▶ Here we have a scene from the most exclusive film in the world... Captain Eo, a "space fantasy" starring Michael Jackson. So exclusive, in fact, that it's only being shown in two places in the entire universe - Disneyland in California and Disney World in Florida. It was "supervised" by famed film director Francis Ford Coppola (The Godfather) and George Lucas (Star Wars) and, although it's only 17 minutes long, it cost absolutely millions of dollars to make (though nobody's admitting quite how much...)

The result of all this expense is a slightly feeble "plot" in which M.J. is supposed to be - gulp the commander of an intergalactic battleship, complete with a "cute" and cuddlesome crew of two robots, a flying monkey called Fuzzball and a miniature elephant named Hooter whose trunk turns into a flute. Very useful, their task is to rescue the wicked Supreme Leader (played by "respected" actress Anjelica Houston in about six feet of make-up) from the forces of evil, only trouble is that Michael gives his orders in such a weedy little voice that it's difficult to take him seriously.

Still, the dance scenes are... completely brilliant. And not only that but there are two new Michael Jackson songs on the soundtrack: "We Are Here To Change The World" (a rather sickily simp-a-long affair) and "Just Another Part Of Me" (a work of pure genius). And not only that, but it's all filmed in 3D which means that when you "don" a pair of special spook-glasses everything goes v. cosmic indeed - laser beams appear to shoot forth from the screen, asteroids float around the theatre and Michael Jackson almost steps (bloo!) into your "lap". In other words, it's a lot very spectacular, if not particularly "deep". And, as Pet Shop "Boy" Neil Tennant (who knows about these things) put it, "They manage to cram more special effects into 17 minutes than we get in the whole of Billie Jean."

▶ Hooter the elephant and his motion trunk.

▶ Michael Jackson not in an original tent but with a flying monkey on his shoulder.

▶ Michael Jackson in a futuristic, metallic suit, holding a glowing staff, standing in a dark, industrial setting.

FEELIN' GOOD'N' LOOKIN' GREAT THE BITZ WAY

Yeecccchhhh! If there's one thing BITZ really hates it's people who are horribly, horribly fit – always bouncing up and down and spinning on their backs and showing off their pectorals and making everyone else feel really weedy and stoic/home. Take Five Star, for instance. Everyone knows that they're incredibly sprightly/n'healthy but now they insist on telling us all about it in the new issue of Fitness magazine – and just examine, if you will, their list of "diet and beauty tips":

1. Drink lots of water, as much as you can.
2. Don't drink alcohol or Coke.
3. Eat liver (jargon), which is good for the whites of your eyes.
4. Broccoli keeps your hair and skin looking good and glossy (jargon!).
5. Place your face close to the sun before you touch your skin.
6. Take vitamin supplements, particularly vitamin C.
7. Take lots of hard showers which minimize the skin.
8. Always use body lotion after the shower or a bath (jargon!).
9. Use steam on your face to open the pores and purify the skin.
10. Face packs are very important if you wear lots of make-up.

Euuuuuuuuuu! Sounds horrible to BITZ. And what's worse, it is, of course, totally and utterly wrong. Fortunately BITZ knows the right way to keep lookin' good and feelin' great – and what's more it's got absolutely nothing to do with eating liver or – heaven forbid – broccoli. So, here they are – BITZ's own 10 steps to account and fitness:

1. On no account drink water (has much lead to lead to water on the lines, or even on the brain). Instead drink at least five cartons of the Benji per day.
2. Make sure you have plenty of "food supplements" – a couple of packets of Midget Gums and half a dozen Roller twice a day should do the trick.
3. Exercise your jaw regularly – a packet of Hubba Bubbe will help.
4. Use potato peelings mixed with a Birds Eye Kebab Beef Dinner For One makes a good face "pack" (don't use).
5. Dipping your fingertips in old pots of Ceylon "oil" will firm and strengthen your muscles.
6. Listening to Frank Brighthouse's records (has once done with Aled Jones) is an excellent way to burn off unwanted calories.
7. Avoid all foods with the letter C in their name. (The only exception to this being Crische bars.)
8. Wagon wheels rubbed onto hips and thighs are good for getting rid of cellulite.
9. Put a few drops of Oil Freey Sausage into your bath water to refresh your skin.
10. Reaching to turn the television over from Top Gun Brawl to Midweek Sports Special and then back again is a very good stretching exercise.

Paul 'N' the Heavy Division! Hardcastle has got a new single out called 'The B' word'. Not that exciting, you may think, but... it's all the new, thumpy tune to 'Top Gun' for 'Aps'. So, like it or not, it's all in there. Doubtless for the earth quake.

PEOPLE WITH

A famous "biologist" writes: A head is normally found at the end of a neck. It has (usually) two ears, a nose, a mouth and lots of other bits and pieces as well, e.g. eyes, "brains", teeth, half-chewed toffee Revels etc. This, when one thinks about it, is rather a lot to have balancing up there on top of the old body and it's really quite amazing that the whole lot doesn't just... well, topple off, so to speak. And yet people will insist on piling more and more objects onto their already over-burdened craniums, which really is most inadvisable. Take, for instance, the tragic case-histories presented here...

A. Ver Biscuits and some 'doffas'

Half Man Half Biscuit, eh? What a group. Can anyone match their "probing" genius?

(Yes, but BITZ can't remember who it is...)
 Not only do they dedicate their single "Debbie Davies' Eyes" to that veritable God of World Of Sport but they entitle the B-side "I Left My Heart In Papworth General" – where BITZ was "born"!!!! (Except it wasn't really). And the extra tune on the 12" is called "The Bastard Son Of Dean Friedman" who is BITZ's favourite "singer"!!!! (Except he isn't really). Astounding, really, is it not? (It – The entire universe.)

A. Dickie Davies and his yoos

A. A chicken! Even worse, a live chicken! Alison Moyet is clearly even madder than the "glamorous" Sheena model on page 5 who has a dead chicken on his head.

Just who are this lot then? Well, they can't be Bananarama, because although there are three of them, there's a boy in there too and anyway they're not all wiggling from side to side. And they can't be some trendy bunch of "hip-hoppers" fresh from NYC – even though they are standing up against a bit of "graffiti art" – because they're not all wearing baseball caps round the wrong way or Adidas trainers with no laces and shouting "Yo! Yo!" and talking about "ilim 'n' chillin'".

"Heem hem," squeaks a little voice that reminds BITZ of bagpipes and Loch Lomond and things like that (for it is a Scots voice). "Heem hem! We are actually the Shop Assistants."

"The Shop Assistants who are Alex, Laura, David and Sarah and who come from somewhere very decidedly noooooorth of the boooooerrrrder?" says an amazed BITZ.

"Yes."
 "The Shop Assistants whose 'The Shopping Parade' EP was described by Morrissey (a man who might be considered to have good taste except for that horrid hearing aid) as the best record of 1983?"

"Yes."
 "The same Shop Assistants that are said to make a 'punk pop noise'?"

"Yes."
 "The same Shop Assistants that have a new single coming out very soon entitled 'Don't Wanna Be Friends With You' which will probably be more of the same 'poppy punk' that their fans have come to know and love?"

"The very same Shop Assistants."
 Well, thank goodness we know who they are. P.S. BITZ's mum was a shop assistant once, on the bacon counter at Tesco (except she wasn't).

A. A bucket! One of IT's Inmaterial sports the latest "mode" in designer head-gear. Not very fetching, is it? (No – The entire universe plus one.)

STUPID THINGS ON THEIR HEADS IN ROCK: PART 2

▲ More buckets!!! As demonstrated by all of Wes (Not Wes). Still not very "fucking", are they? (Yes, actually - & buckets.)

▲ drum! Actually, Dixie Heights is demonstrating a new and highly avant-garde way of "playing" drums using his bones. Quite clever, really.

▲ Two cloaks and some remnants from a wool factory!!! The man above with the stunningly atrocious "hair-do" is somebody that nobody (on this side of planet) has ever heard of called Dave Plastic. No wonder!

▲ An old hankie! Paul Rutherford demonstrates just how un-stylish they can look (i.e. very).

▲ school cap! This is an old ploy adopted here by Sensley Culture to try and convince people that he is not yet old enough to leave school. But very convincing, actually.

▲ a fruit bowl swiped from the side-board!!! (Actually it's Carmen Miranda, a South American "tam star" of the 40s who starred in millions of famous films like... um... well the only one Blitz can think of was called Flying Down To Rio, but if she was around now she'd definitely be a "pop" star because she used to sing in a very high-pitched voice and always wore loads of fruit on her head because she was even shorter than Prince is. Or something.)

▲ Larry Blackmon of Cameo's red "cudd-pace" (with a couple of holes in it) worn on the "head" of Dave "I'm a different Dave Stewart from the one in the Eurythmics" Stewart. (Actually it's a... um... well, Blitz doesn't actually know what it is, but it looks very frightening anyway. As does "bawd" Barbara Gaskin.)

▲ surf board!!! As modeled by Musical Youth (NB the one member not wearing the surf board has keeled over. How rum?)

▲ a paper carrier bag! "Modeled" by Sean Penn. Boog!

▲ An old leather chopping bag! Interesting observation: Foeko (for it is he) is mad.

▲ a satellite dish! Keeps the rain off and picks up messages from aliens at the same time. Modeled by one Peter Murphy (i.e. the bloke who used to "sing" in Beaulieu).

▲ Hail a hereditary department and a couple of knitting needles! Martin "Dagvita" of Sigur "Sigur" Sputnik needs his fingers.

▲ A couple of bars of chocolate! Yes - it's Ellen Jaffe, in his apogee in a new advert for Galburys chocolate (He's written the accompanying "jingle", too, which he claims was his "real unfulfilled ambition in life") But this is not the most loathly thing Ellen has worn on his head, certainly not for... amongst all the participants in the lush network of spectacle that is "rock" as we know it (or something), this man has the most demagogued history of gazing his head with ungainly objects. V.I.C.

▲ hair-do! And a not very nice one at that!

▲ Another hair-do! (Sniff!!!) Serves discontinued...)

THE BITZ SNOOT-COMPETITION

Paul Packer

ponder awhile, my little snootlets, the above photograph: Is it a) too completely mad (and rather ill-mannered) persons who have not much dress sense, or b) "culture"? The answer's a) and b) actually, and here's why: the outfit's so lastefully "modelled" above eye, in fact, real and 100% bona fide opera costumes!! (Apart from the Doc Martens, that is.) They've been donated to Bitz by Opera North (a roving "culture" group who put on operas in the North of England), they were designed by ex- famous person who's also done the costumes for Andrew Lloyd Webber's Phantom Of The Opera and they've been worn by all sorts of operatic mega-fans. As you can see, they're really quite splendid (albeit a little uncomfortable), and therefore Bitz is now going to donate them to you (i.e. yer readers). But first, a brief description of the characters to whom the costumes belong.

Left: Some Italian bloke called Rigoletto from an opera called, erm, Rigoletto, which was written by some other Italian bloke called Verdi. Rigoletto is not very handsome (see picture) – he's got a hunchback and something funny down his "leg". Anyway, the dodgy old count fancies his daughter, so poor Rigoletto spends the entire opera worrying about her "virtue" – until he accidentally kills her, that is, thereby giving himself one less thing to worry about (??????). Right: Some old crowd called Donna Anna from Mozart's opera Don Giovanni. Donna Anna is nicely seduced by the lecherous Don Giovanni, but just as they're about to engage in a spot of amaz'n rampo, her father interrupts and Don G. murders 'em. Doesn't sound very cultural, does it? (No – all the people who are still awake)

▲ How an opera costume should be worn: by a serious opera star. (This one's called Anna Karenina, because the famous lady got the "inspiration" of the post for Rigoletto when wearing the very costume on offer.) [He's a hard drive on the floor of opera costumes – except he's got a better voice.]

To get you really in a snoot-mood, Bitz is also giving away 25 copies of "The Pavarotti Collection", a double album sung by that round star of operatic triflesomeness (i.e. Pavarotti, for it is he!) featuring such "works" as "O Sole Mio" (the tune from the Corvetto advert) and "La Serenata" (whatever that is). So, to the inevitable question: Who wrote Don G. Carmen? Was it a) Bizz? b) Corman? c) Andrew Lloyd Webber; d) some Italian bloke; or e) a pen? Answers on a) something opposite to Smash Hits; b) Bitz Snoot-competition, 92-95; c) Carnaby Street, London W1V 1FF; d) get here by October 21. Don't forget to state which costume you want; first one out of the copypete gets their choice, next one out gets the other outfit, and the next 23 get Pavarotti albums. And, to die you over bil'fen, here's a little operetta wot Bitz has wrote:

THE FALL

17-19 Alma Road, Wandsworth,
London SW18 1AA

Some very strange "rumours" (i.e. true facts that no one will admit) have been reaching the Bitz "desk" saying that The Beatles have deserted their independent record label, Rough Trade, for the giant multinational EMI corporation for lots and lots and lots of money. Most odd, Rough Trade haven't confirmed it but say that, whatever, The Smiths will have a new single out next week (on Rough Trade). It's called "Ask" (pronounced 'I'd in the Northern fashion), the B-side is "Cosmetary Gates" (off "The Green is Dead") LP and on the LP there's an extra track called "Golden Light". The group are also recording another single as Bitz "speaks", plan to take their show at the London Palladium for possible release as a live LP and Rough Trade expect them to record a minimum of one more "studio" LP.

● A CAB DRIVER WRITES: One blimey, it's a lark all us s'oop opera geeks, bow? Take wot FACE is doin' on TV. First wot Laffy bloke makes a real one wot catch cop ackchery. You've got yer bow Anna Bobson wot owns yer pod havin' a bit sample. How you get wot better wot terve behind us! Not to worry a record is well. What's his name? Oh yay, Waddy Wat s'n. (Actually, his name is Rocky – for "Every Loser Wins" it's called, and it's one wot we needs on playing on yer pump when he's singing on the record.) The pump is Dr. Queen W. Kind of his music, I think I done it myself. You can't get a good old class. I gave a record you... I got wot more. "Class" I gave a know-up at some. Class got wot we need and get wot stick it on every time we (SHHHHHHHH).

THE MEATLOAF

COUGH DROPS:
"When I'm in the studio and I have to hang, I start coughing and running round the place like a madman and I get all these cough drops..."

WATER: "... and loads of water. Most people might drink water from a cup but I drink all these whole big jugs and coffee pots. I drink water straight out of those"

Meatloaf is quite a portly fellow, is he no? That's why Bitz decided to ask this American rock 'n' roll legend one or two things concerning the wonderful world of nosh...

SANDWICHES: "The sandwich was the first fast food before the hot dog and the hamburger. And the sandwich came from you guys – remember the Earl of Sandwich, man? – so it's all your fault. Don't argue with me because I got straight for the jugular."

TOMATOES: "Did you ever see The Attack Of The Killer Tomatoes? That's a pretty cool film and it has this song that goes "sang"? The attanassack of the killer tomanassanithoes (bungee fast on take in time on "sang"?). The attanassack of the killer tomanassanithoes real. "Jeel I smashed my hand real hard. Or!"

The Bitz National Opera Presents...

PEPITO LUCROTTI AND HIS AMAZING TECHNOLOUR HORMPIPE (or something like that)

The scene: A garden with flowers in it and one of those marble bustan things in the shape of Cupid i.e. a cherub with a little bow and arrow with water coming out of his welly. It is evening. Enter Luciano Pavarotti or whatever he's called dressed as a Bowcaster with a chicken on his head.

Pavarotti: "Mi mi... My tiny hand is fro-steel!! Which is a bit odd when you come to think of it, seeing as how a) I haven't got a tunic – in fact they see both quite fat and b) I am wearing a oginate medieval tunic with thongs on it. Oh well." (Takes out enormous handkerchief and wipes his forehead brown.) Enter Dame Kitty Knutsaw or whatever her's called – you know wot old bird what sang at Prince Charles and Princess Diana's so-called wedding – dressed as a horse with bells (ts...)

Elly: "Mi mi... the pian-lose of the opera...". (Enter Andrew Lloyd Webber dressed as a roller skate with a cucumber on his head.)

Webber: "This is plagiarism of the greatest kind if you ask me!"

Boris Becker: "So do I, mate!"

Audience: "?????"

CURTAIN

THEY'RE BACK! BACK! BACK!
(SPECIAL BUMPER EDITION)

LEI

LIMAHU! Yes, he's back! Back! BACK! With a new single, "Boule To Change!" And, er, that's it!

JAMES BROWN! Yes, he's back! BACK! BACK! With a new single, "Growth," to be followed by an album of the same name! And Dan Harmon (who wrote "Largie in America") "penned" and produced it! And Alison Moyet sang on one song! And Steve Winwood sang on another song! And, er, that's it!

RED BOX! Yes, she's back! BACK! BACK! With a new single, "Tos America," their first since their huge hit with that song with the horrible chorus that went "wash wash wewwoooooo!" or whatever. And, er, that's it!

BOBBY GEE loses BUCKS "ZZZ" he's back! BACK! BACK! With a solo single, "Big Deal," from the TV series of the same name! It's already been out since but nobody bought it so now they're giving everyone another chance! Hurray! God bless Bobby Gubby! And, er, that's it!

MODERN TALKING! Yes, they're back! BACK! BACK! With the professionally titled "Adastin In Cops" (90% For Love!) And she's... "You're My Heart You're My Soul" which happened in Britain but sold over five million copies worldwide! And - hurray! - they're coming to Britain soon! And the singer with the horrible long hair with the chain around his neck is bringing his beloved Nines with him too! Cool-suddy-nhey etc And, er, that's it!

AL JARRREAL! He's back! Back! BA (ooooooooo!!!)

THE BIG SUPREME

▲ Barry Flynn and a car

If your lifelong ambition is to become a pop star, just how do you go about achieving it? Do you: a) make sure you come from Liverpool; b) get an honours degree in Zoology from Manchester University; c) call yourself "Boris" or d) get Andrew Ridgeley's younger brother to play drums for you?

Boris hasn't got the faintest idea, actually, but Barry Flynn - the man behind The Big Supreme - has tried a lot of the above and seems to be doing... OK. So, "Baz," let us hear through your career end maybe pack up some "tips." Are you really from Liverpool?

"Yes... Riveting. And have you really got a degree in Zoology? "Yeah. I'd love to get into all that Jacques Cousteau bit, going to the Great Barrier Reef and doing a bit of research into the Lesser Spotted Seabrook that hangs out in the little coral reefs there. I'd like to do a five year PhD (snoot-degree) on that."

And did you really release a couple of singles under the somewhat "risqué" (hem hem) name of "Boris"? "Ermm... yes. I just thought it was a good name. I still think it is. I'd like to go under the name 'Boris' now, but unfortunately the press and Radio 1 didn't like it. I think the infantile sexual connotations offended them. In fact, it offended everyone. People just thought it was tacky. I tried to argue with them, but I quite like that aspect of it. I think it's far better to go under a name like 'Boris' than one like, y'know, 'Desert Hearts In Exile,' something disgracefully pretentious like that. I was trying to think of a name that would look good written down. Like 'Oxo.' I think 'Boris' is pretty similar. People like saying it for some reason."

How about "The Big Supreme"? "It's not very good, is it? I quite like the fact that it's got a pseudo-ambiguity about it. It's not really saying anything, it's just two adjectives strung together. It's not taking itself too seriously."

And is Andrew Ridgeley's brother Paul really in The Big Supreme? "Well, not quite..."

Barry goes on to explain that The Big Supreme is "just my songs, basically," and that he only recruited the other "members" after he'd already signed a record deal and needed a backing group. How, then, does he feel when people concentrate their attentions on Paul Ridgeley rather than on Barry himself?

"I think it's a laugh. Paul hates it, y'know? I think he gets really embarrassed about it. If I was in his shoes I wouldn't like it either, people being more interested in your relative than yourself."

▲ Paul Ridgeley and not a star

though obviously my career and his career are going to overlap because we're in the same business. It can open some doors but it tends to give people preconceptions about me - I do get treated differently by people who actually know on first meeting that we're brothers than by people who don't."

"Don't the rest of the group get a bit fed up with it at all?" "Not at all. We get on like a house on fire. This is one of the happiest bands I've ever been involved with. The whole thing is usually made into a big joke. Sometimes I'll feel there's a problem because of certain press articles, but the band just defuse the situation so well. Obviously they're not bothered about it, and that makes me put things in perspective."

