitarist Johnny Whitney with the Family features one in his group and they play in London clubs. Look like a couple of right finger slicers to us!

THE HIGH COST OF RAVING

A SOUR note is creeping into the sweet sound of success of London's discotheques. It is the sound of waiters charging severe prices for drinks. Endless clubs have opened with promises of "drinks at reasonable prices" only to fall into evil ways and start squeezing every form of coin, note and groat from their pleasure-seeking customers. Your Raver reports several miserable scenes recently. For example, at one club last week, an ex-pop journalist charged an old colleague the princely sum of 32s 6d for three Scotches and a Coke. At another club 69s 6d was charged for seven scotches. In both cases only doubles were served "because we're not allowed to serve singles." Pop guitarist David O'List says: "I was charged 11s for two lagers in one club. Then a guy knocked them over and refused to give me a refund." Nobody expects public bar prices in night clubs, but surely some cheaper drinks can be sold. Not all customers are pop millionaires.

Jagger calls the new Stones' single, made in Barnes, "the West 10 sound", . . . Beryl Bryden yodelling in the Bavarian Alps . . . Jonathan King's card from Jamaica says: "Can't think of anything to say."

Why do Yardbirds always claim to have done everything first? . . . Now listen to Jerry Lee Lewis's "Green Green Grass Of Home" . . . On "Ruby Tuesday" Brian Jones plays piano and recorder, Bill Wyman plays bowed bass.

193 EARLHAM GROVE, LONDON, E.7 MAR 7032/7089

A PPLICATIONS are pouring in for the most fabulous bargain holiday of 1967 the MM's Sunshine Superholiday to the Antibes Jazz Festival in the sundrenched South of France. Have you written yet for full details of the three separate trips?

YOU can go for nine days, leaving on Friday, July 21, travelling by coach and boat and staying in a special luxury camp only 400 yards from the beach. With all travel, accommodation and breakfasts this will cost you only 25 guineas. Or you can take the similar 12-day trip, leaving London on July 19. The cost: 28½ guineas. Or you can take the full 15 days, with hotel accommodation in Antibes, departing on July 16 and returning on July 30. And all for only 38 guineas.

THE camp site, with chalets, has full facilities including swimming pool and restaurant. The Festival runs from July 22 to 27 and booked so far are the Louis Armstrong All-Stars and the Dave Brubeck

BUT even if you are tone-deaf, hate jazz or can't stand festivals, the trips are still a bargain. Think of all that sun, shimmering sand and bouncing bikinis. Write now for full details. Fill in the coupon and post it today to Antibes Trips, Melody Maker, 161, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4.

Please send details of the MM Antibes Festival trips.	biggest load of rubbish I've ever seen on television. But at least American television is trying, which is more than can be said for British television.

SPENCER DAVIS: I thought the show was quite funny and let's face it, there's a terrible vacuum for acting ability among groups. It's good situation comedy and the acting isn't stilted at all. My wife Pauline suggests that the Small Faces might be very good in a similar British show. I don't know what we would be like. Pete and Muff might be okay, but I couldn't see Steve in that sort of role!

have to do is walk around half awake all day and you're brainwashed by the Monkees! They're very nice -it's a sort of Beatles thing. Crazy, Good luck to them. The music isn't as important as their image at the moment, but it's all a great thing. It would be a gas if we could do a show like it. I don't know how we would make out, but Steve Marriott could do it. I saw a film of the Who on Top Of The Pops recently

UPSET

ERIC BURDON: They make very good records and I can't understand how people get upset about them. You've got to make up your minds whether a group is a record production group or one that makes live appearances. For example, I like to hear a Phil Spector record and I don't worry if it's the Ronettes or Ike and Tina Turner, although Ike and Tina have got a great stage act, of course. I like the Monkees record as a good record, no matter how people scream. So somebody made a record and they don't play, so what? Just enjoy the record.

Not all the pop industry are up in arms about our successful American cousins. It's not all sour grapes, and in case you think we're being over generous to instant success, remember what they used to say about the Beatles!

Troggs pull out of Gene Pitney tour

THE Troggs have pulled out of their proposed tour with Gene Pitney, due to open on February 17.

Manager Larry Page told the MM on Monday: "When we agreed to do the tour, it was agreed that the supporting bill would include various artists like the Easybeats.

"The bill is completely different to this and so I have informed promoter Arthur Howes that we would not be doing the tour." He added that the Troggs wanted to be involved with a good tour, "If we do change our minds again it will be because the supporting bill is changed. If it's not we don't do the tour."

Promoter Arthur Howes said: "As far as we are concerned the Troggs are on the tour."

FOCUS ON FOLK of their latest record.

V/ERY quietly, Roy Guest lets off a bombshell in his latest newsletter from Folk Directions, He says the Watersons are "retirhese are just a few of the Pools dividends won by "Sporting Record" ing" (the quotes are his) at the end of March and will be available for club dates only up to then. DIVIDENDS FOR READERS THAN ANY OTHER

The Watersons have always had a very unconventional attitude towards their work, and have always kept free time in their very busy schedule for "uncommercial" activities like collecting which have, in fact, been the secret of their success.

Guest tells me they may continue to do concerts and records in future, but will probably drop out of the gruelling round of one-night stands at clubs. One way or the other, I doubt if we have heard the last of John, Lal, Michael and Norma, especially in view of the success

Tours being promoted by Guest for American visitors during the next few months include the New Lost City Ramblers, who have dates in Birmingham, Man-London, Exeter, Swansea, chester. Harrow, Norwich, Grimsby, Worcester and on BBC-TV during February, Simon and WHE Clancys weren't pleased with their Albert Hall concert last week, I hear. Though the hall was packed, they didn't feel they were getting across. Future Clancy tours may be in smaller halls than the vast RAH, as a possible solution.

A FTER the sensational appearance of two MM folk writers (Eric Winter and Myself!) with Peter Seeger third folk writer Tony Wilson stood in for Mick Groves in the Spinners' TV show last Sunday evening. THE KARL DALLAS

IN THE ACT

THAT there is still room for I audacious youth in 1967 is a good sign. Donovan is an audacious youth, and in the vast monument to culture known as the Royal Albert Hall, he proved that a little talent can be stretched to the limits of credulity, and completely mesmerise a vast concourse of sophisticated people. For this is Donovan's real success as a young martyr, a symbol and figurehead of a movement, not as a song writer, guitar player or singer. It's very fortunate Donovan isn't old and ugly with a long beard, or he would have been booed off with his paltry lyrics, his precarious voice and his tutor book guitar. As long as one accepts these three basic premises - or owns up and admits one has tin ears - then one can accept that Don's ambitious project, which involved a string section, jazzmen and a modern ballet dancer, was a success in communication. Don appeared, looking like a small, lost medieval minstrel boy in a huge orange shirt and mauve trousers singing solo, aided by occasional glasses of water. He sang shy songs about himself and loving songs about his friends, and his favourite places and scenes. There were no actual goofs, just a limited voice as fragile as glass, just waiting to be broken. One of his best songs was "Saturday Night" which he has donated to Julie Felix for a single. Delicate pictures were projected onto a back screen while he droned softly into the microphone. Then a collection of jazzmen began playing - Ronnie Ross on baritone and Danny Moss on tenor, Danny blew one marvelous chorus, on "Preachin' Love", but that was over all too soon. Soon it was all back to the sonnets. "Here I stand acting like a silly clown, Wouldn't anybody like to have the changes I'm going through. Well it ain't so bad, I'm just a lad with so many more things to do," sang Donovan, while the audience sat in silent appreciation. After the strings and jazz came the rock. On "Mellow Yellow", he actually succeeded in getting the audience to clap on the beat, and on "Season Of The Witch" and "Writer In The Sun" there was applause and much dancing. A lot of thought, planning and hard work went into making an intriguing concert, with much credit due to musical director John Cameron. It was a fragile, weak, useless experience - but then all art is useless, so they say. - CHRIS WELCH.

Harris

NOBODY sleeps when Wee Willie Harris is on stage! We had almost forgotten about him in Edinburgh . . . until he arrived for a week's cabaret at the Pentland Room to assail us with a 55-minute act that will keep him in mind for some considerable time. Relieved only by his regular backing group, the Jeff Lawrence Trio, Willie set about the customers with typical fervour. His opening medley of oldies gave no indication of the fireworks to come. First the impressions. He rattled off hilarious cameos of Donovan, Doddy and Mick Jagger. Then a "mad professor" bit before slipping in straight versions of "Green Green Grass Of Home" and "Stand Up And Fight", wrapping it all up with a rousing "Shout". All in all a dynamic performance from one of the few original rockers to survive - JOHN GIBSON.

DREAMING OF A BIG BAND OF ALL-TIME GREATS...

HOLLYWOOD LEONARD FEATHER BANDLEADING, which still clings to a position of prestige in the art of jazz, is a profession conspicuously different from that of, say, the sculptor, the photographer, or the instrumental virtuoso.

Lacking the independence of these others, the maestro is the focal personality in a group form subject to fluctuations that are beyond his power.

The sculptor is answerable to nobody but himself; the painter is the master, not the servant of his palette; the virtuoso cannot be stripped of his mastery, nor is he likely to run into a shortage of piano or violin strings.

On the other hand, the bandleader inevitably finds himself enmeshed in the economics of the payroll, the logistics of the one-night stand, and even the whims of a trumpet player's wife who may insist on pulling her old man off the tour to fly home for an urgent PTA meeting. Any similarly trivial incident involving personalities can play hob with an entire sax, brass or rhythm section.

Recently I tried to construct a hypothetical situation in which all the problems of leading a big jazz orchestra magically disappeared. The subject of my experiment was Woody Herman, who has just started a British tour. Woody may well know more about the difficulties of his profession than any other leader now active.

"Let's suppose," I said, "that you could have your choice of any of the musicians, living or dead, who have ever been members of your orchestra since you started in 1936. Whom would you have working with you today?"

After two days of cogitation Woody came back with an unexpecoffensive team, which is a group aimed primarily at excitement; the second band would be the defensive team, a slightly cooler outfit."

Herman then reeled off a list of names that provided an astonishing reminder of the extent to which he had used his baton as a divining rod through the years. Lightsensitive readers are advised to wear their shades, as the constellation is more than a little dazzling.

the first band," Woody continued, "I would have Pete Candoli, Bill Chase, Sonny Berman and Ernie Royal on trumpets, Nat Adderley on cornet, and Dusko Goykovich on flugelhorn. The trombone section would consist of Bill Harris, Carl Fontana and Bob Brookmeyer. The saxes would include Sam Marowitz on alto; Zoot Sims, Gene Ammons and Sal Nistico on tenors, and Serge Chaloff on baritone.

"In the rhythm section I would have two bass players, Chubby Jackson and Oscar Pettiford; then there would be Vince Guaraldi on piano, Billy Bauer on guitar, and Don Lamond on drums. Completing this band would be Milt Jackson on vibes and vocals by Mary Ann McCall.

the second band Conrad Gozzo, Ray Wetzel, Billy Hunt, Conte

Candoli and Cappy Lewis. In the trombone section I would have Urbie Green, Cy Touff and, if he could be permitted a little moonlighting, Bill Harris again. John La Porta on alto sax; Stan Getz, Bill Perkins, Flip Phillips on tenors, and Pepper Adams on baritone.

LOOSE FROM THE TRAD FAD

LONDON

CINCE joining the Alex Welsh Band on April 1, 1965, Roy Williams has grown from being one of the better trad trombonists to a world-class jazzman.

The change was almost startling and I wondered if Roy had any theories on the subject.

"In the early days of the trad boom we were told how to play and it just wasn't the way I wanted to play," explained Roy. "I was always greatly influenced by people like Vic Dickenson and Bob Brookmeyer. I was stifled during my five years with Terry Lightfoot.

"One thing about the Welsh band is the way everybody is so broadminded. Whether we are doing razzmatazz, Dixie, mainstream or a modern number we adapt ourselves and enjoy them all." Roy was born in Salford, Manchester, 29 years ago and moved to Bolton when aged four.

"I used to mess around on piano. Then I got interested in the revival bit and listened to George Lewis and Bunk Johnson I went crazy over Jim Robinson, so my parents got me a trombone. I was 18 then.

ROY WILLIAMS: "stifled" for five years

"Eventually I joined Eric Batty's Jazz Aces in Manchester. Johnny Barnes was there at the same time, with the Zenith Six. After a couple of years I was called up into the Army.

"The Army unsettled me and when I was demobbed in 1960 I had no intention of going back back to my trade as a fitter. I ligged around and joined Mike Peters, Nine months, later I went with Lightfoot."

Roy has a wide taste in music, from "some pop" to classical music, via Dixieland, Basie, Ellington and Gerry Mulligan, "I don't like folk, though," he admits. "It's a big take-on, All that protest bit makes me fall about.

Is there a good living to be made in jazz these days?

"Whatever people may think, we aren't earning a bomb. But it's a reasonable living. As Wild Bill Davison says, it's a lot better than driving a truck."

What of the future? Does Roy see himself playing trombone until his teeth drop out and he gets too old to hold it up?

"I do think about that, I honestly think that there will always be a certain amount of work for a band of our type and we can keep working for a helluva long time.

"Wild Bill was telling us about Abe Lincoln who is about 67. Bill rang him up to do a gig and Abe said he hadn't played in a long time and didn't even know where his trombone was. Anyway he found it in his garage and turned up on the gig. Bill said he blew incredible stuff range, technique, taste, the lot. He must have a lip of steel. "We may not still be blowing at 67, but I'm going to have a good go at it."

SONG TITLES

Very important. Personally, I write songs differently each time-I may start with a title or with a little riff on the piano. "Matthew And Son" was one of those titles that I had to use-when I thought of it I automatically wrote a tune into it. I wanted listeners to hear the tune when they heard the title.

BRIAN EPSTEIN

Fame In '67. He has his own box at the Saville Theatre-I think it is the Royal Box. He's painted it up and put a bar in the back. In the second half of the show I haven't got much to do so I go up to the boxand always seem to have to rush to get back on stage. I like Brian very much and he is one of the very clever men in the pop business. He has got the talent of knowing what people want, putting it down in a simple way and giving it to them. I don't think anybody else could have done what he did for the Beatles. It's something like the way Mike Hurst and I are together-we are so good for each other. When we sit down to do an arrangement we just click straight away.

DEPRESSION

I get a lot of that at parties and big gatherings. I've got to be absolutely stoned to really enjoy a party. I write songs to get out of depressions-I believe to write a good song you have to feel a bit hurt. I don't write many happy tunes. You will be thoroughly depressed after you've heard my LP-but please buy it before you shoot yourself. At art school I used to get depressed and go on to the fire exit stairs and play guitar. They found out and that's why I had to leave.

RESTAURANTS

I used to work in my father's place when I was about ten, waiting on the customers. I grew to really hate it. Now I tip waiters so heavily because I know what they are going through, I know what they are feeling. Of course I like eating in good restaurants like Isow's. I love watermelons and there aren't too many places that have them.

CAT AND DOGS

One of the secrets of my success, I suppose. Cat Stevens and "I Love My Dog" seemed to take people's imaginations. Every interviewer used to ask why I was called "Cat" and if I had a dog. Two weeks after the record was released I found a dog in Charing Cross Road and adopted it. The papers wouldn't use it because they thought it was just a publicity stunt. Anyway I had the name "Cat" long before I made the record.

NEWSPAPERS

All I can think of is the Daily Mirror and Garth. I used to read the actual columns and miss Garth-now I realise a part of my life was missing. When I'm away I get my parents to save up the Daily Mirrors for me and I have a marvellous time catching up on Garth when I get back. Actually I don't read many papers, except the trades. It may sound a terrible thing to say, but music is the only thing that really interests me now. I believe fate has landed me in this business and I feel obliged to work as hard as I can for music.

DANCE BANDS Cyril Stapleton. I used to go down to the Lyceum at the beginning of the twist craze. I could never twist well and that made me depressed.

CLOTHES

Before I had a hit record I

I got money I was going to buy a beautiful set of clothes. I haven't done it-this suit I'm wearing is nearly two years old, There are so many things to do I haven't got time to worry about clothes much. I don't think they really matter al-though I like to look smart.

SPORTS CARS

Immediately I think of Donald Campbell. I feel so terrible about that, but it had to happen. I'm not really interested in sports cars-I haven't the slightest desire to buy one. I'd rather have something simplelike a Rolls Royce.