GO OUT WALK

I was driving my car
To a back street bar
To pass the time away
It was one of those dead
Should have stayed in bed
End of nothing days
I'm going under that's a fact
You've gotta come on over You've gotta come back

Chorus

Don't walk
You're giving me the run around
Keep talking
I don't wanna come down
Can't stop wanting you around me
Do what you wanna do
Don't walk

Now I can't decide

What to do tonight
I've gotta choice of one
I guess it's more obvious
Watching television
Oh lot of fun

I'm going under that's a fact
You gotta come on over
You gotta come back

Repeat chorus

Just come running back
You're all I'm waiting for
Just come running back
You're all I'm waiting for (Just come...)

Just come running back

IDE TO FOOD

CHEWING GUM: "I'm very superstitious about chewing gum. I have to have chewing gum. I have to have chewing gum all over everywhere. I chew two packs of gum when I'm stinging. I'll stuff it in my mouth all at the same time - two packs of Juicy Fruit. Ten pieces of gum is in my mouth, man."

HAMBURGERS: "We didn't have MacDonald's when I was growing up. We had Jack in The Box. You don't have Jack In The Box here? Thank your lucky stars you don't. It's a little building with a clown's head on the top - it looks like a jack in the box and you have to be real short to work there. They don't have girls that come out on roller skates but you drive in and talk to the guy but he can't hear you 'coz he's so short and he gives you a hamburger when you asked for a taco. LA gourmet wonder: that's a dodey old Mexican cream cracker type thing with minced meat in."

MORE WATER: "I didn't get any fillings in my teeth till about two years ago. I've got good teeth thanks to Texas water with natural fluoride. There's so much fluoride in the water in Texas that everybody's teeth are yellow. It's from all the cows that run around up there." (1997)

QUITE A LOT OF COMPETITIONS

● The leaves are turning a herble colour, giving up and dropping off trees and the nights are even colder than they were in the "summer". Sometimes "Mother Nature is just too, too cruel, she sha not? But wait! Bitz has the solution, witness, a drofts (as they say in France), lots and lots of free things that... actually won't make you feel any warmer at all (unless you set fire to them haw haw). Life, eh? Still, Bitz doesn't want them so, for a chance of the so-called "postie" delivering them to you and not some old bag down the road, merely answer this question - where might a polar bear meet a penguin? is a) at the North Pole; b) at the South Pole; c) in a zoo? Answers on a thermal vest to Smash Hits Cor! Bitz "Parky" Today, Imit Guy? Competition, 52-55 Carnaby Street, London W1V 1PF to get here by October 21. Put the number of the "item" you wish to win next to your answer and, um, hope for the best. First correct answers out of the freezer get the loot. Hara wa go...

1 DEF JAM

Five extremely "cool" 'n' hip 'n' bibbly 'n' yoi - some Def Jam caps - as in Def Jam the management company for all sorts of "cool" 'n' hip 'n' bibbly 'n' yoi - some American rap bands. Plus 25 12" copies of The Beastie Boys' "She's On It" and 25 12" copies of LL Cool J's "I Can't Live Without My Radio"

2 DAVID BOWIE

Fifty copies of a brand new book about "Dame" David Bowie called Stardust (= The Life And Times Of David Bowie). Not very many pictures in this book, but a rather interesting story of his "artfics" from school-days right up to now - as recalled by Tony Zanetta (one of the big-wigs in his management company) and a journalist bloke called Henry Edwards. Especially good is the "revelation" that he was toweringly unsuccessful for a very, very long time and apparently without an original idea in his head. Bah, rumbled! etc.

3 GOOD TO GO

Good To Go, as any fule kno, is a v. trenderrific "hip hop" film starring, amongst others, Trouble Funk (v. trenderrific "hip hop" group, fact foesi). Review has all the details, but Bitz has... the hat! (O Good To Go cycling caps to be precise.) And Bitz also has... 10 Trouble Funk t-shirts to complete the outfit. So, how haw dee hew haw to Review.

4 VELOX FLY

Fifteen copies of their new single, "Velcro Fly", encased in the least tasteful 7" picture sleeves ever invented. Un-zip the Velcro "zip" of some poor unfortunate's blue breeks and - voila! (i.e. bteeeeUUURRight!) - a photograph of ZZ Top. Have they no shame? (No - "man 'and' and quite a few females too.) Plus 20 12" un-"zipped" versions of "Velcro Fly" (pbeew!!) and the very LAST famed ZZ Top key-rings (as recommended by M. Harcourt in the whole of the world 'cos they're not being made any more. Sniff...)

5 LOOSE ENDS

Twenty-five signed copies of the quite "sumptuous" Loose Ends Video Collection plus 25 signed LPs of the equally "sumptuous" new Loose Ends LP "Zagora" (whatever that means).

6 ID IN AN ID

ID is an incredibly "credible" magazine all about the following: a) people posing around in clubs you've never heard of; b) clothes you can't afford designed by designers you've never heard of; c) lots of people who went to art school you've never heard of and d) you can't taste it because of all the wiggly drawings in the background. Thus ID is immensely cool - and being seen with it makes one immediately "in", "knowledgeable" about all things arty-farty and "interesting". What we have, then, are 50 arty-farty ID posters, 10 arty-farty ID t-shirts, 25 ID dance compilation arty-farty LPs and 10 free subscriptions - i.e. the chance to have this "magazine" wedged in your letter-box every month for quite a long time to come.

7 MEGALOMANIA

Five double-packs of Bangles playing cards with very shiny 'n' shimmery Egyptian hieroglyphics (i.e. wibbly drawings of people with not very many clothes on that used to get drawn on pyramids in the "olden" days) on them. Plus 25 12" copies of their single "Walk Like An Egyptian".

8 GENERAL PUBLIC

Six original and highly snootificious "limited edition" lithographic prints of the group by exceedingly "hip" New York artist Martin Burgoyne (the bloke who did those pictures of Madonna that looked like they were done by v. famous "dauber" Andy Warhol). Plus 25 12" inches of the new General Public single, "Fauts And All".

9 HIPSWEAT

Five pairs of very nice (hem hem) hipsweaty boxer shorts - just in time for the winter too. Bliss! Plus 25 rather special packs of their new record "Long White Car", which has five tunes on it (one of which, "Tinder", is the music for the McEwans lager ad! "Fancy" that!)

10 SMILEY CULTURE

Ten rather summery "pork pie" hats which, strangely, are made of straw (???) plus 25 copies of his new LP, "Tongue In Cheek", which features all his famous rapping ditties and a few more that no one's heard yet (except Smiley Culture that is, and some people at his record company, and probably the bloke who [Sniff!])

'WE WISH OUR MUM W

It's 5 STAR's first ever tour of Britain, and they're feeling a trifle homesick. In Sheffield and found out that, in between missing

TRAVELLING IN A SWANKY LIMOUSINE...

Deniece: "The limo's great, really comfortable. No one can see what you really look like when you're sleeping. Doris is really ugly."

Doris: "Thanks a bunch."
Stedman: "The limo was really my Dad's idea. He seemed to think it would be the best way for us to travel. Some nights Harry (my chauffeur) will drive us straight back home rather than on to the next concert, that's if we're quite near to London, because we miss our Mum and the cats."

STAYING IN HOTELS.

Lorraine: "We thought being on the road was going to be a lot more hectic, but it's fine. We just seem to sleep all the time. Sometimes we don't wake up until about 11, and then we've got to pack everything away ready for the drive to our next concert."

SLEEPING IN Z-BEDS
Deniece: "I get a bit of a cold when I'm in the z-beds. I don't know if it's because of the cold or the fact that we're in the z-beds. I don't know if it's because of the cold or the fact that we're in the z-beds. I don't know if it's because of the cold or the fact that we're in the z-beds." (Note: This is a transcription of a handwritten note on the page.)

COLLECTING USELESS 'ITEMS'...

Deniece: "There's something about hotels... like the little soaps and things you get in the bathroom. I love collecting those - I've got tons... they're so neat."

Lorraine: "She collects them before you have a chance to have a shower so we make sure we bring our own."

DRINKING CHAMPAGNE AND EATING CAKE...

Doris: "This morning we found out that we had a number one album and our single had gone to number four in the charts. Deniece answered the phone and went "number one" and, my goodness, my heart went somewhere but I don't know where."

Lorraine: "I was acting all cool under the covers but really I was shaking. It's just so brilliant. Our music publishers, Chrysalis, had a cake made for us at the hotel and sent it up on a trolley which was a lovely surprise. Then RCA - our record company - bought us some champagne, but we only had a glass each..."

Deroy: "I had to put up with Coke or this horrid carbonated water stuff!"

DOING THEIR MAKE-UP...

Lorraine: "We take about half an hour to do our make-up properly."

Doris: "No, we can do it in 20 minutes."

Lorraine: "We have to wear less mascara and black around the eyes than normal because it all ends up on our cheeks and we look terrible. Like Deniece, she came back on in the second half thinking she looked really nice, and started singing to all these boys and she just looked like something out of 'The Evil Dead'!"

Deniece: "Thank you. The audience don't care what you look like, as long as they're having a good time."

AS ON TOUR WITH US..'

Ro Newton (words) and Julian Barton (photos) spent a day with them their mum and the cats, they spend their time. . .

WORRYING ABOUT THEIR COSTUMES . . .

Doris: "We wish our Mum was on tour with us, especially when we can't get our costumes on properly. We have to really pin them up because sometimes zips come undone."

Deniece: "Last night we were ready to go onstage and Dorcy was still in the toilet."

Dorcy: "I must've forgotten to pin the zipper down, and the next thing I knew all these girls were screaming and pointing at my flesh which had worked their way down without me noticing. It took me ages to catch on to what they were going on about."

Stedman: "I'm actually responsible for making the costumes but Dad has the final word. With these ones we were told the glitter wouldn't come off but it's gone everywhere. When we get back to the hotel after the concert I let the costumes dry out because they're wringing wet. We just hang them up all over the place. Sometimes I need to sew buttons back on or mend seams and all the rest of it we get them cleaned."

Doris: "So we don't go on all smelly and the crowd go UGGGHEEER"

GOING "MAD" ONSTAGE. . .

Dorcy: "Every time I'm onstage I stand still most of the time and I watch all four of them because they're so mad—especially Doris and Lorraine."

Doris: "He's always calling me 'Midget' onstage."

Dorcy: "My sisters are always running over near the crowd. They mess about with the crowd so much that you think they're a bit wild, so I keep my eye on them."

Deniece: "If I see something really funny or hear anything I just look at Doris and she knows that kind of look and she starts laughing straight away. It's a sort of sign language."

GETTING NERVOUS. . .

Deniece: "Each night before we go on, it's really a bit shaky. Backstage you can hear everyone screaming and it really gives you a warm feeling. The first night was great, we just went on and on for about two hours and we thought we didn't do enough. I think we spoke too much between each song."

Doris: "Sometimes I just stand there and think 'Gosh, here we are. . . and before you know it, it's gone so quick.'"

GETTING PRESENTS. . .

Doris: "Before we went onstage we met a 15 year old boy called John Pearson (no relation, although he'd like to be) who had drawn all these lovely pictures of us. It took him about three months to do. He was ever so shy and sweet. I thought he was nice and quiet until I spotted him in the crowd and he was just going crazy. . ."

John's reaction to meeting Doris: "Ummmmm ooooh aaah, that's Dooooorrrrrrrsssss . . . oooh I'm all of a quiver, even me throat's gone dry . . . yikes . . . uuum eeeerrrrrrrr . . . (etc.)"

MAKING PEOPLE SCREAM. . .

Doris: "We've been throwing water on the crowd and off since the first night. They get a bit hot and they scream for the water anyway. Last night there was this boy and he was well away. Arms and legs everywhere. I went stood next to him and he grabbed me by the waist and I didn't know what to do. They were all laughing in the crowd! He was really boopooing on down."

Deniece: "Then there was a girl last night who was really crying to come up."

Doris: "She was bawling her eyes out, not just nearly crying!"

 CONTINUED

▶ 'WE WISH OUR MUM WAS ON TOUR WITH US...'

12

EATING LEMONS...

Doris: "I always eat lemons on tour."
Delroy: "Lemons are lovely and lemons for afterwards."

14

TEASING EACH OTHER...

Dennis: "We're always teasing each other."

DREAMING ABOUT CARS, HOUSES AND COWS (OR SOMETHING)...

Stedman: "If I tell you anything you want to know about cars. I'm getting an Audi Quattro next week - it's blue, cost a bundle of money and it's just lovely. It's been my dream car since the day we walked into the showroom and Dad said that one day I could have one. Well, the day has come and I'm really excited."
Delroy: "I'd like a big house in Surrey and a Lamborghini, a Rolls Royce, a Bentley and a big Mercedes."

Doris: "I'd like a cow."
Lorraine: "I want a house with two gigantic staircases."

Dennis: "I'd like some antique furniture."

EATING ANYTHING...

Lorraine: "I just eat anything. I had a tummy bug the other day and I felt sick."
Dennis: "She ate too much and threw up next morning."
Lorraine: "No I didn't."
Dennis: "You did."
Lorraine: "I just drank a load of coffee and Coke."
Doris: "She had a lot of gastric juices in her stomach. They put it in the paper that it was elfive of us and it was on the news every half hour. And do you know where that came from? Just Lorraine being sick."

Stedman: "I think he's a great person. I respect him for what he's done in the music business and I think a lot of people look up to him. I don't believe what's in the papers."
Doris: "When I heard the story about him in the oxygen tent I didn't think he'd be stupid enough but when I saw a picture of him in it, I thought, Michael, what are you doing?"

Dennis: "Doris is his biggest fan. No sorry, she's his wife. She'd like to meet him, then she'd like to marry him."
Doris: "Well, I would like to do a routine with him, and then marry him."

SAYING HOW MUCH THEY LIKE CRUNCHIE BARS...

Five Star: "It's one of the family's favourite chocolate bars." (Interesting pop fact: Five Star's tour is being sponsored by Crunchie.)

BEING GRATEFUL TO THEIR DAD, BUSTER...

Doris: "If my Dad wasn't here, neither would Dennis be. She would've run off and had 20 children by now."
Dennis: "That's wicked."

Lorraine: "It's really good that he's around because I just don't feel secure without him. He's always here to give us advice and sometimes we need it."

HOLLYWOOD BEYOND NO MORE TEARS

Nonchalant

Well, it's a nice shock in the morning
Just gettin' in
And I can't ask you no questions
You're worn, say
You've been
A new, serious story to tell
You need to be
I mean, meet some old friends
Or tell your car break down again

It won't be the first time
You'll be the last
In a heartbreak situation
Is a thing in the past

Chorus

No more (no more)
No more tears (no more)
No more (no more)
Will I cry (no more)
No more tears (no more)
Will I cry (no more)
Over you (no more)
(No no more tears no no more)

(Hey)

It won't be the first time
Thinking of all things you said
Those feelings I heard
Were still in my head

There's a double meanings
Give me to love

This sign of love
Will only drive me to despair
The picture on the wall
Is the same need to my bed
The vision that I have for you
Will drive me out of my head

No more (no more)
No more tears (no more)
Will I cry (no more)
Over you (no more)
I said no more (no more)
No more tears (no more)
Will I cry (no more)
No no more tears no no more

No more

I said no more (no no no more)
I said no more (no no no more)
I said no more (no)

Won't be the first time
Sure won't be the last (no no)
The heartbreak situation
Is a thing of the past

Repeat chorus to fade

IT BITES

WHOLE NEW WORLD

Eight o'clock on Tuesday morning
I got it yesterday
She said she would send a letter
I haven't ate for days
I should've guessed that it was over
She always stayed away
My last hope was in the letter
To see what she had to say
I had to pull myself together
I had to be on my own
So I waited for the postman
And it wasn't long
Before I opened up the letter
And had to read about another one

Chorus

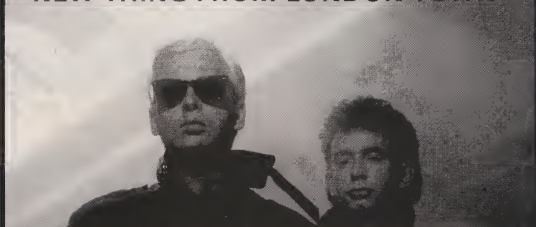

There's a whole new world out there
There's a whole new world
There's a whole new world
Oh there's a brand new life out there
And I want you to know that
The chains of love
Are lifted from today
I miss you as I say
There's a whole new world for all
I had to get in touch with her
To see what I could do
My heart missed a beat
When she confirmed that it was true
A sudden lonely desperate feeling
Tore me around my head
She told me of her new friends
And how they planned to wed
She had been with him before
When in the baby boom
So I craved for a moment
And then it got through
That if it happened to me
It could just as easily happen to you

Repeat chorus

There's a whole new world out there
There's a whole new world
There's a whole new world
There's a whole new world
There's a whole new world out there
There's a whole new world
There's a whole new world
There's a whole new world for all quite a lot of extremely brilliant things which will make you feel very jolly and "at one with"

THE WHOLE UNIVERSE!!!

FIRST PRIZE:

A Nike sports bag autographed by every single member of Frankie Goes To Hollywood! AND a Nike tracksuit! AND a Nike sweatshirt! AND the Top 20 "Teen Read" books!

HOW TO ENTER

● Just answer this not-very-difficult question. Which of the following is not the title of a real book? Is it a) A-ha: The Story So Far; b) The Secret Diary Of Adrian Mole; c) When The Wind Blows or d) The Nuances Of Nik: An Exploratory Study Into The Lyrics Of Nik Kershaw? Write the answer on a postcard or the "back" of an envelope and send it to: Smash Hits/Teen Read Competition, 14 Holkham Road, Orton Southgate, Peterborough, PE2 0YJ to arrive not later than 21 October. Bong!

3 SECOND PRIZES

A Nike tracksuit! AND the Top 10 "Teen Read" books!

20 RUNNERS' UP PRIZES

A Nike t-shirt! AND the Top 5 "Teen Read" books!

WHAT IS TEEN READ?

● It's a campaign to encourage people to read books by pointing out that not all books are about The Joys Of Gardening or Geophysics: The Inside Story or some other not v. interesting subject. Instead, the "Teen Read" Top 20 is going to be chosen by teenagers themselves and so will be full of books about pop music, snogging, spacships, the supernatural, Spitting Image puppets and all the things you probably actually want to read about. So there!

● She may be 35 years old, married to J

The fact that we can like something else's life – be it the life of a cow or a cat or a spider or a five year old girl – the fact that some people think it's there to take, the fact there's that kind of mentality so prominent in the world today... well, we don't really have a prayer. So sit back and watch the show folks..."

The world is in a big mess and Chrissie Hynde is displeased with this less than delightful state of affairs. She rails against animal slaughterers, against pornographers, against Ronald Reagan with all the venom she can muster (quite a lot). And this is heartening, for when we sit down to start this interview an hour ago she wasn't saying too much at all. Apart from "I don't think I'm interesting enough to substantiate being interviewed" and "I find this such an odd situation sitting here talking about myself like I'm so interesting. It just makes me feel like a real..."

Do not be deceived, viewers. Sir Christopher Hynde is pretty engaging once she gets going. Really rather stormy, in fact, and her tirades are peppered with words of an unprintable nature – hardly the sort of thing you expect from a 35 year old mother of two, but we'll get to all that later...

Chrissie Hynde, an American from Akron, Ohio, came to London in the '70s and she's lived here ever since. In 1978, just as punk was running out of steam, she formed this rather marvellous '60s-pop-inspired group The Pretenders and had her first hit the following year with "Stop Your Sobbing". Since then there have been more hits ("Brass In Pocket", "Talk Of The Town", "I Go To Sleep"), numerous personnel changes (the Pretenders' original bass player Pete Farndon and guitarist James Honeyman Scott both died from drug related problems within months of each other in 1982 and 1983), Chrissie Hynde has had one baby by Ray Davies ('80s pop star with The Kinks) and another by Simple Minds' Jim Kerr whom she married in 1984. The kids are "pretty hip and groovy but I don't really want to talk about them because they've got nothing to do with it". In eight years The Pretenders have made three LPs and there's a fourth, "Get Close", on the way. Not the most "prolific" artiste in the universe, Chrissie Hynde, is she? No, she doesn't give a damn – "Every two or three years is fine with me. I don't think anyone wants more than that. The way I pace myself, I'm almost happily unemployed..."

Back in the early days of The Pretenders, Chrissie Hynde was thought to be the wild woman of rock or something. She had quite a reputation for bad behaviour on the town – "Yeah, people expected me to be obnoxious so I could do anything I wanted. That was lucky." But now she's a mother and, not to put too fine a point on it, getting on a bit, has she, I wonder, "mellowed" or is she still a firebrand?

"What's that?" she cackles, "Something you put on cows?" No, a "firebrand" as in a "wild person"...

"I had breakfast with Sean Penn last week and I was hoping I'd run into Madonna so I could say 'Well, when I was talking to your husband over breakfast...'"

"In what ways wild? You mean sexually? What have you been hearing?"