SPORT

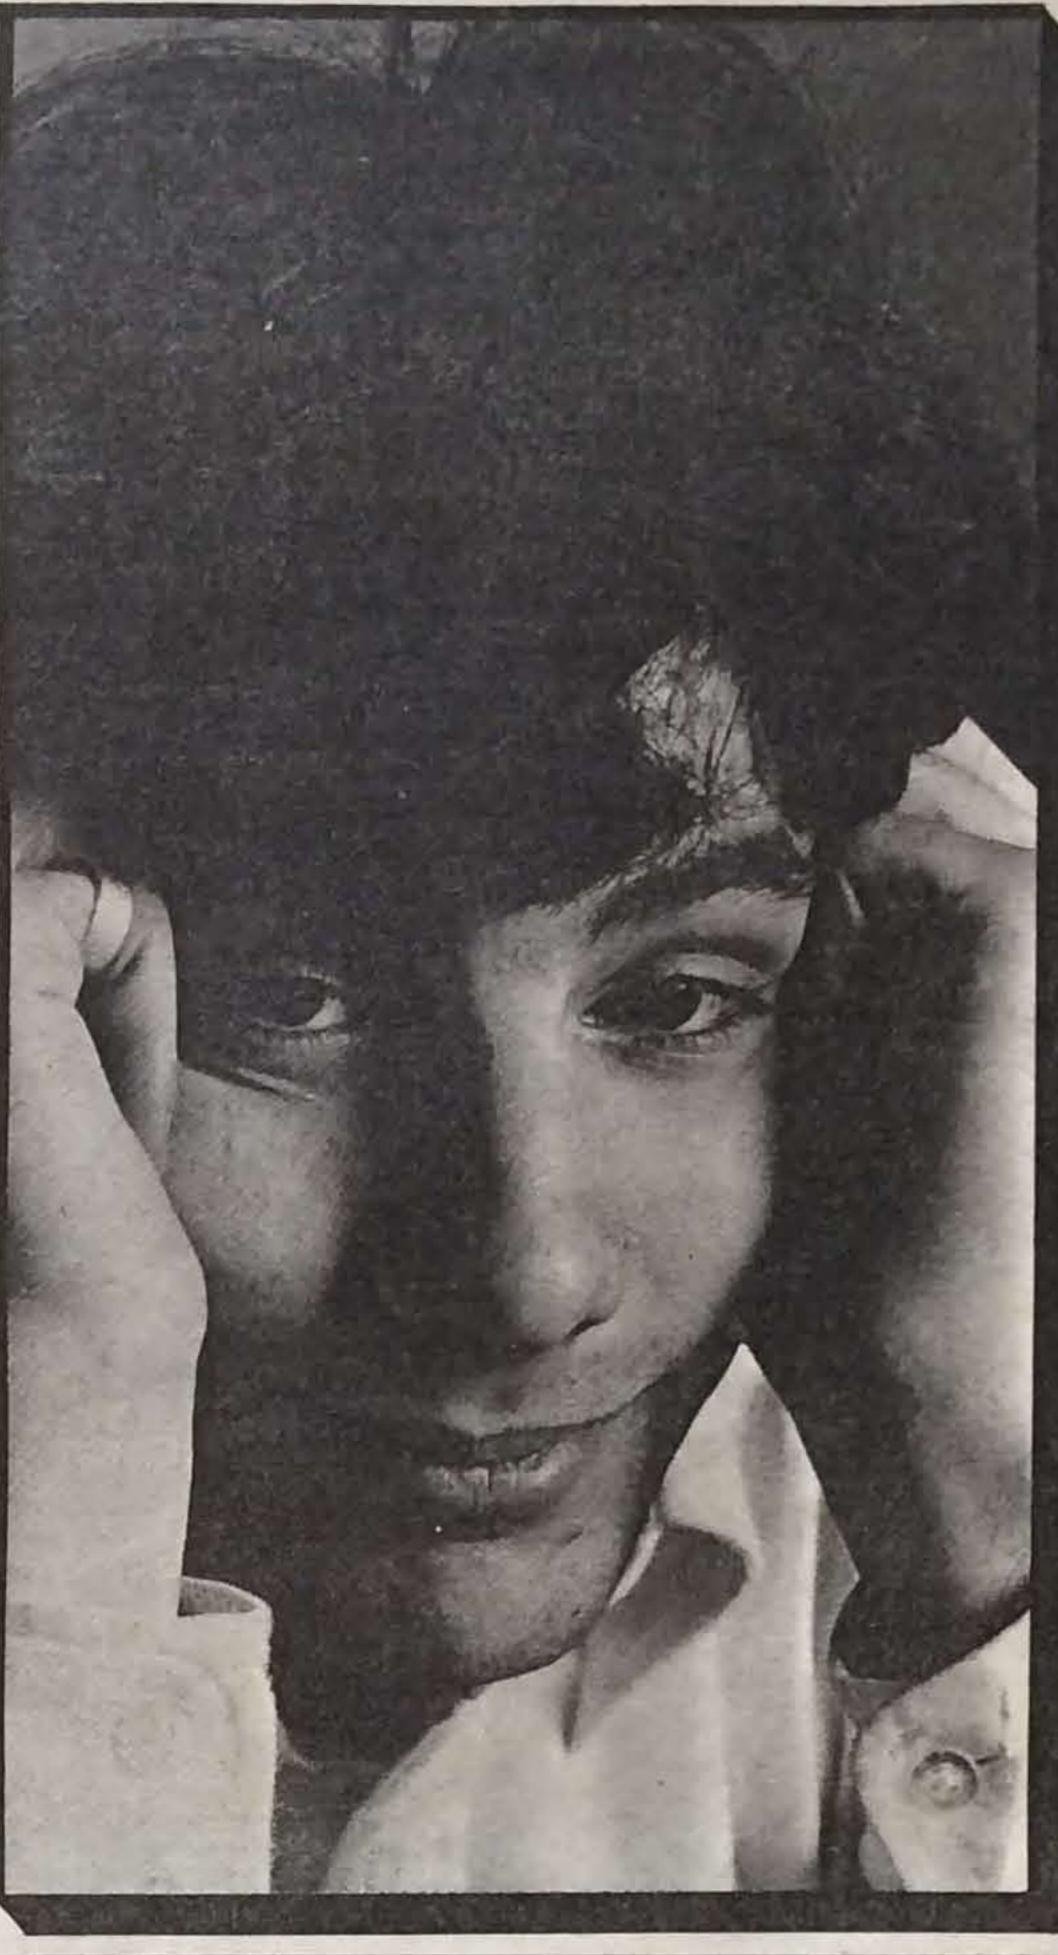

I used to love sport. There is a swimming pool opposite our place and I used to go every day and increase the number of lengths I swam each time. But in cold weather I get this thing where my hands go yellow so I had to stop, Actually I think I should start sports clubs for stars. They would make a lot of money because they need to get fit. It's very important to build yourself up.

SMOKING

I smoke much too much. I force myself to throw my matches away so I don't have a cigarette too early in the morning. Once I start I carry on all day. I daren't count how many I smoke. I keep wondering what the inside of my lungs look like. Still, smoking calms me-although that's probably all psychological.

BEACH BOYS

Sounds, very interesting sounds. I think Brian Wilson is a terribly clever young man. He is one of the best of our believe to write a good song you have to feel a bit hurt

> so important. I can't get over "Good Vibrations", it's a little movement on its own. I'd like to arrange a meeting between all the good songwriters, get them together and see what sort of a song they came out with.

FOLK MUSIC

That's where I came from. I still have a tinge in me. The sort of melody in folk songs used to get me-when I write a song it's the melody first. I used to write folk songs and maybe I'll release them on an EP-that's quite a good idea. But I was never really accepted in the folk world because I was too progressive—they only want Dominic Behan and the traditional stuff. Next year they will be singing the same things, and the year after. I can't stand that

PSYCHEDELIC

I don't know what the hell it means. If they really want to be psychedelic I suppose a group should be up there with a pot of opium and pass it round to the audience. How can there be psychedelic music? Somebody smashed a car up the other day-what the hell is that for? It's ridiculous, I find it much more of a thrill to make somebody feel good with a piece of music. It's a sick going to make it happen - very, very quickly.

He possesses the aura of a man who has seen and been through a lot of life. His own started in Seattle, Washington, in 1945, and took off from there. Tenements, rats and cockroaches, poverty, colour prejudice, hitching around the South, the occasional gig. Eventually he joined a blues tour but was soon penniless again.

A trip to the West Coast, back to New York, another group, then his own group. Finally came Greenwich Village - the resting place for a weary voyager.

In the Village the fairy tale began. Jimi was spotted by Chas Shandler and Mike Jeffrey

"Come to England", said they. How was Hendrix persuaded, "I didn't have no roots in the States that would hang me up. It don't matter which bit of the world I'm in as long as I'm living and putting things down."

Seeing the Jimi Hendrix Experience is just that—an experience. Jimi caresses his solid guitar with great respect. He rolls his head, looks to the sky, smiles to himself and darts in and out of the quivering sound.

On stage Hendrix takes over. It's flying music. Love and freedom. Body, soul, funk, feeling, feedback and freak.

CREATE

The Hendrix sound is what England hasn't yet evolved — but desperately needs. It's a weaving, twitching kaleidoscope of tremor and vibration, dischords and progressions that give Hendrix the kind of colour few artists have ever achieved.

He has a sad — almost Dylanish air — and sings of "going down to Mexico where, I know, man can be free," and he looks as if he really does know. Coupled with the gyrations, the emotion, the power, and the beauty its the kind of music that will make you sweat.

"It's the way we feel. We're trying to create. Our own music, personal sound and our own personal being. Our music is improvisation. No number is the same twice. While we were working on 'Hey Joe' from the beginning to the recording session, I don't think we played it the same way once But that was some time ago.

"We all dug 'Hey Joe' as a number, that was in October, so we put it down on

NATURAL

The Experience are a mixed bunch - on paper, theoretically, they would never mix. In fact the combination sets into a natural gell.

On drums is 19-year-old Mitch Mitchell, a sensuous thunder machine sounding like Keith Moon and Elvin Jones. Full of confidence and technique plus an understanding of dynamics, which is vital.

Noel Redding, a 21-year-old ex-art student plays the solid bass line behind Jimi's cutting, yet lyrical, guitar work.

Jimi is a bluesman, Mitch a jazz man, and Noel a rock and roller. They are three pretty extraordinary guys led by one of the best guitarists this country has ever seen.

Hendrix knows his own limitations. A quiet wise man who won't acknowledge that deceptive glitter of forthcoming success until he's seen it through his own eyes. You'll be hearing and seeing a lot more of the Jimi Hendrix Experience.

It's a big sound, a big scene that you mustn't run away from - go and find out for yourself.

CLINTON'S

T'S a long way from kipping down at Liverpool's Pier Head without the price of a cup of tea to a record in the Pop 50, a successful radio show and plenty of work in clubs and cabaret. But that's the rocky road that Clinton Ford has taken over the last 10 years. Ten years ago, Clinton-an extrovert, Salford-born singer who claims he sings comic songs because he's "got a comic face"-was skint, but happy, working in Liverpool as singer with the Merseysippi Jazz Band.

"That was in the winter. In the summer, I was a Butlin redcoat singing in bars all day for about £15 a week. I never made any money, but it was a huge giggle."

I knew Clinton well in those daysthe times when he used to do his band vocals lying flat on his back on the stage or perched on the piano. But though Clinton was a big name around Merseyside and the North, he was almost unknown in London. Now Clinton's had his second chart entry in a few months with "Run To The Door". But in those days, he lived in one room in Liverpool's Canning Street and if he earned any money, it didn't last long.

"I remember that room well," he said this week. "It was so untidy it was untrue. I tidied up one day and found another room!" His band work with the Merseys-he worked with them for so long because he considered it a good band with lots of laughs along the way -brought in a few quid a week. But on several occasions, without the price of a cup of tea in his pocket, he slept out at Liverpool's Pier Head, the ferry terminal on the Mersey. "I used to sleep in the Cavern sometimes, tooand that was when it was just an old cellar." On another occasion, he travelled all the way to Leeds for a job which paid him barely his train fare, plus a few extra bob. "I walked around Leeds with a hole in each shoe as big as a penny. And it was raining!" Why did he stick it? "I knew that one day, some success would come along. That's why I stuck it out. I eventually moved to London when Kenny Ball asked me to join his band-but even then I was in two minds whether to leave Liverpool or not."

SUCCESS

But London spelled success for Clintonfirst of all work with the Ball band, then radio and the occasional TV shows and hit records, leading to a regular radio series and plenty of work of all kinds.

But Clinton maintained in Liverpool—and still does today-that he doesn't ever want to be a star.

"I don't think I'd want to be such a big name that I couldn't sustain success. I'd sooner be a good second stream performer than a bad star."

he's a nice guy. I don't

DAUL JONES: "I've Been A Bad Bad Boy" (HMV).

Sounds a bit like Paul Jones. Great - I like this one. I like that "bad, bad, bad" bit! Yeah, should do very well. It's one of those sort of tunes that although you've never it heard before you can start singing the main theme. The intro was nice. A good introduction makes a record sometimesand you can get dancing to this one.

OTIS REDDING: "Try A Little Tenderness" (Atlantic).

Voice is very familiar. Is it Otis Redding? A good record but I don't think it'll do anything chart-wise for him. Certainly not as commercial as some of the discs he's made, like "My Girl". I like it, but it's not a chart thing. It's the kind of record you can sit down to with a bird. Have it going in the background. Doesn't really go anywhere. Pleasant-but that's all.

9 AND THE MYS-TERIANS: "I Need Somebody" (Cameo Parkway).

this an American record? Going on the voice and the organ, could it be the Young Rascals? A bit monotonous and not even very tuneful. I believe that a pop record should have a repetitive phrase or thing that can be remembered but this is carrying it a bit too

DOLLING STONES: "Ruby Tuesday" (Decca).

Oh, you've got me licked with this one-I don't know who it is. Is it Paul and Barry Ryan? The voices are familiar but I can't tell if it's a solo singer or what. Oh, it's the Stones. I don't believe it! Jagger will kill me for not knowing that. We've been out of England so long I'm getting behind. It's certainly different-I'll give them that. I was amazed that was the Stones! Still you've got to change and take a gamble sometime. You can't tell whether the gamble will come off until later, but I admire the Stones 'cos they've realised that you have to gamble sooner or later and they've gone ahead and done something different. Can I play the other side? ("Let's Spend The Night Together") Oh yes. I like this. That's more like the Stones.

A DAM FAITH: "What More Can Anyone Do" (Parlophone).

Adam Faith. It's a nice number, and I like Adam, think it's hit material. I don't know. He's doing very nicely, thank you, anyway. A few people say "we don't need a hit record" but don't think Adam's ever said that, although in his case it might be true. Does he need a hit record? He's always got work in clubs, theatres, pantos-the whole scene. I wonder if he

record or if he's content with just a nice, well-made release?

THE McCOYS: "I Got To Go Back" (Immediate).

Yes, a great start. I've heard that tune before somewhere. Is it the McCoys? Nice, but it's "Hang On Sloopy" all over again.

TOHN MAYALL'S BLUESBREAKERS: "Sitting In The Rain" (Decca).

Sort of "High - Heel Sneakers". I don't know who that is. Tommy Tucker? Sounds typically American.

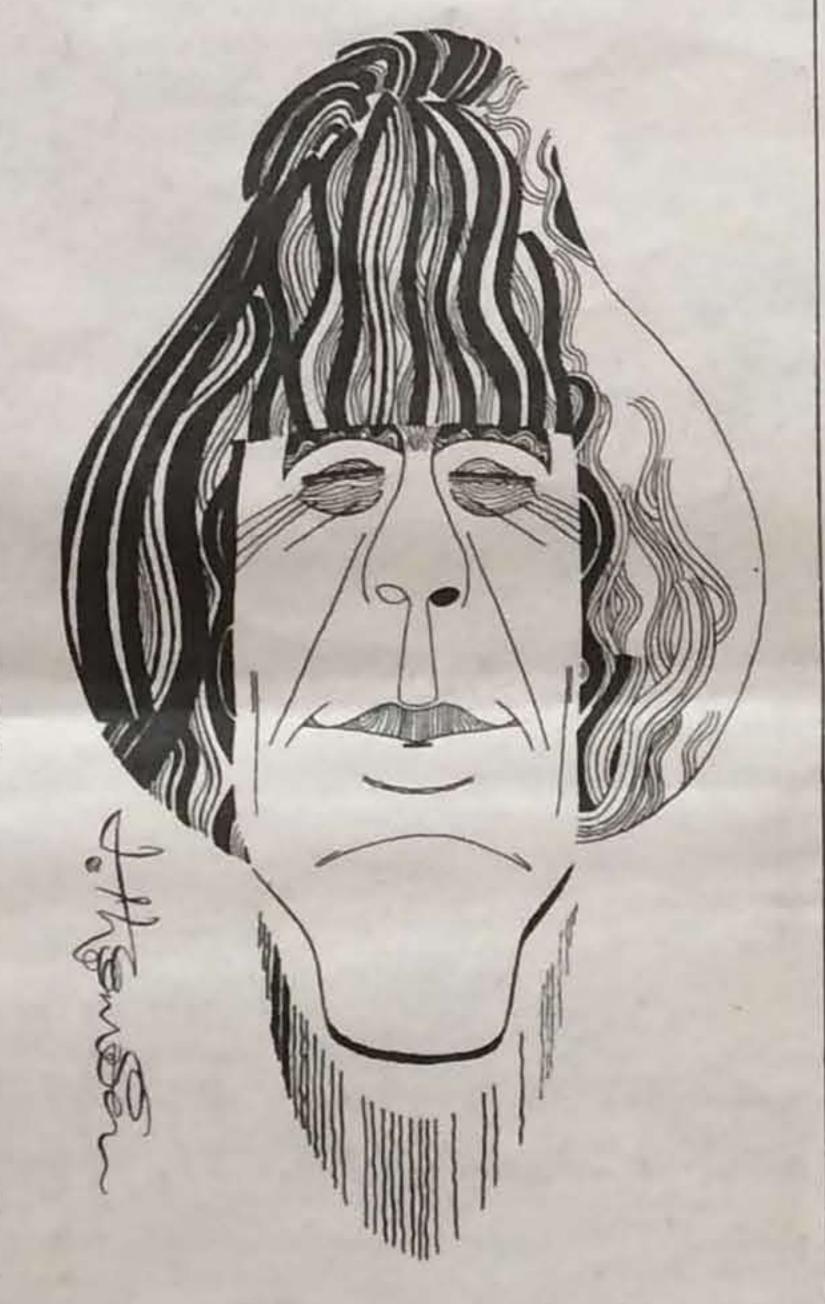

It's nice, yeah, and unusual. Pretty, but I don't know who it is.

DAUL REVERE AND THE RAIDERS: "Good Thing" (CBS).

Great beat. Chris Farlowe. He's great I like him. Give Chris Farlowe a plug. Great number but I don't know who it is. I suppose it could stand a chance if it gets enough plugs. Oh, that's like the Beatles. And that bit's like the Beach Boys, and the sound is very Pretty Things or something. It must be the Beat Beach Things!

MARVIN GAYE AND IVI KIM WESTON: "It Takes Two" (Tamla Mo-

Ike and Tina Turner! There's a male and a female voice there-I heard it! Is it James Brown? It's on Tamla Motown! Ah - it must be Tom Jones then! No sorry. I don't know. Oh. I'm a defeatist. Yes, that's it I don't know. I'm a defeatist!

CINCE the announcement by the Government that a new "pop" programme _ called Radio 247 by everyone except officialdom - would start this summer, there has been much discussion, speculation and curiosity about the form the new station would take.

Another BBC channel, adopting the policies of the present Light? The BBC deny this. A completely new service, they claim.

But Postmaster-General Ted Short put foreboding into the breasts of the country's youth by saying "it won't all be pop-but it won't all be 'We'll Gather Lilacs' either."

But no one seems to have bothered to ask the people who are perhaps most directly involved-the young people who will probably make up the great majority of the listening audience for 247, now that the pirates seem doomed.

This special MM Opinion Poll does just that. We questioned 140 teenagers all over Britain and have collated their answers into this blueprint for Britain's Pop Radio Station.

BBC — PLEASE NOTE.

IDEA OF THE PERFECT POP PROGRAMME?

Predictably, the teenagers' main concern was that they should get pop music on the new programme. But the overwhelming fact that arises from the poll is that they are equally prepared to accept other forms of music-jazz, folk, even singers like Peggy Lee and Tony Bennett.

Over 130 answers were received by MM reporters all over Britain. Of these, 35 said they would like to have a varied programme, not exclusively based on the Top 20. Jane Bagshaw, aged 16, of Great Yarmouth, said: "The new programme should cater for all types of pop music lovers and with jazz, folk, country, etc." Maureen Johnson, aged 17, a typist from Liverpool, agreed: "I'd like to see one that caters for all tastes."

MODEL

Only 16 people thought the new programme should be devoted exclusively to hit records, and 14 thought the programme should be based on the pirate radio system. A dozen readers thought that the BBC's existing radio programmes could be the model for the new one - they admired programmes like Pick Of The Pops, Swingalong, Easybeat - and TV's Top Of The Pops.

Live performances seem to elicit little enthusiasm. Only five readers were keen to see these - and then only if they were groups. "Stop the Kenny Ball-type padding," said one irate interviewee.

Many fans want a pop news service throughout the programmes. But a large proportion of fans seemed more than irritated by the "chat" of many pirate DJs. Some advocated no DJs at all - "just records one after the other," while others wished that the existing pirate DJs would keep their comments short and to the point.

WHAT IS YOUR What they want

m

- Programmes based mainly on current pop - but including jazz, folk, C&W, etc.
- A pop news service.
- Pirate DJs to join the existing set-up. Plus a few new
- A late night extension until about 3 am.

What they don't want

- Too many live performances. "Time-wasting flippant chat"
- from DJs. An all Pop 50 format.
- Stereotyped programmes.

Sylvia Lewis, aged 23, of Dawlish, Devon, said "It must have a DJ who doesn't do too much talking or crack silly jokes but gets on with the job he's supposed to do." Hard words echoed by Judy Benson, of Paignton: "The DJ should get on with the job and not chat too much."

Dick Meadows, a 19-yearold office worker from Norwich, said that what he wanted was programmes that were not stereotyped. "It is the unusual, the unexpected, the ad-libbing on the pirate stations which give them much of their appeal." And he ended with a heartfelt "God help us when Auntie BBC gets her hand on the programme."

DIGEST

Seventeen - year - old Eleanor Backhouse, of Edinburgh, while a pop fan, admits that pop churned out for hours would be hard to digest. "I'd like to see the programme used to educate people musically. It could be used to introduce people around my own age to performers like Peggy Lee, Jack Jones, Ella Fitzgerald-even jazzmen like Oscar Peterson and Ramsey Lewis."

DRIAN EPSTEIN is the licensee of the Saville Theatre in London's Shaftesbury Avenue, as the whole pop world must know. But what isn't generally known is that he has governed the theatre's policy himself only during the past three or four months.

And, significantly, since that time, pop enthusiasts have been treated to rave-ups featuring such world - class stars as the Four Tops, Little Richard, Georgie Fame, Geno Washington and Julie Felix.

Eric Burdon, for one, was so enthusiastic at the raving scenes inside the Saville that he offered to compere the Little Richard show for nothing. He also compared the atmosphere in London's first pop theatre to the famous Appollo in Harlem.

Last week Brian Epstein discussed his plans for the Saville in a Soho restaurant between disposing of nine oysters and Lobster Normande and refusing to discuss Ringo's garden and Paul's vanish-

SHOULD THE EXISTING DJs (SAVILE, MUR-RAY, JACOBS, ETC) PRESENT THE PRO-

In all, 91 people said: "Give the programmes to the pirates" while only 22 wanted the existing BBC team to take over. But many fans said they would like the best DJs from both to share the programmes.

Among these was Eleanor Backhouse who said: "I prefer the swingier approach of the pirate DJs but you need the older heads of Matthew and Jacobs to keep the balance" and Allan Muffett and Jennifer Taylor, two 17year-olds from Bristol, were among those who agreed with them.

Tony Cheetham (19), an University student, summed up the attitude of many of the pro-pirates brigade when he said: "There should be pirate DJs only. BBC DJs always give the impression they are putting on an act." But the opposing view was summed up by Stuart Robinson, aged 16, of Liverpool, when he com-mented: "The existing DJs would probably do a better

And an obvious Anglophile was hair-stylist Yvonne Johnson, aged 19, of South Shields: "The better pirate DJs should be given a chance -but please, not those corny Americanised types!"

But although most of the fans voted for the pirates to take over, the DJs most frequently mentioned were mainly the established names.

SHOULD THE PROGRAMMES FOLLOW

"PIRATE" LINES Again, an overwhelming endorsement of the pirate stations. Four-to-one was again the vote: 86 votes for basing the new programme on the pirates and 20 for keeping the present BBC for-mat. In addition, 18 fans thought a mixture of both approaches would provide the correct blend, while six people thought that it was about time a completely new format was created.

Edinburgh's Eleanor Backhouse said she would like to see the existing lines of the Light developed on a groovier kick. "I think the Light's current tea-time programme could be used as a yard-stick," she said, Barbara Slater, aged 19, of Birming-ham, agreed, and said: "It should follow the lines of the Light - catering for all

And one anti-pirate person was Chris Anderson, a 17year-old office worker from Bristol, who said: "I have found the pirate programmes to be overpowering and too breezy!" Gerry Ford took the opposite view: "I'd let the pirates plan the format. They've got the ideas and know what the teenagers

SHOULD MORE TIME BE DEVOTED TO RECORDS?