"Awkward, isn't she?" "No, I must have mellowed," she says more helpfully. "At my age, just the fact that I'm still alive proves I must have mellowed out because people don't carry on that wild and get away with it too long. But I've had a couple of kids and that really slows you down. Being a mother is like a full time occupation..."

I think both of us have forgotten what the question was by now, so we move swiftly on to the topic of The Pretenders' "image" – or lack of it. Back in those old days they always looked so haggard and drawn in photos, as if they'd just been dragged out of bed and they probably had... "We never were the most glamorous bunch of guys. Right from the start with the original band, none of us were like the greatest posers in the world and photo sessions were usually a bit of a balls up and we looked like we were about to throw up or something. And videos were even worse – we've done some pretty rotten videos – but I always thought that the charm of the band was that we looked pretty ugly. Particularly in this modern day and age when everybody's trying to look better and glossier all the time, it's nice to have a couple of ups in there to relate to, you know..."

Y&E B&W'S HER W&P!

Jim Kerr and a mother of two, but Chrissie Hynde of The Pretenders is still a "firebrand".

Interesting observation: Chrissie Hynde is America remotely ugly. In America where she sells far more records than she does here (especially since The Pretenders' "stealing" Live Aid performance), she's even considered something of a sex symbol. And she's so utterly famous over there that she gets to hob nob with the even more famous.

Like — gasp! — John McEnroe! "He used to come to our gigs. He's a big rock'n'roll fan and he plays the guitar — well, he's getting better — he plays a good solo, better than I can. I tried to show him but he's got a really stiff wrist so I had to grab his arm and shake it real, real hard, saying 'Come on, get your wrist loose, you'll never play with a wrist like that'" and the people with him were horrified. Because, apparently, his wrist has something to do with the way he plays tennis. So I don't know if I had anything to do with his sporting decline. . . .

Like — gasp! — the so-called "poison" Penns! "I had breakfast by accident with Sean last week and I was hoping that I'd have a chance to run into Madonna a day or two later so I could say 'Well, when I was talking to your hus-band over break-fast . . ." Ha ha. But I didn't meet her so I couldn't get that in. . . .

Drat. "Madonna's a real cool cat. You can be walking through Soho in the evening and someone's just made some obscene remark and all of a sudden you hear 'get into the groooooooove' and you think 'hey, life's pretty cool after all' . . ."

"If you ask most people if they'd rather be shot in the back of the head or the front of the face, they will choose the back of the head because they don't want to see it coming."

Like — gasp! — Jim Kerr. Oh, that's her husband and she doesn't hob nob with him all that often as a matter of fact because they're both always so busy that they only get to see one another every couple of months or so. She doesn't particularly want to talk about him anyway, except for a brief interlude about getting married in New York and then driving around Central Park in a horse-drawn buggy afterwards. . . . "I'd like to see people use horses on the street more. I think it's a good way to get around town. When I was a school girl I had a little pack of friends and we used to neigh and jump and things. It was kind of odd but I haven't pretended to be a horse since I was about eight. I got over it. . . ."

So, anyway, now we get to the bit where Chrissie Hynde says "I wouldn't mind lending myself to causes" and I say "What kind of causes? You mean like Live Aid?" and she says. . . .

"I don't know if anybody could stomach any more Live Aid type of stuff. No, I'd just like to see someone push this revolution along a little bit. I'm hell bent on stopping animal slaughter and that sort of stuff. It would be nice to think people could stop destroying and wrecking my world and stop putting poison in the air and the water and just generally wrecking the environment that I live in and, you know, pornography and all that stuff and all that violent-related sort of crap. It would be really cool to see people start to walk into newspapers and just take all the smut magazines off the racks and throw them in the street. God knows, I've threatened the guys across the road in my newsgroup hundreds of times. Every time I walk in I say 'This is a bust! When are you going to get that smut off the shelves?' and I always wait until there's a shop full of people and really embarrass them. But I'm not very brave or I'd go in and set it on fire — but then everyone just thinks you're being a fanatic."

"Remember in this country when they first introduced the twenty penny coin and it was on the front cover of all the newspapers: 'We Don't Want It!' The English are petty, there's no question. That's alright but it's not alright when your petty-mindedness just allows you to sink into an ignorant muzz. If that's really where you're focussed all the time, then they can be slaughtering animals right, left and centre and screwing up the environment and you're not going to even notice, let alone do anything about it. You're going to keep buying soap that's made out of animal fats and never think about it because you're too worried about what's going to happen on EastEnders tonight. That's where most of the people are at and that kinda pisses me off. If you ask most people if they'd rather be shot in the back of the head or the front of the face, they will choose the back of the head because they don't want to see it coming. You can walk around in a haze and be appalled by the fact that you're going to get a new car next month or that you might get laid this weekend and you can keep perpetrating your existence on these petty little gratifications and keep your eyes closed for the next few years and then. . . . BANG!"

"Bang" symbolising a revolution or some catastrophic nuclear incident. It's coming, definitely, says Chrissie. . . .

"I do think that there's something in the air because we've got nuclear arms all over the place and the Arabs are collecting them up left, right and centre and those guys are not just whistling Dixie. You don't insult those guys and get away with it. Because in Afghanistan if two guys have a fight with each other they meet in the graveyard and one of them walks out in the morning. That's the way they deal with insults in those countries. And Ronald, Ron-aid, seems to think he can teach them a lesson but it's been a couple of months since he bombed Libya and in America they all say 'Well, that's it. Rarnie showed 'em'. Ha! Let's give it five or six years. Then we'll see. . . ."

But what can a poor old rock'n'roll singer do to clear up the ills and woes of the world? Not much, Chrissie agrees, but at least you can try. . . .

"It's much easier if everyone just sticks their head in a bin and drinks beer and rocks out to Zodiac Mindwarp but anyone who is in the public eye has a certain amount of responsibility, really, because they do influence other people so you should be a little bit responsible. That's only fair play."

Chrissie does a "little bit" on her new LP with a song called "How Much Did You Get For Your Soul?" — a scathing attack on sell-out posters. . . .

"That is about the act of doing endorsements for money and in the song I just kind of use the black community in America — Whitney Houston, Michael Jackson, Lionel Richie or whatever his name is, Aretha Franklin's doing Amoco gasoline adverts, Tina Turner's doing a Pepsi ad — they're all doing these ads. And the point is those guys are all getting 15 million dollars to influence the young black kids and encourage them to drink something that's not good for them. You're just a flaming arsehole to encourage anyone to do something that really isn't good for them. And people might say 'Well, Coke's not that bad — you drink it,' but the point is it's one thing to do something and it's something else to advertise it. Advertising is crap. And these guys are endorsing these stupid products — any consumer product is obviously going to be hurting somebody if it's only there for sense gratification."

"The reason there's all these people starving — two thirds of the world — is because of big companies like Pepsi Cola. It's not the only reason, but it all adds up. So these guys who were in shackles for 200 years. . . . you know, go back and pick cotton on the plantation, pal, because that's exactly what they're doing, they're still being exploited by the white man to sell his goods. All these musicians are doing adverts and jingles for Burger Chef and every other bullshit product there is. It's sell, sell, sell. Well, you don't take 15 million bucks to do a Pepsi advert around ME, buddy boy? That's queer, man, that's NAFF!"

Chrissie Hynde, verging on middle age though she may be, is still a firebrand. Interesting observation: she makes good records, too. . . .

BILLY IDOL

: AN ENGLISHMAN ABOARD

Where does the man with the biggest sneer in rock'n'roll go for his summer hols? The Caribbean? St. Tropez? Los Angeles? No – Majorca, that's where. Tom Hibbert follows Billy Idol there and finds him lying on a pink li-lo with his mum and dad. . .

Tuesday evening in Majorca. I am standing in the bar of my Palma Nova hotel when I am approached by a genteel, respectable-looking couple in middle age with glowing sun tans. With them is a non-genteel, non-respectable-looking young man. He too has a glowing sun tan topped with a crop of blood spiked-up hair. He wears a dark shirt open to the midriff and around his neck he wears a jumbo metal cross. On his arm there's a tattoo of a woman with the wildest hair ever seen. The young man is none other than Billy "Sir William" Idol and the couple at his side are his parents, Joan and Bill Broad. Can this be? The rock 'n' roll "rebel", known for his menacing sneer and extravagant behaviour, on holiday in Majorca? With his mum and dad? Yes, it is true. Joan and Bill own a holiday apartment just around the corner overlooking the Mediterranean and Billy "wild man of rock" Idol has joined them for a few weeks sunbathing while he awaits the release of his first LP in absolutely ages, "Whiplash Smile".

As we all saunter down a dusty track to a local restaurant, Billy tells me what a lark it is being in Majorca – apart from a spot of bother in a club the other evening. "I went to this place with Stevie Stevens (Billy's guitarist who yoned the Broads in Palma Nova over the weekend) and they tried to throw us out." Why? "The guy behind the bar got the idea that I was trying to nick the glasses." And was he? Billy's only reply is a long, throaty cackle. He cackles quite a lot, does Billy. Does an awful lot of smiling, too. The famous sneer, it seems, is reserved strictly for photographs and performances.

Another illusion is rudely shattered as we sit down to dine. Billy Idol, who I had down as a raw steak and potatoes man, does not – gasp! – eat meat! (Though "it's not because of animals – I mean, I wear leather all the time.") And when he was at university, he once cooked a nut outlet for twelve people!! Whatever next?

We tuck into the sole mienstre and Bill Broad chatters to me about his son's new LP. He is well-spoken, Mr Broad (i.e. be's a bit of a toff) and one can hardly imagine him hanging out in New York studios listening to "rough mixes" of rock music albums. But that's just what he's been doing recently and he's got all his studio terminology spot on as well. "The problem Billy had was finding the right musicians. These drummers think it is terribly easy to play Billy's music because Billy likes to keep it simple, but it really isn't, you see," he says. "Huey Lewis was making his single in the same studio and Billy was rather rude about it but I could tell the mix was just right and I said, 'you know, Billy, this Huey Lewis song will be a hit'." Bill Broad senior was right, of course.

It seems rather extraordinary that Mr Broad should be taking such a keen interest in his son's career and even helping him to sort out his managerial problems. For previously one had been led to believe that the Broads, father and son, did not enjoy the warmest of family relationships. In fact, the last time Billy spoke to Smash Hits he ranted on in a somewhat resentful fashion about his dad. "He gave me hell when I wanted to be in a rock and roll band," he said at the time, "I want to give him hell for the fact that he didn't believe me!" And over the dinner table, the equally well-spoken Joan Broad confirms that things used to be pretty rocky between her husband and son. "Bill refused to talk to Billy for two years when he was taking his A-levels," she says. "He did not approve of Billy's interests." But the old wounds have healed, presumably, because now you couldn't find a matter par than this too-hire company director and this snarling rock and roll "maniac" Maniac? Billy cackles: "It was Smash Hits that had the cover headline 'Is Billy Idol – Is He Bonkers?' Was that you? Yes? Great! Ha ha. I loved that! Is Billy bonkers? Ha ha ha!"

The wine flows, Bill Broad delivers a rather stern warning that if Billy has much more he'll be good for nothing in the morning and we stroll back along the dusty track, Billy locked arm in arm with his mum, nattering together sweetly. "Isn't this great?" says Billy. "Ha ha ha." And then he goes to bed.

BILLY IDOL: AN ENGLISHMAN ABROAD

Wednesday morning in Majorca. Billy Idol is stretched out on the beach on a pink flo, jamming up the rays. Next to him on a blue flo, sunbathing topos, as is the fashion, is his mum. And next to her, the husband. The Broads on a totally orthodox British holiday, being offered nasty items of jewellery by Spanish beach sellers and shooting them away and then going for a brisk dip in the ocean. What could be more, um... unremarkable?

Some time later, Billy is sitting at a table outside the beach cafe in his black swimming trunks (which he had to buy here because he left his others in New York; oh, well - 600 petasas - a snip!) and a punkily-torn t-shirt, sipping Coca Cola. This is the "interview", in which Billy tries to convince me that "Whiplash Smile" is a monumentally brilliant LP even though I don't need convincing.

So we talk about his parents. "When I joined Generation X it was a break from what my parents wished me to do. I went to university for a year and I left to become a punk rocker and my dad saw that as some weird turnaround. My dad runs a tool hire business and I did get alienated from those things but now I'm in a position to show them why. The funny thing is that my parents have seen much more Generation X gigs than they've seen Billy Idol ones, so for them it was always the worst of me. But now I'm rediscovering them and they're rediscovering me and it's a great time. They're 60 and I'm 30 and I'm finding out who my dad is again. He's a much bigger man than I thought."

We talk about his "wild man of rock" image. "I want to be a normal person but that's pretty hard in the States where they've got this whole idea that life doesn't exist unless you're being seen all the time. They had this rumour in the New York Post one week about me being dead - and the next week it they had to put in that I wasn't definitely dead. It went from dying of AIDS to having my blood changed somewhere. And I was at home all the time. People wanted to put out these rumours that I was on a drug binge but I was on a music binge. I can be more than just the old Rebel Yell with a sweater who wiggles his hips a bit and then poses off. I want to show people that I'm not just a rock and roll thing, I'm a human being. They walk around outside my gigs with placards saying 'Billy Idol is A Satanist' and 'Billy Idol is The Next Anti-Christ', but my lyrics sport love and beauty and gorgeousness. People would rather read about the wild man of rock but music isn't always crazy and wild, it's satisfying and gorgeous and luscious and a whole wellvedness that makes you feel connected..."

We me, about England. "I've spent a little more time in England recently and I saw Jan Botham score the old 367th wicket and I was like fist in the air screaming 'fantastic!'. And then we lost the Test so I was crying into my beer. That must freak everyone out: 'He likes cricket? He must be crazy!' Ha ha. But I miss a lot of English things like that. And they have the best hair spray..."

We talk about America. "I don't see myself as English or American because I lived in the States when I was very young. When I was about three years old we moved to Long Island and Elvis was on the radio and it was all Walt Disney and huge fins on cars and colours and drive-ins. My dad was pursuing the American dream but he didn't find it so he came back home. But I still have this dream another one saying 'Billy Idol - Live Long And Prosper'. Ha ha ha..."

We talk about Sigur "Sigur" Spunk. "I was going to buy advertising space on that for 'Whiplash Smile' (adopts deep American advertising-type drawl). 'Billy Idol, former Generation X, makes a neeeeeew al-buuuuuuuum. Ha ha. I thought that would have been dead funny. But I don't need to slag off Sigur Sigur Spunk. Big George once called me a head without a brain and John Lydon always called me the Perry Como of punk, but so what? Ha ha ha. I don't want to put ▼ Sir William of Idol in all his "glory".

▼ Joan Broad (Billy's mum), Sir William and some old bloke who sells "trinkets"

▼ William Broad Senior (i.e. Billy's dad).

about America. It is a magical place..."

We talk about tattoos. "On the Rebel Yell tour there were all these meacases who had their bodies covered in tattoos like mine. The worst thing was one person had a Generation X tattoo and he'd had to put "R.I.P." underneath it so I felt really bad about that. Let's hope he gets anyone down. I'm a groover like Marc Bolan. I'm the Ronald Biggs of rock'n'roll. Look at me, sitting here on the Costa Del Crime. Ha ha ha..."

And we ask the inevitable question that we asked once before: Billy Idol - Is He Bonkers? "The thing about Billy Idol is... you're right. He IS bonkers - but he's bonkers about music!..."

Wednesday evening in Majorca. Mr and Mrs Broad had booked the table for 7.30 when we were all to dine with Mr and Mrs Broad's friends Bill (yet another one) and Hazel, who are permanent Majorcan residents (and very charming too; Hazel's favourite possession in the whole world, Joan Broad was telling me last night, is her signed copy of "Rebel Yell"!! Well!) Anyway, the table was booked for 7.30 but due to some extended trundling about the island looking for suitable locations in which to snap Billy and his famously blue eyes, we arrive rather late. Bill Broad is fuming and gives me a severe ticking off about "unprofessional conduct". Rather alarming. Billy arrives even later and doesn't get ticked off at all. It's jolly well not fair. Then just one bit of his sole mesurier (again!) and Billy fwisks off with his dad to the nearby airport where they are going to pick up Billy's new girlfriend Anita (a budding postpress who was until recently in a group called The Cherry Bombz - or, as Mr Broad puts it, the Cherry Bums). In their absence, Mrs Broad makes yet another startling revelation about her "waysward" son. When Billy was about 11, he used to - gasp! - caddy for his father, carting his clubs about the golf course for 50 pence a time! And "he was really rather good at it". Gosh.

The airport party returns. Anita greets the assembled company, sits herself next to Billy and the two of them proceed to spoon geek hectorially - tongue sarmies, the whole shooting match - oblivious to the polite conversation around them. What a kiss up! I wouldn't do that in front of my parents, would you?

Thursday morning in Majorca. Mrs Broad has just been for another brisk splash in the sea and is drying herself off on the beach. She is alone. Bill has gone off for a round of golf and goodness knows when Billy and Anita will be up. "Do you know," says Joan Broad. "They were so pleased to see one another that they stayed up with their videos until five o'clock and they were rather noisy. And they finished off all the vodka and all the brandy and all the wine. They didn't touch the whiskey, though, which is probably just a good thing..." Blimey! But wait! Who is this loping through the sand towards us looking as chipper as anything? It is Sir William!

"Ello. Ha ha ha. We went swimming in the sea at three o'clock in the morning with our clothes on. I got me leather trousers all wet..."

Now, that's a bit more "rock'n'roll" isn't it? But hang on... "Anyway, it's been great meeting you, chief, but we've got to go now. Lunch at the golf club..."

Lunch at the golf club? Whatever, whatever next? And with that we bid farewell to this sunny isle and the family Broad...

IT'S NOTORIOUS

FELT. . .

... are completely brilliant
(according to Sylvia Patterson, anyway).

● Never before in the history of the lush tartan blanket that is popular music has a group ever been so deserved of the supreme accolade "quite good" as Felt. It's true. They come from Birmingham, there's four of them and their singer — a man with the most wobblingly splendid voice in the entire solar system — is called Lawrence. So. Snuggle up and listen awhile as Lawrence "explains" why he and his band are utter utter geni.

He's a hermit!

— "Yeah," he peeps in his extremely slow Birmingham drawl, "I'm well on my way to being a hermit. I live all by myself in a flat in Birmingham, and I've got no friends, y' see."

He's a recluse!

— "I'm hardly out, yeah. I'm as I citty got one present for my birthday, precisely nothing. People care about you less and less as you get older."

He's a poet!

— "I just like using images, that's all. There's nothing wrong with calling a song "Sunlight Bathed in Golden Glow" or something like that. It's just language that's out of time, y' see — it doesn't fit in with the way other people use words in songs today. It's much more interesting if a song's got a good title. I don't know where I get it from. . . I don't try. I think it comes from my subconscious. I used to write some brilliant poems when I was at school — I was probably better at it. Help really. I'd never have them published though. . . never. . . I just. . . wouldn't (blush). I'm. . . serious."

They're ahead of their time!

— "I think we're a band for future generations, really. Our songs are probably too weird for people right now. . . it's a sad fact."

They're not very famous in the least!

— "We just can't break through. . . I don't know why. (Looks despondent.) The songs stand up, they do. It's not as if we're being hard on the listener's ear. . . everything we do is total body. You can turn it if we're. . . obscure easy listening! Yeah, that's all."

He was almost a dentist once!

— "If I'd listened to my mother I'd be making false teeth right now. But I don't like having things forced upon you. People should just do what they want to do. I really believe that, especially young people. If you want to do something, just do it — trust in yourself and just do it."

He can't do anything properly!

— "I can't, it's true. Everything that I do I don't do properly. Er. . . er, I can't even give you an example properly! Er. . . I can't play the guitar properly. . . I can't sing properly. And in life, too, I can't do anything properly. . . I'm a dabbler, y' see, a dabbler in life. . . and. . . I don't know how properly."

Their new LP "Forever Breathes The Lonely Word" is completely brilliant!

— "It's quite good, yeah. . . it won't make us famous though — if just won't."

He's never been in love!

— "I've never been in love."

He's a bit strange!

— "I'm not normal. I don't ever want to be normal."

He's a bit of a sad character!

— "I always end up being sad when I'm talking to people. . . I don't know why, really. . . it just sort of comes out that way."

He's an extremely nice bloke and all-round supremely wondrous human being!

— "It's true. . .

FALCO The Sound of Music

● "The Sound Of Musik". Falco brings it all back, doesn't it? Julie Andrews swanning over the Alps singing her little heart out, "I'll Be Home Again". That charming Von Trapp family. All those nuns. Could it be that Falco has written this new single as a tribute to that moving cinematic masterpiece?