Not surprisingly, the fans were more than two-to-one in favour of the new programme devoting more time than the BBC does at present to records. None of the answers seemed to have any idea of "needle time" agreements at present in operation -they just wanted more. And a small minority of fanatics - about 10 per cent wanted 100 per cent record policy of the new programme.
Wishful thinking, we feel.
"More records" was the plea of 79 of the fans questioned, while 41 said they would be content with the same - and in some cases less. Nine pop fans wanted an "all-disc" policy. Margaret Davies, aged 16, a clerk from Southsea, stated her reason for wanting more records: "Then we can hear more of the American groups who are really great." But Jackie Nash, a 19-year-old secretary from Southampton, was rather harsh when she said her reason for wanting more records was "Danny Street, Laura Lee and friends make me cringe!"

Madeline Briggs, of Edinburgh, felt that live performances on radio lacked some-"I'd prefer records every time," she maintained. But some of the fans did think of others. Like 15year-old Pam Davis of Birmingham, who said: "More time should be given - although not too much more because you've got to give older people a break."

Bernard Dingley, a clerk of from Southampton, thought that if more time was given to records it might eliminate the irritation of only half a disc being played. "More time should be given so a record can be played right through," he said.

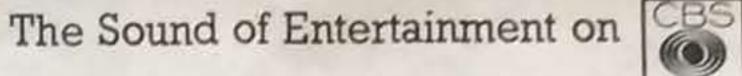

SHOULD IT BE A 24-HOUR

SERVICE? Although most people wanted a round-the-clock service, the surprising result in this division was that one-third of the fans didn't want it. Of the replies, 88 were for a 24-hour programme while a surprisingly high 42 did not. One of the "For" brigade was Lynette Scott, a 17-yearold student from Portsmouth, who said that not everybody could listen during the day.

But Richard Evans, aged 15, a schoolboy from Portsmouth, thought differently. He said tersely: "The shorter the programme the better from my point of view," while shop assistant Tony Slater, aged 16, from Liverpool, obviously has to get up early, He didn't want an all-night service. 'I'd never get any sleep," he said. Most of the advocates of a break in transmission wanted the programmes to go on intil 2 am or 3 am. Like Eddle Miles, a 16-yearapprentice electrician from Bristol, who said that am was about as late he would like. "I don't think many people would listen after that," he said.

PETWEEN them, these three LPs should offer something for most lovers of Negro vocal blues. The first, aside from the quality of its music, could be a very helpful guide to beginners; the second is pleasant enough vocal-and-guitar music (except for one piano track) by a rediscovered oldtimer; and the third is a real collectors' item for admirers of the Chicago blues groups of the 'Thirties and 'Forties.

Mike Raven, whose programmes on pirate radio must have introduced many listeners to the earlier blues styles, speaks plainly and chattily about the form and each singer on his album. His outline of the blues story is necessarily very compressed. But it isn't too distorted in the picture it gives, and the choice of records makes for entertainment as well as enlightenment for newcomers to the sub-

Texas Alexander recorded his moan in August '27, and it makes a logical country-type starting point. The guitar accompaniment is by I --- Blind Lemon's "Matchbox" from the same year, is a splendid performance, and Robert Johnson's track is another all-time winner.

The Jug Band's "Walk Right In", besides illustrating the jug-kazoo-harmonica-banjo dance band tradition of the late 'Twenties, shows that very little is new in the world of popular melody.

Speckled Red's piano-vocal barrelhouse style and Spivey's piano supports his gentle, song with uke support are examples of other idioms, though the latter doesn't quite do justice to the classic type of female singing with jazz backgrounds. I guess the period stuff was unavailable. Still, no quarrel with the Leadbelly (except that this Hawaiian guitar approach on "See See" is untypical), Big Bill, Sonny Boy, Elmore James or Hopkins and only a small reservation or two about the Brownie McGhee.

Blackwell, who died the year after this album was recorded in 1961, was the guitar playing partner of Leroy Carr from 1928 to '35. But he made singing records under his own name, also two guitar solos, until he quit music in the mid-Thirties.

Scrapper was "revived" in '59 and in that and the following year he put down the music released a few years back on "77" LA12-4. This Xtra LP, from Prestige-Bluesville, offers singing and playing similar to that on the earlier album, and like the "77" it includes guitar solos ("'A' Blues" and "'E' Blues") and some piano.

melancholy singing on "Little Girl". Otherwise, the fullbodied guitar backs up his voice, hitting out patterns which very often bring Josh White to mind.

I have little space left to describe the Gillum set, a well-produced collection of sixteen titles dating from March '38 ("Boar Hog") to November '47 ("What A Gal"), but I can say it is as commendable as an album by this artist could be.

William "Jazz" Gillum was no great blues singer; but he sang pretty convincingly at his best in a manner influenced by Big Bill and Washboard Sam, both of whom worked with him and are heard on this record, and played above-average folktype harmonica.

The interest of much of this music is centred on the group performance (the "Bluebird blues sound," as it is sometimes called) rather than on Gillum's actual singing. This was country and city blues come together under the brotherhood conditions of Chicago's South Side. It paved the way for the contemporary Chicago-style blues .- M.J.

DONANZA month for Kenton fans, although most worthy of their salt will already have every track on both these albums, certainly those on the "Great Big Bands" set.

This is the more enjoyable of the two as far as listening pleasure is concerned. The cheaper Ace Of Hearts issue can be safely relegated to the "historically interesting" but painfully dull category.

Once again compilers Alun Morgan and John Snell have creamed off 14 excellent tracks from a mountain of material available to them. It's difficult to fault their selections, although I can lament that some personal favourites are not included. It's unnecessary to list the delights for Kenton fans, although powerhouse performances like "Solo For Buddy", "Jolly Rogers" and "Swing House" may surprise those not familiar with Kenton's output. Kenton's standards fluctuated with the band's arrangers, but as Bill Holman and Bill Russo are the two main ones represented here, there's a nice balance between Holman's simpler, more swinging charts and the complex, intricately voiced Russo arrangements.

Excellent solos, mainly from Lee Kontiz's alto, crop up here and there. Zoot Sims is in fine shape on Bill Holman's showcase "Zoot", recorded in Paris in 1953, while Konitz's

"Lover Man" was one of the best things the band ever did. The band's formative years, while interesting, produced some very forgettable music. The brass choir, the distinctive voicing, and all that made Kenton's orchestras so interesting are missing from the Ace Of Hearts set. Instead, there is some competently played period dance music which occasionally, and only very occasionally, hints at the things to come. The Capitol set is an excellent collection of 14 of Kenton's more out-and-out jazz recordings and makes a good addition to a so far excellent series. The Ace Of Hearts is for dyed-in-the-wool fans only.-B.H.

For me, familiarity with the Swingle Singers has bred boredom, if not contempt. They are the classic case of the gimmick ruling the group. Granted they do their scat versions of chamber music classics extremely well but they don't really improve on the originals and their first success was largely due to the novelty of the whole thing. Now the novelty has worn off and I find "ROCOCO AGOGO" (Philips BL7743) rather a drag. How about somebody writing some original material to get this talented group out of their rut? The latest composers subjected to the treatment are Telemann, Couperin, Muffat, Daquin, Marcello and Quantz .- B.D.

SONNY ROLLINS / MAX ROACH/CLIFFORD BROWN: "Three Giants". Valse Hot; Kiss And Run; I Feel A Song Coming On; Count Your Blessings; Pent-Up House. (Transatlantic PR7291). Rollins (tnr), Brown (tpt), Richie Powell (pno), George Morrow (bass), Roach (drs). Recorded March 22, 1956.

NOTHER good 'un from Transatlantic's Prestige, although there are good reasons for asking why this wasn't issued on the cheaper Xtra label, as it was issued here several years ago in the Esquire label.

Despite the packaging under Rollins' name, this is the Clifford Brown-Max Roach Quintet and this was Brownie's last recording date before his death in June of the same

"Valse" was one of the earliest jazz tunes in 3/4 time, and although it sounds a bit laboured in places, it is redeemed by fine solos, especially by Brown. The late, great trumpeter turns in a stunning solo on "Pent-Up" where paced by bass and drums only, he gambols through the changes with that beautifully melodic grace which was his hallmark. Not to be missed unless it's already in the collection. -

THIS gives a chance to evaluate the new Peterson Trio and also hear what was a sort of transitional group recorded after Ed Thigpen left but before Ray Brown followed.

The new group sounds very promising indeed and it's a little hard on Sam Jones that he could share the record with Ray Brown. Jones is a firstclass bass player but it would be unfair to expect him to build up the same rapport with Peterson which Brown built up over 15 years. This is the basic difference—the old trio was not just piano with bass and drums accompaniment. Brown was a real musical partner for the pianist and this has, as yet, not happened with Jones.

In his solos, too, Jones lacks a little of Brown's clarity and inventiveness. But that is not to say the new trio isn't already an excellent group and Peterson's brilliance proves that he is obviously enjoying the new company.

Hayes is unexpectedly good. He was always a swinging and adroit drummer when he was in the Cannonball Adderley group with Jones. But I hadn't expected such subtlety and intelligence in the more demanding trio context.

Peterson himself is at his best and I would rate "L'Impossible" among his top recorded performances .- B.D.

THIS fascinating compilation traces the development of Gillespie from the Roy Eldridge disciple of 1937 to virtuoso bopper and big band leader of 1949. A number of these takes have not previously been released.

The 1937 Hill band was a jumping Harlem outfit with Dizzy sounding almost more like Eldridge than Eldridge, whom he had replaced. He showed remarkable technique for a 20-year-old with only the occasional trace of the style to come. The band include Dickie Wells among the soloists and "King Porter" is one of his

The three small-band tracks made nine years later show a completely different Dizzy, already mature and completely confident in his revolutionary style. Byas and Jackson still show strong ties to earlier influences - Hawkins and Hampton-but contribute some nice things as does guitarist De Arrango. The rhythm section sounds way behind the front line. The big band examples from the following three years contain a great deal of exciting jazz. The bands were occasionally rough in the ensembles but this even added to the general exuberance. The soloists weren't bad although men like J. J. Johnson and Yusef Lateef were some way from their peaks.

The only blemishes come from the dread vocals by Dizzy, Joe Carroll and Ken Hagood, Through it all comes Dizzy's brilliant trumpet brasher than he is today, but tremendously exciting.

This is a highly recommended album.-B.D.

PROBY: gone is the highly emotional super-charged ballad voice.

It's Proby back in rock and roll mood

SINGLES

D. J. PROBY: "Niki Hoeky" (Liberty). Sock it to 'em P.J.! Our Jim is back on record in raucous rock and roll mood, with full honking and stomping saxes and brass backing. Gone is the highly emotional, super - charged ballad voice, and in its place is a pastiche of various rock and roll accents. It's pretty crude, and the lyrics are mostly incomprehensible, but that doesn't matter, because most of the time, actual words are replaced by trends, grunts and humming. Another of P.J.'s little jokes one suspects, that just might get into the chart.