"Definitely not!" barks Falco. Oh, actually it turns out that Falco is not a great admirer of the film The Sound Of Music, even though it was set in his native Austria.

"Mmm, I think it is a little bit tacky," is how he dismisses it. Ask him what his favourite song from the film is and he "umms" and "ahs" and confesses that he can't remember a single song from it. Ask him what he thought of Julie Andrews' stunning performance as the singing nun and he gets a bit confused and has to admit that he doesn't even know who Julie Andrews is! "Is that her name? I did not know it. . ."

The odd Mr Falco is in Basle in Switzerland today to do a TV show, and he's a bit worn out from dashing all over Europe all the time promoting his new single. "I'm feeling a bit stressed," he complains.

Tomorrow he's got to be in Zurich and the day after that he'll be zipping off to Vienna to play a concert in support of the anti-nuclear movement which is something that Falco feels very strongly about.

"As long as there is sun and wind and water then we don't need nuclear power," he announces. "The risk is too great. It will be a catastrophe. You cannot trust our governments.

I don't believe that they tell us the truth about it. . ."

Which - in a roundabout way - is what the single "The Sound Of Musik" is really about. "There's a line in the song which I think is very important," Falco explains. "Her Präsident, wir kennen eine Sprache/diese Sprache, die heißt Musik." "My President, we know one language and this language is music." "The politicians' language is lies. . . our language is music."

And, more particularly, the single is an attack on the newly elected president of Austria, Kurt Waldheim. (Waldheim came to power there earlier this year despite the fact that he had been a member of Hitler's SS and despite rumours that he had been involved in certain war crimes.) Falco is not a particularly big fan of his, it seems. The first verse is actually a bit of wordplay on Waldheim's name. "Es beginnt in einem Wald. . . und es endet doch da Heim" means it begins in "wood" and ends at "home" and "wood-home" in German is Wald-heim. (????) "It's a bit of a puzzle, you see," explains Falco. And it actually goes on to make some pretty sarcastic comments about Waldheim having such a "clean soul", i.e. Falco thinks he's lied about his Nazi past to get elected.

"I've had enough of all that lying," he raises his voice. "All that cover up, all that bloody stuff, man!"

So, it all turns out to be a great deal more serious than nuns swanning across mountain tops. . .

If you'll be my bodyguard
I can be your long lost pal
I can call you Betty
And Betty when you call me
You can call me Al

A man walks down the street
He says why am I short of attention
Got a short little span of attention
And wo my nights are so long
Where's my wife and family
What if I die here
Who'll be my role model
Now that my role model is gone gone
He ducked back down the alley
With some roly poly lina hat-faced girl all along along
There were incidents and accidents
There were hints and allegations

Craft Corner: How to construct . . .

The Smash Hits Book Of Personal Files.

in 10 "easy"-to-follow (well, quite) steps.

1: Pluck out the staples (carefully) and take out the Personal File pages.

2: Fold the Personal File pages in half along the "centrefold".

3: Fold in half again, along the lina.

4: Sniiiiip! Cut along the folded edge at the top to make an eight-page booklet.

5: Slip the booklet snugly into the v. attractive and "trandy" cardboard thingie stuck on the cover of Smash Hits.

6: Hold your breath for quite a long time (i.e. until 22 October) when Part 2 of the booklet comes a-brimming out of the very next issue of Smash Hits.

7: Hold your breath for an even longer time (i.e. until 5 November) when a) it's "bonfire" night and b) Smash Hits pilks through your letter-box once again, containing the third and final part of the Personal File booklet (unless the cat's eaten it).

8: Tuck Parts 2 and 3 into the cardboard cover along with Part 1, and staple or tie the whole lot together (unless, of course, you prefer the "loose-leaf" affect).

9: You are now the proud possessor of a completely brilliant booklet containing 24 Personal File pages. Sit back, read and "enjoy".

PAL WAALKER

(A-HA)

B NAME: Pal Waalker
BORN: September 6, 1961 in Oslo, Norway.
HEIGHT: 182cm
BROTHERS AND SISTERS: An older sister Tongie, 26. She's studying English, communication and psychology. She's always been the one who backed me up. My parents just thought I was a nice hobby.

WHAT DO YOUR PARENTS DO? My father is a medical research scientist, my mother's in administration.

DO YOU HAVE A NICKNAME AT SCHOOL? Popeye. First Pope then Popey. Dad let me much spruce? Vary little. It must have been because I'm so strong!

PREVIOUS JOBS: My first job was putting pills into boxes, then I worked on a camp site, scrubbing floors in factories and selling tickets on the subway. I lost most of the jobs for not being responsible.

PREVIOUS BANDS: Mags and I were neighbours from the age of ten so we were always in there together, competing to write the best songs, play the fastest guitar. His first band had a really stupid name, Black Slapfish. Mine was Black Day. Then we had Spidar Empire. Brodags.

FIRST CRUSH: Yeah, that was my teacher. We were very pretty teachers in Norway. This one sort of got me into drawing and I spent lots of summer holidays with her - between about 12 and 18. I think the whole class had a crush on her. I got over it but I actually spoke to her the other day because she sent me a letter.

FIRST KISS: Actually, the first girl I dated was Mags' girlfriend and the first kiss I got was when she wanted him back and she used me to get him back. She gave me the kiss when he was looking. That was, like, 1984. I was convinced I would die a virgin. The Bridges album is actually about my first real kiss, about how at last I fell like a member of the human race, and about my disappointment when I realised how little she was involved - but wow something in me had been awakened anyway.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN ANY SOPPY LOVE SONGS? Well, my contributions to "Hunting High

And Low" were all about really being in love for the first time in my life. They're very romantic but also a little classic. I lived in England, she lived in Norway so there was always the underlying fear that I could never last. All the songs on the album were written in an attempt to secure a place in her heart for me. I wanted to put so much of myself into her that she couldn't live without me, I admit I used every musical trick in the book to get her to love me. Every song is a prayer for attention.

HOW WOULD YOU DESCRIBE MORTEN AND MAGS? Morten is totally different from me. When we first came to London together, he burned all my clothes and dressed me up from head to toe. I didn't care much about clothes, whereas he's very interested in them. He has given me self-confidence, encourages me to talk to people, not to be afraid and to use the abilities I have. Mags is impulsive. Dashes around. Throughout the years I've often wondered, is he a complete fool or a genius? Has he got talent or hasn't he? He can say things which are really dumb, but then he'll suddenly switch on, put things in their place and come up with an idea that we've all been lumbering for. I think he's both a fool and a genius.

HAVE YOU EVER WORN FLARETS? Yes - when I was at school, I went through a fad phase. I wore wide bell-bottoms, grew my hair long and hung up Jimi Hendrix posters!

ARE YOU SHY? I like to keep in the background. There are only certain kinds of people I can talk to feel secure with. In any case, I'm certainly not the pop star type. I lack some of the characteristics necessary in this business, like enjoying publicity stunts. What's important to me is my creativity, musical ambitions, I'm afraid of mediocrity.

DO YOU THINK A-HA COULD BECOME AS FAMOUS AS THE BEATLES? Maybe. After all, emotions are true, so why hold back on them?

WHAT MAKES YOU REALLY ANGRY? Because we travel so much stupid things like the hotel hasn't been booked, or there's no car waiting for you. You get very tired and so these small things really get you.

WHOSE HOME PHONE NUMBER WOULD YOU LIKE TO HAVE? I don't know. I don't think I would have done. I wouldn't answer? How about the author Eliza Carnett? I'd just buy him a beer or something.

WHAT'S YOUR MOST TREASURED POSSESSION? My family.

IF YOU COULD CHANGE ONE THING ABOUT YOURSELF WHAT WOULD IT BE? You can walk down the streets without people hassling you too much. People are a bit reserved and they pretend they haven't seen you until you've passed. But if you turn round you'll see the whole street looking at you.

WHAT'S THE WORST THING ABOUT BEING FAMOUS? We think it's stupid. If you try to protect your own bands. When we used to tell people we were from Norway they just laughed. I'm sure it's a very funny bit of stupid, I also don't like the writers and the producers - they're so cocky.

DO YOU HAVE ANY PETS? No, just Mags and Morten. Actually, when we came to England in the second year we had a really scruffy one-roomed flat and we caught a mouse which we had as a pet for three months.

DO YOU THINK YOU'RE GOOD LOOKING? Not really but I think I can take it.

JOHNNY AND THE SEIF-ABUSERS

(SIMPLE MINDS)

B NAME: James Kerr.
BORN: July 9, 1952
HEIGHT: 5' 10"

PREVIOUS GROUPS: Johnny And The Self-Abusers
FIRST CONCERT: Genesis in Glasgow. Peter Gabriel was in the band then it was brilliant.

WHAT'S THE WORST JOB YOU'VE EVER HAD? I remember I had to go to an interview for the Civil Service in Glasgow because the dotle wouldn't give me any more money. There were over 30 people trying for the job and I tried my hardest to fail. I went in like a real muck, completely dishevelled, and put on the whole act like I was completely untalented. A week later they wrote back to me and said "You were great. You've got the job." And the job was a refusal collector. Luckily at that time there was a lot of interest in the band and we got a deal - otherwise I don't know what I would have done.

WHERE DO YOU LIVE? Scotland - in a small fishing town. I think they say "Home is Where The Heart Is". When I'm at home I like to get back to nature and walk around.

HAVE YOU EVER WORN A KILT? No, but Mick McNeill our keyboard player has one and wears it frequently. He wears it in bad! Now you're going to ask me what he wears under it.

HAVE YOU GOT ANY HOBBIES? Only movies. I value seeing movies and actors more than I value listening to albums or other bands. I love people like Robert De Niro. When people ask me about my influences, I can't talk about musical ones unless I mention films as well.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO BECOME AN "ACTOR" LIKE DAVID BOWIE? Well I was very interested before I joined the band and making videos is bad enough! Besides, you get all these scummy people with a Top 10 album and suddenly they want to be a movie star. And they continually blow it, left, right and centre. I just think it's kind of embarrassing.

DO YOU LIKE BEING MARRIED? I love friendship and it's great to have not only a friend but something much, much more. It's brilliant! Am I in love? Yeah, very much so.

HAVE YOU CHANGED NOW YOU'VE GOT A BABY DAUGHTER? I think I've always been conscious of being part of a family, and perhaps I'm a bit more conscious of it now, but to me it's all one family, the family I came from and the family I'm now in. I guess it has affected me. I was reading an interview in an American magazine, it was two or three years old and it was with the wife of the Polish Solidarity leader Lech Walesa at the time when he had been taken into captivity. And reading it made me think about women in general, the wives of the men as well - and I began to think what it would be like for me if for some reason I couldn't see my daughter.

And I would never have thought about that the time last year! It inspired me to write "All The Things She Said".

WHY DO YOU GET SO FAT? I think I had a year off and I enjoyed myself. After two weeks on the road it came all in buckets - a stone and a half. It's due to pizza in New York. Ever had a pizza from New York? You'd be fat as well!

WHY DO YOU LIKE U2 SO MUCH? I think we share a vision and we share a clumsiness as well, and we share the same kind of blood. When I first saw U2 on TV, their expressions looked like the ones I see on stage when I looked around me. I really, really admire them and we've become friends. But I think there's also a big difference between us - I think our music has a sort of ferocity that theirs lacks and personally I'm really glad about that.

HAVE YOU HAD ANY STRANGE THINGS THROWN AT YOU ON STAGE? In America we got a lot of bricks thrown on stage. It's kind of weird. I just wonder how they get them off.

ARE YOU A DREAMER? Yeah. There's a line in the film Fiddlers' Drift. "Only dreamers can conquer mountains. I thought that was great. Dreamers have got a bad reputation - people say 'he's a dreamer, he'll never do anything'. You need courage to dream.

WHAT DO YOU WEAR IN BED? Nothing!

NEIL TARRANT

(PET SHOP BOYS)

■ NAME: Neil Francis Tennant
BORN: July 10, 1954 in North Shields, Tyne and Wear, England
HEIGHT: 5' 11"

FIRST GROUP: Duvet
FIRST CRUSH: A girl called Frances MacDonald whom I was at primary school. We used to kiss in the book cupboard – we got caught, but then I think that was half the point. Strangely enough actually had a dream about her and her twin sister last night and about all my old friends.

DREAM JOBS: My first job was a courier assistant in Ladbrokes the bookmakers every Saturday for about a year. I also had a summer job for two years in the British Museum's manuscript department – everyone else seemed to get a horrible job in a factory but I didn't want a job where I got my hands dirty. I've never had one and I hope it stays that way. Then I worked as London editor of Melville comics for two years – I had to anglosoph the spellings, put bikinis on uncensored breasts and write the "Duff's Bulletin" on seven weekdays. After that I worked in publishing as an editor and then as assistant editor on Smash hits. That was the best job I've ever had apart from this one. Actually, I'm not sure I was a better than this one – the hours are much longer and it's a bit of a strain.

WHICH MARVEL COMIC CHARACTER WOULD YOU MOST LIKE TO BE? Mr Fantastic, because I'd like to be able to stretch every part of my body. Which parts in particular? I'll leave that to your imagination.

WHAT WERE YOU IN A PREVIOUS LIFE? I hope I was the Pope in the 16th century when I used to poison people and wear fantastic clothes. When I was a little boy I always wanted to be the Pope because I thought it would be glamorous. I still would – you could get Michelangelo to paint your living room, make war with France or excommunicate a few people if you got bored. Apart from that, though I was brought up a Catholic, I'm not really religious.

HAVE YOU EVER WORN A DRESS? Yes, when I was 13, in the school play HMS Pinafore by Gilbert and Sullivan. I was soprano so I played the woman, Cousin Hilda, who had a short and a long dress and sang a couple of songs.

ARE YOU POSH? No. I come from an ordinary middle class family and I didn't go to a posh school. But though I come from Newcastle I've only ever had a bit of a Geordie accent and on my first day at St. Cuthberts Grammar School everyone else had really strong ones and they called me "posha". I was a bit upset.

WERE YOU EVER BEATEN UP AT SCHOOL? No, though someone threw a sandal at me once. After I left I was hit by a skinhead once and I also got mugged in Paris about 10 years ago. I was coming out of the metro with this girl and these two bikies in leather jackets pulled knives on us. They were trying to get her purse and eventually she gave it to them. They ran off and she burst into tears.

WHO WOULD YOU MOST LIKE TO BE STUCK IN A LIFT WITH: A) FREDDIE MERCURY; B) PRINCESS DI; C) BILLY IDOL; D) PAUL WELLS?

A) FREDDIE MERCURY: I would have a chat with Princess Di about whether she deserves the ludicrous amount of money she gets – I'm sure we'd discuss she doesn't. And I could tell her she's a Gloriana Ringer. Billy Idol would be good – he'd just rant on about rock'n'roll but he's probably my favourite pop star. Paul Wells would be the best though – I used to enjoy interviewing him. He's got very strong opinions and likes slagging people off. I suppose he'd probably slag me off.

WHO WAS THE FIRST PERSON YOU EVER KISSED? It was a girl called Pauline Hadaway at this party. She was going out with my best friend – well, she was up until that night, ha ha.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN GOD? As a little boy I used to be very religious but now officially I don't believe in God. But in the middle of the night when it's dark, I feel... I don't know, supernatural, I suppose. I can still say in my own padre's et fieri et spiritus sanctum etc. etc. etc.

ARE YOU "COOL" (HEM HEM)? Uncool really, in many ways. At the moment I'm a bit concerned that the top I'm wearing doesn't go with this shirt I'm wearing. Whereas Chris wouldn't wear this unless he knew it was right. He always buys the "right" everything – I'm a bit sloppy about that.

DO YOU HAVE A RECURRING DREAM? I have this dream where I'm stuck in a lift and it's going up quite fast and getting smaller and smaller so that I'm getting squashed. It's horrible. I'm quite claustrophobic and I hate lifts anyway – if they're really full I refuse to go in them.

WHAT'S THE MAIN DIFFERENCE BETWEEN WRITING ABOUT A POP AND DOING IT? When you're doing it, you have to look presentable. That's the real strain. You have to have a shave and everything.

ARE YOU GOING TO RETIRE SOON? We're not exactly thinking of retiring, but we've got this plan. Everyone thinks it's a joke but actually it's serious.

The Pet Shop Boys will carry on, but we'll stop being the front men. Instead we'll manage the line-up every year or so – suddenly there'll be four 76-year-old boys at the Pet Shop Boys and then the next thing you know they'll have been replaced by two 35-year-old Elton John types. We'll be led up with all by then so we'll just write the music. We'll be able to spend our time doing the nice things like going to bed early. We won't have to have our photograph taken or be asked why we're called the Pet Shop Boys. We can just make the records. And make lots of money.

Robert Smith

(THE CURE)

■ NAME: Robert Smith
BORN: April 21, 1959
HEIGHT: 10'

DO YOU WANT TO GROW UP? In Crawley, in Sussex. I still try to get back there when I can – I've still got my own room and bed and toothbrush there. It's really somewhere to escape to – it's impossible for people to get hold of me there if I don't answer the phone because they're not going to travel 35 miles, are they?

DO YOU OWN A TEDDY BEAR? Yes. It was given to me on the day I was born. It's soaked with tears.
WHAT SCHOOL DID YOU GO TO? St Francis Primary School in Crawley. I must have met Laurence Toulhurst (other original Cure member) then because he lived at the next street and we went to school on the same coach, but he made no impression on me whatsoever. He remembers me, though – not very favourably.

PREVIOUS GROUPS: My first group was when I was 14 – with my brother, some of his friends and my younger sister. It was called The Crowley Good Band – brilliant! Then I had a group called 'the group' because it was the only one at school so we didn't need a name. Then we were called Malaise – sort of a sub-metal punk group. We played at this school concert I organized, pretending there was a jazz group and a choral quartet and selling about 150 skateboards at 25p each. It turned into a riot.

WHY ARE YOU SO SCRUFFY? I don't have much time to be domestic. I've got an iron. I've never used it. My clothes dry like this, they just dry crinkled.

WHEN DO YOU GET UP? Depends what time I go to bed. I never go to bed before three. But sometimes I do get up at 12. When I look to my car devices, I wouldn't get up at all. At least not until it got dark again.

WHAT'S THE FIRST THING YOU DO WHEN YOU GET UP? I wash my face with cold water and then I go and sit down with a cup of coffee and try to remember what I was dreaming about. I used to write them down – these days I usually discuss their more sordid aspects with Mary (his girlfriend).

WHAT'S YOUR WEIRDEST DREAM? I always used to have a dream that I was talking through a window and I could feel all the glass going into me. I had this idea that I'd die on February 14 last year. I'd convinced myself in fact I don't even remember what I did on that day, it was only when I got into bed that night that I realised it hadn't come true. I was quite disappointed in a funny sort of way.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO SWAP PLACES WITH PRINCE CHARLES? No. I would have had to be born into the Royal Family. It's a cushy number compared to a tramp, I suppose, but it has serious disadvantages. I hate any extreme – that's why I wouldn't like to be a pop star. I'd rather be a tramp; you're better in the happy medium. The Royal Family are laughable. I suppose people see them as something that stays stable as everything else changes but I'm sure even the Royal Family are quite fed up being the Royal Family.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT? My views are pretty much the same as one of my earliest childhood heroes, Spike Milligan. I think the idealism involved in nuclear disarmament is laudable but the knowledge to create the bomb is there and there's nothing we can do to take that away from the nuclear disarmament industry. I'm a very naive dreamer. Nevertheless, the Cure are still playing Glasnost because there always has to be a level of public and private awareness otherwise the people in power become too complacent. With the threat of civil unrest lying near the surface I hope that keeps certain political leaders from becoming too extreme, knowing they may not go so far without retaliation from the masses.

WHY DO YOU TELL SO MANY FIBS? I bore myself if I don't make things up. I started doing it because nothing ever happened. When you feel you always expect life to do odd things.

DO YOU LIKE BEING RICH? Yes, I feel I've got too much money. I tend to give it away to charities and things. I have a weird sense of ethics – I don't think anybody should have lots of things. About four or five years ago I threw everything away because I'd started to hoard silk things like beer mats from a good night out. If you've got to run out in the middle of the night because the house is on fire the only thing you should really take is your teddy bear.

WHAT WILL YOU BE DOING WHEN YOU'RE 64? I'll be playing with the angels, I hope, in heaven on earth. If the world's still the same size, it'll probably be the same in every other way. In fact, it'll probably be more boring than now. As there'll be more people around. In fact, it'll be batty people. I think in 40 years the world will be really awful. I'd like it to be 50 degrees all the time, then people can only function skateboards at 25p each. It turned into a riot.