Night" (Fontana). A sombre, melancholy lament by Julie as a young girl lonely and bored on a Saturday night that "feels like a Sunday," written for her by lyrical master Donovan. It's a pretty combination of talents that will cause a lot of interest and intrigue a great many record buyers. We can't see Don and Julie escalating very high chart-wise, but it's musically very much worth the effort.

BOBBY HEBB: "Love Me" (Philips). This is more like "Sunny" than "Sunny"! Bobby Hebb is not credited with writing this effort which might successfully prevent him having any more hits in Britain, and will probably brand him as a one hit wonder, which is a great shame. The whole concept of the original hit is retained, as far as feel and arrangement are concerned, while the melody line teeters unsteadily along the well trodden path, presumably in some sort of attempt at a disguise. Own up why bother?

BILLY FURY: "Hurtin' Is Loving" (Parlophone). Welcome back to the chart race Billy! Here is the relaxed Mr Fury, this time with a warm ballad by Peter Asher and Gordon Waller that he gives a sad treatment, an effect heightened by crying strings. Bill cries out "I wish you were gone—the agony of feeling," and perhaps it is a bit too agonising to break as an enormous hit, but certainly one to make a chart impression.

SONNY & CHER: "The Beat Goes On" (Atlantic), Remember "The music goes round and round-and it comes out here?" No? Ah well, if you did, you probably wouldn't feel inclined to play Sonny and Cher records anyway. But this latest by the mighty duo is far better than all that ghastly mush Cher inflicted on us recently about teddy bears, and bears a strong resemblance to those old riff records of the 'thirties that used to drive mum and dad wild. A compulsive beat that will doubtless be described in some circles as a real gem of a toe-tapper. And a hit.

NICKY SCOTT: "Back Street Girl" (Immediate). Mick Jagger produced this solo debut by half of the defunct Diane Ferraz-Nicky Scott duo. It has a long sweeping beat in a jolly three four time with all the grace of some Continental folk beer-up. Nicky sings with innocent charm, and the backing refrains from drowning him in sound. Listeners will feel urged to put on a long, heavy overcoat during this performance and commence dancing Russian influenced ballet-steps. It's that sort of record. And a hit.

OSCAR: "Over The Wall We Go" (Reaction). Snoot-cocking on a wide scale! Here is a cheeky song poking fun at the recent spate of prison escapes which contains the classic line: "Over the wall we go - all coppers are 'nanas." It's years since we've had a hit like "Four Legged Friend", "Davey Crocket" and other children's songs, and this will be a giant hit with kiddies everywhere. Primary schools from Parkhurst to Walton will ring with endless choruses of this stirring ditty, which includes pauses for comic sound effects. Not likely to amuse the police force or prison guv'nors, but a laugh for the rest of the citizens. And what a surprise from young Oscar! A Cockney accent, and not a whisper of nop trendiness.

SEARCHERS: "P o p c o r n, Double Feature" (Pye). Zounds—can this mean a comeback for the Searchers? A breathless urgency pervades this sad-happy romp rather in the famous Herman Noone groove. It depends how strong is the group's image on whether they can drag themselves back into chartlight.

Too Much To Dream (Last Night)" (Reprise). What's mauve and goes very fast? An electric prune! And here are an interesting group, very electric and adventurous in the use of strange "prune noises". There's backward - running tapes, battering drums, electric shavers and revolving saws all pounding away, while the group bawl away the hook phrase. A big prune-sized hit!

JACKIE TRENT: "Open Your Heart" (Pye). Unlike most pop artists, Jackie has no actual problems about singing. No hang ups in the technical department, just a case of finding a song to suit the face. No teenage raver, Jackie has to seek a good quality, modern ballad, and this could well be the key to making a chart come-back. It's a fine piece of sentiment, without being sloppy, and gives Jackie a chance to exercise her big, warm voice, in the grand manner,

JOE TEX: "Papa Was Too"
(Atlantic). Low down, nasty blues from Mr. Tex who sings with too much soul, while an evil piano and saxes menace in the background. As a slow groover with built-in discotheque appeal it's tremendous, but as a big seller, it'll be too low down—the chart.

GENE CLARK: "Echoes" (CBS). First solo release by former Byrd Gene Clark. Gene wrote this song which has ridiculous Dylan overtones. He is supposed to have spent sixmonths working on assembling the material for this gloomy mess. At that rate it will take him another thirty years to get a hit. Miss.

WOODY HERMAN: "Side-winder" (CBS). Woody Herman had a vocal hit with "Laura" a couple of decades ago, and he has often contributed pleasant vocals with his famous band over the years, so it's nothing new for Woody to crita song, but this double-tracked version of the Lee Morgan instrumental doesn't do the band justice, or even Herman's voice. It's rather sad, because it doesn't help the big band cause in young eyes.

LEFT BANKE: "Pretty Ballerina" (Philips). A New York rock group who decided to go baroque and had a huge American hit with "Walk Away Renee". They use the sounds of a string quartet and harpsichord, while wearing "English hair" all producing a most un-American effect. This has a gentle monotony and wistful charm that might tickle a few ears to gain an English chart entry for these American gentlemen.

PEANUT: "I Didn't Love Him Anyway" (Columbia). New girl Peanut butters up a ballad with full orchestral accompaniment and an excellent production and arrangement. There is quite a bit of Beach Boys influence and the complications begin to get in the way of the tune, but if this is the sound of Peanut, we can expect the public to start shelling out for her soon.

NORMIE ROWE: "Ooh La La" (Polydor). In a blaze of publicity they launched Normic Rowo. There were strange advertisements, and stranger receptions where the Knights Of The Stoned Vessel were refused admission (that's an "in" joke), but despite Normie Rowe mania sweeping the offices of Polydor, the rest of the country remained unmoved. Now they are releasing Normie's number one Australian hit, which should have been the first one out, and this pleasant young singer stands a good chance of breaking in this time.

Loot, plus two super flutes

Smethurst, the Singing Post-

music scene. His East Anglogues would seem to have a very limited audience. But Allan's almost an "in" name.

EPs

ZOOT MONEY'S BIG ROLL BAND: "Big Time Operator" Real stars of (Columbia). the show on this nice little set from Zoot are the boys of the Big Roll Band. The most outstanding of the four tracks is "Florence of Arabia" (wrongly titled "Chauffeur") which features the flute playing of Johnny Almond and Nick Newall, and the groovy guitar of Andy "Shimmy Walk" Somers. Zoot also contributes a flute-like organ solo to this swinging little instrumental. George is also in good vocal form for the title track, "It Should've Been Me" and "Chauffeur". The recordings are from previous Zoot LPs and singles, but make a handy package. Recommended.

THE SINGING POSTMAN:

"Train Robbery".

PETULA CLARK: "L'Agent Secret" (Disques Vogues). It's that split personality Petula Clark again—this time wearing her French hat for fournumbers in Gallic fashion. Title number is a James Bond thriller complete with gunshots and fist-fighting. English fans will prefer her English hat, although our snail-loving friends will buy this in droves. LPs

ZOOT: good vocal form

MONKEES: "Meet The Monkees" (RCA Victor). "We're just trying to be friendly-we're the young generation, we've got something to say," sing the merry Monkees, and however much they are upsetting people with their brand of instant success, the facts can't be argued. People are buying their records and watching their TV shows. They are not forced to do this. The suggestion that they should has been made by the brilliant American publicity machine, and it's up to the mass to accept or reject what they are offered. Rumour spreaders say the Monkees aren't actually playing on this very pleasant and entertaining album. But that's not exactly a new complaint, And this is good value for pop fans, as they say, so why not forget the controversy and just enjoy the music? It's fun!

BOBBY DARIN:
"In A Broadway
Bag" (Atlantic).
Darin has worn remarkably well over the years, Here
he's helped by the arrangements of Shorty Rogers and Perry Botkin on such Broadway-tinged numbers as "Mame", "I Believe In You", "Don't Rain On My Parade", and "I'll Only Miss Her When I Think Of Her." Weakest thing about the album is some of the songs.

JERRY LEE LEWIS: "By Request" (Philips). "Everybody has heard Jerry Lee Lewis" says the sleeve. It must be true and the vast majority seem to approve. They will love this live concert from Fort Worth, Texas, with the Memphis Beats. A rocker's orgy with Jerry shouting his head off and filing his nails up and down the piano. All part of the jolly old decadent South, Jerry's piano is great and his version of "Green, Green Grass Of Home" is very jazzy. Others: "Johnny B. Goode", "You Win Again", "Money" and "Roll Over Beethoven".

THE FAMILY WAY ORIGINAL SOUNDTRACK RECORDING: (Decca). Paul McCartney's score for this Boulting Brothers' film is adequately melodic but in no way memorable. It's doubtful if any Beatles connoisseurs would recognise Paul's fair hand on the score.

MORGANA KING: "With A Taste of Honey" (Fontana). Thirteen violins, three violas, two celli, eight reeds, five French horns, two trumpets, trombone, two guitars and a large rhythm section don't alter the fact that Morgana King has little new to offer as a vocalist. At times she sounds so much like Sarah Vaughan and our own Cleo Laine that it's uncanny. The orchestra, which includes such stars as Clark Terry, Joe Wilder, Mel Lewis, Hank Jones, Milt Hinton and Phil Woods plays beautifully but Morgana is too mannered to ring true. Pity, because she has quite a voice. Included: "Prelude To A Kiss", "I Love Paris", "Easy To Love", BOOKER T. & THE MG'S: "Soul Dressing" (Atlantic). Since taking over the Atlantic catalogue from Decca last year, Polydor Records have re-issued several of the best albums including Pickett's "Midnight Hour", and Otis Redding's "Soul Album". Now comes "Soul Dressing" the which followed Booker T's first, "Green Onions". It certainly has a lot more fire than its predecessor, and if you haven't already got it, go and get a copy right now. Steve Cropper's guitar spits and bends as faultlessly and as beautifully as ever. Booker T. Jones on organ takes the solos in turn with Cropper and together they blend into one of the nicest sounds around. The rhythm section never fails to swing and it's a too much album, "Jelly Bread", "Aw Mercy", "Outrage", "Chinese Checkers", "Plum Nellie", and, of course, "Home Grown".

THE HAPPENINGS: (Fontana). Pleasant inoffensive listening ranging from Beach Boys-influenced vocal harmonies and the straighter sound of the Four Seasons. Most of the numbers have been arranged by Herb Bernstein but some by the Tokens, the group who made "When The Lion Sleeps Tonight". One or two of the tracks, "Sealed With A Kiss", particularly demonstrates their excellent harmony and control but their ideas aren't for instance, as progressive as those of Brian Wilson. Quite nice though.