PAUL YOUNG

■ NAME: Paul Anthony Young
BORN: January 17, 1956 in Luton.
HEIGHT: 6' 1"
NICKNAME AT SCHOOL: Dustbin Hoffman. I got that because I used to eat so much I ate with all the skunk kids so I could have all their leftovers.
FIRST RECORD BOUGHT: "Riders On The Storm" by The Doors. I got it in 1971 when it was re-released.
FIRST CONCERT: Slade at Luton Technical College. I found it very weird, first concert of 'n. I must have only been about 14 or 15. The best thing I remember about it was the disco playing "Black Ju Ju" by Alice Cooper. It was great.
WORST JOB: Working in a weedkiller factory over the summer holidays. All we did was package all this toxic dust into cardboard boxes. When I used to get home I was always sick. All the dust used to fly around off over the place and get in our lungs.
FIRST BAND: Mosseneck. They were 'ornie, lazy, The putnam was into Led Zep, that was the usual problem with all our local bands. I was the bass player. I went along with my friend - I did want to be the singer, always have done - but they liked his voice better. So I landed the job of the bass player and I kept it up for four years throughout various bands until 1976 when I became a pro-singer. Then I was in Streetbank, then O-Tops.

PETS: I'm too busy to have pets, unfortunately. But I would like a fruit bat.

FIRST SUIT BOUGHT: It was at the time of 2-Tone. I couldn't afford a real good one, so I got one for £13 - it was Champagne Blue and Gold. It was made of awful material.

WHY DO LOTS OF GIRLS FANCY YOU? Well, the only thing I can put it down to is the idea that we've got good vibes on stage and I think people really sense that. Also I suppose I'm more normal than most pop stars - like Duran Duran, they lead the life - but I'm somewhere in between this, in limbo. It probably makes me a bit understandable. Also I think I'm pretty much a fallible character - I get it a lot.

WOULD YOU PLAY AT HANCY REAGAN'S BIRTHDAY PARTY? I think we'd be a bit loud for them! I'm not a big fan of the Reagan's, I only became actively interested in their government when I was over there during the elections. I think it's shocking the way they're taking money out of education and putting it into arms. So a definite no to that one.

IS MEAT MURDER? I'm not a vegetarian but I do believe in moderation. I eat white meat one day, red meat one and a veggie meal the next. What I do really object to are fur coats. I do buy leather goods, cause then the animal's killed for meat but killing them just for fur is really a waste.

HAVE YOU EVER DONE SOMETHING YOU'RE ASHAMED OF? Well, I've never really stolen anything. I suppose it's just a case of letting people down. It's mainly just through being lazy. As a kid I used to let my way out of things - now I've got rid of that, but I still lack concentration and find it difficult to apply myself to things other than singing.

IF YOU WERE A CAR, WHAT KIND WOULD YOU BE? An Aston Martin DB5. Although it's sports, it looks real mean, a big and formidable. It commands respect. Also, it's one of the few good English cars.

HOW MUCH WOULD YOU HAVE TO BE PAID TO PDSEE NUDE? Let me think... a year's supply of Mars bars.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU LOST YOUR VOICE FOR GOOD? What, like I got my neck caught in a branch or something? It's too depressing to even think about. Last time the voice went, I thought it'd be gone for good and started to wonder what I was going to do. I knew I couldn't work anywhere like Vauxhall Motors, I couldn't stick it. I'd have to do something in the music business but I couldn't face the thought of working for a record company because that would have rubbed in the fact that I was a failure. In the end I started working with the idea of becoming a really good DJ - but that didn't last either. I just had to sing. If I lost my voice completely forever, I really don't know what I would do. I suppose I'd just be dumb.

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO DO WHEN YOU'RE AN OLD MAN? I'd like to go on a safari trip in Africa. I never get around to doing that sort of thing now so I'd be great to do it then. Remember the TV programme Deserters? I'd like to build a house like the one a Daklari in the bush. It would be made from wood, raised off the ground, heavy on the veranda and I'd be in my safari suit and hat with a leopard skin headband round it. As you get older, you want to get back to basics.

Who's Compelling

(UB40)

■ NAME: Alastair Campbell
BORN: February 2, 1959 in Birmingham.
FIRST CONCERT: I suppose it must have been when I was about three. My dad used to have a group, the Ian Campbell Folk Group, and he always used to take me along. But my first proper concert would have been Michael Jackson - The Jackson 5. They were brilliant. It was at the Birmingham Odeon, around 1973. I think I was mad on the Jacksons. I had all the stuff, the Jackson 5 Insignia on my school blazer, the lot.
WHO DO YOU WANT TO GROW UP TO BE? Well, I never wanted to be anyone else. But my heroes, I suppose, must be Steve Wonder and Michael Jackson. And when I was 11 I got into Bob Marley. But I couldn't really be any of them 'cos I'm white.
MOST PROFOUND THING THAT HAPPENED TO YOU WHEN YOU WERE GROWING UP? There've been so many I can't even think of one. I suppose it must have been getting involved in reggae music. It really gladd me, it states me truly, a piece of dub music. Also, it being the newest, freshest kind of music. I got into it by growing up in an environment with Indian people, Africans, lots of different cultures. It used to be great in Birmingham but now it's fallen apart. It's the same with all the big cities during the last decade. Why? I suppose it must have something to do with Margaret Thatcher.
WHAT WAS THE STUPIDEST THING YOU DID AS A KID? The stupid thing I ever did was to nick a lightbulb and a container of crab paste. I got a conditional discharge. I didn't need the lightbulb or the crab paste. I was just peeing it.
PREVIOUS JOBS: Once I went up to the Isle Of Skye and worked tanning osbers, building fences and living off boiled potatoes and salt fish. Then I applied for a job at Butlins and did the full five month season - I was a caddy, counting up the money from the Meirdi Gras, the Pig'n'Whistle and the chip shops. Then I worked in an Easter egg factory. It was the most revolting experience of my life. I had to sit in front of this huge tray of millions of chocolate buttons moving very slowly towards me and when two were stuck together I had to separate them. Never again. I had to wash my hands with lots of soap and pick the scraps off the floor and wheel it to the recycling plant - they make the big eggs out of all sorts of bits of chocolate.

HAVE YOU GOT ANY CHILDREN? Yeah, a little boy called Al. I wanted him called that 'cos I'm really called Alastair. It has caused a lot of confusion though, most people think he must be Muslim or something. I play with him a lot - I draw colour, go up and down the stairs with him on ploggy back and tease the dog. I used to be a really good driver but now I only ever do things for him - mainly cockroaches, earwax and spit.
IS MEAT MURDER? Yes, I'm a very strict vegetarian. No, I was hgh! But I don't eat pig, I don't eat bacon - that often. That's just because I don't like it.
DO YOU WORRY ABOUT YOUR WEIGHT? (Sarcastically) Oh, because I don't eat that much and I keep getting fatter. It's a real constant worry to me.
WHAT'S YOUR FAVOURITE INDIAN MEAL? Quarter lamboni chicken with meat samosas and a nan and Bani Blood and yoghurt.
IF YOU HAD TO TAKE PART IN THE OLYMPICS WHICH SPORT WOULD YOU CHOOSE? Something like shopping or, air, bows and arrows - something that didn't involve me having to jump over things or run around too much, you know? I do weight training and I play pool, snooker and table tennis. They're like my Olympic sports I reckon.
DO YOU WANT BOXER SHORTS OR TIE-FRONT? I usually wear boxer shorts with a pig on them - I've got two pairs, one with normal pigs and the other with pigs with wings. I like pigs, you see. In fact I was born in the Chinese year of The Pig, though only discovered that recently. I don't mind the thing about pigs for a long time. I want to own one of these Vietnamese little blue piggy pigs, have it curled up in front of the fire in my lounge. And, in any case, I've always looked like a pig.
WHAT WOULD YOU MISS MOST IN THE EVENT OF A NUCLEAR WART? The earth. The trees, not being alive. Things like that. Did you hear about the nuclear war that nearly happened? I suggested taking a quarter of a million American kids and putting them in the USSR to grow up and doing the same with a quarter of a million Russian kids in America, giving you the idea that you mustn't bomb your own kids. It's the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard.
DO YOU FEEL GUILTY ABOUT MAKING SO MUCH MONEY? No. I want a lot, thank you very much. It's people that have grown up with money that feel guilty about having it because they think it's obscene to have none. So you get all these middle class kids living in poverty for a laugh because they think it's romantic. But they soon find out it isn't and go back to mummy.
WHEN WOULD YOU LIKE TO RETIRE? When I'm about 29 or 30. I'd like to sit there watching my plants grow while drinking rum punches and zombies. I love watching things grow. But I'd probably get bored of it in a couple of years...

HEARD NAMES GEORGE MEL

■ NAME: John Howard Jones
BORN: February 23, 1965 in Southampton.
HEIGHT: 5' 7"
NICKNAME: Big H at school.
FIRST RECORD BOUGHT: A line-up featuring The Who, The Troggs and The 1910 Fruitgum Company in Ottawa, Canada. I was 14 and it was the attraction of The Who that got me there.
PREVIOUS SAHARS: A classical rock band called Warner, a punk band called Bicycle Thieves and a rock group by the name of Skin Tie.
WERE YOU THE SCHOOL SWOT? Yes, until I was 13 and then I became the opposite, a young rebel who disrupted classes and just got really, really bored. And then I entered a phase when I was 16 where I became a toned-down version who just let the time pass and did the minimum. And did I get any qualifications? Yeah, I did actually. I got 10 O-Levels and two A-Levels. They served me no purpose whatsoever.
PREVIOUS JOBS: I've done loads. I put plastic bins together for £1.25 an hour. Once I was a ballpoint pen assembler. I used to do that in the school holidays. And I worked for Macfashenas, as an assistant in one of their shops. And then I was a clockwork mechanism in a factory. I got promoted to a stock controller and then to production controller. I was there, in all, for a year and a half. Then I was a piano teacher. I had 60 students. I was constantly used to go out to a transit van with a load of fruit and veg in the back and do a door, door-to-door. And in my spare time I used to nail picture frames together. As well as doing all these jobs, I was constantly writing songs, playing in bands and just spending a lot of time at the piano. I always wanted to play music full time and be one of these jobs.
HOW DID YOU MEET YOUR WIFE? I was best friends with her brother and they used to live down the road from me. We met when I was 17 or 18 and have married for five years. Her name's Janit but she's known as Jen.
WHAT IS LOVE? When you get a state of communication between two people and when they can talk about their absolute innermost thoughts on a level that is below other talk.
WHAT MAKES YOU LAUGH? Typical eccentric English humour. The Young Ones, the Comic Strip. The kind of thing that don't understand abroad.
WHAT MAKES YOU ANGRY? Irracidity, liars, disrespect because of cosmetic differences, violence (if any kind). People criticizing others without knowing anything about them. People wasting their lives.

WHEN DID YOU LAST GO TO THE DOCTOR? I haven't been ill for years. I put it down to my diet and to the fact that I take one multi-vitamin tablet every day. And if I feel a slight cold coming on - colds really nag me because I can't write or sing - I take a vitamin C tablet. It's also probably because I don't eat eggs any more - the way they're produced is a scandal.
FAVOURITE FOODS: Anything that doesn't have dead animals in it. I've been a vegetarian for years now. But I love Indian food.
ARE YOU ANY GOOD AT COOKING? I used to cook all the time and do enjoy it, but don't have so much time now. My speciality is a vegetable curry. Learning how to do it was a question of that and error, tested out by friends.
HERO: John Lennon, because of the things he sang about and the dream way he sang them. He didn't mangle his words.
HEROINE: My Mum.
HAVE YOU GOT A DOG? Yes - he's called Benny. A friend of ours had a dog and Benny was one of her puppies. He's completely wacky. He's only a small dog, but whenever one of us comes in he leaps up to the height of our ears and licks them. He does that to everyone. The worst thing about him is that he smells - not very often, though. And the funniest thing about him is his ears. He's got one ear that's permanently down and one ear that's permanently up, so he looks like he's indicating.
WHAT'S YOUR "PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE"? I try to talk about personal change and to be constructive. I don't want to look out on the world and say "it's the world's fault" or "it's the government's fault." I take the blame for the way things change. Things we have to do to ourselves personally.
WHY DID YOU BECOME A TAX EXILE FOR A YEAR? I've got a lot of ideas of what I can do with the money rather than paying it in taxes. I agree with a lot of things taxes pay for - hospitals and social services - but that's not what I want to spend my money on. I like buying missiles and torturing animals. So I put the onus on myself to do something with that money. EVER BEEN TO HOSPITAL? Once. I was born in hospital, but I also once had my appendix out. Apparently I nearly died if I hadn't had it out in another 24 hours it would have burst and killed me. I was 18 when it happened. But I have no fear of hospitals. I just think nurses are incredible. I really admire them.
HOBBIES: I only ever walk the dog. Or watch TV sometimes.
ANY SPORTS? No. I would say I'm probably fairly fit, though, through doing gigs.
MOST HATED PHRASES: "It's impossible" because I don't believe anything is. It's a very negative thing.
HOW WOULD YOU LIKE YOUR CHILDREN TO GROW UP? Free thinking. I'd like them to be whatever they wanted to be. I'd be surprised if they wanted to be like me. You've seen your parents do something. I'd have thought you'd want to do your own individual, separate thing.
WHAT'S YOUR AMBITION? To write music and gigs that are of use to people.
DO YOU WORRY ABOUT GOING DOWN THE DUMPER? It doesn't worry me, there's a million other things I could do. Like write film music. Or open an chain of vegetarian restaurants - that would be an interesting project.

■ NAME: Yorgos Kyriakou Panayiotou
BORN: June 25, 1963 in Finchley, North London.
HEIGHT: 5' 11"
NICKNAME: Yogi
FIRST MEMORY: Seeing some goats at a zoo when I was three or four years old.
BIGGEST THRILL AS A CHILD: Getting a purple-and-blue bike when I was seven. I dreamt about it for weeks before. I was really pleased with it.
DO YOU SIT AT THE BACK OR FRONT OF THE CLASS? The back. I was always lazy academically but I was always managed to scrape through. We're going back to our school before Christmas to do an end-of-term personal appearance for the teachers and pupils.
FIRST CRUSH: My first crush was on my school teacher, Mrs Wilson, when I was about six.
FIRST RECORD BOUGHT: "The Right Thing To Do" by Carly Simon in 1973. I bought it in a record shop in Cyprus when we were on holiday there. I've not liked many of her records since then, although "Why?" this year was pretty good.
FIRST CONCERT: Elton John at Earl's Court in 1975. I think he was spot on, brilliant, especially considering how big Elton's act is. It was a fantastic show.
FIRST OAT: When I was 14 I went out with a girl called Lesley Bywaters who was in my class at school. I looked a lot older than 14 and we used to go up to clubs in London. Like the Global Village and Cherry's. But we only went out for about two months. It was well into being a soul boy then - I really liked people like Sylvester, Chic, etc.
WERE YOU UGLY THEN? I looked absolutely horrendous. I wouldn't say I'm a swan now but then I was the traditional 'ugly duckling'. I went through that bad phase of puppy fat and stuff. I don't stand much chance with the girls.

FIRST GROUP: The Executives.
PREVIOUS JOBS: Cinema usher, DJ in restaurants, labourer on a building site. I also had a Saturday job at British Home Stores. I got sacked for not wearing a shirt and tie in the stock room, believe it or not.
DOES BEING SO RICH MAKE YOU FEEL GUILTY? Well, like a lot of things in life, what I am is out of proportion, out of perspective, unfair, but I don't feel guilty because I earn my money by giving a lot of it away. I don't make donations and then ask for it to be publicised. I just do it when I think there's an urgent need for something. I'm not doing it so that people will think I'm the most generous person in the world. I wouldn't be a pop star if I was. I'd be out there trying to solve all the things that are wrong with the world. But I'm too selfish to do that.
WHAT MAKES YOU ANGRY? People who assume they know something about you when they meet you for the first time. People who think I'm a ego because they've read about my 'egotism' in the News Of The World. What else? Customs officials. Since I started wearing an earning I get nabbed every time I go through. They take everything apart - they get X-rays, X-rays, all my Gimmex range, the shampoo, the conditioner, the contact lens solution all over them. Saves me right.
DO YOU MISS BEING IN WHAM? No. Not really. At Wham! were ever about was saying 'we're here, this is all there is, enjoy it'. That's all. And we people couldn't take that. People just thought we were pretentious. We were the first group since the days of the Beatles who didn't relate their personalities to their music. And people couldn't understand that. They thought that bloke poncing around in the pretty blond hair with the shorts and the teeth was me! They couldn't understand that it was me trying to be the ultimate performer, reflecting what I saw as the ultimate pop song in the only way possible.
HOW DO YOU WRITE THE HIT? A great pop song has something about it that will appeal to millions of people. There are different ways of doing that. You can do it in a crase way, or in an uplifting way. I like to have a line or two makes your ears cock up when you hear them on the radio. Like "guilty feet ain't got no rhythm". How many people put a word like 'feet' in love songs? It's hardly a romantic word.
WHAT'S THE WORST SONG YOU'VE EVER WRITTEN? "Bad Boys". I hate it. It's like an abstruse around my neck. It's too formalised. These couple of months - that record was called "Fantastic" album - were the worst point in my career. I couldn't see the wood for the trees. I didn't know what I was doing. So, I think "Fantastic" was a realisation that my good first album made under a lot of pressure.
HAVE YOU GOT ANY PASTIMES? No, I don't really do anything. I do some dancing, some aerobics.
DO YOU HAVE ANY AMBITIONS LEFT? I'd like to be one of the best-known artists of my time.
CAN YOU IMAGINE BEING OLD? I've thought about that actually. I don't want to get to 40 or 50. I'm not going to be one of those people who sits up worrying about how many wrinkles they've got. Anyway I've already decided I'm going to wrinkle. It's not a healthy thing. I don't want the wrinkles all worked out, where they're going to be!

Sharpe And Newman New Thing from London Town

A new thing from London town
Oh atmosphere in music round
Colour shined across the face
Wandic hand in hand with face
Grey mist in still the night
Sliding through the colour light
Heads glide along the street
Rendezvous with marching feet

Chorus
A new thing from London town
A new thing from London town
Wash wash wash wash
Wash wash wash wash

New thing from London town
All directions pointing down
Follow leaders to the door
For future guardians of war
Clicking films in black and white
Dark masters of the night
Meet the heroes of their time
United under banner signs

Repeat chorus

New thing from London town
A new thing from London town
A new thing from London town
Voices shout above the sound
Join hands and closing eyes
One by one they slowly rise
Time waits and standing still Watched men that time can't kill
This night they turn the tide
And then return to where they hide

William Shaw finds out . . .

Q:

Which group has:

- a) Been together for nine years and never had a feature in Smsah Hits until this very moment?
 b) Released 12 LPs, millions of singles and yet never been within a mile of getting on Top Of The Pops?
 c) Just had its highest selling single ever, "Mr Pharmacist", and even that only got to number 75 in the charts?
 d) Written lots and lots of odd spiky songs with weird names like "Bingo Masters Break Out", "How I Wrote Elastic Man", "Totally Wired" and "Kicker Conspiracy"?

A:

The Fall, a group led by a strange "singer" called Mark E. Smith who's been hailed by some "critics" as a "genius", and who, despite a commercial history which would have made others give up ages ago, still command devotion from thousands of fans.

In the bar of a London hotel, Mark E. Smith and his wife Brix are trying to have a quiet drink. Brix is in The Fall too - she plays guitar. (She's also got a group of her own, called The Adult Net, who recently released the moderately successful single "Waking Up In The Sun") In the same hotel bar there are also a couple of dozen businessmen dressed in suits, who seem to have been at a "conference" and are without doubt getting a little squiffy. Mark has to jostle his way through them to carry his and Brix's drinks back to their corner table.

"They're savages, these people in suits!" he blurts disgustingly in his sharp Mancunian voice.

"I know," assents Brix. "It's really unbelievable," he mutters gruffly. "It's worse than any pub in Salford... What's this supposed to be a feature on, then? I can't get to the bottom of this. Is it on The Adult Net and The Fall or just The Fall?" Once it's explained to him that this is supposed to be about both groups he seems satisfied. In fact he seems to quite like the idea of being interviewed.

You see, The Fall don't really consider themselves a "pop group" at all. When they formed in 1977, they were part of the so-called "punk movement", and they're carried on regardless in their own sweet way ever since. Mark doesn't so much sing his songs as sort of bark them. On stage he hunches over a microphone with a scowl on his face pouring out a stream of words that are either very "meaningful" or complete twaddle, depending on which way you look at it.

"The reason The Fall started," says Mark, "was to put a bit of brains back into" music... What's that group called - It Bites? He grimaces at the mere thought. "That's very much what we were up against in '77. So tedious. We didn't have any illusions about selling records. I'm quite sort of pleased to be where I am now, touch wood." (Mark whacks his hand down onto the wooden table in front of him. SLAPP!) Brix does the same for effect. SLAPP!

"Everybody always asks if I'm upset that we've never sold any more records. Do people think that I'm bloody stupid? Do they think that each time I put a single out I go 'Oh no! Not again. I haven't got a hit! What am I doing wrong?' My word, I'm not that daft."

So, over the years he's released a steady stream of brash, jerky songs, packaged in scrawly, amateurish sleeves, and though they haven't exactly earned him a fortune they have earned him the sincere respect of Fall fans who tend to take the group's songs very seriously. Indeed, rock "critics" too have a tendency to use gushing prose about the man.

"Yes, I've read a lot of stuff that I get very embarrassed by," admits Mark.

And there's another thing that has singled out The Fall over the years: they have always looked completely and utterly un-trendy, with Mark usually being seen in some scruffy old pair of trousers and a simply vile crimplene shirt. So did he deliberately go out and buy horrid clothes?

"When we started," answers Mark, "it was always very clear to me that, if you were looking for 'style', the very last place you should look is pop music. People always used to think that we dressed like that deliberately. The old myth perpetuated about The Fall is that we were a load of old scruffs and all that. I'm not going to say that we're dead one-o-a-art," he draws, "because I don't think that we do look particularly one-o-a-art, but we do know what not to wear. That's the thing about The Fall - we always knew what not to wear. I mean, I don't think there's anything particularly great about someone in a greentint and curly hair. We used to be on punk bills when we started and the things people used to wear," he says in a voice full of loathing, "I mean, people would laugh at you now, but that was called 'style' then."

But in the last few years, a couple of things have happened to The Fall which have definitely made them a bit more "fashionable". For a start they've been joined by Brix, while Fall members have usually been done North of England types, she comes from a very, very swish Los Angeles background. And - even "trendier" - the group's songs have been turned into ballet pieces by avant garde ballet dancer Michael Clark (the one who jumps around with his bare bottom sticking out of his tights and who is generally thought to be a bit "shocking").

"What do I make of Michael Clark?" ponders Mark. "... Erm, I like some of the things he's done. I went to see him do the last one in Manchester. That was quite funny because all the audience were in dirie bows and blue-riases. They had our music on the speakers and they couldn't cope with it. All the people were trying to clap along politely to this DANG-DANG-DANG-CRRRRRRRRRASH! Except for this one old woman with jewels on who had her hands over her ears. Fabulous."

As for Brix - well, you couldn't imagine anyone more different from Mark E. Smith (the "E" stands for Edward, by the way). He's from Manchester, he left school at 16, and went to work in the Customs office at the local docks. She comes from a rich and posh American family, her mother is a psychiatrist, she's a friend of Susanash Hoffa from The Bangles, and she used to be a model for the very up-market Fiorucci store in Los Angeles. And, unlike un-trendy Mark, she looks incredibly glamorous and loves shopping for clothes.

▼ Avant garde dancer/poet Michael Clark popping out to get another graft waxing by the wiggly Fall.

"My motto," she says, "is 'shop 'til you drop'. I always look

The couple met in Chicago, where Brix's mother lives, when The Fall were on tour over there. Brix had heard one of their records a couple of weeks before and went along to see them. After the concert she went into a bar and... lol! There was Mark. "I bumped into him. SMACK! I thought he was very intelligent and he had a lot of brains."

They fell in love, got married, and now they live in a three bedroom house in Manchester in (says Brix) a "nice" area, with a "nice" garden and some "nice" paintings. And this Christmas, confides Brix, they're giving themselves a car for Christmas. A BMW. "If I could I'd get a Porsche," she adds, "but we can't afford it."

Then, a year and a half ago, Brix formed The Adult Net. She'd had her own group before in California and she'd written all these songs which didn't really sound like Fall songs at all, so she thought she'd better go ahead and sing them instead. The Adult Net are a lot less strange than The Fall, more of a pop group. And their four singles have done... rather better than most Fall singles do.

And so what does Mark think of The Adult Net?

"Do I like them? I love them. I think they're great, yeah. I think their single "Edie" was superb. And I quite like this new one as well."

And the secret of a happy relationship for two married pop performers? "When we work we don't walk around holding hands."

"The Fall," says Brix, "are my first love though. If the Adult Net get famous, and touch wood they do — (SLAPPP!) — I'd never leave The Fall. But maybe the Adult Net will make a lot of money..."

Which is one thing you can be sure The Fall will never do. They'll go along in their own strange way, probably releasing more LPs, more spiky singles, and still never making it within a mile of Top Of The Pops...

The Fall might seem to look hundreds of miles away from exactly one career...

In The Army Now

A vacation in a foreign land
Uncle Sam done the best he can
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

Now you remember what the doctor said
Nothing to do all day but stay in bed
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

You'll be the hero of the neighbourhood
Nobody knows that you left for good
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

Smiling faces as you wait to land
But once you get there no one gives a damn
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

Hard grenades flying over your head
Mineses flying over your head
If you want to survive get out of bed
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

Shots ring out in the dead of night
The sergeant calls (stand up and fight)
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

You've got your orders better about on sight
Your finger's on the trigger
But it don't seem right
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

Night is falling and you just can't see
Is then darkness or reality
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army in the army now
You're in the army now
Oh oh you're in the army now

Oh oh you're in the army in the army now

Repeat to last

It's just possible you've heard of the Sony Walkman

What you may not have heard is that Sony ever the perfectionists have come up with a new, improved model The WM33

OUR NEW WALKMAN
GIVES THE COMPETITION
A SOUND BEATING.

Beneath this assured title lies a personal stereo with all the quality and reliability you'd expect from the makers of the original Walkman

Yet with its very own graphic equalizer
Leaving aside all talk of hertz levels and frequencies and stuff this basically means you can adjust the tone and character of the music until it's exactly how you like it

And you can alter the sound to suit the kind of music you're listening to Be that Jazz Classical or good ol' Rock 'n' Roll

It boasts plenty of other features as well, but here are six of the best

A metal tape facility An anti-rattling mechanism Lightweight headphones A battery indicator light A DC transformer socket And any colour you like so long as it's red, blue or black

It's also very small (Sony strikes again)

Dear Schwartz Type (as "they" say in Germany).

Here are some new re-vamped, non-stick, preservative free and terribly Vorsprung durch Technik (which "they" never say in Germany) "pro"verts-

1) Too many cooks make TV programmes

2) Kinky hands are a major disfigurement

3) When the car's away, the dog ceases to attack it (due to its untimely absence), there's less harm on the furniture and mum saves on cat food (i.e. Kir-'e' Kar 45p per tin. And eight out of ten owners profess it's jolly delicious though what their cats think of it, I don't know)

4) A tea-towel in the hand is far better than one in a bush and a bar might more useful.

5) Small things come in small packages.

6) A rocking stone is now quite infamous due to the "revelations" of a certain Mandy Smith

7) Cleanliness is next to Claymore in the Concise (?) Oxford Dictionary

8) When in Rome, go and eat spaghetti

9) An army walks on its feet

10) Man cannot live by McDonald's cheeseburgers alone. Though he can try

11) Silence is the bit in between record tracks. apart from Sique "Zeep" Sputnik LPs

12) Manners maketh man. But several Swiss bank accounts maketh a husband. Auf wackersehen and could you ask Mrs Perkins to send me that recipe for that utterly heavenly dish she made the other day when the whole family got together for a really interesting knees-up. Somebody who secretly admires Moritz Harkes's feather thongs (a sure bet for the Euro "vision" thong contest law law). Shuff

A postman writes: Your assertion concerning small packages (5) could be grossly misleading to the general public. For whatever the size of item you intend to despatch elsewhere courtesy of Her Majesty's Mail Services, great care should be taken to ensure secure wrapping and on no account should one "skimp" on the use of brown paper or string (which can usually be found in any kitchen drawer). A new breakthrough in wrapping

Dear Black Type,

Why does your colleague (i.e. Ritz - spit on it) have to slag off Dave Straits and Mark Knopfler? Because he is the best eel-guitarist in the spoonverse - as you call it. I have taken the trouble to compose a poem.

Dear Smash Hits

You really make me sick with your trendy cynical approach to anything and everything. I am referring to your article about the "Anti Smack" record in your September 24 issue. In this you say, and I quote, "Will the general public approve the musicians' efforts, or will they just see it as a bunch of massive egos jumping on the bandwagon of another trendy cause?" Well, the answer is that we, the general public, will "approve" the "efforts" because anything that can be done to alleviate Britain's terrible drug problem must be worthwhile. Do you honestly believe that people of the stature of Fish and Holly Johnson would give up their rare and valuable spare time if they were merely "jumping on the bandwagon"? Why should they need to do such a thing? And why do you need to belittle their efforts? These "massive egos" can do good in the world, as Bob Geldof so admirably proved.

Glen Middlemass, Brighton

Dear Black Type,

I'm writing to complain about your article in Ritz in the 13th August issue, about surfing being a stupid sport of the world. I totally disagree with this. You don't know what you're talking about.

Firstly, The Beach Boys were around 15-20 years ago and surfing has progressed a lot since then. I go surfing and thoroughly enjoy it. Even if I'm not very good. It is stupid to say all that about scoring with the chicks - how can I? I'm a girl! - and I'm certainly not weird!

In Britain there is a very large surfing population and I'm sure they would disagree with your article.

As for Island Five O, that also is a very old programme and we do get some good quality surf, especially in Devon and Cornwall. Otherwise why would they hold "The Fosters Surfmasters" here? Surfers do not have to wear Baggies.

I know a lot of people who surf - my Dad has for nearly 30 years and moved 300 miles to do so.

Next time don't knock something you obviously know nothing about! Debbie, N Devon.

Ho hum.

Dear me. Children's BSC has finished for the day, and all that enhances the screen of my telly is a rather faddy ducky person reading the 6 o'clock News.

Ho hum. What shall I do now? (Dramatic pause.) I know - I shall play my St. Winifreds School Choir "Are You Ready To Headbang" album. (Another dramatic pause whilst I kiss the precious stem.) Ah! Oh no, (plumative wail). It's broken! It's ruddy well broken! Somebody's gone and ruddy well broken my sacred record with the trendy sleeve (lots of nice year olds in pink dresses looking very rebellious) and my free life-size poster of John Craven in a cable knit jumper.

What happens now? It's meaningless without the rap version of "No one Quate Like Grandina". Unless...? No, it's stupid of me - as if some kind person would give me the money to buy a new one, or even a tea-towel, so that I could pawn it to retrieve my precious stem. I guess I shall just have to invent my own amusement. I shall just have to ruddy well sing myself.

There's no one quite like Gwandina, and that you will agree.

Japonica Pussy, Exeter

Thank you, Japonica. Long may your wistful refrain linger in my memory.

Dear Black Type,

Have any other Smash Hits readers noticed the striking resemblance between Jimmy Somerville of the Communards and the singing portents in the Smiths Cramps advert on TV? Not only do they look alike, but they have amazingly similar voices. Any chance of a duet in the future, Jimmy?
Cameo's red pouch, Burnham

Her Majesty to unfurl the trusty sabre and whisper the joyous words "Arise Sir Clifford"? It is a national disgrace of climactic proportions!)

The Inventor of Rock 'n' Roll? 'C'est obvious mes findings - Goldie The Dog Yui!

Demame the 'facts' -
1) The Housemartins are the most brilliant group in the whole cosmoverse

2) The album "London O Hullo 4" - available at all good record shops and several rather dodgy ones) has a song on it called "Flag Day"

3) Above mentioned song boasts the immortal words 'so you thought you'd like to see them healed, get Blue Peter to stage an appeal'

4) Goldie The Dog is the best presenter on Blue Peter
5) So there!

My case, as 'they' say, is rested The Mouth, Swindon

Rubbish! It just so happens that Red Box are the most brilliant group in the whole cosmoverse, not to mention Modern Talking, The Kranksies and those blokes who used to wear wig wags on Top Of The Pops (Who on earth can you mean? - Ed), so where does that leave you and your ludicrous "theory"? Half way to the moon without a baked bean can with a funnel on the top, that's where!

Dear Mr Type

In connection with the ongoing debate about who invented rock 'n' roll, I think you'll find I have the answer!

Using H.G. Wells' theory of elementary existence which states "No one may exist except the person who imagined existence", I find that no one may exist except me - therefore it must follow that I invented rock 'n' roll. On the other hand I imagined rock 'n' roll, H.G. Wells and even Black Type, therefore none of those exist.

Therefore, rock 'n' roll hasn't been invented yet. Why am I sending you this letter if you don't exist then? Even more revealing - why did I imagine Sam Fox and Wham? Dr Emocional Yoghurt, Esq Merseydale (P.S. An imaginary token 'N' would've got usmiss)

If your theory 'holds water' then I have simply imagined you letter - though why I should wish to do that is quite beyond me. And if I am imagining Mr Perkins then I fear I am in urgent need of psychoanalysis.

Dear Black 'Type'.

In 1764 I sent away for the free 'T' start then on offer by the GBS Fan 'Club' (George 'Bernard' Shaw, alas/ahem).

I'm still waiting for it. This has to be a record, don't it? Quizzical GBS Fan, London

Hmmm. Sounds a bit far-fetched to me. But if your rather fishy story is actually true - well, what a patient person you are, Gawd bless yer.

To Whom It May Concern,

I suppose you think you've been oh so clever with all those snippets about religion in your Blz pages last issue (24 September) but cannot you see the offence you have caused to thousands of innocent readers with your sneering 'withicisms' about the Picards who worshipped God while naked (so what?) and your comparison between Jesus and Sir Isaac Wollston (so what? again). It's all very clever and cool to be an atheist in the '80s and we Christians get laughed at almost every day of our lives so we're used to it by now, thank you very much. But to have this kind of anti-religious propaganda rammed down our throats on the pages of what is supposed to be only an inoffensive pop music magazine is really too much. All you have succeeded in doing is confirming a lot of ignorant people in their prejudices that anyone who believes in God must be a lunatic. There is nothing wrong with a little Christian faith, you know, believing in Jesus gives one hope and hope is something all too rare in our violent modern age. Laugh if you will, but do it at home (you can burn a few Cliff Richard records if it makes you feel any better) not on the printed page Joanna, Exeter

Dear Black Type

Sitting, as I was, on a Sri Lankan beach pondering the mysteries of this and other worlds (just like Arthur C. Clarke), I was struck a 'glancing' blow upon the head by an enormous spook-like being. The said being asked me that question: the elusive answer to which mankind has pursued since the dawn of time.

It asked me how toothpaste-type people manage to put the toothpaste in the tube, so that it always comes out in neat stripes and not in a horrid squiggly mess.

I consulted my next-door neighbour, whose considered opinion it was that 'it's all done by computers, mate'.

Unconvinced, I sought the answer in what has become the bible of contemporary intellect, culture and etiquette - the Blz Book Of Life. Imagine my horror when - spook upon spook - no reference was made to this, possibly the last remaining true mystery of our time. Is it destined to dwell throughout all eternity on the top shelf of life (next to perry smeg), continually confounding the efforts of all those who stand on tip-toe and strive to grasp its smug complexities?

Though this problem (of colossal enormity and consequence, I hasten to add) remains unresolved, one clear fact emerges - Life, like Rock 'n' Roll, is a "bizarre paradox", it is - is - is!

Nuclear-Free Nicky (Founder member, the Quasborough Soul Patrol)

I fear that too much sun upon the paradisiacal Sri Lankan shores has addled your brains somewhat. For one thing, I don't know where you've been buying your toothpaste but I have never come across a brand that came out in these "neat stripes" of yours. In fact I always seem to end up with a "horrid squiggly mess" and most of it falls off the brush anyway and just sort of sits there in the cracks in the tiles until I can be bothered to get a mop and bucket, which isn't particularly often. For another thing, your "mystery" is really quite trivial when held up against the truly imponderables of our merry little planet. Like what IS the IQ of Bruce Forsyth or has there ever, in the history of anything, been quite such an extravaganza as the tedious so-called score board on that hopelessly artistic television extravaganza New Faces? Or why hasn't Captain Birds Eye been sent to prison for a very long time indeed yet? Or what is Bobby Davro? Shall we ever know the answers? I rather think not. Ave Maria!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

coming home from the pub
The Mexx Somewhere in England

I fear you have made a tiny error in your last so-called proverb. For it has been clinically proven by the world's most illustrious scientist that most accidents occur in the home - particularly during the Boost chocolate bar advertisement when that chirpy git comes on and says "Ello! Ow's yer ego?" causing 99 per cent of viewers to kick their feet to pieces in irritation. NB: Kicking in a television set can be highly dangerous.

Dear Black Type

I have up-dated some so-called proverbs for your amusement

Who do? Why Nik and Sheri Kershaw, of course. They're horribly normal, they insist. So why, then, does Nik only watch television programmes featuring people with parrots on their heads and want to be called a lemon meringue pie (or something)?

Chris Heath is "flummoxed". . .

This is very cosy. Here we are on the fourth floor of an extremely plush office block overlooking London's Oxford Street — just me and Nik Kershaw. Sheri, Nik's wife, is in the kitchen making some tea and Nik is busy apologising for the sunglasses he wore while recording the anti-heroin record the other weekend. His reason, of course, was that his eyes were bruised after making a hash of scuba diving on his recent holiday in Barbados, but he's horrified that people might think it's some new "super-cool" image of his. "Very embarrassing," he mutters, apologising again for what he calls the glasses' "high pose factor".

"It was the first holiday me and Sheri have ever had," he reveals. "Scuba diving's like flying. If you get all your weights and pressures right — which I didn't at first — you don't feel like you've got contact with anything. You can't see the surface and the fish just swim around you. It's a different world. We saw barracouda... octopuses... or is that octop?"

Sadly, we will never know because we are interrupted by Sheri who pours the tea and sits down next to Nik.

"Thanks babe," he says and starts explaining exactly what happened to him after he released his last single, "When A Heart Beats", last autumn which didn't do, er, very well.

"It was crazy to release a record then," he now says. "I'm still very proud of it but it's not a pop record. I was also going to record the new album at the beginning of the year but just before going into the studio I played myself the demos (rough recordings of the songs) and just decided that they weren't good enough."

"They were quite good actually," interrupts Sheri. "Shut up," snaps Nik, a touch embarrassed. "They were alright but I was repeating myself." So, instead of recording the LP, he locked himself away at home for a couple of months "and got my head together, maan". The result is his new LP, "Radio Muscolca", which Nik is extremely chuffed with.

Even though he's such a fusspot that, given the chance, he says he'd probably start all over again. "If someone gave me another six months," he explains, "I'd scrap about half of it because I get bored very quickly."

Sitting in studios and writing songs is, after all, the reason why Nik Kershaw bothers with all this anyway. When you ask him if being a pop star has turned out to be as much fun as he expected, he simply looks rather confused. "It never occurred to me it was going to be fun," he says, sounding rather puzzled. "I just wanted to make a living doing music." And if anything, his couple of years of success have made him even less keen on fame than before.

"Like a lot of artists," he says, "I'd really like to write and record an album and then disappear and let someone else mime and look an idiot on Top Of The Pops."

He sighs because he knows that'll never happen, though at least the worst effects of being famous have died away after all this time out of the public eye.

"Sheri and I have just been shopping down Oxford Street and I didn't get too much aggro at all, just the odd vague glance," he says with relief. "A year ago I wouldn't have dared to go out shopping without a minder."

Sheri, it seems, doesn't have too high a regard for the wonderful world of pop "stardom" either. "It amazes me some of the things people say and do in this business. It amazes me how many people are what I'd consider completely screwy. I mean," she fumes, her hackles rising, "people talk about us (i.e. her and Nik) going off together as if it wasn't normal. I look at them and their idea of 'normal' when it comes to a pop star. It's ridiculous! All pop stars are supposed to love being adored and want all those women around going 'ooooooooooooo!'"

The whole business is based on that — it's sold on sex for men and women.

Nik nods his head. The reason people think he's odd, he reckons, is because he isn't odd at all. "What a horrible thing to be normal," he laughs. "There must be something really wrong with me."

"And it's not just pop stars' antics that he disapproves of. He's not that keen on most of their music either."

"I think pop's in a pretty sorry state at the moment," he means sadly, "with our Samantha Foxes. Not that I'm shocked that people buy Samantha Fox records, I expect it — after all people buy the Sun, don't they? I don't think it's surprising. I just think it's a bit sad."

In fact, it's not even just pop music that he and Sheri think has gone right down the dumper. He draws an even deeper sigh at the mention of television. "It's terrible at the moment."