ROY CASTLE: "Songs For A Rainy Day" (Columbia). The comedy and trumpet are cast aside and Roy sings songs of the rain. On side one are the ballads, "Soon It's Gonna Rain", "The Gentle Rain", "Here's That Rainy Day", and the emotive "Stormy Weather". Side two makes way for the swingers again well arranged and conducted by Victor Graham. They include "Every Time It Rains", a-la bossa; "April Showers", a la Herb Alpert; the guitar of Ike Isaacs is featured on "Pennies From Heaven", and then finally there's full swing for "Singin" In The Rain", and "When The Sun Comes Out". Roy handles the material well-sometimes a little shakily-but his singing isn't as anaemic as it used to be

THE ROLLING STONES: "Between The Buttons" (Decca): Fun, excitement, great ballads. and the full unveiling of M.ck Jagger's voice after being cloaked in some secrecy for several years are among the rewards on the Rolling Stones latest milestone. The group have achieved their best recording sound, far less complicated, much clearer, warmer. penetrating and communicating. While not belittling the Stones' previous "sound picture" techniques, it's a pleasure to hear more of the personality of each Stone, from the solid drumming of Charlie Watts, and the bass of Bill Wyman to the groovy guitars of Keith and Brian. A huge variety of other instruments were intelligently used and the result on several tracks is decidedly beautiful music. For example on the PERCY SLEDGE: "Warm And Tender Soul" (Atlantic). "When A Man Loves A Woman" established Percy Sledge as one of the big new talents of 1966. This album should increase his following. It oozes soul from every groove without ever falling into the exaggerations which ruin so many so-called soul albums. With good arrangements behind him, Percy shows a surprising range of feeling. Among the tracks are an extended version of "It Tears Me Up", "You've Really Got A Hold On Me", "Warm And Tender Love", "I Stand Accused" and a great version of the Presley hit, "Love Me Ten-

"Are You Ready For This?"
(Liberty). Miss De Shannon may not have the greatest voice in the world, but she knows how to use it to good effect. She seems to have settled on a caressing style very similar to Diana Ross of the Supremes. The excellent material includes four of her own songs and three by David-Bacharach who also supervised some of the recordings.

opener which is a breathless little ditty called "Yesterday's Papers" vibraphone is used very effectively. One of the finest tracks is the delicate "Back Street Girl", in 3/4 time, which Mick sings with an innocent charm backed by everything from piano accordion to twelve-string guitar and flute. On "Please Go Home", Brian contributes some nice guitar, and Mick does some Bob Dylan impressions on "Whose Been Sleeping Here". Two hilarious tracks are "Cool, Calm, And Collected" which has the added delights of lan Stewart's lunatic piano accelerating to a furious climax. and "Something Happened To Me Yesterday". So lift up your hearts, roll back the floorboards and have a knees-up with those sons of fun - the Rolling Stones!

LOOK OUT FOR AMPLIFIED STRICH

ROLAND: echo unit

CHRIS WELCH

T'S the weirdest sound in jazz -Roland Kirk playing delayed action strich on the GPO telephone!

Roland was explaining the use of a new electrical sound effect he is using during his current stint at Ronnie Scott's Club, during a telephoned interview from his London hotel.

"I'm just in the middle of practising, as a matter of fact," said Roland, and decided the best way to explain the use of the "Arbiter Soundette Echo and Reverb Unit" -was to play a solo.

Strange rippling sounds surged via the Euston telephone exchange, and anybody who got a crossed line must have thought the Daleks had landed.

ARE THERE TOO MANY AMERICAN

WILD BILL roaring success

LONDON

MAX JONES

THE new jazz season has opened and Jack Higgins of the Harold Davison Agency promises that 1967 will be the busiest year yet, so far as visiting American iazz musicians are concerned.

VISITORS?

But what does all this activity mean to the consumer, to the clubs which employ the U.S. talent, and to their customers?

The MM asked a number of club owners and promoters how they felt about the solo artists; whether the bookings were generally profitable, and whether they would continue to present U.S. visitors in the coming year.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that U.S. jazzmen raise the level of interest and are, in the long-term view, good for business even though clubs sometimes lose money on them and quite often expect to lose money when they book them.

Some club managers say they make a small sum from the visits of most name American jazzmen, but less than they would have made with local talent.

Very few are prepared to give up booking American tourists altogether.

Jim Godbolt, agent and club promoter, regards the visits as a stimulus to interest and a good thing generally because they "give to the accompanying bands more publicity and attention than they would normally get.

"There's no doubt, at the Six Bells, we do get increased attendances for these notables. I lost on one, but we have made money out of these artists and I intend to present more this year when they are available."

The Bull's Head, Barnes, with its seven-days-a-week modern jazz policy is rather a special case. But hosts Betty and Albert Tolley are enthusiastic about the U.S. visitors so long as a sufficiency of modern players are included.

"They give this business a shot in the arm. We do pretty well normally, but receipts are better when we have an American guest. We're not a big club so we have to charge more, but we were turning them away for Witherspoon, Mark Murphy, Ben Webster and others.

"We are a modern club, and provided we keep to good artists with modern accompaniment we're all right. The question of whether too many are coming over depends on the calibre of the artists.

"If they are going to be mostly old Dixieland musicians, the answer is 'Yes'. We have to be selective. But anyone like Sonny Stitt, Earl Hines or Sonny Rollins . . or course we want to book them."

Roger Horton, of London's 100 Club, sounded happy about the '67 programme, "We will be taking all the American artists offered to us this year," he said. "In our case, the visiting musicians we've put on have not all been profitable in the financial sense. Nevertheless, we feel that as a seven nights a week club it is our duty to

"And it's very much a case of swings and roundabouts. When we had Wild Bill Davison for three consecutive nights it was a rip-roaring success; with George Lewis it was not. I'm talking about the money side of it.

"But a club like ours has a responsibility to its members, who expect to see these artists and expect us to put them on. No, I don't think too many are coming over. People like Hines, John Handy, Davison and Braff are so strong that they should be able to come here about once a year and do good business.

"The thing is, the enjoyment of the public has been wonderful." The Manchester Sports Guild's L. C. Jenkins was equally in favour. "So far as we're concerned

I'd say the majority who appeared here were successful, musically and financially, though a few resulted in small losses.

"My attitude is that these American jazzmen are very important in sustaining and widening interest in the scene up in this part of the world. We get people travelling miles and miles to see an attraction, and if you get that you are building something which may help you in the future."

Ken Lindsay, who runs the Hermitage Ballroom, Hitchin, agrees the visitors are excellent for business but points out that, having a licensed bar, his club is not dependent on admission charges.

"I'm fortunate, but if you are dependent on the door it can be disastrous. For myself, I'm not interested in the teenagers; I'm interested in older fans who really like jazz. And when I put an American on I draw adult audiences-say 25 to 45, or even older.

"We are building a regular following here, and the American attractions must have something to do with it. What I like about them is that they introduce a professionalism largely lacking in our own bands, and this is important.

"As for killing the goose, we're certainly not doing that here. It would be ridiculous for anyone to say so when we charged 6s for some of the Americans, 7s 6d for Red Allen. How can there be too many at those prices?"

George Wooton, sceretary of the Osterley Jazz Club, sounded a faint cautionary note : "They are a good thing," he said, "but I think there's a limit to how many can come. I'd put it at one a month during the winter months.

"But the American artists are definitely important to the scene. There are not a lot of bands in this country to choose from-not good bands - and we try to keep up a high standard."

Mr. Fred Hardy, general manager of Arbiters, who manufacturer and sell the unit in Britain for 42 guineas, describes it as a "sound dimension unit."

"It works by a disc and not recording tape, which doesn't wear so much. It's provided with three press buttons which give different effects, and they can be operated with the feet. The unit is plugged into an amplifier.

"It's fully transistorised and only weighs two or three pounds. It delays the note that is played or sung and gives a very ethereal effect. Roland Kirk has been making some really fantastic sounds with the unit."

Says Roland: "I'm using it with the strich. I'm against amplifying the tenor, but the strich hasn't been recorded properly and it hasn't been heard in clubs as it should because it's such a long instrument I have to keep lifting it to the microphone. And if I swing it around too much I might hit someone.

"I'm not too much interested in the echo, but I like playing more in unison, playing against myself. You can play a phrase and a split second later it comes back to

"I use it on all different numbers, just when I feel like it. It's good on fast numbers, although it's hard for people to understand, and some people say 'What's he doing now?' but I'm used to that.

"I like amplifier for the flute and I guess I could use it for recorder. I can understand people going against electrical things. I'm not sold on the whole thing of amplifying instruments myself, but some instruments are harder to hear with a band, like flute and recorder. I heard a classical flute player use one back in the States. I've always played strich, but now I'm enjoying it even more." Last time Roland was here, he said he hoped to record the highly popular "Whistle Man", such a tremendous hit with club goers. What was happening on that score? "The record was supposed to be out this month. I hope it will be released on Atlantic. It would be nice to have a hit.

"We're rehearsing some new stuff for the club, and I'm going to play more of my own music this year. I'll play more of my own compositions and a few standards thrown in.

"I've got the same group backing me as last time and they've really got open minds."

Roland began blowing more cascading notes that rippled around like eddies in a deep pool.

"This is a bit powerful for some people," he said softly at the end of the long distance solo. "But it's a polyrhythm thing — a change of music."

TWO years ago last Christman, a Birralogitant group called Mandy Blues his the number one spot "Go Haw" professional graup with a sound, they looked set for a career that would be a little more durable than the discassive. allegipadisapparanca cycle which character. issa some groups unanaugh to achieve evernight suc-

Cams 1965, Brian Eastein saw the Mandy work, liked them, and signed them in December things started to go wrong, seginning with an American tour which Mike Pinder describes "disastrous", A mixover visas meant that the Moodies were unable to do most of the shows for which hern booked. Their sole appearance was on the Murray the K Christmas show, the fee for which didn't even cover their expenses. Their Christmas dinner was a plate bamburgers eaten in their dressing room at the Brooklyn Fox Theatre.

Came 1966 and wasn't a very year for the group. Altogether too moody and far too many blues. Promotion problems, manproblems, money problems, internal disagreements.

Bass player Clint Warwick left in the summer to spend more time with his wife and two kids, Later Denny Laine, dissatisfied with what he was writing, also left the group.

Break-up rumours followed and, to all intents and purposes the Moody Blues had disappeared into the pog fimbo. "Boulevard De La Madeleine", the group's first record for almost a year, released last October, did not exactly take the charts by storm, "But," said Mike Pinder this week, "Graham Edge and myself decided to keep the group going. We have a good reputation. We've been a name group for two years and we're still going out for the same bread, "I think people are artists recognising much more for their talent nowadays and charts mean less and

"The response we've had to the new group," says Mike Pinder, "convinces me that we're ready to carry on where we left off in Britain."