Is there nothing they like?
"We're both cynical," he frowns. "The world's full of crap at the moment. There's just a few isolated pockets of genius but... Oh dear. He does look a bit glum about everything. Let's try and find out what's wrong with some of this 'crap'. Why, pray, does he not like EastEnders?"

"I've never watched EastEnders, to be honest," he says, proceeding to show a fairly intimate knowledge of the cast anyway. "We're out of the country too much — one moment you think 'what's happening to Dirty Den!' and the next he's become a transvestite and he's working in a chip shop..."

Or something like that.
"What's that programme you love?" pipes Sheri all of a sudden. She then spends about five minutes trying to describe it to him. He just looks puzzled.

"We're always having conversations like this," he apologises. "Like 'you know that guy with a parrot on his head?'" Eventually they decide they're talking about Auf Wiedersehen Pet. Nik apparently being especially keen on "that bloke with the good voice" i.e. Jimmy Nail. But apart from watching that, the two of them look rather blank when asked what else they do apart from making music.

"We eat meals at regular times," offers Sheri hopefully.

"We have picnics in the garden," suggests Nik eventually, explaining that they "don't have time" to go picnicking in the countryside with his nice smart BMW car. And apart from that? Not much, it seems. They don't throw crockery at each other ("we throw fridges," says Sheri) and they can't see themselves having any little Kershaws just yet. For one thing they can't face the thought of nappies.

"I have enough trouble with our cat," says Nik, explaining that their "Toby" was a stray found by a friend which they were forcibly "persuaded" to adopt. "When it rains," Nik frowns, "it leaves little messes in the kitchen." Still, he'd rather put up with that than with people trying to make him into a proper "pop star". He even winces at the term. "People can call me a pop star if they like. I suppose," he says uncomfortably. "It won't make a lot of difference to me. They can call me a lemon meringue pie for all I care."

NOBODY KNOWS

I thought I heard
A lover's sigh
It wasn't very loud
It came when I
Was passing by Somebody else's cloud

Her curtains were
The finest lace
And when the night winds blew
I saw the dew
Upon her face
And other places too

CHORUS

Nobody knows
What you do to me
And nobody's past
Is history
But the thing
They should know
Seems to be
That it's Nobody's business at all

REPEAT CHORUS

I took a walk
Down lover's lane
A quick call to the boss
And yet again
It seems my gain
Is somebody else's loss

Automobile
Now I can steer
My camera standing by
I wait for Evening mists to clear
So I can find out why

REPEAT CHORUS

Nobody knows
Nobody's business at all

THINK FOR A MINUTE

Something's going on change is taking place
 Children smiling in the street have gone without a trace
 This street used to be full it used to make me smile
 Now it seems that everyone is walking single file

 And those that used to say hello simply pass you by

Chorus

Think for a minute (think for a minute)
 Stop for a minute (stop for a minute)
 Think for a minute (think for a minute)
 Stop for a minute (stop for a minute)

I always said it could they never thought it would
 The people look so painful I'm thinking that it should

And now it's almost here now it's on its way
 I can't help saying 'I told you so' and 'have a nice final day'

'Cause nothing I could say could ever make them see the light
 Now apathy is happy that it won without a fight

(Aaah)

And many bow their heads in shame that used to hold them high
 (Think for a minute stop for a minute)
 And those that used to say hello simply pass you by (Think for a minute stop for a minute)

Think for a minute stop for a minute
 Think for a minute stop for a minute

Oh yeah eeh haa

They look at the hooks
 On your pants
 Makes you wanna dance

Chorus

I say yeah yeah

I say yeah yeah

There ain't never a catch

All you got to do is search

Do the velcro fly

Do the velcro fly

You need just enough

Of that sticky stuff

To hold the seams

Of your fine blue jeans

Repeat chorus

Well it feels so right

When you squeeze it tight

When you reach the end

Do it over again

STATE OF THE NATION

You can walk or you can run
 You don't have to be someone
 I went on a summer cruise
 Upon an ocean born to lose

My brother said that he was dead
 I saw his face and shook my head
 Can you see where we can be
 We're losing our blood in the sea

'Cause it's the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 It's holding our salvation
 Yea it's the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 That's holding our salvation
 Oh the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 It's causing death inflation
 Oh the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 It's causing death inflation

From my home I travel far
 I drove in my stolen car
 When it broke down
 I kissed the ground
 'Cause I don't kiss
 When you're around

I don't find that I have been
 The portrait of an only one
 If that's the case then who could tell
 When my story had begun

'Cause it's the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 That's holding our salvation
 Yea it's the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 That's holding our salvation
 Yea it's the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 That's causing death inflation
 Oh it's the state of the nation
 (State of the nation)
 That's causing death inflation

SINGLES

REVIEWED BY GARY AND

MARTIN KEMP OF SPANDAU BALLET

BIG AUDIO DYNAMITE: C'mon Every Beatbox (CBS)

Gary: When it started I thought it was just going to be Mick Jones trying to impersonate a hip hop record but it turned into a good rock song. I like B.A.D. — they take the idea of American street hip hop garage music and try to make it very English.
Martin: I really like it, though it's a shame that Sigue Sigue Sputnik didn't go in the direction as they could probably make it a bit more catchy and commercial. This lacks an edge.

THE POLICE: Don't Stand So Close To Me '86 Version (A&M)

Gary: It's the best production they've ever had but it's ruined the spontaneity. They've destroyed the melody and thrown away the song — it's a really self-indulgent thing to do. Sting sounds like a parody of himself and the song sounds like a Not The Nine O'Clock News parody of a Police song. Another thing that irritates me is that it's typical of Sting, because he's well read, to put something pretentious like "Nabokov" (famous novelist who wrote Lolita, a "steamy" classic) in the lyrics. Maybe they did the record because Sting feels the others need a bob or two in the bank.
Martin: They've taken all the guts out of it. It's the sort of thing we do to our songs in rehearsals but we'd never think of recording them.

SINITTA: Feels Like The First Time (Parade)

Gary: I hate this sort of record. I really do. The producer does the drum machine and the synths the day before and then the singer does her bit — it takes the human element out. I like people like Cameo — they're a real band — but this is pure production-line stuff. I couldn't say whether it's Five Star or even Madonna.
Martin: Five Star are better than that...
Gary: I can't stand Five Star. It's a matter of taste and I don't think these records have any. "So Macho" was even worse.
Martin: That was brilliant in gay discos and things. Do I go to many gay discos? Er... no.

STAN RIDGWAY: The Big Heat (IRS)

Martin: I don't like it — it's not groovy enough. It's not nearly as good as "Marine" or "Camouflage" or whatever it was called.
Gary: I like it. I used to like his old band, Wall Of Voodoo — "Mexican Radio" is one of my favourite records. These lyrics are brilliantly cinematic and I like the idea of a song about The Big Heat (conscient Humphrey Bogart film), about this sort of private investigator, a parody of something typically American.

ELTON JOHN: Heartache All Over The World (Rocket)

Martin: Really stupid. It's a shame because he can write brilliant songs — this one needs to go on a diet. I still like him though — at rehearsals we always jam Elton John songs like "Saturday Night's Alright For Fighting".

Gary: Some of the lyrics — eewwwghhh! "She's got lipstick on his collar/She's got fishnets on her legs!" I think he's tried to make a very happy song and it's come out a bit twee. I hate to slag him off because we've met him a lot of times and he's a really genuine bloke. I'm sure he's going to write another twenty songs I do like before his career ends. There you are — that's Elton put to bed, isn't it?

MARK KNOPFLER: Going Home (Vertigo)

Martin: The best instrumental I've heard for years.
Gary: I liked it better when it was in the film Local Hero — it's being used everywhere — the Commonwealth Games, that Royal Family programme on TV and now this yacht (it's the official theme music for the 1987 British challenge for the America's Cup) has it. Mark Knopfler's obviously raking in the dough — as if he needs it!

THE SOUP DRAGONS: Whole Wide World (Subway)

Martin: That's the worst so far.
Gary: I hate groups that try to be twee and preppy like The Housemartins. This sounds just like The Buzzcocks and I used to like them but this is a load of crap. I don't care if they're "politically sound" — they've got that stupid happy-go-lucky look; it reminds me of Timmy Mallett — big red glasses and a bow tie.
Martin: They're like a sixth form pop group.
Gary: They wouldn't even make the sixth form...

THE WOODENTOPS: Love Affair With Everyday Living (Rough Trade)

Gary: I like the fact that they've made an acoustic guitar sound aggressive — as if he's smashing it — but it just doesn't touch me in any way. I can't even find anything derogatory to say about it — except about their name.

Martin: I don't think people mind what bands are called — unless it's Preteli Spout, that is.

BON JOVI: Living On A Prayer (Phonogram)

Martin: It's good but it's lacking a bit in the song.
Gary: It's not exactly, er, twee, is it? If John Keeble our drummer was doing this he'd give it ten out of ten because he's a metal merchant. I like Bon Jovi too because this is quite original in metal records go, what with that Art Of Noise voice sound doing the bass. I don't like the Spandex trousers but the music is big and exciting.

MODERN TALKING: Atlantis Is Calling (SOS For Love) (RCA)

Gary: People buy this because they've heard it on holiday and want it to remind them of the bikini they met. It's rubbish. We meet these groups in Europe — they're always covered in thick make-up and have blue contact lenses. The appeal? I suppose it's the simplicity and the fact that the hookline is "woah wuah wuah" so that you can sing it even if you're Danish or German.

CLIFF RICHARD AND SARAH BRIGHTMAN: All I Ask Of You (Polydor)

Martin: Sarah Brightman did that "I Fell In Love With A Sealship Trooper" with Hot Gossip years ago, didn't she? I used to love that — it was the best song ever. This one! I'd definitely change radio stations if it came on. I couldn't sit through that again!
Gary: Not the most "subversive" record, is it? It's so syrupy, it's really nauseating. I've never been a lover of Cliff's and really, they're two of the most insipid people in music. I think it's rubbish.

THE PRETENDERS: Don't Get Me Wrong (Real)

Gary: Disappointing. I was really looking forward to hearing this — she's the best woman in rock'n'roll: a fantastic voice, a great guitar player and she writes good songs.
Martin: It's poor for a Pretenders record. I love her voice though. At the Bob Geldof wedding she got up and sang some old rock'n'roll songs and it really made your ears prick up.

ARETHA FRANKLIN: Jumpin' Jack Flash (Arista)

Gary: Absolutely brilliant. I love it.
Martin: I love the raunchiness. It's the only record we've had today that's got real guts. It's as good as the original (by The Rolling Stones).
Gary: The funny thing is that Aretha Franklin and Keith Richards (the Rolling Stones' guitarist who "guests" on this version) are two of the oldest people in the business — both over 40 — but they haven't gone into the Lionel Richie syndrome of post-30s-Terry-Wogan-neat-showbiz-personality. Maybe I'll play this more than any of the other records this fortnight.

HEAVEN 17: Contenders (Virgin)

Martin: Will this rescue them from the dumper? I don't think so. There's not much of a melody.
Gary: I like his almost monologue very English Michael Carne-type vocal — he sings like he's wearing a three-piece suit. But once you've heard the first verse you've heard the whole song. I suppose we'd better put on Marc Almond now. I hate this record already and I haven't even heard it yet.

MARC ALMOND: Ruby Red (Virgin)

Gary: I can honestly say that I hate Marc Almond. He's a completely talentless person. This is rubbish. He can't sing in tune, the lyrics are chronic and he gives being camp a bad name — there's nothing wrong with being camp but he's sickeningly camp whereas Boy George is brilliantly camp. I'm never sure whether he's serious or not. The funniest thing was when he was in Soft Cell with that bus conductor-type person playing keyboards and he used to dress up — he's a bit too small in body for all that macho leather stuff. This isn't the worst song he's done though — at least it's got a chorus.
Martin: It's crap.

RED BOX: For America (Sire)

Martin: It's like "Taratula" by Jimmy The Hoover.
Gary: I can't hear whether they're being cynical about singing "for America" or whether they really mean it — if they mean it then it's very politically unsound. It's a sort of Euro-swingbeat with bits of Dexy's Midnight Runners and children singing "hooray hoopay". A bit folk at times. Is that the best one? Thank God. There are so many rubbish records, aren't there?

GARY KEMP'S SINGLE OF THE FORTNIGHT IT'S IMMATERIAL: Space (Siren)

Gary: It's great to write a song about "space" — it's an unusual subject and they've done it in a really novel way. It's almost sad at times — especially if you live in a built up city. The song's got that Talking Heads/David Byrne sound which I like. I think they're one of the best new English groups around because they've got intelligence and this is the best new song and the most original lyrics I've heard in a long time.
Martin: It's got a good groove but I'm not very keen on it. I preferred "Driving Away From Home".

MARTIN KEMP'S SINGLE OF THE FORTNIGHT LIONEL RICHIE: Love Will Conquer All (Motown)

Martin: It's the best song we've heard today and I think it'll be number one. It's the only one that's got it dead right — it's a good production, a good song that you can sing and everything else.
Gary: He's like a black Cliff Richard. I find him nauseating. He's like Mr Pop in America and they always drag him on those award programmes gushing tears. I just find him a bit transparent. At least this is a bit different for him — usually every slow song he writes sounds like The Commodores' "Easy".

FILM

SHANGHAI SURPRISE (15) 96 mins

Life must be difficult for Madonna at the moment. All the "news" papers ever seem to do these days is have a go at her and Sean Penn for billing photographers and being a bit snooty, so it's no surprise that the American media have been extremely nasty about the couple's first film together.

They've said it's a useless flop. They've said it's so bad that it wasn't even shown to the critics, opened in small towns over a holiday weekend and hardly made any money at all. They've said Madonna and Sean Penn were so embarrassed that they had their photo removed from the cover of the paperback "novelisation". They've even said Madonna can't act for toffee.

And the truth? They're wrong (sort of). The film is littered with good bits. It's really "steamy" when Madonna wraps Sean Penn around her little finger, managing to be extremely tantalising and "provocative" even though she's playing a prim missionary. It's really funny when she falls out of a window and lands in a pile of duck's poo. And it's really amusing to watch, since it's excellently filmed and the clothes and locations look brilliant.

Of course, there are a few stumbling blocks. For one thing George Harrison's songs on the soundtrack are dreadful – if only Madonna had done them. For another not only does Madonna's character have the totally preposterous name of Gloria Taklock, but Sean Penn's has the even more ludicrous one of Glendon Wasely. And who would really believe that a missionary and a salesman could outwit a bunch of double-crossing badasses and find a cache of hidden opium in order to help wounded soldiers during the Japanese occupation of China in 1937?

But it doesn't really matter. Even if overall the attempt to make Shanghai Surprise like a 1930s comedy film doesn't work, because the pacing is so sluggish and the slapstick so useless, there's still quite enough of worth here to make all Madonna's fans rush out to see it – and enjoy it. Even if, sadly, it's not a patch on the meritment of Desperately Seeking Susan.

David Peaks

▲ Madonna and Sean Penn rowing back from a big boat in Shanghai harbour where they've been looking for some opium

▲ Madonna and Sean Penn pretending to be some laundry (actually, they've just been double-crossed by the "buddy", Faraday, while looking for some opium)

▲ Madonna and Sean Penn pretend to be some statues in a fountain (actually, they've just been thrown in a cesspit by another cluelessly laddy while looking for some, erm, opium)

▲ Madonna pretends not to be enraptured as Sean Penn "talks" to some Chinese girl when he should be looking for some opium

▲ Madonna pretends to be a "missionary" (not v. convincing, actually)

▲ Madly W. Sean pretend they're wearing some very nice ties. Actually they're not, but they are looking for some opium!

▲ Madonna induces a non-squeezing fit in some Chinese ladies by using her clothes off (actually she's clearing off the smelly cesspit "gangs" in a "communist" steam bath)

▲ Madonna and Sean Penn "tonguing high" (just) on a rickshaw while looking for some opium

FILMS

GOOD TO GO

(15, 89 mins)

▲ Art Garfunkel, who, if he is to be believed, has "never been a bum." Would you credit it?

▲ Art and Little Beets (in the red van below) have a discussion about how absolutely thrilling Go-Go music is while everyone else makes a horrible racket.

▲ A Go-Go fan tunes into Radio 4 to catch the shipping forecast on his ghetto "blazer."

Good To Go is a film about the relentless percussive beat of Washington DC's Go-Go music "scene". It's not some dodgy "rockumentary" though; instead it's a slightly pathetic attempt at a Go-Go thriller. It "stars" the rather unattractive Art Garfunkel (who used to be half of v. successful singing duo Simon and Garfunkel), as a lazy, alcoholic has-been journalist who wears horrid knitted ties and says things like "I've always been a bum".

One day Art discovers an amazing new beat on ver streets which is driving those Washington kids crazy. It's... Go-Go music, a sort of cross between hip hop and James Brown-style funk held together with thundering, throbbing zulu drums. Art is very excited about this discovery (you can tell by the way his voice never wavers above a barely audible monotonous drawl). He also discovers a rather doomy side to the "scene"; it's a little bit violent. The ensuing sub-plot involving an aspiring Go-Go drummer called Little Beets is weak to say the least, and the "action" and "suspense" are about as gripping as an episode of Juliet Brno. Worst of all, though, the director — Don Letts of Big Audio Dynamite fame — has somehow managed to make the real stars of the film, the awesome Trouble Funk, seem a little bit dull. The live "spontaneous" concerts look under-attended, over-choreographed and stiff. Good To Go, sadly, isn't very good at all.

TOP GUN

(15, 110 minutes)

In America, Top Gun has been phenomenally successful and its lead actor, Tom Cruise, has become a superstar "overnight", not to mention something of a heart-throb. And a large part of Top Gun's appeal is certainly due to his cheeky good-looking features and impressive bare torso — both of which are paraded incessantly throughout the film.

Good thing too, because the story itself really isn't up to much. "Top Gun" is (in real life as well as in the film) the name given to The U.S. Navy Fighter Weapons School, where America trains its very best combat pilots. Maverick (Tom Cruise) is taken on as one of a group of new recruits, most of whom — surprise surprise — are also stunningly good-looking and have equally impressive torsos. They're all competing to become "Top Gun" — i.e. to graduate as top in their class — so most of the film is taken up with endless "action sequences" where planes whizz madly round the sky (not that exciting, really). And in between all the flying, Maverick inevitably goes a bit wibbly about a woman — one of his instructors, Charlie (Kelly McGillis).

The trouble is that, apart from an amusing scene in the bar when he "chats up" Charlie and a horrific bit about halfway through, nothing much really happens.

If you're happy to trot along to the cinema just to have a good gawp at either Tom Cruise or Kelly McGillis, or if fighter planes fascinate you, or if you love films where everyone cheers wildly and pats each other on the back when they've just killed a few enemies (who, it's pretty clear, we are to presume are nasty old "Russians") then you'll probably love Top Gun. Otherwise, you may well find it rather flat and dull.

Chris Hewitt

▲ Charlie (Kelly McGillis) and Maverick (Tom Cruise) in a rare "all-star clothes-on" shot.

▲ Maverick is being congratulated by his peers, minus for killing a few baddies before they all go and take their tops off.

THE BEATLES – A CELEBRATION by Geoffrey Giuliano (Sidgwick & Jackson £14.95)

In the complete and entire history of rock and roll itself there has never, ever been a group which has sent the world quite as potty as John, Paul, George and Ringo. Twenty years ago the world was Beatles mad. You couldn't move for Beatles bits and bobs: there were Beatles dolls (with "life-like" wobbly heads), there were Beatles Colour Cards (which tell you fascinating things like "John Lennon's favourite food is cornflakes"), there was the Beatles Flip Your Wig game, there were even Beatles tights with little Beatles' heads patterns on them. "We-e-e-ee!" For a few years the Beatles seemed to be a global obsession. And even now, after all this time, some people are still pretty bonkers about them. Geoffrey Giuliano, the bloke who put this book together, is a complete Beatles fanatic. All these dolls and games and tights and whatevs are from his personal collection of Beatles artefacts. And he's written his version of The Beatles story as well, filled out with his own interviews with just about anyone who had anything at all to do with the group, from some bouncer at the club in Liverpool where they used to play in the early days to businessmen who were involved with the Beatles' record company to friends and family like Yoko Ono and Julian Lennon. And because it's quite ridiculous in its scope, covering more or less everything from the incredibly trivial to the very personal, it's actually one of the most compulsively fascinating books ever written about The Beatles.