The Moody Blues

broke with the Epstein management and Colin Berlin is currently acting as their agent. They will continue to produce records independently, for release by Decca, and Mike Pinder's "I Really Haven't Got The Time" is their current single. A preview of the number at the Paris Olympla Theatre suggests that it could be a dramatic come-back re-begin to realise you're not getting anywhere." "Give us another month," says drummer Graham Edge, "and 1 reckon we'll have everything right. We're as good on stage as the old Moodies, and better musically. We're a younger group, too. The trouble with the old group was that there was too much icing and not enough cake." One thing which has sustained the Moodles during their trials and tribulations is the high regard which many people in the business have for the group. Tom Jones, who has often been on the same bill as them in France, digs them, and Memphis Slim says: "A few more musicians should take notice of British groups like the Moody

Blues," Final word from Mike Pinder: "In the past we've given people far too much trust and faith. Now we're going to run things our way."

'We've gone stale,

"THE Yardbirds are stale to British fans-like the Animals and the other groups we came up with," said Keith Relf.

We were supping coffee with Keith's wife and Jimmy Page and I must admit none of them looked particularly brought down by the statement.

"We are still going down very well in America," interposed Jimmy. "It's still all fresh to them. Over here the scene is in a funny way at the moment."

Keith agreed: "In Britain, unless you get to the level of the Beatles or the Stones you all become stale to the kids after a year or two. The new generation are followers of the Cream, the Move or the Action, I suppose. But I don't think there is the excitement that there was three years ago.

"The whole scene is changing round now. When the Beatles were in their heyday, England had all the top groups and the Americans weren't doing anything. Now it's the other way round."

"I've been on three American tours," said Jimmy. "On the first two there was nothing happening there at all. I was shocked by the groups we played with. Now you find good guitarists and good ideas everywhere - especially on the West Coast. They aren't just reproducing Beatles or Stones things any more."

"It's a very exciting scene at the moment," interrupted Keith. "There's a whole undercurrent of youthful revolution that isn't apparent until you talk to people. When we were in Hollywood there were riots against the police. Kids were passing leaflets round saying when and have been one of the first groups to experiment with a light show. We did it in America, too. "All this stuff existed over ago," recalled Keith. "We must there long before the psychedelic tag was latched on to it. I suppose somebody read a bit of Professor Timothy Leary and started calling it psychedelle music. It's a fairly valid term anyway."

"It's a pity it's become associated with drugs," added Jimmy. "The whole idea was to liberate the mind without using drugs.

"Through concentration you achieve various levels of excitement", agreed Keith, "It's a pity the term has been so distorted in Britain and the British seem to have turned their backs on it before it really started.

"Of course there only certain places where you could have a light You can't possibly do it in the Marquee, for example, with all those columns. You've got to have a place wih four bare, white walls.

We got back to the Yardbirds' travels. Isn't there a danger in being out of the country too often.

"There is," agreed Keith. "But I heard yesterday there are plans for us to do three British tours.

"In America it's been going down very well - after the initial queries about 'Where's Jeff?' Our last couple of tours have been more and more successful

THAT is the bright red guitar played by Pete Cresswell, lead guitarist with the Irish show band, Gene and the Gents, and how does he get his special sounds? Have the group made any more discs since their first, "Puppet On A String"? -Roger Martin, Ingatestone.

I use two guitars. One is Hawaiian, which I made myself and the other is the red Maton Ibis, with four pickups, which I bought at London's Sound City for £250. Our speciality used to be a tune called "Chicken Run", in which I made chicken noises by bending a note sharply and using a De Armond foot control to bring up the volume on the end of the note to feed back. I use a Vox AC 50-watt amplifier with a Dallas Treble Booster. Our second record is now available and features a tune written by our bass player, "The Way You called Wrinkle Your Nose". Both discs were for Emerald. -PETE CRESSWELL.

CIVING advice on selecting a saxophone and mouthpiece in MUSIC MAKER'S "Sound Sense" (January 1967), Paul Desmond failed to name the make of his own saxophone. - Jim Renny, Glasgow.

Paul did tell me, but his comments were unaccountably lost between my typewriter and the printing works. For years he played a Selmer alto and was completely satisfied with it, but he has now changed to a Leblanc, simply out of curiosity.

RECALL with much pleasure the visit to this country some years ago by Australia's Graeme Bell Jazzband and I would like to know what they are doing these days. - S. Whittle, Dunstable.

By a strange coincidence I have just received a letter from MELODY MAKER reader Dr. L. H. Grove, who lives at Mangerton, in New South Wales. He tells me that while holidaying at Surfers Paradise, in Queensland, a few weeks ago, he ran into Graeme Bell, whose band is playing at one of the big hotels there. Graeme had a long run at Sydney's Chevron Hotel, and then went on playing the country and visiting New before heading for Surfers Paradise. He sends warmest greetings to all his friends in Britain.

4DDD CLEARED UP MY SPOTS IN A SHORT MATTER

says 17 year old Keith Nichols

"Spots can be embarrassing, especially if they're big. I thought I'd tried everything. Then I heard about DDD, and I tried it. It cleared up my spots in a short matter of time. If you use it properly it can be very effective." Keith Nichols, an apprentice watch-maker, discovered how DDD's unique prescription with 5 powerful antiseptics and other scientific cooling and soothing ingredients really gets to work

HERE COME THE MONKEES

MONKEES: "Their TV show is a load of childish rubbish"

Well done Dorothy

A S one member of the audience whose evening was com-pletely ruined by screeching Small Faces fans at the Aberfan Charity Concert, I was amazed to read in Mailbag (December 31), two of these ill-mannered brats complaining about Dorothy Squires' treatment of them. How they could have the audacity to write to a newspaper after their behaviour is beyond my comprehension. Miss Squires was justified in all she said and did. When she came on stage she was almost surrounded by about 50 screaming girls. She asked them to return to their seats and was ignored. She appealed for help backstage, and none was forthcoming, so she tackled the mob herself. After slapping a couple of the more ignorant ones she left. A large number of the audience wanted to hear Dorothy, and because of these morons, all we got was one song. - JOHN BUCKLEY, London W2.

LIOW can Mick Jagger say he's worried because there's no one to replace the Beatles and Stones. I know one group that's certainly going to take Britain by storm and it's not the Beachboys. Who is it? The Monkees! - JEAN OPEN-SHAW, Bolton, Lancs.

RUBBISH

AM disgusted to think people buy the Monkees' records. Their TV show is a load of childish rubbish and an insult to Britain. If it's all a publicity stunt to make us think the Monkees are bigger than the Beatleswell, there is absolutely no comparison. It's not surprising the Americans like it, but won't watch that stupid programme again. I am launching an anti-Monkees campaign - C. HOCKLEY, Forest Gate, London.

Monkees I can only conclude that whoever produces this little gem must have sat through Help about a dozen times. Who directs it-"Son Of Dick Lester"? - P. JONES, Eastwood Road, South Wood-

KNOCKED

THE Monkees are in the unenviable position of being knocked by other groups who have sweated and toiled for years and achieved nothover-night fame of the Monkees. They may have been lucky but at least they have put some life back into pop. And that's good to see, even if it's sad that they're not a British group, - BRYN DAVIES, Holywell, Flints.

FAULTS

I HEARTILY agree with the MM's "Don't Knock The Pop" front page. However, surely a reasonable amount of intelligent knocking can only do the music industry good in that it keeps artists on their toes and lets them know their faults. -M. KIEMAN, Ulverston, Lancs.

ARDENT

A S an ardent pop fan I was glad to read your article "Don't Knock The Pop" (January 7). Too many people have grown fat from field, Middlesex, pop and teenagers over the past few years, and instead of giving their support, they MICK BROWN, Durning Road, Upper Nerwood, London.

GREAT

TONGRATULATIONS Georgie Fame and Julie Felix, and all the supporting artists who helped make Fame In '67 the best show of the year. The music and dancing were great.-ANN McAU-LIFFE, Mill Hill, London, CO Pete Townshend thinks have been so fantastic without drugs! (MM January 14). Maybe his music just matured and improved as Parker moved on. If so we could have more of his work, if drugs hadn't killed him! Very few mustcians can produce better music with the aid of drugs-if any thing it gets worse. So stop trying to kid us drugs are an asset to musicians, theyre not -ANNE MAXWELL, Rom ford, Essex.

DISGUSTED

I WAS most disgusted to I find, after travelling from Enfield to the Bull, Barnes, to hear Ben Webster, that he was unable to play. On top of all this. I received a rude reception when I asked for a refund of my 15s entrance fee. Are the public really expected to take this sort of treatment? - DON A. COOK, Mike Peter's Jazzband, En-

TO BY WRITING TO MAILBAG

WAS most disappointed by the decision not to show the Albert Ayler recordings on BBC-2's Jazz Goes To College. Surely there is not going to be a repeat of the rejection that met bop 15 years ago? BBC2 is a unique programme, modern, far-reaching and intelligent. Perhaps those in control are not in fact as progressive as one might think. Ayler is one of the great innovators and it borders on a social crime that he cannot be given the opportunity to expand his audience.-W. E. SMITH, Eal-

ing, London. • LP WINNER

Concerning the recent spate of "yah-booing" I would like to point out that I have been "yah-booing" for some three years now as many young ladies will testify. To "yah-boo" one goes up to a young lady and suddenly announcing "yah" grabs her left ankle. The lady will raise her hands in self-protection, whereby one immediately clutches the young lady's left elbow, incantating "boo" at five decibels. - NOEL MURPHY, Folk Singer, Hampstead, London.-Editor's note: Noel did not actually say "ankle" or "elbow".

 Mick Jagger might not know it, but he and the Stones are the great romantics of our time, "Ruby Tuesday" is disturbingly good. Mick is digging deeper and deeper into his own feelings to produce more subtle and complex lyrics. The importgreedy agents. Let's be professional - but realistic -DAVID WILLIAMS, Watford, early morning blues - surely followers of jazz are not all insomniacs? Were it not for the humour of compere Humphrey Lyttelton, I just could not stand the pace. - WIL-SON H. BROWN, Falkirk, Scotland.

· I wonder if the weary, present-day pop scene doesn't need a shot of good, oldfashioned rhythm? In despair recently, I have been digging out my old LPs - Jelly Roll Morton, Eddie Condon, Terry Lightfoot and once again my feet began tapping - a feeling I had quite forgotten! What is more significant is that my teenage daughter's feet can't keep still either. So pop, away with that relentless hammering and let us feel alive again! - MRS LOIS HOCKEY, Richmond, Surrey.

The death of talented young drummer Johnny Butts was a sickening blow I can't find words adequate enough to express. I offer deep respect to those close to him .- | B. A. NETZEL, Seven Kings, Ilford, Essex.

What a load of codswallop like an aspiring cross between Cassandra and Batman's Robin.-JOHN LEWIS, Blackheath, London.