STARDUST: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF DAVID BOWIE by Tony Zanetta and Henry Edwards (Michael Joseph, £7.95)

A bit of bad timing, this. You see it's only a couple of weeks since the last David Bowie biography was released – one called Alto David Bowie – and that was supposed to be the definitive book about the chap, so it has rather overshadowed this latest book. Actually Stardust is a pretty exhaustive account of the Bowie story too; the only problem is that one suspects it doesn't always stick too closely to the truth. Bowie is portrayed as this bloke who's constantly bursting into tears whenever people don't treat him as a proper star, who's always trying to wipe out his past by snubbing all his old friends and colleagues and who lives a cocoon-like existence where only a privileged few are ever allowed to talk to him. A case of "spicing up" the story a wee bit, perhaps? Still, it's a good read anyway. (And Betz is giving some copies away on page B...)

A David "Bowie" and his ex-wife Angie looking a bit of a state in 1973.

Bob Geldof's brilliant but previously very expensive autobiography, Is That It?, is now available in a paperback version published by Penguin at the far more snappy price of £3.95. And it's still just as irreverent, sordid, intriguing and interesting as ever...

DON JOHNSON by David Hershkovits (Virgin Books, £1.99)

Don Johnson is, of course, the star of Miami Vice, the so-called "sexiest man in America" (bliseeeeeerurgh!) and a bit of a recording "artiste" these days as well. And, what's more, if you read between the lines of this new biography you might think he's a bit of a creep, too. Why? Because until he became fantastically rich and famous acting the part of Sonny Crocker, he used to spend all his time hanging around with a crowd of famous actors and pop stars in Hollywood, going to lots of parties, drinking much too much and posing in very dodgy magazines. And his love life sounds as if it was a bit wayward too – he's been married and divorced three times already. And though he's settled down a lot these days and leads a much cleaner life, he still sounds as if he's a bit of a snooty pants. For instance, if fans come up to him and ask him for an autograph he just whips out a card that says "Sorry, you caught me at an inconvenient moment..." and hands it to the fan and then trolls off! What a nerve!

CAMEO

HAMMERSMITH ODEON, LONDON.

When Cameo fling themselves on stage at a packed Hammersmith Odeon, every single eye is fixed on one spot. And that spot is Larry Blackmon's red plastic cod-piece. In fact, throughout the whole evening it is difficult to concentrate on anything else, what with all the highly camp hip-wiggling he goes in for.

Cod-pieces apart, there are two dodgy things about going to see so-called "funk" bands. One of these is their fondness for all-in-one lycra jump-suits—as demonstrated perfectly by support act Cash-Flow, who are all wearing particularly nasty pink ones. The other is that they force the audience to shout out their name CASH-FLOW! CASH-FLOW! CAM-E-O! CAM-E-O!! After all, we are perfectly well aware of who they are, thank you.

But these things aside, Cameo are superbly entertaining. It just takes them a little time to get round to the funky stuff, that's all. The audience, who all want to dance, have to endure some gruesome "rock'n'roll" guitar, followed by some even more gruesome "rock'n'roll" keyboards from a most un-funksome bloke in a fright-wig. But after a couple of soul numbers, an icky tribute to Bob Marley (not a good idea) and a few puffs of dry ice, things start to get moving with some funky tracks from the "Single Life" album.

"Are you ready to PAAAAAAAR-TY?" shouts out Nathan Lefranck (the one with the bald bits and dreadlocks), and the answer is a resounding "Yes, please!!". And as Cameo move onto their hit singles—"She's Strange", "Single Life" and "Word Up!"—the audience starts to go entirely squiffy. There's much Yo-oh-ing, whistling blowing, horn-honking and rump-swaying. Arm waving is positively encouraged. But there's not quite as much dancing down in the stalls as there is on stage. Cameo have been touring in the States for 10 years—plenty of time to perfect their funny and very energetic dance routines. These involve much hopping on one foot, hopping on the other foot, a kind of woad-wearing motion with clenched fists and Larry Blackmon (who looks like something out of a Marvel comic) thrusting his desuper underpants in the direction of the audience whilst rolling his eyes throughout. In short, all highly entertaining stuff.

Lalo Borg

CAMEO: Word Up (Club) It's really quite remarkable how, after about 10 albums that weren't even released in Britain, American soul group Cameo have become just about the hottest band in the country over the last year. This album is well up to the standard of last year's "Single Life" and while a lot of the second side slips into slightly routine dance music, side one contains two of the most indisputably brilliant songs ever—"Word Up" itself (which sounds good even when you're not looking at Larry Blackmon's red cod-piece) and the more melodic next single, "Candy" (8 out of 10)

Chris Heath

a whole LP's worth of his songs does get a bit generous after a while (6 out of 10)

William Shaw

IRON MAIDEN: Somewhere in Time (EMI) A ram bunch, Iron Maiden are not concerned with the usual raucous heavy metal topics. Oh no, instead they sing of Greek mythology ("Alexander The Great"), of loneliness ("Long Distance Runner") and of surrealism ("Deja Vu"). Do not, however, be fooled by this semblance of sensitivity: the still sound like lead bangers. As with every other Iron Maiden record, their fans will love it and everyone else will

RIC OCEAKI: This Side Of Paradise (Geffen) Ric Ocasek, leader of the Cars (and the one who looks like an emaciated member of The Ramones), has now released his second solo LP and it sounds exactly like the Cars. Never mind, it's still jolly good—a clever treatise of superior American pop and electronic gadgetry. Actually, it's a bit dreary at first, but after a few plays really grows on you. Richard Ocasek puts in a "guest" appearance and, although there are no obvious singles here, it's slick and commercial enough to keep him in Rolling Stone for quite a while yet. (7½ out of 10)

Simon Brothstone

HOWARD JONES: One To One (WEA) There are those amongst us who matter darkly that H. Jones may well be finally dumped—bound they are, of course, helplessly wrong. LP number three is easily a match for the first two, plus it's a bit of a step forward too. Yes, Howard's gone all funky. The songs all have a harder, punchier feel than before, and much of the credit must go to famed producer Arif Mardin who's a bit of an expert at dancefloor records. And the songs? Well, they're still a-bites with wily-dolly woppy can't-weall-be-mice-to-each-other? political sentiments, but then that's Howard for you, isn't it? (7 out of 10)

William Shaw

SMILEY CULTURE: Tongue In Cheek (Polydor) This has been a whole new wave of British reggae artists over the last few years led by the likes of Smiley Culture, Maxi Priest and Tanya live and, curiously enough, they all used to perform with the same "sound system" when they were in their teens. DJ-ing in dance halls up and down the country. Since then they've all gone off and been successful in their various directions but Smiley Culture's quick fire verbal blitzes, hopping from one accent to another while he recovers some bizarre little storylines, make him the most entertaining of the trio. Even so, ignore it. (5 out of 10)

Josephine Pickering

TALKING HEADS: True Stories (EMI) True Stories is a yet-to-be-released film directed by David Byrne, based on his book about true and bizarre American newspaper cuttings. This isn't a soundtrack album, though, it's a re-recording of songs which, in the film are sung by the actors. Anyway, it's a collection of every type of American music—rhythm and blues, country ballads, gospel choirs and the sing-along pop of "Wild Wild West." Musically it's not that different from the previous Talking Heads album "Little Creatures", but it's still excellent. (8 out of 10)

Simon Brothstone

THE CHAMELEONS: Strange Times (Geffen) Swirly guitar bands come and swirlly guitar bands go, but The Chameleons swirl on—great big huge blowing swirls soaring higher and chattering, o'er and under, and a very charming nose it is too. However, all those swirls do get a nice overblow at times, especially with grandiose lyrics all about "soloson" and all manner of dodgy concepts (man) Not an "immediate" LP but a fine one nonetheless—and as

A-HA: Scoundrel Days

(WEA) Anyone who expects A-ha to fade slowly away after their success over the last year is in for a big surprise if

"Scoundrel Days" is anything to go by. As promised, it's much rougher and more ambitious than their first LP, but it's also crammed with even more ridiculously catchy tunes. The most lightweight ones are where Mags, for a change, has written the music—"Cry Wolf", "Looking For The Whales" and "Maybe Maybe"; the last in particular is the sort of annoyingly memorable song that Paul McCartney comes up with every few years and will doubtless be a massive hit if it's released as a single. The others are much chunkier—huge sweeping ballads like "Soft Rain Of April" and songs full of layered harmonies like "The Weight Of The Wind". Strangest of all, though, is "Parthian Skyline"—the sort of "epic" that punk rock was supposed to have done away with which starts in a rather twee manner before becoming all raucous and bizarre. As for the words, if the last album's lyrics were, as Pål has said, a plea for love to his American girlfriend then most of these are about moping that he's thousands of miles away from her—"oh but how can I sleep with your voice in my head / and an ocean between us" ("The Swing Of Things"), "you're probably asleep already / I am wide awake... I'm missing you so much" ("October"), and so on. How sweet. (8 out of 10)

Chris Heath

it says in the sleeve notes (which include a well-worn doom-poem): "This record was made to be played loud". (6½ out of 10)

Sylvia Patterson

THE STRANGLERS: Oh The Beaten Track (Liberty)

Let's face it: If you're a barking mad Stranglers fan you've probably got all these 30-sided and "oddities" already and if you're not a barking mad Stranglers fan you certainly won't want them. Some of these "rarities" are quite diverting — the early R&B thrash of "Go Buddy Go" and the frenetically punky "Shut Up" (all 66 seconds of it) — but others, the Stranglers' "dear experiments in sound", are just a load of stupid noise I am referring to "Love 30" and "Yellowcake LP 6" in particular and I never wish to hear them again. (6 out of 10)

Tom Hibbert

THE EDGE: Music From The Film Captive (Virgin) If you expect The Edge's first solo album to consist of lots of pounding, bombastic instrumentals — U2 without Bono belting on top — you'll be disappointed by this. It is, after all, film music, consequently The Edge turns the volume down and twiddles his fingers gently to produce some beautiful (though rather insubstantial) pieces, helped out by some suitably haunting folk singing from Sinead O'Connor on one song. (6 out of 10)

Chris Heath

JAMES BROWN: Gravity (Portrait) The "Godfather" of "Soul" must have seen countless writers and producers come and go during his 58 years, and this time it's the turn of Dan Hartman. Dan has lovingly gathered together some of James Brown's favourite trademarks — the springy guitar, the brass-jammy rhythms — pressed the "double-gait hot walk" program and prestidigitated lots of highly polished disco soul during which JB can let loose his joyful, stratospheric to his heart's content. Not that you'd call songs like "Living In America" and "Gravity" classics exactly, but it's confident, energetic, highly danceable and a lot of fun. And sometimes that's enough. (7½ out of 10)

Ian Craze

THE MIGHTY LEMON DROPS: Happy Head (Blue Guitar) People always point out three things when they mention The Mighty Lemon Drops. Firstly that they're one of the best new groups around, secondly that their jangling guitars and repetitive tunes sound almost identical to Echo And The Bunnymen on their first album, "Crocodiles", and thirdly that they've got a very silly name. And all three are absolutely true. (7 out of 10)

Chris Heath

NEW MODEL ARMY: The Ghost Of Cain (EMI) New Model Army sound very much like the Alarm; they have a "live", rocky feel and a tendency towards overblown "poetic" lyrics (ie "droning, thundering, towering noise"), but take a much more political stance — explicitly anti-nuclear and anti-American. Some groups manage to mix pop music and politics — New Model Army don't. Even if you share their political views, a whole album full of their what-a-mess-we're-making-of-the-world sentiments is just too depressing to take. (4 out of 10)

Calotte Campbell

CYNDI LAUPER: True Colour (Portrait) There are certain sizzly sections of the Smash Hits "office" who sniff that Cyndi Lauper has got an "amproy" voice. But I know better. And that's why I shall say a merry "big deal" to those who point out that these songs aren't quite as appealingly poppy as before, cook a snook at the boring old parades who stand aghast at her brassy "melody" of Marvin Gaye's "What's Going On" and the "lo-ko" nursery rhyme, shrug a nonchalant "so what" at the fact that the rhythms are a bit more heavy-handed than is strictly desirable, and just rejoice in that glorious unchained voice-a-cooing and a-wailing and a-generally-awesomely-all-before-it in a wondrous tidal wave of passion. Viva Cyndi! (You are completely mad — "Ed"). (8½ out of 10)

Ian Craze

FREDDIE JACKSON: Just Like The First Time (Capitol) Poor old Fred — he works himself into a fair old tizzy but his LP still ends up a barnos bore. One or two tracks — like "Jam Tonight" — are a bit more sprightly than the smoother stuff of yore but, mostly it's still desperately clichéd soul crooning, with lyrics of the "you're the only one" (no harm) and "gonna leave you all night long" (zzzz) variety, set to the predictable tinkly-tonkly electronic piano or spry strings. Even his own vocals (hopelessly overdone, presumably to compensate for the null material) sound as if they have more to do with indignation than passion. A good singer who deserves better songs. NEW SINGLE C O N T E N D E R S
7" AND 12" DANCE VERSION - VS 881

Right. Let's go. Who's going to start the bidding, then, in the Mutterings Let's-Spend-Lots-Of-Money-In-As-Silly-A-Way-As-Possible-Competition? Opening the bids.

Dead Or Alive? Apparently they paid $500 a day just so that Pete Burns could ride Fury, the horse in the Lloyds Bank ads, in their "Brand New Lower" video.

Which is topped by Michael Jackson. He carried a $750 leather handbag when he dressed up as an old lady to go to the premiere of his film Caplan (see page 3) so that no one would recognise him. He also, it is rumored, wore a long black gown, a heavy fur "wrap," a big hat and tinted glasses after rejecting his other two disguises — as an usher and as a Disney Robot. Which is almost as mad as —

Prince His Royal Purple-ness has recently splashed out £5,000 on Swedish 19-year-old model Fatma Bergstrom whom he met in a Paris Jazz club — including £3,500 on a diamond ring and £1,300 on a plane ticket to Minneapolis to be "with" him. Almost as strange as Peter Foster Who? He's the Australian "tea millionaire" who apparently has had the "privilege" of dating

Samantha Fox for the last five months and has offered her with "champagne all over the world" (whatever that means), a romantic safari holiday and her very own £10,000 tapestries. Which is exactly the same amount of money that has fallen into the hands of Frank Goes To Hollywood. That's the value of five goods. Nine gave them about a year ago (plus two Wimbledon tickets, believe it or not) in the vain hope the band would wear them everywhere. They haven't. Not at all. Still, £10,000 is nothing compared to the amount squandered by Stevie Wonder. He's spent £40,000 on, er, learning to fly, even though he's blind. Apparently on his first go in a light aircraft he said, "It was fun for a few moments but the plane suddenly nose-dived." Any bids higher than 40,000?

How about Mick Paladini? Who? He's the photographer who, raked by Sean Penn's habit of buying photographers, has cut an ad in an American magazine challenging Penn to a $86,000 prize-light. "It doesn't sound like a good idea," muttered one of Sean's friends... Not quite as good an idea, anyway, as writing a song and then finding someone wants to use it as a him title — as discovered by The Psychodelic Furs. They got paid

£120,000 for allowing their title "Pretty in Pink" to be used. But even that isn't as much as has been offered to Madonna. The makers of 100% have apparently promised her £1 million if she'll appear in just six episodes. But even that isn't as much as spent by this year's winner.

Sylvester Stallone. He's paid a "snipshot" £11 million for a house including a 50-seat theatre, a wine cellar with vintages from the 19th century, two guest homes and an eight car garage connected to the house by a 100ft tunnel. It didn't, sadly, have a polo park so he's building one. Mutterings would like to point out that £11 million is enough money to hire Fury for around 70 years, to buy Michael Jackson around 15,000 handbags, to "woo" Samantha Fox over one thousand (good) times, to teach Stevie Wonder to fly over 250 times, to light Sean Penn just under a hundred times, to buy five

Psychodelic Furs titles of get Madonna in 66 episodes of Dynasty. Mickey — who needs it, eh? — (I'll pay you 100 if you can think of 25 Mutterings Facts — Ed.) Roger Taylor of Brian Auger and The Trinity is expecting a baby! Antony and The Johnsons are expecting a baby! Lorraine of Five Star recently failed her driving test when the clutch slipped and the car bumped the curb — afterwards she had a bit of a snuffle on Steadman's shoulder. — Mutterings Fact 9 Sanny Anello, the boxer in Madonna's "Papa Don't Preach" video, has recorded an "answer" record called "Papa Only Wants The Best". — Mutterings Fact 4

Nick Kamen, the broke who takes his clothes off in the laundry in those Levi's ads, has had his first single — gasp! — written and produced by Madonna who also does backing vocals. It's called "Every Time You Break My Heart" and is out "soon". — Mutterings Fact 5 When Owen Paul told a recent girlfriend, Louise, that he didn't want to go out with her anymore she "squashed a raw egg in my face". Hardly surprising if he keeps saying things like "I'd love to pose for a magazine like Playboy" (i.e. with no/w many clothes on). — Mutterings Fact 6

Sarah-Jane Morris, the other singer on The Communards "Don't Leave Me This Way", has modelled for "roughly" magazines and sung lovey "see" songs in doggy clubs. — Mutterings Fact 7 Don Johnson has apparently been taking Bonnie Pointer of The Pointer Sisters cruising in his 40th speedboat and is in June. — Mutterings Fact 8 Elton John has given Fergie a song as a present for her and Andy 50-0-

000 can hear it but apparently it's like his instrumental "Song For Guy" but "more royal". — Mutterings Fact 9 Run DMC are making a film called Tougher Than Leather — apparently a cross between Beverly Hills Cop and Bambo (i.e. no very good). — Mutterings Fact 10

While The Psychodelic Furs were at the Edgeworkers Hotel in Seattle, built on a pier over a lake, bogmen dredged the water below and found, thanks to the efforts of numerous rock'n'roll bands over the years 27 VW, 15 sofas and assorted tables and chairs. — Mutterings Fact 11 Paula Yates dodgy latoo on her arm apparently covers an ever dodger one saying HULL, duum during a youthful intabulation with American punk rocker Richard Hell. — Mutterings Fact 12

Dave Stewart from The Eurythmics has broken three vertebrae in his back, is in wheelchair since the time, and has to sleep on the floor. — Mutterings Fact 13 It's claimed that tramps modelled the London film set of Bob Dylan's film Heart On Fire (as anyone would have noticed, snigger). — Mutterings Fact 14 Burly Bailey, the girl in A-ha's "Take On Me" vid, has a body called Mr Anonymous. "I change his name," she explains, "every time I fancy someone new and give him a big cuddle". — Mutterings

Fact 19 Madonna and Sean Penn are supposed to have had another big row after Sean was half an hour late picking her up — it's said she kicked him out of their $3 million Manhattan house and threw off her gold wedding ring. — Mutterings Fact 19 According to the Daily Express Madonna is planning to tour Britain next year. — Mutterings Fact 17 Billy Joel has been banned from entering pubs, hotels and gastis in a bid to de-chubbify him — he was recently spotted in a New York restaurant sobbing into a sock of celery. — Mutterings Fact 18

Paul Young is almost down to 12½ stones in Italy, possibly after shedding 19lbs by cutting out junk food, eating three meals a day, going windsurfing and being jolly healthy. How disgusting. — Mutterings Fact 19-2/1

Prince claims to have written all his music for the next ten years and to have successfully predicted all the musical trends that will occur. Prince only wears women's perfume because "the street lasts longer" — the suit is something called Motivand de Motivand. Prince's co-star in Under The Cherry Moon hated kissing him so much that she got into trouble for squawking. Originally Christopher Tracey (Prince) in the film didn't die because they were planning a sequel — now Prince is planning to do a completely different film, again in France, starting November 1987. — Mutterings Fact 22

Sade is living in her home near Barcelona reunited with her old boyfriend, says The Mirror. All very well but all the other papers claimed on the same day that she's "with" Spanish businessman Carlos Sotelo Pleg and has a £90,000 flat in Madrid (and she's still together). — Mutterings Fact 23 Dave Stewart was given (grr!) an elephant called Karen by Annie Lennox at his recent New York birthday party. — Mutterings Fact 24

Brian Auger and The Trinity Though they have shrunk a bit. All the rumours about a new guitarist are apparently a load of old tosh, as far as their album is concerned, anyway. Nile Rogers had played most of his guitar parts and Andy Taylor flew in, played on a couple of tracks and negotiated a huge fee for leaving Duran Duran permanently (rumour has it John wanted him to rejoin but Simon and Nick weren't so keen). And now, finally, Mutterings gets on with Mutterings Fact 25 (Oh dear, we've run out of room, how low — Ed.)

Mutterings

George Michael apparently gets a Shiatsu massage from his girlfriend Kathy most mornings — after the "blissful relaxing feeling" of having thumbs pressed painfully all over his body the climax finally involves Kathy "improving his spine" by walking up and down his back!!!
